The fact that millions of dollars in school bonds have been voted in Nebraska in the past 50 years and that the matter has not been questioned by the supreme court establishes a procedent which should favor the Wayne issue, Mr. Berry stated.

As to bribery, Mr. Berry read rulings which explain that a proposition that is for the common good is not bribery. Some individual advantage must accrued.

mon good is not bitbery. Some in-dividual advantage must accrue to charge an offer as bribery The Wayne case provides public benefit and not individual gain, Mr. Berry argued. The general policy of the government favors issuance of bonds, and the section of this statute regarding issuing bonds by vote of 51 per cent has come unchanged to the present, he stated. All provisions of the act are germane to the title. In answering, Mr. Hendrickson claimed that the law of 1881, which was a statute to codify all educational laws, by implication did away with the law of 1875 on which Mr. Berry based his argui-

"Ten thousand Nebraska families on farms today could not have remained on these farms if they had not been able to obtain rehabilitation leins." declared L. A. White, stated director of the Farm Security administration, alse spoke before members of the Men's club and their guests last week Wednesday evening.

Mr. White explained that such loans are being hade only to those farm families to cannot obtain adequate credit issewhere. To date the total amous loaned in Nebraska is close ab 11 million idelars. Tae loans, spherally speaking, are retired in five years, and already nearly two million dollars have been repaid.

According to Mr. White the best basis for securing loans is a well worked out farm plan, character of the borrower family, its reputation for integrity and its incertify in wanting to regain a position of security figure largely in the loan.

"We make loans on the pre-

in the loan.

"We make loans on the presumption that a farm must do three things," said Mr. White. "It must provide a subsistence living, pay operating costs and retire existing debts. When a farm family sits down and figures out a definite plan whereby these things can be accomplished, they have a sound farm plan which is a good basis for credit."
