

Nebraska Best of All—Snow-fall Regarded Unimportant—Following Evil Ways—Liquor Excesses—Old and Present Standards of Living—To Attain Useful Old Age.

To last week's issue of the County Chief, a Broken Bow citizen, R. E. Waters, contributed an interesting review of his travels and experiences in California and the number of things he saw and we missed on our late visit out there, led us to conclude we were not so speedy and observing as we had supposed until at the close of his story he said he had spent nearly two years on the southwest coast. We were gone just twelve days, and we thought we wasted no time in gathering facts and appraising conditions.

But Mr. Waters observed closely, and he mixed enough sightseeing with visiting relatives to gain a wealth of experience which he detailed in very comprehensive fashion. We note at his conclusion he expressed high satisfaction over his return to Nebraska which he said he liked best of all.

There is strong appeal in the middle-west's comparative freedom from make-believe—an appeal that means most to plodders with whose sturdy character a mad thirst for money and tinsel gaiety—apparent in cosmopolitan coast centers—does not harmonize. We are sometimes caught short by drouth or hail, sometimes ripped to pieces in spots by a tornado, sometimes inconvenienced by snow and subzero temperatures, but our citizens usually have breadth and depth of soul—rather exalted than marred by hard experience—and when the elements are well disposed and abundance rewards industry, the person who has sufficed disadvantage and self-denial seems most able to sense and appreciate values. The person who has had to plan escape from a seeming calamity of untoward fate, undoubtedly has enlarged capacity to enjoy returned blessings. Pain is often friendly, and losses and hardships—always difficult to understand—have their compensations.

Nebraska has large advantages. Its freedom from debt is a reflection of its long vision. Its cordial handshake is not employed to cushion selfish purposes. In its blood still runs the iron of hardy forebears. Its citizens still recoil with awe from shallow worldliness. We are not surprised that travelers from Nebraska are glad to get back here.

Snow and Rain. Many who have had long experience, do not regard heavy snowfall as indicative of a wet year or as assurance of big crops. In 1936 and last year—both drouth years—the winters brought large deposits of snow. The need is for plenty of rain in the spring and saving moisture in July when otherwise a hot sun cooks growing corn and threatens the prospect. It is not generally believed mid-winter snowfall takes the place of later rains or exercises any influence over them.

Crime Tendencies. It is not pleasant to contemplate the large number of persons who devote their lives to burglary and theft. Some are doubtless impelled to satisfy certain wants; others by a sort of false heroism—a desire to take a chance in the belief they can defeat the law. When atonement is exacted—when a young fellow is sent to his death for murder or to prison for a lesser crime—regrets are usually expressed, but they fail to impress others headed by the same direction. What the young person lacks in inheritance or training, leads him away from paths of crime he is not clear. Unquestionably the home affords the greatest influence. Family heads winking at little games of fraud, engaging in trivial deceptions to shear the unsuspecting, angling with undisguised fervor to acquire substance without return cannot fail to plant the first seeds of dishonesty in the easily impressionable mind of youth. How much faulty inheritance contributes to crime is of course uncertain. A combination of bad influences presents a hard task for counter efforts. The fact that crime is almost invariably found out and that the guilty finally reach stern justice does not seem to check the crime mania.

Reaction Threatens. An officer connected with Nebraska's liquor law enforcement expresses a good deal of horror over the lengths to which drinking has extended. His duties take him into all parts of the state, and while he has never been a prohibitionist, he is inclined to believe a strong reaction against liquor will come in due time unless the wisdom of moderation and restraint is permitted to rule. He says liquor is too much flouted. Young persons think it is smart to indulge in alcoholic drinks. Without the fact of concealment, they yield to excess, and in time find themselves hopeless slaves. Those who parade the use of liquor and invite young persons in the (Continued on page four)

FARM IS BEST FAMILY HOME

Opportunities Are Many In Agriculture Says Lincoln Speaker.

"The farm is the finest place to raise a family" is the opinion of Col. J. C. Price of the Lincoln Joint Land Bank of Lincoln, expressed in an address to the Kiwanis club Monday following the noonday luncheon at Hotel Stratton. "Opportunities here are scarcely scratched. Mechanized farming is with us and must be recognized."

Some people think that soon there will be nothing but 40-acre farms. Col. Price disagrees with this idea. Loans on larger farms are easier to get than on the small ones. Tenant farming is increasing. In Iowa as high as 80 percent of the farming is tenantry and is increasing all through the country.

The best agricultural country is in this part of the United States, according to the speaker, even if it has been discouraging the last few years. Livestock is not a business without merit. The 4-H clubs educate the boys in methods handed down from father to son in former years. It has been only in recent years that animal husbandry has been taught in schools.

Nebraska, which has been designated as the white spot in the United States because of no special taxes, is better without industries, continued Col. Price. He had formerly been in the coal business. The unions are hard to deal with. When one man in the big business has attained success, others are jealous and try to condemn him. The industries do not give a continuous line of employment through a number of years as agriculture does. Industry will move to larger centers when successful.

Activities Two Gangs Halted By Officers

WAYNE YOUNG MAN DISSATISFIED IN PACIFIC COUNTRY

RALPH Jacques who, with his wife, returned the past week from a six months' sojourn in Oregon and California, reports labor conditions on the western coast the greatest obstacle in the way of trying to make a living out there. He says Portland is a hotbed of intolerant unionism. There one cannot start to get a job without enrolling in a union, and he is not sure if he does. At Eugene, where his father-in-law, W. H. Gifford, is satisfactorily employed, the union does not dominate. There are no strikes there, because workmen have to have jobs before they can strike, and unemployment is the big problem. It is made more grievous at this time by reason of suspended activities on the part of saw-mills and canneries. Down at Sacramento, Calif., where Ralph last pitched his tent, he found labor conditions paralyzed by an over-production of Japs. The Japs are scattered numerously over the surrounding country, work for less and consume less. The Japs make tough competition. Altogether, Ralph was not satisfied with what he experienced in the coast country, and he felt greatly relieved when he landed back in Nebraska.

He explained that he could furnish bond but wished to be taken before the district judge for sentence.

Operetta Chosen For Grade Pupils

Students In Wayne School Will Be Presented in Show In April

An operetta, "Punch and Judy," by C. A. Grant-Schaefer, with libretto by Theodosia Rayner, has been selected by the grade teachers at the Wayne high school for presentation April 8. Most of the children from the first through the sixth grades will participate in the two-act comedy. Work was begun on the musical scores this week.

Junior High News

Seventh graders who have received 100 in spelling for two consecutive weeks are Betty Moister and Dorothy Nelson. Sixth graders are Delmar Davis, Maxine Johnson, Lois Lindsay and John Phipps. Sixth graders have been writing paragraphs about how things were one then and now. They have also made up stories, imagining how things were invented. Monday they told the true stories of inventions.

The junior high girls' gym class is working on drills and marching. The sixth graders have received a letter from Marjorie Berg, who left recently for Chicago.

Art Portfolios, being made by the sixth grade students, will be used as a file for their art work. The students are reading the story of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

Eighth grade students are working on ink sketches in art. Hats were the first objects sketched and this week pupils began work on fruit and lamps.

The seventh grade is continuing work on perspective by drawing houses with two vanishing points in a study of black and white.

An art appreciation course is being offered in high school the second semester. Last week the students studied principles of design.

The following sixth graders received 100 in arithmetic contest last week: Patty Thompson, Marcella Bruggler, Nancy Mines and Delmar Davis. Marilyn Stratton's team defeated Patty Thompson's by score of 73 to 71.

Over 30 have enrolled in the dramatics class which is being offered this semester. The first of the semester is being devoted to fundamental work.

Grade News. Fifth graders who received 100 in spelling last week are: Eleanor Brantack, Bob Birdsall, Donna Granquist, Harold Kohrt, Patty Love, Richard Sala, Jacqueline Lightman, Carla Wright and Lois Zepplin.

Students are making a list of metals which they have studied. The fifth grade has been divided into two sides which are competing in an arithmetic contest. The losing side will give a party for the winners.

The girls in the fourth grade are dressing dolls in pilot uniforms and as stewardesses to be placed in the model airplane which the boys are building.

Nineteen fifth graders are now on the dental honor roll. In geography class the students are making a study of Europe.

Johnny Hawkins brought a sample of balloon and rope which was used in the last stratosphere flight. This was of particular interest to the students because of their study in aircraft.

The students have begun to write a play taken from an airplane story. Billy Heine gave a report in the third grade about the lake dwellers of Switzerland. The children also drew pictures of the lake dwellers homes. These pictures will be made into a notebook.

Kindergartners are making mail trucks, mail bags, postman's caps and bags in their study of the postoffice. Each child is taking his turn in acting as postmaster and thereby learning how to make change.

Harold Corzine's sign was chosen as the best and has been placed over the door of the model postoffice.

Shirley Jean Thompson has enrolled in the kindergarten. Wednesday afternoon last week Lloyd Russell entertained the other pupils in the third grade in honor of his eighth birthday. Each child received an individual cupcake with candle.

Farm and AAA News

From the County Agent

To be a good pig club member a boy must have interest, ability, knowledge, patience and confidence, says Paul Durbin of the agricultural department. Interest in the work may be secured by securing cooperation of parents, pointing out men who have been successful in the hog business as a result of their information and experience gained in pig club work, helping the member select an animal that is better than the average market hog.

Mr. Durbin advises club members to get a bred sow from a prominent breeder. If several buy open gilts, Mr. Durbin advises them to go together and buy an outstanding boar to mate their sows.

A boy must be well to develop ability in his work. This ability gives him good judgment in his club work as well as in his future career. He will perform duties regularly and punctually. Use of knowledge is important. "Know when to do the right thing at the right time," advises Mr. Durbin. The club boy should know about proper mating, balanced ration, swine sanitation, selection and preparation of stock for show.

Club workers should realize that everything is not always rosy so they should not give up at the first disappointment.

Fabrics can be fireproofed and made safer for clothing and house furnishings by a simple, inexpensive home process of dipping them in colorless liquid, a solution of seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid in two quarts of hot water. This will not prevent fabrics from injury by flames or intense heat but it will prevent the fabric from bursting into flame and spreading fires that endanger life and cause destruction of homes.

Fabrics are dipped in the solution, then wrung out and allowed to dry. Treated cloth may be ironed just before it is dry. The solution may also be applied by sprinkling or spraying the fabric enough to moisten it.

Fireproofing is particularly desirable for curtains, drapes and rugs, near fireplaces or even for children's play suits. The solution is not waterproof so the process would have to be repeated after garments were washed.

Contour farming in a square-fenced field usually makes a number of short rows or point rows in the corners. Many farmers are getting rid of these point rows by rebuilding fences parallel with the curvature of the contour.

Hogs can be bred to dress out a higher percentage of choice cuts, according to comparisons of foreign and domestic carcasses. Danish carcasses produced 18.3 percent hams, 12.4 percent bacon and 16.4 percent loin. American breeds dressed out 17.5 percent ham, 22.3 percent bacon and 12.3 percent loin. The plan of introducing Danish hogs for breeding and study was to improve the American hog.

Prices of slaughter cows and of lower grade steers probably will not change greatly during the first half of 1938, according to the bureau of economics. With the number of cattle on feed in the cornbelt states January 1 about 15 percent larger than the number on feed in the area a year earlier, supplies of well-finished, grain-fed cattle are expected to increase considerably in the late winter and spring months.

Nebraska's first bindweed district under the new state law is now tentatively set in Scotts Bluff county. The district includes 29,000 acres.

Definite evidence that sorghum grain compares favorably to corn for sheep and swine was advanced this week by Agent Walter Moller. In feeding tests at Lincoln the feeding value of white kafir corn and yellow shelled corn, also the desirability of grinding kafir corn were determined. The whole kafir corn appeared to be the most palatable grain. Figs fed kafir gained 1.82 pounds a day while the corn shelled lot gained 1.64 pounds. On the basis of grain required to produce 100 pounds of gain, the whole kafir proved to be practically 95 percent as valuable as shelled corn.

As the kafir was ground more finely, the palatability declined. The rate of gain also declined. It was concluded that disregarding the cost of grinding, the whole kafir showed to best advantage.

In another test of feeding corn and Sooner Milo to sheep, there appeared to be no great differences in the feeding value of the two grains. Daily gains were practically the same, and the condition of lambs, at conclusion of the test was reported the same. Charging corn and milo off at 1c per pound, the cost of producing 100 pounds of gain on the corn lot was $8.17 and on the milo lot, $7.86.

Native trees from stream banks will be planted this spring to demonstrate methods of economical erosion control on Nebraska farms. The trees will be used for gully control, for wood and post lots on eroding hillside fields and for windbreaks. The trees, planted by C. C. boys, will be given free to farmers who sign a five-year erosion-control program.

Wayne county farmers have applied for 3,600 Clarke-McNary seedlings this season. The trees are distributed for windbreaks and woodlots.

Farmers who seed small grains should buy a small amount of certified seed every few years from which to produce their own supply of seed for planting. This seems to get a good sound program for improvement of farm crops and a means of maintaining improved crops on the farm.

State seed law requires that seed advertised for sale must show a purity and germination test by the state seed analyst. A sample of approximately a cupful of small grain, sorghum, legume or grass seed and at least 200 kernels of corn is needed for a test. Seed can be sent direct to the state seed analyst, state house, Lincoln, or will be sent by the farm bureau office.

Distasteful TO BEGUIL an individual into breaking a law in order to secure a prosecution seems quite as reprehensible to us as the offense charged. It would seem permissible to set a trap for habitual criminals or for some one suspected of serious crime. But to ask for an accommodation on grounds of friendship to lead one to violate a statute smacks too much of the spy system practiced in Russia to suit one's idea of how the American machinery of justice should operate. That was done in Wayne this week, so we are informed. A fellow's confidence was cultivated and finally betrayed by a state sleuth. Then the local man was asked to sell some liquor on Sunday which he did contrary to law. Complaint followed and due fine was imposed.

We are just as unfriendly to liquor on one day as on another, and we are fully agreeable to prosecutions for violation of liquor laws. But we shrink from the practice of persuading some one to break a law for the purpose of drawing him into trouble. If a seemingly well-intentioned individual asked to ride with us and expressed anxiety to reach a destination in a hurry, and then had us prosecuted for exceeding the speed limit, we would think he was a Judas Iscariot. If one asked for a ride and we accidentally ran into a tree, and then he interpreted a skin abrasion for a wrecked diaphragm, as he thought the matter over, and accordingly sued us for damages, we would think he was Judas in duplicate. We don't like to see anyone lured into law-breaking to make a record of law-enforcement. The method is distasteful to our horse and buggy ideas.

Stefan Speaks A COPY of the Congressional Record reports two speeches by Congressman Karl Stefan on proposed farm legislation. The congressman pointed out that small cash rewards provided in the bill do not justify loss of the farmer's independence. He expressed favor for soil conservation and for loans to maintain parity prices, but he opposed the compulsory idea which would put a straitjacket on the farmer and make him handle his affairs on orders issued from Washington. Mr. Stefan spoke against extravagant benefit payments to big corporation farmers—a costly experience under the old triple A. He showed eagerness to help the real dirt farmer—the fellow who lives on around a quarter section and who wants favorable legislation without unnecessary interference. He appreciates the handicap imposed by substituting bureaucratic judgment for the farmer's experienced judgment in managing the details of his own business. If the farm bill retains provision for compulsory control, Mr. Stefan indicates he will vote against it, and in so doing he will doubtless have the approval of a big majority of the farm population.

A writer in Fortune magazine attributes high cost of government to local taxing units rather than to federal expenses. In common parlance, we would guess he is "all wet," and will get "wetter" as the social security law is given time to develop vigor and revenues. We have a suspicion, grounded on rather painful experience and looming prospects, that when the social security setup gets all cylinders functioning it will scoop up more tax money than all other tax sources combined.

The personnel on Main street has greatly changed in twenty-five years. Some have passed away, and others have moved to other fields. Few faces familiar in business circles in 1912 are seen now. Twenty-five years ago the district had no paving, and no modern store fronts. Time makes many changes in physical structures as well as personnel, and one must step along to keep up with the procession.

Alf Landon, our presidential candidate in 1936, put some punch into his reference to Dr. Glenn Frank as the "man who was a victim of another man who talks free speech and then denies it to the people of Wisconsin." We are glad to find Alf making such a positive statement, almost daring to mention Gov. La Follette by name as the fellow who edits speech to his liking.

We are wondering if the president's poses reproduced in Life's pictorial magazine were designed artfully to hurt the president, or were they permitted in order to tickle the vainglory of the chief executive with indifference as to consequences? That would be a way to curvy favor and at the same time to make aversion effective.

Senator Burke is so sound on government policies that if a presidential nomination should light on him, the country would have nothing to fear. In fact, if the senator were at the head of government affairs right now, forebodings would disappear, confidence would be restored and everything and everybody would spring out of the dumps.

Writing of a threatened third term for President Roosevelt, Frank R. Kent, political commentator, says the president will want a third term all right, but that he will not get it. We believe Kent writes with prophetic wisdom, because our feelings run in that direction—perhaps with us the wish being father to the thought.

The influenza epidemic of 1918 is referred to in a magazine story as the "worst pestilence of modern times." Was it worse than some of the present governments that are engaged in war and are threatening more war? Was it worse than living under a tyrant dictatorship?

Small businesses are represented in Washington this week on invitation to tell the administration what ails the country and what ought to be done, or what should not be done. Mid-western farmers should also be heard.

Groundhog day does not receive much credit as a weather forecaster, and if the elements settle down to springtime civility at the end of six weeks people generally will be satisfied.

An Encouraging Sign.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: One of the really encouraging signs of the times in the west is the increasing interest in "town hall meetings" of farmers to discuss proposed agricultural legislation. Farmers will find a way out of their difficulties if allowed a free hand and not swayed too much by bureaucratic influence. At practically all of these meetings of actual farmers the sentiment against federal control and the imposition of fines and penalties for non-compliance is so overwhelming that Secretary Wallace and congress will do well to take it into consideration.

In Los Angeles.

Lincoln Journal: The law enforcement situation in Los Angeles is deplorable. Gang outbreaks are frequent. The lives of public officials and crime investigators have been threatened. One investigator found it necessary to send his wife and small son to Hawaii to get them away from threats of harm and kidnapping. One investigator is in a hospital badly injured because of an explosion brought about by a bomb being attached to the engine of his car. A police captain is under arrest in connection with this bombing. The chief of police has refused to suspend from duty officers who have been accused by a legislative committee and whose suspensions were requested. California is due for a vigorous war against gangsters and criminals, and the sooner it comes the more comfortable will be the residents of the southern part of the state.

Franklin An Inspiration.

Young people who think there is little chance for them to get places of usefulness should study the life of Benjamin Franklin, who was born 232 years ago. He not only found jobs, he created jobs and laid foundations for job making that affect the prospect of young men and women in our time. The outlook for Franklin as a boy didn't appear to be good. He was the fifteenth of the 17 children of his family. There wasn't much talk of forbidding child labor in those days. Franklin was a regular worker in his father's tallow chandler's shop when he was 11. The following year he was apprenticed to his brother, a printer. He learned the trade, but tired of it after five years and ran away. He tried New York and couldn't find steady employment. He made his way to Philadelphia and began a career which brought fame to that city and glory to his country. In a pioneer society where money was scarce and opportunities few, Benjamin Franklin became a printer, a publisher, a scientist, a founder of a college, a prime mover in founding the American Philosophical society, a renowned diplomat, a founder of the first public library in America, and a statesman and man of letters. Young people should review the life of Franklin today and take courage.

The Mysterious Universe.

"The unscientific inventor may exclaim in despair that the forces of nature are in a conspiracy to prevent his perpetual-motion machine from working, while the scientist knows that the obstacle is a far more serious barrier than a conspiracy; it is natural law. And so, again, the zealous but unenlightened social reformer and the ignorant politician are alike apt to see conspiracies of the deepest dye behind the operation of those economic laws which make it impossible to extract a quart out of a pint pot."

Sir James Hopwood Jeans, the astronomer and physicist, wrote the above long ago. It was 1930. The depression was a babe in arms. Franklin D. Roosevelt, as governor of New York, was denouncing "the doctrine of regulation and legislation by master minds" and extolling the "marvelous elasticity" of our Constitution. William O. Douglas was laying down the law in Yale classrooms without appeal, and Rexford Guy Tugwell was teaching economics at Columbia, and having the last word. Tommy Corcoran was just discovering that he could lose money in Wall Street as well as make it. It seems long ago. All has been repeated since, with the possible exception of natural law.

If the alchemist and astrologers of Washington are interested, they will find the passage on Pages 94 and 95 of 'Jeans' The Mysterious Universe, Macmillan, 1930.

GLENN FRANK.

Dr. Glenn Frank, new chairman of the republican national committee, struck out boldly against New Deal fallacies in his recent speech at Topeka, Kas., emphasizing that the group in power "is seeking slavishly to duplicate all the techniques employed by big business in the early days of the twentieth century," adding: "Political royalism takes the place of economic royalism. American millions stand to gain no more from monopoly under politicians than from monopoly under business men." He pointed out that self-government has been threatened by much of the legislation pressed for passage by congress during the past five years. He opposes the idea of curtailed production, advising that the "republican party must ground its program for business, industry, labor and agriculture on the economics of plenty to take the place of the New Deal economics of scarcity." The speaker deplored the notion that every senator and representative "must check both his conscience and his intelligence at the door of congress, and thereafter echo in detail the will and even the whim of the chief executive."

direction of ruin, do not strengthen their position.

Modern Advantages. William Allen White, sage of Emporia, contrasts present advantages with those of twentyfive years ago. He shows how much better off people are today than they were in 1912. The standard of living has gone up amazingly, and one trouble of late—causing loud and frequent notes of discontent—is to maintain the highest standard with reduced earnings. White reviews improvements that have contributed to comfort and ease, and mentions that no country in the world approaches this one in all of life's advantages. Then, the acme of folly would seem to govern the fellow who listens approvingly to designing birds who would saddle on this country one of the varieties that gall the necks of helpless victims abroad.

Sensible Habits Advised. An observer says the way to a prolonged and livelier old age is through regular habits of work, recreation and rest and due care in eating and drinking, with emphasis on consuming plenty of fruit and milk. Early excesses later exact heavy interest toll.

REMEMBERING.

Girls and boys in their teens cannot remember a time when the world moved along on an even keel, undisturbed by the feverish war aftermath and the subsequent economic collapse. For eight years they have heard of depressions and other calamities. Lately their sensibilities have been outraged by stories of human slaughter in other lands. Following the World war, private spending exceeded sound judgment and forgot to look out for the future. For five years the federal government has taken over the business of wild spending. Fortunes have dissolved and poverty has often reigned, the WPA furnishing an unsatisfactory substitute for individual initiative. But ups and downs have always followed the country's economics—not so pronounced as during the period following the big war, but sufficiently pinching at the time to make people fearful of the future. The closing decade of the last century brought market and business paralysis. The populist party sprang into existence during that period and made flaming demands. Soon after the war the Nonpartisan League took root and threatened the regular order. Now we have the New Deal whose fanciful ideas of curing a depression have precipitated a relapse with complications. Despite economic ills, young persons are generally better off than those of former generations, and they will live to see more economic order and more prosperous days.

Without Newspapers.

(Kansas City Star.) Just what a city would be like without newspapers is being learned at first hand by Portland, Ore. Due to a strike, the city's three daily papers closed Saturday. And this is what happened:

For general news of the outside world, the public had to depend on sketchy radio announcements, while for local news, street corner gossip was the only source. As a result, rumors ran wild, none of them dependable, none capable of being verified or disproved. Shoppers and theatergoers, unable to learn what was being offered, either remained at home or wandered about the city in search of information which they usually found easily by turning to their daily papers.

In addition to the inconvenience of going without the vast amount of daily information which the newspapers furnish as a matter of course, Portland suffered from stagnation of business due to lack of advertising. The function of the American newspaper is to dispense information, and so well has the function been performed that the average urban-dweller depends upon his newspaper as unthinkingly as he depends upon his water supply, his electric lights or his transportation. He feels, with justification, that in the familiar columns he will find the news and advertisements that are an essential factor in modern life.

Portland's experience will give its citizens an appreciation of the part played by newspapers in the ordinary business of living.

The Old Age Problem. Omaha World-Herald:—From three states in the west come reports of growing demoralization of public finances because of increasing costs of old age pensions.

In Colorado, rapidly becoming bankrupt, a jackpot distribution was made, under the law, to old age pensioners, raising their monthly $45 by a half this month. Colorado is resorting to innumerable taxes in an effort to bring its budget into balance, but with increasing non-success. In Oklahoma the old age assistance burden is expanding. In Missouri half the population over 70 is a public charge; the state must lower the age limit to 65 to retain federal assistance; and it is anticipated that 100 thousand old men and women will then be on the pension role.

In one of these states has any effective method been discovered of keeping chiselers off the rolls. In all of them, it seems clear, families are evading the normal obligation of children to help parents in their declining years, private income is being concealed, private resources are being hidden, and the pension roster grows into figures that come close to being the Townsend plan in operation.

There's a warning in this to Nebraska. Here, too, the pension list grows longer, and demands are being heard increasingly for more generous allowances to the aged. The state's conception of the payments as "assistance" is being thrust aside, and the plea is made for complete maintenance. County boards are extremely lenient in admitting more, and more to the dole, forcing down the average payment into a pittance.

The nation accepted the ideal of old age assistance as part of a general social program, with little objection. It is anxious to provide for the elders who reach the twilight years in poverty. It hoped they could be helped to maintain their independence of life, kept from institutions, by the co-operating assistance of state and nation.

But the whole effort will collapse through sheer inability of the taxpayers to carry the load if family responsibility breaks down completely and the bulk of the population, over 65, is added automatically to the pension roster. If the program does break down the plight of the elders will be pitiable indeed. Mistaken generosity now, too free a hand dipped into the public treasury, will undermine the social security, and weaken the national humanitarian impulse expressed through our various assistance laws.

Winter Should Be Welcome.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Snow and cold weather is always more or less complaint of suffering, inconvenience and expense, but the fact remains that these have a definite and vitally important place in the general scheme of life.

Man is so constituted that he needs to be forced into activity at times and cold is just one of nature's ways of spurring human beings to wholesome, healthful and strength giving activities which are so necessary in maintaining the stamina of the human race and preventing its degenerating into a race of weaklings unfit to "inherit the earth." Forced by climatic environment to make efforts to keep themselves and their families from perishing in the cold, men brave the elements to obtain the shelter, the fuel, the clothing and the food to keep alive and comfortable. In doing so they strengthen both their bodies and their characters, for easy living is not good for either although it is something which too many of us seek for our own welfare and for the safety of our country and our generation.

Hunger and cold are the stimulants that keep the human race progressing. Unless compelled by necessity to provide warmth and food for winter days man would quickly become as lazy, as unthinking and as unprogressive as some of the South Sea islanders who appear to be threatened with extinction because unable to cope with the activities of a civilization in which exposure and hardships produced a more vigorous race of people.

One of the inexorable laws of nature is that men must work to eat—and to keep warm, says one writer. It is well to be comfortable and properly nourished, but it is highly desirable that each generation experiences its full share of the physical and mental effort necessary to provide that sort of a livelihood for itself. Having the good things of life handed to one on a silver platter is not the way to build a sturdy individuality any more than it will build a nation of rugged people capable of defending itself against nature or against others who may covet its resources and possessions. And if winters play an important and necessary part in the lives of men and of nations it plays an even more vital part in the realm of plants and things inanimate. In short, rough and unpleasant as he is, Old Man Winter should be a welcome guest.

Adult Education Project Promoted The group discussions being held Sunday evenings at the Methodist church are offering many of the advantages of a school, without examinations or expense. The material on which discussions are based can be read in advance in the issues of the Christian Advocate appearing each week, but even those who do not read this material may share in the discussions and their benefits. There is no higher content-value than this in all the range of education. Questions to come up for discussion next Sunday evening follow: What do you understand by "the Kingdom of God"? What part have Christians in "building" the Kingdom? Do we expect too much or too little in our efforts to apply the Gospel to modern life? Does emphasis on "the social program" of Christianity ignore our dependence on God? Does "conversion" or individual salvation come about before one devotes himself to social redemption, or after, or during? Has Minor Operation. John Kai of Pender, underwent a minor operation Sunday. Card of Thanks. I wish to express my appreciation to my friends and neighbors for their nice letters, cards, gifts and flowers sent to me during my stay in the hospital. Mrs. Chas. McConnell.

Peru Takes Lead In N.I.A.A. Race

Peru grabbed an early lead in the N. I. A. A. race with a convincing 53-35 triumph over Wayne, considered to be a strong contender for the title.

Kearney, after edging out Chadron 35-32 last Friday, succumbed to a vicious Eagle attack on Saturday night, losing 36-57. Thus Chadron climbed into a tie with Wayne and Kearney slipped back into the cellar, having already lost one to Wayne.

Although Peru is favored to annex the championship, the fact that the Bobcats do not play Chadron may make that difficult in view of a conference rule which makes it necessary for teams to play every other member of the loop in order to be eligible for the title.

Wayne travels to Chadron this week-end for a doubleheader with the Eagles on Friday and Saturday. The result will have much to do with deciding the conference standings. Last year Wayne routed the Eagles twice on the Wildcat floor. Chadron has a high-scoring team again this season with revenge an added incentive.

Wayne Loses To Norfolk, 22-23

Missed Free Throws Play Important Role In Close Game

Wayne high's tossers calmly matched everything Norfolk's desperate Panthers had to offer but muffed enough chances at the free throw line to lose 22-23 in a closely-waged battle on the Norfolk floor last Friday night. Wayne missed eight out of fourteen gift shots.

Except for an early Panther scoring spurge which put them ahead, 7-0, the Norfolk team, cornered by Fremont and many of the strongest teams in this territory, was pushed to the limit to win.

Wayne went to work and narrowed the gap quickly, coming within two points at half, 14-16. Fast, determined passing and shooting were the features of the game.

The second half found the Panthers fighting to hold a slender margin and the Wayne five bearing down more vigorously than ever. Several times they evened the count but failed to slip ahead. A large crowd of fans was thrilled by the exciting battle as both teams sought to put the game on ice in the last few minutes. Wayne had a number of fine scoring opportunities which might have won the game, but a victory seemingly wasn't in the cards.

The game was a well-played affair with the Wayne boys putting in an exceptionally good evening of guarding and all-around play. Childs, Norfolk guard, scored 11 points for high point honors.

The second team tilt was equally as evenly-matched with the Panther reserves eking out a 20-19 victory after a hard struggle. Granquist and H. Johnson led the Wayne reserves with stellar play.

Summary of game results for Wayne (22) vs Norfolk (23). Includes individual player stats.

Free throws missed - Wayne: Wright (4), Graham (3), Fitch; Norfolk: Martin (2), Stover. Referee - Schelby (Nebraska).

Wayne Prep Takes Third Loop Victory

Entire Team Goes On Spree To Roll Up 45-27 Win Over Wisner

Wayne prep's orange and black cagers were in the best of form here last Friday as they showered the hoop with field goals to overwhelm Wisner 45 to 27 and register their third conference win. The visitors never had a chance against the relentless attack led by Bob Hickman, big center, and two sharpshooting forwards, Whorlow and Echtenkamp. The half-time score of 17-13 was widened steadily in the second half as the Wayne boys poured them in.

It was the snappy passing and alert guarding of the Wayne prep five which enabled them to make the victory so decisive. Wisner's team played their best ball in the first half with Worrell and Cook outstanding.

The prep reserves took a 24-17 victory from the Wisner reserves. Next Friday evening Wayne prep encounters Laurel there.

Peru Shatters Wildcat Record

Bobcat Offense Blasts Wayne Defense In Wild Game By 53-35 Count

In its first basketball loss of the season, Wayne Teachers college fell before the devastating offense of the rampaging Peru Bobcats on the latter's floor by a score of 53-35 last Saturday evening. The defeat broke an eight game winning streak of the Wildcats and extended the Peru string to eight victories.

The triumph for Peru also put the Bobcats in the N.I.A.A. lead and stamped them as the most powerful team in the state college circuits. Against Wayne last Saturday, the Peru scoring combination functioned at its best with fast-breaking scoring drives and deadly accuracy in shooting. With a team averaging 6 feet 2 inches in height, the Bobcats counted repeatedly on follow-ins.

Wayne led the Bobcats in check during the first half with the score remaining about even until late in the period. From all appearances it should have been nip and tuck all the way, with Peru ahead 28-20 at half.

Bobcats Launch Attack. But the Bobcats launched a terrific attack in the second half which rolled up a decisive margin. Wayne's defense cracked as the Peru sharpshooters, Greathouse and Halladay, forwards, sank a high percentage of their shots. Nor could the Wildcats muster a counter offense. Team work and basket-shooting seemed to be at low ebb.

Thirty-two fouls, 19 on Peru and 13 on Wayne, indicate that the game was quite rough. Retzlaff, Wayne guard, made eight out of nine attempts from the free throw line. Greathouse, Peru, scored 20 points and Halladay 14. Lingenfelter counted nine for Wayne.

Summary of game results for Wayne (35) vs Peru (53). Includes individual player stats.

"Little Five" Race Narrows As Belden And Concord Win

The most interesting race in Little Five conference cage history was narrowed to two clubs last week-end as Concord and Belden won desperate struggles to remain in the running for the loop crown. Concord downed Carroll 17-15, and Belden turned back McLean, 14-11, in the only league games.

Coach Phil Carlson's Carroll Panthers, a team that has whipped everything in sight outside the league, were in front of Concord for 31 minutes Friday night at Carroll but a story book finish with Jack Erwin playing the prince role turned the tide in the last 60 seconds of play. From mid-floor young Erwin swished the mesh twice in succession with spectacular one-handed shots and put Concord ahead, 17-15, as the final gun sounded. Gerry Swihart and Fay Hampton led the Panther attack with six points apiece while Erwin's efforts for the evening netted Concord eight.

Ten miles north of the Concord-Carroll battle front, Coach Moe Christensen's Belden Braves entertained the home folks with a 14-11 win over the McLean Wildcats. The Miller-coached Kenny Clayton proved a threat all night along and made the Belden fans extremely uncomfortable at times but he couldn't match Charley Arduser's long-range gunning that enabled the Belden win. Marv Lienemann turned in probably his best performance of the season at center for the Wildcats but neither Clayton nor a capable chap named Don Galvin could get by Belden's all-junior front line—Jiggs Brewer, Paul Casal and Bruce Leapley.

Last week the Dixon Irish were idle in priming for a trip to Concord this Friday. Meanwhile, Christensen's Belden crew will visit the Carroll Panthers and McLean will be idle. The Belden-Carroll mix should be worth the chips for Belden must win its two remaining league tussles to gain a tie for the championship while Concord must win two more to clinch the crown.

The Sport Log

IT HAPPENED

Yes, it happened! Someone squashed the eight-game winning streak of the Wayne Wildcats. Peru did it, chalking up its eighth consecutive win with that victory, and further establishing the Bobcats as the outstanding team in the state conferences.

It was no disgrace to lose to Stewart Haller's grand team. Wayne gave the Bobcats a stiff battle until the black and gold defense crumbled before the uncanny basket-shooting and relentless play of the Peru team. Wayne's efforts lacked confidence and coordination in the face of that sensational display of artillery. No one seemed to be clicking as in past games. The same thing happened last season on the Peru floor, which must certainly be a jinx to Wildcat teams. Peru easily whipped Wayne last year after the Wildcats had handed them a terrific trouncing earlier at Wayne.

So, giving due credit to Peru, we reserve our final comparison of the two teams this year until the second game is played at Wayne March 2. We still believe the Wildcats are capable of giving the Bobcats a much, much better game than the one last Saturday.

CHADRON NEXT

Always a test for any team is the long trip to Chadron which the Wildcats must take this week-end for two games with the Eagles. From reports of the Eagles' activities thus far their offense must be loaded with dynamite. Should the Wildcats succeed in bagging two birds in two days, they would be back in the N.I.A.A. running for certain.

BETWEEN HALVES

Between halves of the Wayne-Peru game, which was broadcast over a midwestern station,

Max Roper, referee, stated that the two teams were easily the best he had officiated for this season. He also said that either team, in his estimation, could defeat Doane or any other N. C. A. C. five.

"Shad" Darland, capable Wildcat student manager for the past two years, entertained listeners with his answers to questions about him by a Peru interviewer during the intermission. Shad praised the fine sportmanship and keen rivalry which has always marked Peru-Wayne games outstanding.

WAYNE HIGH

Even Norfolk must agree that the Panthers were lucky to escape with a 23-22 victory over Wayne high's hustling team last week. The Norfolk Daily News paid tribute to a "Fine Wayne team" which might just as well have won with a bit of luck on free throws. The Wayne team has developed a smooth passing game which depends on teamwork, individual stress on fundamentals, and accuracy on short, quick shots. That type of game usually beats a team of sparkling individual performers. Behind the polished play of the Wayne five are many sessions of drill on fundamentals, for which Coach Morris is a stickler.

A book which was presented to the library last week is the autobiography of George Westinghouse, great engineer, noted for his engines and other mechanics. Improvement Of Rural School Grounds Is Explained By Miss Pearl E. Sewell Discussing rural school grounds in the contest sponsored by the Wayne Woman's club Friday, Miss Pearl Sewell brought out three points: The school grounds of the county as they now are, ways that rural school grounds may be made more beautiful and what Woman's clubs can do to improve the rural school grounds of the county. "The school yards in Wayne county are not what might be classed as beautiful, and yet they seem not so bad," commented the county superintendent. She told of a traveler through the county who commented on the well kept appearance of the Wayne county school grounds.

As Miss Sewell visits the schools each year she checks on all school ground details and each month in the "Wayne County Teacher," speaks of both improvements and things which need care. In most cases, she remarked, the school board members have done well and have shown an interest in keeping school buildings and grounds neat in appearance.

Before school begins in the fall each year Miss Sewell sends a card or letter to each director asking him if the school house and grounds have been put in the best possible condition for the opening of school. Teachers are also asked to report improvements which have been made. Miss Sewell pointed out that little painting had been done in the past two years but no building looks bad.

More Trees Needed. Miss Sewell stressed the need of trees to make grounds attractive. During the school year ending in May, 1936, 42 districts had planted trees. Last year trees were planted in 53 rural districts. Of the 77 rural schools open this year, 65 have trees on their school grounds. Twelve do not. For the year ending May, 1935, 48 rural teachers reported that trees, shrubs or flowers were planted on their school grounds. That was the year that the American Legion was sponsoring a state-wide observance of the 62nd anniversary of Arbor day. The slogan was "Plant A Tree For Every Stump."

A need was felt for the repair of the damage caused by the destruction of Nebraska tree life for fire wood during the year of depression. Reports from the schools showed that over 567 trees were planted on the grounds of rural schools that year and that before the planting there were already over 1893 trees on these same grounds. One district planted 36 Chinese elms, another planted 17 walnut and American red elms, another six Chinese elms, another district planted a wind break of 93 trees and another planted 100 Chinese elms. In district 11 three spruce bushes were planted which were the gift of one of the mothers. In district 21, the only superior school district in the county, a pine tree was planted on the grounds by Fred Ulrich. He has done this for the past three years.

Playground Equipment. In checking playground equipment Miss Sewell found that 27 schools had merry-go-rounds, 25 had swings, seven had slides, seven had giant strides, 39 had baseball sets, 27 had teeter-totters, eight had footballs, six had basketballs, 10 had volley balls, four had croquet sets, two had turning poles and 15 had soft balls or kitten balls. Nine schools were without equipment. According to Miss Sewell's report 25 districts have wells and seven have cisterns. Sometimes there are homes nearby from which the water is brought and sometimes the children bring their own in bottles. Miss Sewell, who just returned from a trip to Lincoln, heard of one school in which the teacher's contract reads that she is to furnish water for the school. Teachers have been known to carry a milk can of water to the school for the day's use. Water on the school grounds is especially beneficial for flowers and shrubs.

Flag Poles Impressive. "The flag and flagpole have an important place on the school grounds," reported Miss Sewell. "I have never gotten past the stage of receiving a thrill when on coming over the top of a hill, I look down upon a school ground on which from its pole those inspiring red, white and blue stripes are floating." An American Legion man once told Miss Sewell that he could always tell when he got into Wayne county as flags were floating from poles on the school grounds.

The county superintendent stressed the following things which should be found on a beautiful school ground: Neat buildings, trees, shrubs, vines, flower gardens, lawn, walks and driveways, playground equipment, and attractive fences. "The fact that a building is old is no reason why it should be entirely neglected and allowed to become unsightly," she commented. "The planting and care of trees on school grounds should be a public duty for which every man in a school district should hold himself responsible."

To Beautify Grounds. Miss Sewell makes the following suggestions: A good lawn between the school house and the road, shrubs clustered around the buildings and fences and masses against the background of trees in the rear, vines planted to run over the fences and buildings, well established walks and driveways of cement or gravel, attractive fences and modern toilets. To complete the beautification a few flowers are needed. Wild flowers, shrubs and vines are very good for use on the school grounds.

Flowers, shrubs, well kept lawns and attractive buildings seem to have a silent influence on one's life which causes him to come in time to admire the beauty with which he is surrounded. It is well known, too, that this influence is much greater during the years of childhood and youth than it is in later years," remarked Miss Sewell.

In mentioning ways in which the Woman's club can assist in beautifying rural schools, Miss Sewell suggested: Encouraging the teachers, forming organizations in different localities to assist the teachers, conducting contests similar to the rural contest of last year and poster contests.

Turkey Hens Work 14-Hour Days To Make Early Hatch. Twenty-pound turkeys by the Fourth of July! That is the prospect at the Colson hatchery as the result of the establishing of a 14-hour day for turkey hens in complete contradiction to the present-day agitation for shorter working days and weeks.

Whereas turkey hens normally are dormant during the period from November to March, turkeys at Colson's this season started laying as soon as they reached maturity. The hens were stimulated in their laying activity by the use of artificial lights switched on at 4 o'clock in the morning. A scientific ration especially planned for speeding up production and growth was fed the hens. One hundred hens averaged 40 eggs a day.

The result of the increased day and planned diet was the earliest hatch in this section and probably a wider region—about January 6. In past years the first hatch usually occurred late in April. Of course, the hens worked only eight or nine hours a day then. A visit to the hatchery now reveals 400 hungry, active baby turkeys—three weeks old—being brought upon the 14-hour day schedule, unaware that the purpose is merely to make them fit for the family dinner a few months earlier than usual.

Special music will be furnished by Miss Bethel Anderson who will be accompanied by Miss Hazel Reeve. A string ensemble under the direction of Prof. J. R. Keith will play during the dinner. But It's True

THE KISS THAT LASTED 1,200 YEARS !!!
GABOR CSALLANY, NEAR BUDAPEST IN 1935, FOUND SKELETONS OF A MAN AND WOMAN WHO HAD BEEN BURIED TOGETHER IN THE 8th CENTURY...

ST. IGNACE AND MACKINAW, MICHIGAN, ARE WITHIN SIGHT OF EACH OTHER ACROSS WATER... BUT TO GET FROM ONE TO THE OTHER BY LAND PERSON MUST GO THROUGH INDIANA, ILLINOIS AND WISCONSIN !!!

THERE ARE TWO WIDOWS FOR EVERY WIDOWER IN THE UNITED STATES TODAY !!

THE MAN WHO ATE HIS WAY OUT OF OIL !!
ANDREW COULTER, A PRISONER IN MUSKOGEE, OKLA., HAD SUCH AN APPETITE THAT AUTHORITIES COULDN'T AFFORD TO KEEP HIM AROUND... (JANUARY, 1936.)

A motorboat is able to get from St. Ignace to Mackinaw in about an hour. But the trip by land takes approximately ten hours. The surplus of widows is due to the fact that women live longer than men and to the fact that men are generally older when they marry.

CONGRESS

"Managed Money" for Prosperity.
The "Committee for the Nation," which has its headquarters in New York, invited about four hundred senators and congressmen to a well-dinner the other night. The principal speaker was Sir Charles Morgan Webb, adviser to the monetary committee of the British parliament. Some American agricultural leaders were on the platform with the Englishman, who told the big crowd of American lawmakers how, by managing its currency, Great Britain is steadily bringing back prosperity. He answered a lot of questions that all indicated that perhaps if Uncle Sam would follow the British plan and manage his own currency everything would be all right.

Sir Charles said England used to control the gold supply of the world and that now it sells gold to whoever will buy at the best prices. Uncle Sam by his gold-buying program now owns and has buried in the ground half the world's supply of gold — about twelve billion dollars worth. Many who were present felt that the time is now here for Uncle Sam to control his own money and regulate the value thereof.

But nobody asked Sir Charles why it is that now when by managing its own money England is getting prosperous, she fails to pay Uncle Sam a little bit of the billions she owes us. However, that question was whispered by a lot of the lawmakers who sat at the "well" dinner. Another question which was asked the same way, was, "Just who paid for the dinner and why?" But nobody knows. A lot of British experts are gathering here for the coming British-American trade agreements conference.

London Letter

By ALFRED LARSON,
LONDON, ENGLAND.

January 19, 1933.

Scattered about London there are close to a hundred street markets which are of great interest to American visitors. All of the markets at first blush look pretty much alike, although some are obviously larger, dirtier, or noisier than others, and a few specialize in a few lines of goods, while others offer everything under the sun. Between eight and nine in the morning the costermongers, or hawkers, fetch their carts and wagons from sheds in side streets and line them up along the curbs of the market street. Some come already loaded, but most of them are loaded from wholesale trucks and wagons after they are in place at the curb. Between nine and ten the costermongers are busy preparing their displays of goods: polishing their apples, stacking their vegetables, hanging up and brushing their second-hand clothes, skinning and cleaning their rabbits, and so on. The odds are that they will get some rain each day, so they usually erect rickety scaffoldings over which they draw tarpaulins.

After ten the housewives from the neighborhood and visitors from afar begin to assemble. All day the hawkers cry their wares. Most of them talk cockney, East London dialect, which is almost unintelligible when first heard, but one can usually recognize the prices they ask.

One of the most famous street markets is the one in Middlesex street, better known as "Petitcoat Lane" in East London in the center of a Jewish district. This extensive market flows over into several side streets. It is open only on Sundays, but people flock there in such numbers that 60 percent of the neighborhood's retail business is done on Sundays. London-

Chills came, and the hot stones were snuggled close to him again; and once more the fever and then one afternoon a queer, sudden tranquility.
Basile and Annette knelt there as Shaw drew a deep sigh, and raised a hand to his brow and opened his eyes. "The fevered flare was gone."
"Basile!" he whispered and smiled. He closed his eyes and sighed deeply in relief. "After all these . . . these dreams!" he said and feebly groped for the man's hand. "Good Basile . . . My friend, Basile!"
Annette had not moved, except to work the fingers in their tight clasp against her breast. Hope rode in the achievement in her eyes and her breath was quick. She had brought him back from death, this man she had loved and wronged and lived to save.
"I must've been here . . . for long," he whispered, looking again into Basile's face. "I . . . I remember Little Duck and . . . and being cold . . . and hot . . ." face clouding—"I've had dreams, my friend . . . Terrible dreams . . ."
Gull Shaw had not looked at Annette.
"Those dreams. Must . . . 've been fever. I . . . I dreamed that damned vixen was here, Basile,"—making a wry face. "I dreamed I saw her, felt her . . . touch me, event' . . . Ugh! . . . such a dream . . ."
The old man holding his hand stirred uneasily. His quick glance went to the girl and Rodney, seeing, moved his head slightly. Then stared, eyes upon her, as if transfixed.
"Is this another dream?" he cried brokenly. "Is this more torture, still? Are you real? Do you . . . live?"
"Rodney!" the girl broke in. "And I came this way to beg you to forget the terrible thing I—"
"Forget?" he cried, struggling to sit up. "You ask me to forget? . . . Hot . . . Things come back now. The pain in my back . . . A bullet, that must have been Rickman's. Whose else? Your sweetheart's bullet, eh? Dear God, to awake to find you here . . ."
Basile, alarm stamping his face, gestured her to leave them and Annette slipped from the tent, standing alone in the dappled sunlight, eyes closed against tears, pulse faint and slow.
Tears had blinded her and she brushed them away to see that she had come near to Jacques, sitting cross legged mending a moccasin.
"The trader lives!" she said tremulously and in palois. Jacques exposed his white teeth in a magnificent grin. "We will want, now, partridge. You go, Jacques." He went at her command, as they all across the stream where he could see and could hear, wriggled softly backward into a shallow ravine where he had come . . . the way he had been coming these many days. Now, to see what he could see and hear what he could hear.
A aged man, Burke Rickman, after that first night that Shaw was known to be lying with life in the balance. Did he leave his fort by canoe and head up the lake, another scene from Shaw's establishment appeared, menacingly.
When he went down the lake, away from Fort Shaw, in a direction opposite that where the little trader lay, none followed. The westward courses, only, were watched and forbidden him.
Mongazid had come, demanding his three packs of beaver, but this it had hung this fortnight, and tipped the fabric to shreds, silently, more terrible in his silence than he would have been shouting threats.

Annette did not again enter Shaw's tent. Another, which she could occupy, now that delirium was gone, was at a little distance. She lay there sleepless that night and, at dawn, was up.
Partridge were dressed and from the breasts she made a broth cooked slowly thick with the nutrient of succulent flesh. When Shaw roused she heard and gave Basile a jut of the broth in a cup to carry to him.
Shaw slept quietly most of the day, rousing thrice for more doses of nourishment and the morning found him with renewed vigor, but before he drank broth again he asked the question that had been on his mind.
"Basile, is she . . . is the . . . is the ma's self still in camp?"
Yes, she stays.
Rodney's face clouded.
"I felt it"—with an uneasy movement, like an abortive shudder—"she came from . . . where?"
"The company fort. As we had the word of you she came. Running. She . . . One did not want a woman here but she commanded that she come and . . . struggling—"one does not deny a woman like that who demands."
"From the company fort, eh? . . . She'd been there, before Mrs. I saw
