

Back to the Land of His Birth
—The Park Proposition—
Unusual Source of Physical Disorder — Idaho Disaster — Opportunity for Great Fair — Important Wayne Activity. — Inviting Limbo.

Friday was an important day in the life of our highly respected townsman, Herman Lundberg, vice president of the State National Bank of Wayne. He left on that day for his first visit to his native Sweden since he took passage from there for the United States thirty-eight years ago. He is accompanied by his wife and daughter and by his brother, Alfred Lundberg, of Wakefield, who has not seen Sweden since he left there fifty-two years ago. Two sisters are in Sweden to welcome the Lundbergs on their arrival.

When Herman made farewell to relatives and familiar scenes April 2, 1889, and set sail alone for opportunity-blessed America, he could speak no English, and his meager capital stock was reduced to $10 when he reached Wakefield, his destination. He found a job on a farm in the Wakefield vicinity. He attended school in Wakefield one winter, and then spent a couple of years studying in the old Nebraska college in Wayne. There is where the Leys, bankers, discovered him. Thus, more than 34 years ago he entered the service of the Wayne State Bank, now the State National Bank of Wayne.

Herman is just another foreign-born individual who, suffering handicaps in a strange country, found opportunities and took advantage of them. He found industry and frugality which he necessarily developed early, would win. He found trustworthiness a big asset. Most of all an inheritance of grit — an inheritance of the spirit of independence which does not falter and which does not expect something for nothing — something without adequate return. Herman has richly earned a trip to his native land, and when he returns after a couple of months' absence to his post in the State National Bank, he will have satisfied a long-cherished wish.

Many Sign Petition.
The petition for an election to vote on the proposition to buy the tract of thirty-five acres south of town for a park, has been numerously signed, and most of those whose signatures appear, have expressed approval of the plan. Some local clubs have given formal endorsement, and will lend active support.

The proposed park will beautify an otherwise unattractive area adjacent to the south entrance of the city. It will provide recreation grounds in keeping with a progressive community. Here girl and boy scouts will find ample room for their group activities. People will not so often be tempted to go elsewhere for outdoor amusements. Young and old who cannot afford trips to lakesides or other pleasure resorts, will enjoy privileges heretofore denied.

Causing Boils.
Mothers-in-law, ahoy! A report from the United States health service says a young married woman suffers an outbreak of boils whenever her mother-in-law visits her. When her mother-in-law leaves, the boils also leave. We have a suspicion that this particular mother-in-law disturbs the young woman's nervous system and that the boils constitute a form of resentment. In showing affectionate consideration for daughters-in-law, mothers-in-law should avoid unnecessary interference — avoid any boss business that threatens ill health as well as ill nature.

An Example of Folly.
Nampa, Idaho, emphasized the folly of Fourth of July explosives by reporting five dead and twenty injured in a fireworks conflagration a few days ahead of the holiday. Cities everywhere have been prohibiting the firecracker danger. As a way to celebrate, firecrackers and torpedoes always constitute a nuisance as well as a menace.

For Big County Fair.
There is no reason why any county fair in the state should be better than the Wayne county fair. No county is richer in agriculture or livestock growing. All needed is early and vigorous execution of plans. Premium lists should be in the hands of exhibitors in July. Attempts to arouse deserved interest a brief time before the dates usually bring disappointment. Wayne county is in the right part of the state to have the biggest county fair in the state, and interest should not be allowed to remain dormant until nearly time to start the show.

The Public Auction.
Another important contribution to local activity was the public sale of farm chattels every week at the pavilion. Sales have been suspended until conditions warrant their resumption which, it is believed, will not be long. These sales enabled people to buy things they wanted and dispose of things they did not need. When crops become abundant, and money becomes scarce, these sales are of great value. RITES ARE HELD AT CHURCH HERE

Lewis Beckman Passes Away At Fred Beckman Home Early Friday.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday afternoon at 2 at the Baptist church for Lewis Beckman who died Friday morning, July 2, at the home of his son, Fred Beckman, northwest of Wayne, aged 89 years, 7 months and 18 days. Rev. James A. Whitman, pastor, was assisted by Rev. G. B. Dunning of the Christian church. Clifford Snyder sang three solos, Mrs. Dunning playing his accompaniment. The Beckenhauer service had charge of committal in Greenwood cemetery.

Lewis Beckman was born in Swinemunde, Germany, November 14, 1847. His mother died when he was 9 months old and his father died when he was 14 years of age, leaving him an orphan. As his father had been a ship builder, Mr. Beckman became cabin boy and spent seven years on the oceans.

Mr. Beckman married Miss Augusta Scheider February 27, 1876, at Mt. Morris, Ill., and 12 children were born to this union. After their marriage the Beckmans lived in Iowa 12 years and then moved to a farm northwest of Wayne. Mr. Beckman retired 25 years ago and for 12 years lived in Laurel. After the death of Mrs. Beckman 10 years ago next November he made his home with his children.

Four children preceded Mr. Beckman in death. They are Charles, Emma, George and an infant. Those surviving are William of Platte, S. D., Mrs. Carrie Workman of Omaha, S. D., Mrs. Mary Harrington of Laverne, Saskatchewan, Canada, Walter and Harry of Omaha, Mrs. Jennie Schumacher of Washington, D. C., Fred and John of Wayne. There are 27 grandchildren.

Mr. Beckman joined the Baptist church in Belden, later transferring membership to Wayne where he was a member until his death. Deceased was held in highest esteem by his many friends.

Besides the Fred and John Beckman families, the relatives here for the funeral were William Beckman and son, Clyde, and Mrs. Chas. Beckman, Louis and Virginia of Platte, John Foss, Mrs. Chas. Reamers and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Heck of Lena, Ill.

Pallbearers were John Dunklau, Henry Mau, Art Young, L. Gramberg, Frank Lyons and Ray Cross.

First Term Ends For College Soon

Graduates Of School Are Placed In Positions Through Bureau.
The first term of summer school at the Wayne State Teachers college closes July 16. Registration for the new term will be Saturday, July 17, with classes beginning the following Monday. The second term will continue for five weeks with classes meeting on Saturday. Many will withdraw at the close of the first term but there will be an increase in enrollment for the second term.

FOURTH IS FREED FROM DANGERS OF BURNING POWDER

THE first Fourth with enforcement of the anti-firecracker ordinance in Wayne proved refreshing contrast to the old days when the air was charged with exploding powder and when dangers lurked on every hand. Nights and days before the holiday were blasted with everything from a little cracker to a giant bomb, and besides the menace to life and property, the noise was an unpleasant and unnecessary reminder of the nation's natal day. This year quiet reigned. No one's rest was disturbed by a "hundred guns at sunrise" or by other explosions. No one had to dodge a burning cracker or torpedo to escape having his head blown off. This year St. Louis City joined other metropolitan centers in abolishing Fourth of July explosives, and the change for the better was thoroughly appreciated. In time the foolish practice will nowhere be lawful.

FUNERAL RITES ARE IN WINSIDE

Ludwig Sonnenberg Passes Away Early Monday At Home Of Son.
Ludwig Sonnenberg, resident of Winside for nearly half a century, died early Monday morning, July 5, at the home of his son, Fred, in Lincoln. Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 1:45 from the home and at 2 from St. Paul Lutheran church in Winside with Rev. H. M. Hilpert in charge. Burial was in Pleasant View cemetery.

Mr. Sonnenberg was with his daughter, Mrs. Wm. Fleer, until April 30 when he went to Lincoln to spend a month with his son. After five days he was taken ill and on May 14 went to a hospital where doctors found nothing could be done for him. After a week he returned to Fred's home and grew steadily worse. Mrs. Fleer had been in Lincoln 22 days helping care for him.

Mr. Sonnenberg was born June 13, 1852, at Wenlarcken, West Prussia. (Continued on Page 4.)

Plan Booster Trip For Racing Events

Wayne Municipal band and racing fans plan a booster trip next Wednesday to advertise the races to be held in Wayne July 21, 22 and 23. The itinerary includes concert at Laurel at 9 a. m., Coleridge at 9:30, Hartington at 10, Randolph at 11, Pierce at noon, Norfolk at 1:30 with dinner, Madison at 2:30 and visit to races, Stanton in the evening, Pilger at 8:15 and Wisner at 9. The caravan starts at 8 a. m. and any wishing to join it or to furnish cars are asked to notify B. F. Strahan.

The Cooper, Reed, Bray, Hall and VanScoy stables are among those sending horses to Wayne. Iver Andersbn contacted horsemen in Omaha who said they are coming to Wayne. They compliment Walter Miller who is track superintendent, saying the 6-inch dirt cushion he provides on the track protects horses.

Racing will begin at 4 p. m. Wayne band will furnish music, and a loud speaker system will inform spectators about the races. Wm. Fay who assists with starting Ak-Sar-Ben races, will be head starter here. Two experienced men will assist him.

Proposal For Rural Electrification Centers In Precincts Close To Wayne

Rural electrification survey was completed in Wayne county Saturday when the board of directors met at the court house. Precinct signups were led by Ed. Grubb who turned in 104 for Strahan, A. G. Sydow of Plum Creek, Hugo Splittgerber of Brenna, and James Grier of Wilbur, followed close in precinct survey blanks signed. Blanks were sent to H. H. Henningson of Omaha, project engineer, this week and a preliminary map is expected in a few days. If the survey map shows the required two and a half signatures per mile, request for a project in the territory so signed will be sent to Washington. If the average is not sufficient, the board will try to secure more signatures. Interest in the project centers in precincts near Wayne. If the matter gets the required support the lines will be built in these precincts.

Donkey Ball Game Planned Tonight

Donkey ball game is planned this Thursday evening at the fair grounds at 7 between the Larson Food Market and Terrace Hall teams.

OBJECTS TO FARM PLAN ENGINEERED FROM WASHINGTON

Oscar Reinhardt on whose farm the state corn husking contest was held in 1935, takes the ups and downs in agriculture philosophically, accepting gains without undue elation and losses without a feeling of hopeless depression, but he does not relish the prospect of having the farm business planned or controlled in Washington. He doesn't like the idea of asking a theoretical bureaucrat how much to plant or how many pigs to raise or when to market his products. If by some chance a textbook expert in Washington happens to know something about agriculture or animal husbandry he doesn't know, he doesn't want to wait to hear from him before deciding what to do. Important decisions in farming and animal growing have to be made every day—sometimes every hour of every day—and there is no time to consult an impractical bookish bird down in Washington.

WILL CONTRACT ROAD GRAVELING

Progress Is Being Made On Grading New Highway South Of Wayne.
Graveling of five miles of highway between Wakefield and Pender will be contracted by the state board at Lincoln July 29. This road has been graded and some graveling has been done.

Previously farmers received 90 percent. Full payment for corn limit counties, in which Wayne is included, amounts to 107 percent ministrative expenses. Administration in Wayne county for 1936 is 5.03 percent, this being one of the lowest in the district. Taking this off, the second payment actually amounted to about 12 percent as the 90 percent was paid earlier. Wayne county has 71 applications on which no payments have been made for 1936.

NAME TEACHERS IN THIS COUNTY

We have them in lengths from ten to thirty-six foot. Look over the handy CURTIS kitchen cabinet now on display in our show room. We build them to fit any kitchen. For patching leaky roofs and flashings use Certain-teed asbestos roof cement. What tangles up some couples is that Sergeant: "Stand at attention." Recruit: "I am, sir." Disturbing The sang-froid with which metropolitan journals quote President Roosevelt's pronouncements that boldly contradict his record, shows that a great editor can avoid rage and garment-tearing over inconsistencies if he is so inclined. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch offers quotations from the president beginning with his campaign in 1932, when he declared against extravagance and for a balanced budget, and for consolidation of government departments and practice of economy along all lines.

The Post Dispatch mentions that the national debt at the end of the fiscal year 1933—four years ago—was $22,538,672.164 and that it is now $36,400,000,000, an increase of nearly 14 billions. Then that newspaper concludes complacently and without comment with this Roosevelt statement: "Too often in recent history, liberal governments have been wrecked on rocks of a loose fiscal policy. We must avoid this danger."

The composure with which leading editors set forth disturbing presidential quotations is only equalled by the nonchalance with which the chief executive seems to regard conflicts between his pronouncements and his performance.

Texan THE government's careless generalization in advertising the country's so-called "dust bowls," has aroused a Texas rancher's ire, according to the Omaha Journal-Stockman which explains:

"In defense of his native state against what he considers the unfair picture of that territory which has been presented to the nation in movies, radio comments and news stories, a Texas rancher has risen on his hind legs to protest the too liberal use of the term dust bowl as related to that section. He does not deny that there are badly windblown areas or that too much range land may have been plowed. But what he does assert is that the condition is not a general one and that the area where he resides does not deserve all the opprobrium that has been officially cast upon it. "Originally, most of our government bureaus and departments were formed to seek out and disseminate factual information which the public could use as it saw fit. Through that body they built up whatever confidence they now enjoy. But this reputation can be torn down again if the channels that were provided merely for facts are allowed to become clogged with propaganda and misinformation."

In a proclamation issued on the Fourth, President Roosevelt set apart the period between September 17, 1937, and April 30, 1939, as one appropriately to commemorate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the starting of our constitutional form of government. The constitution was signed September 17, 1787, ratified by a sufficient number of states June 12, 1788, and the first president was inaugurated April 30, 1789. The president mentioned the fundamental instrument as flexible as well as enduring, but did not express his wish to make its flexibility obedient to the executive branch of the government by packing the supreme court. Consideration of the wisdom of the founding fathers during the time designated may arouse greater appreciation of fundamentals and strengthen resistance to the threats of foreign brands of government.

A photograph of a Kansas farmer and his day's catch of grasshoppers reminds one of the seventies when a similar contrivance was used to get rid of the pest. The Kansas farmer drew a container soaked with kerosene over a newly mown small-grain field and captured eighteen bushels of 'hoppers. The kerosene makes a grasshopper cancel its plan to tackle stalks of tender corn after camping in a field of barley, rye or oats. When a really formidable grasshopper scourg descended in 1876, farmers dragged fields—containers made of sheet iron—and closed the jaws of myriads of insects. If the kerosene method is generally used in Kansas and Colorado where grasshoppers are reported threateningly numerous, the chance of migrating to other states is mightily reduced.

West Point has a big park, neighboring the town and joining the county fair grounds. It is richly wooded, and its ponds are fed by the nearby Elkhorn. The park is fitted for picnicking and camping and for all kinds of outdoor celebrations. We judge it is about the size of the proposed Perry park at Wayne. The West Point park is an example of what may be done here.

HOLMES. The story of the life of the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes breathes the spirit of American democracy. Justice Holmes was a native of Boston, son of the author of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." In the Civil war he was shot four times, twice at Ball's Bluff, once at Antietam and once at Chancellorsville. But he survived the great struggle and lived and served until he was past 90. For twenty years he was a member of the supreme court of Massachusetts. In 1902 President Theodore Roosevelt appointed him to the supreme court of the United States. Justice Holmes was keenly interested in people, and his legal opinions sought always to grant all possible individual freedom. In safeguarding liberty of thought and speech, he explained: "Not free thought for those who agree with us but freedom for the thought we hate." Justice Holmes helped himself remain young by surrounding himself with young persons whose buoyancy he freely imbibed. One author refers to Holmes as the "greatest American of modern times." On March 8, 1921, the occasion of his 90th birthday, he is quoted as saying this: "To express one's feelings as the end draws near is too intimate a task. But I may mention one thought: The riders in a race do not stop short when they reach the goal. There is a little finishing center. The race is over, but the work is never done while the power to work remains. It cannot be, while you still live. For to live is to function. That is all there is in living."

History of this country shows that an important gold discovery invariably drove back any depression clouds that happened to be hovering around, and ushered in an era of prosperity. General crop abundance will do the same thing. Lean harvests over a series of years aggravated economic misfortunes. Demands exceeding production, wiped out grain and animal surpluses, and thus this year found the "bread basket" of the world about empty. Big crops will act like the magic of a gold find in restoring good times and overcoming the need of government aid which latter cannot take the place of private production.

Grasshoppers have been agriculture's source of chief anxiety over Nebraska during the past week, though in many localities they seem to be no more numerous than in an average year of normal crops. Where rain fell heaviest, 'hoppers seem to be fewest. In another week or ten days all small grain will be in shocks and will be safe from attack by insects or by the elements. With small grain and plenty of hay assured, anxiety turns to growing corn which so far gives promise of an extraordinary yield.

Gov. Geo. H. Earle of Pennsylvania, who has shown pronounced leaning to John L. Lewis' C. I. O., rushed himself by air to disturbed Johnston recently to make a speech in support of a plan to force steel companies to hold collective bargaining elections. When he said: "You don't need acts of violence when you have Franklin Delano Roosevelt in Washington, a liberal congress and a governor like me!" we wondered how he managed to refrain from mentioning himself first.

The president's plan to change the supreme court is up in the senate this week, and sharp differences developed so far foreshadow a warm battle. Senator Burke of Nebraska is one of the leaders of the opposition, and he spurns suggestion of compromise in upholding his convictions. Compromise would be a surrender to the scheme to break down the judiciary, and it would be intolerable to those who believe in maintaining three distinctly independent branches of the government.

It will be noted by the weather report in the Wakefield department of today's Herald that the total rainfall for six months this year is more than double what it was during the same time last year. It will also be noted that the weather on the Fourth this year was sixteen degrees cooler than it was on the Fourth a year ago. Thus, we should feel encouraged.

Strikers could soon settle differences and return to employment if professional organizers could be squelched. Workers want their jobs and they would be contentedly employed if they were not forced into idleness by designing agitators.

Is This Ingratitude? Norfolk Daily News: When the "Man on the Street" program was being broadcast from Howells, a farm woman, asked by the interviewer what additional help she would suggest be given to the farmers, replied: "Just leave us alone to work out our own problems." With that many people cheered, says the Howells Journal.

The editor of the Journal thinks that every farmer who cheered the lady, "by so doing... bit the helping hand that saved him from destitution." He tells of a farmer friend who cheered and points out that this farmer went from the meeting to get government poison bran; that he had received AAA and seed loan checks and had taken out a corn loan in 1933.

Is the farmer who has accepted aid from the government during this emergency, just as business men, bankers and industries have taken help, ungrateful if he now says "Leave us alone to work out our own problems?" At first thought it may seem so. But think it over. We can imagine such a farmer explaining: "I am glad that my government came to my relief at a time when I was in distress because of abnormal economic conditions. But I do not feel that that gives the government the right to insist on taking charge of my farm and telling me how to run it. After all it was my money that the government gave me. Now must I become a ward of the government, because I accepted help?"

An economist of national reputation, who has examined the new farm program, proposed by the agricultural department, says of it: "If the plan becomes operative, farmers will be invited to sign contracts with the government, under which they will become virtually tenants on their own farms, subject to a kind of control which no absentee landlord ever thought of exercising over his share-cropper lessees."

If you are struggling in the water and a life-guard should throw you a life preserver, you would be grateful to him, but you might balk if he should afterward say, "Now, I've saved your life; turn the control of your business over to me, and you could hardly be accused of basic ingratitude, if you should refuse."

After all the Howells farmer will pay his share of the cost of these government benevolences. Should he be blamed if he thinks that emergency control of agriculture that will deal with the...

IMMORTALITY. As youths unfold and get ready to live, the end of mortal existence—apparently far removed in their experience—gives them little concern. They are likely to accept or reject the conclusions of theologians without trying to think problems of destiny through. But as persons grow older and the time for transition nears they are more inclined to grapple the task of reasoning in the direction of eternal hope. A lecture by Dr. L. P. Jacks, of Manchester college, Oxford, on the subject, "Immortality in a Living Universe," encourages the inquiring mind. He closes by repeating this quotation from Thomas Carlyle: "The Great Soul of the World is Just." Jacks emphasized an idea expressed by Plato that immortality is not to be selfishly considered, but that it is something due the many high-minded and lovable souls we know. The suggestion that life is not a by-product of death, and that, as Immanuel Kant pointed out, individuals are not mere instruments to an end, supports the rational belief in a fair, just plan. To create lives for a brief bout with the perplexities of a dead world would be wrong, as Dr. Jacks suggests. It would be senseless and beastly unjust. The many precious souls we know, breaking mortal ties and leaving unfinished work, would not be brought into the world to give passing life to an otherwise dead universe. The deeper one goes into a study of encompassing mysteries, the stronger becomes his conviction that a great purpose will do exact justice to preserved identity.

"Conditions in the east are very favorable," remarked Fred Pile of Rochester, N. Y., who with his sister, Mrs. Geo. R. Newton, came to Wayne for a few days' visit in the Sheriff J. H. Pile home.

"Rochester is an industrial center and has very little unemployment," continued Mr. Pile. The past year the city has been free from strikes and as a result General Motors is planning to build there a plant which will employ 8,000 men. Strikes in the east have had no direct effect upon conditions in Rochester. At the present time one branch of the General Motors Co. is located in that city. It specializes in making speedometers for Ford cars.

According to Mr. Pile the industries in Rochester are of a very high type and have little cheap labor. Most industries deal in making fine instruments which call for specialized workers. The percentage of foreign population in the city is low and those who do live there are of a very high class.

Crops throughout the east and in Nebraska look very good, stated Mr. Pile. Iowa crops are ahead of those in Nebraska, and throughout all of the states there has been an abundance of rain.

Ohio, one of the driest states last year, has had a surplus of rainfall and crops are fine, he remarked.

Mr. Pile frequently sees Dr. Weldon Crossland, formerly of Wayne, who is pastor of a large church in that city. Dr. Crossland has just finished serving as president of the city ministerial association and takes an active part in civic affairs.

Mr. Pile is principal of two of the city schools in Rochester. He and his sister drove through Evanston, Ill., Tuesday of last week and visited their aunt, Mrs. Harry Hunton. They also visited the birthplace of their mother in Ohio.

After leaving Wayne Mr. Pile and his sister plan to go west and see the Yellowstone park and visit in Salt Lake City and Ogden.

Miss Pierce had four originals on exhibit. These have now been returned to the college here. The object of the annual exhibit is to build up art appreciation in the community and encourage art as a worthy enterprise for leisure time.

Bavarian Girl Gives Talk On Passion Play

Speaking with an excellent voice quality which carried through the entire college auditorium, Miss Anny Rutz, a Bavarian girl, who has twice portrayed the role of the Virgin Mary in the Oberammergau Passion play, lectured at the Wayne State Teachers college Thursday evening.

Miss Rutz, who came to this country in 1935 to attend the Rollins college at Winter Park, Florida, likes the United States so well that she asked for an extended time to further her education. Although she learned the English language in England she still doubts her ability to speak it the way it is spoken in America.

The speaker illustrated her talk with slides, portraying the village life and country mountains which are found in Bavaria. She also showed scenes taken from the Passion play. Her two sisters also are members of the cast of the play, one of them playing the part of Mary Magdalene and the other Solomon's bride.

The population of Bavaria, before the first presentation of the Passion play, was about 800. Since the development of the play, however, it has increased to over 2,000. It is the hope of Miss Rutz that the village will always maintain peasant characteristics and does not become too commercialized. A peasant background is a typical setting for the Passion play.

Members for the Passion play are selected by a committee and are notified of their selection about three months before the first practice. Practices begin the first of January and the first performance is in May, continuing until September. At the first of the season three performances are given each week and toward the end of the season the play is given five times each week, a total of 150 performances a season.

Miss Rutz explained that as soon as she heard of her selection she tried to live her part, feeling the honor and suffering of the Virgin Mary, mother of Jesus. The play is given in an open-air theatre in a natural setting. A large tree overhangs the stage on one side and birds which light on the boughs of the tree and sing add to the effectiveness and naturalness of the Passion play.

Ancestors of Miss Rutz were in the first Oberammergau Passion play in 1834. Jakob Rutz, her direct forefather, appeared as the first Christus in the play of that year. Her great-grandfather, Rochus Dedler, composed the music of the play in 1811. In the last two revivals Otto Rutz, an uncle and Josef Rutz, a cousin, played the part of apostles.

Miss Rutz gave her last public appearance of the season when she appeared in Wayne Thursday evening. She went to Chicago from here and will travel on the west coast this summer.

Rites For Infant.
Funeral services were held at South Sioux City for Bonnie Lee Suter who died June 24, the day of her birth. Her twin brother, Richard Charles, survives besides the parents. Mrs. Suter is the former Miss Bernice Erskleben of Wayne.

Crowd On Special Train From Wausau

One might have thought he was living 20 years ago when a train crowded to capacity went through Wayne Monday. It happened this way. Once each year the Swedish settlement at Wausau helps in a celebration, and then the compliment is returned. This week Oakland staged a Fourth of July celebration and 200 from Wausau took a special train to go to Oakland to join in the festivities, the special bringing them back about 9 in the evening. Later Oakland will probably visit Wausau in the same way.

Visit at Ash Home.

Stephens arrived from Wichita, Kan., Friday evening to see the visitors and to spend the weekend with Mrs. Stephens' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ash. The group, also the Max Ash family and Ray Ash had picnic dinner Saturday evening at C. S. Ash's. The Wiant and Miss Ash left Sunday for Cold Spring, Minn., to visit F. C. CONGRESS

AS DEBATED BY
KARL STEFAN

"WPA Here We Come"

School is out. You can notice that in Washington by the thousands of young men and boys who arrive daily to look over the town and also look for jobs. One group of graduates copied humor from some of the graduating classes elsewhere. They carried a sign reading "WPA Here we Come."

Talk Didn't Seem To Take

The "boys" are back from Jefferson Island where for three days the President had an opportunity to talk to them in relays. The leaders may have had some opportunity for a real show-down, but the rank and file of those who accepted invitations, say they know as much now about major legislation and adjournment as they did before. The real answer is that adjournment is problematical. The new farm bill known as the "ever-normal-granary" bill, may get some consideration this session. So may the new labor bill and it is certain that a court bill must be acted upon. All of that spells congress "must" stay on the job many more weeks.

Eastern Corn Looks Good

Corn in these parts of Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia is in good shape. It's being plowed the second time and is over waist high in some fields. The wheat has been harvested and the yield looks good.

"Three Killed Daily"

That sign is pretty prominently displayed on a lot of the highways in these parts. Notwithstanding these warnings the automobile accidents continue daily. The traffic here is terrific. That is true especially on Sundays. Four lane highways are crowded with trucks and cars. These highways are also crowded with hard liquor and wine establishments which are heavily patronized.

Red Tape and Lack of Interest Prevent Hopper Relief

The tornado at Pierce which did over $150,000 worth of damage also the grasshopper and cut worm plague over the third district have been called to the attention of various departments here. It is admitted that the million dollars appropriated by congress to kill grasshoppers is "not a drop in the bucket" and fears are expressed by some farm experts here that the grasshopper damage will be serious. Reports indicate that Boone county is the hardest hit to date. Red tape and insufficient interest in the farm problems in Washington can be blamed for lack of poison bran and quick action. Farm members have been working on the insect control legislation since last January.

Nebraska Scouts In Washington
The Nebraska scout contingent reached the nation's capital early Tuesday morning June 29th and worked all morning pitching their tents. The group of scouts from the third district are in charge of Scoutmaster Heflinger of Tilden. They will be here ten days taking part in many programs in which nearly 25,000 scouts will participate. The camp is the largest scout camp in history and thousands of scouts from foreign lands are here. Among the first Nebraska boys to arrive are Jack Stinson, Robert Montgomery, Ralph Barrett of Norfolk; Barton Baker of Lincoln, formerly of Norfolk; William Reuter, Robert Carlson, George Townsend of Fremont; Frederick Kramer, George Hyatt, William Smith of Columbus and Jim Black of Fullerton. This group of Nebraska boys are in a tent from which they can see the Potomac river, the Arlington cemetery, the Arlington radio towers and the Washington monument. These boys expect to take time out from their busy program to take a pilgrimage to the nation's capital as guests of the third district office. Every one of these boys is in good health and good spirits. Their tent is next to the camp hospital tent; the mess hall, the showers and the camp postoffice and telegraph office.

Expensive Session

Notwithstanding all of the talk about economy, this congress is getting more expensive than the previous one. Although fights have been made against "waste" and "useless" expenditures this congress has already voted to spend about eight billion dollars, and more appropriations are coming. The longer congress is in session, the more the taxpayers will have to pay. It costs about forty thousand dollars a day to keep the representatives and senators here. That is exclusive of the salary total which is enormous.

Ambitious Policemen

One hundred and thirty-six policemen guard the billion dollar property which consists of the capital building, the senate and house office buildings. All of these policemen are selected by patronage by senators and congressmen. Nearly 75 percent of them go to school learning to be lawyers or doctors or studying along professional lines. The other 25 percent are just glad to have a job as a capital hill policeman.

Mountainous Region of Southern France Is Entrancing to Traveler

Southern France holds much charm for visitors. Miss Margaret Schemel, who was there a few weeks ago, writes about Nice and other interesting places. Taking a perfectly-engineered mountain road out of Nice, the bus climbed and climbed, leaving behind the dry-looking river that empties into the sea near Nice. The scenery was lovely. "The car balked at the highest point where we stopped to overlook the entrancing combination of mountain and sea. We had lunch at a cafe built right out over the sea. Strange to say a British cruiser was lying at anchor in the bay. It began to rain again, to pour, but this did not deter those who wanted to set foot on Italian soil from leaving the car just at the edge of Mentone and going across, much to the annoyance of customs officials who couldn't understand such silly procedure. It sufficed for those who hadn't been in Italy before.

"We came back by the middle Corniche and stopped at Monte Carlo whose eight-mile kingdom is partially on the mainland, partially island. The casino is in a perfect setting, approached by long green lawn bordered by bright flowers. As at Cannes and Nice the blue cinararia has first place among the showy flowers.

"Easter Sunday we went for a promenade at Nice. The prom is five miles long, skirting the sea. There seem to be no beaches. At one bath-house I saw a man swimmer beaten back three times by the waves before he got out to where he could swim. I believe Nice is not too good a place for swimming on account of its rocky coast." A coat over linen suit felt comfortable on the walk beside the sea, Miss Schemel found.

After dinner the party went by coach up the Grasse in the high mountains beyond Nice. "What a climb! The little mountain villages fairly hang on the sides of the steep slopes. One wonders how some are reached by road at all, but presently one finds himself in perhaps the very village he has wondered about. One old, old city stuck far out upon a cliff and past where we drove seemed for all the world to be completely deserted. In fact some of the most closely packed houses had tumbled in. When our car came to an unasked-for stop at the end of the climb we looked across to the town from this angle and spied a familiar washing or two hanging from an upper window, and several people moving apathetically about an open space. Such a living tomb so far away from life! Actually Grasse is only 11 miles from Cannes but it seems more than a hundred. We finally came to a broad valley dotted by several prosperous looking villages, then a good town or two and finally busy commercial Grasse where the finest and greatest amount of perfume is made. There seemed to be a battle of flowers on in one place and a market in another but as neither appealed we returned to Cannes very promptly.

We parked on the wharf by the yachts and decided that one flying the Stars and Stripes must be the Rogers yacht. It was not too large and somewhat in the need of paint. About 50 are living in the harbor there. We returned to see the sunset over Nice with snowy peaks beyond and the blue sea in the foreground.

"We went to Cannes Monday. I bought an elephant in a music box shop and saw everything that played. After tea we watched skating at an open-air rink. We were amazed that the best couple skating must have been at least 65 years old.

"The road from Nice follows the Var valley for a considerable distance on a ledge far above the river. The road goes through a gorge which has sides so steep that it overwhelms one. The river left, we would sometimes see small farms in the narrow valleys or worse still perched on the side of the rocky mountains. Almost all the houses seemed deserted. The little villages through which we passed were miserable enough too. We had great difficulty in getting onto one bridge which crossed somewhat turbulent Varon. The scenery was too untamed, too unfriendly to be pleasant. In the middle of the morning we stopped at one of the strangest places I have ever seen. Across a drawbridge over the river the road leads through an arch in a defense-tower up the street into the smallest, oldest, most Rip-Van-Winkleish little town one can imagine. All sorts of crazy little side streets lead one down a number of steps to a new junction of several streets. As the houses are tall, the streets are dark, washings hang from upper story windows and smells come as profusely from every door as cats and dogs run about the streets. Just a few people about who looked at us rather wonderingly. As the town seems very self-sufficient and the highway is on the other side of the draw-bridge, I suppose few people stop there. Just as we were about to leave a contingent of the Alpine scouts, the 'blue devils' who wear a blue overcoat and wide black beret on one ear, passed in review or drill so I suppose this too is a military garrison.

"The afternoon trip led up into the mountains but the scenery began to become grander and grander. The higher we went the broader the valleys below seemed to expand. At about 4 we stopped at the highest point of the road, up among the snowdrifts, and had afternoon tea. One of the party made a little snowman at the side of the road. As we began to descend we counted eight villages that could be seen from that one spot in the road. The road twisted and wound around the mountains. Toward sunset it led into a main valley where the towns were so numerous that they ran into each other like one continuous city. We were in the valley of the Ysete and after feasting our souls on the beauties of the mountains, waterfalls and chalets, we drove into Grenoble, a very large and important commercial center with a famous university. The hotel was good but I've never seen higher ceilings nor felt more jitters than in going up to my fifth floor room in a lift that is without an enclosing case. I was in mortal terror but managed to survive by always running down the stairs, which you're supposed to do in France anyway.

"Next morning we drove through lovely Alpine valley to Aix-les-Bains, the most famous of French spas. There we visited the splendid city baths where in season one can have any kind of treatment modern therapy can provide. The place is immense and like a palatial hotel but not used in winter. Those who can pay do not like it if one can't. Thousands of tourists come annually for the medicinal benefits of the waters. We rolled through villages which begin to look more and

Finger Painting To Be Demonstrated At Wayne State Teachers College

Miss Ruth Faison Shaw of New York, originator of Shaw finger-painting, a dramatic new medium especially adapted to the use of young children, will be guest teacher for one day, Thursday, July 8, in the art department of Wayne State Teachers College. She will speak at 1:05 p. m. in the college auditorium. Miss Shaw is noted as an artist, teacher and psychologist, and is on a tour of the United States to explain her discovery before groups of teachers and artists. Miss Martha Pierce, head of the art department of the college, will introduce her. Everyone is welcome to attend.

The story of this invention is a fascinating one. While Miss Shaw, native of North Carolina, was teaching in a school in Rome, Italy, attended by children of diplomatic and noble families of many nations, she sensed the need of childhood for some means of expression freed from the bonds of grown-up tools requiring conscious effort and long practice to master. After much research and experiment, she worked out the formula for a color medium which children could use with their bare hands. It must, she knew, be harmless to skin or stomach (for children are bound to get things into their mouths), and it must be easy to spread and manipulate, and easy to wash. It must have arms by a "live" wire in Osmond park.

ter of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Fuchs of Madison, died June 30 of burns suffered when a gasoline stove container exploded. Her mother was also burned. The container had been outdoors in the sun and exploded when brought into the house.

Elmer F. Robinson, 55, World war veteran and former prominent politician at Hartington, took his own life at Venice, Calif., June 20. Mr. Robinson had invested in Florida real estate and gold mines in the southwest and had lost on all. He left what he had left to his divorced wife, Sarah.

"I'LL TAKE A FORD V-8 - EVERY TIME"

● A successful farmer is a good all-round judge of value. He has to be. And that's the reason why farmers all over the country like the Ford V-8. It gives them real value.

This year's Ford comes with a choice of two V-8 engines. The body is the same for both — big and roomy, with a luggage compartment for honest-to-goodness loads.

The man who wants powerful, mile-eating performance will pick the 85-horsepower engine for his Ford V-8. It's a dependable power-plant — and remarkably economical.

The 60-horsepower engine is the choice of the man who wants to keep costs down to rock-bottom. The price is lower than any Ford V-8 in years — and owners report that they're getting from 22 to 27 miles per gallon.

Whichever engine you choose, you're sure of Ford value — and the many Ford features like Center-Poise Riding and Easy-Action Safety Brakes.

Why FIRESTONE ALWAYS LEADS IN GIVING TOP TIRE VALUE

PRICES AS LOW AS $6.40 FIRESTONE makes great savings by controlling rubber and cotton supplies at their sources, by more efficient manufacturing methods, by selling in such large volume that distribution costs are lower. These savings are passed on to you as extra values. EXTRA POUNDS OF RUBBER to every 100 pounds of cord. Extra value AT NO EXTRA COST. PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS, because by the Gum-Dipping Process every fiber of every cord is saturated and coated with pure, liquid rubber, counteracting internal friction and heat that ordinarily destroy tire life. Extra safety AT NO EXTRA COST. PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES, because under the tread are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords. Extra strength AT NO EXTRA COST. PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING, because the scientific tread design prevents this danger. Extra safeguard AT NO EXTRA COST. Don't take chances with worn tires on your Fourth of July trip.
