

Premium List in... Herald-Progress... Big Annual Show... Rail-road Problem... Labor Union Imposition... Familiar Names in Politics... Public Improvements... Irreparable Loss.

Today's Herald contains the county fair premium list in tabloid form. The edition will be widely circulated, and extra copies of the tabloid may be had by those making entries or otherwise interested.

The plan of using the convenient tabloid in preference to the former book, increasing circulation, saving time and reducing cost, has been adopted by many fairs in recent years, and has given satisfaction.

Allen Cook and M. C. Bloss are working like Trojans and in eminently good faith to bring the Wayne county fair to a high standard of deserved success.

As to freight hauling, the railroads are still vital to commerce and industry everywhere, and it is hoped sufficient freight volume will warrant maintenance of branch lines.

Union Labor Burden. With exorbitant demands and frequent strikes, engineering by professional agitators... labor unions, with the evident approval of many higher-ups in political circles, are usually responsible for industrial uncertainty, lengthened unemployment ranks and retarded prosperity.

No Equality in Politics. What's in a name? Everything, if one runs for a state office in the Nebraska primary. American fundamentals to the contrary notwithstanding, men and women are not created equal for the field of politics.

Shortsighted Economy. A community, like an individual, may husband possessions and step investments, hanging to dwarfing tangibles and refusing to take chances, until in time nothing worth saving is left.

Interior Finishing Is Going Forward. Floors are being laid and interior woodwork being done at the new dormitory at the college. The first carload of furniture for the men's hall arrived this week.

Tall Corn Grown on Byron Ruth Farm. Corn measuring 14 feet, 4 1/2 inches has been on exhibit at Fritt's store this week. The corn was raised by Byron Ruth, northeast of Wayne.

In Local Hospital. Miss Lulu Ross entered a local hospital the last of the week for medical care.

Extreme of Torture. We heard a man say he was able to accept the inevitable philosophically when his parents and other relatives passed on, but that he was crushed when he lost his own. This is a familiar hardship. It is probably life's hardest experience to have to surrender one's boy or girl—a loss to which one never becomes reconciled.

Officers Are Elected to Serve Luther League Coming Year.

Annual convention of the Nebraska conference of the Luther League was well attended at Salem Lutheran church in Wakefield from August 10 to 14 inclusive. Delegates and friends from all sections of the conference were present.

At the business meeting Friday the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Rev. Emil Swanson of Bertrand, reelected president; Rev. Wilbur Palmquist of Omaha, vice president; Miss Alice Malm of Wausa, secretary for a second year; Miss Lozetta Gulleen of Fremont, statistician for the third consecutive year; Dale Lund of Wakefield, treasurer; Rev. Carl Anderson of Newman Grove, secretary of the Pocket Testament League.

Rev. Wilton F. Bergstrand, executive secretary of the Augustana Synodical Luther League, of Minneapolis, was an inspiring speaker. In harmony with the convention theme, "The Blessed Life," the pastor delivered four sermons which emphasized the true life and its source. Conscious of the fast moving and unprecedented trend of youthful thought, Rev. Bergstrand set forth a true gospel message so timely and potent that every listener saw and understood the "Way of Life."

Rev. C. O. Grahnud, pastor of the Calvary Lutheran church of Minneapolis, served in the capacity of convention Bible teacher. His sincere, evangelistic presentation provided an excellent and inspirational understanding of the theme of the convention and a desire to so live.

An outdoor service on Main street of Wakefield Saturday evening was well received by the people. Rev. Grahnud spoke briefly and the convention chorus sang. Other special services during the convention were a Sunday school hour, temperance hour, Luther College hour, Question box, Personal Worker's service and a consecration service.

The convention was planned and executed under the joint auspices of the Salem Luther League and the Nebraska conference Luther League.

cess and the general public for the interest they manifested. To the Wayne Herald for the publicity they gave us, we are very grateful.

THE third anniversary of operation of the social security law is proclaimed by the president and lesser new deal lights as a wonderful solace to the needy and safeguard to the aged and infirm.

SENATOR Walter F. George, whose candidacy for re-nomination will be in the hands of the people of Georgia September 14, is stoutly resisting the opposition of President Roosevelt who is asking for his defeat on the ground that he is not a one hundred per cent new dealer.

SPEAKING of the federal government's growing habit of piling up debts and fashioning new taxes, the Omaha World-Herald concludes: The burden of heavy taxation will continue. It will probably grow heavier.

Discussing the second new deal, the Saturday Evening Post quotes Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland analyst, as saying: "The new system of politically primed prosperity can be made to work well enough to get people into the habit of becoming dependent upon it."

The Lincoln Journal regards old-age assistance as a permanent policy, though it is menaced by extravagant demands. That newspaper points out that $200 a month paid to five millions listed in a survey as eligible would leave from the national income only $45 a month to those who would be expected to pay the pensions.

thinking—not willing to abide by every White House whim are marked for defeat. To satisfy the president and his circle of bureaucratic advisers a senator or congressman must be sure not to have any opinions of his own when he signs up as a lawmaker.

The death of Gen. A. McEachen, Wayne county farmer, recalls his activity with others in the development of purebred livestock until reversal of economic conditions checked such worthy endeavors.

Latest word from Secretary Henry Wallace's department proposes largely increased cash benefits for crop reduction next year. Total expenditure of $750,000,000 for the purpose is involved.

Rainfalls have varied greatly the last few weeks. Some southwest central parts of the state have escaped needed moisture, and the corn has been seriously damaged.

Jimmy Roosevelt denies that he reaped the big cash sums in the insurance business charged to him in a recent magazine article. He says he made only $170,000 in five years.

John P. Frey of the American Federation of Labor charges that the communist party of dark and evil purposes is numerously represented in the C.I.O.

Big Corn Crop No Tragedy.

Farmers in this part of the country cannot agree with the crop planners down in Washington in their view that the estimated yield of 2,566,221,000 bushels of corn this year is something of a tragedy.

Yes, a normal crop of corn in Nebraska this fall is a godsend. Cribbs will be filled, pastures will be used again by the cattle and hogs and the busy feed lots will reflect the abundance of grain during the winter months, bringing profits to the stock farmers.

If a good corn crop is a calamity this fall, we need more calamities.

The Alternative.

The 97-year-old Nebraskan who said he wasn't going to vote at the primary election this year because there were too many candidates he didn't know, told the story of why the primary calls out only a small fraction of the eligible voters.

How many of the thousands who ordinarily take the trouble to help name their party tickets stayed away from the polls this year for the reason given by the 97-year-old voter? How many who did go to the polls refused to mark their ballots for minor offices because they could not make an intelligent choice?

More and more persons are acknowledging that the primary law, as it now operates, is a denial of democracy, because it clutters the ballot with so many names the voter gives up in despair.

Two methods of making our primary law safe and sane have been proposed and should be thoroughly discussed.

It probably is not generally known that the voters are to decide this fall whether or not to adopt a short ballot amendment to the constitution.

Back of this proposal, however, is the obvious fact that under the primary system the people can't use intelligently their right to nominate.

Public Wedding Is Planned For Feature at Fair
What Wayne couple will be married at the 1934 county fair?
The fair board is making a worth-while offer to some Wayne county couple who will be married on the platform before the grandstand Friday evening, September 16. The board will pay for the license, provide a minister who is satisfactory to the bride and bridegroom, decorate the stage, furnish the instrumental and vocal music and make a generous cash gift to the couple. It is also planned to have many other useful gifts for the bride and bridegroom.
The public wedding, as planned, is to be an entirely serious and sacred ceremony. The stage setting will be beautiful. The entire midway and other attractions will be closed during the ceremony to add dignity to the event. This will be a long remembered number in the fair program.
All couples wishing to take advantage of this offer should get in touch with Allen Cook, manager of the fair, at once. The naming of the lucky couple will be kept a secret until the time of the ceremony.

Teachers Placed By College Bureau
Wayne college placement bureau, in charge of Prof. K. N. Parke, secured positions for 23 teachers the past week. This is an increase over the same week a year ago when 15 were placed. Cooperation Is Needed in Making Fair A Success
One month from today the 1934 Wayne county fair will be a matter of history. Whether or not it will be recorded as a success will depend upon the co-operation of the Wayne county people during the next 30 days.
Plans for the fair got under way a little late. However, the enthusiasm with which farmers and merchants have accepted the efforts of Mr. Bloss more than makes up for this deficiency.
Good exhibits are assured in every department. A very outstanding program has been arranged which will not be the same every day. Many innovations in program and exhibits are being introduced. Admission prices will be reduced and family season tickets are being inaugurated to make every day of the fair available to the entire family. All in all, the fair will be four days of education, fun and getting acquainted.
"We hope that the 1934 fair will be a Wayne county fair for Wayne county people and their friends. Will we see you there with an exhibit?" asks Allen Cook, manager.

Evening Services Close in Wayne
Closing service of the six-week series of Sunday evening union open-air services was held at the college operium last Sunday. The general feeling among those who have attended is that the services have been highly worthwhile, and that the experiment justifies making such services an annual custom, in the opinion of Rev. C. G. Bader.
The college campus has provided a beautiful setting, as nearly ideal as one could hope for. The co-operation of Pres. J. T. Anderson and other members of the faculty with the Wayne Ministerial association and the people of the various churches has been most cordial and happy.
Rev. Bader feels that the greatest appreciation is due Prof. John R. Keith, director of music, for these services. He has not only secured and trained the instrumental groups and led the singing, but has personally made the orchestral arrangements and transcriptions for every service. The Ministerial association feels indebted to Mr. Keith for this difficult service which was so efficiently and generously rendered.

Buying Ewes.
Improved feed conditions have caused an increased interest in farm sheep flocks here during the forthcoming year than for some time.
Carloads of western yearling ewes now are being brought into the state for replacement stock and to establish the new flocks. They can be bought for about what an early lamb sells for on the market. The ewes are costing from $7.50 to $8 per head this year. They are good rustlers, relatively free from parasites and will justly shear heavier than native sheep throughout their lifetime.
Ewes, says Walter Tolman of the Nebraska agricultural college, should be bred as early as possible to produce early lambs which can be dropped for the early market. Ewes bred in August will lamb in January and their lambs can be sold by May or early June when the market is usually $2 to $3 higher than in the fall.
Flocks of at least 30 ewes are being recommended. One ram will serve 30 to 45 ewes. The income from such a flock will justify giving the ewes a place of their own and good care while they are on an ewe may be just a nuisance.

Public Wedding Is Planned For Feature at Fair
What Wayne couple will be married at the 1934 county fair?
The fair board is making a worth-while offer to some Wayne county couple who will be married on the platform before the grandstand Friday evening, September 16. The board will pay for the license, provide a minister who is satisfactory to the bride and bridegroom, decorate the stage, furnish the instrumental and vocal music and make a generous cash gift to the couple. It is also planned to have many other useful gifts for the bride and bridegroom.
The public wedding, as planned, is to be an entirely serious and sacred ceremony. The stage setting will be beautiful. The entire midway and other attractions will be closed during the ceremony to add dignity to the event. This will be a long remembered number in the fair program.
All couples wishing to take advantage of this offer should get in touch with Allen Cook, manager of the fair, at once. The naming of the lucky couple will be kept a secret until the time of the ceremony.

Color Harmony Is Important Factor Color, like any other factor in dress, should be employed to enhance the person wearing it.

A color is modified by the complement of the color near it because a color will reflect its own complement.

One of the commonest color harmonies is that gained by combining different shades of the same color.

Four Influences Influence Destiny

Dr. H. D. Griffin Speaks on These Sunday Afternoon At Norfolk Station

Work, recreation, books and friends are four environmental influences which affect conduct and ultimate destiny of every college man and woman, stated Dr. H. D. Griffin in speaking over Norfolk radio station Sunday afternoon.

In considering the first of these influences, work, Dr. Griffin stated that "the path to successful manhood and womanhood is the path of toil. Culture of every kind is always the outcome of effort, never of ease. Unused muscles atrophy. Eyes that are kept in perpetual darkness in time lose their power to see. Habits of faithful and efficient labor are requisite to success in every field.

"Any proper recreation can be very wholesome. The true purpose of life and its education is serious and noble. It permits of recreation and wholesome joys and pleasures, but it should not aim at diversion or amusement. Diversion means to 'turn apart' from the main issue. Amusement means 'the condition or action of starting at.' The pleasures which please a true college man should be recreative rather than diverting or amusing.

"The books we read and love help mold and shape our characters," continued Dr. Griffin. Books can be so ennobling and books can be so debasing. Choose your books with the same care that you would choose your friends and companions."

"A man is not only known by the company he keeps, but he is to a large extent molded by its influence. The college man of woman needs to be careful in the selection of friends and companions."

There are three traits which a college man should possess if he is to retain worthwhile friendships and develop new ones. These traits are truthfulness, punctuality and courtesy. In fact these three traits will make more effective the desirable attributes in all four of these environmental influences which we have been considering and which contribute to a successful college career—work, recreation, books and friends."

Miss Mildred Bessire played two piano numbers on the radio program, MacDowell's "From a Wandering Iceberg" and Kreisler's "Caprice Viennois."

LaPorte Relics Are Prized At Wayne Offices

A roughly built set of shelves which has survived from the LaPorte court house is a prized possession in the office of County Judge J. M. Cherry. With the new coat of paint which it has been given Judge Cherry thinks he has the finest cupboard for supplies in the court house.

The relic is built with rough boards at the sides and back and three boards across. The shelves started holding supplies for the county clerk way back in the seventies at LaPorte, and they faithfully performed their mission in the county clerk's office here until recent weeks when they were discarded in favor of nice, new, well-built shelves made by WPA workers.

The relic was threatened with becoming firewood until Judge Cherry recognized its value and asked that it be placed in his office to continue its important mission of holding supplies. He is so attached to the new acquisition that he wouldn't trade for the nice shelves which replaced it in the clerk's office.

The relic is one of a very few pieces of LaPorte court house furnishings which were not destroyed July 4, 1884, when fire burned the court house at 4th and Main streets in Wayne. These shelves happened to be in the fireproof vault in the clerk's office at the time and in that way were saved.

Another relic at the court house which has survived since LaPorte days is the calendar and time clock which hangs in Miss Bertha Berres' office. The clock is not now running but it can do so.

It was March 3, 1876, when the county commissioners authorized Dr. R. B. Crawford, then county clerk, to pay $15 for this "intelligent" clock. The time piece is small, about 12 inches wide and about 24 inches tall. On it are two dials which tell the month of the year, the date, day of the week and time of day.

Though they may not look quite up to date, the old shelves and the old clock are among the most prized pieces in the court house.

Hull House Performs Great Service

That Hull house does a remarkable piece of community service has been realized by many who know of this settlement work in Chicago, but to visit the institution and actually see its functioning is even more convincing.

er who realized the great work to be done among these people, manipulated the purchase of the Hull mansion and in it established Hull house which has since served as a community center. Other buildings have been added and the settlement now occupies a full block.

ested in social work. These folks, usually specialists in some line, pay the customary fees for their housing. In addition they devote two evenings a week to settlement work. A doctor will give his services to the settlement. The same with a musician, artist and others. The young lady who escorted the Wayne young women through the settlement one evening is a store clerk and likes welfare work so she lives in the settlement and devotes two evenings a week to guiding visitors through the place.

Miss Addams died four years ago and one room at Hull house is a memorial to her. The Nobel peace prize and certificates showing honorary degrees conferred on her are among the relics in this room.

Hull house is maintained largely by free-will contributions. The institution realizes revenue from its apartments and rooms, this helping to pay for the regular staff. Other services are given for the privilege of being in the settlement.

Visit Grain Exchange.

Another interesting place the Wayne group visited was the grain exchange. The four were in the building Monday morning last week when trouble was threatening between Japan and Russia. That seemed to center most of the interest on the wheat market which went up and down so fast that great excitement resulted.

The grain exchange is a large building in the business center of Chicago. The exchange is open from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. Each firm with a cage like that in a bank, has three persons in charge, one to buy, one to wait on customers and one to connect with the firm headquarters. About 50 of these cages are in the room. Besides these the room contains four "pits," these for wheat, corn, oats and rye. A pit is a platform, octagonal shape, about 20 feet across and about 18 inches off the floor. Chairs surround it and buyers are supposed to sit on the chairs during the buying, but the Wayne girls found that they did almost everything else. They stand on the chairs and everyone seems to scream to the top of his voice. On tables at one side of the room are small paper sacks containing samples of the grains. Each sack represents five carloads. The buying and selling of the grains after examination of the samples cause more commotion than one would ever find at a football game.

The Wrigley tower was another place of interest visited. The hostess there has held her position at the tower for 17 years, ever since the building was constructed. She is proud of the fact that the Wrigley building is the only tower in Chicago from which persons have not jumped in suicide. Among the exhibits at the tower is a picture of Edward Windsor taken when he visited the place as Prince of Wales.

See Unusual Animal.

In Brookfield zop, a new place in the city, the young women saw the much talked of panda. The year-old animal, called Mei Mei, was brought to this country from the Himalayas. The animal looks like a nice fat teddy bear. It is black and white and sits on its hind legs much of the time. It is very friendly. Another panda died after it arrived in this country.

Chicago presents many interesting exhibits in the art institute and museums and the Wayne girls enjoyed these. Among them was Grand Woods "American Gothic," original of "The Song of the Lark" and the clothing which Lincoln wore when he was assassinated.

Wayne Was Chosen Educational Center By Pioneer Founders

Wayne seemed destined from pioneer days to become an educational center for higher learning. A plan for higher education was provided by the men who were instrumental in bringing the first settlers to this region. The original plat did not materialize, however. A second educational movement was the establishment of a Lutheran academy in Wayne in the eighties. Then, after the Lutheran school here was discontinued, the third educational plat was worked out, this being the Nebraska Normal college established by the late J. M. Pie. The state bought this institution in 1910, and since then the college has grown to a place of great importance in northeast Nebraska.

It was Willard Graves, the Illinois man who promoted settlement in this vicinity, who first recognized the value which a college might provide northeast Nebraska. By a deed of April 22, 1871, he gave 10,000 acres of his land in Dixon, Cedar and Wayne counties for the purpose. About 5,000 acres of the land lay in Wayne county. E. H. Hunter, George Scott and W. P. Agler were trustees of the land grant made for the purpose of erecting a college in the state of Nebraska, north of the line of the Union Pacific railway upon condition that said C. E. Hunter, Geo. Scott and W. P. Agler should make and execute a good and sufficient bond to be approved by the county court of Wayne county, conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties and file the same with the county court for safe keeping.

Mr. Graves provided that money realized from lease of the land for not to exceed five years was to be loaned by the trustees for not more than five years, the loan to be secured by a first mortgage on real estate of at least twice the value of the money secured. The trustees were to receive two and more trips back and brought out seven puppies.

A picnic at home alone is a new style in Oklahoma City. Rotarians there were obliged to cancel a picnic because of rain so the president delivered the boxed picnic dinners which each ate at home.

The car belonging to a Kentucky man, who was taking his wife to a doctor's home, ran out of gas and had a puncture. The man went to call the doctor and when he returned he found triple daughters in his car.

A Salt Lake hotel manager called police after departure of two guests because when they left the hotel lost two pillow cases, a blanket, two sheets, four towels, a bedspread, glass shelf, drinking glass and holder. The bed was left.

The winner of the Keuka college hoop rolling race is supposed to be the first of her class to marry, Mary Raiman, Hollis, L. I., was last in the hoop race but when she married Kenneth Sorensen, assistant college chef, she was first of her class to say "I do."

Mrs. Mitchell was walking down a New York street when her fox terrier scooted into a narrow crack between two buildings. The dog wouldn't come out and police-men couldn't reach her. After a time the terrier came out carrying a puppy in her mouth. She made at a half percent of rent and interest as their compensation. Mr. Graves further provided that after the first five years the state supreme court should appoint a board of five trustees to become a corporate and bonded body to lease the lands for not more than 10 years. They were to continue to lease the land for 25 or 30 years from the date of starting the trust. Then the board was authorized to sell all or part of the land for at least $25 per acre. When the sum of $125,000 was realized from rents and sale of the lands, according to Mr. Graves' provisions, then if an additional sum sufficient to make in the aggregate $250,000 should be realized, it was to be the duty of the trustees to proceed to erect a suitable building for the use of the college. The trustees were authorized to accept bids for location of the college from any place in Nebraska north of the Union Pacific railroad. If Wayne county or anyone in its behalf contributed $125,000 within a year and a half from the time the first $125,000 was obtained, then the institution was to be located in Wayne county. Mr. Graves preferred that the building be erected either four miles south and two east of the present site of Wakefield or six miles south and five west of the present location of Wayne.

If the sum necessary to make up the $250,000 were not contributed the trustees were to continue to loan the funds realized until this amount was reached. Then they were authorized to erect the buildings in Wayne county. Mr. Graves expressed desire that a college of liberal courses be established, both for men and women, also for any race or religious faith. Income from land not sold was to be used to educate orphans and poor children. A farm of convenient size was to be cultivated to help keep the college self-sustaining and to provide work for students. If provisions of the trust were not carried out, the land was to revert to Willard Graves or his heirs. Mr. Graves died July 14, 1875, in Waukesha, Wis. As nothing had been done regarding the college, his sons and daughter filled action to have the trust set aside. The land thus reverted to the heirs.
