Seeking Damages In Car Accident

Clarence Conger Defendant In Suit Filed In Behalf Of Wilma Jones.

Action seeking $10,000 damages was filed in district court this week against Clarence Conger by Russell Bartels, attorney for Wilma Jones, daughter of John R. Jones.

The case grew out of an accident October 14, 1936. Miss Wilma Jones was going north across the west side of the intersection at 5th and Main when the Conger car came from the south and turned west.

In the action the plaintiff alleges that she was permanently disabled and lost time from her schooling.

MOTHER WELFARE NEEDS ATTENTION

Omaha Doctor Gives Address In Instructional Series Sponsored Here.

"Every community must secure for every child full preparation for his birth, his mother receiving prenatal, natal and post natal care, and the establishment of such protective measures as will make childbearing safer," stated Dr. Earl C. Sage of Omaha.

Dr. Sage, in addressing women at a meeting sponsored by the Nebraska Medical society Monday afternoon at the auditorium.

About 50 attended the program at which Mrs. P. L. Briggs presided.

Six out of every 1,000 mothers having babies in the United States do not live, Dr. Sage began.

In Nebraska the maternal death rate was 5.46 per 1,000 live births in 1934 and 5.72 in 1935.

Medical science and research has reduced this to one in 1,000.

Women having adequate prenatal care have three times as good a chance to survive as mothers not receiving such care.

Abortion ranks as one of the foremost problems. Deaths from abortions are seven times greater than those of confinement.

Dr. Sage, intentional or induced abortions, embarked on by reason of ignorance or despair.

Dr. Sage mentioned the three greatest dangers as: First, childbed fever or puerperal sepsis; second, the toxemias of pregnancy; and third, hemorrhage.

It is estimated that 10,000 of the 16,000 mothers who each year die from childbirth are sacrificed at the altar of ignorance and false economy.

Inasmuch as this loss of life is a problem for the general public to appreciate it becomes evident that each community should take it upon itself to study and work out means for dissemination of information.

OMAHA BAPTIST PASTOR SPEAKS

Kiwansians Entertain Monday At Annual Ladies' Night Banquet-Program.

In addressing Kiwansians and guests on the subject of "Tickets Please" Monday evening following dinner at Hotel Stratton, Dr. Charles Durden, Omaha Baptist minister, stressed the necessity for all to learn that they "must pay their own way."

In introducing his subject, Dr. Durden told of a man with whom he was visiting on the train when the conductor came for tickets.

The man could not find his ticket and Dr. Durden wondered if the friend would be thrown off the train if he could not locate it.

Dr. Durden saw the man's ticket in his hat and the conductor was satisfied that he was paying his way.

"Are you paying your way?" asked Dr. Durden. Every community has hoboos of society who take all that comes their way but never think of doing their part.

Old and young, who are just as good as in any generation, are traveling on someone else's ticket.

Honor in a name is only made by accomplishment. The man by the name of Lincoln who was tried for murder degraded the name.

It was the deeds of the statesman, Abraham Lincoln, that made the name live.

Society has one class that travels on half-price tickets. These people never grow up to assume their share of responsibility.

"You must put forth effort to attain the things you want."

Dr. Durden complimented the "wheelhorse" of society. These are the men and women who get behind every forward movement and help push it forward.

Most people get tired in concluding things, he added. They quit before they finish.

America's native sons have made no choice in living here, but foreigners who come to America have chosen discrimination.

They made a choice between their native land and the nation offering the greatest opportunity in the world.

Foreign nations train for war, while Americans fight only when they have to. It was the marvelous American initiative that decided the World war.

"We are the greatest group of starters and stoppers ever known," continued Dr. Durden. "Can you stick to a job until it is done?"

Edison did and accomplished wonders. Webster put 25 years into his dictionary. Others who succeed have put themselves wholeheartedly.

Mr. Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. Thill, who came here last week, accompanied Mrs. J. B. West, Mr. and Mrs. George West and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Dolph to Cherokee, Iowa, Tuesday.

Mrs. West and Mrs. Dolph remained for a few days in the home of Mrs. Walker at Cherokee.

Mr. West had been ill about three months and had undergone two operations.

BOSTON COURT OF APPEALS ANNALS SOCIAL SECURITY

ON THE ground of infringing on state's rights, the federal circuit court of appeals at Boston last week declared the social security act unconstitutional.

Both the unemployment insurance and old age assistance provisions were included in the decision. Now the law is up to the United States supreme court, and if that high tribunal follows the lead of the court of appeals, the law will be relegated to the scrap heap, greatly to the relief of many employers and employees.

In the meantime, the law will function. One branch of the social security act—the one providing for unemployment insurance—discriminates against the employer of eight or more employees.

He may gain less net reward, though clearly doing more for the cause of employment, than the fellow who has fewer employees. This provision is so evidently discriminatory and unfair that it would seem it would figure in support of an adverse court ruling.

Help to employees is so remote, if not uncertain, that the prospect does not ease the operating burden.

RABBI SPEAKER AT CONVOCATION

Isms Of European Forms Of Government Dangerous To Follow.

"There is fundamentally no difference between fascism, communism and nazism," remarked David A. Goldstein, rabbi of the Bethel Synagogue of Omaha, in an address at the Wayne State Teachers college convocation Wednesday morning.

He explained that the dictators rule by use of propaganda, in which all opinions are forbidden except in favor of the power and terror, in which all three countries—Germany, Italy and Russia, use the same method of terrorizing their people.

The philosophy of the three countries, according to the speaker, is approximately the same. The state can do no wrong; it is God. Since the state is everything, citizens are subjects of the government, and they are crushed unless they conform to the dictatorship of the government.

In direct contrast to that type of rule is the government of America. Mr. Goldstein compared United States government to that of the three countries. United States has propaganda, but all sides and issues are given and free speech prevails. The people have no terror as they are protected by the Bill of Rights and cannot be deprived of their liberties.

"We are not subjects of the government but citizens, and the president is employed by the people as the vote of the people put him in power," remarked the speaker.

"What kind of heroes do such systems produce?" asked Mr. Goldstein. He showed how they do not compare with Washington and Lincoln. "Every revolution is usually followed by a dictator except in America where Washington refused to become a dictator or to be made a king.

When the two terms of Washington's presidency were over he declined the position for the third term setting up a precedent in which other people's talents are used. Lincoln also is a great figure in American government.

The speaker used six outstanding figures as typical Americans in contrast to the European leaders of today. The first he mentioned was Michael Pupin, a Slav who came to this country and commented on the fair treatment he received in this country. Mr. Pupin became one of the most outstanding inventors following Thomas Edison.

Richard Harrison, a negro actor, who played the part of God, in Green Pastures; Oliver Wendell Holmes, a New England Yankee, who served as judge of the supreme court and knew the value of American civil liberties; Adolph (Continued on page seven)

RETURNS TO WORK AFTER AN ILLNESS

Treasurer J. J. Steele was back in his office Tuesday after his recent illness.

Big Pear Surplus Pushes Price Down

Information from the Pacific Coast Canning Pear Stabilization committee reports large shipments of canned pears into the retail markets of the country. Over the surplus of stocks carried over the 1936 crop pears have been the weakest spot on the canned fruit list. This has made them comparatively attractive in price and the carry-over is now being moved into consumers' hands to make way for the 1937 crop.

Safeway Stores and others are lending a hand in the movement of this surplus of pears for the benefit of the growers and customers alike and will feature pears and other canned fruits in advance of the summer season of fresh fruits.

Facts in regard to the canned pear situation, submitted by the stabilization committee included the following statements: There was a Pacific coast carry-over of one million cases on June 1 last; the 1936 pack was in excess of five million cases, nearly a million cases above the average for a five year period; export sales last fall fell off about 300,000 cases; all shipments were seriously affected by the maritime strike; present canned pear stocks are estimated at over 3,000,000 cases, fifty percent above normal.

The agricultural committee of the National Association of Food Chains of which Safeway is a member, recently approved a national sales campaign on canned pears. John A. Logan, executive vice president of the organization, promised the cooperation of 37,000 retail stores, located in all of the 48 states. They hope to sell at least one extra can of pears to 48,000,000 families during the coming month.

Congress Marks Time While The Supreme Court Issue Is Debated.

Never before has there been so much interest shown in the activities of the various government agencies as today. The crowds of visitors to the nation's capitol are augmenting their sightseeing to historical places by making these regular tourists trips short in order to visit the Senate and House galleries and the Supreme Court. Long lines of visitors wait daily in the corridors to get their few minutes' time in the galleries to listen to debates on momentous questions.

Members of the Senate and the House seem to suddenly realize that the rest of the great population is taking a real interest in Lincoln The Inventor.

Many arguments regarding American history can be settled at a minute's notice, through the experts who are employed in the Congressional Library. Two arguments were settled in this way recently, when the question of Fulton, the steamship inventor, was brought up. It developed that very few people know that Abraham Lincoln, the great emancipator, was an inventor. It was learned at the Congressional Library that in 1849 Lincoln invented a paddle wheel for the purpose of removing ships from sandbars. This invention was conducive to navigation in the days of Lincoln, and, believe it or not, Abraham Lincoln secured a patent on that paddlewheel.

Typewriter Makes American Women Independent.

Believe it or not, Mark Twain, the author, was the first person to use a typewriter machine. The inventor of the typewriter was Christopher Latham Sholes, who invented the machine 65 years ago, and it was this machine which was turned over to Mark Twain.

In Washington there are 50 to 60 percent more women than men. At 4:30 every afternoon thousands of these women pour from gigantic office buildings and 90 percent of these women make their living as stenographers and typists, which indicates that the machine that Christopher Latham Sholes invented and which was first used by Mark Twain, has made the American woman independent as far as earning a livelihood is concerned.

Rose War.

The tourist season is on in full force in Washington. The magnolias, cherry blossoms and other flowers are out in full bloom. Florists have been having a "rose war" during the past week. Prices on one day went down to five cents a dozen for roses in this price-war by these flower merchants. As a result nearly everybody was buying cut flowers.

Kansas whose district borders Falls City, tells his colleagues that his next vacation may be spent in the Elkhorn valley. The Kansas Congressman has relatives living at Neligh and Oakdale, among them being Clifford Ray of Neligh.

Likes Nebraska Best.

Herbert Blank of Norfolk, called at the Congressional office to read the home town newspapers. He is working in one of the departments and has been here nine months and doesn't like Washington. Like many other Nebraska young men he is loyal enough to Nebraska to admit he is lonesome for his home town. Blank is related to "John Blank of Norfolk who was the father of the late "Buddy" Blank, mascot of the Norfolk state league baseball team.

Washington Is Cocktail Crazy.

This beautiful city is cocktail crazy. Society people are vying with each other as to how potent and how many different cocktails they can serve their guests at the daily cocktail hour. American government manufactured rum from the Virgin Islands figures in a lot of the now fangled headache makers. Gaily dressed old men and old women, young men and young women, swarm into hotels at 5 o'clock and "crash" the "teas" of diplomats and prominent people to imbibe their daily portions of potent liquids.

The society writers of the daily newspapers here encourage a lot of this drinking as is shown in the following item which appeared on the society page of a great Washington daily describing one of many afternoon gatherings:

"Marvelous food with Boston baked beans cooked in sherry and champagne, cocktails with potent punch and whiskey and soda."

A lot of these society madmen people say they "have to have the potent pick-me-up drinks" at 5 o'clock to stimulate them so they can stand the strain of the evening and night dinners and entertainments. Of course, everybody doesn't do this in Washington. A lot of people still walk to get exercise before the evening supper. A lot of them play baseball, golf and work up a natural appetite for supper in the normal way. But, generally, society people in Washington have to fall in line with the Joneses and there's something about strong drinks which they claim "makes for better fellowship and makes people talk to each other." Some folks here admit that a lot of political differences are settled at some of these gatherings. Sometimes strong drink has been the lobbyist's best friend.

President's Court Proposal Has Majority in House—That's Reason For Senate Fight.

Many questions have come to the Congressional office regarding the supreme court bill. Most of these questions ask when and if the House will ever get the bill. The answer to that is that the House Committee has the bill but has done nothing about it and probably will do nothing about it until the Senate committee which is holding hearings has finished its job. If the bill is reported out by the Senate committee, the House judiciary committee will undoubtedly hold brief hearings.

Strong pressure from the states is being brought on members on both sides of the capitol on this measure. While the Senate committee is holding hearings, the measure is being tried in the Court of Public Opinion. Members on both sides give daily interviews to newspapers and magazines and give frequent talks over the radio on this important subject.

Questions are asked if the measure would pass the House. In answer to that, it can be said that one member who has taken a poll of the House, states that up to date 184 members have signified that they would vote against it. If this poll is complete it would indicate that the majority of the House would vote for the president's bill. That is partly the reason on so much of the fight is centered on the Senate side today. It all depends on what the Senate does. If the Senate passes the bill, providing the committee reports it out—the legislation would also pass the lower house.

CONGRESS. FEAR 'SIT DOWN' STRIKES. Speaking of 'sit down' strikes a man who went through the Russian revolution has sent this statement to each member of Congress: 'The American people do not yet realize that they are in the first stage of revolution. Yet all experience shows that the seizure of private property by lawless hands before whom the government stands impotent is the first major battle in the destruction of any government.' The statement was discussed with great interest among members just before they were asked to act on a resolution to outlaw sit-down strikes.

Foolish Demand WITH sang-froid that does credit to bravest generalship, but with inconsistency that screams to highest heaven, Dan V. Stephens, Fremont banker and former congressman, demands the resignation of Senator Edward R. Burke on the ground that he has opposed administration policies—notably of late, the move to change the supreme court. Stephens charges that Burke stumped the state for Roosevelt, and later did not follow him. Refusing to trot behind the president as the latter switched away from campaign pledges—refusing to rubber stamp a course contrary to the democratic platform and to traditional democratic principles—refusing to become an obsequious sycophant to a strange and unexpected administration program, he is asked to quit and get out.

Just who is a consistent upholder of party principles—Burke or the president? Who forsook the declared principles of the democratic party—Burke or the president? Why should Stephens assume that Burke is out of accord with Nebraska and ought to resign? Senator Burke is a more reliable statesman—a safer leader of Nebraska people and a sounder interpreter of Nebraska needs than a house or senate member who is a mere administration puppet responding to the string-pulling of Washington's inner circle.

Of course Senator Burke will not resign. He is needed right where he is, and he deserves the state's popular support for having had the courage to act according to convictions and in harmony with what he believes is the public interest.

The easy entrance to but difficult exit from Plattsmouth, Neb., aided Homer Sylvester, sheriff, and his brother, Cass, deputy sheriff, to capture two bad gangsters wanted in New York for robbing a bank and in Kansas City for shooting Federal Agent W. W. Baker who later died. The two country officers went about the task of getting the criminals without any flourish, and their plan was so quietly and quickly executed that not one shot was fired. A closed street stopped the fleeing pair. The two Nebraska officers are receiving deserved congratulations from all parts of the country.

The brief note to congressmen, included in Congressman Karl Stefan's column this week, and warning against dangers involved in permitting forcible possession of private property, should awaken the two houses to a more determined defense of America's rights and liberties. The sit-down strikes, notably allowed in Michigan contrary to court orders, and clearly trespassing on property rights, have constituted an alarming surrender of American fundamentals, and it is disturbing to note that the federal government does not interfere in the absence of adequate local control.

Freedom of expression was jolted last week in Kansas where censorship ruled out of a newsreel a sixty-six word speech by United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana democrat, who attacked President Roosevelt's court plan. Censors said the speech was "partisan and biased." In report, it may be charged that suppressing one side of a serious controversy is also "partisan and biased." Voices upholding the president's contention have been granted abundant freedom. To have an awakened and intelligent electorate, knowledge touching vital public questions must not be abridged.

While areas in every direction had been receiving ample contributions of moisture, this section seemed to have been overlooked until this week. As a matter of fact, April does not usually supply much rainfall. But recollection of drouth made people uneasy. They were growing nervous and fearful. When the rains came their spirits lifted. Confidence was renewed. And with plenty of moisture in remotely outlying territory, it will prevent damaging heat onslaughts later. Moisture elsewhere will prevent hot winds and dust storms. Prospect for a normal crop year generally is reassuring.

When farmers ask for government seed loans they are not asking for donations, and seed concessions are more important to the future of agriculture than any other farm program. If normal crops are raised, the government will be repaid. If by some unexpected calamity, crops should fail and repayment should be impossible, government losses would be no greater than in other fields where federal cash has been circulated. Running the risk of making seed loans would seem the wisest sort of action in rehabilitating agriculture.

Last week one member of the state legislature wanted to junk all the remaining bills on which action had not been taken in order to quit and go home. He wanted to see the cows in green pastures and the boys in society frisking at their sides; he dreamed of plowing and planting, and getting ready for luxuriant growth and an abundant harvest. He was getting homesick, and we do not blame him, though he and others should have anticipated home calls and settled down to business earlier in the session.

President Roosevelt's latest message to congress urging curtailed expenditures in the interest of a balanced budget, will meet the approval of all who believe national economy is the way to safety and healthy recovery. It is recalled that the president allowed too much wasteful spending in the past, thus contributing often unnecessarily to the present formidable indebtedness. Curbing the spending habit should have started earlier, but it is better now than later.

Dr. Charles Durden, Omaha Baptist minister, gave an excellent address before Kiwanians and guests Monday night. When he told about school boards hiring a leader and then taking over the job of leadership, he tactfully excluded modern boards by describing their menu-decorated whiskers. Modern boards do not try to grow whiskers.

If John L. Lewis is grooming himself to become a dictator on a larger scale than that permitted by the labor unions, he ought to keep his picture out of the public prints. If he is as formidable as he looks, he would arouse a lot of terrorized opposition that might otherwise be avoided.

Nature is a wise old bird. But for its provision of self-conceit, one could hardly escape nervous collapse while contemplating the infinite number of things he doesn't know.

More leaders like Premier Mitchell Hepburn and Henry Ford are needed to resist elements of disorder and restore peace to the ranks of industry and labor.

A fellow who has never worked, must feel relieved when he gets too old to work, and old age is accepted as a valid excuse for idleness.

April 17 was an important day for Nebraska dogs. The legislature turned down a bill to legalize parimutuel betting on dog races.

Wayne will be host to the state art convention this week and the state university women's meeting next week.

Red Tape For Business.
 Norfolk Daily News: In his column today, Boake Carter discusses in a national way a legislative trend on which Editor and Senator E. M. Von Seggern commented last week in his West Point Republican. Both, looking over the tendency to put business groups, one by one, under the rule of boards or commissions, reach the conclusion that before long business and industry will be commission-ruled to the detriment of business, and the expense will be charged up to the people.

Governor Cochran has just signed the bill putting morticians under regulation. It is one of several relating to different businesses. Senator Von Seggern calls them "strictly NRA measures," and points out that three of them have been passed under pressure from organized groups, and several others are pending. "When all classes have the special privileged legislation they want," he says, "it would have been better in the first place to have had none because doing business would have been so much simpler."

Incidentally, it seems to some onlookers that this unicameral legislature is more subject to pressure from organized groups than even the old two-house body, this judgment being reached by noting not only the bills it passes, but also the bills it kills.

Mr. Carter thinks these special group bills are leading us toward state socialism and offers them as evidence "we have gone business-control crazy."

"Eventually," he writes in his column, "if business continues to run to the government squealing for protection against competition and the government continues to knuckle to the demands—not a sale will be made, nor a single product will move in America without somewhere along the line, permission or authority from some board or commission by virtue of some law."

At that point, he goes on, state capitalism will come in as the American brand of ism.

When the legislator watching the legislative wheels go round from the inside and the national commentator, looking on from the outside, agree as to what is ahead in the way of business regulation, and the effect it will have, the time has come to stop and think.

Do we want to entangle business and industry in the red tape of multiple boards and commissions, in order to escape the stimulating effects of competition?

If we eventually do that aren't we getting ourselves into more trouble than we are getting out of?

Uncertain Unemployment.
 Omaha Journal-Stockman: It seems they are still arguing over the volume of unemployment in this country and all attempts to secure a reliable estimate from federal departments have been unavailing. Private sources place the number of people out of work at between 8 and 11 million, most trustworthy reports giving an estimate of about 9 million. This is very unsatisfactory from every point of view, but perhaps the exact or even the approximate extent of enforced idleness is unimportant. The main thing is to increase the number of jobs, to provide more work, to decrease idleness and most of all, to increase consumption. That is the feature of the situation in which live stock producers are most interested.

SATISFACTION.
 Perhaps the impenetrable mysteries enveloping understanding intensely efforts to prolong life. If the prospect were definitely revealed and if disembodied entities were known to progress in harmony with highest mortal expectations, there would be less resistance to going, and that would seriously interfere with the earth's plan of development. Concealing facts suggests fitting realization more tempting and satisfying than the most sanguine believer could anticipate. If this idea is worth anything, it may be added to the considerable train of supporting circumstantial evidence. John Fiske, American philosopher whose death occurred in 1901, said this: "I believe in the immortality of the soul, not in the sense in which I accept the demonstrable truths of science, but as a supreme act of faith in the reasonableness of God's work." Whatever may be one's church affiliation or religious belief, the inquiring mind is bound to gather some satisfaction from this conclusion from Martineau: "We do not believe in immortality because we have proved it, but we forever try to prove it because we believe it."

quest and power, manifestly this country will have to be prepared in order to insure peace. As long as the spirit of Mars prevails elsewhere, we will have to be safeguarded. Soft words have no influence on lust for blood. Adequate force is what counts.

This Is the Husband
 Inspired by "This Is The Wife"—Saturday Evening Post
 (By Mrs. Art Auker, O'Neill)
 The Lord made Adam. Then He saw there was no one to do the little odd jobs that Adam didn't want to do, so He made Eve. As it was in the beginning so it ever shall be.

Two. The magic number with which man proposes to eliminate domestic disturbances. Two clothes closets! Certainly if it would add to the peace and tranquility of the husband. But would he expect to keep his personal closet clean? Would he carefully watch his suits and see they were sent to the cleaners when necessary? Keep his hats in order on their respective shelves and shoes in their proper racks? Then when he makes a grand rush into this closet for some article of clothing, knocking down several others SHE is the one who restores order and keeps it. Two telephones! Why not? Very convenient for husband and wife but of course the added expense would be covered by the household budget which has already been stretched to the bursting point.

"The bath room, whose is it?"
 There is only one answer. It's hers!—to clean after you are "allowed" in there occasionally? for when you emerge from said room (and I would not appeal in vain if I asked every white woman in the world, to support me in this statement) the lovely finger tip towels are in a heap below their rack, just accidentally knocked off, spots of shaving lather from the medicine chest to the floor, soiled wet bath towels hanging drunkenly over the edge of the tub, a can of shaving talcum upset, spreading its contents which way the wind blows.

FARMERS.
 The Christian Science Monitor publishes an article by Nathaniel R. White, editor of the Falmouth (Ky.) Outlook, giving an interesting and highly complimentary appraisal of the American farmer. The writer emphasizes that the average farmer is independent and wants to continue to be independent. He wants no trespassing on his possessions or rights, and he does not expect something for nothing. What he owns, he wants to control, and what he does, he wants to direct. There are farm problems, but usually the farmer can solve them better than anyone else. As to tenants, the writer says: "The practice of thrift, alertness and industry will clear the way for the tenant family to become prosperous landowners." These observations in the article only confirm the opinions of those who are part of agricultural communities and know them well: "The average farmer is successful because he is wide-awake, willing to plan his time and do his work. * * * Americans who are acquainted with farm folks only through academics should be grateful for their integrity and strength of character, their independence and industry."

blow. Oh ye he-man of egotism, where are your eyes?
 Two reading lights? On one should be hung "God Bless Our Home" for clubs, sales, business or what have you will keep the big easy chair, he-type, out too late for reading.

Two, the helpful number that solves the equation. How about two traveling bags for that two days' vacation? On Friday the lord of the domicile announces in a tone that bars interference, that "we" will spend a quiet week-end at home. Silently, she is glad; that silent book, the new magazines, (hitherto swamped by household cares) hold untold week-end pleasures for her. Saturday when the story is being gloriously unfolded, there comes a terrific bang of a door, followed by, from the sound, the remains of an Indian army. Is the master on the war path? Quite the reverse. Bill Brown and his discarded rib are in town. He and Bill, mind you, HE AND BILL, have decided that the four of them will drive a hundred miles upstate and spend TWO days fishing. She, so recently transported by the muse to realms ethereal, is requested to "throw a few things in a bag and we'll be off." Off in two minutes? With two traveling bags to pack. What god of mythology is responsible for a man never being able to pack his own suit case? Then she sees to it the windows are closed and locked, calls up the milk man (thank God for two phones, he and Bill are using one), notifies the ice man, calls the news boy and tells him not to put the Sunday paper where it blows over the neighbor's lawn, puts the cat in the basement with an extra saucer of milk. "Kitty, kitty, kitty. Where cat that cat be? Just like a man, never there when wanted."

By now, she has been informed not less than TWO times that he is ready. He goes for the car as she, for last preparations, rushes upstairs. And as she hurriedly attempts to restore order, the telephone rings, back downstairs again to take an after-thought message from Bill to 'the man behind the wheel, who is tooting the horn for her to hurry. "Toot, toot." Strange how nearly that sounds like "Two, two." Two minutes more and she locks the front door, her nerves taut, her head whirling. By the time she has relaxed sufficiently to come out of the daze, they are at the lake. Two men, college comies and perfect pals. Two days' fishing, man's paradise! Two women who never met before. Two days; Ho-o-o-o hum!

Husbands, individually and collectively, are the same. But what's the use?—Darn 'em and God bless 'em.

mation and whatever material aid may be necessary in the individual case. The medical profession has long been aware of the insufficient or even complete lack of care of women during pregnancy. In some instances the financial feature may keep the patient away from the physician's office, necessary though the care may be. The medical profession is willing to do its part in whatever way possible to save the lives of these young women, but the medical profession alone cannot do the whole job. "Three games which Americans play," added Dr. Durden, "are 'Hide and Seek,' 'Stage Coach' and 'Follow the Leader.'" In the first, one personality is seeking another congenial personality. In "Stage Coach" one finds one man taking another's place. Men need to understand each other better and cooperate. In the game of "Follow the Leader" America needs to pick well-trained, efficient leaders and follow them. Good leadership and loyalty to the leader are essential in an American democracy.

College High Class Will Present Play

The college auditorium, curtain will rise at 8 Thursday evening, April 23, on the comedy of modern family life, "Skidding," written by Aubrey Haycraft and presented here by the college high school senior class. The cast is now putting the finishing touches on this hit which ran for over a year on Broadway and which is proving immensely popular with high school patrons all over the state this year. "Skidding" is understood, is preparing to present the same play in a few weeks and it has been given by one of the Sioux City high schools.

Amusing throughout, "Skidding" also contains a novel and original plot. It concerns the conflict which arises when Marion, the pretty and capable daughter of Judge Hardy and herself a student of political science, finds herself drawn into nomination for the state legislature because she is such a capable speaker. Her fiance, Wayne Trenton III, possesses a few too many old-fashioned ideas about women in politics, and the stage is set for the inevitable choice between Marion's career and her marriage.

Andy, the irresponsible adolescent with his first "case" of love, old, absent-minded Grandpa; Myra and Esch, the two married daughters who want to "come home to mother" at the first signs of domestic difficulty; Judge Hardy, the honest father running for re-nomination to the district court; Mrs. Hardy who makes up for her lack of experience in political science with her store of practical experience in domestic science; Aunt Milly, the maiden aunt; and Stubbins, the hard-headed politician—all of these will be brought to life in "Skidding."

Farm Relief Jokers. Industrial News Review. In a recent address, Fred S. Sexauer, president of the Dairy-men's League Cooperative Association, Inc., pointed out that state control of agricultural products tends to lower the bargaining power of the farmer.

New York has a milk control law—and now it is under attack from a legion of dairy farmers and cooperative managers. The law was passed with the best intentions in the world—but, according to observers, it has benefited neither consumer nor producer, and often harmed the interests of both. Cooperative selling groups have come to realize that the road to progress is through their own efforts and mass action—not through laws that often prove boomerangs. Much that has been done in the name of farm relief has proved to be a drag instead of a lift.

Farm Relief Jokers. Industrial News Review. In a recent address, Fred S. Sexauer, president of the Dairy-men's League Cooperative Association, Inc., pointed out that state control of agricultural products tends to lower the bargaining power of the farmer.

New York has a milk control law—and now it is under attack from a legion of dairy farmers and cooperative managers. The law was passed with the best intentions in the world—but, according to observers, it has benefited neither consumer nor producer, and often harmed the interests of both. Cooperative selling groups have come to realize that the road to progress is through their own efforts and mass action—not through laws that often prove boomerangs. Much that has been done in the name of farm relief has proved to be a drag instead of a lift.

Former Resident Of Wayne Likes Home In Canada

Elmwood Stock Farm is the name of the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Stoney at Morris, Manitoba, Canada. The Stones have 425 acres of rich, level land in the Red River valley and their home is on the banks of the river. Mrs. Stoney was formerly Mrs. Lyda Hartshorn of Wayne.

Winnipeg, a city of 225,000, is 35 miles north of the Stoney farm which is on highway No. 14 connecting with U. S. highways No. 75 and 81. Streets in Winnipeg are very wide, and the city has several excellent parks.

The Stones find that persons in the vicinity of their home are very friendly, many of them, like Mrs. Stoney, being former United States residents. Mrs. Stoney writes that she has had to make some adjustments to differences. Thanksgiving day in Canada is in October, and Independence day is celebrated July 1 instead of July 4.

Laws are enforced in Canada better than in the United States, Mrs. Stoney observes. One of the Canadian laws prohibits offering a reward in a kidnapping case. The result is "no reward, no kidnapping."

The winter was pleasant in Manitoba. Only a small amount of snow fell and there was not a great deal of 40 below zero weather.

Manitoba is known for its No. 1 hard wheat but other activities are becoming as important as what growing. Mrs. Stoney explains. The province raised 28,800,000 bushels of wheat, 18,918,000 bushels of barley and 20,000,000 bushels of oats in 1936. Dairy products were valued at $11,616,232, honey at $569,000 and furs from fur farms at $297,650 for the year. A great deal of fishing is done and the fish are shipped to the United States. Mining is carried on in a large scale. Manitoba has several large lakes, numerous small lakes and many parks and other scenic places.

The famous Dionne quintuplets the pride of Canada, now have a fortune valued at $765,181. Lollipops, ead liver oil, cold cream, corn syrup, hair ribbons and a dozen other products have made the fortune. Motion pictures and news photos also gave them much. Large single contract was with the Fox film company, the girls receiving $300,000 for three feature pictures. Two of these pictures have yet to be made. Twentieth Century paid $50,000 for one film. Guardians spent $57,654 for the four buildings on the nursery property and $38,341 for household expenses, salaries of nurses, doctor, guards, etc. Dr. Dafoe received $200 a month and the nurses $100 a month. The children's fortune is being kept in bonds and bank accounts.

When a tornado hit Marshfield, Mo., the second time within a month, the wind drove a nail into a man's head.

Victor Arden Conducts New Radio Program

Victor Arden is the conductor of the popular new "Diamond D-X Program" heard over 24 leading radio stations throughout the central states.

He is one of the best known radio conductors in the east, and for nineteen years was half of the famous piano team of Ohman and Arden.

Arden once played a cello on a Mississippi river show boat. Americans have danced to his music since his boyhood days in Wepona, Ill., when he ran an orchestra for the school dances. The orchestra charged, and was paid, $7.00 an evening for its artistic services.

At present he is also conducting orchestras on the Smith Brothers Cough Drop program, Phillips Magnesia program and Bisodol "Broadway Varieties." He and his new partner, under the name of Arden and Arden, are featured in two-piano numbers on the Bayer Aspirin "Album of Familiar Music" each Sunday evening.

Arden is an old favorite in New York's most popular night clubs and is a veteran of the air. He now does radio work exclusively. The "Diamond D-X Program" is sponsored by Mid-Continent Petroleum Corporation and Diamond D-X dealers, in connection

Best Accommodations Are Most Satisfactory Wayne Traveler Finds

Unusual Sights Are Seen By Mrs. A. R. Davis On Six Weeks Trip In West.

"The best costs only slightly more, and the accommodations, courtesy and pleasure afforded make up for the difference in expense. For one traveling alone it is easiest and most satisfactory to the high class service and then let each hotel recommend the best in the next city visited and send a letter of introduction with the traveler." This is the travel plan followed by Mrs. A. R. Davis, who arrived home last week from the most pleasant six weeks on the west coast. "Most hotel companies have an information service called 'Ask Mr. Foster.' This service was most helpful in planning travel."

Mrs. Davis explains that in Portland she came to her to offer aid in the city after it had word from San Francisco that she was in the city. Leaving Wayne March 3 Mrs. Davis took the southern route through Arizona and Texas. At Winslow, Ariz., she stopped to see the Spanish inn, La Posada. Carved panels, arches and chairs, bright hangings and brass urns made the place look like an art gallery rather than a hotel.

From Los Angeles, Mrs. Davis made trips to points of interest. In Hollywood she visited the Hollywood Hotel where is broadcast the program of the same name.

Bachelors Build Home. The Japanese gardens in Hollywood surround a beautiful home built by two wealthy bachelor brothers, silk merchants. After the death of one brother it was planned to convert the place into a night club but instead it is kept as a beauty spot. The Japanese house, elaborately furnished with bright wall hangings, is situated on a hill. Terraced gardens surround it with 300 steps from the house to the lower part. Japanese bridges, bronze animals and especially elephants, Buddha altars and other garden decorations are reproductions of those in Japan. A wishing shrine in one part of the garden has a bronze Buddha overlooking a fountain. Visitors wish and toss coins into the hands of the Buddha. If the coins go into the fountain one gets his wish. The gardens are bright with flowers, among them pansies measuring about three inches across.

Mrs. Davis visited the Chinese and Egyptian theatres in Hollywood, each being styled according to the type represented. Ushers are

Washington Is Unique City Miss Elsie Warnock Finds

In Washington, D. C., one sees many things and meets lots of people," remarked Miss Elsie Warnock, who arrived home Wednesday of last week after spending five and one-half months attending school and visiting in the political city.

Miss Warnock took a four-months course in institutional management at the Lewis Hotel Training school in Washington. The school trains students for positions in a hotel, tea room, cafeteria, or if a person is a student of accounting he may show an interest in hotel food control and cost.

People from all over the United States come here to attend hotel work and Miss Warnock found it a good place to get a cross section of human nature. The eastern states are more represented than the west or middle west. Many students were already engaged in hotel work but wished further training. Others wish to advance in the particular line of work.

Most of the women are interested in becoming hotel matrons or institutional heads while men are working for office positions or stewardships. At the present time there were more positions opening for men than for women.

The city of Washington is a very pretty place and the one aim of the city is to make Washington beautiful, according to Miss Warnock. She was in Washington when the Japanese cherry trees had begun to bloom and during the crowning of the daughter of the Japanese ambassador as queen of festivities. An American girl served as her maid. The trees are about the size of cherry trees here and bear no fruit. They are located in the tidal basin and their highly colored blossoms make a beautiful picture.

Many Tourists On Hand.
Tourists from all over the country, particularly from the eastern seaboard states, flocked to the city inspiring but it impressed one with the cruelty of war when one could see the fixed bayonets and the artillery, she remarked. The new equipment which was paraded is horrible. The drum corps and the military bands added to the realistic scene of war.

The inaugural parade was mainly a sea of umbrellas," remarked Miss Warnock. The crowd was so large that she could see very little of the parade although she was amused at the dignitaries with their high silk hats and military men with their plumed hats standing in the rain. Soldiers and police were stationed throughout the city and the West Point and Annapolis cadets added much to the impressiveness of the ceremony although the rain did hinder their marching.

The president reviewed the parade from the White House, at which a replica of the hermitage of Andrew Jackson's old home had been built. Artificial roses and magnolia blossoms had been placed around the colonial house.

Plans are being advocated for a Thomas Jefferson memorial to be erected in the tidal basin. The proposal is meeting a great deal of opposition, however, as some of the cherry trees would probably have to be destroyed.

While in Washington, Miss Warnock heard that there were between 120,000 and 130,000 government employees. This, according to the Nebraska visitor, is not hard to believe when one sees them leaving the government buildings between 4:30 and 5 o'clock. The employees comprise a city in themselves.

Washington is a very cosmopolitan city; employees are from every state in the union. Many negroes are employed in government offices and are doing secretarial and stenographic work. Indians, also, are very numerous; Miss Warnock remarked that she saw more Indians in native dress there than she had ever seen outside of a reservation.

Long on Parades.
"Washington is a great city for parades," commented Miss Warnock. She saw the parade April 6 to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the United States' entry into the World War. It was a beautiful military parade and very

A TANKFUL TEST OF D-X OR D-X ETHYL Lubricating Motor Fuel

A FULL CRANKCASE TEST OF DIAMOND 760 Motor Oil

Here Is Why We Can Make This Challenge:

More mileage is an assured fact with D-X or D-X Ethyl, because, as an exclusive feature, these modern motor fuels contain a special high heat-resisting lubricant which provides needed lubrication to upper cylinder parts not adequately lubricated by crankcase oil. (See cross-sectional diagram of motor, right.) This extra upper cylinder lubrication makes engines run faster and cooler, decreases wear and increases mileage. And Diamond 760—the pioneer 100% paraffin base, heat-resisting motor oil—insures complete, safe, long-lasting lubrication... actually costs less per mile!

Sheep Shearing Process Watched By Grade Children of City School

One question, "Did you have a good time at the farm (Thursday)?" brought a unanimous chorus of delighted exclamations of "Oh, yes," from students of the third and fourth grade rooms, when they were interviewed on their visit to Walnut Grove farm to witness sheep shearing.

The children were taken by a truck furnished by Theobald Lumber Co. and driven to the farm by Paul Zepin. The teachers, Miss Hazel Reeve and Miss Thiel Lathrop, accompanied them. Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Wightman helped take the children.

Opinions differed as to what held the strongest appeal for the children. The girls were interested in the baby lambs, but the boys found activity in handling the sheep and the shearing process more exciting.

The baby lambs, "Pec Wee" and "Alfalfa Bill," so named because one was so small and the other ate so much alfalfa, had whiskers and are a little over a month old. The lambs were fed from bottles and "kept fighting over the milk."

The process of shearing is quite complicated. The lambs are set back on their hind legs, because they are made helpless and the men shear them with clippers, being very careful not to nip the skin.

Descriptions of the clippers were varied. To some students they looked like barber shears and to others they resembled hedge clippers. They all agreed, however, that the clippers were very sharp and worked with "some kind of a spring."

The wool of the two sheep differed. One was straight while the wool from the other sheep was curly and looked like "it had just been waved."

The children showed that they had been observers by remarks they made. One little fourth grader noticed that two of the baby lambs followed their mother wherever she went and "did everything that she did." Another lad observed that one of the sheep usually acted as the leader.

When the wool was sheared from the sheep, the tiny fibers held it together so that it looked like the sheep "had taken off their winter coat."

A little third grader in describing this process remarked that the sheep looked like "butter balls before they were sheared" but were skinnier after the wool had been cut off. The children were allowed to feel the sheep's back after the shearing and they felt like "soft blankets" and were very white.

The youngsters were quite alarmed at seeing a sheep tick on one of the sheep. This tiny black bug attaches itself to the skin of the sheep and sucks the blood. It will do the same to human beings. Each spring the sheep are dipped in a solution to remove the ticks.

From 14 to 16 pounds of wool are removed from each sheep. This sells for approximately 30 cents a pound. After the wool is removed from the sheep it is packed in large bags and shipped. The wool from these particular sheep was sent to Sioux City. It was tied with a twine made from a paper composition.

In many instances the wool is washed before the shearing. Mr. Morris, however, does not follow this practice. The oil is a secretion from the sheep's back which mats the fibers and protects the sheep from the rain. After the oil has been removed from the wool, the weight is about one-half as much.

The sheep are sheared every year, usually in the spring. In describing the cry of the sheep one little fourth grader remarked that the "baa" sounded as if the sheep had a "frog" in his throat.

Following the shearing the children had a picnic at the farm. With a few minor casualties such as burned wieners, marshmallows lost in the fire and falling into the creek, the children were agreed that they learned a great deal about sheep and had had a very good time. Mr. and Mrs. Morris and Evelyn were guests of the children at the picnic.

The third grade students plan to follow up the trip with a unit of study on woolen cloth.

You Pay Less TO OWN IT TO RUN IT

1937 Ford V-8

● If you think that "all low-price cars cost about the same" — forget it! They don't.

Ford makes a car — a 60-horsepower economy Ford V-8 — that sells from 30 to 60 dollars under the prices asked for any other car of comparable size! The lowest Ford prices in years!

Check delivered prices in your town and see for yourself.

● Of course, first cost doesn't prove "low cost" — you must consider operating cost also.

The "60" has definitely established itself as the most economical car in Ford history. Ford cars have been famous for economy for 34 years, so that means something!

Owners who have driven it thousands of miles report that the Ford "60" averaged between 22 and 27 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

You can prove those figures — on the open road — in a car provided by the nearest Ford dealer.

● When you've finished your personal check-up, ask yourself:

"Do I want to save money the day I buy my car and every mile I drive it?"

"Do I want a safe, roomy, comfortable car of advanced design — created from the finest materials to the highest precision standards?"

There's only one answer, of course — the 1937 Ford V-8.

Ford V-8 $529 at Dealers Factory. Price includes transportation charge. Right of Ford may vary.

This price is for the 60-horsepower Coupe equipped with front and rear bumpers, spare tire, horn, windshield wipers and clean glass. See your nearest Ford dealer for full story.

$25 A MONTH after usual down payment. See any Ford V-8 Dealer for details. Ford Finance Plan of Universal Credit Co.
