Wayne Farm Values

Average valuation of farm lands in Nebraska in 1937 is placed at $24.11, according to State Tax Commissioner W. H. Smith. The 1936 valuation was $24.34 and in 1935 was $24.40.

The report shows that Wayne county's 281,461 acres are valued at $19,822,731 or an average of $70.46, much above the state average.

Other northeast Nebraska counties have average valuations as follows: Dixon, $46.18; Cedar, $44.38; Cummins, $32.55; Dakota, $33.37; Hall, $33.12; Knox, $24.09; Madison, $36.07; Pierce, $34.35; Stanton, $60.30; Thurston, $50.90.

GAMBLE'S RADIO SENSATION OF 1938

The most striking and startling advancement of all time in radio tuning. Now—your favorite station perfectly tuned by only a slight touch of a button. Simple! Nothing could possibly be easier or more certain. A child, blindfolded, or anyone at all can instantly tune their desired station. No "fuzzy" tones. No screech or squawk. The station is there with perfect undistorted clarity. You press the button. Coronado does the rest.

- PERFORMANCE THAT IS ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE—Clarity, truthfulness and perfection of tone that lift Coronado from the realm of radios high into the class of marvelous musical instruments. Exclusive Coronado Tone Columns act as sound chambers so necessary in all fine musical instruments—same as in rare old violins or the majestic grand piano. The exclusive Tone Columns blend and synchronize the tonal vibrations of the speaker to give you a depth and naturalness found only in Coronado. You actually feel the presence of the musicians at your elbow. Only perfect reproduction could bring about such a feeling.
- BREATH TAKING BEAUTY OF CABINET DESIGN—Scribed by one of America's foremost creators of distinctive radio cabinets. Masterpieces in skillful transforming of fine woods into a delightful example of perfect furniture styling. Large cabinets painstakingly finished to a lacquered mirror-like finish which brings every pattern of the beautifully grained and perfectly matched walnut veneers into sharp relief—a cabinet creation which is the crowning masterpiece of radio style and beauty. Truly a desirable piece of furniture that will bring charm, grace, and distinction into every home.

Dixon Case Taken To Supreme Court

Seventeen Near Wakefield Ask Cut In Valuation Of Farm Lands.

The matter of reducing valuation of farm land for 17 persons within school district No. 60, of which the city of Wakefield is a part, has been appealed to the Nebraska supreme court.

The city council, a high school, and the cause farm land owners to pay a larger school tax than owner of adjoining land that is located in a rural district.

The county objected on the ground that as the district revenues now collected are of an amount necessary to finance its activities, reduction of the school tax to the owners of farm lands therein would result in shifting an undue burden of school taxes on city residents.

Schools Celebrate Constitution Week

In celebration of Constitution week from September 12-18 State Superintendent Charles W. Taylor has sent out the following statement to schools of Nebraska: "We urge all schools to give more attention to the teaching of the Constitution because we have a constitutional and political order and an educational discipline in this country which give us personal liberty and religious freedom, autonomy of state, and unity of federation. Constitution week of each year should include daily activities in the school that will give to the boys and girls a real understanding of why great men and women of all nations have revered our Constitution. It has been the beacon light of all who love freedom. It is the very substance of freedom."

Miss Pearl Sewell, county superintendent, has urged rural schools to participate in Constitution week.

Following is the story of the timely apprehension of the chicken thief as related by John Kvi whose warning was largely instrumental in the capture.

Last week Wednesday afternoon at about 5:30 o'clock a well-dressed young man of about 25 came into the Fairmont produce station and asked if we would be open after supper. He said that he wanted to bring in some chickens or in way to the fair and gave his name as Adolphi Liep.

"He asked if 9 o'clock would be too late. I said that I would be open until 8:15 to accommodate him, but I was suspicious because he wanted to come so late I waited until 8:30 that evening, and when he didn't show up, I went home."

"The next morning when I came down to the station at 6:40, I found that someone had left 17 chickens in a crate behind the store. I at once notified Marshal George Bornhoft, who concealed himself across the street to watch the proceedings."

"Lien arrived at 7:15 to collect for the chickens. He said that he was staying with a family south of Wayne, distant relatives of his."

"Street parking spaces in Wayne business district are being re-marked this week."

Situation In Russia Most Depressing To College Instructor Visiting There

The general effect of the Russian situation on an American is depressing, according to Miss Lenore P. Ramsey, who arrived home Tuesday last week from Europe where she visited the past summer. She also remarked that in visiting there one must consider that the Russians have worked on the present plan for only 2 1/2 years. Complete equality exists between sexes in Russia. Men and women work together hammering stones for the highways and moving tar rollers. In almost any type of work where one finds men there are also women. Almost the entire citizen class is building new highways which are made largely of sand stone. Many new apartments are being built in Leningrad and Moscow. The present condition of the cities is overcrowded but Miss Ramsey comments that the new apartments will probably help the situation.

Price of commodities in the country is very high and almost no one has leather shoes. Flat rubber-soled tennis shoes are the ones most commonly seen. Miss Ramsey visited the rural districts around Gothenburg, Sweden and Copenhagen, Denmark. Denmark people impressed her by their pleasantness and industriousness. Farms are small and many homes have thatch roofs. She saw no tractors, but a reasonable amount of modern machinery is used. The Danish people make the most of their summer season and in almost every garden one finds a table and chairs where the evening meal is eaten. In Denmark, Miss Ramsey visited the Jensen silver company which is all hand wrought and very expensive there. She laughingly commented that it is 110 percent more expensive in the United States. She also visited in Copenhagen which is famous for its Royal Danish porcelain.

The harbor of Sweden is reached by traveling through the broad mouth of a river which has hundreds of islands—the Swedish archipelago. The islands are larger than the North American thousand islands. The trip was made at sunset and Miss Ramsey remarked that the whole effect was very beautiful—too beautiful for words to describe. Swedish shop keepers have discontinued the sale to children of toys which in anyway pertain to war. Toy soldiers, guns, cannons and the like are not being sold. "This is not a government order but each shop keeper, true to the reputation of peace loving Swedish people, has made it a practice."

From Stockholm, Sweden, where Miss Ramsey visited the most beautiful statehouse in the world, the travelers went to Gdynia, Poland, where they went through a very strenuous inspection by the custom officials. Upon entering Poland a Polish warship, one of the few war ships, met the American boat. After submitting to the inspection the group went on a sightseeing trip and visited the old city of Danzig, formerly governed by the Germans, but since the war a free city, under the jurisdiction of the League of Nations. The city is very ancient and has lovely old cathedrals and huge water gates which were formerly used to protect the city. The harbor is supposed to be used by the Baltic sea ports but Gdynia is rapidly replacing it as a port.

At Helsingfors, Finland, Miss Ramsey found the people very clean and industrious. The country has a democratic form of government and Finland and Nebraska both have one-house legislatures. The Finnish government is composed of 200 people, a large number of whom are women. The government building is modern in every respect even to the voting machine which records the vote as one presses a button.

A book store, supposedly the largest one in Europe, is located at Helsingfors. The building is several stories high. Everything in the city is written in two languages—Swedish and Finnish. The name of the city in the two languages is "Helsingfors" and "Helsinki."

Katka, Finland is a small shipping center. The rapidity of the workers was very impressing to Miss Ramsey as no harbor at which she visited had such system and speed in the work. She was amused by the men who called "O.K." to each other. In London one of the news boys had copied the American expression to such an extent that he said "Okeh doke."

Miss Ramsey spent one day in Germany and took a short trip along the Rhine. Crops are good and everyone appears to be busy. Miss Ramsey visited with a German citizen in one of the parks but was reluctant to express her views as an American woman the week before had gotten into trouble by speaking too freely to a German citizen who turned out to be connected with the government.

Miss Ramsey spent a few days in Paris where she visited the exposition. It is largely in an unfinished state but the fountains and the lighting effects are very pretty. The United States building is largely of W. P. A. projects, housing projects. In fact, it is mainly political. There are a few pictures of government bureaus of engraving and printing. She also visited Versailles where the treaty of Versailles was signed.

From France Miss Ramsey went to London where she visited Dorothy and Harold Caspey and went to the Shakespearean country and also the country of Wordsworth and Burns. She visited in Glasgow and Edinburgh, Scotland, and saw Miss Doris Palmer at Leeds.

Throughout the whole trip Miss Ramsey found people very gracious and kind to an American citizen. Almost everywhere people could speak English.

Fear Destruction Of Pheasants Here
The fear that an open season on pheasants in Wayne county this year would practically exterminate the birds in this region has led a number of farmers to agitate for cancellation of the scheduled open season.

The severe winter and the floods during the summer have killed off a large number of pheasants, it is reported. Fewer birds than formerly are noticed along the highways and in the fields this year.

Blanket Returned To City Motorist

Des Moines, Ia.—A Chicago motorist on his way home from Los Angeles arrived here much perturbed. He discovered he had left a valuable blanket on a cot in a tourist cabin which he had used overnight somewhere in the vicinity of Kimball, Neb.

He mourned his loss while talking to C. T. Clark, general agent of the Railway Express agency here, hardly expecting it possible to recover the blanket he had left behind some thousand miles away. Fortunately, he remembered the name of the camp's proprietor and

Women And Girls Display Work In Booths At Fair

The women's project club booths at the Wayne county fair revealed study and artistic ability on the part of members.

First prize was presented to the El Deen project club for its booth on "Beautifying Our Homes." Correct and incorrect dressers were displayed, one being too cluttered, lacking unity, lacking balance, too crowded and a too elaborate cover while the other had unity, color, harmony, balance and rhythm. A marked contrast was shown.

"When We Go Shopping," a booth by the B. C. Project club, explained the correct and incorrect towels, shirts and egg beaters which can be purchased. In buying egg beaters one must consider rusting, handiness and ease in washing. A number of things such as buttons, collar, material and size must be considered in buying a shirt. The weave and weight of the thread used in towels are important when purchasing towels.

Third prize was awarded the Progressive Homemakers club. Gifts for the home and decorative objects were displayed which were made from serpentine, tin cans and crepe paper. Baskets, pin trays, vases and flower pots were a few of the objects which had been made.

The Wilbur Project club had a booth on decorative objects for the home and also had the table set for a one-dish meal. The LaPorte Community club demonstrated the balanced meal. A clown holding plates one in each hand had vegetables for a well balanced meal on one and unbalanced meal in the other. The well balanced meal consisted of tomatoes, peppers and potatoes. The unbalanced meal was of carrots and onions. Posters were also in display.

Four-H Exhibit
Four-H clubs also exhibited booths. The winning booth was displayed by the Wide Awake Workers who had exhibited the making of a dress from the pattern laid out on the material to the finished garment.

Just We Girls club was awarded the second prize for the home-made clothes closet which provided shelves for shoes, racks for hanging dresses and hat space.

"Make the Better Best" by the Silver Thimble sewing club received third prize. Dresses and garments were displayed. A unique sign for the "Silver Thimbles" was made from buttons. Thimbles constituted the border.
