

Plenty Keep Editorial Mind Oscillating Between Knocks and Boosts—Likes California—Marketing Turkey Crop—Plans For Christmas.

It is manifestly impossible for a newspaper to please everybody all the time. It is impossible to express thoughts that always synchronize with the other fellow's thinking. A newspaper reveals convictions that are welcomed by some, but loathed by others. If a newspaper has no convictions, or if it has them without the courage to make them known, it is usually scorned as spineless.

Often an editor is misunderstood, and is made the victim of snap judgment. This editor has been accused of hostility to one political candidate and impeded of causing his defeat, though there is no conceivable ground on which to support the charge.

So, the editor is kicked from Dan to Beersheba on what he believes is terribly thin assumptions, the open season on this kind of a bird running throughout the calendar year. But all heard from do not try to make the editor responsible for everything that turns out contrary to wishes or expectations.

In the course of a month many letters and verbal expressions of approval come along to soften the knocks of faulty interpretation, or lift the spirit up after a low appraisal.

"I have been privileged to inspect your November fifth edition of the Wayne Herald. I am writing to advise you of my keen appreciation of your news report of the superior work of our mutual friend, Dr. C. F. Dienst.

"Dr. Dienst is a virile educator with a splendid record of achievement. That you have correctly evaluated his source of strength and fully appreciated his work are clearly evident in your feature column report. This piece of editorial work is one of the finest jobs of school interpretation that I have seen in a long time.

Geo. Harder who returned recently from a two months' sojourn at Pasadena, Calif., expresses delight over his experience on the western coast. He says there is no end to new things to see.

Mr. Harder says motoring is a dizzy and often dangerous experience in California. To avoid traffic congestion, automobiles are forced to travel from fifty to sixty miles an hour. With cars scooting in every direction, observing stop signs and traffic rules, no novice has any business at the wheel.

In order to get a license to drive in California, one must pass a rather rigid examination. He must demonstrate his ability to ascend to high speed without doing any damage.

FIFTY-SIXTH YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1936.

NUMBER THIRTYTHREE

GOLDEN WEDDING DATE OBSERVED

Mrs. and Mrs. J. F. Sherbahn Have Family Reunion For Anniversary.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Sherbahn, Wayne county pioneers, was celebrated Sunday. Members of the family who spent the day with them are Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Devine and children of Norfolk, Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Sherbahn and daughter of O'Neill, and Harry Sherbahn, Gettis Sherbahn of McCook, was unable to attend.

Mr. Sherbahn and Miss Mary E. Scott obtained their marriage license from Judge Martin, father of Chas. Martin of Wayne, and they planned to be married at the home of Miss Scott's sister, Mrs. Warren A. Emery, in Wakefield.

Shortly before the wedding the young couple realized that they could not be married at Emery's because that home was in Dixon county. So the young folks, also George Scott, brother of Miss Mary E. Scott, and Miss Julia Wagner of Cairo, went to the Frank Crane home in Wayne county for the double ceremony which was performed about noon November 14, 1886, by Rev. Marquette, presiding elder.

Mr. Sherbahn who had been in the brick manufacturing business in Wayne for several years before his marriage, had established a home in the present John Soules residence for his bride. Later the family moved to 218 Lincoln. Mr. Sherbahn discontinued the brick plant in 1917. The family went to McCook later and spent 10 years, returning here five years ago.

Mrs. Sherbahn's life bears an interesting contact with history for she was born in the court house at Lincoln, Ill., where Abraham Lincoln often attended court. The court house in Postville, later named Lincoln, was converted into a rooming house and the Scotts resided there when Mrs. Sherbahn was born on Christmas day, 1869. She was an infant when she was brought to Wayne by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Scott.

Mr. Sherbahn's birth date is also at the holiday season. It was December 27, 1856, when he was born in Maytown, Lancaster county, Pa. He came west when Wayne was young.

Pasture Contest Honors McEachen

Wayne Man One Of Twenty In State Given Mention In Omaha Thursday.

George A. McEachen of Wayne was one of 20 Nebraskans given honorable mention in the 1936 pasture improvement contest. Announcement was made at a banquet in Omaha last Thursday. Wayne county was represented by Mr. McEachen, C. E. Benschoff, Fred Wilcox, H. J. Podoll, Harry Samuelson and Agent Walter L. Moller.

The Wayne county farmer has 143 acres of permanent pasture on his land. This is divided between upland and bottom land and fenced into three pastures. McEachen believes in deferred grazing and it has proven profitable for him. Despite the unfavorable weather in 1936 he stripped $140 of Kentucky blue grass seed from these pastures.

While many pastures in this section of the state have been literally destroyed by the drought, the three fields on the McEachen farm are believed to be still alive. The vigor of the grass is kept up by livestock not being allowed to overgraze the grass.

On their return Saturday, with an elk on each fender of the Siler car, front springs of the machine broke and the car turned over three times near Rapid City, damaging the machine. Neither was hurt. After he becomes a full-fledged jockey he loses the weight advantage.

PUBLICATION SET FOR CONVENIENCE OF THANKSGIVING

AGREEABLE to custom the Herald will, on account of Thanksgiving day, issue on Wednesday instead of Thursday next week. The edition will be finished Tuesday night and printed and circulated early Wednesday morning, reaching all subscribers in this territory ahead of the holiday which comes Thursday, November 26. Therefore, all correspondence and advertising should reach the Herald one day earlier than usual. Everyone having something for publication is urged to speed up. * * * Despite a year of drought and other disappointments, all may find reasons for gratitude. As compared with today, the Pilgrims did not have much but religious freedom to be thankful for. As compared with the experiences of other nations, we have ample ground for hope and courage. Human rights are still guaranteed by alert intelligence and cultivated demand. We may well pause to reflect on blessings and make plans to realize expectations, sticking to our posts and paying in earnest effort for the fruits that we desire and seek.

Continued COMMENTING on results of the late election, the Christian Science Monitor says "the occasion calls for an honest, humble effort to lay aside partisan preconceptions." It adds: "This is as necessary for majority as for minority opinion, if Americans are to understand the forces that are working in America, if they are to hold fast what has proven sound, and derive the greatest national good from changes now taking place."

The Monitor advises the nation to keep its feet on the ground, think seriously and act cautiously. It says:

"There is no need to surrender true ideals or honest purposes. Concepts of government which were right before November 3 did not become wrong overnight. Nor are mistaken methods or policies necessarily redeemed by a landslide. But such a political shaking up as the United States received last week does call for mental reassessments. Only the unprincipled will abandon real convictions because they find themselves in the minority. Only the unthinking will consider their views ratified by conscience because they find themselves in the majority. But both the majority and majority only the lazy mind will deny the need for continued thinking, only the frozen mind will refuse to re-examine the situation and seek fresh approaches to it."

The Monitor makes these concluding observations which invite closest analysis: "Was the New Deal largely a product of emergency pressures, or are there still strong popular forces behind it? Are these forces chiefly selfish, seeking only federal handouts for votes, or are they motivated by visions of a larger general welfare, an America of greater opportunity?"

"Can government supply that larger opportunity? William Allen White declares the election reveals a new attitude toward government, a popular determination to make it more directly 'an agency of human welfare.' Of course, government's original functions as a preserver of internal order and defender against aggression from without were exercised as an agency of human welfare."

"All schools were private and tolls were collected on the roads. More and more men have felt that human welfare requires extensions of government. Undoubtedly governmental functions must keep pace with real needs such as those for traffic lights. But sometimes traffic lights are put in where they only impede the free flow of activity."

"Those who jump to the conclusion that government can and must do everything make a serious mistake. They forget that private schools and even toll roads are still proving their usefulness in many places. They fail to see that government may impede rather than regulate the working of the economic system. And they fail to realize that individual liberty and initiative is a wonderful, constructive force which is destroyed by centralized, paternalistic government."

"Americans today must go slow in any further extensions of federal powers. They cannot merely assume that more traffic lights are needed to make the economic system work and provide larger opportunities. They must sift the chaff of partisan politics from the wheat of sound reform. They must make sure that government is actually used as 'an agency of human welfare.' They must improve their concept of human welfare."

Family ANNOUNCEMENT that the Rotary club of Nebraska City will bestow its 1936 honor for distinguished community service on Dr. Allen H. Hostetter, a typical old-fashioned doctor who has been a practicing physician and surgeon in Otoe county for fifty years, recalls the important part members of the medical profession have taken in the evolution of mid-western settlements. In the early days, the "family doctor" made long trips in slow-going, horse-drawn vehicles, over rough roads, in the worst kind of weather, to answer the call of sickness, and often his reward was only the affectionate gratitude of the suffering recipients of his service. His words of counsel and courage were frequently as helpful as the medicine he prescribed.

Speaking of the Nebraska City award and of the average doctor as a friend and adviser, the Omaha World-Herald comments:

"That type of man and doctor was J. D. Fremont, who died in his sleep Saturday night. For 48 years he had practiced in Fremont and surrounding countryside. Night and day he was at the call of his patients, in all kinds of weather, in the days when he had to make his visits by horse and wagon. When the auto served him better, he made 40 or 50 and many, many, many house calls."

went to call him to leave his sleep to go out and minister to someone ill.

"This being an age of specialization, such doctors are not as numerous today as they used to be. Their books were filled with unpaid accounts of those to whom they never sent a bill—for they knew it could not be paid. Their lives were devoted to doing good in the most practical way. Now and then they receive a small measure of public recognition of their work, by such organizations as the Nebraska City club. Usually their rewards are found only in the deep affection and unspoken thankfulness of those they have aided—but they always have counted this reward enough."

Gov. R. L. Cochran is mentioned as a possibility for a place in the president's cabinet. The governor possesses so much more practical sense than the average fellow in Washington that he would lend a good deal of strength to administration circles. His ability as an engineer to make things work out right—his understanding of problems and needs of the grass roots country—would convey to Washington some ideas that could be used to advantage in shaping the course of public policies. It has been a long time since Nebraska has had a cabinet officer, and if the favor of additional political fortune lights on our governor, everybody in the state will be pleased.

Nebraska is one of nine states reported to have declined in population during the past six years. Losers are mostly agricultural states. Whether drought and crop uncertainties have persuaded people to leave, or whether they have gone to big industrial centers in the hope of easier berths, no one knows. But with a few normally productive years, many of those who have relocated, will come back, and having learned to take into consideration the drawbacks in other states, they will stick, deciding that no section has all the advantages or all the ills.

If the president's visit to South America ripens understanding between the two continents, resulting in a united front for peace, it will have a salutary influence on European nations which have moved perilously in the direction of another war. What the world most needs is peace and a chance to recover from the losses suffered in the last war. And promoting friendly cooperation among peoples of the two Americas will be a powerful aid in keeping out of old-world troubles.

Some unidentified newspaper clippings from California reflect frightful bitterness between communist and fascist groups in that state. Why either should win recruits or be permitted to gain threatening headway in this country is inconceivable to persons familiar with these two undesirable forms of government now on trial abroad.

The long-deferred graveled highway to Carroll will soon be realized, and then rains may come without interrupting travel to that section of the county. And a soaking rain would be welcome any time, not only to give the newly surfaced highway a trial, but to put needed moisture into the dry ground."

WHEN TO JUDGE.

Aristotle, the Greek philosopher, noted that an individual was not always at his best, that his poorest, feeblest qualities, coming to the surface, often misled observers and caused misinterpretation of his real character. The old philosopher said: "The true nature of any thing is the best it can grow into." An author comments: "Not by our unworthy but by our exalted moments should we judge ourselves. When we are most unselfish, when we are most aware of God, and our hearts beat in fullest sympathy with our fellow men, then are we the most truly ourselves. The low level of selfishness to which one sometimes sinks, should not be used as the gauge for measurement. Noble qualities which often rule and are clearly evident, should be the determining influence. No one has all the virtues, nor all the evils, and the best rather than the worst should determine character's true value."

For Holiday Season.
 We are informed that plans are already forming for early pre-Christmas decorations and suitable holiday festivities. Christmas is always anticipated as a season of generous good will, but the feeling is not given full stimulus until the appropriate evergreens are on display and varicolored lights lend good cheer to the night scene. The spirit of Christmas is intensified by suggestions, and it may be prolonged by early action.

Remaining Public Land A Problem.
 Omaha Journal-Stockman: Despite the long record of legislative efforts to dispose of the vast amount of arid or semi-arid land now constituting the public domain, the fact remains that Uncle Sam still has a lot of land that is not being utilized and is on its way to becoming in reality the Great American Desert.

In his report to the United States Senate Chief Forester F. A. Silcox presents a rather dismal picture of this big area. He declares that the whole territory may really revert to desert land. It has been dangerously depleted by grazing, an unsound land policy and soil erosion. The report reveals the following facts:

1. The range area of 728,000,000 acres is nearly 40 per cent of the total land area of the continental United States.
2. Forage depletion for the entire range area averages more than half, the result of a few decades of live stock grazing.
3. Three-fourths of the entire area have declined during the last 30 years, and only 16 per cent has been improved.
4. During the same period, 95 per cent of the public domain and grazing districts has gone down grade and only two per cent has improved.
5. An outstanding cause of range depletion has been excessive stocking. Some 17,300,000 animals are grazing on ranges which it is estimated can carry only 10,800,000.
6. About seven-tenths of the area, or 523,000,000 acres, still is subject to virtually unrestricted grazing.
7. Precipitation averages less than one-third that of the middle west and east.
8. One of four drought years out of every 10 characterize virtually all range area.
9. Unsuitable land laws have made the range a bewildering mosaic of different kinds of ownership and of economic units.

INFLUENCE.

The Publishers' Auxiliary which is devoted to newspaper interests, quotes an editorial by the Linden, N. J., Observer editor who offers results of the late presidential election as proof of the decline in newspaper influence in political campaigns. The Observer editor accepts the overwhelming reelection of the president as evidence that the 85 per cent newspaper opposition cut small figure in helping the voting masses arrive at conclusions. William Allen White, famous Kansas editor, is also quoted by the Auxiliary as expressing the belief that the "power of the press" has, according to the late election, largely petered out. The auxiliary mentions defeat of the preponderant newspaper influence as a "stern rebuke." But why should newspapers feel abashed because they were on the losing side? Should they have felt around to ascertain the probable victor, and then either espoused the popular side or straddled the fence? The main consideration would seem to be for a publication to convince itself that it is right. It is more important and more of a safeguard to the public for newspapers to do what they think is right rather than what they think will tally with the action of the majority. It is doubtful if newspapers are as hopelessly bereft of influence as some editorial critics would suggest. There will still be a time when genuine wisdom or lack of wisdom in the late campaign, which constituted a serious obstacle to range management and profitable live stock production.

10. Most spectacular among the miscalculations of range land use has been the attempt to use more than 50,000,000 acres for dry farming. About half, ruined for forage production for years to come, has been abandoned by farmers.

In an attempt to remedy the present conditions, Silcox suggested the following:

1. End to soil and forage depletion.
2. Reduction of excessive stocking.
3. Restoration of cheap range feed.
4. Placing of all range lands under competent management and rectifying of land-ownership and use maladjustments.
5. A sound distribution of ownership between private and public agencies.
6. Balancing and integrating of crop and range use.
7. Correlating of live stock, watershed, forest, wild-life and recreation forms of range land uses and services.

Isaac Bingham went to Ainsworth Monday to be employed in a dry cleaning plant. Mrs. Bingham goes soon.

Recipes

Gives Ideas for Sandwich Fillings.
 No food is so versatile as sandwiches, says Inez S. Willson, home economist. A sandwich if tiny and dainty is welcome at the most aristocratic social function, while a regular man-sized one fits with equal ease into the working-man's lunch box.

So it is a good idea to have recipes for plenty of sandwich fillings in your repertoire. The following suggestions may enlarge your collection.

Sandwich Fillings.
 Ham, chopped and mixed with pickles, olives, and moistened with salad dressing.
 Ham moistened with tartare sauce.
 Left-over meat, finely minced, and combined with chopped pickle, celery, and salad dressing.
 Bacon, fried crisp, chopped, and combined with cold diced cucumbers.

Ham, finely diced and moistened with peanut butter and salad dressing.
 Bacon, toasted on top of a slice of bread and mild cheese.
 Ham mixed with pickle and moistened with salad dressing which has been seasoned with Roquefort cheese.

Diced cold meat, combined with celery and moistened with salad dressing and a bit of Worcestershire sauce.

Right Way Is Easy Way to Broil.
 There is a right way and a wrong way to broil meat, says Inez S. Willson, home economist, and as is usually the case, the right way is much easier than the wrong. Instead of having to stand close by and turn the meat every few seconds during broiling, a single turn is all that is needed.

The secret of this simplified method is in placing the meat far enough from the flame or heating element that by the time one side is nicely browned, it is about half done. It is turned once, and the time the second side is browned, the meat is done. According to experiment, the proper distance is about three inches from the top of the meat to the heat. Of course, the broiling oven should be thoroughly preheated, and the oven regulator turned to "high" for this distance to be accurate.

Split Pea Loaf.
 4 cups puree of extra fancy yellow split peas.
 3 eggs, beaten slightly
 1-2 cup milk
 1 onion, diced
 1-4 cup celery, diced

1-4 cup diced green pepper
 1 pimento, cut in pieces
 3-4 cup diced cooked carrots
 2 cups coarse bread crumbs
 3 tsp. salt
 Pepper
 3 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
 Mix all together. Put in loaf bread pan lined with well greased wax paper. Dot top with butter; sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake in oven at 375 degrees about 1 hour. Remove to serving platter, garnish with parsley, slices of lemon, and ripe olives. Slice and serve plain or with tomato sauce. Will serve about 10 people.
Lamb or Calf Hearts, Stuffed With Apple.
 Wash the hearts thoroughly. Season them with salt and pepper, both inside and out. Fill the cavities with a little butter, parsley, and as many bits of apples as the space will allow. Sew the edges of the cavities together. Dredge the hearts with flour and brown in hot lard. When nicely browned, transfer to a baking dish. Make a gravy in pan, and pour this over the hearts. Cover and let these bake until tender in a slow oven. Serve with potatoes cooked in their jackets.

Pea Soup.
 1-2 cup ham, diced
 1-2 cup onion, diced
 1-2 cup celery, diced
 1 tsp. green pepper, minced
 2 1-2 cups water
 Cook all together until ham is done. Then add 3 cups green puree of extra fancy peas (made by cooking peas and rubbing through strainer), and 1 cup milk, 2 tsp.

Students Attend Peace Conference

The international relations conference which is held at Grinnell college in Grinnell, Iowa, annually was attended last week-end by the following Wayne college students: Miss May F. Wostoupal, Miss Mildred E. Schubert, Miss Bernadine Brown, Miss Virginia Leron, Miss Glenna Tyler, Miss Ethel Person, George Larson and Miss Verna Elefson, sponsor, and Rev. L. W. Granly. The group heard talks by several outstanding men. G. Clark, editor of the American Observer, who was born in Japan and has taught in the University of China, gave a talk on Asia. Others were Renne Smith, who was in the House of Commons and served in the British Department of Foreign Affairs and Mrs. Colby of Minneapolis, chairman of women's peace group in the United States; and Dr. Kutsching of Alstern who is president of the world's student council and a good authority on problems of central Europe.

Order New Books For Wayne Library

Four new books have been ordered by the Wayne librarian, Mrs. E. S. Blair and will be accessioned this week. "Under the Swastika" by John B. Holt is an honest attempt to portray events which the author saw during his four years' stay in Germany from 1931 to 1935. Each side of the political situation in Germany is reported very fairly. "Modern Ireland" by Cicely Hamilton is a book written by an Englishwoman which, while portraying the charm and beauty of Ireland, does not shirk political conditions and treats them interestingly, realistically and fairly. It is an unusual book full of human interest and with a fund of information.

"The Soul of England" by Charles Bradley Ford is a book for beauty of style and expression which takes rank with literature of high order. It shows a side of life which could be found only in England.

Henry Filmer's "Pageant of Persia" is a record of travel by motor into Persia in which the author reveals the "Most comprehensive and exciting picture of Persia, old and new, which has been published since the World War."

Turkey Roasting.

To roast a turkey to highest degree of perfection a low and constant temperature of 300 to 350 degrees is best. There is less shrinkage at this temperature and the meat is juicy and has a better flavor. Young birds cook in less time than older ones, while a larger bird requires somewhat fewer minutes per pound than the small one. The turkey should be brushed with unsalted fat. This protects the skin and gives it a golden crispness.

In timing the roasting of the bird, approximately 22 to 25 minutes per pound (before drawn) should be allowed.

For More Even Cooking.
 Not only is this "right" method better for the cook, but also better for the meat, because it is more evenly cooked in the end and no meat juices are lost by frequent piercing with a fork.

It is a fact that salt retards browning, hence in broiling the salting is left until after the broiling. When one side is nicely browned, it is salted and turned. When the second side is browned it is salted and served immediately on a hot platter.

For broiling, the cut must be tender. Porterhouse, T-bone, club, and sirloin steaks; lamb chops or steaks; and ham slices are the cuts most satisfactorily cooked by this method. Any of these, however, are much better for broiling if cut thick—at least one inch thick. Then when properly broiled, they will be juicy in the center, and nicely browned on the outside.

Miss Johnnie Yergason, Miss Hazel Joye, Robert Lappin, and Marvina Servenson of Wayne City were week-end guests in the E. L. Schroeder home.

One of his rides in Chicago was the roughest Irvin ever experienced. Each race is different, Irvin explains, and a jockey must be continually on the lookout for new situations to meet. Wakefield scored first in the second quarter on a beautifully executed pass play. Nuernberger to Paul to J. Keagle. The pass was good for 40 yards. Nuernberger's kick was good for the extra point.

Allen came back strong in the second half to threaten continuously. A pass from Smith to Lockwood put the ball on Wakefield's 12-yard line. Four plays brought a first and 10 on the one-yard line. Wakefield held four solid smashes and Wakefield took the ball on the one-foot line from where Nuernberger punted to the 35-yard line. Within three or four plays, Allen was back again trying to score. This time Robinson intercepted a pass on the goal line and ran it to midfield where Truby got him. A blocked pass which Allen intercepted and returned to the 20-yard line again put the Wakefield Trojans in a hard place. Wakefield took the ball on downs.

It was not until late in the fourth quarter with two minutes to play that Wakefield scored again. Smith who was badly rushed on his last minute pass from his own 15-yard line fumbled and Wakefield recovered. Two plays later, Robinson skirted around left end to score standing up. Quimby plunged for the extra point.

Happy Birthday To You!

The breath-taking moment of every birthday party is the cutting of the cake and the best cake that can be baked is none too good for the "birthday child."

It looks as if the chocolate birthday cake idea had taken hold—for celebrating from 7 to 70 are demanding chocolate cakes. For the little folks mothers make individual chocolate sponge cakes, frost and decorate them and adorn them with a candle—in a tasteful way of disposing of that juvenile "second helping" problem.

Chocolate Birthday Cake. 2 cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 cup butter or other shortening, 1-1/4 cups brown sugar, firmly packed, 2 eggs or 3 egg yolks, unbeaten, 3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift flour once, measure, add soda, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each. Add chocolate and blend. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased deep 9-inch layer pans or three greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (350° F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Spread your favorite chocolate frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. Double recipe for three 10-inch layers. Tiny Tot's Birthday Cake. 4 squares unsweetened chocolate, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-1/4 cups sifted cake flour, 2-1/4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons water, 4 egg yolks, unbeaten, 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten. Add chocolate and sugar to milk in double boiler, and cook 10 minutes, or until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Cool, covered, stirring occasionally. Add vanilla. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and 1-2 cup sugar, and sift together three times. Add water to egg yolks and beat with rotary egg beater until thick and lemon-colored. Add 1-2 cup sugar gradually, beating until very thick—about 5 minutes. Fold in flour, alternately with chocolate mixture, 1-2 at a time, adding chocolate mixture last; then fold in egg whites. Turn into very slightly greased cup-cake pans, filling them almost to tops. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 20 to 30 minutes, according to size. Makes 18 large, 24 medium, or 48 small cup cakes. Spread your favorite chocolate frosting on tops of cakes and insert small candle on each cup cake.

We Live and Learn.

Nebraska Farmer: The disasters of drouth are not without some compensation. From them we are forced to learn lesson which may help us to meet the problems of future drouths. True enough is the proverb "Necessity is the mother of invention."

Among those measures which promise to protect farmers from unfavorable climatic conditions are new tillage practices such as terracing, contour farming, strip cropping, sub-soil chiseling and basin listing, all of which are proving valuable for soil and moisture conservation in many sections of the Great Plains. Numerous demonstrations of these methods and machines have revealed an unusual interest in them by farmers.

For several years farmers in semi-arid sections have found summer fallowing to be the most dependable method of preparation for wheat and other crops.

In the field of crop experimentation there are results of equally promising significance. Among the foremost is the superiority of hybrid corn in yield, uniformity, stiffness of stalk and drouth resistance. New and improved varieties of wheat and other crops are continually being developed. Soy bean production is spreading like a prairie fire in states to the east and will no doubt invade Nebraska soon. Other new crops for food and industrial use are appearing on the farmer's horizon. Some of them will be found worthy in the farmer's fields.

Pump irrigation is proving to be successful crop insurance on many farms when ground water is obtainable in large volume and at reasonable depths.

From all these developments farmers will derive benefits in safer farming practices and more productive and profitable crops.

(Myrna Mae Neal, teacher.) The fifth and sixth grades have made a map of the United States in the sand table. They cemented the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, Great lakes, Gulf of Mexico and the Mississippi river, painted their blue and put water in them. Tiny stones were used for border lines for the states. The Appalachian and Rocky mountains were made from cement. Little pine trees and rocks were put on them. Some rocks brought from the Rocky mountains have been used for the Rocky mountain range. They represented snow on the mountain peaks by using cotton and artificial snow. Clayton Anderson carved a White House from soap. Other members of the class have modeled clay animals and some wood carving has been done. The small grain regions are represented by small bundles made from straw. Copper, iron, nickel and lead ores are put on the map to show where these are mined. In the Pacific ocean are sand, shells, rocks of various kinds and barnacles that have been brought here from the Pacific.

NUMBER THIRTYTHREE

COLLEGE STUDENTS RANK LOW IN ETIQUETTE TESTS

Dean Martha Smith Makes Survey Of Schools For Thesis.

What should a girl do who does not smoke and who finds herself in the midst of women smokers? This is one of the hundreds of questions on etiquette which Dr. Martha Smith considered in writing her thesis for a doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Nebraska.

From the battery of tests which were sent out, and answered by 409 students in twelve representative coeducational and women's colleges scattered over five sections of the United States, North, South, East, West and Middle West, Dr. Smith was able to make the following conclusions: Students in women's colleges do significantly better than those in coeducational schools; girls were better informed than boys in matters of etiquette; seniors did better than freshmen; no difference was seen between fraternity and non-fraternity groups; students who had attended high school in cities of over 300,000 received higher scores than those who received their high school education in towns of less than 1,000; former private high school students did significantly better on tests of etiquette than former public high school students; and students from homes where the parents' occupation implied a high degree of intelligence scored considerably higher than those whose parents were engaged in occupations requiring less ability.

Each school was represented by freshmen and seniors. In coeducational schools the number was divided equally between boys and girls.

The best average school score came from the west coast. The University of Nebraska placed second. Two girls from Randolph Macon at Lynchburg, Va., made the highest grades in the test and a boy from Birmingham Southern was high among the male students. However, Mrs. Smith found that the average score was 63 percent, which she believed was far too low. Because of this, Dr. Smith, who could find little material written on her subject, recommended to staff members in the university extension division that they offer a course in social usage by correspondence. She has prepared such a supervised study course called Etiquette I.

As her authority on the subject of etiquette in the tests Mrs. Smith turned to Emily Post for the correct answers. She used true-false tests, multiple choice, matching, identification and completion.

An example of the type of test Dr. Smith used follows:

Multiple Choice.
Directions: Four answers are suggested for each of the following social situations. Make a check in the space in front of the answer which seems to you to be the correct form of procedure:

- If someone seated behind you in a theater insists on talking, the best policy is to:
 - Call an usher.
 - Turn around and glare.
 - Say amiably, "I'm sorry, but I can't hear anything while you talk."
 - Change your seat.
- When a young girl who does not smoke finds herself in the midst of women smokers, she should:
 - Say that she does not approve.
 - Leave the room.
 - Make a pretense of smoking.
 - Refrain and say nothing.
- When a young man finds himself self "stuck" with his dancing partner, he should:

- Leave her standing in the middle of the floor.
 - Take her to her seat and leave her.
 - Take her over to the hostess in the next room and excuse himself.
 - Sit with her until someone else asks her to dance.
4. When you have finished eating, you should let it be known by:
- Pushing your plate away from you.
 - Saying, "I'm through."
 - Putting down your fork and spoon.
 - Motioning to the butler.
5. If you are obliged to cross in front of someone who gets up to let you pass, say:
- Thank you.
 - Pardon me.
 - Excuse me.
 - Beg pardon.
6. If you are a woman, and a man whom you do not care to be seen with meets you and walks beside you the thing to do is:
- Turn into a friendly house or shop or take a taxicab and leave him.
 - Tell him frankly that he is annoying you.
 - Refuse to talk with him.
 - Give him a cold stare or a "cut direct."
7. If you are invited out to dinner when you are on a diet, you should:
- Disregard your diet on that occasion.
 - Explain to everyone that you are on a diet and eat only what your diet permits.
 - Say nothing about your diet and make a pretense of eating.
 - Decline the invitation.

Co-ed Groups Higher.
According to Mrs. Smith's survey, students in women's colleges scored 10 points higher on an average than students in co-educational schools. Much of this, she pointed out, may be due to the group which enter because of freshman at women's schools' ranked 13 points higher.

Girls scored 25 points higher than boys in the tests, and seniors 13 points higher than freshmen. Mrs. Smith believes that one should keep in mind that the kind of thing is the most correct. But kindness can exceed its bounds. "It is not necessary," she says, "to talk to every Tom Dick and Harry you meet in the wash room of a hotel. It is polite to say 'Good morning' to elevator operators, but these people are busy watching for floor numbers, and have no time to chat. When you enter the hotel or restaurant dining room you need not sit in the chair facing the light from a window just because the waiter has pulled out that particular chair. His feelings will not be injured if you indicate another and leave the tip.

"It is not kind for the business man who wishes to reward his faithful secretary at Christmas time to embarrass her with an expensive gift. It would be better to offer her a portion of her salary, purely business one. Overly kind employers have been known to discharge their competent secretaries upon no other grounds than their refusal to have lunch with them. Girls who work all morning prefer to be free at noon to join their own friends—over a cheap lunch counter if necessary, rather than to eat a hotel meal under the strain of carrying on a half-business, half social conversation with someone who probably represents only so many dollars a week to them. Don't carry your kindness too far," warns Mrs. Smith.

Dean Martha Smith is the dean of women at the Wayne State Teachers college, coming to Wayne this fall. She received her Ph. D. at the University of Nebraska in 1935 and has done graduate work at the University of Nebraska and in France.

EDUCATOR GIVES TALK ON SLANG

Dr. Louise Pound Is Guest Of Wayne A. A. U. W. Branch Thursday Night.

"Slang Yesterday and Today" was the subject of the address given Thursday evening by Dr. Louise Pound of the University of Nebraska when she spoke in the Woman's club rooms at a meeting sponsored by Wayne branch of American Association of University Women.

Slang was not always thought proper for parlor use but linguists are becoming more friendly to it and approve it for expressiveness. They advise, however, that it be used sparingly so as not to impoverish one's vocabulary or cheapen one's speech.

Was Regarded Vulgar.
In early times slang was regarded as low and disgusting, but it has seen an evolution which now brings it to a place of semi-respectability, began Dr. Pound.

Slang dates back to earliest times. Greeks and Romans had their slang phrases. Shakespeare and Ben Jonson used it in their writings. The 16th century finds use of such words as nab and duds. The 17th century brought slang mainly on the stage and hick was one of the words appearing then. Word curtailment, as prof for professor, bus for omnibus and lab for laboratory, appeared in 18th century usage. In a dictionary of that period Dr. Samuel Johnson discouraged the use of wabble, chaperon, now and bridge as slang and not well refined. Chas. Dickens of the 19th century used slang in his writings. The World war of this century brought a wave of slang for new expressiveness. Over the top, gadget, cheerio and "blightly are some of the phrases coined.

The word slang is current in European countries and its origin is not definite. A German linguist thinks it comes from the word for language.

Status of slang has not always been the same. Dr. Johnson did not use it in his dictionary. Webster's dictionary of 1828 defined slang as low and vulgar. Oliver Wendell Holmes in 1857 said slang is the result of mental apathy. Hopkins defined slang as low and dangerous language. Ambrose Bierce in 1900 said slang is "robbing the literary garbage can on the way to the dump." Wait Whitman was the first enthusiast for slang. In his writing of 1855, published in this century, he championed the vitality and freshness of slang. He described slang as more powerful and more characteristic words. In slang he said humanity attempts to escape from bald literalism. Many present day writers and speakers use slang until it is a positive cult. Dr. Pound told of a writer who came to America to pick up on his slang in order to give his works more picturesque. Today dictionary writers and philologists recognize slang. An Oxford dictionary defines it as a "language highly colloquial and used in a special sense." Slang has thus forced its way to respectable company. It fills a real gap and is permanent.

Explains Slang Uses.
Among slang words which are now common usage are bogus, ruf, at fault, come across, fad, peter out, down to bed rock, come up to scratch, toe the mark. Other words which formerly were in good standing have lost their respectability by their use as slang. Among these are fierce, awful, keen, pill, lemon, nut, dame, iceberg. The war brought tin lid, toothpick and other expressions from common use to be classified as slang.

Slang is not always the property of one social class. Often slang is a professional lingo for a time and dies early. Their utility tests their survival. Slang differs between nations. Dr. Pound explained. Bughouse and nutty are American expressions. The English say the same by using bummy, goofy and a bit off. When the English want to freshen their speech they borrow American slang. They say cop for policeman, shock absorber for anti-bounce clip, etc. All Europe has adopted America's gangster language as expressive. They use put on the spot and big shot.

Favored by Youth.
Dr. Pound feels that young people especially favor slang because they like new names or change. They have vivacity which slang expresses. Many young folks want attention as they wish to startle their listeners and so pick slang. Often slang expresses irreverence, intimacy or inferiority. Some use it for display. Others select slang to add freshness, color, wit or novelty to their talk. If slang words are used carefully according to their exact meaning they are not slang. If they are used carelessly they are regarded so. Dr. Pound advises against using slang until it is the habit. Have a heart, this is the life. Oh boy, and you're telling me are some expressions which have been used so much that they are cheapened. Slang is not necessarily flat or cheap, added Dr. Pound. Do not rely on slang to the extent that it impoverishes your language, Dr. Pound advises.

Ways of Coinage.
Slang is coined by various methods. Often metaphors are used such as lemon, nut and horse leather. Obscure analogies are also used, such as blind date. Others seem meaningless. Compounds are often used, such as baggage smash-er, rubberneck, joyride. Every occupation has its slang. Sports, cartoonists and others have their special phrasing.

Some ideas provoke more slang than others. Dr. Pound cited a few of the slang words meaning worthless as bla, bullyhoo, bull, larfy, appeasauce, soft soap, hokey, crusty, hot air, buncombe, bushwa, humbug, rubbish and fluffdubbery. She listed many variations for the word yes, among them yip, yap, yah, yeb, yessir, O. K., sure. A few of the words used for money are tin, brass, luce, dow, jack, sheekles, chips, rubbles, gelt, wampum, dust, jake, yen, wherewithal, spondulix, whackers and chickenfeed. To indicate an indefinite something a few of the slang expressions are tingemboob, dingus, gadget, doodad, what you may call it. Preference today is for short slang expressions as seram, beat it, jane. In early days splendidous superbuglosious were used and now the favored word is swell. Short and rather ugly words are preferred. New slang words replace older ones, as fourflusher for chisler. Back scratcher, strut your stuff, skidoo and flapper are some slang expressions which have stayed in general use.

Dr. Pound read a list of names which college men use in referring to college women. Among them are daisy, pippin, tomato, oil can, flat tire, washout, hard nose cookie, eve, rib, hairpin, skirt, bird. A Canadian student at Nebraska university collected some names used by young women in describing the men. Among these she listed big boy, high brow, high hatter, stuffed shirt, dim bulb, wet blanket, cake eater, lounge lizard, soft sooper, flat foot, moocher, answer to a prayer, big moment, gum drop, Romeo, suppressed desire, big timer, blow and windbag.

It is well to acquaint oneself with slang but use it very sparingly, advised Dr. Pound. With careful use slang now has a place in refined society.

In closing Dr. Pound read some traffic rules from Japan, showing the contrast with American slang. Among the expressions were the following: At rise of the hand stop rapidly; too horn melodiously and if pedestrian does not notice, too horn vigorously; if horse obstacle your path, pass soothingly; if road mope obstacle your path follow patiently, then fettle your horn melodiously; beware of greasy corner where lurk skid demon, pro-

Auker's Experience Prairie Fires At Holt County Ranch

A telephone message for help because of a prairie fire three miles south of their farm caused Art Auker home near O'Neill, according to a letter written by Mrs. Auker to Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Mittelstadt of Winside. She writes, "A terrific wind from the south and the extremely dry condition of the grass caused the fire to head for our hay meadow with all of our hay stacks in its path. It never dawned on me that a woman would go to a fire but the women up here are real women in an emergency. They drove cars and with cream cans hauled water while the men fought the fire. Art said it looked like an army.

"That fire was soon out and the hay was saved but about two weeks later one broke out near Middle Branch and 40 stacks of hay were blazing at one time. In all there were 94 stacks burned besides the meadow. The fires this year have kept everybody in the hay country on their toes."

"The ranchman's prayer is for an open winter," Mrs. Auker continues. "Another winter like last year will mean a terrible loss but with fall rains and an open winter the range feed will help."

Mr. and Mrs. Art Auker formerly lived in Winside.

Corpus Christi Oil Fields Described by Local Visitors

Visiting the oil fields located two miles from Corpus Christi, Texas, where they spent a few months visiting their son, Doc and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Surber returned recently from their trip and reported having had a very interesting time.

The oil wells in which their son, Doc, has been employed are at Saxet Heights. He is a supervisor or in the Texas slang, "tool push-er." A crew of five men work on one well—the driller, fireman and three "roughnecks" or assistants.

The field at Saxet Heights was opened February 1, and at present there are 180 different oil rigs operating. The wells are from four thousand to six thousand feet deep. It takes approximately 30 days to dig one well with three crews working in eight-hour shifts.

The work is very dangerous as there is a great deal of underground high pressure gas to deal with. One of the wells at Whartan, the field to which their son was later transferred, caught fire as they were coring or testing for oil. The well was 4,500 feet deep and as they worked through the gas it burst into flames. Mr. and Mrs. Surber had been visiting the fields and their son was taking them into town when they looked back and saw the raging fire. They could hear the roar of the fire more than a mile from the field. None of the men were injured but with such an intense roar there is danger of permanent deafening. Vaseline and cotton are used to plug the ears of the workers and the work is directed by flashlight. The well burned for four hours and then snuffed out. The well had to be capped after the accident which required about 36 hours. The company had to send to Houston, Texas, for men to do the capping. These men are called "fire fighters" and are paid $1,000 for the three men for eight hours' work. The total cost of the disaster at Whartan field was $20,000, which is considered very low for such a fire. A high wind carried the gas upward and no other wells were damaged.

The oil field outside of Corpus Christi is about 10 miles long. The workers live in the city and drive back and forth to their work. In some fields, however, homes near the fields are provided.

Corpus Christi Overgrown Town.
Corpus Christi is a town of approximately 65,000 people of whom 65 percent are Mexicans. "It resembles an overgrown country town of frontier days," commented Mrs. Surber. It is built on the waterfront of Corpus Christi bay. Beautiful residences have been built in the newer addition to the city and nice boulevards have been landscaped with palms and date palms which are low growing trees similar to sword ferns. The lawns are beautiful but there are few flowers. The foliage is landscaped around the foundation of the houses, many times growing so high that it obstructs the view from the windows. The flowers one does see are usually bright-colored verbenas.

"Corpus Christi is noted for its schools," declared Mrs. Surber. The city has several large high schools and two negro schools. The Mexicans attend the same schools as the white children.

A great deal of building is going on in the city at present as the housing facilities are very poor. The new homes are very small, most of them from two to four rooms, and are being built for rental purposes.

About 500 hundred people in Corpus Christi are employed by a large chemical factory which is owned by the DuPonts. An addition is being built to the factory this winter.

Living expenses in Corpus Christi are very high. A crowded condition exists in the city which makes rent very expensive. Although there are many rich vegetable gardens around the city, the price of the food is regulated by the fruit growers association.

The principal source of income to the farmers is the truck gardens and cotton crops. The fall has been very good and the gardens have been somewhat injured.

The land is worked continuously as the gardens are planted in September. In February the cotton is planted and also more gardens.

Two streets in Corpus Christi are called "Little Mexico." The merchants are all Mexicans and cater to Mexican trade. It is a little city in itself with Mexican theatres, cafes and stores. Mexicans love their families, and on Saturday when they go into "Little Mexico" to do their week's shopping, they bring the entire family to town. White people who employ Mexicans, are very good to them. They usually provide living quarters for them and also have trailers on the backs of their cars so they can take the Mexican family into town with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Surber were impressed with the Texas city, but it is more of a summer resort. When they left this fall it was very cold and damp and there was a great deal of sleet. The Surbers are making their home here with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Fitch.

Announcing THE FORD V-8 FOR 1937

The Quality Car in the Low-price Field

V-8
85 HORSEPOWER
Maximum Performance with Good Economy
Base, 2.62 in. Stroke, 3.76 in. Displacement, 221 cu. in.

Two Engine Sizes - One Wheelbase AND A NEW LOW PRICE

V-8
60 HORSEPOWER
Good Performance with Maximum Economy
Base, 2.6 in. Stroke, 3.2 in. Displacement, 136 cu. in.

THE New Ford V-8 for 1937 is the most beautiful Ford car ever offered. It is built in only one size—one standard of roomy comfort and modern appearance. But you may have either the improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum performance—or the new 60-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum economy. The smaller engine makes possible a lighter car—lower operating costs—and a lower price.

When you drive the 1937 Ford with the 85-horsepower V-8 engine, you are master of a power plant that gives everything you can possibly demand in speed and acceleration. Today, improved carburetion enables it to deliver its thrilling performance with unusually low gasoline consumption.

The new 60-horsepower V-type 8-cylinder engine delivers V-8 smoothness and quietness—even at speeds up to 70 miles an hour—with gasoline mileage so high that it creates an entirely new standard of economy in modern motor car operation.

We invite you to see this new Ford car, and arrange to drive one equipped with the engine that fits your needs.

FEATURES

APPEARANCE—A newly designed car. Headlamps recessed in fender aprons. Modern lid-type hood hinged at the back. Larger luggage space. Spare tire enclosed within body. Completely new interiors. Slanting V-type windshield opens in all closed cars.

COMFORT AND QUIET—A big, roomy car. Extra space is in the body, not taken up by the engine under the hood. Comfort of the Center-Poise Ride further increased by smoother action of the long-tapering springs, with new pressure lubrication. New methods of mounting body and engine make this a quieter car.

SAFETY

BRAKES—New Easy-Action Safety Brakes, of the cable and conduit control type. "The safety of steel from pedal to wheel." Self-energizing—car momentum is used to help apply the brakes. Tests show that about one-third less pedal pressure is required to stop the car.

BODY—Not an ounce of wood used for structural strength. Frame structure all steel, sheathed with steel panels—top, sides and floor. All are welded into a single steel unit of great strength. Safety Glass all around at no extra charge.

Early Days In Wayne County

Early Days from the Wayne Herald for November 18, 1920:

Carl Benson who served overseas in the World War arrived at his home in Wakefield with a German bride.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. O. Olson of Hoskins, October 30, 1920.

Mrs. John Sneath of near Wakefield, plans to return from the Pender hospital where she was a medical patient.

Rev. J. Harms who served the Hoskins Lutheran church, has been sent to a mission field in India. He and Mrs. Harms left on their voyage which will require four weeks.

Mrs. James Stanton of Carroll, was taken to an Omaha hospital for medical care.

C. H. Smith and son of Carroll, are using their large saw to cut wood for many families.

J. Hinnerichs and family moved to the Geo. Linn house in Carroll, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jones moved to the place the Hinnerichs family vacated.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Elder and son, Harold, of Carroll, accompanied a party on a special train to Florida.

Evangelistic services closed at Carroll with 80 converted by Rev. Harrington. Business men gave the evangelist $700 for services of his party.

Mrs. Gus Rehms of Winside, was surprised by friends on her birthday.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sund of Wayne, November 14, 1920.

A daughter was born to Dr. and Mrs. Dwight Sigworth at Norfolk, November 13, 1920. Dr. Sigworth used to live in Wayne.

Dixon county board denied an election asked for voting on changing the county seat from Ponca to Allen on grounds that women signed the petition. The case was heard in district court and decision will be given later.

Wayne hospital: Glen Burnham of Sholes had a minor operation. Mrs. Walter Green is a medical patient. Mrs. Carrie Bruner had a major operation. Wm. Hofetel is a medical patient.

Peter Henkel who underwent an operation for appendicitis, is improving.

From Wayne Herald for November 14, 1899: The glass blowers are with us this week. Mrs. Morehouse visited her daughter, Mrs.

Walter Weber. A. B. Slater and family moved to Omaha. A. P. Childs is in South Dakota looking for a newspaper location. James Dobbin went to Norfolk to get a carload of Oregon horses. Mr. and Mrs. R. Craven returned to Monroe, Wis., after a visit in Wayne. Wm. Seckman's suit suffered a broken leg when a scaffold gave away while he was laying brick in Hartington. A travel ball will be given at the town hall on Thanksgiving night.

From Ponca Journal for November 18, 1880: The weather is disagreeable with too much cold, snow and general disagreeableness but it will be better next summer. A trip from Ponca to Niobrara is a hard and tedious journey. The distance of 80 miles could be made in three or four hours by direct route. To reach that place one leaves Ponca by train early in the morning and goes to Sioux City. From there one takes a train to Canton, S. D., a distance of 65 miles and there waits five hours. At Canton one is 25 miles farther away from Niobrara than when the journey was started. The next trip is to Marion Junction and one is still farther from Niobrara than when at Ponca. So 15 hours of travel have brought one no closer to his destination. From Marion Junction one takes a train which makes 10 miles an hour and arrives at Running Water the next morning. There one crosses the river and after 23 hours of travel Niobrara is reached. The traveler has gone nearly 300 miles and has crossed the river twice to cover the 80 miles.
