

Retired Photographer In Retrospective Mood — Corn Palace Band — Late Opera House — Evolution of College — Bernard Pollard Tackles Muse.

C. M. Craven who came to Wayne in 1884, and who sold his favorably known studio a few years ago, now managing deserved retirement in a highly successful and satisfactory manner, belonged to the spirit that made Wayne different from the average community.

Mr. Craven remembers three Buchanan brothers. Henry Buchanan succeeded Ed as band director, and Robert made a reputation in northeast Nebraska as a comedian in a traveling dramatic company which he organized.

Mr. Craven recalls that the old opera house which was torn down a few years ago—displaced by a filling station—was built in 1889 under subscriptions under the leadership of the late Judge H. H. Moses. The building was accepted as a wonderfully satisfying substitute for the old skating rink which had been used for public gatherings.

Famous lecturers and evangelists have lived in the opera house. When Sam Jones was here once, and Craven isn't sure whether he got his religion from Sam Jones or from some lesser light.

In time, the late Judge Jas. Brittain became sole owner of the opera house, and he managed its attractions until his death. Then the building was bought by the Wayne Woman's club, some years later the women disposing of the property and contributing most of the funds realized to the city for the new auditorium.

Mr. Craven notes that Wayne had many live wires in the course of its development. Said live wires usually had rather altitudinal tastes and were determined to have everything done about right. The forward-looking spirit of the community was shown in helping the late J. M. Pile get his college started in Wayne.

A major task appeared when, following the death of President Pile, the city decided to try to sell the school to the state. One whose vision is restricted to the merit system, might suppose the legislature would feverishly grab the opportunity to buy the favorably situated school and convert it into a state institution.

By Former Wayne Boy. Bernard Pollard, Wayne young man who for a number of years has been teaching in the Cascade country of the Pacific northwest, was inspired, doubtless by the towering mountains of the neighborhood, to write the following verses, captioned "The Mountaineer," and dedicated to the New Year.

Ed. Gustafson and Paul Olson had hogs and sheep on Wednesday's Sioux City market. Elves went down for the sale and on the return trip that evening was on the train which stalled in a snow drift a mile out of Emerson getting through at three the following morning. He walked to Wakefield and from there to his home and completed one of a number of experiences we feel will be worth relating in years to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Ring and Larry Joe were dinner guests Sunday of the Wesley Rubbeck's. Ralph joined them at supper after helping Wm. Palmer drive his cattle which were on Sioux City market Monday. Buster Agler, Vorace Packer, and Russell Johnson assisted Mr. Palmer also, the trip being difficult because of going across fields with only a track to follow.

Mrs. Walter Herman spent Monday afternoon with her mother, Mrs. Swan Lundahl.

Leland Holman walked the track from Wayne to the sale and the weekend with home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Green attended Anna Kay's birthday, dinner on Monday in her home.

Flu and colds are keeping a number of our folks indoors but nothing serious is reported.

Friday evening, the Emil Miller and Robert F. Hanson families visited Mr. and Mrs. Art Borg.

Evelyn, Esther, Arnold and Kenneth Visitor visited Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Green Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Chambers and Donald spent Sunday with Mrs. Chambers' parents, the Chas. Sacrisons.

Wallace and Ralph Ring were in West Point for the horse sale Tuesday, the former consigning stock.

The Lawrence Carlson family visited in the A. W. Carlson home Sunday afternoon and were supper guests.

Allan Sandahl is doing practice teaching at the State Teachers college as part of his work this semester.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Soderberg and Jacqueline visited C. A. Soderberg Monday afternoon. He has been ill with flu and hicoughs but is improved.

Mrs. A. I. Borg attended Mary Martha society at Rev. Turquist's Thursday afternoon. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hans Lubberstedt assisted as hostess.

Irene Suhr has been ill at her home this week. Her sisters, Florence and Helen, who are staying with Mrs. Effie Lund in Wayne, remained in town over the week-end.

Frisella Sandahl and Mary Elhior Ring remained in town for the week-end and accompanied the Anton Holmberg family to the Roy Sundell home for Sunday afternoon and supper.

Kinds of Intellectuals

DR. OLIVER Wendell Holmes got this off his chest or mind in classifying different intellects:
 "There are one-story intellectuals, two-story intellectuals, and three-story intellectuals with skylights. All fact collectors, who have no aim beyond their facts, are one-story men. Two-story men compare, reason, generalize, using the labors of the fact collectors as well as their own. Three-story men idealize, imagine, predict; their best illumination comes from above, through the skylight."

If Dr. Holmes' analysis is correct, people were not born equal as often suggested. The one-story intellect is probably not behind in ability to acquire material riches, but is not up to the two-story fellow in capacity to appreciate and enjoy. The three-story intellect doubtless penetrates many mysteries to his own satisfaction, but beyond the reach of the average. Likely the three-story creation has neither the ability nor the desire to accumulate worldly possessions. And we venture the guess that he is typical of a very small minority.

Worst HUMAN strength is feeble in the face of natural disaster. Inhabitants of the Ohio river valley have become helpless in the presence of the worst flood in the history of the country. Heavy rains have swollen the Ohio and other rivers to an unprecedented height. Settlers drowned, homes swept away and business and industrial property ruined total appalling loss. The rest of America looks on aghast and anxious to help. Fellow sympathy hurries aid to the stricken area. As usual when disaster comes, the Red Cross rises quickly to the task of rescue and relief. Contributions answering appeals, have been prompt and generous. Usual misfortunes pale before the terrible havoc.

Coach Dana X. Bible quits the University of Nebraska for the University of Texas at a salary of $15,000 per year. The highest priced professor who trains intellectuals, receives a maximum of $5,000 per year, while the fellow who leads a football team to victory is paid three times that amount. As the principal business of our colleges and universities is to develop brains for later usefulness rather than encourage football brawn and skill, there is too great difference in cash compensations. Any difference should be in favor of the professor engaged in scholastic training. But that isn't the way it is, and what we think would be warmly disputed by the tens of thousands who crowd school stadiums during every football season.

Some one said: "The right to work is no less sacred than the right to strike." John L. Lewis, labor leader, who looks as grim as a Hindoo god, evidently does not think so. It is understood a majority of the General Motors employees are against the strike. They are losing one million dollars per day in wages—too much in view of the price of bacon. Lewis reminds the Washington administration that labor unions gave their support during the late election, and that now labor's demands—no matter how unreasonable—should be upheld. This Lewis attitude offers no softly spoken hints, but speaks out clearly and definitely in letting the administration know what is wanted and expected.

A bill has been submitted to the unicameral legislature to make all offices nonpartisan along with school superintendents, judges and legislators. There would seem no real reason to draw party lines in choosing county officers who should be made responsible to the general public rather than to any party. In national elections involving vital issues, party alignments are necessary.

If the constitution is fairly interpreted, as the present supreme court is disposed to interpret it, popular rights will not suffer. If the clamor in some quarters for a changed or overridden constitution were permitted, we might in time be no better safeguarded than inhabitants of Italy, Germany or Russia.

An Ohio trapper says the fact that snakes are out is the sign of a mild winter. But the trapper was probably not talking for this area, because no one has seen any snakes hereabout, and so far, this is no mild winter, as winters are figured in Nebraska.

Crime doubtless increases as public morale is lowered, and morale suffers in the presence of depression and misfortune. Even in the wrecked flood area stealing from helpless victims has been discovered. Morale must be lifted to insure future order and protection.

Probably Wayne county has more snow and has had its roads more often and more completely blocked than any other section of the state. Roads have been cleared only to be refilled. Wind has not been lacking to hurl back removed snow or pile into impassable banks new installments. But if Wayne county has suffered most from snow blockades, it may later benefit most from the resulting moisture.

Although men are supposed to be harder than women they are not credited with courage to stand as much pain as the latter. Men are believed to make more fuss over sickness or an injury. They seem best by more fear.

The "dust bowl" in the southwest where moisture is badly needed, contrasts with rains and floods in the east. The elements seem unable to adopt an agreeable mean.

Racket Fighting.
 Lincoln Journal: When Thomas E. Dewey was appointed special prosecutor in New York in the summer of 1935 the city was in the grip of racketeers. They were extorting untold millions from small business men in the city. The racketeer has long been active in large cities, organizing protective organizations and then abusing those who do not subscribe. He began to expand rapidly under prohibition and many people engaged in the booze business before repeal have turned to other easy money games since.

The first really spectacular achievement of Prosecutor Dewey and his force was the arrest and conviction of Charles "Lucky" Luciano, overlord of New York's underworld and head of a vice ring of large proportions. Luciano was given a 50 year sentence for his part in the prostitution racket in New York City.

Within the last few days the Dewey office has struck again. It launched a drive against racketeering in the electrical industry in which a monopoly, built up by strong arm methods, extracted a toll of $10,000,000 annually from the public. It took over a year of investigation and gathering testimony and evidence before the raiders were ready to swoop down on the organization and take records and other incriminating evidence.

At about the same time the Dewey raiders struck at the "policy" racket, a gambling syndicate, which has been taking as much as $50,000,000 a year, much of it from the residents of the Harlem area. The arrest of the operators of this syndicate will at least hamper operations for some time.

Another raid struck at the bakery racket with the arrest of the leaders of this racket.

Racketeering provides an easy means of obtaining money for the person who is shrewd and lawless enough to place money where it will do him some good in the way of protection and who can manage a gang of strong armed collectors. It is not difficult to run down the collectors and punish them. But breaking up the entire ring is a hard job. Punishing the leaders is difficult. And once a ring is broken, there is always some other desperate, reckless law breaker who is willing to take a chance at some big money.

All Can Share.

(Omaha World-Herald)
 "A county patrolman whose name was not learned swam three-quarters of a mile through icy flood waters to get a message through to the radio relief bureau requesting food and blankets for three hundred women and children marooned at a county school."

That is just an incident of the splendid side of this terrible flood catastrophe sweeping down the Ohio river. If the heart is filled with pity for the plight of the more than half million people driven from their homes by the rising waters, it is thrilled by the magnificent heroism, the grand unselfishness represented by the story of their rescue.

It is a story told mostly in general terms. In details it can be easily imagined, men bending strong backs for hours at the oars of river skiffs, putt-putting about in motor boats, wading breast deep through swirling waters to rescue a marooned woman or child, working sometimes to the point of exhaustion. As everywhere, there are ghouls along the flood's margin, but mostly there are hearts of gold. There is much more of the spirit of every man for his neighbor than of every man for himself in this great calamity.

This splendid spirit is not something just to sit back in comfort and admire. It is something in which we all may share. After the work of rescue comes first the work of relief and then of rehabilitation. Fortunately, we can do something more than pity those half million homeless. We can participate in their relief and rehabilitation.

Opportunities For Salesmen.
 Omaha Journal-Stockman: Another hint for young people who are debating what their life work should be is contained in the results of a recent study of careers of leading business executives made by B. C. Forbes, economist and business writer. Very few of them, Mr. Forbes found, began their careers as salesmen, the great majority having come from offices or engineering departments.

Does this, then, mean that the young man or woman who hopes some day to head a big company should steer clear of selling jobs? Not at all. On the contrary, he feels that the greatest opportunities of the day lie in the selling field.

"My own opinion," he says, "is that sales geniuses will become more important, because, while production has been brilliantly mastered, distribution has not even approached a similar state of efficiency."

MASTERING ILLS.

When one is hard up—when things go wrong, due to the elements, to unavoidable conditions or to poor judgment—he must have an abundance of self-restraint to make himself feel or act agreeable. Blasted crops of last year caused such a deflation of buying power that every farm community in the middle west was hurt. People got into the habit of curtailing wants. January's snow blockades have helped the curtailing habit. Such an unusual suspension of human activities calls for courage. Only a wonderfully poised individual can face this unaccustomed paralysis cheerfully. Only a fellow with nerve and good nature can accept losses with a smile. In the emergency, the telephone and radio have helped. Instead of putting in spare time reviewing the family album or listening to the wind howl, as in the old days, the cooped-up household may talk to neighbors or hear the world's best musical and other programs. After stemming the tide of passing, ills—natural and union-made, i. e., strikes—we should, with favorable weather and normal harvest, enter seasons of plenty and prosperity. In anticipation, we must keep our chins up and our behavior agreeable.

 Nor force into the gale,
 For there is room enough below
 And what can it avail
 A man to leave his plane of life
 And altitudes assail?

Oh, up-hill is the mountain top,
 The peak and splendid sight,
 And those who struggle upward learn
 The pleasure of their might,
 Well weary though their bodies be
 The height is worth the fight.

The mountain top is bleak and cold,
 And those who reach the peak
 Are not much nearer to the stars
 Than those who do not seek
 To war against the downward trend.
 Confessing they are weak.

Not nearer to the sun and stars
 Perhaps in measured feet,
 But closer much and nearer far
 Than those who meet defeat
 As little chips upon the wave
 Resistlessly retreat.

A channell narrows as it climbs,
 Wide rivers turn to brooks;
 The littleness of glacial streams
 Is foolish noise, and crooks.
 The pinnacle is never worth
 The land it overlooks.

Oh, mountain climbers, we who know
 The snowy turrets of the world,
 Who love the treelless upward reach
 Where storm and avalanche is hurled,
 There is no art or human speech
 To tell the splendor there unfurled.

The icy drip of cavern lip,
 The green gleam of a deep crevasse,
 And laughter underneath the snow
 Where little chortling rivers pass,
 Have no delight of wealth or ease
 Which they cannot surpass.

And those who die to reach the top,
 Speak not of them for fear
 Like thunder from the peak will roll
 A voice upon the ear,
 "The thrill of such a death was sweet
 To me—a mountaineer!"

C. W. White remains about the same at his home in Wayne.

EQUALLY BAD.

Editor W. F. Cramb of the Fairbury Journal, cannot dovetail his ideas of individualism under a democracy with either communism or fascism. He cannot understand how followers of the Christian religion can favor either. He notes that sometimes contributors to church papers argue for communism and against fascism, opposing the latter on the ground that it belongs to so called "big business." It should be evident to those who observe conditions abroad that religious freedom has been utterly crushed under the iron heel of both communism and fascism. One is as intolerant as the other. The state rules every activity, and religion is permitted no choice. The dictator of communism or fascism rules religious worship, and as a consequence the church is destroyed as a source of individual inspiration and comfort. As pointed out by Editor Cramb, Christianity has no chance under either form of government. Both are equally arbitrary and ruthless. He says in conclusion: "Religious leaders who try to make a case for communism by raising the bugbear of fascism are not representing Americanism which places democracy above other forms of government, which makes individual rights superior to the rights of the state, and which guarantees religious liberty and the right of expression."

Pioneer Is Ill.
 W. A. K. Neely, Wayne county pioneer, has been ill at his home northeast of Wayne several days.

Fractures Ankle.
 John Eining, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Eining of Wayne, suffered a slight fracture of the left ankle Monday morning when he fell against the gym wall while playing at school. The member having been placed in a cast, is healing nicely.

Social Security Not New.
 Omaha Journal-Stockman: Legislation to promote old-age and unemployment pensions for workers on a national scale may be an innovation in this country, but the idea of providing old-age security has long been in effect in many lines of business. Operation of pension plans for employes has been a common practice among railroads for many years and the same is true in a number of other industries, including meat packing.

Swift & Co., for example, point out that for 29 years its employe benefit association has paid sickness, accident and death benefits to employes and members of their families, that for 24 years its hourly-paid employes have been guaranteed minimum weekly working hours; a non-contributory pension plan has been operated for all employes for 20 years; all employes, including those on hourly rates of pay have enjoyed the benefits of a plan for paid vacations for 14 years; and group life insurance has been available at low rates to regular employes for 11 years. Other features of this company's program for the benefit of employes have been its policies of promotion from the ranks, accident prevention, and employe-representation in discussions of many phases of plant operation.

That such a plan as this has merit is indicated by the relative freedom of the packing industry from labor troubles over a period of years. Company officials also have found that it leads to a loyalty which means better service and lower labor turnover. Whatever form national security may take in the future, it is to be hoped that it will not replace or lessen the fine efforts, such as those outlined above, which many companies already have made on behalf of their workers.

 Subject: Love.
 Golden Text: Zeph. 3:17.
 Wednesday evening, testimonial meeting at 8 o'clock, February 3.

The Golden text: "The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; he will save, he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love, he will joy over thee with singing."
 A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from I John 4: 7-8: "Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love."

A comparative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "People go into ecstasies over the sense of a corporeal Jehovah, although with scarcely a spark of love in their hearts; yet God is Love, and without Love, God, immortality cannot appear. Mortals believe in a finite personal God; while God is infinite Love, which must be unlimited." (page 312).

A 10-month old baby was found smothered in bed, and a 94-year old man and a 71-year old woman were found in their respective homes frozen to death. Play and sport casualties were mostly caused by coasting, skating and skiing, although a 3-year old girl ran a finger nail file into an artery in her neck, and a 5-year old boy had his eye gouged with a pair of scissors. Other injuries were caused by: Explosions, falls, gas fumes, falling icicles; catching hand in car radiator; contact with live wire; and exposure in stalled cars or walking distances through snow.

Non-injurious accidents were: Plane crash; sampling of medicine by 2-year old boy; hot knife dropped on baby's eye; break in canal; and many fires.

Biennial Meeting To Be Held Soon

Dr. Mary Honey, president of the Wayne branch, has announced the tenth national convention of the American Association of University Women which will meet in Savannah, Georgia, March 15-18. The theme of the convention for this year is Education—The Foundation for Social Organization. Among the distinguished speakers who will appear on the program are Dr. Meta Glass, president of the American Association of University Women and president of Sweet Briar college; Dr. Kathryn McHale, general director; Morse Cartwright, director of the American Association for Adult Education; Dr. William G. Carr, director of research, Educational Policies Commission of the N. E. A.; Dr. Mary R. Beard; and others.

The convention will bring together representatives of the association's 54,000 members organized in 748 branches throughout the United States, and in Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands, Puerto Rico, China, Japan, and Argentina. Education is the center of the association's activities, and convention reports will include the story of the fight of local branches and state divisions on behalf of schools and libraries during the depression, and also a report of the association's work in improving educational opportunities for women in colleges and universities, and securing equal recognition of women with men on faculties and in student bodies. A. A. U. W. members carry on an extensive study program, and in response to current interest in economic and governmental problems the association has recently added a department in social studies. Other departments of study include educational standards and trends, child development and education for family life, international relations, and arts. The association also provides opportunities for gifted women through the award of research fellowships, and the Savannah convention will celebrate progress in raising a million dollar endowment for that purpose. Contributions bringing the endowment to over a third of that sum will be reported at the convention.

Historical Savannah in the spring offers every inducement to the guests and delegates who attend the convention. The famous old squares and institutions, the apt bellum plantations, the country estates, and the old slave huts provide sight-seeing for every interest. Only a short distance from Savannah are the Magnolia Gardens and Middleton Gardens, the most beautiful gardens in the world, at Charleston, S. C.

Radio Over Flood Waters

Sioux City Journal: Millions of Americans must have listened in as radio was brought into service in Louisville, Ky., as an aid to rescue work when that city became inundated in the worst flood of its history. Hour by hour bulletins were broadcast from Louisville in an inter-city hookup with Nashville, Tenn. For in Louisville electric power and light had failed and the city of more than 300,000 was in darkness save for the flickering lights of lanterns, kerosene lamps, flashlights and candles. No power with which to operate radio, sending or receiving. Radios in thousands owned in Louisville homes no longer were serviceable with the power gone. So radio experts organized the intercity chain and directed rescue work day and night, relaying bulletins that were telephoned in to the station from all parts of the city. Receiving sets were hooked up with batteries, many of them taken from motor cars. These radio sets were installed on boats of many styles and designs, so that when emergency calls came in by telephone, the distress messages could be given to the rescuers by being sent first to Nashville through remote control.

Thus the whole city that had been flooded was covered. Announcers, working heroically and relieving each other frequently at their posts, directed the thousands of rescue squads. These announcers worked under extreme difficulties, especially at night. Their light came from kerosene lamps and lanterns. They coughed frequently. Their voices grew husky because of the smoke from the lamps and lanterns. But they kept at the task, for human beings were out there in the darkness begging for boats as the muddy waters crept into their homes, sometimes driving them to upstairs rooms.

Bulletins like these were heard: "A boat is needed at Third and St. Catherine streets. Seven persons are marooned there." "An emergency call from 1834 Portland. A baby is suffering from pneumonia. The house is surrounded, and there is no food." "Thirty persons are marooned at Twelfth street and Broadway. One is a woman paralyzed and very ill. Go at once." "Whoever gets this message see that it reaches the mayor of Philadelphia. We can use all the typhoid serum he can send. We need anti-toxin for 100 cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever." "Lebanon says they can feed 1,000 refugees." "Sixty motor cars are waiting in Bardstown to come into the flood area and pick up refugees. They want directions where to go when they reach the city." And so on and on through the night come the voices of the announcers as they stick to their jobs of directing rescue workers where to go and what to do. Nothing but radio could have performed this service. Without it, Louisville's experience would have been far more ghastly.

Safer Lights For Night Driving. (Omaha Journal-Stockman) As his car tears down the road into the night, every auto driver feels the threat of the wall of blackness which rushes to meet him every time he passes an oncoming machine. What if some body or something should be out front in the darkness? He shudders at the thought, but is comforted in remembering that nothing ever has been. But sometimes something is there and another accident results.

Engineers who have been trying to find a means of reducing night driving dangers report a measure of success from the use of polarized light. In its simplest terms, polarized light is light which vibrates in a given plane or light rays having a certain number of impulses per second. In order to adapt this kind of light to autos, headlights lenses become polarizers and windshields, depolarizers. The result is said to permit the viewing of night traffic with the same ease as is possible in daylight.

The major problem in fitting the new light to automobiles lies in the loss of half of the lighting power of headlights through the use of polarizers and depolarizers, engineers say. Headlamps would have to be made four times as large as at present, and generators, wiring and batteries would have to be made bigger and more serviceable to restore this loss. The change would mean an added burden to motors, but motors appear to be too powerful already to be safe in the hands of all kinds of drivers.

Perhaps users can be induced to accept some loss in symmetry in new cars and a moderate reduction in power if the new lights prove a success. It seems certain that persons who do much night driving would be the last to complain.

Russian Fantasy. (Omaha World-Herald) The wine of revolution is a heady drink. Those who have drunk deeply of it become intoxicated with one success; regarding themselves as super-men they dream of new worlds to mould according to their conspiracies.

That is about all the sense we can make out of the newest conspiracy trial in Moscow, in which 17 men once high in soviet inner circles are being prepared for the firing squad. Before the rendezvous is held with death their confessions are related in court, confessions of plots so bizarre that it challenges belief thinking men could indulge in such fantasies.

Yet Radok, Sokolnikov and others on trial for their lives have given proof of high ability. They had been useful to Lenin in the days when he was bringing form and substance out of the chaos of the red revolution. They had enjoyed the confidence of Stalin when he became the ruling power after his ousting of Trotsky. Yet if half the charges against them are true, if they indulged in but a part of the plotting they are said to have confessed, they stand convicted not only of treasonable folly, but of sharing no part of Lenin's earnest, passionate, deep desire to do good for the Russian masses. They, it seems, have been playing an exciting game in which the stake was not service, compassion nor uplift of the common man but power for the sake of power alone.

If that's the kind of game being played in Russia, then the devoted followers of Lenin have done well to forewarn plans for world revolution to devote themselves to trying to make their Marxist formula work in the land where it is accepted. Russia is a long way from security within herself when the highest priests of the communistic dogma plot against each other and with the avowed enemies of their country and their political tenets.

Ambassador Davies, it was reported, followed the proceedings "with avidity" and made voluminous notes. His report to his country will bear some of the marks of a Gilbert and Sullivan satire. That any group of Russian and German and Japanese conspirators should seriously plan a warfare upon the United States is news that can have but one principal effect in this country, and that a wide grin of amusement. No more cock-eyed proposal has come to print since the last novel of E. Phillips Oppenheim.

But no smile attends the proceedings at Moscow. There is enough plausibility to the story to bring noted bolsheviks before the bar and soon before the firing squad. Stalin is conducting another blood purge, colored with more justification and based on somewhat stronger grounds, but in other respects paralleling closely the blood purge used by Hitler to rid himself of embarrassing supporters.

You can't laugh that off. You can only feel proud and happy and humbly grateful to live under an orderly and decent way of government, entrenched in the principles of democracy which proudly that power belongs and rightly belongs only to the people.

Misery Is Relative. (Norfolk Daily News) Lack of rainfall may cause distress, but too much rainfall is devastating.

Nebraska has, with good reason, been feeling sorry for herself because of short crops and dried up pastures, but when we compare our plight to that of the sufferers in the flood region, we have to decide that we are the lucky ones after all.

When 230,000 persons have to be taken out of one city of 330,000, when entire cities are abandoned by their inhabitants, many of them hauled away from their submerged residences in boats, when hundreds of thousands are cold and hungry and threatened with epidemics, we have to conclude that what hit us was no more than a minor misfortune.

Nebraskans have been wondering just how we are going to get through the coming year. But now that the call has come to help those who are infinitely worse off than we are, we will gladly go down into our pockets for the money. Misery, after all, is relative.

Harrowing Experience. Pierce, Neb., Jan. 26—Miss Lorraine Brodthagen, grade teacher in the Logan Pride consolidated school five and one-half miles north of Pierce, was able to return to her home here Friday afternoon after being snowbound at the David Wolf home about three-fourths of a mile from the school house since Wednesday noon.

Miss Brodthagen relates a harrowing experience she had in the storm last Wednesday.

Late in the morning when the blizzard grew gradually worse, many parents came for their children. Miss Brodthagen closed school at noon. Miss Brodthagen, taking with her Delene and Gerald Lichtenberg, who have been riding out home in that district burned the first of this month, and another child, Harrietta Peters. Shortly after she turned south on highway No. 81, the car stalled in the drifts.

By this time the storm was raging so that visibility was poor. She knew she could not get the car through the blocked road ahead. "I would have stayed at the school house if I had realized how severe the storm was," she told friends later. "I knew, too, that alone I could not get the three little girls out of the David Wolf home where I had previously arranged to stay if I could not get back to town that night."

"There was only one way out," she thought to herself, "go for help and risk getting back to the children." She wrapped them up as best she could in the car blankets and told them to stay inside until she got back.

"I took out through the field to avoid the deepest drifts, to get to the Wolf home a quarter of a mile away," she said. "I could hardly see where I was going. When I tried to look back I could not see the car ahead and I couldn't see the Wolf grove. The telephone poles along the road helped me. Finally, exhausted, I arrived at the house. I waited a moment only to get my breath, and Mr. Wolf started back with me."

"After a hard struggle we reached the car. He carried the smallest girl and together we got the other two safely to the house. When they were warm a neighbor, Henry Luebe, came to get the children, Mr. Wolf helping him."

Miss Brodthagen said she recalled the story of her father, Paul Brodthagen, being lost for four hours in the blizzard of 1888 and narrowly escaping death by freezing, as she was making a desperate effort to get the three little girls to safety. As a result of her experience her legs were badly frosted.

Principal and Mrs. William Steele were forced to walk to their home with the Edgar Mordhorsts when their car stalled north on 81. It was Friday afternoon before a snowplow helped release their car from the drifts. "Our eyes were frozen shut at times, as we faced the blinding storm," they said.

SUPREME COURT--CITIZEN'S REFUGE

Norfolk Daily News: Some of those who have studied the president's thought in regard to, or lack of regard for, the supreme court, profess to believe that he would have final power lodged in officials "whom the people can change or continue at stated intervals through an honest and free system of elections." They say that this is a thrust at the supreme court, that it is a proposal that the court should not exercise power to declare acts of representatives of the people unconstitutional and void. Let the people dismiss officials who pass the constitutional boundaries the people set up. Let the people endorse by re-election the officials whose acts they approve as constitutional.

This is a plausible way of putting the opposition argument, but what would have happened in several notable cases if the unconstitutional acts of legislative bodies and executives had been subject only to the votes of the people?

There was a notable case in Rhode Island in 1786, a year before the constitutional convention met. One Weeden, a citizen of Rhode Island, was arrested on the charge of violating a law making it a penal offense to refuse to take the depreciated paper currency in exchange for goods, and providing that no one accused under the act should have the right of trial by jury. Weeden was convicted but appealed to the courts which held the legislature had no power to set aside the constitutional provision guaranteeing the right of trial by jury. The legislature was indignant and threatened reprisals against the judges, but another law, to the same effect, submitted to the people was badly beaten, indicating the people were in sympathy with the holding of the court. How could Mr. Weeden have preserved his rights, if not by appeal to the courts? Should he have been forced to await the dubious outcome of an election, in which many other issues would have been involved?

There is the famous case of Milligan, citizen of Indiana, sentenced by a military court martial, without trial by jury, to be hanged for some offense against the military in the peaceful state of Indiana. The supreme court held the law under which the military acted unconstitutional and Milligan was not executed. This was a gross misuse of power by the elected representatives of the people, for which there was no remedy at hand, except appeal to the courts.

Nebraskans recall the foreign language law which violated the rights of large groups of our citizens. The supreme court protect these against a majority crazed with war hate and led by a well-organized minority group. Should these foreign citizens have had no recourse except to appeal to the war-crazed public to repudiate the legislators who voted for the bill?

A late case is still fresh in mind. The De Jonge case arose under an Oregon statute which the court held violated the right of freedom of speech and assembly. If President Roosevelt's thought has been interpreted rightly, how would he protect citizens in the right to speak their minds, to worship as they please, to petition their government, if the final power is left with the very body that invades these rights?

Majorities in congress or the legislature sometimes misread public opinion. The majority of the people occasionally disregard rights we consider fundamental. Administrative officers sometimes go beyond their constitutional powers to oppress the people. It has happened here, it can easily happen again. If it does happen the only refuge the citizen has is to go to the courts. That refuge shouldn't be taken from him.

Women of the Entire World United In Prayer On First Friday in Lent

Appropriate indeed is the selection of the first Friday in Lent for the World Day of Prayer when women from many denominations throughout the world join in a service which this year has for its theme "Thou Art the Christ, the Son of the Living God." In Wayne the women of the union association will on February 12 have morning and afternoon services at the Presbyterian church with each church furnishing a part of the program. Mrs. A. A. Welch is president, Mrs. L. W. Granly vice president and Mrs. F. L. Blair secretary of the organization.

This year's service of worship, prayer and song was prepared by Miss Mabel Shaw, founder of the Livingstone Memorial girls' boarding school of central Africa. Miss Shaw, who went to Africa in 1915, has embodied in the service the "greatness of Him to whom we pray, the unutterable majesty of the Son of God and the shattering humility of the Son of Man."

In one of the prayers the women of all denominations will petition

"for the whole family of nations that they may find ways of peace and cooperation; for our nation that it may measure its operations and congressional actions by Christ's law of brotherhood; for our own community that it may be recreated by vital Christian leadership; for the Christian church that it may be strong and courageous."

It was in 1920, the first Friday in Lent, that the Day of Prayer was established by women of the United States and Canada who united in services with the theme "The World to Christ We Bring." The call for prayer was sent throughout the world by home and foreign mission organizations and each year has seen an increase in the observance. In response to requests from distant lands in 1927 the World Day of Prayer was instituted with the theme "Pray Ye Therefore." In 1936 the response to the program "On Earth, Peace Goodwill Toward Men" was world wide.

Agricultural Notes

(By Walter L. Moller)

Keeping step with the progress of the 1937 agricultural conservation program in all parts of the state, educational meetings to acquaint Wayne county farmers with the new program are attracting large crowds. Meeting at various places in the county, the 1937 committees are being elected and the new program explained.

All of the community meetings in Nebraska are expected to be finished by February 10, reports from the state committee at Lincoln indicate: General outlines of the 1937 program are being explained at the gatherings. It is expected that soil-depleting bases, crop land acreages, corn limits in eastern Nebraska counties, and other essential data will be available for each farm by the first of March and that the county association can tell each farmer what he needs to know about the program before he begins to plant spring wheat, oats, barley and other crops in March and April.

The state committee is rapidly tabulating the necessary figures from 1936 measurements and other data in order to supply each county committee with the county summary figures for crop land, depleting bases and corn acreages.

Special meetings will be held in the range cattle territory of the state to discuss the provisions of the new range program with ranchers who are interested in the conservation of their grass land and participation in the program. Some additional attention may be given orchardists and commercial vegetable growers who are eligible for the first time to participate in the conservation program. Sugar beet growers will draw payments again in 1937 about as they did in 1936, excepting that requirements for conserving crops have been modified to some extent.

Well Important in Pumping.

Wayne county farmers interested in pump irrigating in 1937 were advised this week by Ivan D. Wood, extension engineer at the Nebraska college of agriculture, to avoid the so-called "wild cat" well. He advocated doing some prospecting and having an experienced irrigation well man put down a test well before money is wasted on a poor site.

Wood explained that the test well consists of a small hole approximately 6 inches in diameter bored down to the water table with an auger. A casing of standard six-inch pipe is inserted and sunk down through the water bearing gravels with a sand bucket. Samples of the sand and gravels are taken at each foot of depth until a complete knowledge of underground conditions is obtained. Then, Wood says, the landowner may proceed intelligently with the construction of a well or it may be abandoned.

"The well is a very important feature of the pump irrigation plant," said Wood in asking the Wayne county farm bureau to urge farmers to use the test well. "With a poor water supply, the venture is doomed to failure from the very outset. When a pump is placed in a well and starts to deliver water, the water table in the well immediately drops to a lower level. The amount the water table lowers is known as the 'draw down.' There are many wells on the Platte river bottom, in which the water stands within 10 feet of the surface when the pump is not running. When delivering, water the level may drop as much as 16 or 20 feet. The landowner is really lifting the water from 26 to 30 feet.

"Thus it may be seen that the 'draw down' is a very important factor in pumping costs. It has been shown that deep wells which penetrate 40, 50, or 60 feet of good water bearing gravel usually have less 'draw down' than those which have stopped after penetrating only a few feet of good strata.

"Deep wells are higher in first cost but through years of continual pumping may be far cheaper to run."

State Pasture Committee.

Interest in the 1937 statewide pasture contest increased this week as the state pasture committee was announced by cooperating agencies sponsoring the event. Wayne county farmer entrants are P. H. Stewart, extension agronomist at the college of agriculture, is again chairman of the state committee in charge of the contest. Elvin F. Frolik, assistant extension agronomist, will again serve as vice-chairman. Dr. F. D. Keim, M. N. Lawritson, W. W. Detrick and D. L. Gross, all of the college of agriculture; C. Y. Thompson, president of the Nebraska Crop Growers' association; and Frank Walker, president of the Nebraska Livestock Breeders' association, are other committee members.

Details of the 1937 contest, designed to improve grazing land, are described in an attractive 4-page circular which will be available to local farmers soon. Twenty-seven practical and timely pasture questions and answers are also included in the circular.

Trees Are Available.

Wayne county farmers now have made application for 3,300 Clark-McNary seedling and transplant trees for spring planting in windbreaks and wood lots indicating that more trees than ever may be planted this year. It was announced this week by the Wayne county farm bureau.

The same added interest in tree planting is being manifested throughout the state as farmers now have made application for 411,500 seedlings. Applications have been made in great numbers after the recent snow. Given more moisture before spring, interest is expected to increase weekly.

Seed Corn Situation.

Seed corn survey cards are continuing to be received at the Wayne county farm bureau and the needs and supplies of farmers are being compiled and used advantageously. A total of 161 cards have now been returned. A total of 133 say they need 1,436 bushels of seed while 28 indicate they have a surplus of 2,666 bushels.

The state wide seed corn survey is expected to be completed soon. Following it will be many county and district seed corn shows. Central Nebraska farmers have been invited to attend a seed corn show at Gibbon on February 4. Samples of the 30,000 bushels of seed corn, grown under irrigation, which is available in that area for planting will be on display.

Chamber Of Commerce Is Active In Other Cities The Size Of Wayne

In replies to inquiries sent out by the Wayne Herald in regard to paid secretaries and community promotions, letters have been received from Wahoo, Aurora, Seward and Chadron, all towns approximately the same size as Wayne.

Each of the four towns has an active Chamber of Commerce and some favor a paid secretary and others do not.

The Wahoo Chamber of Commerce does not have a paid secretary, the only remuneration received by the secretary is his membership dues in the chamber. Dues are $8 per year and the number of members last year was 110, making the receipts $880, and from other sources, the club received $321.80. The expenditures of the Wahoo club the past year totalled $959.45 covering the following activities: Nine get-together dinner meetings, Saunders county spelling contest, Safety Council for the city of Wahoo, local beauty pageant, Christmas decorations and Santa Claus, Saunders county school day and the Saunders county call club day. It was estimated that 5,000 people saw the parade in which 69 school districts took part at the County School day. Two thousand one hundred and seventy-eight free show tickets and 1,518 football tickets were distributed to the children participating in the parade. "All of these activities and others have been accomplished by the Wahoo Chamber of Commerce through the cooperation of its membership," writes E. J. Erickson, secretary of the club.

Aurora Chamber of Commerce maintains a part-time paid secretary who receives a salary of $25.00 per month. His duties include the keeping of all records and accounts, collecting the budget and acting as a point of contact with all persons and organizations having business with the chamber and the working out of details in connection with club activities. Individual membership dues are $2.00 and the club has over 100 members. In addition to these the Chamber has some sustaining members which is a group composed of the business institutions, either individually, firm or corporate owner, which pay amounts varying from $5.00 to $30.00 per year into the budget fund.

Paul H. Bek, Seward secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, writes that Seward does not maintain a paid secretary. Previously the Chamber employed a secretary whom they paid $150 per month by increasing individual subscriptions. At that time, the club raised a budget of approximately $4,500 per annum for the purposes of carrying on the Chamber activities. At present the annual budgets for the purposes of carrying on the activities to stimulate trade in the community now approximate $2,000 to $2,400. A budget committee of six men administer this fund. In addition to this the Chamber of Commerce proper retains a secretary who is paid $150 a year, and who takes care of the administration of the Chamber. The budget committee does pay its secretary-treasurer a small sum for keeping the books. This committee also does most of the promotion work.

Chadron maintains a part-time paid secretary at $30 per month. He is also the city treasurer. Funds are raised by subscription from the business houses who pledge from one to five dollars a month according to the volume of business. Last year the club collected about $2,200 and this fund took care of four conventions and all other expenses.

Letters were also written to Auburn and Central City, but no answer has been received from either of them as yet.

Early Settlers Come to Donop Community By Covered Wagons

One day in the fall of 1872, two covered wagons rolled into Wayne county carrying the family and household goods of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Behmer.

When the Behmers moved to Donop, they bought their 160-acre farm from Charles Team. They were the only family to buy as all of the other settlers had homesteaded on 160-acre tracts of land.

Groceries were acquired only after a two-day journey to Wisner, the nearest town. For flour, these early settlers, took their wheat to West Point to be ground at the mill located there.

The first postmaster at Donop was Frank Puls. Mail was carried from Stanton on foot, as Donop at that time did not have a railroad.

Children of these early settlers were not to be neglected, so a school was provided. At first, school was held in one of the homes but in 1878 a school house was built and was organized into district No. 3.

These early families, all of German descent, felt the need for spiritual teachings, so they with a few settlers at Norfolk, which was at that time nothing more than a postoffice, founded a congregation.

"We might not have starved but we got food because we had a Telephone"

That is what one farmer told us when talking about the snow-bound and sub-zero days of last winter.

A farm woman said: "I believe I'd have gone crazy if I hadn't been able to talk with my neighbors by telephone."

Another farmer told us: "Nothing seemed more important than having a telephone to talk with the doctor who couldn't get out to our farm."

While changing a tire on his car four miles north of Norfolk, Joe Vifquain, Lincoln salesman, was held up by two men who robbed him of $70. The men stopped and asked if they could help. Mr. Vifquain told them he was about through. The men then put a gun to his back and took his money.

Wayne City Library News

A series of radio pamphlets is now available at the Wayne city library. Among these are: "The Use of the Radio in Leisure Time," Lyman Bryson, which shows the influence radio has in helping to create new arts and in helping old ones.

"Radio and Children" by Sidonie Matzner Gruenberg, tells of the interest younger children have in radio and the cultural gains from it in relation to radio and other home activities; "Music as Presented by the Radio," Peter W. Dykeman, tells of how radio provides music for pleasure, for increasing of sympathy and how it is a medium for music lovers over the world; "Radio Music for Boys and Girls" by Peter W. Dykeman, points out how radio enriches music and the benefits for younger people by the broadcasting of school music; "Radio and the Farmer" by Edmund deS Brunner who in this pamphlet tells of how radio has broken down rural isolation, improved farm practices, kept younger people on the farm and provided programs for farm women.

The farm pamphlets at the library have been filed in related groups so that they are more accessible to patrons. The related groups are: Nebraska Grain Crops, Farm Economics, Disease and Insects, Preparation and Canning of Foods, Garden Fruits and Potatoes, Farm Building and Home-making, Poultry and Dairy Industry, Silos and Forage Crops, Agricultural Report and Miscellaneous bulletins and Beef Cattle, Sheep and Hogs.

"It's a habit," they say, "this going to church."
Yes, but it's a good habit, a right habit. A good habit is an asset as much as a bad habit is a liability. If you have the asset, of this good habit don't risk losing it. For your own sake, for your family's sake, for your friends' sake, for the Master's sake, for the sake of a better town and a better world, don't lose this good habit. Sunday is God's day. It should be kept for the great things of the soul." From Church Management.

In spite of the roads being almost impassable and people not being able to get very far from home, there seems to be a spirit of optimism and thankfulness that we do not live in the flood stricken areas where so many are homeless.

Has Broken Hip.
Friends are very sorry to hear of the misfortune of Mrs. Charles Oak, a former resident of our community. Mrs. Oak fell at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Philip Wickstrom at Oakland, January 17 and suffered a broken hip. She had just returned from spending the holidays in California with two other daughters. As soon as the roads permit, she will be taken to West Point to the home of another daughter, Mrs. Don Conley, who is a graduate nurse.

Legislative News and Views

By J. F. HIERTZ

The Nebraska legislature, unique because it is the only one-house law-making body operating in the United States passed its initial bill as the third week of its existence neared a close, and that bill was one expending money. LB 10, providing for payment of employees, mileage of members, supplies and incidentals was the first law to make all the hurdles prescribed by the rules of the senate. It was history made, at 10 a. m. Thursday, January 22, the first bill by a unicameral legislature passed in the United States in more than a hundred years was accomplished. A few minutes later LB 12, a bill providing for payment of salaries to senators went over the 402 to 0. One senator was absent.

Although a bit sluggish because of the lack of color accompanying its inception, the one-house legislature of Nebraska is being watched with much interest by many states. At least five states have introduced one-house legislative bills and as many more are watching keenly the operation of the Nebraska experiment with an idea of following suit.

Nebraska has 43 senators and it is an even bet today that no more than 50 per cent of them have other political ambitions. Outstanding insofar as "build-up" are concerned are at least two, Charles Warner, of Lancaster county, legislator off and on since 1901, present speaker of the senate and republican and John N. Norton of Osceola, former congressman and chairman of the important rules committee, a democrat. There are many political-wise who today freely prognosticate that these two gentlemen will be candidates for governor, as time slips on. But one is not unmindful of the fact that at least three other members, some of whom are taking their first whirl in politics as members of the first unicameral legislature who may be heard from sooner or later for one of the responsible posts allotted Nebraskans in either the state or national scheme.

Drunken drivers or those who drive while under the influence of dope will be dealt with rather harshly, if and when Senators Strong of Gordon, and Gantz of Alliance, see their pet measure enacted into law. These gentlemen find, they claim, that the state statutes at present provide nothing in the way of punishment for offenses of this nature, and they propose to straighten out the matter by adding to the present law with certain penalties. The trial judge, under the bill introduced, shall have the order the driver not to operate a vehicle for one year for the first offense; 2 years for the second, and further provides that any person, whether intoxicated or not, driving a car in violation of the motor vehicle act, shall be deprived of driving for 2 years if his violation results in serious injury or death to person or persons and provides that drunk or doped drivers shall be ordered not to drive a car for 3 years if causing accidents resulting in serious injury or death.

Governor Cochran's budget message, delivered Monday, was up to the standard he had indicated it would be in press and radio releases before he went to Washington to the inauguration. Many state needs but a limited pocketbook with which to meet them, was the theme of the message. The apparent needs of the state are in excess of the ability of the people to pay, therefore, the budget requests, from whence come the mighty appropriation bill, are limited. Senators will over the printed copies provided them and action on the executive's recommendations will come later.

Nebraska's unemployment insurance law, coinciding with that of the federal government, is being drafted, and from information reaching the outside it is apparent it will include every employer of one or more persons under its provisions. The federal unemployment insurance plan includes only employers of 8 or more persons.

Barlow Nye, Kearney, appointed assistant attorney general by Richard Hunter, resigned as assistant U. S. district attorney, Lincoln. Fred G. Hawby of the Omaha office of the U. S. attorney's office replaced him.

Drastic changes in the insufficient check writing law proposed in a bill, LB 28, it would strike from the present law the provision the check was written with "intent to defraud" and provide, if the sum involved does not exceed $35, the offending party shall make two-fold restitution and pay a fine of $5 to $100 or be jailed for 90 days or both. Where the sum exceeds $35, penalties are fines from $100 to $5,000, and/or imprisonment not exceeding 7 years.

Files Damage Case In District Court

Seeks To Recover Amount For Accidental Death Of George Nelson.

Action to recover $30,000 damages for the death of George Nelson was filed in Cedar county district court at Hartington last week by Mrs. Opal Nelson, widow of deceased, against Frank Bauer of Mondovi, Wis. The Nelsons used to live near Carroll. Mrs. Nelson, formerly Mrs. Opal Darnell, is now with relatives at Winfield.

Mr. Nelson, who was employed by the Abel construction company at Laurel, was returning to his home near Randolph early the morning of August 27, 1926, when he was fatally injured. Mr. Nelson was crossing highway No. 20 at the intersection with one mile east of Randolph when Mr. Bauer's car struck him, causing Mr. Nelson to be thrown 60 feet and inflicting such injuries that he died within a short time.

The petition alleges that Bauer was driving at a fast and dangerous rate of speed, that he gave no signal and that he did not attempt to avoid striking Nelson.

The widow bases her claim for damages on loss to the estate to the extent of Mr. Nelson's earning capacity for the period of the life expectancy of one of his age.

George Nelson at the time of his death was 23 years of age.

Geo. Williams Passes Away At Home In Carroll On Last Friday.

George Williams, 61, resident of Carroll for about 35 years, died at his home here Friday afternoon. Funeral rites were conducted Monday afternoon at the Methodist church with Rev. R. L. Williams, Presbyterian minister, and the Brehner service in charge. Interment was in Carroll cemetery.

Mr. Williams was taken ill a week ago last Saturday with the flu. Miss Catherine Williams came from Norfolk to care for him.

George Williams was born in Carnarvon, Wales, and came to this country with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Williams, in 1866. The family located first at Omaha and came to a farm near Carroll in 1902. About 25 years ago deceased retired and moved into Carroll where he had resided since. Miss Catherine Williams lived with her brother most of the time. The past two years she had divided her time between Carroll and Norfolk.

Mr. Williams never married. He leaves one brother, Elias Williams of Hopewell, N. J., and two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Ward and Miss Catherine Williams of Norfolk. Mr. Williams arrived Monday by train for the rites. Miss Williams came by train when her brother was taken ill. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ward came from Norfolk Friday, making the trip by train to Wayne where Jerry Frahm of the railroad company met them by hand-car and brought them to Carroll. Both parents of Mr. Williams lived at Carroll until their death.

Mr. Williams was a member of the Presbyterian church and was a faithful Christian. He was a kind neighbor and friend. Only two weeks ago, after the late Jens Andersen suffered a stroke, Mr. Williams stayed with him each night to care for him.

The Brehners drove from Randolph for the funeral by way of Laurel and Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ward came from Norfolk Friday, making the trip by train to Wayne where Jerry Frahm of the railroad company met them by hand-car and brought them to Carroll. Both parents of Mr. Williams lived at Carroll until their death.

Mr. Williams was a member of the Presbyterian church and was a faithful Christian. He was a kind neighbor and friend. Only two weeks ago, after the late Jens Andersen suffered a stroke, Mr. Williams stayed with him each night to care for him.

The Brehners drove from Randolph for the funeral by way of Laurel and Wayne.

Young Matron Passes Sunday

Mrs. Wayne Williams Dies After Five Days' Illness At Home Here.

Mrs. Wayne Williams, 26, died Sunday afternoon at 3:30 at the Ward Williams home about four miles west of Carroll. A few days after the birth of a son January 10 Mrs. Williams contracted scarlet fever and had been seriously ill. The baby is doing well.

Roads were opened to the Williams home Saturday and to Wayne Sunday. The Hiseox service took the body to Wayne. Funeral rites were conducted and committal was in Bethany Presbyterian cemetery west of Carroll Tuesday.

Mrs. Williams' maiden name was Miss Clrella Patrick. She spent much of her early life at Pierce. For some time she was employed by the office of radio station WJAG at Norfolk and also by HOLA at Norfolk. Later she had a government position in Omaha. After her marriage last March to Wayne Williams the couple came to live near Carroll. They have been with Mr. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Williams.

Mrs. Williams is survived by her husband and infant son, Orlin Gale. She leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claire Patrick, three brothers, Claude, Darrell and Mel, and one sister, Deb, all of Fayette, Idaho. She is also survived by her grandparents, Mrs. Mary Hansen of Pierce, and Mrs. Patrick of Clearwater. Albert Hansen of Norfolk, and Emil H. Hansen of Pierce, are uncles.

Files Damage Case In District Court

Seeks To Recover Amount For Accidental Death Of George Nelson.

Action to recover $30,000 damages for the death of George Nelson was filed in Cedar county district court at Hartington last week by Mrs. Opal Nelson, widow of deceased, against Frank Bauer of Mondovi, Wis. The Nelsons used to live near Carroll. Mrs. Nelson, formerly Mrs. Opal Darnell, is now with relatives at Winfield.

Mr. Nelson, who was employed by the Abel construction company at Laurel, was returning to his home near Randolph early the morning of August 27, 1926, when he was fatally injured. Mr. Nelson was crossing highway No. 20 at the intersection with one mile east of Randolph when Mr. Bauer's car struck him, causing Mr. Nelson to be thrown 60 feet and inflicting such injuries that he died within a short time.

The petition alleges that Bauer was driving at a fast and dangerous rate of speed, that he gave no signal and that he did not attempt to avoid striking Nelson.

The widow bases her claim for damages on loss to the estate to the extent of Mr. Nelson's earning capacity for the period of the life expectancy of one of his age.

George Nelson at the time of his death was 23 years of age.

Geo. Williams Passes Away At Home In Carroll On Last Friday.

George Williams, 61, resident of Carroll for about 35 years, died at his home here Friday afternoon. Funeral rites were conducted Monday afternoon at the Methodist church with Rev. R. L. Williams, Presbyterian minister, and the Brehner service in charge. Interment was in Carroll cemetery.

Mr. Williams was taken ill a week ago last Saturday with the flu. Miss Catherine Williams came from Norfolk to care for him.

FATHER OF CARROLL Resident Is Dead

Jens Kvols, 82, father of Nick Kvols of northeast of Carroll, died at his home in Denmark this month. Nick Kvols left here in December to visit his father when he heard that he was ill. Mr. Kvols arrived in Denmark January 1 and spent 10 days with his father before the latter's death. Surviving are three sons in this country, Nick near Laurel, Maurice at Hawarden, Iowa, and Chris of Wisner, also two sons and two daughters in Denmark.

Carroll vicinity is again digging out of snowdrifts which were the result of last week's storm. Each week this month snow and wind have combined to close roads which were open the week before. The plow cleared the highway between Wayne and Carroll Sunday afternoon, and men are shoveling in all directions from town each day. The road was opened Saturday to the Ward Williams home where the late Mrs. Wayne Williams was critically ill. Much travel is through fields, and many have found walking the surest way.

Rethwisch Couple Visiting In West

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Rethwisch, bridal couple who are visiting in the west, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Rethwisch of Bellflower, Calif., to Long Beach, Calif., January 16 to visit Miss Laura E. Lyons. This is the first time Mr. and Mrs. Hans Rethwisch have been on the west coast and Miss Lyons writes that they are greatly interested in the sights. With Miss Lyons they enjoyed seeing the municipal market which is held each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning. Booths stand close together as possible for three blocks along two sides of Lincoln park and all kinds of food commodities are available.

A slight tremor was reported January 15 in Long Beach, though no damage was done. San Pedro was the scene of the disturbance.

Miss Lyons reports weather cold and lots of rain in southern California. Snow caps the mountains.

General Motors' Workers Protest Enforced Idleness

A committee of workers in the Chevrolet plant at Muncie, Ind., call on the plant manager, Fred Skusa, with an appeal from every one of the 1,500 employees for restoration of their jobs. The plant was forced to close due to strikes in other General Motors plants.

CONGRESS AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

Fritz Krueger, formerly of Fremont, Nebraska, and a graduate of Midland college, recently appeared in a concert here as a member of the Philadelphia Symphony Company. Fritz won a scholarship and studied abroad for a year, returning to the United States recently, and is now making personal appearances in many of the larger cities. He has an exceptionally fine baritone voice.

Plans are under way to introduce in the house a bill to have the government give strict inspection of canned dog food. It is stated here that about 30 percent of this canned dog food is bought for human consumption. Much of it is said to contain cheap meats from Argentina and a lot of it is horse meat. But one great objection is the charge that much of it contains rats, mice and other inedible and questionable material.

Congressman William Lemke who was the union party candidate for president tells friends he was not disappointed that he was not elected president of the United States. He says he ran because of "principle."

Announcement that Sunday mail service is to be resumed on the Oakdale-Scribner branch was good news to this office. We were glad to contact the Washington authorities regarding this matter and we hope that the new service will prove satisfactory. We know that it will fill a real need.

Believe it or not the "time" element is an important thing in this town of disappointments and sorrow. There are many members on various committees who openly state that some day they will become chairmen of these committees because the "ranking member" is old and may soon pass on. Disregard of human kindness is noticed in some of this talk. Members who have the title of "honorable" frequently explain why they are remaining on some committees because "so and so is chairman or ranking member and may not live very long." The same references are being made to members of the Supreme Court whose death because of advanced age would give an opening to the appointment of somebody who may interpret parts of the constitution to fit what his bosses believe is the new and proper thing.

The meals in the house restaurant have gone up 25 percent. In fact because "good times are back again," everything seems to have gone up in price in Washington. The house restaurant has been made sound proof.

Making Ransom A Crime. Sioux City Journal: The bill pressed in the senate by Senator Ashurst to make the payment of ransom a federal crime, in the hope of putting an end to kidnapping by removing the motive would not achieve the end sought. Which is not to say that it would be ineffective in controlling the incidence of the crime. It probably would go far as a law to discourage kidnappers and thus reduce their depredations.

Kidnaping, however, is a crime different from all others known to humanity. Relatives of the victim are hopeful of recovering the person abducted. Their anguish becomes great, overpowering, until they are willing to go to any length to save the life of the victim. Many persons whose financial responsibility was great have sacrificed large sums of money to purchase from the kidnaper the freedom of the victim. Ransom has run as high in this country as $200,000 and has been paid for release of kidnaped persons.

It is certain that if the Ashurst measure became law it would be violated, regardless of the penal ture higher on sides than in the middle. Beat 4 egg whites stiff, add 1-8 teaspoon cream of tartar and beat well, then beat in 1 cup of sugar. Spread evenly on the top of the 2 layers of batter. Bake in a slow oven for 25 minutes, then increase heat and bake 20 minutes longer. Cool and put fresh strawberries combined lightly with plain whipped cream between the layers. Serve out in wedges. Whipped cream sweetened and flavored with 3 tablespoons confectioners sugar and a few drops of almond extract or mock Devonshire cream made by adding 2-3 cup heavy cream to a 4-ounce package of cream cheese may be used with the strawberries instead of the plain whipped cream if desired.

Creole Shrimp With Rice. 2 tablespoons shortening 1 chopped green pepper 1 cup celery 2 tablespoons minced onion 2 cats shrimp 2 bags canned tomatoes 2 bay leaves 2 whole cloves Salt and pepper to taste 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Melt the shortening in a sauce pan and add the green pepper, celery and onion and cook until soft. Add tomatoes, bay leaves and whole cloves and cook until sauce is thick. Remove bay leaves and cloves and add shrimp. Worcestershire sauce and salt and pepper to taste. Cook until shrimps are heated through and serve in a ring of cooked rice.

Marinated Broiled Salmon. 1-4 cup olive oil 2 tablespoons lemon juice 1-2 teaspoon salt Dash of pepper Dash of cayenne Marinate fresh salmon steaks for one hour. Broil first on one side then on the other until just done through. Asparagus and crisply dried shoe string or French fried potatoes with cucumbers in sour cream make a perfect meal.

Masked Fish Fillets. Place 1 pound boned fish fillets on a buttered baking platter. Cover with a mixture of 1 cup finely chopped spinach, 1 quarter cup chopped spring onions, 2 tablespoons minced parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Surround the fish with seasoned slices of raw tomato. Sprinkle both fish and tomato with crumbs, dot with butter and bake in a quick oven till tender—about 20 minutes—be sure not to overcook this dish.

Berry Jumble. 1 quart strawberries 1 1-3 cups sugar 1-4 cup water 1 cup flour 1 teaspoon baking powder Few grains salt 2 tablespoons shortening 1-3 cup milk. Wash, hull strawberries, halve them. Put into a broad based saucepan; add 1 cup sugar and the water, bring to the boiling point. Mix flour and remaining 1-3 cup sugar, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening with knives. Add milk; stir until blended. Drop rounding teaspoonsful on strawberry mixture. Cover tightly; cook slowly 20 minutes without removing cover. Serve at once.

Fish Mochie. Flake into pieces suitable for serving 1-2 cup crabmeat and 1-2 cup lobster and combine with these 1-2 cup whole shrimp. In a chafing dish melt 3 tablespoons of butter, add 2 tablespoons of flour and simmer to a smooth paste. Then slowly stir in 1 cup of milk and cook till thick. Beat 2 eggs and add them to 1-2 cup of milk, then add this mixture carefully to the sauce in the chafing dish. When thick stir in 1-2 cup mushrooms, 1 small pimento cut in strips, the fish, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon each of white pepper and paprika, a dash of mace and 3 grains of cayenne. Cook until the mixture is thoroughly heated, then add 3 tablespoons of cooking sherry. Serve at once on toasted crackers.

Strawberry Torte. Sift 1 and 1-3 cups of flour with 1 and 1-3 teaspoons baking powder. Work 1-2 cup shortening until soft, add 1-2 cup sugar and beat until fluffy. Add 4 egg yolks one at a time, beating briskly after each addition. Then add alternately the flour and 5 tablespoons of milk. Stir in 1-2 teaspoon almond flavoring. Spread in two 8-inch layer cake pans lined with wax paper and oiled, having mix-
