

Of Norris A. Huse who passed away in New York City January 7, was our nephew. He was the elder son of our brother, William N. Huse, who passed away at Norfolk in 1913. Like most fathers, our brother centered high hopes in his two boys— anxious to see them enrich the family's newspaper tradition.

We recall that Judge W. F. Norris, years ago on the district bench in this state and later serving in the Philippines, now living in California, helped the family settle on a name for Norris by purchasing and presenting a baby carriage.

When Norris Huse was about 15 years old and while he was visiting his birthplace, Ponca, a murder trial was in progress at that county seat, the case having been taken there on a change of venue from Thurston county. Norris helped gather testimony for publication in the local newspaper. The earnest effort he put forth in this work stemmed prophetic of subsequent achievements.

We noted Norris exhibited early admiration for his grandfather's unusual literary style and lively sense of humor—an antecedent standard to which he was pleased to look for inspiration.

After Norris severed connection with the Norfolk Daily News to enter the metropolitan field in New York City, we lost touch with his development, though we knew he was going steadily forward, thoroughly appreciating his latest endeavors with the Associated Press.

If the theory of survival proves true, with preserved identities—not an unreasonable conclusion or hope—Norris will not only find his father and grandfather, both of whom had etched themselves deeply into his esteem, but many other kindred spirits to welcome him into a sphere of new values and clarified understanding. And based on this comforting hypothesis, he will find somewhere over there a wonderfully sympathetic and helpful spirit whose passing little more than a year ago shocked off anguished soul into more serious thought of life's plan and death's mysteries. She is sensitive and bashful, and she will not be found crowding ahead of others to attract attention, but she may be seen hovering quietly in the rear, anxious to serve with no reward beyond the consciousness of bestowing kindnesses and doing things worth while. Like others, she is stripped of visible sources of love, Norris' family and mother and brother must fortify courage to finish the earthly course.

Too Long Inconvenienced. It seems the state came into possession of two rotary snow plows last week, and after Friday's storm they were set to work on highways 20 to the north and 8 to the south. The announced plan was to clear 81, northwest of here, after opening 8. That idea left Wayne county blocked on every side. Dr. J. T. Anderson, president of the teachers college, called State Engineer Tilley Saturday night and asked for a share of the state's snow-clearing equipment to hasten opening of highways hereabouts in the interest of the school. The engineer said prompt relief would follow.

Considering the college whose convenience the state should not overlook in its service, it is generally expressed belief that one of the state's snow plows and any other necessary equipment should be headquartered in Wayne. Naturally and properly students come and go, and faculty members have meetings to attend in other parts of the state and they should not be prevented from getting back to their work until all other highways in north Nebraska have been cleared.

In addition to the college's just demands, the town is so centrally located and of such importance to the neighboring trade area that it deserves to be among the first instead of the last to have access to the outside world reestablished after a storm has piled up barriers of snow.

Looking Out for Health. An epidemic of flu, often aggravated by pneumonia, seems to be sweeping the country and taking many lives. The disease appears nearly as prevalent and fatal as it was about the time of the close of the World War. Anyway, it behooves persons to look out for their physical machinery and keep the different parts functioning properly. The body was made to stand a good deal, but if it is neglected or abused, it is less able to combat disease. Wrong nourishment, lack of exercise and deficient rest, weaken resistance, and make one an easy prey for flu or any other disease that happens to be in fashion.

Preventing Monotony. It is suggested that if one is not satisfied with Nebraska weather, all he has to do is to wait ten minutes. If he isn't pleased with the next change, another one will be along soon. He is bound to get what he wants without much delay. Excepting his, growth periods, his climate succeeds well in (Continued on page four)

FIFTY-SIXTH YEAR

COUNTY EXPENSE ESTIMATE MADE

Prices For Road Work Are Fixed As Same For This Year.

Wayne county board, at its annual meeting Tuesday, estimated expenses for 1937 at $133,000, an increase of $2,400 over 1936. Mothers' pension and soldiers' relief estimates were cut, but an increase was made in insane hospital fund. The 1937 estimates are the following: County general fund, $60,000; county bridge, $25,000; county road, $25,000; mothers' pension, $2,000; soldiers' relief, $2,000; county fair, $2,500; unemployment fund, $12,000; blind relief, $500; and insane hospital, $4,000. Only changes were that in 1936 the mothers' pension and soldiers' relief sums were $2,500 each and the insane hospital was $600.

Prices for road dragging work were set the same as last year. The board allows 50c per mile for dragging regardless of the size of the drag and requires that the weight used be at least 175 pounds. The board allows 40c per hour for man and team, 55c per hour for man and two teams and 25c per hour for single man.

Oscar E. Nelson was appointed janitor at the court house at salary of $60 a month. Frank O. Krause was named a member of the soldiers' relief commission for three years. The board allowed $1,200 for extra help for the county clerk and deputy, $1,000 for extra help for the treasurer and deputy, $1,000 for extra help for the county judge, $400 for extra help for the county attorney, $200 for extra help for the county assessor, $720 for extra help for clerk of the district court. The salary of the county superintendent was fixed at $2,000 and this office was allowed $100 for extra help and $250 for institute.

The board voted to buy books and office supplies on the open market. The four county papers were designated as official and the four publish the delinquent tax list, treasurer's statement, commissioner's proceedings, road and bridge notices, each to receive one-fourth of the legal rate. Wayne Herald was designated as the official paper for printing legal notices from the department of public works at Lincoln, these doing with roads and bridges. Legal blanks and stationery bid was let to Carroll.

The board reelected Frank, Erxleben chairman and Miss Bertha Berres clerk. M. I. Swihart is new commissioner who took office last Thursday. David Koch was ill and unable to be present Tuesday.

The board convened Wednesday and Thursday this week to check the semi-annual statement of the county treasurer.

Loan Association Declares Dividend

Reserves And Other Profit Are Realized Past Year By Local Group.

A dividend of 4 percent for the year was realized by stockholders of the Wayne Federal Savings & Loan association, this amounting to about $445. A dividend of 2 percent was declared for the six months ending June 30, 1936, and the same amount for the half year ending December 31, 1936. These payments were made in addition to reserves set aside. The undistributed income of the association shows an increase over what it was at the beginning of the period. Meeting of directors was held Wednesday when reports of the year were made.

The association, a branch of the Home Owners Loan corporation, supervised by the Federal Home bank of Topeka, was organized in March, 1935. Private share holders have invested $7,700 which is loaned by the association on homes and other local building improvements.

Local officers manage the association. R. W. Ley is president; Wm. Beckenhauer, vice president; and L. W. Ellis, secretary-treasurer. Directors include the officers and also C. E. Carhart, J. T. Bressler, Jr., Burr Davis, W. R. Ellis and Carl Wright. Directors, elected by stockholders, select officers.

NUMBER FORTYONE

WEATHER EXPERT'S SPEECH EXPLODES POPULAR NOTIONS

IF "BUNK" means unsupported nonsense, that is virtually Weather Expert J. B. Kincer's characterization of the numerous notions about drought causes. He says draining marshes and running ditches have no influence on rainfall. The record shows periods of extremely dry weather, and then a series of abnormally wet seasons. When years present a sensible mean, the adequacy or inadequacy of moisture is forgotten, and then about all we have to engage worry are hail storms, lightning, wind, grasshoppers, cut worms and Hessian flies. Extensive cultivation to which drought is sometimes attributed, was blamed for excessive rains during the early years of 1900. But Mr. Kincer charges dust storms to plowing up the arid grass lands of the west—a mistake which he thinks should be corrected. Mr. Kincer belongs to the United States weather bureau, and he is the nation's best known authority on weather. He spoke to a joint meeting of Nebraska's crop growers and livestock breeders at Lincoln last week.

LAST OF FAMILY PIONEERS DIES

S. C. Bressler, the last of a family of nine who pioneered in Wayne county, died Saturday afternoon, January 9, at 5 o'clock at his home in Leslie precinct, having reached the age of 78 years, 8 months and 5 days. Mr. Bressler was taken ill the day after Christmas with chronic bronchitis and his condition became critical Friday.

Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 from the Wayne Methodist church with Rev. G. Basil Anderson, minister at Pleasant Valley church, and the Demme service of Pender, in charge. A quartet, consisting of Prof. and Mrs. J. R. Keith, Miss Jeanne Wright and E. A. Fels, sang "My Jesus I Love Thee" and "Crossing the Bar." Mrs. J. T. Bressler, Jr., presided at the organ. Burial was in Greenwood cemetery.

Snow-blocked roads had to be opened Saturday night and Sunday in order that the body could be taken to Pender Sunday. Sled and ambulance were used. Daniel Bressler of Uehling, walked from Wisner and John C. Bressler walked from near Wayne Sunday to the S. C. Bressler home.

Samuel Connor Bressler, son of Daniel and Mary Ann Taneyhill Bressler, was born May 4, 1858, at Fostoria, Blair county, Pa. After one year here he returned to Pennsylvania and married Miss Idelle Lafferty February 11, 1886. The couple came immediately to the home Mr. Bressler had established in this county. Norris Huse Dies In New York City

Former Editor of Norfolk News Passes Thursday With Pneumonia.

Norris A. Huse, 54, of New York City, executive assistant to the general manager of the Associated Press and former editor of the Norfolk News, died Thursday night, January 7, from pneumonia which developed after several months' illness. Funeral services were conducted Saturday. The body will be brought to Norfolk for burial, accompanied by Gene Huse who left Norfolk Wednesday last week in response to word that his brother was critically ill.

Mr. Huse, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Huse and a nephew of E. W. Huse of Wayne, was born at Ponca, Neb., December 24, 1882. He had been associated with newspaper work since he was 6 years old at which time he started to carry papers. He learned to set type at the age of 10 and during several summers worked "at the case" on the Norfolk News. He did reporting while in high school, graduating at the head of his class in 1900. At the University of Nebraska Mr. Huse was active in journalism, assisting on the school paper and other publications.

After his schooling, Mr. Huse returned to Norfolk to assist his father on the News. Upon the death of his father January 13, 1913, Mr. Huse became editor of the News. His brother, Gene Huse, took charge of the newspaper's manufacturing plant. In 1914 Mr. Huse wrote a series of articles for the America Press. Mr. Huse built up foreign advertising for Nebraska papers, bringing 30 eastern men here for a trip through the state. In 1915 he instituted the establishment of a voluntary censorship board to protect papers against fraudulent advertising. He assisted Kansas and Nebraska universities in establishing journalism departments.

Mr. Huse accepted the vice presidency of the American Press association in 1918 and went to New York. His brother then became manager of the Norfolk News. He organized the United Feature syndicate in 1918, and died (Continued on page two)

Road Clearing Going Forward

Plows Gradually Opening Hard, Deep Snow Drifts In Territory.

Roads in Wayne county are being opened this week following the second heavy storm of the season. The snow, packed by a strong wind in the cuts left by the first storm, make drifts that are hard and deep. Frank Erxleben reports that 30 miles of county roads were cleared Monday by the grader working in this district. Progress was not so rapid Tuesday as the plow was stalled for some hours in a drift four miles southeast of Wayne. Mr. Erxleben said that the drifts are harder to move than in any of his experiences but that the roads are gradually being cleared to give everyone an outlet.

Graders and shovellers are at work in each district of the county. State roads are being cleared in this vicinity as fast as possible. A state rotary plow is working in the territory. The highway was open to Wisner Monday. The rotary cleared the road the same day to within a half mile of Winside. A mile detour at Winside makes that town accessible. The rotary was working between Wayne and Wakefield Tuesday.

Dr. J. T. Anderson and Mayor M. L. Ringer have assisted in bringing the state equipment here to open highways.

First efforts are made to open roads to homes in which there is illness or death. The plow was in Leslie precinct to open the roads to the S. C. Bressler home where Mr. Bressler died Saturday and to the Aug. Kai home where Jean Frey died Friday. Roads were also cleared near Altona to the Virgil Chambers home where Mr. Chambers' mother was ill and to the Lawrence Greenwald home where Mrs. Greenwald was ill.

PROSPERITY SEEN IN DISTANCE BY DROUTH-HIT AREA

Wayne county is one of many counties in the middle west left trailing the prosperity parade, reported in more favored parts of the country. New Year's eve in the large centers of the east great crowds joined in jollifications over return of good times. Wild hilarity accompanied lavish expenditures of money, and the celebrators seemed to think they knew what they were celebrating, especially when they started and before they became too laboriously sozzled to reason lucidly. Radio and press reports and motion pictures were convincing, but their impression on the mid-western mind—still painfully reminded of blasted production—simply arouses anticlimactic reactions. Locally, drouth handicaps were aggravated during the holidays by a few cases of scarlet fever, and if Satan had been in charge of circulating exaggerated reports during an important trade period, results could not have been more effective or more unjust. Then followed paralyzing snow blockades. What will come next, anyone can guess—probably floods. But if these huge snow banks will soak well into the ground as they melt, they will turn burdens into advantages. Our innings will come later.

DIES AT HOME IN LONG BEACH

Funeral Rites Conducted For Suzanne Wightman On Wednesday.

Miss Suzanne Wightman, 38, sister of D. S. Wightman of Wayne, died Thursday evening, January 7, at 9 o'clock at her home in Long Beach, Calif. Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday at 10 a. m. at the Mottel parlors in Long Beach and burial was in the cemetery there beside her parents. Rev. Henry Kendall Booth, Congregational minister, had charge.

Miss Wightman had been in failing health with heart trouble for several years, and her condition became worse Thanksgiving day when she suffered a light stroke.

Miss Suzanne Darthea Wightman, eldest child, the late Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Wightman, was born in Wayne November 15, 1898. The family lived in Wayne until 1910 when they went to Long Beach, Calif. She accompanied her parents on a trip to Europe in 1928, and on their return the Wightmans spent two years at Pasadena. They then returned to Long Beach where she was a member of P. E. O. chapter and Ebell club of Signal Hill.

Surviving Miss Wightman are her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Wightman, and niece, Jacqueline Mae Wightman of Wayne. Dr. W. C. Wightman died March 9, 1930, and Mrs. W. C. Wightman died April 28, 1933. A brother, Frederick, passed away in infancy. Mrs. Alice Porter, who had been in the Wightman home for five years, cared for Mrs. Wightman and Miss Suzanne.

D. S. Wightman left Saturday for Long Beach on the first train out of Wayne, after snow had blocked travel Thursday night and Friday. He arrived there early Tuesday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Wightman and Jacqueline had spent a month with Miss Wightman last summer.

RESOLVE PARTY REACHES TRAIN

Territory Digs Out Again After Second Heavy Snow Storm.

After being marooned about 21 hours between 22-foot snowbanks at Apex southwest of Winside the Sioux City-Norfolk train with 14 passengers aboard was rescued Friday evening about 10:30. The train came back to Wayne to allow passengers an opportunity to get a good meal. The engine stocked with fuel and water and the train then finished its trip to Norfolk.

To school children and younger people snow provides a great deal of entertainment in the form of bobbed parties, sleigh rides, skiing and ice skating, but to the railroad officials who are trying to provide means of travel for their patrons it is the source of one big worry.

The train which became stalled left Sioux City late Thursday afternoon and about midnight it could not pull through the deep cut at Apex. Two of the passengers were women and the others men. Due to engine failures the passengers were not rescued until 10:30 Friday night.

Two snow plows and crews of shovellers were dispatched to the scene. One plow carried sandwiches, coffee and doughnuts Friday to the marooned persons who also ate bread, butter, candy and ice cream which were on the train. Passengers whittled rough spoons from pieces of wood to use as utensils. Water supply began to get low when the stalled party was rescued.

Progress which was being made in rescuing passengers was relayed to the depot here by means of a telephone at a nearby farm. Henry Ulrich, who lives near Apex, kept Norfolk radio station and the train crew informed about the progress of the rescue.

If the engine had been working better, it is thought that the people would have been returned to Wayne more quickly. They reached Wayne Friday night, ate some warm food and left for Norfolk at 3:30 Saturday morning by train.

Two of the passengers, Henry Langenberg and Howard Borchering, walked five miles to their homes at Hoskins, but the others returned to Wayne. Aside from the crew being very tired, everyone aboard the train was all right.

Wind Friday packed last week's snow in the cuts left the week before, making the drifts hard enough to hold a person's weight in many places. A drift 60 rods long and 10 feet deep was typical of those in many places.

Snow clearing started Saturday morning as soon as the wind subsided. Streets in Wayne were opened with a plow, and trucks took the snow from Main street. The county's four plows ran day and night to open country roads. State equipment was used to clear main highways.

A glance at Wayne business section Saturday could carry one in imagination to any period within the past half century. G. G. Haller, pioneer, said that if it weren't for the cars around he could believe himself back in the eighties; for wagons, bobbeds, sleighs and saddle horses were seen on the side streets. Many men and boys walked to town, often as far as five miles to get supplies. Many wagons brought groups of neighbors. Almost every wagon had two teams, one pulling and another following to be used through drifts. Each wagon also carried plenty of shovels.

Year Successful In Hotel Company

Officers And Directors Are Reelected Here Tuesday Night.

Stockholders reelected C. M. Craven and R. W. Ley directors for three years. Other directors whose terms hold over are E. E. Gailey, J. S. Horney and C. E. Carhart.

Directors reelected C. M. Craven president, C. E. Carhart vice president and H. E. Ley secretary-treasurer.

Sale Next Tuesday. The farm sale which Mrs. Carl Baker planned for this week has been postponed until next Tuesday, January 19, at the farm southeast of Wayne.

Home From Meeting. Prof. J. R. Keith arrived home Sunday evening from Urbana, Ill., where he attended the National Band Masters' association.

Telephone Men Walk Long Ways To Serve Patrons

Snow storms mean a lot of walking for the telephone men who repair the toll lines. Monday Chauncey Hagle and John Schmer from the Wayne office, went as far as the fair grounds by car and walked six miles to the Winside junction which is north of Winside and west and a little south of Wayne. Tuesday the men went towards Concord. They drove to Holliman's corner, three miles northeast of Wayne, from there they walked. They walked to Wakefield last Thursday, returning to Wayne that evening by train. On these toll lines there are other circuits so no calls were delayed.

The exchange here on January 5 carried 216 toll calls out, 440 toll calls in and through, 9436 local calls and 1023 farm calls into the office. A total of 6615 calls were handled that day. Wayne has 1003 telephones.

Calls are still above normal but they are not up to those on January 5. The calls the first of the week were about three-fourths of those last week Tuesday.

Looking Ahead

Omaha Journal-Stockman: With the coming of a new year, there is always a much greater tendency on the part of thinking people to look forward than backward. Reviews and summaries of what already has occurred are interesting, partly for themselves and partly because of why bearing they may have on the future. But the important question is "What's ahead?"

So while 1936 was an historic year, principal interest now is centered on prospects for continued economic and industrial recovery, for larger crops, better relative prices, and greater business activity, both in this country and abroad. Possibilities of war abroad loom on the horizon. The western hemisphere is at peace, but here at home labor disturbances threaten. All these things have bearing on agriculture's prospects.

Though not as high as at the end of 1935, prices paid for livestock all during the past year were relatively good. Yet profits of feeders were not great, especially the latter part of the year, because advanced feed costs made larger feeding margins necessary. Further upturns in prices are confidently expected the coming year, both as a result of broadened demand on prospective shrinkage in supplies. But whether realization will come up to anticipation depends on many influences, including all those noted above.

In the industrial field, payment of dividends, bonuses and wage increases to avoid new federal taxes on undivided corporate profits probably stimulated activity widely late in 1936. Some economic authorities see a possible lull in business early this year after the effect of this stimulus wears off. And because industry has not swelled its reserves, it would not be as well able to meet a reaction now as in ordinary times. Strikes also would have an unfavorable influence on continued recovery, the extent of which would depend on how widespread they become. War in Europe would increase the demand for American goods, temporarily, at least, but its ultimate effect would be unfavorable to the whole world, including the United States, whether we became involved or not.

Other developments in 1937 will include the beginning of tax collections to finance the social security act, and further extension of the soil conservation program. How these will affect demand and production remains to be seen. And beside all these, the nation is sure to meet experiences now unforeseen.

All in all, therefore, 1937 promises to be fully as interesting a year as any of its predecessor have been. In all probability it will not come up to our highest hopes nor justify our worst fears. But most of us will share the sentiments expressed by a farmer a few years ago, when the depression first set in. "Whatever happens, I hope I live through this," he said. "I want to see how it all comes out."

Wisner Man Hurt In Car Accident

Wisner, Neb., Jan. 11—A serious car accident took place about 7 o'clock Saturday evening about a mile east of Scribner on No. 9 when Jerome Brazda, Wisner garage man, was badly injured as his car rammed into the rear of a trailer attached to a state snow plow.

Mr. Brazda's leg was broken in two places, in the fleshy part of the thigh and below the knee, and a third of his scalp was torn loose. Brazda's car, rammed by the trailer, looked like an accordion from the impact, it is said, and immediately burst into flames. The snow plow crew barely had time to drag the unconscious man free of the car, which, with about $125 worth of parts Mr. Brazda had bought for the garage, are a total loss.

Mr. Brazda was watching an oncoming car, driven by Dr. Kuhlmann, Scribner physician, who was returning from a call, and did not see the plow and trailer. Dr. Kuhlmann gave first aid to the injured man, and with the help of E. W. Emle of Wisner, who happened also to be returning home from Omaha, and the two drivers of the snow plow, got the injured man to Scribner where he was given temporary medical attention. Later he was taken in an ambulance to the West Point hospital. Mr. Brazda regained consciousness later in the evening, and was able to talk to members of his family who had arrived from Wisner.

The leg fractures were of such a nature that the local physicians decided not to reduce the fractures until possibly Sunday or Monday, following consultation with an Omaha specialist. Mr. Brazda also complained of pain in his chest, but as there had not been an x-ray made, it was not known whether or not there were internal injuries.

As Banker's See It

Omaha Journal - Stockman: While agreeing with the general assumption that business conditions will continue to improve during 1937, Banking, the official journal of the American Bankers Assn., points to some factors which may tend to slow up, if not actually halt, the recovery movement. Chief among these is the pros-

Work Progresses On County Projects

Though heavy snow has interfered somewhat, Wayne county WPA workers are continuing their projects. W. P. Canning reports. Men in Wayne are grading an intersection south of the college preparatory to putting in curbing. They are also working on a storm sewer west of the college.

WPA men are doing as much work as possible on road projects near Carroll and Winside.

Snow shoveling is not permitted as WPA work but it is credited to those who are working out grants. About 175 farmers are moving snow to pay on such grants. Others are putting up snow fence.

Looking To The Future

THE Cleveland Trust Company's Business Bulletin, issued at the close of 1936, notes in this country acceptance of a policy of "managed economics," but abandonment of a trend to "managed economy" defining the former as a system "in which the government undertakes to control the fundamental conditions under which business operates," but not the detailed operations themselves, and the latter as a plan "in which the government controls the volumes of output of the principal products, and the conditions of hours and wages of the workers." When the supreme court came to the rescue of the country invalidating the repressive and unworkable NRA nightmare, the government veered away from "managed economy" and contented itself with "managed economics," which latter fits more rationally and practically into a government program.

This Business Bulletin thinks there will be no dangerous inflation and no great boom. Avoidance of each is reassuring, because either would impair stability and in time cause another depression. The Bulletin closes with this summarizing paragraph: "The prospect that the future holds for American business appears to be one characterized by governmental stimulation and repression, reward and penalty, opportunity and restraint. It promises to be a future shaped by the struggles of the managers of our official economics to maintain the continuing prosperity to which they are committed, while striving to avoid the boom which would precipitate the new depression that cannot be tolerated."

Tweedledee Tweedledum

DRIPPING with faults glibly charged to others, the morning leaflet tries first to tickle its readers into the idea that a false and misleading telegram is merely a burst of harmless humor, and then tries to distinguish between "false" and "untrue" as John Byrom failed to distinguish between tweedledee and tweedledum. WJAG's resentment over receipt of a false telegram is met by a counter charge that WJAG helped spread Wayne's scarlet fever scare during a major trade period last month. Art Thomas, WJAG manager, says the only reference that station made to scarlet fever in Wayne was a broadcast on December 15 when it was asked to correct unfounded rumors. Now the morning leaflet which is pleased to condemn without evidence if it suits its mental twist at the moment, was the first to publish a wildly exaggerated report of the disease in Wayne. Trying to escape responsibility by an attempt to fix blame on others who are innocent, does not fool the public. And exulting over a manifest wrong is plainly no way to strengthen resistance among the community's youths.

To Capture State Farm

THERE are four farms in Nebraska used by the state for experimental purposes, and the one nearest to this part of the state is located in the vicinity of Valentine. Demand for a state farm in Wayne county is growing. This county's location and usually high production make it very desirable for the purpose. Agent Walter Moller of Wayne county who is familiar with conditions over the state, is convinced that a farm here would give valuable service to a large and important farm area. Developing hybrid seed corn is one of many delicate tasks belonging to an experimental farm. If a legislative measure is necessary to realize the need, let one be introduced and vigorously supported.

The unicameral legislature is planning to receive half its pay within another week, and also decide on what its members are to be called—whether Senator So and So, or Representative So and So. "Senator" is mostly favored because it is shorter and sounds a little stronger. These preliminary fundamentals out of the way, the body will begin pounding along on all cylinders. Members point to themselves as free from political alignments and party prejudices—the quintessence of mutuality and brotherly love. Freedom from partisan rivalries ought to smooth the pathway for legislation, and if it continues, it will be at least one argument in favor of the one-house plan.

The peace palaver and insidious war symptoms seem to be the way diplomacy acts in Europe. Each country is apparently for peace, but under cover is preparing for wholesale slaughter. The uninitiated masses cannot understand why hostilities cannot be avoided if every nation is bent on avoiding them.

Human sensibilities everywhere are sorely outraged by the kidnaping and murder of little Charles Mattson. To the average intelligence, the fiendish act is inconceivable. To the horror of grabbing a 10-year-old child from his home and issuing a demand for ransom is added the knowledge of ruthless and unnecessary slaughter. Manifestly, the kidnapers intended to exact the money without returning the boy to his parents alive. For the sake of American homes, it is profoundly hoped federal forces, now actively at work, will soon capture the guilty ones; dead or alive, preferably dead.

Dr. Glenn Frank whose leadership has given the University of Wisconsin a place second to none among the country's educational institutions, is compelled to surrender to the LaFollette ring because of disagreement over politics. Governor LaFollette controls the university board, and his order to remove Frank had to be carried out, despite popular feeling among students and the general public in support of the school's head. If the university is to be ridden by LaFollette policies, as seems likely, it will soon lose its educational prestige.

This area celebrated the anniversary of the blizzard of January 12, 1888, by trying to shovel out of the latest snow. The affair of fortyeight years ago was a bad one, but it is doubtful if communities were tied up worse or longer then. In those early days settlers were accustomed to having the usual order interrupted.

Neutrality Legislation.

Auburn Herald: One of the major problems that will confront the next congress, will be the framing of neutrality legislation that will serve, so far as possible, to keep this country out of war. We know war would not only mean a tremendous cost in the terms of human life and money, but we know from sad experience what the aftermath is likely to be in the way of wrecked prosperity and the unbalancing of national standards that require years to restore. We want none of it. Therefore, we want legislation that will protect us and enable us to assume a neutral attitude toward other nations that may become embroiled in war.

It is no easy task. It may seem quite simple to tell warring nations that we have no sympathy with them or their wars and that so far as we are concerned, they can fight until one or the other is exterminated. But it is not as simple as all that.

In our early history there was little danger of our becoming entangled in foreign wars. We enjoyed "splendid isolation." We were off here by ourselves, with oceans between us and our nearest neighbors. We were more independent of other nations because international trade relations were less complicated; we had no particular responsibilities calling for diplomatic interpretation and because of limited communication facilities, diplomacy moved in a more slowly and orderly manner.

But all that is changed. The other nations of the world are virtually our neighbors and common interests are much more numerous and vital to our national welfare. To make effective neutrality laws will call for real statesmanship and those who draft and pass such laws will be entitled to have their names go down in history among those of the illustrious great. No group of men can better serve their country than by providing honorable means for keeping it out of war.

Educational.

Omaha World-Herald: In speaking of education we think first of the schools, then perhaps of the newspapers, then the radio, and occasionally the movies. The growing popularity of the public forum, as demonstrated in Omaha by the meetings sponsored at the Joslyn Memorial by the Colonial Dames, indicates that this is a useful agency in the field of education, and one which may greatly extend its influence as time goes on.

That a considerable part of the public is eager for such education is demonstrated by the size of the forum audiences. At each meeting upwards of a thousand persons attend. They listen, first, to a discourse by a speaker who is an authority in a certain field of thought. His talk is commented upon by panel members, who also have ideas on the subject, and this is amplified by questions from the audience, answered from the stage.

Expert discussion, calm and pointed inquiry, challenge and debate are an excellent way in which the mind can be enlightened. Forum subjects have ranged from Chinese affairs to crime in the United States, to international policies in economics. In sum, a great deal of information is broadcast, as well as trenchant opinion. The public is obviously eager for just that. The forum gives the lie to the belief that people nowadays don't care for much but the currently popular novel, radio comics and movie spectacles. People like to be amused and entertained, which is well; but they also seem to be eager to be informed, and that is something, too.

The Contour Idea Grows.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Perhaps the best testimony yet offered as to the benefit of contour listing and planting comes from Colorado from some of the farmers who tried it last spring in the emergency wind erosion control program. Many of them were so well pleased with the results that they will make the practice a regular one.

In the emergency campaign in Las Animas county 65,460 acres were involved in contour farming. Recently questionnaires were sent to the owners. Eightyfive farmers responded that yields were increased, ranging from 10 per cent to 110 per cent, and averaging 54 per cent increase.

The basic result is the retention of the water and fertility that would run off of rolling land in an up-and-down furrow, contributing to better yields and minimizing wind erosion.

USING TACT.

A magazine writer stresses the importance of saying tactful things to gain friendship and support. He mentions examples to show how taking a helpful interest in the other fellow's affairs proves a winner. He shows how fame and fortune often follow the practice of recognizing merit and helping reward it with expressions of appreciation. Cultivating the habit of belittling neighbors is virtually cultivating opposition to one's own efforts. If one finds nothing to approve and much to condemn in another, he exhibits shortsightedness that reacts to his own disadvantage. The world needs more optimism, more encouragement, more sympathetic consideration, and the one who is alert to these needs, and tries to satisfy them, is bound to reap large benefits. Kindness may not be long remembered, but if made the rule, it will prove powerfully influential. Certainly, a critical attitude, disposed to express disparagement, is never really forgotten, determines the distribution of favors and often raises an insuperable barrier.

avoiding monotony. When a peculiarly severe installment from the north Arctic is delivered and one begins to feel like giving up, the program is suddenly changed. The main thing is to keep up one's nerve and never lie down in the harness.

Comparatively Small Circle.

New York has a lot of interesting things and many intelligent people, but the rank and file, centering all attention on material gain—keeping their anatomy clothed and fed—do not usually allow their vision to carry far beyond the state's bounds. When Prof. and Mrs. A. V. Teed were visiting their daughter in the New York metropolis recently, they chanced to hear the Lincoln choir which was called there to sing during the Christmas holidays. One listening woman, rather above the average in intelligence, expressed surprise when Mr. Teed told her the choir was from Lincoln, Nebraska. She said she thought it came from Lincoln, England.

AN ESSENTIAL.

Character education is included in the state superintendent's biennial report, prepared by Dr. C. F. Dienst, deputy, and copy of which has been received by the Herald. The department treating the subject is amplified by comments from Dr. Dienst who appreciates the supreme needs of the school system. Touching character training, the report says: "Community influences are particularly vital in the formation of character in the rising generation. Without doubt the most potent of all adult influence is found in official actions of boards of education. None of these actions nor the motives prompting them escape the observation and appraisal of youngsters in the classrooms. They are quick to sense the basis upon which teachers are employed and the supplies are purchased. It could not be otherwise when they must be either the victims or the benefactors of the school program. In Nebraska, laws respecting these duties exist for the protection of the children who cannot be heard. For this reason the most fundamental obligation of school administration is the example of integrity in public service." True citizenship of educational opportunity involved in service on the board of education carries with it the most sacred obligation to community and national welfare. In the larger sense, character education is the all pervasive and all inclusive duty of citizenship."

Many Highlights In Christmas Vacation Spent In Florida

Leaving the warm climate of Florida and other southern states where she visited over the Christmas holidays, Miss Clara Smothers, registrar at Wayne State Teachers College returned Wednesday of last week to a snow-covered state.

In the two weeks that Miss Smothers and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Henny who accompanied her were gone they traveled 4,000 miles. Among places of interest where they visited were St. Louis, New Orleans, Pensacola, Tampa, Tarpon Springs, Miami and St. Augustine.

One of the most impressive sights to Miss Smothers was the Bok Singing Tower at Lake Wales. The tower was dedicated by Pres. Calvin Coolidge and is the home of some of the outstanding carillon bells in the United States. Miss Smothers happened to be there during the carillon season and heard Anton Brees of Belgium, who has played on the most noted bells throughout the world. Mr. Brees spends the entire season at Lake Wales and gives regular programs. The carillon season is from December 15 to April 15. The Bok sanctuary surrounding the tower is almost churchlike, it is so sacred. The beautiful park encloses the tower and the grounds merit wear their coats and conversation is kept in lowered tones.

New Orleans proved of great interest, particularly in the older quarters where the houses are built flush on the streets and are decorated with wrought iron. The inner court yards have been preserved in much the same condition as when occupied by the Spaniards and the French.

Unlike the Nebraska weather the temperature at Miami was between 74 and 82 degrees. Weather was also delightful in New Orleans, although it was foggy in the mornings. A full moon in the evenings added much to the pleasure of the high temperature.

The Nebraskans played golf Christmas day on a course spotted with large trees, festooned with Spanish moss.

Hotel officials throughout Florida reported that the tourist season is starting earlier than usual and the hotels are hardly prepared.

Up to the Driver.
 (Montreal Star)

The National Safety Council, which has just concluded a session of several days in Ottawa, has gone over a lot of familiar ground discussing what makes accidents and what to do to avoid them. More than 100 million of laws and greater sum in enforcing them seems to sum up what the council wants to see, where road accidents at least are concerned.

But it is beginning to look as though we should have to go farther back in the matter of highway and street accidents if any real progress is to be made. We may build safer and safer cars and spend billions on apparently fool-proof roads to run them on, but in the long run the difference between safety and disaster depends on the driver. Eventually the authorities responsible for permitting the individual to take the road are going to be forced to be far less indiscriminate in granting such permission. Careful research covering many thousands of individual drivers, conducted by organizations operating whole fleets of busses, trucks and passenger cars, and over long periods of time, has clearly shown that there is a certain proportion of motor drivers which, for one reason or another, should not be permitted behind a wheel at all.

Better drivers is a more pressing need than severer and more numerous laws, and a very important step toward attaining the former is the elimination of the unfit—mentally and physically—and the merely unfortunate.

Better Service For Borrowers.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Is federal financing destined to play an increasing part in agricultural development during 1937? Apparently W. I. Myers, Farm Credit Administration governor, believes that it is, or at least that part of it which is connected with federal agencies of permanent rather than emergency nature.

In his year-end statement, Mr. Myers pointed out that while land bank and commissioner farm mortgage loans fell off sharply from 1935, there were continued increases in cash financing of crop production, farm purchases, and a larger credit business with farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations. Furthermore he indicated a belief that the gains will continue.

Co-incidentally, however, comes the announcement from the American Bankers Assn., that it is circulating among its members a questionnaire seeking to determine the general attitude of banks toward government financing. Questions asked refer specially to the Federal Land Bank, the Land Bank Commissioner, Production Credit associations, Banks for Co-operatives, and federal savings and loan associations, whether these or other government agencies are in competition with individual banks and, if so, what counter measures are being taken.

While it is not so stated, the assumption is that private banks have felt the pinch of federal competition in the lending business and are seeking ways and means of regaining their lost patronage. But whether this is true or not, the results of the questionnaire will undoubtedly make interesting reading when they are finally tabulated. And in any event, the borrower need have no worries, as any moves which private bankers make along the line of expanding their loan business, either with agricultural or other industries, will mean the improved service to the public which competition always brings.

Thespian Dramatic Group Is Formed

The new members are: Bethel Brown, Betty Ellis, Bob Merchant, Blaine Auker, Betty Wright, Verona Hahlbeck, Kenneth Petersen, James Kingston, Wilma Baker, Ray Larson and Marjorie Hook.

The aim of the National Thespian society is "to develop a spirit of active and intelligent interest in dramatics among boys and girls of secondary schools." Other objectives of immediate interest to members is the assistance to directors of dramatics and students in the selection of plays, assistance with rehearsal, make-up, scenery and stage work; to secure information regarding progress being made in fields of educational dramatics; to secure for its member high schools reduced royalty rates and to provide students with appropriate rewards for excellence attained in high school dramatics.

The Thespian society was organized in the spring of 1928 by a group of teachers who felt the need for some kind of reward for high school students who had done meritorious work in dramatics. The proposal for such a society was endorsed by principals and teachers and the dramatic club was formed.

The High School Thespian is the official publication of the society which is published bi-monthly. It is devoted exclusively to the interest of high school dramatics and publishes many articles written by nationally known authorities in the field of speech and educational dramatics.

Qualifications for membership: A regularly enrolled student of a high school or academy of satisfactory scholarship, who has played with merit in a major role of one long play, or two major roles in one-act plays staged by the institution, and has done work of quality approved by the director; minor speaking parts in three long plays or four one-act plays; efficient work as business or stage manager for two long plays; staff work, such as carpenter, property man, electrician, or work in scene painting, costume making and designing; a student who has written a play that is produced.

Wakefield high school first semester will end the last of this week. Economics will be the only new subject to start the second semester. American government will be repeated for another group the next semester. Advanced typewriting and speech are the two courses to be discontinued.

The attendance in the school last Friday ran close to 60 percent for the entire school. According to some reports from other places attendance ran as low as 15 percent.

Semester examinations are being given this week rather than last because of the weather conditions. All teachers are taking into consideration the weather conditions and absences caused by the roads.

It is impossible to satisfy everyone regarding the holding of school on days when the weather is bad. From now on, since the majority of country students are in town the schools will continue to be in session, though the weather be quite disagreeable.

Semester Tuition.
The first semester tuition report has been completed and it is found that the school has an average of over 100 for this period of time. This is the largest number of non-resident students that ever attended the school. The first half year produced $4,077 tuition.

Appeal Is Taken To Retain Judicial Receivership
In Test Case.

Argument and submission of the Hoskins State Bank test case, brought by the attorney general to determine whether E. H. Luikart can continue to serve until final liquidation as judicial receiver of a number of state banks, was made to the supreme court Tuesday last week. Last spring District Judge Clinton Chase ruled, at a hearing in Wayne, that the receivership should be turned over to the state banking department. Luikart appealed to supreme court.

The case chosen for the test was that in which Luikart is acting as receiver for the Hoskins State Bank. Luikart claims that he is an appointee of the court, that there is no conflict with the state banking department and no confusion, that liquidation would be completed within six months and that public interest would not be served by his removal.

In oral arguments, Franz C. Radke, Luikart's counsel contended the district judge's decision was "capricious and arbitrary," because no criticism was made of the receiver's work.

Robert Moddie of West Point, special counsel appointed by the attorney general, however, termed the decision valid because it eliminated what he said was confusion in the state banking department. He said "discord and dissatisfaction" resulted from a "two-headed system" whereby some receiverships were handled by Ben N. Saunders, banking department head, as administrative receiver, and Luikart as judicial official.

The case was designed as a test of the 1935 legislative resolution directing the attorney general to proceed with court action placing all judicial receiverships under the administrative division.

Miss Theodora Carlson had Sunday dinner in the O. G. Nelson home.

Returns Saturday
From Trip East

Berry started Saturday of last week to attend the mid-winter meeting of the American Bar association in Columbus, Ohio, of which he is a member of the executive board. One hundred and fifty lawyers from over the United States attended the meeting which consisted of various committee reports on state laws, legal subjects, legislative and constitutional questions. Arrangements were also made for the annual meeting which will be held in Kansas City some time in September.

On his return trip Friday and Saturday Mr. Berry traveled in rain from Columbus to Chicago. No snow had fallen in Chicago and pools of water were standing in fields.

The eastern states, particularly industrial centers, are more prosperous this year. "With relief money and PWA work, there is more of a demand for consumer's goods," commented Mr. Berry. Many corporations are paying dividends. Agricultural areas, however, are in much the same condition as Wayne county, remarked the attorney. "There is a general feeling of optimism and of going ahead," added Mr. Berry in speaking of the eastern states.

The consensus of opinion is that the country is coming out of the depression and would come out from natural reasons rather than from the spending of money," stated Mr. Berry.

Mr. Berry remarked that everyone was wondering, some with apprehension, as to which way the administration would go. Some who are on the inside in Washington were wondering what was going to happen from now on.

Molasses Produces Firm Pork. Nebraska's livestock feeding procedure has almost been revolutionized during the present feed emergency. In a wholesale manner, molasses is being used to replace grains. As a result, the Nebraska College of Agriculture is conducting experiments to determine the effect on the meat produced. Prof. Wm. J. Loeffel in the picture to the right points out to Norman Weltkamp of Nickerson, Nebraska, the firmness of molasses fed ham. Virginia Stauffer is shown in the left putting a roast from a molasses fed hog into the oven as a part of cooking tests now being conducted. Preliminary results show that molasses is producing a good grade of meat.

Depression Is A Thing of the Past In the East Wayne Travelers Find

Spending of the business depression in the past tense is common east of Chicago, according to Prof. A. V. Teed who with Mrs. Teed arrived home Sunday of last week, after spending the Christmas holidays with their daughter, Miss Janice May, in New York City.

Prof. Teed spoke to a New York manufacturer who feels that the depression is definitely over and supports his arguments by the trend in the stock markets, Christmas trade and the fabulous New Year's eve celebration. The Christmas trade in New York City reached an all time high, exceeding that of 1929.

Another indication of returning prosperity was in evidence by the great amount of Christmas travelers. The Teeds left Wayne December 18, a week before Christmas, and at that time the Chicago depots were crowded. It was reported in the New York Times that all trains were being run with two to five sections and the Pennsylvania lines were running 500 extra-trains and 1,500 additional cars during the holidays.

The cost of the New Year's eve celebration held at Times Square was $10,000,000, Prof. Teed was informed. Eighteen police were on duty and traffic was detoured. The plate glass windows in that district were boarded up by insurance companies.

Cafes and hotels advertised dinners for that evening from $2 to $7.50 and it was rumored that some were as high as $50 a plate. One cafe had reservations for 1,500 diners at $7.50 and by another reservations numbered 6,000. Times Square was reported as being so crowded that the people were packed in the square, like sardines in a box.

Although industrialists feel more prosperous than they have for many years, the strike situation is very serious. New York feels the effects of the seamen's strike and the automobile manufacturers' controversy.

Conservatism is still dubious about the return of prosperity because of the vast amount of unemployment and the unbalanced national budget, commented Prof. Teed.

Most of the two weeks that the Teeds were in New York was spent with their daughter in sightseeing. One day, however, they took their daughter and her roommate up the banks of the Hudson river to the Bear Mountain inn in the Interstate park, a famous resort for winter sports, particularly skiing, tobogganing and ice skating. In direct contrast to the Nebraska weather, it was too warm there for any winter sports, so the Teeds hiked the nature trails, following the Palisades along the Hudson river. Travel is very reasonable. The Wayne folks found Roundtrip fare on the 50-mile bus trip to Bear Mountain inn was only $1.25 each.

Prof. Teed was fortunate in being able to hear Dr. Emerson Fosdick, philosopher and minister at the Riverside church in New York. He described Dr. Fosdick as a man about 50 years of age and a personality characterized by ruggedness and stability. The vesper service, which Prof. and Mrs. Teed and daughter attended featured the Lincoln vesper choir, which was being entertained in New York over the holidays. The Riverside choir also presented an oratorio.

Riverside is an immense church containing, besides the auditorium which seats about 4,000 or 5,000, many rooms which are used each hour of the day every week. There people are taught crafts, dramatics, dancing and many other hobbies and recreational activities. Dr. Fosdick has two assistants. Sunday school teachers have to be well qualified and receive a salary for their services. Night Bible and dramatic classes are held for the working people; a stage is provided for plays and chorus; recreational rooms are at hand for the use of church members.

Two playgrounds have been given by John D. Rockefeller, and some of the rooms have original paintings by Hoffman which were donated by Rockefeller. Grant's tomb and Columbia university are in the neighborhood of the church.

To many Nebraskans who have not been in New York, the manner in which Times Square is situated is interesting. Fifth avenue divides New York City and Broadway which lies at right angles to Fifth avenue, turns and cuts that street and others diagonally making many triangular plots of land. These have been converted into parks and on Times Square, the New York Times building has been located in the center of the theatre district. The building has bands of electric letters between the third and fourth floors which flash the news from time to time.

The Teeds were fortunate in being able to attend the opening night of the metropolitan opera. Miss Janice May had bought tickets before her parents arrived as they were a complete sale of tickets before the Wayne people reached New York. The opening night sees all society out in all its finery. One of Wagner's operas was presented with such outstanding artists as Mme. Flagstad and Thorgeir, who recently came to the States from Europe. At another performance John Gurney made his debut. Mr. Gurney has sung in Wayne several times in the lyceum program.

Prof. and Mrs. Teed lived in Greenwich village while they were in New York. The village is built around Washington Square and the population consist mostly of artists who live a Bohemian life. This section of the city is at the end of Fifth avenue and faces one of the most beautiful apartment houses in New York. The people publish their own weekly newspaper and live a quiet, individual type of life and not the rosy life of which one so often hears.

In the village are many curious, unique eating places. An example is The Heartstone, a dingy, plastered cafe. The lights represented old kerosene lamps and a small fireplace was in one corner of the room. In such surroundings, Prof. Teed remarked that they had a wonderful meal.

The village extends two blocks in each direction and New York university is located in this district.

It is a curious sight, according to Prof. Teed, to see on Sunday morning, boot blacks carrying their boxes of polish along the streets in Greenwich village and shining shoes out on the street. Occasionally, one sees an Italian, with his "hurdy gurdy" and his tin cup, singing up and down the streets.

Prof. Teed reports that Miss Janice May is enthusiastic about her work. She is attending the Graduate School of Retailing at New York university. In the mornings she attends classes at the university and afterwards she works in the personnel department of a large department store, assisting a training supervisor on the first floor, who deals with the sales clerks and in training the people.

She received her assignment to the store through the school and the assignment was approved by the store which also pays her. The store is located diagonally across the street from the Empire State building.

Prof. and Mrs. Teed left New York the first of January, with the weather similar to spring. It rained all through the east and into Iowa where it turned to snow, and they returned home Sunday to find Wayne buried in heavy snow.

Being Snowbound Is Unique Experience For Globe Players

Being snowbound offered a new experience to the Globe Theater players, who presented "Hamlet" at the Wayne State Teachers college Friday afternoon.

The play was to have been given on Thursday evening, but due to the severe snow storm, it was necessary for the group to abandon their special bus in Sioux City and take the train which did not get into Wayne until midnight Thursday. In abandoning the bus, the players had to leave their trunks containing their costumes and each player carried his own Hamlet wardrobe. Their own Shakespearean sets were also left on the bus and make-shift scenery was provided for the production of the play here.

The Globe players are headed by Thomas Wood Stevens, formerly of Carnegie Institute and Shakespearean scholar who conceived the idea of presenting the plays. They have played at the Chicago World's Fair, San Diego and Dallas exhibitions. In Dallas the buildings in which they played were an exact replica of the Shakespearean theaters.

The first tour the group took was to the west coast in 1935, followed by a season in San Diego. The second tour was in the middle west followed by a season in Dallas.

During the summer the group played six shows a day and seven over the week-end every day. These were short plays, however, one of them lasting a full hour. When they gave a full-length play, it was the only production given.

Costumes for the 21 players, five women and 16 men, are designed by a dressmaker who has made an intensive study of the Elizabethan dress and Shakespearean plays. Thus they conform as closely as possible to the types it is thought were worn in the original plays of Shakespeare. In Julius Caesar the men wear Elizabethan dress with tassets over one shoulder.

Most of the players are from Carnegie and Goodman theaters in Drey of West Point, were married last week at Early, Ia.

The residence of Herman Hoffman at Norfolk, was damaged by fire in sub-zero weather last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Greeley Parker of Pender, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary New Year's day.

Emil E. Brodecky, unicameral representative from Howells, was a member of committee on committees.

Miss Madelyn Kerr of Manila, Ia., and Glen Cornwell of Pender, announced their marriage of last November.

The supreme court at Lincoln refused to admit the will of Ollie E. Cagle of Pierce county, which was written and signed in a small red memorandum book while he was dying in a Sioux City hospital. He handed it to a nurse, but no one signed as a witness until after his death. Property in Pierce and 1,400 acres of land in that county were

Chicago. It is a surprise to see that they are all very young. The ages of the women are from 17 to 22 and nearly all of the men are under 30. Several have university degrees and all of them have attended college. Many of the players have studied under E. Iden Payne, director of Shakespeare Memorial theater in Stratford, England and others under Mr. Stevens at the Carnegie Institute. Mr. Stevens always travels with the group but was not in Wayne as he was scheduled to give a talk at Iowa City, Ia.

The troupe does not carry a star and supporting cast but the leads for each play are chosen. A character may play a lead in one play and be a walk-in in another. Lines for the plays are often rehearsed while traveling on the bus. When the actors left Dallas, however, they had a three-weeks' vacation in which they prepared for the winter tour. The group gives 14 plays, three of them are full length and the others are positions of comedies which have been cut so that their average is 45 minutes. Nearly everyone knows all of the parts and they are able to understand each other. Honora Doyle, one of the players, knows all of the women's parts and five of the men's in most of the plays.

The Globe players give one play which is not Shakespearean. It is "Dr. Faustus".

In Dallas the players had some rather amusing experiences. Some people from the backwoods of Texas had seen the plays and they had no conception of what Globe theater plays were. They expected it to be a sort of a night club and they had never heard of Shakespeare.

The players left by train for Sioux City Saturday morning. From Sioux City they will resume their journey by special bus to Iowa City for a performance there this week. Next spring they will play at Rockefeller Institute where movies will be made of their performances.

The body of the car was sprung, causing one door to come open and preventing the reclosing of it. The three people were in the car from 8 in the evening until 8 the next day. They finally walked three miles to a farm house.

A Far-Reaching Decision, Omaha World-Herald: Of particular interest in the light of President Roosevelt's bold challenge to the supreme court in his message to congress is the unanimous decision of that tribunal upholding the Ashurst-Summers act, handed down only two days before.

In many quarters that opinion is regarded as opening the way to the achievement of desirable social objectives under the constitution as it now stands.

The law in question bars the shipment of prison-made goods into states which by law forbid their sale or possession.

The point is at once raised that if congress thus has power to protect states imposing a ban on the products of prison labor, it must equally have the power to protect states imposing a ban on the products of prison labor.

"The supreme court," comments the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "has shown not only the sounder way, under the American system of divided power, to attack child labor, but by far the more expeditious way."

A special committee of the American Bar association had previously reached the same conclusion, based on the decision upholding the Hawes-Cooper act,

President Roosevelt announced that he would be able to balance the 1938 budget if relief requirements do not exceed one billion.

Many thousands of workers were out of their jobs the last of the week as a result of strikes in the General Motors corporation and United Automobile Workers of America.

Federal government fiscal plans have had two objectives according to President Roosevelt who addressed congress on budget balances and these were: First, to restore a successful economic life to the country by providing greater employment and purchasing power, by stimulating a more balanced use of our productive capacity and by increasing the national income and distributing it on a wider base of prosperity; second, to gain new advantages of permanent value for the American people. The executive urged employers to give jobs to those on relief.

The law in question bars the shipment of prison-made goods into states which by law forbid their sale or possession.

The point is at once raised that if congress thus has power to protect states imposing a ban on the products of prison labor, it must equally have the power to protect states imposing a ban on the products of prison labor.

"The supreme court," comments the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "has shown not only the sounder way, under the American system of divided power, to attack child labor, but by far the more expeditious way."

A special committee of the American Bar association had previously reached the same conclusion, based on the decision upholding the Hawes-Cooper act, which merely provided that prison-made goods sent in interstate commerce should be subject to the laws of the state of destination.

But the avenue the court here opens up may offer labor conduct to other than convict labor and child labor legislation, arrived at through cooperation between the federal and state governments.

This was clearly indicated in the arguments before the supreme court when the Ashurst-Summers act was under consideration.

Chief of counsel attacking the act was Charles L. Dawson, former federal judge, who resigned from the bench in order to be able to attack more freely the new legislation.

And with this, it seems clear, Mr. Roosevelt would be right in saying that no constitutional amendment is necessary to achieve the "broad objectives" of his social welfare program. The question would become rather one of the states making valid use of their own police power, and of the federal government then protecting them from damage in interstate commerce as the result of its exercise. States that safeguarded their women and children from exploitation, their adult male workers as well, could not be flooded by goods from other states where industry operated on the sweat-shop or field-labor basis.

And so, it is possible the supreme court, in advance to the president's broadly implied rebuke, got in under the wire by pointing out to him, to congress, and to the people, that there is a right way as well as a wrong way to gain desired ends. The right way would respect the sovereignty and reserved powers of the states, would not weaken our dual system of government, and would preserve in full vigor the Jeffersonian ideal of local self-government.

That congress will take full cognizance of the implications of the prison-labor decision need not be doubted. And the result may well be an attack upon the evils of social and industrial exploitation from an entirely new angle in which the states will be called upon to cooperate.

A Protestant minister says the laying on of hands has never cured anything. He's mistaken. There are many known cases in which it has cured loneliness—and juvenile delinquencies.—Washington Post.

Graduates of Wayne State College Serve In A Variety of Capacities

That Wayne State Teachers College and her graduates have a far reaching influence in the world of affairs is proved by items sent by alumni about themselves and their families.

Dr. Edith Beecher, class of 1912 and former instructor in the college here, is director of Athens County Library Service, Athens, Ohio, and for the past two years has served as a member of the board of directors of the Athens community chest. She teaches courses in education and directs 11 students who are getting their master's degrees. She was influential in getting Miss Marcella Hunter to go to Athens to study and teach this year.

Mrs. A. C. Duling of Sioux City, formerly Miss Pauline Braunger who was graduated at Wayne in 1913 and later taught in the city school, writes that her elder son, John M. Duling, is a third classman at the U. S. naval academy in Annapolis, Md. The youth took his first year of college work in Wayne.

Word from Mrs. Bert Piper of Maywood, Neb., formerly Miss Mabel Banks, class of 1913, states that she has six children, four girls and two boys, and the eldest is attending Kearney state college.

Washington, D. C.—January 3: Notwithstanding the fact that it rained all the way from Chicago to this big town—we got here "all right." People on the train who came all the way from California stated that rain and snow had been falling all the way across the country. Newspapers with Nebraska date lines tell of snow six to ten feet deep over the Nebraska Third district. That is the greatest farm relief that we know of right now.

Washington today looks just as it looked two years ago when the workers from this congressional office first saw the town. The capitol has been repainted. The White House has been made almost fireproof. Workmen are busy on a new building for the Bureau of Printing. The temporary grand stand and seats are all ready for the inauguration of the President on January 20. The temporary seating in front of the White House for the reviewing stand for the inauguration parade is also set up. Everything seems to be ready for a great show. Apartments and rooms are hard to get. Everybody seems to be coming to town. The navy midshipmen came off the train by the score. Going back to studies after holidays at home. Six hundred and two thousand people in this town and nearly all of them working for the taxpayers.

The first 1937 Nebraska license tag in Washington appears on a Nebraska Third district automobile. It attracted some attention in front of the house office building. Some congressmen by District of Columbia auto licenses. They cost only a dollar.

Church crowds here on this Sunday were very small due to the rain and cold winds. Easter brings out the biggest crowds. So does Christmas eve. They tell us it was hard to get a seat in the churches here on Christmas eve. Some pews had to be reserved ahead of time. The picture shows attract vast crowds as usual.

Washington, D. C.—January 4: Although congress opens tomorrow, Tuesday noon—this was really the big opening day in congress. The republicans and democrats held their caucuses behind closed doors in the House chamber. The minority and majority selected their speakers—their floor leaders—their house employees and chairmen of various committees. While there was a fight among the democrats over the floor leadership, it was all known ahead of time that William Banker would be the Speaker and Bert Snell would be the republican floor leader. The real fight among members of both sides was for places on committees. Members usually go to their floor leaders and chairmen of committee on committees, and fight for places on committees which they hope will do their districts the most good.

This office is making a fight for the agricultural committee, but because there are so few republicans left, it is hard to land such a preferred committee. Chairmen tell members that there are so many democrats there may be few posts left for a minority member.

Washington, January 5: With both parties all lined up with their organization work, the slate was clean today and the speaker was introduced and members were sworn to uphold and protect the constitution of the United States. There was the usual scramble for tickets to the two galleries. People in all walks of life wanted to see the Seventy-fifth Congress open and "The Hill" police had the usual difficulty in handling the crowd. Admission to both galleries was by ticket only. That did not prevent a lot of people "who knew somebody" getting by the guards and getting aisle standing room. No business except that of swearing in the new members and the usual formalities of presenting the speaker was done on this day. Members on both sides of the aisle appeared profuse in their congratulations to each other, wishing each other a Happy New Year—but as soon as the legislative mill starts grinding, the party lines begin.

The National Press club has as guest of honor and speaker, Vice-President John Nance Garner, Monday noon. What the Vice-President had to say was absolutely "off the record," and newspaper men attending the luncheon were made to understand that the Vice-President's remarks could not be printed. Senator Borah also was a speaker at the luncheon. Both Vice-President Garner and Senator Borah appeared in excellent health, but here is a tip—people who talked to the Vice-President say that he admitted that he was going to retire from politics after his present term of office.

The ground on which the capitol building and office buildings and the Congressional Library are located is called "The Hill," and today "The Hill" is a regular mad house. Old members are "bumping" new members from offices. More than three hundred members are moving their offices from one place to another, and new members who had no office reserved are having a tough time finding a place to light. The hallways are filled with furniture and employees are dashing madly about to place that furniture where members want it. It will be a month before many of these members are actually settled down and ready for real work.

Miss Galey of Columbus called at the congressional office recently. She is employed by the Security Board and drives here occasionally from Baltimore where the Security Commission has rented a lot of space and where hundreds of people are working. There is not room in the regular governmental buildings in Washington for the unusual number of governmental bureaus. The government rents about one hundred buildings in this town. The rental runs over one million dollars per year, but buildings are so scarce that this new Security Board had to be moved to Baltimore in order to get suitable space.

The annual meeting and reception of the General Federation of Women's clubs will be held here on January 13. The State President and national organizers from all over the states have sent beautifully engraved invitations to the senators and congressmen from their states to attend this reception. The Nebraska members received their invitations from Mrs. Martha Scott and Mrs. Martin McDuffey of Norfolk, state president.

(By Mrs. Grace Buskirk)

Chester Hansen marketed live stock at Sioux City Wednesday.

Mrs. Herman Baker spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. A. W. Dolph.

Born, Sunday, January 10, to Mr. and Mrs. Emil Tarnow, a daughter.

Merlin Bressler of district 73, has a diploma just issued for three years' perfect attendance.

Pete Abrahamson who had been in an Omaha hospital for some time, is now at Orval Puckett's.

Carl Thomsen returned home to the Fred Jahde's Wednesday after visiting his sons for a few days.

Sympathy is extended to the many relatives of the late S. C. Bressler who had lived here since 1886.

Whenever the snowplow opens the roads everybody rushes to town for supplies before they drift shut again.

Corinne and Darlene English spent Saturday afternoon at Chester Hansen's near Beemer.

Many teachers were unable to return from their Christmas vacation and pupils have been able to attend school, also on account of road.

Owing to road conditions the church meeting, Pleasant Valley Ladies' Aid and Farmers Union did not meet last week. At this writing we can give no definite information concerning the next meetings.

Sympathy is extended to two of our former teachers, Mrs. Oak, the former Miss Mac Evans, whose brother, Clarence, died the past week, and Mrs. Clare Buskirk, the former Miss Marian Agler, who only nephew, Donley Agler, also died the past week. The latter was a relative of Miss Pearl Sewell, our county superintendent.

Sympathy is also extended to the Harry Freys in the loss of their little daughter from a ruptured appendix. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. August Kai.

Northeast Wakefield
(By Mrs. Jewell Kilion)

Mrs. Caroline Olson who has been seriously ill again is reported some better.

Bertrand Anderson returned home Monday by train, after being snowbound in the Ed. Carlson home.

Word has been received by relatives of Mrs. Herman Anderson that the Mayo doctors advise another operation, which will probably take place during the week. Two men of the community walked eight miles into town, pulling a small sled to take back provisions. The roads seem to be blocked worse than they have ever been.

Schools in the community have remained closed during the past week on account of blocked roads. All travel has been made by teams and sleds or wagon, or on horse-back and foot.

Ruth Roberts of Yankton, S. D., who has been snowbound in the Paul Killion home came to Wakefield by train Thursday and returned home on the train by way of Sioux City.

Tested Recipes

Homemade Dry Yeast.
Boil 1 cup fresh buttermilk, add to it 1 cup cold water and 1 cake yeast (dry or compressed) which has been dissolved in 1-4 cup lukewarm water. Make a thick batter with light flour—thick enough to drop from the spoon in chunks. Let stand until morning and stir in enough cornmeal to make a mixture that will roll. Cut in 2-inch squares and dry in the air for about three days.

Denver Biscuit.
1 quart milk (scald and cool)
1 cup mashed potatoes
1 cup sugar
1 cup shortening (use 1 or 2 tablespoons butter for flavor)

1 cake compressed yeast in 1-2 cup warm water
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
Add mashed potatoes to milk, sugar and yeast. Mix dry ingredients using about 4 cups flour or enough for a sponge. Add shortening. Let sponge rise until it bubbles. Add flour to make dough. Place in well-covered dish and place in refrigerator until ready to use. When heated, take up amount desired and knead. Add raisins if desired. Shape into rolls. Let rise till light, about 1 hour. Then bake. Will last for two or three weeks in refrigerator.

Oatmeal Bread.
1 cup rolled oats (uncooked)
1 cup milk or water
1 tablespoon fat
1 tablespoon brown sugar, molasses or honey
1-2 yeast cake
About 2 cups whole wheat or graham flour
1 teaspoon salt
Scald the milk and water and pour over the oats. Add salt, fat, and sugar or molasses. Cool to lukewarm, then add yeast softened in 1-4 cup tepid water, beat well and add a portion of flour. Set aside in a warm place to rise and when double its bulk beat again, adding more flour as necessary. Place in greased bread pan and let rise once more. When light, take in a moderate oven one hour. The dough must be very stiff, otherwise the loaf will be moist when cut. If possible, make bread the day before needed. For variety, add chopped nuts, raisins, dates, figs and more sugar if desired.

Table of Proportions.

Use:
One tablespoon soda to one cupful molasses.
One teaspoonful extract to one loaf plain cake.
One teaspoonful salt to two quarts flour.
One scant cupful of liquid to two full cupfuls of flour for muffins.
One scant cupful of liquid to one full cupful of flour for batters.
Four eggs to one quart of milk for custards served in baking dish. Eight eggs to one quart of milk for custards turned from baking dish.
Ten eggs without shell equal one pound.
Twenty-five egg yolks equal one pound.
Fifteen egg whites equal one pound.

Baking Hints.

There is just one way to make your cakes rise high and keep an even surface. Have your oven moderate at first, until the cake is fully risen; then increase the heat so as to brown it over quickly. The extreme heat is what stiffens the dough. If you stiffen the walls of the cake before the rising is complete, you stop the rising process. Then the leavening gas, forming inside, will bulge up the center, where the dough is still soft, and spoil the shape of the cake.

Biscuit or other pastries made from stiff dough, that are cut into shapes for the oven, may stand for some time before baking if covered with a damp cloth. By this procedure the dough may be prepared in advance and baked as needed.

Do not attempt to bake pastry and bread together. Bread requires prolonged, moderate baking. Pastry the reverse.

Have a strong under heat for baking powder preparations, especially pastry.

Fresh bread or cake will not crumble if cut with a hot knife.

Cake will not stick to the tin of a cloth wet with hot water if wrapped around it for a few minutes when taken from the oven.

Milk is preferable to water for mixing.

When butter is too hard to cream easily, heat the bowl slightly. Never warm the butter.

Baking Powder and Flour.

Standard ration of baking powder and flour is to 1 cupful (4 oz.) flour use one level teaspoonful of baking powder. Too much baking powder over-leavens, producing cakes which dry out quickly.

Measure flour after one sifting. Do not pack the flour in cup when measuring.

Legislative News and Views

By J. F. HIERTZ

With the pomp and ceremony out of the way, Nebraska's legislators are getting down to a history-making task of outlining working methods for a 43-member, 1-house law-making body.

The inauguration of Governor R. L. Cochran for a second term was the high-light of the week. The inaugural ball was dispensed with this year, replaced in part at least, by a victory banquet and ball sponsored by Lancaster county democrats. The Lincoln hotel's four ball and dining rooms were crowded with banqueters and later by dancers on the occasion.

Lurking in the back of the law-makers' minds was at least one startling admonishment. It came from J. G. Motherhead of Scottsbluff, attorney, and president of the Nebraska Bar association. Said Attorney Motherhead at Omaha:

"There is grave danger much pressure will be brought to bear upon the coming session to make a laboratory of Nebraska.

"Let the new unicameral bear this fact in mind—the suffering of a guinea pig in the laboratory may be of benefit to the rest of the world, but it is of no particular benefit to the guinea pig."

Continuing, Motherhead declared other states may benefit by mistakes, but only Nebraska suffers. "Should the legislature become too ambitious to create new laws, there is danger ahead," he warned.

Hugh B. Ashmore, first-terminer in the legislature, was acclaimed at least as the first to make the "usual" resolve. Said the Hayes county man he wanted the legislature to pass as few bills as possible, not overlooking, of course, necessary measures and appropriations, then quit, go home and leave the people alone. No less than a half-dozen similar opinions are expressed each session opening.

Delegates from 20 states, attending a co-operative agency meeting were warned to "go slow" in endorsing the unicameral "until you see how Nebraska farmers come out under it." Con McCarthy, manager of the Nebraska Farmers' Union issued the warning. There are 43 members, 11 of whom are listed as farmers.

Broadcasting of information to police departments and sheriffs of the state through a state-owned broadcasting plant or through commercial stations already operating will be aired by the legislature. Bills purporting such action are expected to hit the hopper soon. A committee of sheriffs has tendered the alternative recommendation of either system would, under tentative discussion, be met by a renewal of drivers' licenses at a fee not to exceed $1. The drivers' license law was passed in 1929. Then the fee was 75 cents.

Allaying any suspicion that may have remained in the minds of legislators as to what course Governor Cochran will take in dealing with the unicameral non-political legislature, the state executive issued an extensive press statement, declaring he will not work as the titular head of the democratic party of Nebraska.

Said the governor: "I shall not appeal to the legislators as democrats or republicans, nor shall I try to stand behind a party platform. The constitution provides the unicameral legislature shall be non-political. I certainly will make no effort to override the constitution."

If legislators desire information and advice about proposed legislation the heads of the various departments over which Governor Cochran holds power will be available for counsel, but none of them will be permitted to present and lobby for bills of their own making. These are the governor's instructions to all of them. One of the reasons Com. Moose lost his post as head of the insurance department was attributed to his legislative activities.

Missing from the press box are several legislative writers who in former years followed the actions of the lawmakers. Death, retirement, other association and promotion have taken their toll.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

(By Walter L. Moller)

A report of Wm. L. Austin, bureau of census, shows that crops harvested were decreased from 202 to 298 million acres. A large portion of this was due to drought.

Figures show that where major crops were decreased in one area they were increased in another.

Crops which increased as a result of reduction in cash crops might be divided into three major classes: Those grown for soil improvement, those grown for home food and those grown for feed of the farmers' work animals.

That trees can be grown successfully when properly cared for throughout the year has been proved by 286 Nebraska 4-H club members in 1936. Despite unfavorable conditions these young fables grew successfully 39 percent of the seedlings planted.

A. H. Sibbersen of near Blair, gives contour farming credit for the fact that his 903 acres produced crops in 1936. Corn made three and four tons to the acre while adjoining land, farmed on the up and down, made one and a half tons to the acre. Mr. Sibbersen had made five to six tons per acre and that was not cultivated once.

Legislative News and Views

The launching of Nebraska's 52nd legislature in the form of a unicameral session held the spotlight of political activity in many sections of the United States, but to the political observer in Lincoln, the affair was one of monotony. Caution marked every move of the 43 members and their officers as the initial week progressed. During that time, much as proud parents watch their little baby take the first steps, political-thoroughness and other tranquility that marked such a momentous occasion. Not for more than a hundred years has the United States seen a one-house law-making body in action. And what they saw in Nebraska's one-house set-up was anything but compensating for the effort to observe.

Without Precedent

Without precedent the 43 members laid their own boundaries, their sense of lawmaking. Purely non-political, Charles Warner, Lancaster county farmer, legislator and county farmer, legislator of and on since 1901 and a republican, was elected speaker. R. C. Regan of Columbus, was a democratic leader, was named chairman of the committee on committees, a coveted post. Hugo Strub, democrat, is chief clerk; Fred Mueller, republican, is assistant clerk. Another interesting selection was that of the widow of a former representative Marion Cushing of Ord as postmistress.

Governor Cochran Voiced Two Distinct Oppositions

Governor Cochran voiced two distinct oppositions when he delivered his inaugural address to the legislature a few minutes after taking the oath of office for a second term. They were opposition to a general sales or income tax and to any state legislation for bird-weed eradication. Explaining the latter, the governor said the weed situation should be included in the federal soil conservation program. State supervision should not extend beyond provision for a weed commissioner, he said.

Nebraska is in Financial Condition to Contemplate an Extensive Building Program

Nebraska is in financial condition to contemplate an extensive building program, the governor said, but he recommended an appropriation for construction of a ward building at the Hastings state hospital.

Advising Legislators to Enact an Unemployment Insurance Measure to Comply with Federal Requirements

Advising legislators to enact an unemployment insurance measure to comply with federal requirements and to make provisions to continue social security, Cochran also recommended a moderate increase in highway department funds and slight change in the financing program for social security.

The Governor then Recommended the Following Legislative Program:

1. Reenactment, if possible, of the state bonding fund act held invalid by the state supreme court.
2. Refunding of $237,300 worth of debenture bonds issued by the state fair board in 1928 for construction of the fair grounds grandstand.
3. Licensing of engineers and architects.
4. Reduction from $3.00 to $2.00 fees paid by cosmetologists.
5. Placement of the custodianship of the capitol with the department of roads and irrigation, coincident with the abolition of the land commissioner's office.
6. Extension of the mortgage moratorium.
7. Authorization of the board of educational lands and funds to appoint a secretary or clerk, other than a board member, and empowering the board to perform all duties formerly charged to the land commissioner.
8. Amendment of the automobile drivers' license law, providing for renewal every two years with the revenue thus collected going to expand the traffic and criminal law enforcement work of the state sheriff.
9. Eliminated were the public reception and inaugural ball usually a part of the inauguration festivities, upon recommendation of the state health director because of an epidemic of flu in Lincoln.
10. With not a single bill introduced providing for expending money, the first unicameral legislature received a check for $27.20 representing excess mileage paid to a member of the last session. It went to the state treasury.
11. First resolution before the one-house legislature was adopted unanimously. It provided that congress be memorialized to increase immediately the WPA allotments of federal funds for present emergency needs in Nebraska.
12. If Governor Cochran has his way, three constitutional amendments will be provided by this legislature. He wants one to make the superintendent of public instruction a member of the board of educational lands and funds in place of the land commissioner, another to make the attorney general's office appointive by the governor and a third to make the railway commissioners appointees of the governor.

To Plant Many Trees In State This Year

With emphasis still being placed on conservation of natural resources and wild life, farmers making application for Clarke-McNary seedlings and transplants for 1937 planting believe trees and shrubs can be a big help in encouraging wild life development in Nebraska.

Many Trees and Shrubs Furnish Food for Birds and Protection for All Forms of Wild Life

Many trees and shrubs furnish food for birds and protection for all forms of wild life, the Wayne county farm bureau pointed out this week in calling attention to the availability of the Clarke-McNary trees. Throughout the state and in Wayne county the number of groves and dense thickets has dwindled own resulting in a lack of adequate protection for game and birds of all kinds. This is particularly evident at this time.

Fortunately there are a large number of trees and shrubs that are hardy and which furnish food for birds. These, the farm bureau believes, should be planted in great numbers. No other group of plants are more valuable for use in erosion control and when planted for this purpose, they not only serve that purpose but provide protection and furnish food for wild life.

Many of the trees available through the farm bureau office can well be planted for wild life conservation. Thus far, Wayne county farmers have made application for 500 seedlings and transplants. The leading tree planting county in the state in interest being manifested in 1937, plantings in Lancaster county where 14,900 trees have been applied for by farmers.

Would Spend Much For Farm Relief

Washington, Jan. 8.—More than one-tenth of the appropriations for the next fiscal year suggested to congress today by President Roosevelt would be spent for farmers.

He proposed appropriation of $659,347,399 for federal farm benefit payments and the far-flung activities of the agriculture department for the 1938 period, an increase of $15,165,556 over estimated outlays for the 1937 fiscal year ending June 30.

These totals do not include $181,500,000 for the federal public roads program, which is $113,500,000 more than the present year. Although administered by the agriculture department, officials said the road funds aid the city dweller as much as the farmer.

Discusses Increases

"Ability of the farmer to obtain a more constant livelihood has been enhanced by the enactment of legislation especially designed for the purpose," the president said in his message.

Referring to numerous liberal increases in funds for various bureaus of the agriculture department, the president said "many of the old functions and duties of government naturally cost more as the industrial and agricultural activities to which they are related expand in value."

The supreme court decision which invalidated the processing taxes of the original administration farm act and drought last summer were reported to have upset budget estimates of the last two years.

Biggest item under both the present and next fiscal budgets for agriculture was the agricultural adjustment administration with its benefit payments to farmers and other operations amounting to an estimated $549,139,621 this fiscal year and 560 million dollars in 1938, a gain of more than 10 million dollars.

Honor Wayne Today At Lincoln Meeting

Mrs. F. I. Moses from Wayne county, was honored at the organized agriculture meetings in Lincoln last week. Although not present her name was presented for the home economics sectional program as one of the state's outstanding rural leaders in serving in her present position as county project chairman.

The annual organized agriculture meetings held at the Nebraska college of agriculture last week were well attended.

The annual organized agriculture meetings held at the Nebraska college of agriculture last week were well attended. Despite the unfavorable weather which kept hundreds of farm people from being present. Attendance, it was estimated, was above one year ago.

Every agricultural society in the state met during the week in some very interesting sessions.

Particular interest centered around the general sessions, hybrid corn, pump irrigation, a livestock program on rented farms, and discussions of the weather. Because of blocked roads few people from Wayne county attended the meetings.

J. B. Kincaid, the nation's best known weather authority, told the farm people that much "loose" talk about human activity causing changes in climate is utter nonsense.

Long trend droughts, he said, have occurred before. He added that the basic consideration in farming dry areas should include the practical certainty that dry climatic phases at least as severe as in the past, will recur.

"Man is not responsible for drought or dust as sent by nature," Kincaid declared.

"But it is a tragic fact that the drier sections of the plains have been extensively plowed and cultivated where crop farming never should have been attempted. Much of the one-time grassland is now under cultivation and has become an aggravator of dust storms. Man cannot make it rain but he can do the next best thing—restore the original natural conditions as far as possible and avoid repeating mistakes of the past."

"Many people think, because of the recent successive drought years, that the climate is permanently changing, either naturally or from some act of man. The popular fallacy that man can basically change climate or that it is changing from some other cause is not a product of the 20th century. The belief is found in the log of one of Columbus' voyages and in the weather diary of Thomas Jefferson."

Kincaid sounded a more optimistic note by forecasting that "doubtless when the present drought definitely comes to an end there will be a period of years with comparatively heavy rainfall and little will be heard about dust storms and the like."

Sioux City Journal: It is January. The days are getting longer. There is more sunshine. That is to say that the sun is climbing higher day by day and his rays are becoming more direct, therefore even when the clouds are thick and heavy Old Sol is on the job for a longer time every day. But—it is January. And February is to follow. Every calendar substantiates those two statements. So as we go into January and think of the next month to follow, we may expect, in spite of the sun's daily climb higher into the heavens, some exceedingly tough, difficult weather.

In this section there is a foot of snow on the ground. The outdoors is a vast refrigerator. Subzero temperatures are likely at any time. Also more snow and wind and sleet and ice. It is winter, and in this latitude that usually means extremes of cold, wind velocity and the like.

By Edith Huse Wighman

Betty and Bob, as you will remember, were farm twins who lived in a big house way out in the country with their mother and father.

"Ovoo, whooo," the old north wind was saying as it played around Betty's and Bob's bedroom window. Bob popped up in bed, "Oh, boy, it sounds like the wind is trying to tell us something. Let's get up and see what's happening."

It didn't take the two children long to get dressed and, jumping down stairs, they ran into the kitchen to see their mother and father sitting close to the kitchen range. Daddy had tears in his eyes and mother was rubbing his hands with snow. What could be the matter? The twins had never seen their daddy cry before.

"Oh, good morning, children," said mother. "I guess there will be no school for my twins today. Old man winter has piled the snow into nice white mountains."

"What's the matter with daddy?" questioned both the children. Betty and Bob weren't thinking about school. They wanted to know why their daddy had big tears in his eyes.

"Well, children," said mother, "this is what happened. It is very cold this morning. Your daddy knew that the cows, pigs, chickens and sheep must have water and food so he went out to take care of them. I guess he stayed out a little too long for he froze both his hands. I am rubbing snow on them and then we will put them in cold water. That will take the frost out and keep them from getting sore."

"I'll be good as new in a few minutes," assured daddy.

"Mother, may we go out and jump in the drifts even if we can't go to school?" asked Betty with her nose up against a window watching Lindy, the dog, leap through the snow as he chased a poor squirrel up a tree.

"Yes, I guess a little fresh air would do you good," replied mother, "after you get some nice warm breakfast in your tummies."

Betty and Bob ate a hot breakfast of orange juice, big oatmeal, eggs and toast. Then, bundling up well, out they went to find the deepest snowdrift. Lindy heard the door bang and was right at the children's heels as they went jumping through the snow.

"Poff, poff, scratch, scratch," mother heard at the kitchen door. Opening it she was greeted by three snowmen. "Well," said mother, "have you explored all the white mountains so soon?"

"Oh, yes," responded Betty. "It is so cold and old man winter just snatches the breath right out of your mouth and it is hard to get it back."

"Lindy's cold too, mother," said Bob as the dog pushed in between Betty and Bob.

"Oh, you naughty dog," called mother as Lindy gave himself a

Nature Holds Marvels Which Man Imitates

Marvels of human achievement and nature are fascinating to one who studies them. And it is interesting to note that many of man's inventions have a counterpart in nature, and nature holds further marvels, which man is trying to understand.

The firefly has the cold light which man seeks to equal. Long before man made his first crude smoking lamp, nature had perfected a smokeless lamp for the firefly. The rays given out by the firefly are remarkable in that they are produced without being accompanied by any heat. The glow-worm's "cold light" is the ideal toward which man strives but has so far failed to reach. In every method of artificial illumination found by man, more energy is wasted in producing heat than in creating light. The firefly's light is produced by combustion of minute drops of a substance called luciferin. Scientists hope to create cold light.

The tailorbird taught humans how to sew. On examination of the nest of the tailorbird will show remarkable sewing together of leaves. Her needlework is remarkable. The bird uses her bill as an awl to pierce holes in the leaves. She then uses her bill to sew the leaves together with string, horse-hair or grass.

Man had many excellent flying models before he learned to fly. Birds, fish, squirrels and even frogs fly. The fins of a flying fish, held stiffly horizontal, make each fish a monoplane.

Though primitive man used skins of animals as curtains for the doors of their cave homes even then Mother Nature had provided a hinge and trap door made by the spider. The spider's nest is a round tunnel with a tapered round door that fits the opening quite like the steel door of the modern vault.

The human ear provides a gyro-scope. These wonderful semicircular canals do for the body what a gyroscope stabilizer does for an airplane. They preserve equilibrium. Without these stabilizers the body would roll or stagger.

To go down beneath the surface of the sea and remain there long requires a specially built airtight suit, a metal helmet and a long air-tight tube reaching to the surface. Deep sea diving has been practiced in this way for only a short time, yet no one knows how many ages Mother Nature has been using the tube idea for the benefit of the little diver known as the "water scorpion." From the tail end of its body extends a long, tubelike appendage. When the creature is lying on the bottom in very shallow water this tube is extended upward to the air surface above. Through it the creature breathes just as the human diver gets air through the long rubber tube.

Where will you go to find a human invention of which Mother Nature has not constructed the first model?
