Committees Meet On Band Benefit

Wm. Plummer of Sioux City, was in Wayne Tuesday conferring with committee in regard to a band benefit.

Two-Party System Is Undoubtedly Popular Demand

Wayne are convinced that local municipal and school affairs should be subject to the voice of a two-party system.

They are convinced that two tickets should be placed in the field to give greater range to nominations and to give voters, an opportunity for preference.

Heretofore one mass convention, attended by a small percentage of voters, amounted to an election. It has virtually operated to the disfranchisement of a majority.

Any petition nominee usually suffered hopeless disadvantage. Nearly every town has rival groups of candidates. This is developed interest in public questions—a chance to express choice in an effective manner.

All needed to name a second ticket is, as we understand, for a crowd to get together, organize and do the proposed business, filing results with the city clerk within the time prescribed by law.

There is still considerable time to get ready for a double dose of candidates to be put into the arena the first Tuesday in April, but it is none too early to do some thinking and planning in that direction.

ADDRESS GIVEN FOR KIWANIS

Prof. W. R. Hickman Speaks On Ways To Success At Monday Meeting.

Prof. W. R. Hickman of the Wayne State Teachers college, addressed the Kiwanis club members Monday after the regular noonday luncheon.

His subject was the word, "Model." The speaker took each letter and spoke on a word starting with the letter.

"Moderation" was the speaker's first word. "A model citizen uses moderation in what he does.

Moderation is the flywheel which keeps our common sense balanced. The model citizen lives intelligently, not in excess of the mental and physical senses.

People in all walks of life must practice moderation." Prof. Hickman quoted an outstanding authority in athletics, as saying that he was going to "take a minute off."

He said that he had been trailing too fast and so where he could fly he was going to ride, where he could ride he would walk, where he could walk he would stand still, and where he could stand still he would sit.

More of us should take this man's advice, said the speaker.

Prof. Hickman took the word "originality" for the second. Originality was defined as two things put together, creating a third which is different.

The speaker said genius is 90 percent perspiration and 10 percent inspiration. Genius is an ordinary man's use of all of his powers.

There is a saying that "there isn't a new thing under the sun." This is false because people see new things every day. It all depends on a person's experience.

"Desire" was the third letter of "model." Everyone, continued the speaker, is born with desire. A person's position in his community shows his desire in life.

Examples of desire for individual power are Mussolini and Hitler. When a person reaches the stage of these men, others around him suffer and so does the individual himself.

"All of us should have one desire to move along in our community," suggests Prof. Hickman. "Endurance" was the next word.

The speaker quoted the saying, "He who endures, conquers." Youth today wants to achieve the position by revolution that other men have taken years to accomplish.

Stars in athletics come and go, continued the professor. "No matter if you win or lose, if you are always in the game, you can't be overlooked." Glenn Cunningham, an outstanding athlete, gave the advice that is used in the one-mile (Continued on page five)

WILL EXPLAIN FARM PROGRAM

Arrange Precinct Meetings In Wayne County To Give Agriculture Plan.

Meetings for explaining the 1937 agricultural program and for selecting precinct committees are arranged for next week.

Agent Walter Moller announces. The plan follows the soil conservation program of 1936 and operates under the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act of 1936.

Invalidation of the AAA last year delayed the 1936 program until the last of March when farmers were busy and had already made their planting plans.

As few understood the program in time they were not able to arrange their farming to comply with the program.

By having information available early for the 1937 program, Mr. Moller explains, it is hoped that the program may be understood by each farmer in time that he will have all the rules by March 1. Each should take advantage of the opportunity to get information at next week's meetings.

Election of committees is also important and Mr. Moller urges each farmer to help make the selection in his precinct.

Precinct meetings will be in charge of Agent Moller or one of the county committee, F. I. Moses, Alfred Sydow and H. J. Podoll. The schedule follows: Wilbur, Strahan and Hunter precincts; Tuesday, January 26, at 2 p. m. at the court house; Deer Creek, Tuesday, January 26 at 2 p. m. at Carroll I. O. O. F. hall; Hancock and Chapin precincts; Wednesday, January 27, at 2 p. m. at Winside city hall; Hoskins and Gardfield precincts; Wednesday, Jan. 27, 2 p. m. Hoskins old post office; Sherman precinct, Thursday, January 28, 2 p. m. Sholes hall; Logan precinct, Thursday, January 28, 2 p. m. Wayne's Eldest Resident Dies At Age Passing Century Mark

Mrs. Jane Butler Rogers

Funeral Rites Held Monday

Wayne Observed Hundredth Birthday With Special Program Here.

Wayne county's eldest resident, Mrs. Jane Butler Rogers, 101, passed away Saturday afternoon, January 16, at 3:15 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Mines.

Funeral services were conducted at the Hixcox parlor Monday afternoon at 2:30 with Rev. W. F. Dierking, Presbyterian minister, in charge. Mrs. T. T. Jones and Mrs. L. W. Ellis sang, and Mrs. Carrie Welch played the piano.

The body was shipped that afternoon to Wheatland, Iowa, where rites were conducted at the church Wednesday and burial followed beside her husband who died 66 years before. Mrs. Clara Dunham of Westington Springs, S. D., who arrived Monday, and Mrs. J. G. Mines went to Wheatland, Donald Clark of St. Louis, grandson of Mrs. Rogers, Wm. Baylis of Cedar Rapids, nephew, and other relatives and friends met them at Cedar Rapids and went to Wheatland. Mrs. Dunham will return here with Mrs. Mines Friday or Saturday to spend a few days.

Mrs. Rogers, whose maiden name was Miss Jane Butler, eldest of nine children of John and Margaret Butler, was born at West Farms, N. Y., a village which has since been absorbed by the metropolis of New York City. The old Butler home has been replaced by a modern cafe near Fordham college. The Butler residence was one of those pioneer houses which was added onto as the family grew until it contained 13 rooms. Back of the house was a big rock which was of historical note for it was there that two Tories were "gibbeted" during the Revolutionary war.

When deceased was in her girlhood, families attended church together Sunday morning and after a service that lasted until noon they went home for dinner and then returned for an afternoon Sunday school. Those were the days when candles were made in the home by pouring melted tallow onto wicks in molds. When oil lamps replaced the candles it was thought a great accomplishment when both to heat homes and to do the family cooking in heavy iron kettles. The family raised practically everything needed for the household—cows and hogs for butchering, vegetables and fruits, and grains for flour and feed. Oxen drew the plow on the farm.

Mrs. Butler was married Sep. (Continued on page five)

PLAQUE GIVEN DEMOLAY GROUP

Trophy Is Awarded Local Chapter For Records Of Past Year.

A plaque for good records and reports was awarded the Wayne chapter of DeMolay at a regular meeting Wednesday evening. The award came as a surprise to most of the members. Ten plaques were awarded to DeMolay chapters throughout the United States and Wayne ranked first in its class.

A trophy is awarded in the annual group contest to the first place chapter in each group and to the first three places in the annual championship contest. The contest covers a year's period and is based on annual reports reaching the main office on time, initiated members being equivalent to one-third of the 1935 net membership, showing no decrease in net membership in 1936 and showing a consistent effort throughout the year. The chapters are divided into groups according to size of the town and chapter membership. The membership rating chart is concerned with the rating of the chapter according to number of its initiated for the year and rendering of the necessary reports promptly.

Rev. F. C. Mills, one of the advisors, presented the plaque.

Advisors to the organization are Don Beaman, F. E. Gilly, Russell Bartels, Rev. F. C. Mills, Ralph Crockett and Dr. C. F. Dienst.

The plaque is on display in the Mines window this week.

IS ILL IN HOSPITAL

Gene Beaman entered a Wayne hospital Monday for medical care.

WEATHER FRAUGHT WITH BURDENS TO PUBLIC SERVICES

SNOW storms, blocked roads and zero temperatures are really not so forbidding as drouths or tornadoes or earthquakes—the latter the earth-fallily conceded prerogative of southern California. All these natural disturbances may be necessary to tax endurance and develop patience: Late snow banks flung around where they would cause the most interference, have imposed extra burdens on public service. Opening roads is often followed by more snow, or by a stiff wind that refills cleared highways. Railroad snowplows have a hard time over-coming snow barriers and making schedules. The telephone company must be on the alert to maintain connections, and look out for its chief enemies—sleet and ice. Everybody is disturbed by bad elements, whether they come in mid-winter or at some other season. Most of us think we could have done a better job in arranging the weather with often better result in insuring crops and giving general satisfaction, but no one was ever given a chance to suggest or otherwise cooperate. So, we have to take the bad with the good, and often the bad—burdensome snow—is later translated into good.

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 41 Wayne, Neb., January 21, 1937. Vol. 5

When you wash down those kitchen walls, try Rastus. Just smear it on and wipe it off; the dirt and grease come with it.

Him: "Well, I suppose you're angry because, I came home with this black eye last night!"

Her: "(Sweetly) 'Not at all dear. You may not remember it, but you didn't have that black eye when you came home."

He took her in his arms. "Oh, darling," he murmured. "I love you so. Please say you'll be mine. I'm not rich like Percival Brown, but I haven't a fine car, or a well stocked cellar, but darling, I love you, I can't live without you."

Two soft arms stole around his neck, and two ruby lips whispered in his ear: "And I love you too, darling; but — where is this man Brown?"

Remember, you can save money by installing a Master automatic stocker. Ask about our easy payment plan; you'll be surprised how little it costs per month.

The temperature one year ago this morning was zero with clear skies.

We have plenty of all kinds of coal on hand. Better get your order in while the roads are still passable.

The doctor was asked: "Whose duck is that?" "At ain't no duck, Deetuh," said Rastus. "At's a stork with his legs wo'e off."

A coat of Certain-teed floor wax will protect those floors against melting snow tracked in by friend husband. It's put up in a new convenient can too!

Every day we are selling more water softener. You can soften a cistern full of water for only 75c. Try it.

Child Labor SOME children are perhaps treated too generously and others not generously enough. A child is a tender, impressionable creature, easily influenced by kindness or by abuse—easily led to follow the right or wrong course. A surfeit of luxury and ease impairs qualities needed to get along in the world. Over-indulgence often weakens manly fibre and destroys resistance. On the other hand, neglect and maltreatment stunt development and put a child into a state of almost hopeless defense.

In factory centers where young children are compelled to toil at times when they should be in school and permitted to enjoy care-free childhood, the law should step in and safeguard their rights.

In farm communities where youngsters help with the chores or perform other work that does not interfere with schooling or proper leisure, legal restraints could often work greater injury to children than to parents.

Many boys and girls start early to learn to do useful things. They often earn part or all of the money required for their education. A law to protect victims of eastern "sweat shops" should not be extended to the detriment of children in rural communities.

Second Term THE inauguration of President Roosevelt January 20 for a second term reminds observers that he still has numerous tasks ahead to bring the country back to normal. Despite experiments of the past four years, there is still much unemployment. As the Omaha World-Herald suggests: "Mr. Roosevelt went into the White house during an emergency. That emergency may have passed, but it has left problems almost equally as great, and his measures to halt the paralysis of the emergency have created other new problems." The budget is still far from balanced. Demands for funds from the federal treasury keep on pressing. Disturbing industrial strikes must be settled. Keeping out of a possible European war will tax American diplomacy. Indeed, the job ahead is no easy one, but it is hoped it may be handled without centralizing more power in Washington or trespassing on the needed liberties of American production and business.

Social Security UNTIL social security laws run their course like hoop skirts, bustles and hay fever, they will doubtless multiply and prove a burden with no likelihood of adequate later rewards. Government heads will be paid to look after the innumerable tax records throughout the length and breadth of the land, and subjects of the plan will have to make regular contributions to the federal treasury in addition to keeping the records and helping inspectors inspect in an effort to find something wrong.

In our opinion the kind of social security that would do the most good would be to raise normal crops, cut out strikes, restore confidence and thus reduce unemployment. Then everybody, employer and employee, could figure out his own social security, unhampered by government red tape and uninflected by an insurance prospect that is likely to prove disappointing.

The plan to name five Nebraska master farmers, sponsored by the Nebraska Farmer, has again been carried out. Here are the five determining points: First, operation or maintenance of the farm or ranch; second, business methods and ability; third, general farm appearance and upkeep; fourth, home life; fifth, citizenship. Chosen examples of success emphasize attainments which many possess, and especially give suggestions and inspiration to young persons engaged in agriculture and animal production.

In regard to an organization to develop a bigger and busier community, about which local interviews were recently published, we have had answers to two of six letters sent to other towns for information. As soon as other replies are received, the letters will be reviewed. The need of organized effort to push Wayne ahead and draw to it the advantages it deserves, is very apparent.

Dr. Mattson whose son, Charles, was kidnapped and killed, announced his determination to return to work and await developments. Plenty to keep the mind engaged helps modify distress, but cannot make one forget. It would seem only a crazed fiend of lowest beastliness could torture a child and leave a family to suffer agonizing consequences.

are hurt, but the country's prosperity is hindered and the administration's objectives are held back.

Some one has just advised the unicameral legislature to move slowly and cautiously! It did that ahead of advice. It spent the first two weeks without considering a law, though doubtless it was thinking and preparing to spring to the task with lots of wisdom and vigor. Repealing obsolete laws and passing new ones would seem equally important.

But for the fact that one of the guests was stabbed to death, the drunken revelry in the Manhattan opera house, New York City, would have been known merely as a banquet attended by fashionable high rollers. The crime revealed the drinking orgy.

Keeping up morale and preserving the best in our civilization will pay large dividends and prevent the need of much character reconstruction when conditions become normal.

Cattle From Canada.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: As had been expected by those who pay attention to such things, the beginning of the new year, and establishment of a new United States import quota on Canadian cattle was accompanied by a sharp increase in this international movement of beef animals.

Latest available Canadian reports showed that shipments from that country to the United States for the week ending January 7 totaled 4,684 beef cattle, 250 dairy cattle and 1,619 calves. Direct evidence of the quota influence is found in the fact that imports were only 53 head during the week ending December 22 and 117 for the week ending December 29. Also, it is pointed out, Canadian cattle markets have shot up sharply since the first of the year, another result of the tariff saving under the quota.

It may be argued that since imports under the reduced quota tariff rate can be no larger in any one year than they were in 1935, the year after the first drought in this country, the ultimate effect of the trade treaty cannot be materially harmful over an extended period of time. But the fact remains that there is a tendency on the part of Canadian producers to do the bulk of their marketing in the United States in the first part of the year. That was true in 1936, when the tariff quota had been virtually filled by the early part of July. It was significant that this also marked the end of the heavy Canadian run at the markets which received cattle from across the border.

Apparently this tendency to rush in and get under the quota will be even more marked this year. The 4,684 cattle which came in during the first week of 1937 represented quite an increase over the 2,442 head reported for the same period of 1936.

Possibly the quota import rush won't unsettle our markets as much this year as it was believed to have done in 1936, since we are expected to have fewer domestic cattle to market than we did a year ago. Yet the danger is there for the future if not for the present. The suggestion made last spring that the effect of imported cattle on our markets could be lessened by dividing the annual treaty quota up into monthly installments still sounds worthy of consideration.

Child Freedom.

Nebraska Farmer: The National Child Labor Committee, seeking to obtain ratification of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution, which could control and prohibit the labor of all children under 18 years of age, has announced January 23 to 25, 1937, as Child Labor Days, and urges these dates as a period for distributing propaganda in favor of ratification of the amendment in all states where it has not already been ratified.

We would like to suggest that the same dates be more appropriately designated as days for the observance of "Child Freedom" and that real friends of children and of farmers actively concern themselves in opposing ratification of the amendment. We are not opposed to the control and abolition of child labor in hazardous occupations, in sweat shops and in certain industries or wherever detrimental to the welfare and health of children, but we contend that the amendment in question is too broad in its application; that the problems of child labor are regional and local in character rather than nationwide. In agricultural states like Nebraska the reasonable work of children on the farms of their parents is of economic value and affords proper training for the best use of their talents in adult life.

The state commissioner of labor in Nebraska, Mr. V. B. Kenney, in his biennial report to the governor, says "there are no children engaged in hazardous occupations and none employed in so-called sweat shops. The department feels that with the cooperation of the various school districts of the state the Child Labor law of Nebraska is well enforced." (This law provides that no child under 14 shall be employed during public school hours.)

The economic freedom of labor in Nebraska, Mr. V. B. Kenney, in his biennial report to the governor, says "there are no children engaged in hazardous occupations and none employed in so-called sweat shops. The department feels that with the cooperation of the various school districts of the state the Child Labor law of Nebraska is well enforced." IN TWENTY YEARS.

January, 1957: The Sons and Daughters of the WPA held a joint meeting for the installation of officers. Following these ceremonies, members reviewed the tough drought and depression years of 1933-1937, and regarded with satisfaction the robust character built on a foundation of necessary self-denial. Tears were dropped to the memory of those who had weathered the depression, but could not survive the subsequent prosperity spree and who were therefore popularly and respectfully known as flat tires. Note was taken of human vicissitudes—some up, likely to come down, some down, likely to come up. They observed the short distance still persisting between shirt sleeves—the brief journey from kid gloves to no socks. The proud employer of 1937, down and out in 1957, looked up for sympathy when not going in the dust of despair. After lunch and prayer—taking due care of both bodily and spiritual demands—the meeting was adjourned and the members dispersed in automobiles of latest models.

American ways. His annual salary of $325,000 would seem too much to the average fellow with comparatively small earnings, though those who employ him should be able to determine his worth to the industry. It is important to realize that American opportunities make possible such phenomenal development, evidently on the strength of merit and without the aid of an inherited fortune or other advantage excepting a genius for wise leadership. If Knudsen can earn what he receives, the rest of us ought to be able to make a living.

Offer New Course In General Shop

A new course in general shop work is being offered to boys in the training school of junior high and high school age. The southeast corner of the second floor of the industrial arts building has been remodeled to provide suitable work room for the shop. The shop will include drawing, sheet metal work, woodwork and finishing, electrical work, concrete and plumbing, and bench metal work. The students will be divided into groups and each group will spend three weeks on each type of work.

N. Y. A. boys did all of the remodeling necessary to provide for the general shops. Work benches, drawing desks and other material were constructed under the supervision of Prof. E. J. Huntner.

"It is the ideal shop for a small high school where one man has to do the industrial training," remarked Prof. Huntner. Prof. Raymond Cherry will be in charge of the classes which open Monday, assisted by student teachers.

The purpose of such a shop in which several different types of work are offered is to lower the cost of investment.

ONE DEMAND.

A work week of five-six-hour days is one of the demands of General Motors strikers. It would seem labor unions would gain greater concessions from employers and win more public approval if they would modify demands to a level consistent with practical sense. The company's plants are now working forty-hour weeks—too short for smaller industries. Only an exceptionally strong and prosperous institution could operate according to General Motors' prevailing schedule. But not satisfied, the workers are demanding still further time reductions. If the thirty-hour week could be made compulsory and general by law, as asked by the unions, many small industries would have a greater struggle in keeping afloat than they have had during the worst period of the depression: Products would require price increases, and accordingly consumption would be curtailed. Organized labor expects popular support even if its demands would, if granted, impose unreasonable hardships on other groups. Labor unions would show broader and clearer vision if they could persuade themselves to let up and give the whole country a chance to recover. The unions appear eager to dictate the policies of their employing plants without assuming any responsibility. The big idea—less work, more pay and no risk, if won't work.

May Darken Town.

Hartington, Neb., Jan. 18.—The Hartington city council may follow the lead of Crofton and darken the town unless some agreement can be reached with the Interstate Power company to lower lighting rates. Contract with the company has expired and the council is determined not to renew it on a similar basis.

Crofton several months ago refused to renew its old contract with the same company, which expired last spring, and "went to bed early" without lighting the streets, even though it was dubbed "the deserted village."

Returns to Home.

Mrs. Lawrence Greenwald returned last week to her home after receiving care in a local hospital.

Getting Over the Jitters. Omaha Journal Stockman: Two significant statements have been made recently by industrial leaders, significant, because they add to the weight of evidence that American recovery is the genuine article and no figment of the imagination. The first, by Roy S. Durstine, head of a New York advertising concern, is that "advertising's outlook for 1937 is unquestionably better than for any year since 1928." Late in 1936, people began spending again, and the fact that advertising budgets for 1937 were generally stepped up is a certain indication that business concerns expect the increased spending to continue. Second on the list, and equally full of meaning was the declaration by W. O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber Co., that "America is buying better goods." Price, as Mr. O'Neil went on to point out, has governed buying for several years, but now that people are not quite so hard pressed to meet their bills, they are paying more attention to quality. Of course, business knows that advertising pays, whether times are good or bad. And most consumers are aware that, in the long run, there is a distinct economic advantage in buying goods that are well constructed from good materials, even though they naturally do cost more than cheaply made articles. But for some years, apparently, good judgment in selling and buying has been subordinated to cut corners and save a little here and there out of depleted incomes. The fact that it is back in the saddle now is a sure sign that the country is coming out of its case of depression jitters. Hibernation Dangerous. Sioux City Journal: A physician of many years of practice and study has issued a warning against what may be called hibernation for the human species. What he means is that the active individual who interests himself with zest in summer sports, who swims, or plays golf, or who otherwise entertains and exercises himself should not waste his physical activities when winter comes. It is quite true that many men, notably those of middle age or beyond, have strong interests in summer recreational pursuits. They exercise with a will and are benefited thereby. They get plenty of sunshine and fresh air. They build up energy, their interest in the outdoors quickened by love of the games they play. But when winter comes they hibernate as far as all these healthful things are concerned. They make a trail from home to office and from office to home. They are indoors nearly all the time. They ride for the most part when they easily could walk the distance that would seem trifling if they were on the golf course. No exercise, little fresh air, poor appetites, fat accumulation, torpid livers and sluggish functioning of other organs—that is the result of human hibernation. Good business for the doctors and for undertakers at times, but a poor investment for individuals who could live many years longer and in better health if they gave attention to their physical needs. Where Everyone Loses. Omaha Journal-Stockman: The farther the strike in the motor industry goes, the more unnecessary it appears to be. First of all, most of the men now out of work didn't want to strike. They were perfectly satisfied with hours, pay and working conditions, but they were left without jobs when the refusal of key men to perform their work or let anyone else perform it made the companies shut down the plants. But whether wanted or not, the results of the strike are the same. Not only is one of the country's leading industries crippled, but the effects of the motor shutdown are keenly felt in many allied lines and to a greater or less extent, will eventually injure every business in the United States. Thousands of men are without jobs. And possibly worst of all, out of a struggle which appeared to begin without rancor on either side has come violence and bloodshed to deepen and increase ill feeling between employers and their workers. Perhaps the strike already has gone too far to be settled without a fight to the finish. But no matter how it comes out, everyone stands to lose. Song of Walking. By Elaine V. Emans Often in sun or in starlight, Often in fair or foul weather, It is good, it is good to go choose a friend And walk out a mile together. Sometimes in a stray little hour When you've no desire for talking, O, then it is good to discover a path And take only yourself out walking. And whether you follow a street, Or a flagstone path or the sod, It is good, I know, I know it is good To go walking sometimes with God. Dr. and Mrs. C. T. Legislative News and Views By J. F. HIERTZ Nebraska's first one-house legislature, in the second week of its existence, continued cautiously toward the time when it would get down to the actual business of lawmaking, with at least one member receiving from a constituent the demand to "get going." Paramount among the accomplishments thus far have been the decision to call the one-house body the Nebraska Senate, its members senators and the decision to borrow from a Lincoln bill $1,000 to purchase some stamps. Most of the delay has been over the mass of detail encountered by the all-branch rules committee in whose hands rested the formation of procedure for this unprecedented organization. The rules now are formulated and apparently meet with the approval of the senate. A few innovations are noted but in the main the manner of enacting law will be very much as that used by individual houses during the former bicameral legislatures. First snag was struck when a majority of senators decided it was time a bit of salary was forthcoming and voted to pay themselves $500 of their $872 per year compensation. Then it was discovered there was no provision in the setting-up of unicameral for that expenditure. Unricred drafting of necessary measures brought partial pay a bit closer. By vote of 39 to 0, with 4 senators absent, four appointments of Gov. Cochran were approved. They were those of J. B. Douglas of Tecumseh and Guy R. Spencer of Omaha as members of the game, forestation and parks commission; W. H. Smith of Seward as tax commissioner, and E. D. Crites of Chadron to the state normal board. Present at President Roosevelt's inauguration January 19 will be Governor and Mrs. Cochran of Nebraska. The all-important budget message of Governor Cochran will reach the legislature toward the end of the time-limit provided by statute, not later than the fifteenth legislative day, it was indicated. It is from this message the appropriation measures are drafted. Northwest Wayne (By Staff Correspondent) Ray Perdue and Allan had Sunday dinner at Wm. Schroeder's. It became apparent early in the session that the lobbyists would out-number the senators of the legislature by more than 2 to 1 when the full force of the second-house, as the lobby is called, is enlisted. That constitutionality of laws enacted is as important as the enactment of laws themselves seemed to be the motivating circumstance behind the appointment of $25 per legislative day each of three attorneys, L. J. Te-Poel, Creighton law school dean as bill drafter and Atty. Milton Murphy and Robert Van Pelt as advisors to committees. These men serve independently of the legislative reference bureau that is maintained year after year. To date there has been little activity to attract the gallery-legislator many of whom are daily watchers of the senate. During the second week session convening time usually was 10 a. m., and adjournment to the next day taken well before noon. But back of doors committees were at work. Although many are in preparation, one lone bill has been introduced to affect automobiles. It is by Sen. Carpenter, proposing fixed penalties for failure to exhibit auto plates; $10 to $50 for first offense, $50 to $500 for second. The existing statute carries no penalties. The "unorganized public" and "good of the people" lobby is well represented this year according to the records of the secretary of state where all lobbyists are required to register. Taxes and moratorium measures found their way into the bill hopper early. The first bill introduced was by Sen. Haycock and others providing cancellation of interest and penalties on delinquent taxes when paid in lump sum. The fourth bill to land was by Sen. Regan and others proposing to extend the mortgage moratorium until March 1, 1938. Senator Earl W. Carpenter of Guide Rock tossed a stumbling block in the way of Governor Cochran's reappointment of Bernard McNeny as member of the state board of control, but his objection proved minute. The senate voted 30 to 3 for confirmation—ten senators not voting. Carpenter's objections were voiced as his dislike for machine politics. "I feel the member of the board should be in closer contact with the teaching profession," he declared. McNeny is an attorney. urday and Sunday with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LeRoy at Norfolk. Meeting Is Held

For Wayne Club

International Relations Division Has Program Here On Friday.

Wayne Woman's club, at a meeting Friday in the club rooms of the auditorium, enjoyed a program sponsored by the international relations department. Mrs. H. C. Caspey spoke on England, and Miss Dolores Hoffman told about Germany. Folk songs of other lands were sung as solos by Miss Alice McGregor and Miss Harriet Lamson with Miss Sophie Damme as accompanist.

Mrs. Caspey, who spent the summer in England, explained that roses were especially lovely in England last summer because of much rain. The rose is the English national flower, and every yard seems to have a profusion of roses in great variety and gorgeous colors. One man planted $1,000 worth of roses last summer in his garden.

Eton college, a school for boys established on the Thames river by Henry VI in 1440, was visited by Mrs. Caspey and her children. Some of the old desks used when the school started are still serving. The college has an enrollment of about 1,000 and reservations for attendance are filled now up to 1947. Lads are managed very strictly in the school. They wear tall silk hats and other dress to harmonize. For disorder the youths are punished severely with reeds bound together. Each bunch of reeds is used only once for the "sting" goes out of them after use. When the bills are sent to parents the reeds are charged at 50c each as "medicine." One of the traditions is to have one's initials carved at Eton. Seniors who have completed their work with good record are allowed to carve their names on walls or steps when they leave. If any student should carve initials before completion of the course he is punished and the initials are plucked off. Schooling at Eton costs about $1,500 a year for each student. Norman Caspey remarked that he much prefers Wayne high to Eton.

The Wayne folks visited Windsor castle and were especially impressed with the height of the rooms in the house of lords and commons, the ceilings being about 75 feet.

Mrs. Caspey and Hazel and Norman visited the Crystal palace when the Duchess of York, now the Queen of England, presided at a ceremony recognizing various parts of the empire. The palace has since been destroyed by fire. The Wayne folks saw Edward VIII, now the Duke of Windsor, and the Duke and Duchess of York. They were close enough to the duchess, the present queen, to hear her say, "Everybody seems to be having a good time." In her address the duchess said that "Home is the sweetest word in the English language." And, like the duchess, Mrs. Caspey feels that "home is the sweetest place even though there were no roses or green grass" on her return, England is about the size of Nebraska.

Miss Hoffman, student at Wayne college who is a native of Germany, told about Germany, which she described as a country of great natural beauty. The old castles and other buildings which have been preserved carefully by the Germans in past centuries, are now converted to use under Hitler, Miss Hoffman told.

Germany is about three times the size of Nebraska and has 70 million population. Though Adolf Hitler is recognized as a natural leader, he is an aristocrat and is dictatorial. Persons in the country dare not cross his will. Every letter sent from the country is censored so that only good can be said about him.

German persons are divided into three classes, peasants, middle class and aristocrats. The farmers are the middle class. Those who work for others are peasants; and the owners of land and business are in the aristocratic group. Seldom do persons of two classes intermarry. If one marries into a class below his station, his relatives are likely to look down upon him. Marriages are often arranged for couples when they are children. A good dowery has considerable influence when parents make such arrangements. But, Miss Hoffman explains, young folks take their own granted and marry satisfied.

Schools and colleges throughout the German nation have the same course of study and the same lessons from day to day. Many travel from one place to another and always are able to keep up with their studies because of this exact procedure. Miss Hoffman finished the eighth grade before she came here eight years ago and she found that her education was equivalent to the fourth grade in this country. No record of attendance is kept in Germany. Responsibility of getting the training is left to the students.

After the war women in Germany were beginning to be allowed opportunity for schooling and for entrance into vocations. Since Hitler has taken charge, Miss Hoffman explained, women have been returned to the homes and their education is discouraged or prevented. Peasants are not allowed schooling. Hitler believes in training the physical but not the mental. Physical training is required and all indications point to the fact that this means preparation for war. Persons can't speak their own minds. "If they do it's too bad for them."

Towns are distinctly separated in Germany. Dancing is the chief entertainment. When a village gives a dance, persons from other villages are not permitted to attend unless by special invitation. Six meals a day are usual in Germany. But persons do not eat nearly as much as here, Miss Hoffman explains. And no water is ever served with a meal in that country.

Miss Hoffman likes the democracy of this country and enjoys attending college here. The woman's club received notes of thanks from the Child Saving Institute and Father Flanagan's girls. Father Flanagan sent a clipping telling that the mayor of "Better Boy Town" at the home recently went to New York to visit the mayor, J. Edgar Hoover complimented the home and said that crime would be greatly reduced in the country if more boys were given such help.

The tea table was decorated with flags of this country and other nations. Mrs. A. W. Ross, Mrs. C. Herndon, Mrs. W. S. Miller, Mrs. Ilda Holmes and Mrs. L. B. McClure served.

Wayne Girl In Party Stalled In Apex Drift

Though she was one of the two women on the passenger train stalled between Winside and Hoskins for 21 hours, Miss Opal Brown of Wayne, reports that she had a good time and experienced no hardships. This was Miss Brown's first such experience and one which she will long remember.

The train with 14 aboard left Wayne January 7 and stalled when wind filled the Apex cut with snow. Drifts were so high that the passengers could not see out the windows on either side. All were in one car and enjoyed visiting, reading and playing cards. One man sang to entertain the group. The train had plenty of fuel so the group kept comfortable, and they ate ice cream and bread which was on the train. The men arranged some electric coils which were used to toast the bread. One person had a jar of peanut butter and all shared this. A piece of wood was whittled into crude spoons which were used as utensils. The men scooped snow into the engine boiler.

Two snowplows rescued the party Friday evening and brought the train back to Wayne to allow passengers to get a good meal. It then continued the journey. Miss Brown went on to Norfolk to visit her mother, Mrs. Gene Brown, and she returned Tuesday last week. She made the trip again last Friday and returned this Monday.

Mrs. D. A. Paul of Concord, was the other woman on the stalled train. She and her brother, Arthur Anderson of Wakefield, were going to Lusk, Wyo., to attend the funeral of their brother, Wm. Hassel, who died the day before. Ernest Splitgerber of Wayne, was one of the passengers, being en route to Madison C. C. camp. Henry Langenberg and Howard Borcharding of Hoskins, walked from the stalled train to their homes.

Excellent Weather and Prosperous Conditions Are Found In the South

An old saying that three frosts will be followed by lots of rain proved true in Louisiana just before the holidays, according to R. H. Jacques, who, with Mrs. Jacques, went to Shreveport to spend Christmas and New Year's with Mr. Jacques' aunt, Mrs. Isaac E. Barron. The week before, Mr. and Mrs. Jacques went south, and Shreveport vicinity did get abundant rain. The frosts were not killing ones, but Mrs. Barron wrote the Wayne folks that Shreveport did get a killing freeze January 7. This was the beginning of winter which lasts only a month or six weeks in that section. And the winter there is very mild during the "short" period. Occasionally a snow flurry will be experienced, but the snow is gone in a very few minutes.

During the two weeks Mr. and Mrs. Jacques were in the south the weather was ideal. The sun shone brightly, and no day did they need a top coat.

Fresh vegetables and fruits are abundant in Shreveport and Dallas regions, where Mr. and Mrs. Jacques visited. Many vegetables are shipped to the cities from the fertile valleys of Texas, and turnips and parsnips are grown in abundance near the cities. Shreveport is about 160 miles north of the gulf and in the region south of the city are lots of orange and lemon groves. The fruit crop is good this season, the Wayne folks were informed. Large oranges are a cent each and one can't carry home the amount of fruit and vegetables to be bought with a dollar.

The south still has many large plantations, Mr. Jacques reports. These vary in size from one section to 20 sections. The largest plantations are like little cities in themselves with the wealthy white owners and managers living in the mansions and a large number of colored persons in small shacks on the place. Conditions are bad among the colored folks. Large families live in small houses and they work hard and long for small pay. Attempts are being made to improve this, Mr. Jacques found. Cotton is grown on the plantations and planting will start in February or March.

Conditions among the poor white persons and among the colored ones in the cities also need improvement. In city districts often 50 houses are in a single block. These are little oblong houses with a tiny porch, the buildings placed as close together as possible. They face on the alley as well as on the street. Mr. Jacques was told that efforts are being made to remove many of the houses and give space for playgrounds, gardens, etc. Condition of the poor whites seems as bad or worse than that of the colored folks in the south. Government PWA projects on roads and other improvements are progressing there and furnish employment for many.

Business conditions in the south seem excellent. Merchants in Shreveport report 1936 the best year in a long period, according to information they gave Mr. Jacques. Both Shreveport and Dallas and other cities in the south are filled with numerous big stores, many of them chains, which have resulted in great business activity.

Shreveport has a good many factories. In fact, since Mr. Jacques lived there 20 years ago, many factories for making clothing for men and women have been established in the south. Shreveport has a glass factory which closed down in sympathy with the national strike and threw 400 out of work. The biggest development in Shreveport and Dallas vicinities is the oil and gas wells. New fields are being discovered continually and they are proving wonderfully productive. First oil wells were found near Shreveport about four years ago. The usual depth of sinking wells has been 3,000 feet. The wells in the new fields are 7,000 to 8,000 feet ones. Some near Lake Charles are 12,000 feet deep.

Production in the Redessa field averages 86,404 barrels a day and the oil brings about $1 a barrel. The oil goes to refineries in that vicinity and is converted into gasoline, benzine and other products. Gas wells yield about 80 million cubic feet a day. From a gas well is produced 900 gallons of crude oil per million cubic feet of gas. It was an English man who first discovered gas seepage near Shreveport. He tapped the well and piped it to Shreveport. Since then large fields have been found.

One of the great dangers of loss in the past has come from the wells catching fire. This was due to the fact that from the oil wells gas escapes, and when the gas hovers near the ground it is likely to ignite and that starts at the well a blaze which is difficult to extinguish. A new plan used in the Marshall field in Texas is to place upright iron pipes in a number of places over the grounds and to have these fed with oil which burns continuously. The pipe torches keep the accumulated gas on the field burned up and thus minimize the danger from setting fire to a well. The fields are so light at night that one can drive many miles in the vicinity without lights on the car.

Mrs. Barron has three large pieces of land in the vicinity of Shreveport where productive new oil wells have been discovered.

Mr. Jacques was informed that Mr. Henderson, the wealthy iron works man who sold his radio station to the Shreveport Times, plans to start another station in Mexico. Mr. Henderson has lots of land in the oil district.

The many who have been made wealthy by oil and other developments in the south, are building beautiful homes on the shores of a lake near Shreveport. These homes, with spacious grounds and lovely flower beds, are of many varieties of architecture and in all colors. Most are of brick veneer. Club houses and other recreation centers are also established on the lake.

While in the south Mrs. Jacques visited a niece whom she had not seen for 20 years, and Mr. Jacques found that one of his boyhood friends is now governor of Arkansas. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Jacques spent several days with their daughter, Mrs. Henry Gulliver, and family in Ames, Iowa, coming home last Thursday.

Charming South Visited By Two Wayne Teachers

Deciding to "do as much of the country as possible" in the short two weeks' Christmas vacation they had, Miss Mary Currier, instructor at Wayne State Teachers College, and Miss Doris Palmer, exchange instructor from England, packed their clothes and golf clubs and "set off."

On their travel southward, towns and cities presented a festive sight with their brightly colored Christmas lights and decorations. As the women did much of their traveling at night they were given many opportunities to see the brilliantly lighted streets.

The first night out they stayed in Kansas. Christmas eve was spent in Oklahoma and Christmas night in Gainesville, Texas.

In Oklahoma, Miss Palmer, was impressed by the red color of the earth and rocks which showed great contrast to the greenness of Texas.

The farther south the Nebraska people traveled the warmer it became. Austin, Texas, however, that they noticed heat. Shop windows were full of summer dresses and it was necessary for the travelers to discard all wraps.

The campus at the University of Texas, located at Austin, is exotic, commented Miss Palmer, with shrubs, beautiful masses of bitter-sweet with huge berries, cactus, banana trees and clusters of pink roses banked against the college wall.

In San Antonio, a picturesque old town, Miss Currier and Miss Palmer stayed in a tourist camp, and did a great deal of sight seeing.

The museum, according to Miss Palmer, is a gruesome place containing among relics, some bones of those victims who fell at the Alamo. A figure of Christ used by the monks in instructing the Indians, was another feature of interest. The museum also contained many Indian relics. Among these were arrows, barbaric-looking shields and baskets in which Indian chiefs taint put the scalps of their victims.

The Spanish government palace was also very interesting to the Nebraska travelers. The court room, which was also used as a ball room, had a very rough flag stone floor. Each of the gloomy bed rooms had a niche for a shrine. The kitchen had many heavy iron utensils and the great massive wooden doors were decorated with carvings and symbols to represent Spanish conquests. "The patio was very pleasant and was full of palms and other plants," commented Miss Palmer.

Another picturesque spot in San Antonio was Beckenridge park, where there were many snakes, bears gasping for air because of the heat, and alligators basking in the warm sun. Miss Palmer was impressed by the mingling of many races of people in San Antonio.

The Japanese gardens with blue, pink and white lilies blooming was a beautiful sight for December 27.

Outside of San Antonio is located the mission of San Jose, famous for its rose window. Many art students visit here daily to copy it. The mission is partly a monastery with the gardens, chapels and cells where the monks lived in earlier days and partly a fortress with its central tower, strong walls and narrow slits from which the people fired when attacked, commented Miss Palmer. The monks would take refuge in the tower and the Spanish soldiers, whom the monks brought to this country with them, did the actual fighting.

Miss Palmer and Miss Currier climbed the rickety steps up the tower and were amazed at their steepness. A great deal of renovating is being done and it will soon practically be rebuilt.

From San Antonio to Corpus Christi was the next move for the travelers. Corpus Christi is beautifully situated and is a popular resort, but to Miss Palmer, it was dull after San Antonio. The main occupation of Corpus Christi residents is fishing.

The English lady was particularly impressed by the vegetation in Texas. Spanish moss hanging from trees, mistletoe and everything being green presented a lovely picture.

The cotton harvest was over by the time the Wayne teachers reached the southern states but they did see a great deal of cotton which had been left in the fields.

New Year's eve was spent in Dallas, a very "beautiful city." The place was over-run with gay crowds of people. Fireworks, noise and bustle added to the celebration of the arrival of the New Year.

To Miss Palmer, the difference in the speech and mannerisms of the people as compared by the northern and southern states was surprising. The southern people talk slowly, softly and as if nothing ever disturbed them. Only one thing in which they are not less sure is the manner in which they drive. They pay no heed to traffic signals, but are strict as to whether or not people carry a driver's license. Miss Palmer reported that they saw six "smashes" while they were in Texas.

Completing a 3,000 mile trip in two weeks, the two instructors returned from a country of summer beauty to a region blanketed with

Early Days In Wayne County

Early Days in the Wayne Herald for January 27, 1921:
Wayne high school graduates of 1920 presented a wireless set to the school.
S. Temple sold his cigar store in Wayne to T. J. Knopp. Mr. Temple and daughter, Miss Belle Temple, plan to go to California.
Miss Agnes Schellpaper of Winnebago and Herman Bahn of Nebraska were married January 24, 1921.
Louis Walde and Miss Ella Peterson of Winside, were married January 26, 1921.
"Society" ought to give the fellow who wants to make good a chance," emphasized Mrs. Maude South, "mother of the prisons," who spoke in Wayne.
Mrs. Rebecca Hayes, 84, resident of Wayne, for many years, died in Rosebud, S. D.
Mrs. M. A. Pryor and Miss Margaret Pryor are spending the winter in California.
The E. E. Strahans are in California for the winter.
Prof. and Mrs. M. S. Davies returned from Rochester, Minn., where the former received treatments.
Births reported in Wayne: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hale, a son, January 25, 1921; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gildersleeve, a son, January 23, 1921; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nelson, a daughter, January 24, 1921.
Travelers coming to Wayne express the need of more hotel accommodations here.
Mr. and Mrs. Pto Anderson and daughters, Rena and Agnes, arrive home from a trip to Denmark.
Frank Nelson and Elsie Jensen of Hoskins, were married January 19, 1921.
Mrs. Mary Thomas and Miss Sadie went from Winside to Texas to locate.
Leo Pryor of Los Angeles, formerly of Winside, and Miss Margaret Smith will be married in Omaha February 2, 1921.
Winside Royal Neighbors installed Etta Perrin, Effie Brown, Lizzie Gaebler, Martha Miller, Laura Brugger, Reka Clayton, Myrtle Jacobsen and Irene Gaebler as officers.
Frank Davis sold his barber shop at Wakefield and is moving to California.
Mrs. Elizabeth Kuno, 95, died January 19, 1921, at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Elmer Olson, at Wakefield.
William Finn and Miss Augusta Paulson were married January 26, 1921.
N. E. Riessen who bought the Central meat market from Fred Dean, sold it to Frank Rossmar of Charter Oak.
From Wayne Herald for January 28, 1897: The Trans-Mississippi exposition will be held in Omaha next year. Miss Bertha Benning and Fred Hefti were married January 27, 1897. A number of cattle were stolen from the Al. Driskell yards in Wakefield. Mrs. P. N. Nelson died at her home near Wayne January 27, 1897.
From Ponca Journal for January 29, 1890: At an early hour this forenoon a blonde young man was tripping up one of our principal streets, his feet came in contact with a slippery place on the sidewalk occasioned by water being spilled there last evening and ice forming in the night, and instantly his pedal extremities described a radical evolution in the air; then he sat down. He sat down in a most spiteful, emphatic way, as though his life depended on planting himself on that identical piece of sidewalk, right then and there, with as little ceremony and as much force as possible. J. F. Higgins received from F. A. Porter at Fort Peck agency, a letter dated January 8 and stating snow was two feet deep on the level and the thermometer stood at 40 below. Day and night shifts are working at the coal mine. It is a question of much doubt whether Cedar county will vote bonds for a railroad. Ponca will as a consequence probably remain the terminus of the road for many years to come.

Local Attorney Discusses Gold Clause at Club

The president's proclamation in regard to the deflating of the gold dollar two years ago was preceded by the agriculture adjustment act, emergency banking act, gold reserve act, all of which were designed for the purpose of raising the price of farm products, according to H. E. Siman, who addressed the Young Men's Business club recently. The plan was commendable, he remarked, but it did not do it.
The agriculture act had planned to deflate the dollar and increase the price of farm products but theoretically it did not do it. An example of how it would have worked is in the sale of land. Land worth $75 per acre with the dollar having a gold content of 25.8 grains would be worth approximately $45 with the present gold content which is 15.21. Practically, this is not true as no one has actually felt this change.
The gold dollar has gone out of existence. It exists only in contemplation of law.
In the passage of the gold clause, congress said that contracts containing the gold clause could be liquidated dollar for dollar. With the change for the gold standard, however, it would take $1.69 to equal $1 before the passage of the gold clause act.

Congress passed a law requiring all citizens who were hoarding gold to turn it into the government. Two weeks following that the United States went off the gold standard. Thus the people were not able to get the full value from their gold. Many cases had come before the supreme court arising from this. Mr. Siman discussed some of these at the meeting.

Ice harvest at Meadow Grove was halted Thursday morning when the engine operating the ice cutter suddenly sank in eight feet of water in the sand pit lake from which the ice was being taken.

PEOPLE WHO CARE PREFER
THE BECKENHAUER SERVICE

Here's a fair proposition:

A few weeks ago we made a pretty daring claim for the gasoline that is being sold this winter from Standard Red Crown pumps throughout Nebraska. We said it would start any car in good condition in one-second at zero temperatures.
We knew we were promising a great deal when we said that. One second is fast—just about no time at all! But we knew that in this winter's Standard Red Crown we had a gasoline which would back up that promise to the limit.
It has done that. Thousands of Nebraska motorists have been using this fast-starting Standard Red Crown right through the coldest weather. Many have gone out of their way to tell us that it has given them the best winter-driving performance they've ever experienced. Not one has claimed it let them down.
Now—we know there are some who still have not tried Standard Red Crown gasoline this winter. If you are one of these, we'd like to make you a proposition:

Ask five of your friends who drive cars whether they are using Standard Red Crown gasoline this winter. (Chances are that three out of the five are.) Ask them what kind of starting they're getting with it. That will give you something more than our promise to go on. But will it work in your car? That's the real test.
Well—you're going to need gasoline before long. So, when your tank gets low, drive in where you see a Standard Red Crown pump, and get a "fill" of this special winter gasoline. Then the next morning, after your engine has had time to cool off (assuming the battery is charged and winter-grade motor oil is in the crankcase), turn the key, step on the starter, and when your engine turns over... TIME IT!

STEFAN TELLS WALLACE ABOUT FEED LOANS

Statement to Secretary of Agriculture Pains Feed Conditions in This Area.

Recently Congressman Karl Stefan had a conference with Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace regarding the drought situation and the problems of farmers needing help in the Third Congressional district.

Mr. Stefan's statement to the Secretary of Agriculture was endorsed by the Farm Group and Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa and accepted by them as a correct picture of conditions in this area. The congressman's statement follows:

I want to present to you in writing one phase of the emergency drought situation which at the moment transcends in importance any other single phase at least insofar as my district in northeast Nebraska is concerned.

The 1936 drought and crop failure in that area was complete. Accordingly, farmers are without feed for their livestock and they have turned to the Resettlement Administration for the help without which they cannot pull through.

The immediate crisis has been produced by reason of the regulation promulgated by the Resettlement Administration which limits feed loans to farmers having not more than twenty units of livestock. In order that the actual situation may be adequately met, the authorized units of livestock should be raised to at least twenty. A twelve unit limitation is entirely too small for farms consisting of 160 acres and more. The foregoing figures indicate the average size of farms in my district. It is ruinous to compel farmers to reduce their herds to such a size as to practically insure retirement from agricultural production next year, or at least to impair production if the operation can be continued at all. These farmers have only the necessary number of horses with which to farm their land. Their cattle are dairy cattle—not beef cattle. They must be permitted to keep enough cows for the family living this winter and as a base for dairy production next year. The same is true of hogs and chickens. The rule of twelve units seems to be without respect to the size of farming operations and more suitable to small farms not exceeding 80 acres. It is, therefore, thought that the unit limitation should be raised to at least twenty to prevent the reduction from becoming ruinous to the point of causing some farmers to abandon their farms during this winter and of crippling the production of all farmers affected next year.

I am attaching hereto, for your further information, copy of a memorandum entitled "An Emergency Plan" prepared by Mr. E. W. Rossiter, of Hartington, Nebraska. I ask you to read it carefully.

"The immediate situation in northeastern Nebraska does amount to an emergency, first because the program is not large enough to meet the obvious need and, second, because the delay in the administering of a program of suitable size is occurring. Nebraska is now in the grip of winter. Temperatures are low and snow covers the ground. Feed must be immediately rushed to many places else much stock will actually perish. Losses have already occurred."

"This suggested increase to twenty units is submitted to you as being not only necessary but sound, first because the actually existing distress of farmers requires it and, second, because under the circumstances, relief to farmers will produce the best result if relief is substantial enough to enable farmers to remain on the farms throughout the winter and to have necessary livestock on the farms next year. The twenty unit limitation is in contemplation of only the necessary stock for farm averaging in size as do ours, and not in contemplation of any surplus or feeder stock."

I have clearly indicated that the actually existing emergency is one in which time is the essence of the remedy and that action must be taken at once to save the situation.

Will you please direct immediate investigation into the matters that I have undertaken to call to your attention and into the facts outlined by Mr. Rossiter in the attached memorandum, and advise me of the action that can and will be taken.

A $3,600 Income.
(Kearney Hub)
The statement of President Green of the American Federation of Labor that every worker should have a job and that the income of the average family should be at least $3,600 a year will strike a responsive note in every American breast. It will be difficult to find anyone who doesn't like Mr. Green's idea. Even the captains of industry should be for it because it would perhaps provide the average family with more money to buy their products. Theoretically this would be the result.

But when it comes to putting Mr. Green's wishes into actual practice, the path might be found a trifle difficult. For instance: back in 1929, we are told, only about a sixth of our families had incomes of $3,600 a year and there were two or three million unemployed. And the year 1929 is now regarded as the hey-day of our prosperity, and it was only a few months ago that the economic reformers were shooting at modest 1926 as an ideal year.

One point which we must remember is that real wages cannot be measured in dollars. What Mr. Green evidently means is that the American family should have an income of at least $3,600 a year with the present cost of living as a measure.

Now one of the legislative weapons most often advocated as a means to a job for everyone is the 30-hour week. But there are many economists who believe that a 30-hour week would greatly increase the cost of living. Certainly pay increases by legislative fiat would have a similar result. So if it were possible by legislation to give every willing worker a job and every family an income of at least $3,600 a year, it is possible that the cost of living would rise so high that instead of a 1936 income of $3,600 a year, the average family would have a real income of only $1,800. That would certainly be the effect if the cost of living were doubled by the legislative program. Money is only good for what it can buy. That remark was brought home forcibly to us when one of our American friends who was in Germany during the period of inflation paid several billion marks for an auto ride from Hamburg to Berlin.

It would be fine, of course, if we could double or triple the income of the average American family, and maintain our present cost of living. But to double or triple the cost of living at the same time wouldn't do so much good.

Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, is said to be slated to be Secretary of Labor in the new Roosevelt cabinet. That probably means an end to A.I.R.'s Quiet on the Potomac."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Agricultural Notes

(By Walter L. Moller)

Recent dry years in Wayne county have caused farmers to increase interest in the possibilities of combating crop failures by pump irrigation, according to numerous farm falls being made at the county farm bureau office.

In discussing pump irrigation possibilities with interested farmers, Agricultural Agent Walter Moller has followed the advice of Ivan D. Wood, state extension engineer at the college of agriculture. He advocates putting down a test well to definitely tell what the possibilities are for obtaining an irrigation well at any definite place; certain localities are more favorably situated than others due to thick gravel beds which are relatively close to the surface as in the valley of the Platte between Kearney and Columbus which is regarded as undoubtedly one of the best pump irrigation sections of the state.

There are successful wells in the valleys of the Elkhorn, Loup, Lodgepole and Republican valleys as well as on many minor streams where occasional gravel deposits may be encountered. Chances of securing a successful well in the eastern one-third of the state where glaciers once covered the land are not regarded by Engineer Wood as so promising as to the west of this area.

The high table lands in the south Platte country from Phelps to Kearney counties eastward to a point about even with the town of Seward are underlaid at depths of from 40 to 100 feet with thick gravel sheets which were formed in glacial times and now carry a continual flow of water from the sandhills and the Platte river to the valleys of the Republican and the Blue. This sheet of underground water is deep but might be used for irrigation successfully under certain conditions.

The farm group is organizing. It appears here that most members do not realize that there was a crop failure in Nebraska. The Washington papers are full of stories commending the administration for cutting down on the relief expenditures, and the farm group is doing everything possible to bring to the attention of Congress that the drought stricken districts, such as the Third district, have not recovered from the depression such as industrial districts and where a crop was really raised. Attention is also being called to the fact that something must be done about placing an excise tax on babassu oil, which is coming to this country from Brazil, free of duty, with an excise tax of 3c on coconut oil from the Philippines, about $3,000,000 has been saved the American producer of fats and oils, but this market will be wiped out unless an excise tax is placed on Brazilian oil. This is one of the problems of the farm group.

More than one hundred photographers, battery motion picture machines were in the House long before and after the President's appearance and—believe it or not, a lot of members of Congress who wanted their pictures in the paper were busily talking to newspaper men or photographers. Many of them who knew how pictures were made, made an effort to be down in the "well," so they could be photographed. Among those were Sol Bloom who got out the voluminous partly and she had about 300 people for dinner. One year ago it was stated that Mrs. McClean was broke, but she still has two houses in town, one called "The Mansion." She rented those two houses, including "The Mansion," to the government and some of those who seem to know what the government is paying for rent, figure this one little dinner and party cost her about what the taxpayers pay her for one year's rent. Mrs. McClean, according to the papers here, wore the Hope diamond, but some of the society writers here indicate it was a replica of the Hope diamond and not the real diamond.

The Third congressional office has introduced three of its major bills. These included the Cereal Grain Bill, which is being fought by the molasses and sugar trusts; the bill to appoint a commission to study the farm dollar and the bill to pay feed and seed loans—bushel for bushel in kind. The bill to erect a memorial to the memory of Frank and Lute North of Columbus was also re-introduced by the Third congressional office.

When the President came to the House chamber to deliver his message on the "state of the union," every precaution was taken to protect him. Hours before his arrival on Capitol Hill, many police and secret service men were on duty and the miles of subways were guarded. Trusted employees, secret service men and police who have been employed here for years were pressed into service and no one was supposed to pass except those who were identified.

Admission to the gallery was by ticket only, but that did not prevent people getting through the lines by subterfuge or "pull."

It was noted by those who were close to the President that he was in excellent health. His double chin was conspicuous and his smile magnetic as ever. Few people know that the President has no use of his legs from the hips down.

It was noted that his "walk" was somewhat more difficult than usual. His apparent "walking" is done by a movement of shoulders and body which really gives him the opportunity to "walk" on stilts. These stilts are connected with a metal belt or basket that goes around his belt or his hips, connected with steel on both sides of his legs which are clamped together at his knees and clamped together on the soles of each shoe. With a cane in one hand and leaning on the arm of his bodyguard on the other he is able to give an unusually fine appearance of "walking" and he does a fine job of it. His smile in the house was captivating and he was cheered to the roof by both sides of the aisle.

Mrs. Roosevelt sat in the President's gallery in the front row. She didn't look very well, apparently tired, as she had just returned from delivering a speech and from the bedside of her son who was very sick.

In the back row, almost in the rear, was Mrs. Wilson, wife of the war President, and at times when reference was made to the war she placed her black glove over her eyes. Very few people paid any attention to her.

As the President referred to the Constitution and hinted at the decisions of the Supreme Court, many members of the majority looked over at the minority side and smiled.

Howard Christmas of Genoa, Nebraska, came to the Congressional office with his brother who lives at Allentown, Penn. They had not seen each other for thirteen years and for the next two or three days will visit places of historic interest in and around Washington. Howard tells the people in the Congressional office that he is surprised to learn that the people in the east don't understand the language of the people of Nebraska.

Nebraska women coming to Washington to keep house for their husbands are starting to realize what high prices are. Fresh eggs are 55c a dozen here.

George Washington centennial program. Members who have been here a long time say he is always in front of the camera.

After the President's departure, Congress lost no time in getting down to business and the first matter of business was neutrality, but the Senate beat us by passing without a dissenting vote, the resolution prohibiting arms shipments to Spain and the need for further arms embargo legislation. The House would have passed the resolution about the same time it was passed in the Senate, but for the objection of a new member from Minnesota. This delayed the House somewhat, but the resolution was eventually passed by only one dissenting vote.

Many newspaper men—and there are thousands of them here, mourned the passing of Norris A. Huse, of the Associated Press. Word came of his death during the night and the Third district office was besieged with calls and messages of condolence. Norris Huse got his start as a newspaper man in Norfolk and he made a great name for himself among most of the newspaper men in this and other countries. Many newspaper men recalled the early days of wire photographs and gave the late Nebraska newspaper man credit for the full development and international use of that wonderful service.

Crawford Kennedy, of Albion, Nebraska, was an early visitor to the Congressional office. Mr. Kennedy used to be on "republican patronage" but lost out last year. He caught a bad cold at the Cleveland convention and is not in the best of health. He shows a letter from his old friend John Morehead of Nebraska with whom he agrees that "this country showed it was for Roosevelt in the last election and the republicans might as well admit it." He admits he is one of the most "vicious standpat republicans in Washington."

Protests have been coming in from Newman Grove regarding the prospective consolidation of the rural routes there. These protests have been taken up with the Second Assistant Postmaster General who has been asked to check very carefully the situation before any order for consolidation is issued.

Shortage Of Grains Is Noted In Report

Lincoln, Jan. 15—The present shortage of feed grains—corn, oats, and barley—is "perhaps the most serious in Nebraska history," A. E. Anderson, state and federal agricultural statistician, reported today.

"Not only has the present shortage reduced production to the lowest stage in decades," he said, "but the cattle and sheep feeding business is at a low ebb. Owing to a substantial carryover of hay and a more favorable supply of hay and roughage, stock cattle numbers for the state as a whole are nearly normal but hog numbers are only a small percent of normal."

The corn crop has been "short" three years, Anderson said, "due almost entirely to drought." This year 9,118,000 bushels of corn is on Nebraska farms compared with 69,153,000 bushels a year ago and the 1928-32 average of 139,871,000 bushels.

Farm stocks of oats, the statistician said, amount to 18,304,000 bushels against 47,985,000 bushels last year and 38,772,000 bushels, the 1928-32 average.

"Oats were poor last year but the 1935 crop was good, the price low and the carryover from that crop large," he declared.

Approximately 23 percent of the wheat crop remains on farms, Anderson said, but recent snows have given "a more hopeful aspect to the present crop."

"The December condition of wheat was the lowest on record," the report showed. "The acreage seeded is by far the highest on record. Present conditions are hopeful in the eastern third of the state. The recent moisture and snow improved the wheat situation in much of western Nebraska.

"If western sections could receive sufficient snow and moisture until spring much of this wheat that is still above has a chance to survive. Reports are some of the wheat, particularly in the central and extreme western has died out previous to the present moisture."

Interest In Pump Irrigation.

Omaha World-Herald: Interest in the pump irrigation schools conducted by representatives of the college of agriculture indicated there may be a considerable turning to this form of first aid to suffering crops next summer, if the next few months show any sign of probable continuance of the drought.

This kind of irrigation appears at first-hand to be extremely simple. You just sink a well to water, put a pump in it, hitch a tractor engine to the pump and let her flow. But the experts wisely warn that it isn't altogether so simple as that.

It is necessary first to find out about the water by sinking a small test well. How far below the surface does it lie? Is it deep enough to stand the inevitable lowering of the table that accompanies continuous pumping? Then it is necessary to learn how the land lies, so that the water may be applied to flow over it and do the most good. That requires a careful survey. After that, it is necessary to have first-class equipment, lest the cost of pumping eat up the profits accruing from saving a crop.

A general turning to pump irrigation may bring with it another problem that doesn't occur where it is scattered and occasional. That is the ability of the underground water reservoir to hold out against the demands made upon it. One farmer may irrigate without noticeably depleting it, save during the hours of pumpage. But when the farmer next to him and the next in all directions are operating pumps at the same time, there may not be water enough for all.

A flowing stream, we know, will irrigate so much land and no more. It may be so with the subterranean water supply. That is something which apparently can be determined only when the test is applied. The water table now is free for all who wish to tap it. Will pump irrigation bring questions of priority rights and the necessity of filing claims and obtaining permits before pumping?
