CONGRESS

Highway Program Must Go On. Congress is told it must solve three vital questions before it can close this session. One is the labor question, because there are still about 11 million unemployed people in our country. Another is the national defense question, because the world still believes in war and because it is said our navy is not strong enough. Another is the question of our national debt which now is close to the forty billion mark. So congress is told to cut expenses by curtailing highway construction. Compared to road work, building of battleships would not take up the slack in unemployment because 85 to 90 percent of every road dollar goes to labor of some sort. With newly mechanized army service it is agreed that highways are just as important for national defense as are a few giant battleships. So congressmen who are told they must pass another half billion dollar bill to build big navy ships are wondering how they can help balance the budget by stopping highway work and at the same time relieve unemployment and assure national defense. They are perplexing questions and the guess is that when the smoke clears away the highway seriously hampered and that the navy will get its new ships as per order. Battleships Require Millions. There is a lot of war talk in Washington these days. The big navy bill, the second one coming to the house within a short time, calls for more battleships. Of course, Uncle Sam is not telling his army and navy secrets these days. Other nations are pretty secretive. They always have to keep their secrets. Uncle Sam has been more generous. But now that the war talk is going on there's more secrecy. The new naval bill will call for new battleships. Just how many, what kind and all details are and should be kept secret. But it is generally understood there will be several of the modern or super-type battleships. These modern ships cost from 65 million to 70 million dollars each. A twenty-foot concrete highway costs 20 thousand dollars a mile. So one of these new battleships costs as much as a twenty-foot paved road running across our entire nation from east to west. The maintenance cost of a battleship is tremendous. It becomes obsolete in fifteen to twenty years. There is maintenance cost on a paved highway, but nothing comparable to the cost of maintaining a big battleship fully manned and equipped. What, No Washington? The town of Washington is growing. The commercial club here expects the population to be around one million and a half in 1950. It's around 600,000 now. Over 130 conventions are booked for the town this year. Washington officials say there is no such town as Washington. This town officially is "The District of Columbia." Reform Must Come From People Themselves. Serious-thinking statesmen in Washington are giving a lot of attention to the warning of a very prominent minister of this town who told them from the pulpit last Sunday that they have to try something else if they want to cure the ills of the world today. He told them that they have failed to solve the unemployment question after all these years of legislation. He said there are still 11 million people unemployed in our land; there are still wars between labor and capital; there are wars among people over the world; business has not recovered and people are still hungry and all the things man has tried by way of legislation have failed thus far. His warning was to the effect that men and women have to reform themselves and that churches

Pioneer History of Wayne County Is Related for Women's Group

Pioneer history of Wayne county constituted the program for Wayne Woman's club Friday. Mrs. Mary Brittain and Mrs. Walter Weber related early experiences, and Miss Pearl Sewell and Mrs. E. W. Nyberg told of county history which they have compiled.

Have Thrilling Ride
Mrs. Brittain told of a drive she and Mrs. J. T. Bressler took one beautiful day when they lived at LaPorte. Mrs. Brittain, accompanied by her infant daughter, Maude, and Miss Maggie Bartlett, started out in one rig, and Mrs. Bressler and Miss Jennie Weeks in another. The women left about 1 in the afternoon and drove their horses and spring buggies over the prairie to the Bressler homestead where Frank and Mary Bressler lived. All enjoyed a pleasant afternoon. When Mrs. Bressler went to see if the horses were ready for the return trip, she was persuaded to stay for supper. She and Mary Bressler killed two chickens and cooked them.

But It's True

Mr. Hess was born while his mother was a patient in a Baltimore hospital. His father had been missing for six months. When the son met his father in 1916 the latter explained he had been suffering from loss of memory when he disappeared. The two are living together in Elkton today. According to piscatorial authorities, the bergall, a fish, seems to thrive best in waters around New York city. All but four of the fish caught by Miss Croux were bergalls.

was prancing along the road when suddenly Mrs. Brittain saw something large and dark in the center of the road. Before she could do anything about it the horse had climbed a pile of loose dirt; the buggy turned upside down and luckily the women landed on their feet; the shaft went over the horse's back and plunged into its side. The horse ran round and round with Mrs. Brittain holding tight to the reins and keeping on the outside of the circle.

Soon Mrs. Bressler's horse and buggy arrived. Mrs. Bressler caught the horse's bridle and stopped him. Mrs. Bressler took Miss Bartlett and the Brittain baby back to the Joe Beckenhauer home while Mrs. Brittain remained to control the horse. It was dark when they returned. Mr. Beckenhauer hitched his horse and took the women to LaPorte, arriving there about 9 o'clock.

It was learned that the five-foot pile of earth had been left in the road by a man who was sinking a well.

Mrs. Weber Speaks.
Mrs. Weber told that she and Mr. Weber came to Wayne 56 years ago, when the city was a pioneer village. They stayed in the Boyd hotel, then operated by A. H. Ellis. Mr. and Mrs. Will Weber arrived at the same time. The men built the roller mill and the two families lived together in a home in the west part of town until this was finished. Each later had a small house. The homes were not modern and they were very cold but the couples enjoyed their busy young life. Mrs. Weber related that the well ran dry each time either family did the washing.

The blizzard of January 12, 1888, was recalled by Mrs. Weber who told that the two brothers made their way home from the mill by holding hands and taking the center of the street.

The Pleasant Hour club was an organization having community dances once a month. On one occasion when snow was very deep the Webers had John Lawrence come with his dray to take them to the old opera house.

"The happiest and saddest days of my life have been spent in Wayne. It is not the number of years but how well we live that counts," concluded Mrs. Weber.

Tell of Early History.
Miss Sewell spoke of the topography of Wayne county and told of the organization of the educational system. At first the whole county was District One, and Dr. R. B. Crawford was first superintendent, establishing his office at Taffe in 1870. Nineteen have served as county superintendent.

Ben Miner was the first white child born in Wayne county, his birth date being May 15, 1870. Edna Brittain was the first born in Wayne.

on "Marihuana Weed," and Mrs. J. R. Johnson on "Underweight and Overweight." On the social committee are Mrs. Ralph Crockett, Mrs. N. H. Blugger, Mrs. C. C. Herndon, Miss Enid Conklyn and Mrs. Hunter.

Scouts Observe Anniversary Here During Past Week

Boy scouts over America were in uniform last week in celebration of another anniversary. About 80 boys in Wayne are scouts and are divided into two troops, one at the training school and another in Wayne high school.

Scouting began February 11, 1912, and shortly afterward a troop was organized in Wayne. Prof. A. F. Gulliver, scoutmaster at the training school, organized a troop from his Presbyterian Sunday school class 17 years ago. Prof. Gulliver has been scout master since and his troop is still sponsored by the Presbyterian church.

The high school scout group was reorganized the past year with J. M. Lockard as scout master. Boys who have become eagle scouts in the high school troop are: Tom Cavanaugh, Wilmer Ellis and Kenneth Peterson. Eagle scouts in the training school group are: Miles Tyrrell, Dale Hanks, Robert Gulliver, Kenyon Lewis, Carroll Orr, Quentin Whitmore, Jack Morgan and Alphonse Martischang.

In celebration of scout week the two troops attended church together last Sunday. The members of the training school troop presented: conyoaction. Wednesday morning demonstrating tenderfoot work, knot tying, and other scout projects. Bob Hickman was in charge of the program.

The scout motto is "Be Prepared." The motto is typical of the work which they do. Scouts respond readily and willingly to call. Saturday the training school troop had charge of the check room for the district declamatory contest. The high school troop assisted in the distribution of the city directories.

A display of the work which scouts do is being shown at Mines jewelry store. Wood work, metal work and leather work done by scouts are exhibited.

Girl scouts will celebrate their anniversary in March. A dinner is being planned March 4 at the Presbyterian church when local scouts will hold their rally.

Library News

Several books have been received at the Wayne city library from the International Mind Alcove, which treat widely separated countries. They are as follows: "Allah Dethroned," Lilo Linke, which is an account of a journey through Turkey made by a German girl. It brings the reader in close touch with modern Turkey.

"India Reveals Herself," Basil Mathews, gives India a fair hearing to all sides of the problems of that country. It is a serious book dealing with grave questions. Much of the writing centers around Gandhi, Tagore and Nehru. "Circling the Caribbean," Tom Marvel, is a book of the Caribbean sea stopping for brief visits in the interior and touching lightly places with which we as Americans are none too familiar.

"Madame Curie," Eve Curie, is a biography of Mme. Curie which tells much about France in which she lived and worked. Also, an intimate glimpse of Poland is given. It tells the story of a woman of high courage and devotion which has been widely commented upon.

Five additions for the children's International Mind Alcove include: "The Story of Li-Lo," a Chinese boy; "Petite Suzanne," a little girl of the Gasco peninsula; "Greek Journey," a story of a trip made by one minister to Greece; "Sean and Sheila," a story of Ireland; and "Corn," a picture series by the Petershams.
