Senator NEW Deal leaders should try to forgive those who think independently and sometimes contrarily, for only in freedom of thought and expression can we hope to perpetuate democratic institutions.

Senator Carter Glass Lynchburg, Va., newspaper asks this question which has been on the lips of many others in the last few weeks:

"After four years of almost unlimited power for one man over the legislative and executive departments of the government, the only result is to increase the gravity of the crisis, in what state will we be after four years of almost unlimited power over all branches of our government?"

"The Lynchburg paper might also have asked what has happened between last October when President Roosevelt was giving such a rosy account of conditions, and now to precipitate a crisis that can be met only by giving the president unprecedented powers over the courts."

"And if something has happened since election to precipitate such a crisis, who is responsible? If such a situation has developed under an administration with wide powers, would it be well to give the same administration still more powers?"

Wallace IN speaking for the president's proposed change in the supreme court to make its rulings more responsive to New Deal policies, Secretary Wallace suggested that the course of government should be left to the president and congress.

The secretary charges that the "interests" are against the president's proposed court change. Just who are loosely labeled "the interests?" Are they the ones who are dependent on to give employment and bring back prosperity and at the same time submit to burdensome taxes and obstructive legislation?

A report from Moscow quotes an article in the Communist Internationale magazine congratulating communists over their successful work in stirring up the strike against the General Motors company in the United States.

share of credit to the American communist party and its publication, The Daily Worker. The voice of Russia acclaiming communist leadership in disrupting the American economic order gives proof of evil influences at work in this country.

Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, is quoted as saying this in regard to raising wages and prices: "Increased wages and shorter hours when they limit or actually reduce production are not at this time in the interest of the public in general or in the real interest of the workers themselves."

We feel the need of a contraption to add to the wastebasket, having a powerful centrifugal force to catch all forms of propaganda flung in its direction. We find difficulty in hitting the top of the basket unless the article thrown is an exceptionally heavy legal document or an especially ponderous governmental dissertation.

The passing of Eben Brown, senior member of the Brown-McDonald Company, one of whose stores is located in Wayne, is a source of profound regret to persons who had the good fortune to know him.

The blanket of snow followed by a drizzling rain took the wind out of the sails of the pessimist who had consigned this country to a desert waste and had been hanging on by very thin and feeble strands of hope.

An appalling sacrifice of school children was the gas explosion at New London, Texas, and the cause, though still not definitely fixed, reflects inexcusable laxity in handling the secretly, unlawfully and negligently appropriated residue of the oil fields to save fuel costs.

The assumption that President Roosevelt would not abuse unusual power, but that a successor might do so, suggests the wisdom of withholding temptation that could lead in that direction. It is doubtful if the president is more self-repressive than others later to be called to executive leadership.

We would say that anyone who can enjoy a bull fight as described by Samuel McKelvie in his Nebraska Farmer is sadly lacking in fine qualities of civilization. McKelvie concludes: "It was the most cruelly inhuman spectacle, the most unsportsmanlike thing I ever have seen."

Like a rose that would smell as sweet by any other name, so a dictatorship would be just as abhorrent to the American sense of liberty whether carried on under fascism or communism.

Defying the statutes and courts, Detroit would seem no place to be in for anyone who expects protection in lawful and orderly pursuits.

Lifting the morale of the country to prevent crimes is quite as important as hunting down and punishing those who commit crimes.

Speaking of the moisture and green fields, the Omaha Journal-Stockman says "the whole picture has a most encouraging look."

We want to see this country kept free for the poor boy to earn his way to any height.

Projects Of Work Showing Progress

Terracing of the open air theatre and grading of the football field east of the industrial building are going forward at the college with WPA workers in charge. Sheds for the state equipment are up and sheeting is being placed on the roof.

Wayne City Library News

A new book for Easter reading was received at the library this week. "Victorious Living" by E. Stanley Jones is a book of daily devotion, its theme being the fullness of life and its daily cultivation.

"Adventure for Happiness" by S. Parkes Cadman, another Easter reading book discusses happiness, its possibilities, various interpretations, religion, social service, domestic life and government.

Two new children's books have been received the past week: "Up Creek and Down Creek" by Esther Greenow Hall, and "Henner's Lydia" by Marguerite de Angeli.

Mrs. E. S. Blair, librarian, announces the following hours as the time when the library is open. They are: 2 to 5 o'clock every day but Sunday and Monday and 7 to 9 o'clock, each day except Sunday.

Several new stereoscopic views for the children's desk have been added. Most of them are geographic views and several are of the World's Fair and different countries. Mrs. C. Quinn of O'Neill, is spending a few days with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Verzal.

Nebraska drought counties will probably be relieved with the culmination of the campaign to sensitize the "powers that be" in Washington to the fact that the suffering in the third district in Nebraska, as the result of the crop failure, is as bad or worse than the suffering caused by the recent floods in the Ohio-Mississippi valley.

The third congressional office made it possible to call meetings of the Prairie States Group, where a sub-committee was selected to see the Secretary of Agriculture and also the president himself to whom arguments for the needy farmers in the drought counties were presented.

The general impression gained by members of Congress from discussion with department chiefs is that the relief question will continue to be the big question in congress for years to come. Conversations with these chiefs indicate that they feel that the relief program will be made permanent in our future government set-up.

For a month now, the commercial club and other business organizations have been carrying on a big publicity campaign about the Japanese cherry blossoms here. They will bloom in the spring-time and remain in blossom about two weeks. From now on folks at home will be reading in the newspapers and magazines the stories of these blossoms.

The supreme court fight continues to overshadow everything in Washington. Crowds of women and men jam into the supreme court building to get a glimpse at the nine justices. Crowds jam into the senate committee room to listen to the hearings on the president's supreme court bill.

Examinations for eighth graders of Wayne county rural schools will be given April 20 and 21 at Wayne, Winslow, Hoskins, Carroll and Sholes.

As the result of a poll recently taken to sound out editorial opinions touching the president's proposed supreme court change, the Publishers' Auxiliary reports 1,314 for and 3,830 against the proposition. For a constitutional amendment to enlarge the court, 736 voted yes and 3,336 voted no.

Conspicuous in the word for the number of foreign diplomats and foreign business men in Washington today. Old time members say there are as many of these foreigners in the nation's capital today as there were during the war.

Most noticed are the Central and South American people. One whole floor in a big hotel here is taken up by delegations from one central American market. Some are here regarding tariffs. Some are here to discuss boundary lines but there are some who agree that there is something bigger in the wind.

Deeds To Property Are Recorded Here Property deeds recorded in Wayne county the past week include the following: Sheriff of Wayne county to National Life Insurance Co., March 17 for $12,488.60, NE 1-4 of 22-25-3.

The general impression gained by members of Congress from discussion with department chiefs is that the relief question will continue to be the big question in congress for years to come.

Believing that this situation has now been solved, several members of congress are working on farm legislation and giving their attention to backing a bill to provide funds for the eradication of noxious weeds, especially bind-weed, which is and has been doing much damage to Nebraska farm land.

Nebraskans Present Need for Aid. Among the Nebraska delegation here on the feed and seed question were Everett Wight, state secretary of the Nebraska Farm Bureau; W. H. Brokaw of the Nebraska Agricultural college; E. W. Rossiter of Hartington and Prof. Gramlich, also of the Nebraska College of Agriculture.

Both Parties File New Trial Motions. Motions for new trial were filed in district court by both plaintiff and defendant in the action in which C. H. Hendrickson seeks $18,450 from the John T. Bressler estate. County court allowed Hendrickson $450, and district court last week allowed him $4,310.80.

Examinations for eighth graders of Wayne county rural schools will be given April 20 and 21 at Wayne, Winslow, Hoskins, Carroll and Sholes.

The Six Hour Day. Achenison (Kan.) Globe. We all desire all we can get in the way of pay. But aren't we a bit unreasonable when we ask for an increase of pay and a six-hour day at the same time? Surely, it is not dishonorable to suggest that the proposed six-hour day, apparently will not only hamper the worker because it will increase his cost of living—he is a consumer as well as a worker. We have an idea that industry is willing to pay substantially for an hour's work. It should be willing. But if the worker works only six hours a day, industry will have to put additional shifts to work. The cost of the additional shifts will go right down to the consumer. No doubt about that. It is estimated that the six-hour day would cost one certain branch of industry $630,000,000 a year. Of course, that cost eventually would be absorbed by the general public. The workers are a part of the general public.

My Wife and I were amazed to discover that our Telephone actually saved us $5.40 last month! Says A Telephone Customer Here's what one new telephone customer said—after checking on telephone service for one month: "My wife and I always knew that the telephone was a tremendous convenience but I was amazed to find it actually saved us $5.40 last month. We made 5 1/2 calls and each one represented a saving in time as well as money." The cost of telephone service is one of the smallest items in the budget—only a few cents a day. It more than pays for itself in trips saved to say nothing of the enjoyment it brings in keeping in touch with friends.
