Moderation THE middle road in the endeavor to make a living and accumulate enough to support non-productive old age seems the rational one to inspire desire for other and greater values.

Vandenberg SENATOR Arthur H. Vandenberg, anti-new deal republican from Michigan, has a program of his own to present to the forthcoming congress.

Arrests of spies in this country of late reveal about equal proportions of communists, fascists and nazis. All are trying to betray this democracy to dictators.

Columnist Mark Sullivan discusses the likely course of the president's mind in the future—whether to the right or further to the left.

Castigating a world that has run amuck and placing large blame in this country on John L. Lewis and his CIO, Bernard Macfadden concludes with this advisory observation: "To raise the standard of living for workers should be our paramount objective."

Senator Carter Glass, sturdy Virginian who will be 81 years old in January, shed tears when national leaders paid high tribute to his service in creating and defending the federal reserve system, the occasion being the 25th anniversary of the signing of the act.

December 22 was the date of the winter solstice, the shortest day and the beginning of winter. Up to that time the elements were mild, the air balmy and the highways free from snow and ice.

It is probably a wise provision that causes oldsters to forget. As their years lengthen, they become increasingly sensitive to the world's injustices and distresses.

Let us join in spreading the good reputation that Wayne deserves. Its citizenship, its enterprise, its schools, its city government and its neighboring farm communities rest on foundations of real merit.

Of 508 accidental deaths over the Christmas holiday in the nation—395 due to traffic accidents—not one was reported in Nebraska. Delaware, Nevada, Rhode Island, Vermont, Wyoming and the District of Columbia were similarly blessed.

Formal New Year's calls which helped enliven existence in early-day communities, have been succeeded by many other forms of entertainment.

The picture of a couple married fifty years revealed each one smiling—fairly convincing proof that the partnership had been a success.

SHORTSIGHTED. A strange story comes to us from a central Nebraska town where for a series of years drought and crop failures have impoverished inhabitants and made hard sledding for everybody.

Checking Cars at Safety Lane

More Than Six Hundred Autos Have Passed Through Test.

More than 600 cars have received safety stickers to date, according to A. E. Davison who is in charge of the local lane. The cars average two trips through the lane, and about 25 cars are tested each day.

Most rejections at the lane are for lights and brakes. The state recommends bringing the car to the lane first for checking and then having repairs made so it will pass.

Editor's Note: Congressman Karl Stefan who is now returning to Washington to attend the first session of the 76th congress will write a column for this newspaper.

Members are now being both-barded with letters from other members urging them to vote for various colleagues for floor leader. It is generally assumed that William Bankhead of Alabama will be the majority floor leader and that Joe Martin of Massachusetts has the best chance for election as minority leader with James Wadsworth of New York his closest opponent.

Women who have been employed in the sewing project of the WPA and who have been laid off under recent orders have called at the congressional office stating that they were sent there by their supervisors who they state told them that the only way they could get their jobs back again was through congressional influence.

One constituent writes that he has a twenty dollar gold certificate and says he now needs the money and wants to know if he holds it longer he can get more money for it. The answer to that is that all possession of gold coins and gold currency by private citizens has been illegal since the recall of gold coin and currency a few years ago.

To all readers of this newspaper the congressman and members of the staff in the congressional office send their wishes for a joyous and happy New Year.

THE VOICE OF RELIGION

Current Questions and Answers about Religion, Morals and Personal Problems by WELDON F. CROSSLAND Rochester, New York

Name three of the chief religious events of the year. The founding of the World Council of Churches, the persecution of the Jews and the rising tension between the Papacy and the German government.

Dr. Weldon F. Crossland

Public meetings of Roman Catholics, Protestants and Jews have in their protests and gifts for Jewish relief revealed a new spiritual unity in America.

The influence of the church, its international interests and its properties have aroused the hatred and the cupidity of the government.

While friction will probably increase, history indicates that the church will continue as an active force in Europe long after Nazism has become a memory.

Can one plan his life for the years ahead? How? Yes. Most successful men carefully chart their future. They choose desired goals, count the cost, and then drive ahead.

How can one plan for the coming years? By deciding what one wishes to achieve by 1940, 1945 and 1950. Telephone companies chart their future a decade ahead, correcting their figures as population trends require.

Communism is a serious menace to religion in America? Communism is always a menace to religion and morality wherever it is, but one cannot regard it as "a serious menace" today to American religion.

Plan constructively for their success, giving special thought to the reasons for your past failures. Begin today! Why wait? Sometimes you'll momentarily fail. The inertia of habit will tend to pull you into the old rut. Did not someone define a rut as a grave with both ends knocked out? "Act as if it were impossible to fail," and you'll usually succeed.

Farmer Is Found Hours After Mishap

Norfolk, Neb., Dec. 23.—With his faithful dog constantly by his side, Coy Gaylen, farmer living north of Tilden, lay with a broken hip and other injuries for eighteen to twenty hours before being found Thursday morning by a searching party.

Gaylen, who is married and has a family, had gone Wednesday afternoon to get a load of wood. The load upset and fell on him. Unable to move, he was forced to lay on the ground throughout the night, with his dog keeping vigil.

Outstanding Record of Service is Completed by Miss Pearl Sewell

When 1938 goes down into history the last of this week, Miss Pearl E. Sewell will have completed an outstanding record of service for Wayne county schools—24 years as county superintendent, a record in this office longer than that held by any other woman in the state. Only five men have surpassed the number of years. W. T. Poucher has served Burt county 27 years; W. C. Dawson, Boone county 24 years; W. E. Voss, Dakota county 26 years; Fred S. Lecron, Platte county 30 years; and F. J. Voglante, Colfax county 31 years.

As time marched along Miss Sewell has served as guide and counselor to 1,500 teachers who in turn have helped shape the lives of thousands of children, many of them now shouldering their responsibilities in the world of affairs. During the 24 years, 2,684 boys and girls have successfully completed the 8th grade and have gone on to higher learning or have taken their places in other walks of life. These students from rural districts have done credit to their ability and training by ranking high in scholarship and attaining places of note in various lines of endeavor.

Those who have taught under Miss Sewell's guidance know best about her influence. She has studied the state course of study and constantly provided teachers with information to keep up high standards. Comfortable buildings, pleasant surroundings, display of the flag, good drinking water and clean toilets have been urged. Children who have needed glasses, dental or medical care, have been given help through the Christmas safe conducted each year.

Miss Sewell's teachers are most grateful for the helpful institute programs she conducted each fall, and they and patrons have expressed appreciation for the attention given to 8th graders at their graduation. Wayne county fair's school exhibit has always been outstanding. For this much credit is due Miss Sewell, according to Anton Olsen who has helped arrange the displays for the past 12 years.

"As a co-worker in the schools of Wayne county," states Miss Blanche Johnson, "Miss Sewell has always had her first interest in her teachers, and the boys and girls of the county. She has had a keen interest in education's moving forward and she has performed her duty toward that goal in the schools of the county. She has felt that the rural boys and girls should have the best in education.

"We, as teachers, have always had her confidence and when we needed any assistance we always knew in whom we could confide. She always did her best toward setting the many problems we had confronting us in our profession. She possesses the attitude of sym-

Old and New Are Intermingled in Czech Country

The modern and the old are interestingly mingled in the quaint country of Czechoslovakia, according to Miss Vera Kalal of Clarkson, Wayne college graduate who was here to speak at the school. One sees there all that is new, yet these people cling to many of their early customs on special occasions.

The country is one of great natural resources. Rocky hills are rich in iron and coal, and trees grow abundantly on the hills. Through the deep rocky passages flow swift streams which usually end in beautiful and valuable waterfalls.

The waterways furnish best transportation for the trees after they are hewn. Logs are bound together in rafts and young men guide them down stream to mills. A bunch of green branches placed at the back of the raft serves the same warning as the fall light of a car. Rocks and rapids in the streams make such travel hazardous.

On the mountain sides, which often rise to a height of 3,000 to 3,500 feet, peasants graze their cattle in summer. When the stock is brought in for the winter it is kept within a rail fence enclosure. Long-horned buffalos are used for drawing heavy loads.

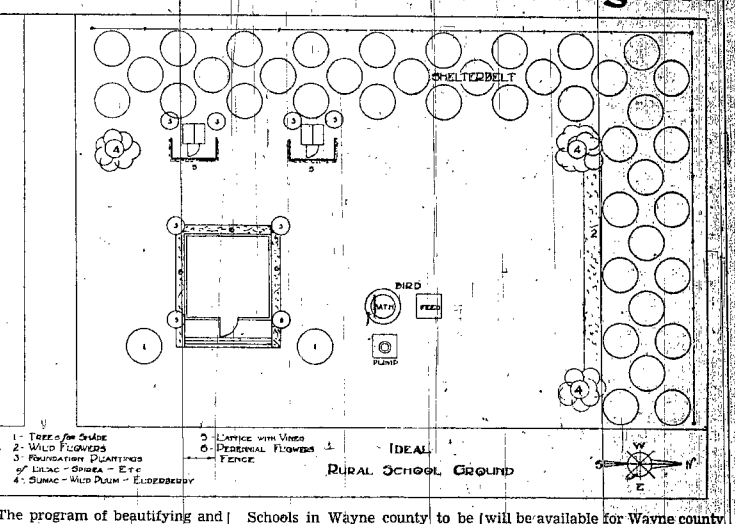

Hemp is one of the principal products in the country. After the peasants have cut the hemp they place it over a wooden frame and pound it with wooden knives until the stalks are soft and pliable. Natives then weave the product into many fine pieces of cloth. The Czechs are noted for their exquisite needle work.

The fine handicraft of the Czech peasants is displayed in all its glory on festival days or at weddings. Then all gather in the community square. Women wear their quaint dresses which are heavily embroidered on the full skirts, puffed sleeves and ruffled collars. A neat black apron contrasts with the bright red and yellow work on the white dress. These dresses are handed down from one generation to another. Distinctive in the men's dress is the woolen fitted jacket, which is sleeveless. Material for these jackets is made by placing pieces of wool in a pan with water and then pounding the substance until a felt piece is made. This material is also used for men's trousers.

Needle work, wood carving, weaving and glass work, in which the peasants are especially skilled, are left mainly for winter days. In making the glassware wooden forms of the desired shape are made. A hollow glass tube is heated until it is plastic. The tube is placed into the opening of the wooden frame and the maker blows into the glass until it takes the shape of the form. After the glass is cooled it is etched. Often two layers of porcelain will be placed on the outside and etched so that the design shows the two colors as well as the glass. Czechs also make fancy art pieces from bones. Intricately carved bones are designed into necklaces, brooches, toys, etc.

Besides their religious festivals and ceremonial occasions, the main way of passing leisure time in Czechoslovakia, explained Miss Kalal, is at the sidewalk cafes. Friends congregate at the street tables and visit and listen to radio programs by the hour. One may buy a cup of coffee and spend the whole afternoon or evening providing he leaves only a small amount of the coffee in his cup.

Beautifying and Landscaping For Rural Schools Progress

The program of beautifying and landscaping rural school grounds of Third district is making progress toward spring plantings. Originally conceived by Mrs. S. A. Lutgen of Wayne, as one of her objectives during her term as president of Third District Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs and now taken up by Mrs. Walter Kiechel, president of the state federation, to be carried on by the state conservation chairman, Mrs. Ross P. Moore of Broken Bow, the club women hope to make such a splendid showing this year that interest will be aroused to carry the project through to completion in years to come.

State Supt. C. W. Taylor, A. L. Burnham, executive secretary of the Nebraska Teachers association, G. G. Hansen, president of the district teachers' association, and county superintendents as well as many civic groups are cooperating with the federated club women in this worthwhile plan.

In order to make the initial plantings of the greatest possible benefit, the U. S. forest service, through the prairie states office, has agreed to make two demonstration plantings in each of the following counties from Third district this year: Boone, Knox, Antelope, Wayne, Cedar, Madison, Pierce, Colfax, Platte, Nance and Stanton.

Schools in Wayne county to be chosen for the demonstration plantings will be designated in January. Any wishing to be considered should send word to the county superintendent of schools or to Mrs. E. J. Hunter, Wayne. Although only part will have the shelterbelt work, the grounds landscaping will be done in every county of the district. This is to be carried out by the teacher, pupils and school district residents. The women's clubs, working through the county superintendent, will assist in finding trees, shrubs and seeds when called upon by the superintendent.

The design shown in the accompanying cut will be used merely as a guide or suggested plan of what can be done. Naturally it must be varied to suit the individual needs and plans of each school. The space at the base of the flagpole makes an artistic flower bed. Moss roses are especially attractive as a planting for cyclone cellar, and bird baths need to be built where the water supply is sufficient. The diagram is only a hint of the possibilities.

In many counties the commissioners furnish at least two ornamental trees for each school, these to be distributed from the county superintendent's office. In others, civic groups provide trees. Such will be available for Wayne county teachers. Any further needs reported to the county superintendent will be turned over to the club women.

The committee in charge in each county will consist of five members: President of the county federation of clubs, past president of the county federation, county conservation chairman, county superintendent and forest service officer, as an advisor. The county committee will determine the schools to be planted, complete the agreements for planting, complete and furnish diagram of the planting, arrange for soil preparation of the area to be planted, arrange for excluding livestock from the area planted, arrange for cultivation and care of trees.

In the Tri-County Federation, including Wayne, Cedar and Knox counties, the committee includes Mrs. Hunter as past president; Mrs. Muriel McClure of Coleridge, as new president; Mrs. F. O. Lundberg of Wausa, as conservation chairman; Floyd A. Houghland of Norfolk, as forestry officer; and the county superintendent of each county.

Not only does tree planting add to beauty of the school grounds, it also provides shelter from sun and wind, helps prevent erosion in the area.

The books on the adult shelves of the international mind, also were: "The Federalist," by Hamilton, Jay and Madison. As democracy is now being tested as never before, it is of special significance and help to have once again set before us the fundamental principles upon which our government was established. "The Rocky Road to Dublin," by Seumas MacManus, is a personal intimate portrayal of life in Ireland as experienced by a native country boy. "West Indian Odyssey," by Charles B.
