

Goes to Larger Field of Service—Dynamic Force Behind the Cause of Education and Citizen Training

The public is vitally interested in its schools. When parents find their children awakening to educational and character values, they are quick to give approval and support.

That is the satisfactory school relationship that has developed under the superintendency of Dr. C. F. Dienst in somewhat more than a year of service in the Wayne city schools, and thus his decision to resign to accept the place of deputy state superintendent is regarded with deepest regret.

Dr. Dienst cooperated in spirit and practice with the State Teachers college, and such cooperation proved mutually helpful. As the college is Wayne's biggest and most important institution, close cooperation has been heartily endorsed as the practical way to develop the cause of education.

Dr. Dienst believes that since the schools are supported by taxpayers' money and are training taxpayers' children, the public is entitled to know all the facts about the handling of the school's affairs.

While the Wayne school loses much by Dr. Dienst's transfer to a larger field, it will share with other schools of the state the administrative efficiency and educational breadth which have become outstanding in his training and experience.

MOUNTED POLICE MOST EFFICIENT

Rev. David Simpson Tells Kiwanis Club About Canada Officers.

"Canada needs no sleuths because the country's police system prevents the raising of 'Dillinger's' said Rev. David Simpson of Pilger, in an address to the Wayne Kiwanis club members and guests Monday after the regular noon-day luncheon. Rev. Simpson was a missionary in the "wild and woolly west" of Canada, coming in contact with the mounted police every day.

Rev. Simpson lived in England until he was 22 years old when he came to Canada. The working and the discipline principles of the mounted patrol fascinated the speaker very much.

The mounted police, until 12 years ago known as the Royal Northwest mounted police, has been in existence 63 years. When the police was organized, continued, Rev. Simpson, there was no way to get to the western part of Canada since the railroads were not laid there yet.

"Upon the discovery of gold in the Klondike," said Rev. Simpson, "it was the mounted police who were the first to go over the rough roads and build bridges and rest houses." The police also sent back the people who were not well equipped to go on such a treacherous trip.

"In announcing the appointment Sup't Taylor said that Dr. Dienst is particularly well qualified for the position because he has made a thorough study of school funds."

Dr. Dienst, who is 49 years old, took his undergraduate work at the University of Missouri. There he was an instructor in school supervision and an associate in the university school of education.

Dr. Dienst and his family, Marian, Charles, Leslie and Stanley, have won a host of friends in Wayne and vicinity. Though all regret their leaving, they are pleased that Dr. Dienst received the promotion which he so highly merits.

State Superintendent Chas. W. Taylor released the following announcement this week:

"Mr. Taylor announces the appointment of Charles Franklin Dienst, superintendent of the Wayne city schools for the past two years, to be the new Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction following the appointment of Herbert L. Cushing to the Kearney position."

Molasses To The Rescue. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Live stock feeders have long been familiar with the value of molasses both as a feed and as a supplement to the feeding ration and it is probable that more of this product will be used before the coming winter than ever before. Much of the feed that is now available is deficient in those qualities for which molasses is noted.

When fed to fattening cattle, about two pounds per day to each animal should be fed, for at that rate molasses is about equal in food value to corn, says H. G. Zavoral of the Minnesota college of agriculture. If fed in larger amounts, it loses its efficiency and the feed value lowers to about 70 percent of that of corn. For that reason molasses should be confined to about one-fifth to one-fourth of the daily ration of all classes of live stock. Pure blackstrap molasses is available this year at about $30 per ton.

With prices of other feeds averaging about $40, it can readily be seen that molasses can be an economic feed, especially in drought areas where a large share of feeds must be purchased. As a supplement to feed used with drouth affected crops, molasses has a very definite place in the live stock ration, says Mr. Zavoral. The palatability of low grade roughages can be bettered by pouring molasses over them. In this case, when used with silage or ground fodder, molasses is as valuable a food as corn. It can also be used as a supplement to grain rations. As a part of the ration for hogs, it can be diluted with an equal amount of water and fed as slop, or sprinkled over hog feed. When fed to lambs, the amount should be limited to one-fourth to one-third pound per day for each lamb.

The problem of the cattle feeder this winter is to make his supply of rough feed as palatable and nutritious as possible and for this purpose molasses is probably the cheapest and best of the available supplemental rations.

Crop Insurance Delayed. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Reports from Washington as to the status of the program for crop insurance are to the effect that things are not progressing speedily. Conferences between officials and farm leaders, supposed to result in formation of a definite program to be submitted to the president on December 1, ran into two negotiations: First, the officials have been unable to secure sufficient crop data on which to base rates, and second, the farm leaders are not insurance men, and therefore can give little help to the officials in planning. These two factors make for slow-going, and indeed, there are various other considerations to take into account that demand study. Altogether, crop insurance presents so many difficult, if not unworkable, problems as to raise doubts that it can be accomplished.

Among the puzzling questions demanding solution if the scheme is to be put over, in addition to securing crop data on which to base rates, are these:

Selecting a rate, graduated or flat, that does not subsidize low-yield farms, and does not result in high risks.

Determining the amount of coverage, whether 90 per cent, or 50 per cent, or intermediate; the higher the coverage the more popular with farmers.

Whether payments should be in cash or in kind. Secretary Wallace having suggested the latter, which involves costs of transportation and storage, but which would relieve the plan of avoidance of price changes in the commodity insured.

And how about a combination of cash and in kind?

Whether the program should start with one crop, and what crop, or with all crops.

How much capital should be on hand to start. Drouths have recurred frequently of late. If all crops are included, what would happen to the scheme if one or more widespread drouths prevailed before a surplus reserve could be built up?

These are not all the problems, but considering these and others, it is not surprising that officials and farm leaders are not making any great claims as to what can be done.

DR. C. F. DIENST'S constructive ideas of school management, reflected as head of the Wayne school, are doubtless what brought the deputy state superintendency to him without application in preference to many active candidates for the place. And the following communication which he presented to the local school board Monday evening, is an expression of his ideas which the public may well know and consider:

Wayne, Neb., Nov. 2, 1936. "Members of the Board of Education Wayne Public Schools Wayne, Nebraska "Gentlemen: "We have worked together in behalf of the youth and citizenship of this community for a little more than a year. We must always adhere upon procedure but our goal has been the same. I trust that the best influence of our efforts may find a place in citizenship worthy of Wayne and America.

"Continuing interest in the children of the community and concern for the welfare of the community itself prompts me to leave with you some notes regarding administrative practices in Wayne public schools. In them you will recognize at once fundamental policies which have from time to time arisen in the conduct of school business. I sincerely believe that satisfactory operation requires adjustment in the following phases of the educational program.

- 1. Personnel policies. "2. Accounting and reporting. "3. Public relations. "4. Administrative organization. "5. Instructional opportunity. "Personnel policies: The first step in securing instructional service for children is the proper selection of the teacher. The most important character is the most important consideration, but the character of the teacher is revealed in his work-manship. If he cannot do the work or fails to do the work assigned, he must stand discredited before his pupils, whether the subject be music or mathematics or football. The superintendent knows the teacher's qualifications and must be responsible for the service of his teachers. He should, therefore, nominate candidates for the faculty.

"Since the service of the teachers extends for good or ill throughout the school year and their influence continues throughout the lives of their pupils, we must be careful that we have selected fair treatment. They are entitled to a salary schedule. Trading for service begets bitterness in the faculty, and bitterness in the faculty poisons the influence of the school at its source. The Wayne public schools should have a definite salary schedule.

"Accounting and Reporting: Up to the present time no record has been observed in the Wayne public schools. The records are merely written as transactions are made and are tallied without reference to the revenues and expenditures set up in the budget for the year. For example, salaries of last year paid in July, August and September were charged against the budget allowances of the current year. You should have a budget statement each month and also a report at each regular meeting of the treasurer of the district on revenues received and bank balances.

"Public Relations: The public schools are public institutions of the most intimate concern to parents and citizens. It is true that a board is elected to represent the children, parents, and taxpayers, but the members of this board are public trustees in the most sacred relationship of life. 'Executive sessions' are necessary at times but the practice of executive sessions inevitably results in loss of confidence and harmony. 'Peddling opinions' before the facts are considered is a sure way to bring suspicion and division within the board and in the community. Proper school administration must always be a search for the truth as it must finally come to pass.

"Administrative Organization: The question here is whether or not the superintendent is the executive officer of the board or whether each member of the board is also an executive. The function of a board of education is now generally conceded to be the determination of policies and not the execution of policies. One of the greatest needs in the Wayne public schools is the formulation of rules of procedure for the board of education.

"Instructional Opportunity: The present course of study is, with the exception of commercial subjects, restricted to college entrance subjects. Our community is, essentially an agricultural community. If we are to build our community, boys and girls must find help in the schools in terms of local needs. Courses in agriculture and homemaking should be made available at the earliest possible date.

"Several tests are just ahead for our young people. In the schools, we are dealing with individual and national destiny. Wayne is a favored community. The educational program should provide for the full realization of citizenship in our common country. "In closing, and abiding gratitude for many kindnesses and all good will toward you as members of the board of education and the citizens of Wayne generally, I am Sincerely yours, Charles F. Dienst."

New Deal Victory VICTORY for the New Deal may be accepted at this time as popular endorsement of its philosophy of government. Doubtless the masses supporting the New Deal do not expect the dangerous extremes often feared, and an alert minority will help prevent such extremes. If the president would now surround himself with fewer Tugwells and more Carter Glasses, confidence would be measurably increased.

The campaign was hotly and often bitterly contested. Most of the newspapers and magazines and many leaders in both political parties were arrayed against the New Deal philosophy, but evidently a majority of the voters did not agree with them.

If the administration balances the budget, as pledged, it will have to ease up on spending federal money. And this can be done, only by private industry absorbing more workers from the ranks of the unemployed.

ernor Landon if he had been elected. Solution of involved problems could not have satisfied many groups, and the result might have been a perilous swing to the left at the end of another four years. Whoever is president, it is certain the government must balance its budget before a sound basis can be reached. It is certain that individuals must be able to make the grade independent of government paternalism to insure an era of real prosperity and content.

Often suggested but not yet seriously considered by the general public is a proposition to restrict the president to one term of four or six years. As pointed out by the Lincoln Journal, "presidents are different men in their second term than they were during their first. A first-term president has his mind fixed on re-election. A second-term president is concerned with careful and conscientious administration of the nation's problems." The Journal believes congress is in such a position to recognize the evils of the present system that it could be persuaded to submit to the people a proposition to change the constitution accordingly.

Says the Omaha Journal-Stockman: "It has not taken the hog market very long to decline a dollar or more and the immediate future of prices is still rather uncertain. Liberal receipts and poor quality have contributed to the decline and it is safe to predict that reduced supplies and improved quality of the offerings will bring about more favorable conditions for the hog growers. Prices can advance even more quickly than they have declined."

While we offered vigorous opposition to the New Deal's movement to the left, leaving no doubt as to our policies, we hope, in reinstatement of the prevailing order, new counsel will be called to assist in working out future programs that will insure preservation of the country's democracy and individualism.

One relief following election is assurance that the flow of political propaganda will let up. Every newspaper has been flooded. Additional relief could be administered by the government in largely curtailing the propaganda hitherto sent out regularly by its numerous bureaus.

The philosophy of making the government responsible for the individual, instead of the individual responsible for the government, must, if continued, lead to directing the individual's course.

The New Deal victory revealed a political machine that appeared to function almost perfectly in every county in the nation.

One republican says he is thankful he doesn't have to suffer the pains of defeat more than once in every four years.

A Housekeeper's Plea. Omaha World-Herald: In the normal and usual division of family responsibilities, it has always been our idea that the one who went out to earn the wages, spending six or eight hours a day in stimulating work, has had the softest share. To leave the home, meet other people and other minds, work for pay, is not bad.

The housekeeper has the tough job. To get up earlier in the morning to prepare the breakfast, to cook three meals a day in a hot kitchen, to wash dishes, make beds, sweep the floor, do the thousand and one necessary details of drudgery that preserve the family unity, is, indeed, a task that is never ended.

So we hold only scorn for the wage-earner who finds fault with the housekeeper, criticizes the cooking, complains about the way the beds are made. We hold in contempt the wage-earner who is that kind of a critic, and then adds injury to insult by refusing to take the toiling housekeeper out for an occasional movie, or bridge party, or good time.

So we have only the heartiest sympathy for Harry E. Wheat of Los Angeles. His wife does the wage-earning work for the family, as a school teacher. He does the cooking, the sweeping, the housekeeping for the family, which also has three children. If the facts are as he states, we feel certain that an enlightened court in his city will hearken to his plea, filed in divorce court in answer to her suit. He is asking only $60 monthly for the children, $40 for himself and attorney's fees. A modest request. It ought to be granted if there is justice in this fair land—about which we are not always certain.

JEALOUSY.

In the course of a treatise on jealousy, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick had this to say: "Yet what fools we are to let this vice steal from us, as it always does, our independence, our happiness, and our usefulness! We make ourselves the slaves of all whom we envy. Their superiority does not harm us, but our jealousy does. It is a great day in a man's life when he signs his own Declaration of Independence, that instead of envying others with jealous regard, trying to copy them, or to outstrip them utterly, he will be himself, live his own proper life in his own place, with his own gifts and aptitudes, and will not spoil the service he can render by worrying over the superiority of other folk."

The fall station of the problem of jealousy, however, carries us much deeper than mere independence of spirit. Goethe was right: 'Against the great superiority of another there is no remedy but love.' Positively to love the excellence by which we are surpassed, as though superiority of genius and character were indeed a 'public banquet to which we are all invited'—that alone takes from the mind the last vestige of rancor. To care about the welfare of mankind supremely, to rejoice in better work than ours which helps the cause along, to be interested in the thing that needs to be done and to be careless who gets the credit for doing it, to be glad of any chance to help, and glad, too, of any greater chance than another may possess, such magnanimity is both good sense and good Christianity."

Ross Hanks House Burns At Tilden

When Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hanks and daughter were visiting at Wausa Saturday, fire which started from defective wiring destroyed their home at Tilden. Mr. and Mrs. Hanks had been in Norfolk for the teachers' convention and went to Wausa to visit relatives. Two rooms of the house were completely destroyed. NOVEMBER 9-15.

Speaking of Annual Education Week, J. W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, has this to say: "A major purpose of American Education Week, November 9 to 15, is to induce the average citizen to investigate one of the world's largest businesses in which he is a stockholder with voting power. So frequently we take democracy for granted and forget that this public business belongs to us. We find things going on which we do not fully understand or approve, and then we speak as if some force outside the community of citizens had control of our schools. . . . If in some instances schools are not being operated at top efficiency with programs of vital value to the people of America, it behooves the stockholders to discuss the situation in parent-teacher groups and civic forums with the aim of finding the way to express their votes more intelligently in selecting members for their boards of education and of holding these public servants to account. . . . The public schools are the basic instruments of the people for the achievement of that intelligent understanding of personal and public responsibilities which will enable a democracy to function. If any person, group, vested interest, or clique is manipulating the public business for private or group advantage, the remedy is collective action. During American Education Week each American stockholder in the great public corporation of organized learning is urged to see for himself how the business is being conducted and to find out how he may use his influence to improve the general commerce of education."

Samples of Seed Are Being Tested

The seed testing laboratory of the State Department of Agriculture and Inspection has tested 13 samples of agricultural seed for citizens of Nebraska since January 1, 1936. Of these 2,261 were received in January, 1,750 in February, 3,943 in March, 3,718 in April, and the balance, 1,984 during the period from May 1 to October 5. This indicates that most of the samples are received during the first four months of the year at or near planting time. Much better service could be given by the seed laboratory if the seeds for testing were sent in earlier.

During the rush season it takes from three to four weeks to test the samples and send out the reports, while the same work may be completed at this time of the year in from one to two weeks on most kinds of seed.

Since the purity analysis and germination tests must be shown on all lots of agricultural seed before they can be legally sold in Nebraska, it is important that the tests be made as soon as possible so that sales will not be delayed. Satisfactory tests of sweet clover, alfalfa, red clover, spring grains and old corn can be made at this time.

Five germination tests and five purity analyses will be made in any one month free of charge for Nebraska citizens. Fees are charged for tests made in excess of this number.

Many of the seed samples received in the seed laboratory are too small for satisfactory analysis and test. At least two ounces of the smaller grass seeds, white or alsike clover, or seeds not larger than these should be sent: five ounces of red or crimson clover, alfalfa, ryegrasses, bromegrasses, millet or seeds of similar size, and one pound of corn, wheat, rye, oats, barley, or other cereals.

The sample should be taken in such a way that it represents as accurately as possible the entire lot from which the sample is taken. The containers in which the seed is mailed should be strong manila envelopes or cotton bags. Glass bottles, cardboard boxes, and ordinary envelopes or thin bags are liable to be broken in transit. Each sample should be marked with the name and address of the sender, the kind of seed, a lot number, or other identification mark, instructions as to whether a germination test or purity analysis or both is wanted and the package should then be addressed to Department of Agriculture and Inspection, Seed Laboratory, State Capitol, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Add the salt (3-4 teaspoon unless butter is used). Add the unpeeled eggs. Sift the cream of tartar and soda with the flour, add a little to the raisins, then blend the rest of the ingredients. The nuts should be cut fine and sprinkled on top of each cookie just before baking. Drop cookie dough the size of walnuts about two inches apart on a lightly greased cookie sheet. This dough may be stored in a covered bowl in your refrigerator for several weeks so that fresh hot cookies may be made at a few moments notice. Makes 8 dozen cookies.

Beef Birds Individual beef or veal birds, cooked in the same manner as Swiss steak, are well-liked and easily served. For these, have round steak cut thin in pieces as nearly 3 inches square as possible. Pile on top of each a tablespoon of savory dressing or 2 small partially cooked carrots. Roll and tie into shape. Brown in hot lard, add a small quantity of water, cover and let simmer slowly until done, about one hour.

Apricot Refrigerator Cake 1-4 cup sugar 1-2 cup apricot juice 1 tablespoon gelatin 1-4 cup orange juice 1 cup evaporated milk—or 1 1-2 cups whipping cream 1 1-2 cup ground orange rind 1 lb. lady fingers—or 1 lb. long coconut crackers 1 1-2 teaspoons vanilla Scald the evaporated milk, add 1 teaspoon gelatin softened in a tablespoon cold water, then chill in a freezing tray until almost frozen. Place in a well-chilled bowl. Whip until the milk has about three times its original volume. When somewhat thick, add one teaspoon of lemon juice. Strain apricots and press through a potato ricer. Add the sugar, stirring occasionally until dissolved. Sock 1 tablespoon of gelatin in 1-2 cup of apricot juice, then melt over hot water. When melted, add a little of the apricot pulp. Finally mix with the rest of the apricot pulp. Combine the fruit and whipped evaporated milk or cream, then pour into a mold, lined around the

Two-Tone Meat Loaf 1 pound ground veal 1 pound ground ham 1 cup bread crumbs 2 onions, slightly beaten 2 onions, chopped 6 slices bacon Salt and pepper Combine the veal and half the other ingredients, the ham, crumbs, pimento, onion, egg and seasoning. Separately combine the other half of the ingredients with the ground ham. Line a loaf pan with bacon, pack in the ham mixture, and press it into a level mass. On top of it pack the veal mixture and over all place the remaining strips of bacon. Bake in a moderate oven (350 F.) for about one and a half hours.

A meat loaf is still easier to serve if it is baked in individual muffin tins or custard cups. These individual loaves may be turned out onto a large platter, and garnished with tomato slices and parsley.

Creole Green Beans. 1 qt. can green beans 1 pt. can tomatoes 4 to 6 slices bacon 1 medium sized onion 2 tablespoons flour Dice bacon; cook in order to obtain fat. Cook onion in bacon fat until brown. Add flour to fat. Stir well, add drained beans and tomatoes and let simmer until thick. Put in a shallow pan to cook down the juice.

Sauerkraut 10 pounds sauerkraut 1-4 pound salt Remove the outer green leaves. Never use decayed or bruised leaves. Quarter the heads and shred finely. Pack in a clean keg or earthenware crock. Small containers are recommended for household use. Sprinkle a little salt in the container, put in a layer of three or four inches of shredded cabbage, then pack down with a wooden utensil like a potato masher. Repeat with salt, cabbage and packing until the cabbage is all used. Press the cabbage down as tightly as possible. Cover with a cloth and glaze plate. Place a weight on top of the plate, use flint or granite. Skim off the film which forms when the fermentation starts and proceed according to the above directions. When the sauerkraut is at just the right stage, it may be canned as follows: Place in jars, make a partial seal, process for thirty minutes in the boiling water bath, remove and seal tightly.

Education Week Observed Here

Wakefield high school will observe American Education week which is November 9 to 15. The schools of the United States use this week to show what the school is doing at the present time and to show the needs of the school. Wakefield public school welcomes visitors at all times but particularly during this week. One night next week the school will have some classes in session from 7:15 to 8:45 and would like to have every parent and friend of the school to come and see as nearly as possible actual classroom situations. The classes will be conducted the same as always.

Last year it was impossible for large numbers of visitors to hear and see the music classes. This year at 9 o'clock these groups will appear on the stage in the auditorium for all visitors to hear and see. This will be no special program but merely a presentation of what these groups are doing from day to day.

The cast for the junior play, "Hullabaloo," was named. They are: Letty, taken by Verna Nelson; Nolly, Lawrence Felt; Cora, Linnea Bloomquist; Mrs. Morton, Darlene Kilian; Eric, Ralph Frissell; Albert, Charles Paul; Benito, Charles Rowley; stage manager is Orville Helgen; student manager is Ruth Johnson. The first practice was held Monday. The play is scheduled for November 25.

The faculty met Tuesday evening for the November meeting. Plans for American Education week were formulated.

The entire faculty attended the state teachers' convention at Norfolk last Thursday and Friday.

A door has been placed at the entrance to the southwest hall on first floor in the grade building to keep the band instruments housed while not in use.

FLOAT PARADE AT HOMECOMING

Harriet Lamson Chosen As College Queen For Occasion.

One of the largest and most elaborate float parades ever staged at Wayne college homecoming was led through the business district Saturday morning by the college band. Harriet Lamson of Neligh, elected homecoming queen by an all-school poll in charge of the Katz club, was in the first car. Identity of the queen was a secret until this time. Following were about 25 floats elaborately trimmed, and carrying out different themes appropriate to the occasion. The float chosen first, was a float with a large clock face with four girls' heads peering out at quarter hours. The float bore the words, "Around the clock with Pile." Neihardt float which was second, was an attractive frame in yellow and lavender crepe paper with bouquets of flowers on the background. The platform carried a throne for the homecoming queen who lives at Neihardt hall. Freshman entry was third. This was an automobile with orange and green crepe paper cords arranged in attractive design over the car body.

Loans On Seed Corn

To insure supply of seed corn for next year's crop in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota federal loans on seed corn are being offered in these states having warehousing laws and in sections where the corn will be suitable for the drought states.

Field-selected corn meeting germination and storage requirements is eligible for a loan of $1.75 per 70-pound bushel. The old rate of 55 cents a bushel on crib corn is being offered on corn of good quality which can be sorted for seed at a later date. In both cases the loan agreements carry options permitting the government first chance at the corn. In the case of the $1.75 loan the government can buy it at $3.50 per bushel of 56 pounds while on the 55 cent corn the option can be made to buy it at $1.50 per bushel of 70 pounds.

No figures or estimates are yet available on the probable outcome of the loan. Bullishness on the seed corn outlook for next spring may prompt many eligibles to stay away from the loan in hopes that they will realize more than $3.50 or $1.80 per bushel offered under the option.

Performance, Beauty and Safety Mark Chevrolet's Completely New Cars

Chevrolet's 1937 engine is completely new, but adheres closely to time-proved Chevrolet engineering principles. It is of six-cylinder valve-in-head type, smoother, more powerful, more economical, and lighter.

A representative model from Chevrolet's new line, typifying its beauty and grace—the Master De Luxe Sport Sedan with trunk. Note the distinctive "speed line" extending back from the side of the hood.

Unitized construction joins the floor, cowl assembly, panels, and turret top of Chevrolet's all-silent, all-steel body, to form one integral structure, welded in all joints, and reinforced and braced for permanent silence and safety.

Beauty and utility mark the new Chevrolet instrument panel. The windshield is of greater area, with narrow corner posts, affording better vision.

Luggage capacity in Chevrolet's new trunk models has been greatly increased, as has interior luggage space in other models.

New power, economy, durability, safety and comfort, coupled with striking new beauty, characterize Chevrolet's new models for 1937. They are offered in two series, Master and Master De Luxe, virtually identical in appearance.

Chevrolet's fully-enclosed Knee-Action is furnished at no extra cost on the Master De Luxe models; and new Syncro-Mesh transmission, and safety plate glass all around at no extra cost, feature all models of both series.

Early Days In Wayne County

Early Day from the Wayne Herald for November 4, 1920: Republicans won by large majority in this week's election. Harding and Coolidge were chosen president and vice president; and McKelvie is Nebraska's governor. Wayne county clerk, C. W. Reynolds, and his helpers again scored success in reporting returns of Wayne county election. Every precinct had returns to Mr. Reynolds before midnight and these went promptly to Lincoln. Harvesting of corn is well started and the crop is making a yield of about 40 bushels to the acre. Births reported in Wayne: Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Jones, a son November 1, 1920; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frevert, a daughter November 2, 1920; Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. From Ponca Journal for November 2, 1882: A new pine sidewalk 10 feet wide is being built in front of the Munn, Coats and Porter stores. Cornerstone for the new Methodist church in Silver Creek has been laid by Rev. J. B. Leedom and the church is named the Central Methodist. The last meeting of the campaign will be in Gamble's hall when Gov. John Thayer and Hon. U. Bruner speak.

FUNERAL RITES HELD WEDNESDAY

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon last week at the Baptist church in Carroll for Robert Pritchard, 77, who died at his home in Carroll Monday morning, October 26, at 9 o'clock after an illness of about a year's duration. Rev. R. L. Williams, Presbyterian pastor, had charge. A quartet furnished music. Interment followed in Bellamy cemetery.

Mr. Pritchard was for many years a breeder of high grade Durbin Jersey hogs and his stock was sold in many states. The animals he raised took many prizes at fairs and shows.

Robert Pritchard, son of the late John and Jeremiah Pritchard, was born August 14, 1859, in Dembyshire, North Wales, G. B., and thus reached the age of 77 years, 2 months and 12 days.

At the age of 17 Mr. Pritchard was received into full fellowship by immersion in Chapel Manor First church in Llanfair Fankarist, before his 18th birthday Mr. Pritchard was elected to the important office of chorister in the church. He was also chorister of the town's children's choir. Singing at that time was of high standard in the town and especially in the church where 300 men and women who were good musicians met Sunday after Sunday to worship in song and praise.

Mr. Pritchard had a tenor voice of fine quality and was the leading tenor of the Elwy Choral Union choir which ranked first in all song festivals for five successive years.

At the age of 19 Mr. Pritchard was elected deacon in the church and he held this office in different churches throughout his life. He believed in serving his church and for many years was treasurer, superintendent and teacher. He delighted in talking of the church of his youth and the home where he was taught, trained and prepared for life. Home, in its higher characteristic, was to him a present commentary on his abode in the spiritual world.

Mr. Pritchard was a man of quiet disposition. All his work was done with deep thinking. From his minister he demanded strong evangelical sermons though this was not enough for he believed in living his religion. "As a friend he was true; as a husband he was tender and considerate; as a worker he was honest."

In 1889 Mr. Pritchard came from Wales to America and settled at Long Creek, Columbus Junction, Iowa. There he united with the Congregational church and was active until he came to Carroll in 1900. Here he again took up church work. In a quiet, unselfish manner he provided a home for his parents as long as they lived.

Mr. Pritchard married Miss Mary A. Wynne, daughter of the late John and Mary Wynne of Rhuddlan, North Wales, October 6, 1909, and she has been a loving wife through the years. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard united with the Baptist church in Carroll and have been faithful members.

Mr. Pritchard leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary A. Pritchard, two sisters, Mrs. Edward D. Morris of Carroll, and Mrs. Hannah Jones of Wales, one brother, William Pritchard of Carroll, many nieces, nephews and a host of friends.

Mrs. L. G. Weigle of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a niece, was here from a distance for the funeral.

PUR-A-TENE ON THE BAG

MEANS MORE EGGS IN THE BASKET

WHEN you buy laying feed this year, look for the words "containing Pur-a-tene" on the bag. This means that your feed has been stepped up for more eggs, for healthier hens and increased poultry profits.

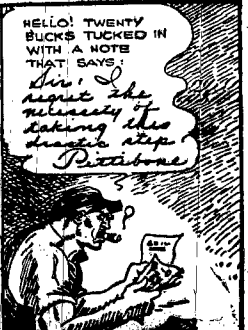

Pur-a-tene supplies the vitamin A that has long been lacking in poultry rations. Experiments have shown that where sufficient vitamin A was furnished, egg production was increased 15 per cent over pens that did not receive sufficient vitamin A. Enough Pur-a-tene has been added to each bag of Purina Lay Chow and Purina Laysena to step it up 2 1/2 times in vitamin A activity. Think what this means, in increased egg production and improved health!

Step up your poultry profits this year by feeding Purina. See us for today's prices!
