Early Dwelling Being Razed on Bjorklund Farm

The old dwelling house on the Emil Bjorklund farm, a landmark in Wayne county, has been wrecked the past month. Among the visitors Sunday at the site was the builder, Gus Mettlen, and Mrs. Mettlen of Sioux City, and their daughter, Mrs. Martin Olson, and family of Concord. The house was built in the seventies and was one of three in that vicinity, the others being the Crane and Minea homes. Mr. Mettlen purchased the lumber for the dwelling in South Dakota, drew it across the frozen Missouri at Jackson and brought it from there by team and wagon. Those assisting in the wrecking process found many interesting ideas used in construction. Mud bricks were used between the walls, these being made and set together with mortar. Several copies of the Wakefield Republic can were found, also a Wayne Herald of September 28, 1898.

Federal Aid Money May Be Available

Proposing to get federal aid money and have a separate license for hunting to provide the state with funds to hatch and stock the state with a greater variety and number of upland game birds.

There are several valuable upland game birds that have and can be reared artificially and can be used for stocking purposes.

No matter what you do, eventually you do not get anything for nothing. The results obtained out of business or farming are the results of intelligent management and planning.

Just think what would happen to our wheat crops and corn crops if we didn't have intelligent planting and rearing every year.

And so it is with our upland game crop. Last year about 450,000 ducks, plus approximately 5,000 geese were killed in the state of Nebraska during the hunting season.

The federal government, through the Bureau of Biological Survey, has set an excellent example and has made an excellent demonstration of what can be accomplished in bringing back game through a planned program.

gram than some of the other states that are handicapped with small areas and large population.

Most every farmer has an acre or two of rough land which can be put to this use. Many other farmers, who participate in the Federal Crop Loan plan, have been forced to cut down acreage on various crops that they planted heretofore.

The game commission must furnish some signs for posting which would read as follows: "Hunting by permission only."

Our script law in which the game commission issued the 5th script for pheasants which the farmer can collect, is still on our statute books.

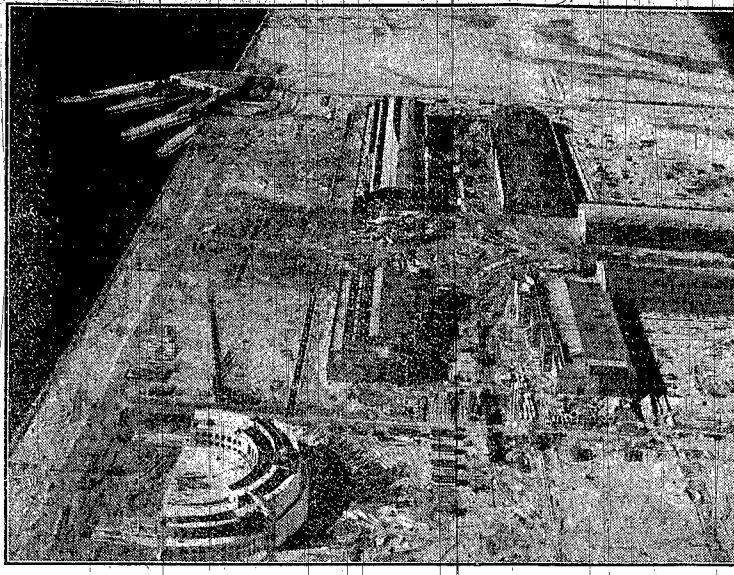

A plan must also be worked out for the furnishing of suitable feed and cover plants in the localities where the birds are to be released.

To work out such a program it would be necessary to furnish the game commission with more funds with which to work.

The Biological Survey at Washington is also offering individual states federal aid money on a similar basis that is now offered on the highway program under the federal aid project.

ing is generally a pretty ardent sportsman and goes out a number of times a year and therefore gets more game and more fish than the average person who has only one activity.

If some such game plan is worked out and presented to the next legislature, it will produce a definite income for the farmer for the efforts he puts forth in raising a game crop.

Washington doubts that the administration will succeed in controlling the next congress as it certainly will attempt to do immediately after it convenes.

It is the Washington view that new deal legislation that already has been discouraged or defeated and insist upon its enactment into law.

Mr. Roosevelt will bring up deal legislation that already has been discouraged or defeated and insist upon its enactment into law.

Opinions differ as to the attitude the conservative democrats will take in the next congress.

ern days. Undoubtedly the reason for this failure lies in the fact that there is a vast difference between actual values and real wealth.

Hand-headed men of affairs are trying to impress this point of view on the country and in an address at St. Joseph today, President Jeffers of the Union Pacific railroad declared that there was "only one thing, in the final analysis, that will increase traffic permanently, and that is greater consumption, which in turn means greater production."

It is the creation and distribution, the efficient and economical creation and distribution of actual wealth that brings general employment and prosperity, and this is the only safe and sane road to recovery.
