

Mother's

Day Approaches — Lack of Pride—The Golden Mean
Brevity Relished — In the Country.

Approach of Mother's day re-emphasizes the world's closest and noblest relationship. Tenderness emotions spring from maternal love, and ties fashioned in the cradle and strengthened through succeeding years are largely influential in shaping currents of human life.

But if mother's counsel were invited and heeded, there would be no war and no crime! The average mother does not lack patriotism because she does not want her boy — an increasing source of comfort to challenge death on the field of battle. A sensitive youth is not a coward because he does not wish to be taken away from cherished home life and have his instincts of love converted into instincts of hate and brutality.

From war and threats of war abroad innumerable mothers must recoil with horror. In this country of uncertainty, the dejected mother must lift her voice in earnest supplication for freedom from alien threats and for return of sound and orderly processes. The one thing a mother prizes above everything else is the safety of her children. She wants to know they are healthy and that they are leading clean and useful lives. Boys and girls whose lives are charged with mother love, stick to the home hearth as long as possible and return to its benign influence as often as possible. Love between mother and children—mutual and undying—is the greatest force in the world.

No matter how old one has become, no matter how many burdens one has to carry, how many griefs one has to bear, how vicissitudes often carry one beyond safe borders, the memory of a mother's caress or a mother's benediction is a source of courage. Departed or present, the mother spirit comforts and sustains.

Confession of Weakness.

In the old days, people did not admit they were "broke" even though they had little or no worldly possessions. It was a serious reflection for one to say he was "busted" or to charge anybody else with being "busted." Pride ruled and credit was carefully guarded. Now the word "broke" is used with butiful abandon. We suspect it is sometimes confessed as a way to escape responsibility, or is fastened on others, to modify one's own ill fortune. To charge that many are helplessly "broke" is undoubtedly an exaggeration. People are often hard up, but seldom hopeless. If they do not abuse credit, but do earnestly apply themselves to their tasks, they may capture good luck and soon be back on their feet.

It is the indomitable will of American independence that often neutralizes its and brings back prosperity. This spirit contrasts boldly with that of oppressed peoples abroad who give up and abandon hope. In this country the timid down today may be up tomorrow, and the one up today may be down tomorrow. There is no ground for lousy men on the part of one or of groveling servility on the part of the other.

Two Extremes.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world — all kinds to make a community. Some are too lavish in spending; others too conservative. If the former group had its own way, the public treasury would soon be exhausted, mounting taxes would disorganize investment and going forward would be comparable to trying to travel on flat tires. On the other hand, ultra conservatives would obstruct improvements to keep down taxes, and the result would be no development and stagnation of values. The practical middle course is really the one that insures safe progress, keeping aloof from the rocks that are as much to be feared from one extreme as from the other.

The community with the lowest tax is usually the one that is doing nothing to improve and has little to offer persons who are seeking homes for their families or who are looking for business opportunities. Contrarily, wild spenders would, if unrestricted, make a community unwilling on account of burdens of debt. The golden mean takes into account costs without blocking progress.

Governor Praised.

We have heard many compliments in regard to Gov. R. L. Cochran's speech at the cornerstone laying in Wayne last Thursday. He covered essential points concisely, and knew when to quit. People liked what he said, and were glad he did not ramble around through fear he would not say enough. He is evidently familiar with the sage saying that brevity is the soul of wit, and he knows how to observe it.

For Another Crop.

If anyone thinks farmers are dismayed by ill fortunes of the past let him drive into the country and see preparations that are going forward to gamble on another harvest. Fields are being

Hoskins Man Is Found Lifeless Near Tracks

PIONEER CITIZEN PROPOSES TO FARM ON HIS OWN HOOK

William F. Behmer Dies While Walking Home Tuesday Night.

The lifeless body of William F. Behmer, about 63, was found Wednesday afternoon beside the railroad track a quarter mile west of Hoskins. It is thought Mr. Behmer suffered a heart attack after falling while walking home Tuesday evening. Sheriff J. H. Fleetham and Attorney Burr Davis, who were called by Marshal Henry Wendt of Hoskins, pronounced the death as resulting from natural causes.

Mr. Behmer's home is a pioneer farmer northeast of Hoskins. He had been in the Hoskins Tuesday afternoon. When he did not return home at night the family thought that he had decided to stay in town with relatives. After Mr. Behmer did not come home Wednesday morning, his son, Virgil, about 20, started search for him at noon. Mr. Behmer had no car and usually walked the track so Virgil started to Hoskins that way. He found his father's lifeless body face down in a shallow ditch of water. The railroad grade is high at the point and the ground showed evidence that Mr. Behmer had fallen and tried to climb back to the ridge. Virgil notified Mr. Wendt who called the county of officers.

Mr. Behmer had not been well and had heart trouble.

Mr. Behmer, who was a native of Wayne county, had always resided at Hoskins. He is survived by his wife, three sons, Raymond, and Ernest of Hoskins, and two sisters, Mrs. Henry Frevett of Wayne, and Mrs. C. J. Swain of Norfolk.

Eighty students will receive bachelor degrees at Wayne State Teachers college commencement this year. Dr. Joseph A. Serena of Norman, Okla., gives the graduation address May 26, and Dr. W. Earle Smith of San Francisco, Calif., is baccalaureate speaker May 22.

Students receiving the bachelor of arts degree at January and May are: Mary Alford of Wayne, C. L. Imel, Ivor Morris and Mrs. Edwin Ulrich sing hymns. Mrs. A. T. Chapin played the accompaniment. Burial was in Winslow.

Charlotte Francis Tracey was born at Mash Chapel, Lincolnshire, England, October 22, 1855. She was the daughter of William and Eliza Battle Tracey. She grew to womanhood there and was married to Thomas Lounds. Soon after their marriage, the Lounds came to America, locating at Marion, Ill., in 1881. In 1882, they moved to Nebraska, making the trip in a covered wagon and ferrying the Missouri river at Sioux City. In 1889, they moved to Winslow. Deceased was confirmed in the Episcopal church in England.

She was preceded in death by her husband in December, 1910. Surviving her are three daughters, Miss Rose at home, Mrs. Abbie Lange of Omaha, Mrs. Maude Long of Huron, S. D.; two sons, Herbert of Alpena, S. D., and Karl of Norfolk; one brother, Green Tracey of Osmond

New Party GOVERNOR Phillip LaFollette of Wisconsin is the father of a new political party which, like other parties eager to capture popular favor, he proposes shall guarantee a more abundant life to the masses, including editors and other small business men. Learning from experience, he seems to believe in plenty instead of scarcity. He is for a full stomach, which requires no imagination to understand.

The governor would restore to every American the right to earn a living, which sounds all right if one does not already have that privilege or if one is not out of a job and really wants to work. He overlooked industry and other private employing agencies unless his intention is to have the government furnish all the jobs. If he expects to free the government from the task of creating jobs, he should speak an encouraging word to private employers.

According to the governor's idea the government needs further streamlining.

He says it is in sad need of modernizing—patterned after what government, he does not explain. Not content with unprecedented power granted to the president, LaFollette says the executive must have more power to get things done. He declares for a definite annual income for everybody who works on the farm and in the city. He neglected to include a plan to insure higher prices for things one has to sell and lower prices for things one has to buy.

The one thing we like most about the new party, which is significantly named "progressive," is that it will, if fairly successful, absorb a lot of left-wingers who have been trailing along with the New Deal. Our Senator Norris who has always talked the language of Wisconsin LaFollettes, but who has been affiliated closely and sympathetically with New Deal policies, will be placed in a distressing plight when he reaches the forks in the road and has to decide which way to travel.

Untenable Ground NO AMERICAN administration ever asked and received more free publicity than the present one; no administration's lieutenants ever kicked more over what they charge is lack of newspaper support. What they really want is editorial backing, regardless of merit, in conjunction with a flood of news stories.

Senator Minton of Indiana, is reported particularly ugly. Of his complaint the Omaha World-Herald comments in part as follows:

Senator Minton of Indiana proposes the felon's brand, with fine and imprisonment, for newspaper publication of false statements.

Carrying on the insidious campaign against the free press of America, Senator Minton declared the only way today that the administration can present its case to the people is over the radio.

"You cannot get the story into the press of this country," he said. "The administration cannot get a headline in the newspapers; it does not make any difference what they do."

Gives Chalk Talk For Kiwanis Club

Dr. R. R. Stuart of the Wayne State Teachers college, spoke to the Kiwanis club Monday evening following the regular noon luncheon at Hotel Stratton. His subject was "Smiles" in the form of a chalk talk. The professor named the facial muscles with a chalk and explained what is done with them.

The lower animals wear meaningless expressions continued the professor. The reason for this is that they possess nothing to produce expressions. Only a biologist can see the similarity between a smile, a horse shaking a fly, and a serpent going across the ground. The muscular actions are the same in all these.

Corn Test Plots Planned in County

briskan, Arno Gammer, who is director of the national park service.

The old fence around the White House has a great history and many of the events in the past sixties years of American history have transpired within it. Daily hundreds of people who love American history have watched the workmen as they tore down the old fence. Many of them picked up little bits of the old granite which were chipped off the stone masons who were fitting them for the new fence.

The necessity for the new fence is that the old one is too low. Many of the iron stakes have been broken and become loose from the granite. Thousands of tourists who come to town annually lean and hang over the fence and many climb over into the south lawn of the White House. The new fence is expected to last for a life time and will eliminate much of the necessity for guards to keep crowds out of the grounds.

Many Patents Suppressed.

Talking about patents, one of today's big corporations is charged with owning 15,000 patents. It employs skillful engineers to develop new patentable devices. All suppressed patents are not useful. Many suppressed patents are succeeded by similar patents which are highly improved over old ideas. Materials were needed for reservoirs. Giant quantities of materials were needed. The job of building one dam has been enormously increased. Whole towns were condemned and moved out of the valleys needed for reservoirs. Giant quantities of materials were needed. The job of building one dam has been enormously improved over old ideas. Contracts for power from completed plants have also been questioned by some of the strongest advocates as well as opponents of the program. It is hoped the inquiry will develop what are the big facts upon all phases. There are many advocates of this gigantic program and there are many opponents—but the TVA is there. It has not only spent 155 million dollars but will spend twice as much more. The big question which members face is—how will the plan ultimately work out?

This entrance of the government upon a general power program has been bitterly fought by the private utility companies. More than 100 suits were brought in the federal courts, to contest the program from one standpoint or another. The supreme court, so far, has sustained the government's position. The hostility engendered has resulted in all kinds of charges and counter-charges and demands for an investigation.

Size of TVA Is Staggering.

The TVA investigation is now started and for months to come every phase of this gigantic government project will be gone into, along with an inquiry into the charges made against his two associate board members by former Chairman Arthur E. Morgan. Charges are made in Washington that perhaps this investigation board may be prejudiced in favor of the TVA. But so far as the house is concerned, it is satisfied that a fair investigation will be held. The inquiry will not be confined solely to TVA activities, but will also embrace the activities of the utility companies in the area and their opposition to TVA. By the time the inquiry ends the public should

This was about the time the 15-puzzle rage was making its appearance and while Mr. Bolton was picking out his apparel, a discussion arose as to whether the puzzle could be worked. Finally

Mr. Ayers signified that he was willing to stake the suit of clothes against an equivalent in money that the puzzle could be solved, and that he was just the individual to do it. The banter was accepted, and Mr. Ayers given time to earn $17 by doing what so many others had failed to accomplish. Mr. Ayers had two weeks to work the puzzle and knew he could solve it so he delayed doing so. Gradually his spare moments became devoted to working his "brain buster" but all of no avail. It stood without a solution. He took to rising early in the morning and sat up late at night and resolved to "do or die." The complex image hung before him whether he was sleeping or awake. Finally he turned the business over to clerks, lived on one meal a day and entirely abandoned himself to the puzzle. When he saw that his frame was wasting to a shadow, he desisted, firmly convinced that when it was said "so far shall thou go and no farther," the language was spoken expressly for his benefit. Mr. Bolton now wears a suit of clothes which cost him nothing, and it is needless to say that Mr. Ayers will squander no more wealth on the 15 puzzle.

WANTED:—To borrow $25,000 with the expectation of making repayment out of the higher income anticipated by going further into debt. In a recent studio address our president proclaimed the following magic philosophy: "The more you borrow, the higher goes your income." The higher goes your income, the quicker you get out of the red? If this new economy is sound for the government it should be sound for the individual or independent business man. Parties with cash to loan on the above theory should call on the Editor of the News, Ogallala."

Newspapers may be some exception to the old rule but the morality among papers and magazines during recent years would not seem to support this theory. As a matter of fact, publications issued by the government appear to be the most prosperous publications of the day largely because they do not have to go to bankers and business men for support and sustenance. If borrowing is the road to success for a newspaper then a lot of our contemporary publishers apparently have missed the road.

We welcome anyone to attend the meetings.
