

Nebraska Regains Reputation as Garden Spot—Destroying Fundamentals—Fleeting Season—Joke on the French—Hundreds Visit Ponce Park—Real Reason Hidden—Keeping in Repair.

The corn crop in northeast Nebraska will likely not compare favorably with that in Iowa, but it is better than that in other parts of this state. Iowa corn is reported on the way to the greatest yield in many years. Last week's rains headed off threats from the heat that devastated some other sections of the state. The crop hereabouts will vary. Some fields will turn out better than expected; others not so well. But altogether we are taking the lead in overcoming the drought period and getting back to normal production. In another year the entire state should be over the dry spell and be in line for a series of fat years.

Earning One's Way.

Training children in the stragem of getting something for nothing destroys fundamentals needed to build strong, sturdy character. Just the reverse should be taught and practiced. A child should understand that the most prized possessions are those fully earned.

Autumn in Offing.

The summer has gone too fast. The college has suspended for a brief respite, annual vacations are winding up, city schools will soon resume, the fall harvest is just around the corner, and preparations for winter are in order. But to many the autumn is the most agreeable part of the year. The weather is usually just right to suit everybody—neither too cold nor too hot. Whatever agriculture has to contribute for the year's effort is realized. Worries over drought, floods and hail are over. The mind becomes comparatively tranquil if not entirely satisfied. Plans are made according to individual means and courage. A few months of mild temperature between the heat of summer and the rigors of winter make for pleasing content.

Sense of Humor.

The French are proud, high-strung people. If they have sense of humor, they do not allow it to bubble up on solemn occasions. They do not allow it to wreck an atmosphere of decorum. Said the old American geographers: "The French are a pleasure-loving people, fond of dancing and light wines." But they resent the notion that they have no serious moments, or that they relish wines in the form of an exterior shower bath. John Roosevelt, youngest son of our resident, has a perceptibly evident sense of humor. He manifested it recently when he squirted champagne into the face of the mayor of Cannes, France, who was about to deliver a speech of welcome. While the mayor was trying to recover, the distinguished American stripping whipped a bouquet of flowers from the mayor's hand and landed it on his head—a burst of playful enthusiasm. Young Roosevelt followed the report with a denial. We have an idea the young man could remember vaguely, if at all, what happened. If he were about to get married we would expect him to reach over and scratch a match on officiating clergyman's head and order the ceremony held up until he could light a cigaret.

One Day's Visitors.

On one Sunday recently Ponce state park was visited by 1,188 persons, according to actual count. There were 266 cars. The Journal-Leader says 202 cars bore Nebraska license numbers, and 64 came from outside the state. The park's bluffs and wooded stretches, skirted by the Missouri river, appeal to those seeking change and recreation. The river is too treacherous and dangerous to answer the demand for swimming, and the park would be still more attractive if it had a good-sized pool.

Concealing Motives.

Often the real reason for a grievance is hidden behind manufactured complaints. The real cause is too selfish and defenseless to gain sympathy. So, a fellow will hunt around for plausible grounds and then light on those he thinks will have an appearance of justification. He doesn't want to show his hand, though, in fact, he lacks capacity to keep himself comfortably unrevealed.

An Endless Task.

Keeping the body in proper repair is an endless task. The things that may get out of order are more numerous than those belonging to an automobile, and one little thing not working right, upsets the whole human system.

150-MILE SURVEY OF MATURING CORN IN THE NORTHEAST

A 150-mile motor trip Sunday afternoon following a circuit in three counties—to Hartington, Wynot, Obert, Maskell, Newcastle, Ponca, Martinsburg, Wakefield and back to Wayne—revealed conditions of growing corn here and a few miles beyond Coleridge the crop promises usually liberal production, free from firing and hail effects. A few miles south of Hartington most fields look straggly and brown from hail and drought. In other directions from Hartington prospects are favorable for a fair-sized yield. An occasional field between Hartington and Ponca by way of Wynot showed serious damage, but most of the corn looked healthy with plenty of ears. Recent rains in Cedar and Dixon counties have helped wonderfully. From Newcastle to Ponca the crop is almost uniformly good. The same may be said of fields through Dixon county to the south. Probably the most promising condition observed is between Wakefield and Wayne. Besides difference in moisture, the reason fields vary so largely may be attributed to lay of land, condition of soil, manner of cultivation or quality of seed. Anyway, fields on opposite sides of the highway vary greatly.

SATURDAY NIGHTS FIND MAIN STREET HAPPILY CROWDED

The business district in any rural community is a veritable public forum every Saturday night—especially so in the waning days of summer and during the unfolding of glorious autumn. The busiest season is over. The harvest is awaited. Fruition becomes increasingly definite. Families come early and stay late. Persons living thirty miles apart get together on this common meeting ground and talk over everything from raising corn to raising a new cow shed, from neighborhood problems to New Deal antics in Washington. Experiences are exchanged, and speculations are offered touching the maturing crops, market prospects and government trends. If anyone wants to see some one, he usually finds him on Main street Saturday night. This once-a-week get-together is looked forward to and back on as a recurring bright spot in the passing of time. Dull monotony—remembered by old-timers—is wiped out. Friendships are maintained. Acquaintance is extended. Many things are learned by rubbing shoulders and exchanging views. The custom of making Main street the meeting place once each week is a refreshing improvement over the old order. And it is made possible by automobiles and good roads.

Workers Behind The Scenes Give Important Service At Institution

Though no present member of the faculty of Wayne State Teachers college served earlier than 1910, when the state bought the institution from the late J. M. Fife, one busy person has quietly and efficiently served the school for a longer time. This is George Denking, 63, who has supervised the power plant since 1906. A short man in greasy overalls, oil can in hand, has bent over the great turbines for more than 30 years to see that the institution was well provided with heat and light. The result of his labor is accepted as a matter of course, but the responsibility for uninterrupted service is due largely to the exacting care that Mr. Denking gives the motors for which he is responsible.

Besides giving close attention to his duties, Mr. Denking takes an interest in students and faculty members. He has provided a good education for each in his family and he is anxious to see that other young people gain a training for their life work.

"George," as he is commonly called by the students, first tended buildings at the college when there was only the art building, Terrace hall, north, west and east dormitories and Kingsbury hall. Many of these buildings have been torn down and new ones added in their place. The power house had only two small boilers which have been replaced by four large ones.

As an engineer, George must keep his eyes on "everything." In the winter time, the power house furnishes light for the entire campus and also pumps all of the water. During the summer light is furnished by the city.

"Good and bad students have all attended the college," commented George, "but I can generally get along with all of them." He continued.

Fritz Denking, son of George, has been connected with the college since he was 5 years of age when his father became engineer. Upon graduation from the college he became electrician and is now as important to the college as his father. Many times Fritz has saved a situation which could have become a tragedy. Last year during one of the plays which was being put on at the college, something happened to the lights. A frantic call went out for Fritz and he was finally located at the theatre. He was soon at the college and in a few minutes everything was running smoothly.

The man who frequently receives calls to build cabinets or to repair this and that, is Otto Ingwersen, who came to the college during the late President U. S. Copps' administration and has served for 24 years. He remarked that he had been going to school for a long time but he still doesn't have his diploma.

Another person who serves behind the scenes in keeping the college running smoothly is Mrs. A. R. Bruce, who works in Neihardt hall and is responsible for the clean halls, parlors and general upkeep of the hall. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce began work at the college in 1917. Mr. Bruce had to retire about eight years ago because of ill health.

When Mrs. Bruce first began work for the college she made beds in the boys' dormitory. During the war the S.A.T.C. headquarters were in the physics building and 40 boys came down with the flu. Many of the teachers dismissed classes and helped care for the sick boys.

Mrs. Bruce then went to work in the girls' old dormitories, which she says, were much harder to keep clean. When Neihardt was completed in 1929 she was placed there where she has since remained.

The girls have nearly always been a fine group, is the comment of Mrs. Bruce. Many superintendents and teachers around Nebraska are friends of hers and it is her belief that there are few Nebraska towns which she could go into without finding a friend whom she has known at the college. Mrs. Bruce prides herself on never forgetting a face but she does not try to remember names. Often, however, little incidents cause her to remember names. One of the students 15 years ago cried over her practice teaching. Today she is a successful dietetics instructor in the east. She is one whom Mrs. Bruce remembers. She has often watched entire families come to school and finds it interesting to note their similarities and differences.

April fool jokes are fun, but to Mrs. Bruce, many pranks mean extra work. This year she came to work to find every door knob greased with cold cream.

The busiest time for Mrs. Bruce is getting the rooms ready for the opening of the fall term. Beds must be cleaned with the vacuum, windows washed (and there are over 300 of them), and every room must be thoroughly cleaned. Beds in the winter and summer, trunks are inspected once a month and there is always a great deal of cleaning to be done.

The work of these quiet, faithful and efficient helpers is not for a lazy person. Many others at the college are instrumental in the upkeep of the institution. Antone Lerner has served the college faithfully for 10 years. Gordon Becker, George Mapel, Mrs. Springer, G. L. Rogers and Chas. Lapham are others who are always on the job. They are people behind the scenes—but very important characters in a busy institution.

Miss Freda Sund will teach at Blair this year. School opens there September 6 and Miss Sund will leave the Friday before.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tarnow, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Tarnow and families returned last week from a 1000-mile trip to western Nebraska, where they visited their former neighbors, the Ray Worths at Dalton. Dry weather and hail have taken crops in places, but the wheat was good. In the Worth area a thousand dollars worth was hauled to market a day. Hay fields and rangelands were good. Around Dalton were large rock formations having names such as Yale rock, Chimney rock, etc. There are trees, springs and water falls are seen on the way. The Worths are well and happy. Two places of interest were visited by them, the first being the Ripley salt mine. A guide took them through places 640 feet deep and rock salt 9 feet high and 600 feet thick. Maybe a mile walk in a stretch. The air is 70 degrees and pure—pumped in from above. Salt is crushed, dried, put in bags, in boxes and then crated for shipment. About two hours are required to go through there. The return party was next where 680 boys and men from 17 to 30 years are kept. The average amount of food consumed here is 700 loaves of bread, made in their own bakery, 400 quarts of milk, 100 pounds of sugar, and 3000 pounds of butter a month. Wages are 4 a day. This can be used or kept until dismissed. The claim is made that 11 millionaires live here and each has beautifully landscaped yards. A large airport is here. Mr. Cramer will return to his home in New York in September.

Dixon County Farm Bureau

(By Grace M. Dunn) Through the cooperation of farmers with the farm bureau and Dr. W. J. Johnson, federal veterinarian from Lincoln, the spread of anthrax has been kept to a minimum. Only 11 farms in Dixon county have had to be quarantined.

The quarantine area in Dixon county thus far is in the north end on a line running straight west of Ponca. Dixon county itself is not yet under the ban. Farmers have been quick to respond to the recommendation that their herds be vaccinated to halt the disease and during the past week many animals have been so treated. To keep up with this work the veterinarians have been virtually forced to work night and day. Unfortunately the outbreak this year has been in fairly large herds. A peculiarity in numerous cases of the disease also has been the fact that it made its appearance in horses, calves and hogs before it did in older cattle. This is an unusual condition according to Veterinarian Johnson. The duties of Dr. Johnson who was sent from Lincoln is to work with the local farm bureau in helping to check outbreaks and to enforce rules and regulations of quarantine. County Agent Greth M. Dunn stated.

Investment meetings will be held as follows: Wakefield, August 27, 8 p. m., city auditorium; Allen, August 28, 10 a. m., Amprican Legion hall, Ponca, August 28, 2 p. m., court house.

"Anthrax Control" and "Roughages for Livestock" will be discussed by J. V. Srb, Nebraska College of Agriculture

Dangers In Crop Control
 MARK Sullivan issues a warning against too much control of agriculture by the government. He mentions the additional teeth given the AAA until the supreme court stepped in and invalidated it. The potato amendment to the farm act provided drastic regulation over growing and marketing, but before it had time to operate the court intervened. Sullivan quotes Berlin dispatches to show how the Nazi rule in Germany forces crop control, surrounding farmers with unreasonable restraints and imposing severe penalties for violations.

Roger W. Babson, political economist, thinks too much regulating of cotton production and too great surrender to foreign markets are largely responsible for the present low price of cotton. Curtailed cotton production here has stimulated production in other countries.

The farm business should be helped without imposing impossible restrictions. Loaning money on corn and other products is safer for the government than many government attempts to help, and it should not be tied up with determination to direct the farm business from Washington. The practical and helpful should be separated from the impractical and obstructive. It will be some time, according to present lack of surplus, before Secretary Henry Wallace's "ever normal granary" will be threatened by over-production. In the meantime crop loans without unnecessary restrictions would serve his idea.

To Sally Forth
 INCENSED by revolt of democrats within congressional ranks, but flanked by relief millions, thousands of federal employes and the greatest political machine in all time, President Roosevelt will go before the people to convince them of the righteousness of late administration policies, repudiated or postponed, notes the World-Herald. The president will especially cultivate the favor of the unfortunate and doubtless lambaste those who are out of step with him.

Treating the president's proposed sally to the hustings with his pleading voice, the World-Herald makes these concluding observations:

"The congress said no to him. The congress said that we want social security, we want industrial and economic justice, we want legislation for the aid of workers on the farms and in the factories—but we insist it must be achieved and administered under the forms of a constitutional and representative government in conformity with our national ideals and traditions. We will not consent to buy them at the price of a one-man rulership now and for all the future.

"The congress was alive to the vastness of the issue. Lifelong democrats jeopardized their political fortunes to fight it. They had studied, they had thought deeply, they were informed—and they were resolute. But what will the people themselves say? Mr. Roosevelt believes he knows, and his spirits are high."

Guffey Blurts
 SENATOR Guffey of Pennsylvania, turned his voice loose over the radio recently in denouncing Senator Burke and other democrats who followed convictions rather than White House blueprints in opposing the president's court stuffing plan. Guffey made plain that disagreeing senators were marked for defeat. This threat disputes Postmaster-General Farley's latest pronouncement that there would be no reprisals, doubtless hoping thereby to change the attitude of the boys and make them be good. Previously Farley said wayward senators would get back into line after fussing around for a time.

If the Pennsylvania air agitator spoke by authority of the administration, the result will, judging American temper, prove a boomerang. Nebraska citizens will not like the idea of having Senator Burke penalized because his conscience told him not to travel along in the furrow made by the administration. He was not sent to Washington to get unthinking approval to every fantastic scheme hatched by the president's dizzy bureaucrats.

Source of Relief
 THE adjournment of congress is doubtless a relief both to members and to the country. It is a relief to know that none of the suppressed New Deal measures will be revived and pressed for passage for some months. Congress deserves to be congratulated more on what it defeated than on what it passed.

While on a vacation members should discuss with constituents the full meaning of the sidetracked wage and hour bill and government reorganization plans, all designed to centralize more authority in Washington. Citizens should be made to understand in advance the things included in proposed legislation, and should express themselves freely to their chosen representatives. Then there is less likelihood of regrets.

As the administration plans a campaign in behalf of pending administration policies, those finding themselves in opposition should be no less alert and thorough in giving facts and pointing out lurking perils. Those who are convinced of administration errors, proposing laws that would be obstructive instead of helpful, should give the public the benefit of all possible information and counsel. General Hugh Johnson, former NRA head and now a columnist, urges earnest study of what the administration has in mind to do.

May Speed Recovery
 THE Sioux City Journal sees sound basis for economic recovery in the federal estimate of $9,000,000,000 to go into farmers' pockets for this year's harvests. As pointed out by the Journal, this increased buying power needs the cooperation of other elements to gain maximum benefits. The Journal says in conclusion:

"This is the proper time for industry to show the right attitude. Especially is it the proper time for manufacturers to be reasonable as to prices and for labor to cooperate through maintaining industrial peace throughout the country. Strikes could ruin a wonderful prospect for further economic gains. On the other hand if in the fall and winter industrial peace could be had and the cost of living could be kept under control, new business confidence could be enjoyed and the country would go forward."

One editor complains that most newspapers and magazines are against the administration. The contrary was true when the president first took office. Most of them were for him in the hope that platform pledges and pre-election promises would be sufficiently followed to bring the country out of the dumps. Veering sharply away from democratic principles shattered confidence. Publishers became fearful. One after another abandoned hope in a political setup that threatened fundamentals. As a rule, editors do not play politics, but rather are guided by deep-rooted conviction. While they may disagree over comparative non-essentials, they are usually smart enough to see dangerous trends and get together in support of a sound, safe course.

In his Roanoke Island speech recently President Roosevelt poured vials of wrath on those who have disagreed with him. Plenty of humble citizens do not favor his attempt to control the supreme court and put over policies that would give him autocratic power. The fact that his dictum is not accepted and swallowed does not stamp one as an "economic royalist." People note that while he talks blantly about democracy, he proposes legislation that would knock the props from under democracy.

Other mothers should learn from the experience of the Chicago woman whose baby was stolen from its buggy while she was trading, not to leave helpless children unattended. Happily the Chicago baby was soon restored to its mother. We always thought leaving a youngster in a buggy alone on a street a foolish and dangerous habit even in rural communities.

LEGION'S VOICE
 Speakers at the Legion state convention warned against threats to fundamentals in American democracy. National Commander Harry W. Colmery criticized employment of force and coercion and the weakness of constituted authorities in failing to protect individual and property rights. State Commander Verne Taylor expressed belief that usefulness of the American Legion had just begun. Ideals soldier survivors sacrificed to strengthen have suffered under sinister influences usually inspired abroad. There has been a breakdown in the things the boys and their supporters stood for and expected to preserve. Rallying of Legion members to the support of cherished independence will prove a potent force. Veterans of the World war have gained the fruits of experience with accumulated years, and they can see more clearly and act more wisely in upholding their organization's declared principles. With ripened understanding, they can sense more deeply the meaning of democracy and the imperative need of keeping it safely aloof from those who would see it undermined and destroyed. Future security is encouraged by the firm stand taken by the American Legion.

They visited Detroit, Niagara Falls from both the United States and Canadian sides, New York City, Washington, D. C., and Miamisburg, Ohio. They were gone over two weeks.

RUTHLESS.
 The world is in a bad fix. In Spain, ruthless slaughter marks the path of civil war in which the extreme right is fighting the extreme left. Lives are sacrificed and treasured possessions are destroyed to reach rival goals neither of which would extend or guarantee human liberties. In China, the ruling regime is engaged in a bitter conflict with its old, encroaching enemy, Japan. In modern theatres of war, non-combatants are given no chance to retreat or get out of the way. Women and children are made the victims of bombing savagery. Once priceless lives now seem lightly regarded—used as mere instruments to force a few men's ideas of what ought to be—pitilessly wiped out if they happen to get within the path of ordered killings and wreckage. Dictatorships in Europe exact human lives from time to time to impress the supremacy of the ruling power and keep subjects in helpless dependence. Those who die in war or those who are killed because they dare to entertain an independent thought, are just as deserving of life as those who hold the reins and are able to enforce obedience. Governments employing iron fists, assume roles of helping the masses, but in reality they are engaged in the virtually established human slavery.

The adviser system, which was inaugurated last year, will be continued this fall. Every student is thus assured of special consideration from at least one instructor who views the student from the standpoint of his total environment, his many-side problems and relationships.

Mr. Smith plans to be in his office every afternoon from now on to advise with students and parents of students on matters relative to courses of study, credits, college entrance requirements and extra-curricular activities. He will also assist rural students who are looking for places to room and board and for part-time jobs. Other members of the teaching staff will also be available for consultation.

WILL ROGERS SOME TOUCHES THE HEAVENS

Up on Cheyenne mountain, half a mile above the Broadmoor hotel near Colorado Springs, Colo., Spencer Penrose has built this beautiful Will Rogers Shrine of the Sun. On the back of the American, it is as near as man can build to Will's celestial resting place. The picture seemingly shows Will Rogers in the heavens, smiling his approval of this memorial, which is now open and will be dedicated Sept. 4, 5, and 6 with a world-wide Will Rogers memorial rodeo on the Broadmoor polo grounds. This is the bronze bust of Rogers, made for the shrine by Jo Davidson, noted sculptor who also recently was commissioned to make a similar bust of Rogers for the state of Oklahoma to be placed in the National Statuary hall in Washington, D. C.

Nebraska members have been frequent buddies discussing national legislation affecting Nebraska.

Farm Bureau News
(By Walter L. Moller.)
Once again sorghums have proved their value in Wayne county as partial "crop insurance." While corn in many areas has burned considerably in recent weeks, the sorghums continue to look good and will probably produce an abundance of feed this year and probably some grain.

The ability of the sorghums "to take it" has increased their popularity and as a result there has been a hundred percent increase in Wayne county this year, it is estimated.

Sorghums at the Nebraska college of agriculture continue to look good also. Some of the early maturing grain types sorghums like Spooner, early kalo, Greeley, Cheyenne and a few others late last week looked like they should yield at least 20 bushels of grain per acre in the test plots. Given rains, later varieties should give much greater yields.

Watch Silo Gases
Entering a farm silo while it is being filled or shortly after is dangerous business because of the possible presence of suffocating gases, Wayne county farmers were advised this week by the farm bureau.

The pit silo, with its lack of ventilation, is the most dangerous. Air in upright silos may be regulated by keeping one of the many doors open near the surface of the silage. Trench silos are usually safe. Running the blower into the partly-filled upright silo before entering is another suggested precaution.

New Poultry House Material
Wayne county poultrymen who attend the annual poultry field day at the Nebraska college of agriculture the latter part of September are going to have an opportunity to view a new-type poultry house. "Rammed earth" is the new building material from which the house is being constructed.

The 20x40 poultry house is being built according to ordinary specifications except that the walls are made of a mixture of clay to which is added approximately 20 percent sand and 5 percent cement. The building is being built by the poultry department.

The building, reported to be the first of its type built in the state, is being constructed as an experiment in housing poultry. The mixture of clay, sand and cement is put in an ordinary motor box which holds between three and four wheelbarrow loads. To this is added two quarts of water, just enough to make the mixture sticky. The mixture is then placed in forms about an inch deep and is solidly tramped, making a solid, durable brick. The foundation of the building is concrete, a foot wide and three feet deep, and the "rammed earth" bricks are laid upon it. The house, when finished, will have walls 7 feet high in the front and back and will have a gable roof. This size house will accommodate about 200 hens.

Ensilage to Ewes
With some corn being cut for silage now but many farmers up against the problem of knowing what to do with the feed, the possibility of getting a small flock of sheep started appears to be a good "bet." Experimental feeding data secured from the Nebraska college of agriculture indicates a flock of WAYNE CO Farm Bureau County 30 ewes can be fed with but little cash outlay with the possibility of earning money.

Feed required for the flock of 30 comparatively young ewes for a year in the feeding test was as follows: 14 tons ensilage, 570 pounds cake, 2 1/2 tons alfalfa and 40 bushels of oats. The ewes were on pasture 6 months and used 139 pounds of bonemeal. Two bushels of grain were required to get each lamb ready for market.

Ewes for such a farm flock to utilize some of the ensilage now being cut would now cost not more than $7.50 for yearlings. The wool from shearing should be worth $3 to $4, in all probability, and the lambs should bring $6 to $10 each.

Ready to Go Home
The Nebraska delegation is ready to go home. Most of them, however plan a few weeks rest before going into their districts. Congressman Coffey has rendered valuable work on the agriculture committee. Mrs. Coffey is one of the most outstanding Nebraska women in Washington. She is president of the twenty-fourth congress women's organization. Congressman Luckey has concentrated a great deal on fighting army and navy expenditures and has worked for international peace. He has some hopes of visiting Europe before going home. Mrs. Luckey plans to visit her daughter in California.

Congressman McLaughlin is a member of the powerful judiciary committee on which he has worked a long time with results that have made him a leading member of that committee. Congressman Binderup has concentrated on monetary reform. He has gotten up what he now calls "Uncle Sam's Hospital Chart" in which he shows how he believes money reform would solve most of our problems. Generally speaking, this session of the 75th congress has been a very strenuous one for every member of the Nebraska delegation which has worked harmoniously on most all legislation that in any way affects our state. Regardless of party politics these characteristics include short, deep-set, prominent, bright eyes; long, straight bodies with wide back, and straight legs wide apart and set squarely under the body.

Tree lovers in Wayne county were advised this week that the annual statewide forest field day at the Nebraska national forest at Halsey will be held on September 19.

Show Handicraft In School Exhibit Here On Thursday

Upon entering the trophy room in the administration building of the Wayne State Teachers college last Thursday, one's first impression was that of entering a toy shop. Brightly painted toys were being displayed and it was truly a child's paradise. Upon questioning Prof. E. J. Hunter, who was proudly standing nearby viewing the handicraft, one learns the toys were made by 20 of his girl students who are preparing to go into rural schools to teach. The toys were a suggested group which can be made by children with little equipment.

On another side of the room was a display of leather goods made by students in the home craft class under the direction of Prof. Raymond Cherry. The exhibit included hand-tooled picture frames, purses, billfolds, notebooks and key rings. This is the first time that such a course has been offered and the entire summer was devoted to leather work. It is planned to offer the course this fall including in it leather work, linoleum block printing, simple wood carving and wood picture making.

Students work out their own designs and do all of the work themselves. Each one in the class pays for his own leather which is either steer hide, tooling calf or tooling steer hide. The cost is comparatively small, about one-third of the price of a finished article. Most of the articles are lined with suede and many of the notebooks, purses and bill folds have zippers which have been stitched in. Prof. Cherry remarked that many of the boys were quite handy with the sewing machine.

Leather tooling often becomes an interesting hobby for students who have had some such work in the classroom. The set of tools may be purchased for $3.50 or $4.00. Metal work was also displayed, showing colonial lamps, stands for ferns, waste baskets and whisk broom holders. In working with the metal the oxide is first taken off and the metal is then reheated and by oxidation different colors are brought out. The metal may be painted over and then sanded to give a different effect.

Prof. Hunter had another exhibit of small tables, shoe racks, sewing cabinets, smoking stands and what-nots which had been made by girls in the home mechanics class. The course is offered to acquaint girls with tools, and emphasis is placed on the practical side of girls' being able to assist in repairing furniture about the home. Varnishing, painting, hammering and furniture gluing are all taught and according to Prof. Hunter, these are helpful aids about the home.

A great deal of interest was shown in the courses this summer and will be continued this fall.

Marry At Puckett Home Near Allen

Freddie E. Ziemer And Bride Will Make Their Home In Oregon.

The marriage of Miss Zella Puckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira S. Puckett of near Allen, and Mr. Freddie E. Ziemer of Sandy, Ore., was solemnized Wednesday afternoon, August 18, at 2:30 at the bride's parental home. Rev. Everett Puckett of Westington Springs, S. D., brother of the bride, performed the single ring ceremony. Miss Eunice Carlson of Wayne, and Rev. Frederick Stair of Sioux City, were attendants. Roy Puckett, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer. Jesse Puckett, a brother of the bride, played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal procession entered the living room where the wedding vows were given. The reading of the marriage lines was preceded by the singing of two hymns, "Only Believe," sung by Jim Puckett, also a brother of the bride, and "Jesus Will Walk With Me," sung by Lee and Paul Puckett, nephews of the bride.

After the service, refreshments were served. The bridal table was decorated with streamers of blue and pastel tan crepe paper, and centered with a large white wedding cake which was cut by Mrs. Ziemer.

The bride was attired in white silk crepe fashioned on simple, graceful lines. She wore a wreath of blue roses in her hair in a halo effect and carried an arm bouquet of peach gladioli, blue larkspur, baby-breath and fern. The bridesmaid wore light blue taffeta and carried an arm bouquet similar to the bride's. The men wore dark suits.

Mrs. Ziemer is a graduate of Allen high school and received her A. B. degree from Wayne State Teachers college. She taught school three years. During the past two years she has resided in Sioux City. Mr. Ziemer received his education in western Nebraska where he has since farmed for several years. He moved to the vicinity of Sandy, Ore., last fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Ziemer left soon after the wedding for Omaha for a brief visit with relatives after which they will drive to Oregon to make their home on a farm about 26 miles this side of Portland. They plan to stop enroute Sunday at Colorado Springs to visit Mrs. Ziemer's sister, Miss Zeta Puckett.

Miss Eunice Carlson and Miss Genevieve Craig of Wayne, were among the wedding guests.

Indian Helen Of Troy Story Told In Ancient Ruins

The story of an Indian "Helen of Troy" was unearthed by archaeologists who are digging in ancient ruins near Niobrara.

The mighty fort built by the Ponca tribe has been unearthed high on a hilltop overlooking the junction of the Niobrara and Missouri rivers. There in a fort which was complete with moat, cache pits, etc., were found ruins which tell an ancient love story which precipitated a war between the Ponca and Omaha Sioux Indians. The excavators found evidence of a great plains engagement which they likened to the Trojan war. The Poncas were normally a peaceful, agricultural tribe of Indians, raising crop and hunting game. But when a marauding Indian tribe interfered, they were capable of fierce savagery.

The Omaha Indians in northeast Nebraska were enemies of the Poncas. After one bitter encounter the Poncas stole many women and horses from the Omahas. One of the women was Helen, a fine looking Omaha Indian who was to live with the Poncas. Legends say she was a chieftan's daughter, and the Omahas schemed to recapture her.

When the Omahas stormed the Ponca fort in an effort to recover Helen, she was in the barricade fighting side by side with her captor. The Poncas routed the Omahas and 14 skulls in the fort ruins tell the story.

And Helen, who brought war between the Poncas and her native Omahas, lived ever after with the Poncas helping with gardening and domestic work and worshipping her conquerors.
