All Are Laborers

All Are OGDEN L. MILLS seventh lecture is devoted to the cause of labor. These intro-ductory paragraphs are suggestive: "Here, where almost everyone works, where there are no fixed classes, where the door is wide open to the industrious and able, and where today's captain of industry is yesterday's wage earner, the term 'labot' includes is all. "Assuredly it does in this sense: that all those productively zengaged, whether on

We often wonder what agitators expect to gain by making radical changes in this government — a government incomparably better than any other in the world. Why do they want to upset orderly processes that have developed the highest standard of living in the world? If they wish to be-come communist or fascist leaders, they come communist o should investigate having either form of government. The would find themselves fitted into nich of obedience instead of leadership. The would find liberty supplanted by slavery.

Mark Sullivan points to three presiden-tial measures which he says, if enacted, would operate in the direction of a chang-ed form of government. They are reorgan-ization of the federal courts, executive re-organization with increased authority to the president and the proposed new NRA. Congress should be able to anticipate con-sequences as easily as Sullivan, and ac-cordingly should be alert to defeat any-thing that might curtail popular liberty.

Demand for more holidays is noted by Editor W. F. Cramb of the Fairbury Jour-nal as evidence that we are slipping. He concludes: "Frequent and long holidays are always found in backward hations, and this country seems bent on 'joining the backward nations wherever it can."

Attacked by both poisoned bran and cold, wet weather, we are wondering whether post-mortem judgment on the cause of grasshopper death will honor the former or the latter.

If the policy to take from a fellow who has little to help the fellow who has less is kept up indefinitely, the time may come when nobody will have anything.

Vermont refuses to accept federal aid for its citizens of public projects. It proud-ly waves the banner of rugged individu-alism and independence.

True to the rule of the strike business the truckers' strike is doing its best to in convenience the innocent public.

When On Vacation. Sioux City Journal: Vacation time is here for thousands of workers who for the next three or four months will leave their jobs and seek rest and recreation far from the offices and shops where they make their living. Some will go to pleasure, resorts. Others will get out their cars and tour the country. A smaller number will stay at home, perhaps wisely reflecting that they do not wish to be tired when their vaca-tions are ended.

Vacation plans always ought to be made with common sense consideration of what one intends to do and how one is to do it. One of the first things the vacationist ought to consider is his own safety and that of others for whom he may be responsible For no matter where the vacationist may go and no matter what he plans to do, there is an element of risk to be faced. That risk can be reduced if common sense be employed in the making and execution Success Has Its Drawbacks.
