

FIFTYSEVENTH YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 12, 1939.

NUMBER THIRTYSEIX

Who Came to Wayne Fifty-two Years Ago — Frank Weber on His Farm Just South of Wayne — Lambert Roe Retiring from Meat Business to Engage in Some Less Strenuous Activity.

Frank Weber who farms — now largely by proxy — just south of Wayne, and Lambert Roe who is retiring from the retail meat business, came to Wayne the same year, 1886. We have talked to each of them the last few days, and we find both of them still deeply imbued with the sturdy, independent spirit that led pioneers to carve the advantages of civilization out of primal rawness. Both have seen fifty-two years of development in Wayne county, and each contributed his share. The vicissitudes of more than a half-century have given them a lot of wisdom that cannot be gathered from textbooks. They have learned to accept life's ups and downs philosophically, and to regard the enthusiasm of youth quite as important to youth as to social and economic evolution.

Mr. Weber started in a dugout, and he remembers that his standard of living was carefully arranged to keep everything in harmony with his abode. Lighting and heating followed the primitive order. The kerosene lamp was a luxury in contrast with the dim tallow candle. The hard coal burner looked with disdain on the refuse-burning old-fashioned box stove. No running water was in the house except what got in during heavy rains. In accordance with the economy of the time, food supplies were purchased in bulk — no cartons, no cellophane wrappings. Sugar — no granulated — was scooped from barrels. Dried fruits were weighed out of boxes. Coffee was taken home green and roasted and then ground in the family mill. If disease germs were encouraged by the way food products were used in the old days, the fact was not apparent. If old-fashioned home discomforts caused more sickness, results were accepted as unavoidable. The experience toughened the human fiber and developed a lot of endurance that helped make the prairies and fasten together meager means of existence.

Mr. Weber was an expert in breaking bronchos, and his services were in considerable demand in addition to his own requirements. He knew how to make a broncho kick to behave and to become an orderly and useful member of animal society. He thinks the automobile which has supplanted the horse, has afforded untold benefits, though when it is misused, as frequently happens, it rates as a source of great loss.

Mr. Weber says he was a populist when the new party by that name swept the state in the nineties. He thought some reforms were needed, and he justifies his position by the number of populist demands that were finally accepted and put into effect. He points to the independent thinking of the American people as a safeguard to our institutions. When a party in power threatens to depart too far from fundamentals to insure future security the masses call a halt and change the course.

As Mr. Weber looks back on the way first settlers pinched along, he is amazed at present tendencies to kick. No one should be satisfied to return to primitive habits of living, but modern advantages should spur greater ambition and inspire more content. He knows one cannot exist on earnings that used to be the rule, but he insists that each may gather sufficient strength by determinedly hoeing his own row to share in and help maintain prevailing high standards.

Here From Pennsylvania. When Lambert Roe came out from Pennsylvania fifty-two years ago, he found Wayne a young, ambitious community. He had little cash, but plenty of native energy and frugality. He decided to identify himself with development of the town, and he is glad he stayed. After rousing around for a year in doing odd jobs, while looking for substantial opportunities, he launched into the meat market business. Later his brother-in-law, Geo. W. Fortner, who also hailed from Pennsylvania, joined him in the meat business. Afterwards they engaged in operating a feed mill. At one time Mr. Roe served as county treasurer. When his experience in politics terminated — an experience which he confesses he did not exactly relish — he watched for a chance to return to his original endeavor — cutting and serving meat. This he succeeded in doing, and now he is withdrawing from the business, selling to his partner, M. V. Crawford. Though Mr. Roe does not propose to study himself in the evening of his life, he does not want to keep himself confined to anything so strenuous as the meat business. He is going to keep up his activity, but he does not expect to tie to something that

SUM EARMARKED IN WASHINGTON

The board is continuing to sign applicants. Wayne county rural power district has invited the state department of fire prevention to be in charge of the free wiring school which will be conducted here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, January 17, 18 and 19, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day at the old city hall. Funeral Rites Are Held Here

Mrs. W. H. Gildersleeve Was An Early Resident of Wayne County.

Funeral rites were conducted at the Gildersleeve home in Wayne Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock for Mrs. W. H. Gildersleeve, early resident of Wayne county, who died Friday evening, January 6, aged almost 76 years. Rev. W. F. Dierking and the Beckenhauer service had charge. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Oman sang "I Love to Tell the Story" and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." Miss Marion Seymour played their accompaniment and also the postlude. A large number of friends attended to show their esteem for Mrs. Gildersleeve, and a wealth of flowers paid silent tribute to her. Burial was in Greenwood cemetery.

Mrs. Gildersleeve had during the past two years become less active in her home and community as her health and eyesight were gradually failing. When returning home from a neighbor's December 20 she suffered a slight stroke and had been in serious condition since.

Mrs. Gildersleeve, whose maiden name was Mary Catherine Cunningham, was the eldest daughter of David and Virginia Cunningham and was born February 6, 1863, in Millington, Juniata county, Pa. In 1883 she came with her parents, brothers, and sisters to Wayne county. She was married June 18, 1884, to W. H. Gildersleeve and was engaged in farming and stock feeding south of Wayne. The couple observed their golden wedding anniversary in 1934. After a number of years on the farm, the Gildersleeves built a home in Wayne.

Mrs. Gildersleeve was a faithful member of the Presbyterian church throughout her life. Her quiet, loving character will long be remembered by her family and her many friends.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Gildersleeve leaves four daughters, Mrs. Mae Young of Wayne, Mrs. Cella Radaker of Newman Grove, Miss Wilma Gildersleeve of Omaha, and Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips of Imperial, Ia. All were with their mother during her last illness. Two sons, Frank and Lloyd, preceded their mother in death. Mrs. Gildersleeve is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. C. E. Gildersleeve and Mrs. Ellen Gearhart of Wayne, and nine grandchildren, David Young of St. Louis, Mo., Alice Mae Young of Wayne, Twila and Lloyd Gildersleeve of Hartington, Billy, Joanne and Marjorie Phillips of Imperial, Ia. and Kathryn Radaker of Newman Grove. Mrs. Gildersleeve's parents, a sister, Virginia, and four brothers, Holmes, Ross, Lloyd and Will, died previously.

Besides the daughters and grandchildren, Jane and Kathryn Radaker, Twila and Lloyd Gildersleeve, those here from out of town for the funeral were H. E. Radaker of Newman Grove, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Shumway of Hartington, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Gildersleeve of Niobrara, Mrs. Robert L. Potts of Bixby, S. D., Mr. and Mrs. Alex Cunningham and son of Madison, D. H. Cunningham of Sioux City, Miss Louise Smith and Mrs. Marcella Moran of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Most of Laurel, Mr. and Mrs. David Young of St. Louis, were here. New Year's week-end they were unable to return for the funeral.

Pallbearers were T. S. Hook, Prof. A. F. Gulliver, Russell Seynour, J. T. Bressler, Jr., Ed. Seymour and Dr. R. W. Casper.

Annual Court of Honor for the boy scouts will be held at Allen January 25.

PROPOSED TO HAVE ONE BOARD MANAGE NEBRASKA SCHOOLS

GOVERNOR Cochran's recommendation that the teachers colleges and the state university be managed by the same board could have no valid objection if the different schools were handled impartially. It is suggested that the way to insure equal treatment would be to elect board members representing the different congressional districts. It is plain that many young persons are able to gain higher education solely by reason of the teachers colleges. If the advantages of these schools were repaid — if curriculums were repaired — ambitious young persons would be denied present privileges. Cost of attending a teachers college is far below that imposed by a university course. Board members looking after all schools would have to be properly representative — fully appreciative of the important place filled by each of the state's minor colleges — in order to afford deserved educational advantages. If one board is to rule, it should be chosen by electors with a determination to maintain adequately equipped institutions for the benefit of all parts of the state.

BIRTHDAY BALL WILL BE HELD

Half of Funds to Remain for Local Use in Case of Emergency.

Wayne county is cooperating in the national plan to fight infantile paralysis by observing President Roosevelt's 74th birthday with a ball at Wayne auditorium Monday evening, January 30. Half of the proceeds remain locally and half are sent to national headquarters in Washington to promote the drive.

Frank Korff is Wayne county chairman of the birthday ball, and E. O. Stratton is vice chairman. C. E. Nicholaisen is chairman for Wayne, W. R. Scribner for Winfield, Geo. Linn for Carroll and Frank Phillips for Hoskins. Homer Smothers and D. S. Wightman are on the publicity committee, and R. K. Kirkman and H. E. Ley on the ticket committee.

The birthday ball foundation is a non-political organization formed for the sole purpose of fighting the dreaded disease of infantile paralysis. The aim is to have local chapters as well as the national foundation, each with funds from the birthday balls to be used in case of emergency.

Every father and mother realizes the urgent need to mobilize against infantile paralysis. The fight is to stamp out infantile paralysis and its horrors, and the national foundation produces the unified action to defeat this dreaded disease.

Regular story hour for children is planned at Wayne city library next Saturday at 2.

Make County Expense Estimate For Year

MEMORABLE STORM HIT MIDDLE WEST JANUARY 12, 1888

IT is again time to mention the memorable one-day blizzard which swept the middle west fifty-two years ago today. As often recounted, the forenoon was mild and sunny. Around noon, clouds quickly gathered, snow began falling and a terrific gale did the rest. Soon the air was so full of churning snow that one could not see a foot. Children had gone to school, and as the intensity of the storm increased, with few fences to lend assistance to safety in travel, many teachers kept their charges in school houses over night. Some who ventured out, were frozen. A number perished. Scarcity of fuel often forced the burning of tables and desks to keep warm. January 12, 1888, furnished a perilous experience for any who were not properly sheltered. It was a short-lived blizzard, but it established a record for ugliness. The next morning the sun appeared and people dug themselves out of mountains of snow.

It pictures the life of early settlers, courting and fist fights of a robust and independent community. "Benjamin Franklin," by Carl Van Doren, is a biography of the greatest man the western hemisphere has produced. The book is historical value. "My America," by Louis Adamic, is a book fashioned out of the amazingly varied experiences and circumstances of his life as a writer and immigrant American. The author writes of people he has known who have given meaning to his view of America.

Mrs. E. S. Blair reports the total circulation for the month of December of the books for adults as 1212. The non-fiction amounted to 159, fiction 718 and periodicals 335.

President's Message
IN his annual message to congress, President Roosevelt devoted major attention to a defense of democracy against foreign dictatorships which have been branding implements of war.

It is pleasing to hear the president talk of the blessings of democracy and the need of preserving them. It would be still more pleasing if the administration's record had not engendered fear by coming in conflict with free enterprise.

The president is a cheerful figurer. He said: "Despite our federal government expenditures, the entire debt of our national economic system, public and private together, is no larger today than it was in 1929, and the interest thereon is far less than it was in 1929."

Private debts are undoubtedly decreased, and many who were in debt have less, if anything. Often when people cleaned up their obligations, they surrendered their property equities.

Wages in dictator-ruled Germany are less than half what they are in America, according to a report said to have originated in the German institute of business research.

An Austrian Jew who recently arrived in America, rejoiced that he could now express himself without fear of dire consequences. American freedom is most appreciated by those who have been enslaved by foreign dictatorship.

In some people's lives, handicapped by short vision, every day presents an emergency—an emergency which foresight could have prevented.

Bob Burns, screen and radio comedian, proposes to E. F. Eberly, Norfolk dairyman, that the latter send a cow to California to be photographed by a slow motion camera to prove the animal can kick backwards as well as sideways. Just why not use a California cow for demonstration and avoid the cost of transportation? But we believe Burns is right, and it is our recollection that a kick into the rear is more hateful and violent than a blow to the side.

In his message to the legislature, Governor Cochran, discussing old-age benefits, told of the growing tendency of children to shift responsibility of caring for parents to the government. He sensed a too great willingness on the part of oldsters to qualify for old-age pensions.

In his Jackson day speech, President Roosevelt virtually defied those democratic leaders who have done their own thinking and who have dared to disagree with White House policies.

The passing of Vaughn Williams, Carroll banker for many years, is a source of profound regret to many who knew and appreciated his kindly helpful nature. Through the years innumerable acts of free service were performed by Vaughn, and they will be remembered with deepened sense of gratitude in his absence.

After several years of economic jitters, Dr. George Gallup, political analyst, finds that the middle group in both major political parties are swinging to the right. The upper earning group has been and is distinctly anti-Roosevelt.

The local Kiwanis club is helping develop interest in growing more soy beans and less corn. Soy beans are offered as food for man and beast, and as useful in manufacturing automobile parts and other things.

Once Europe gets into another war, with possible involvement of the entire world, the efforts of Chamberlain and others to preserve peace will be better understood and appreciated.

One way to keep people off relief rolls is to avoid overburdening those who are still supported by their own earnings.

Logan Valley

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gross and family spent Sunday evening at the George Martin home at Wayne.

Friends were visited at Fort Worth, Texas. Dr. Griffin had instructed in a junior college which was affiliated with T. C. U. at Midland, Texas. Dr. and Mrs. Griffin went to San Antonio by way of Waco and Austin.

MAN.
Writing of "The Rediscovery of Man" in a current magazine, Dr. Henry C. Link emphasizes the greatest need of self-interest—more attention to "personal security." Personal security concerns the individual to depend on himself, while social security leads him to give up and lean on society or the government.

exact unremitting efforts every day, early and late.

To such hardy fellows as Weber and Roe who have labored faithfully and tirelessly through the years, without vainglory, without trying to put on a big show, the community owes much gratitude.

FIXING BLAME.
Merle Thorpe's editorial in the January edition of Nation's Business expresses a wish for "fewer political red herrings across the trail in 1939."

The Wayne folks were pleased with the beautiful residences in San Antonio, but spent most of the time in the Mexican port and visiting the markets. The Rio Grande region impressed the Griffins more than they had expected. The cultivated citrus orchards and palms were pleasing to the eye.

THE VOICE OF RELIGION

Current Questions and Answers about Religion, Morals and Personal Problems by WELDON F. CROSSLAND Rochester, New York

Who are the world's three most influential Christians? Pope Pius XI, Dr. E. Stanley Jones and—I shall ask you to name the third.

Elected by the College of Cardinals in 1922, Pius XI holds the place of spiritual preeminence in the lives of more than 330,000,000 Catholic Christians.

His pronouncement on all questions are read with attentive interest by leaders of all Christian communities. In matters of faith and morals his ex cathedra teaching and declarations are authoritative and binding for all Roman Catholics.

Through cardinals, archbishops, bishops and priests he exercises a potent influence throughout the world.

Dr. E. Stanley Jones, American-born missionary to the upper classes of India, has deeply impressed tens of millions among all faiths by his addresses and books.

His simple eloquence, his keen mind and his radiant personality have made him the most popular Christian preacher in the world.

His influence in India and China is equalled in America, where for two years he has headlined the National and University Preaching missions.

Whom would you name as the third? Dr. John R. Mott, Christian statesman and missionary leader? Kagawa, Japanese Christian saint and servant of men?

Karl Barth, leading conservative theologian? Or some other? Is science today a menace or a blessing to mankind?

Both, though chiefly a blessing. Modern scientists have written in our time one of the most heroic chapters in the history of human achievement. In brilliance it matches the age of Pericles and surpasses the Golden Age of Rome.

The ingenious inventors, the hunger fighters, the men against death and the explorers of the invisible jungles of disease stand among the chief benefactors of the race.

Engineers have lifted heavy loads from the tired backs of men and have builded homes that rival ancient palaces.

Chemists today are creating a new world of form and color. Physicians cure illness, relieve pain and bring health through preventive medicine.

Psychiatry dissolves fears and complexes. Radio and printing bring the whole world across our thresholds into our living rooms.

But when these mighty forces of science are seized by daring dictators, they are forged into a sword threatening the life and welfare of mankind.

Engineering then becomes the slave of mechanical warfare. Chemistry creates gases that bring choking death to millions.

Bacteriology threatens whole nations with diseases as these dictators plan wholesale infection through milk and water supplies.

Radio and printing broadcast lies, create fear and foment hatred. Perhaps one of the supreme opportunities before all religions groups at this time is that of cooperatively forging adequate social controls for these mighty scientific forces, which have in them so much of weal or woe for mankind.

Does radio broadcasting of religious services help or hinder the cause of religion? Radio immeasurably helps religion, though it does offer some very keen competition to the untrained preacher and to the unorganized church.

Radio outranks every other modern invention in spreading the message of religion and in promoting goodwill among the faiths. Radio knows no racial or religious barriers. I know Jews who listen regularly to Christian preachers, Protestants who enjoy the messages of Roman Catholic priests and Christians who follow closely the radio sermons of Jewish rabbis.

Radio enters the lonely farmhouse with great hymns. Radio sits with the convalescent in the hospital or at home. Radio preaches to the isolated shepherds as he watches his sheep. Radio keeps pace with the swiftly moving automobile. Each morning radio's devotional messages set the tone of the day in courage, faith and inspiration for millions.

Play to Be Given by Double Cast

The dramatics class of Wayne State Teachers college presents Wall Spence's English play, "Jane Eyre," Friday, January 20, and Tuesday, January 24, to accommodate the double cast.

If a literary vote were taken to determine the most popular heroine of fiction, one who would equal or even surpass any created by the pens of George Eliot, Charles Dickens or Sir Walter Scott, it would favor Jane Eyre. Of all the heroines of fiction none is more charming, more lovable nor subjected to a more fiery ordeal.

Jane Eyre emerges at 18 from a charitable institution to secure a position at Thornfield hall as governess to Edward Rochester's adopted child, Adele. As time goes on Jane senses a mystery hovering darkly over the place and strange, unearthly cries from the remote west wing soon justify her suspicions.

A party at Thornfield proves eventful, aided by a gypsy, a mysterious attack in the west wing and the appearance of a wild, frenzied woman. Jane leaves Thornfield in despair. In a year a sudden presentment flashes through Jane's mind and she returns at once to Thornfield. She discovers that Rochester has met with a fatal accident and she remains to comfort him.

In the cast are: Mrs. Fairfax, housekeeper of Thornfield hall, Catherine Kirwin and Ruth Leafstone; Adele Varem, Rochester's adopted child, Maxine Humphreys; Nora, an Irish servant-child, Elaine Pomeroy and Deloris Welch; Grace Poole, a servant, Maxine Wriedt and Elaine Pomeroy; Jane Eyre, a governess, McClela Hanke and Dorothy Carey; Edward Rochester, master of Thornfield hall, Bill Kingston and Harold Hutcheson; Bessie Leaven, Jane's one-time nurse-maid, Dorothy Lindman and Helen Granlund; Bertha, Virginia Beckman and Virginia Stroh; Dowager Lady Ingram, Helen Granlund and Anna Pedersen; Lady Mary, her daughter, Marcela Bryngelson; Dr. Carter, Joe Roelke and Franklin Adams; Lady Blanche, Mary's sister, Dorothy Lindman and Maxine Wriedt; Sir Wilfred Lynn, in love with Blanche, Kenneth Pierson and Joe Roelke; Zita, an old gypsy, Deloris Welch and Virginia Stroh; Richard Mason, Franklin Adams and Harold Hutcheson; Rev. John Rivers, Kenneth Pierson and Bill Kingston.

One's tolerance prompts him to desire to say "Yes." One's reasoned judgment and honesty compels him to answer, "No."

Would anyone hold that the religion of a Central African, terrorized by fear of evil spirits, is as 'good' as the religion of an American Christian or Jew, who understands and loves God as his Heavenly Father? Is the nationalistic religion of a Nazi as 'good' as the universal religion of a Quaker?

Two acid tests among others may be used in judging religions. First, "What kind of a God does a religion offer?"

To devotees of some religious God is an impulsive, vengeful, cruel monarch, something like an African chief or an European dictator. He hurls his lightning and grows, his ill will in the thunder.

To those who adhere to the higher and more spiritual faiths, God is man's Heavenly Father, a Divine Person, creative, intelligent and loving. He provides for man's needs, benevolently expressing His love in a hundred ways.

Second, "What kind of a person does a given religion tend to develop?" Does a faith inspire fear or courage, defeat or victory? Does it encourage a low morality or an exalted ethic? Does it result in an introverted personality or a growing person?

A religion that approves polygamy and child marriage cannot be as 'good' for the individual or for society as one that exalts womanhood and ennobles childhood. Some religions are vastly superior to others.

Former Resident of Wayne Marries.
Elmer Wittler and Bride Will Move in Spring to Iowa Home.

At a simple but impressive ceremony solemnized January 4 at the Zion Evangelical church of Calumet, Iowa, in the presence of friends and relatives, Miss Bernice Bandholz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Claussen of Sutherland, Iowa, became the bride of Mr. Elmer Wittler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wittler of Randolph, formerly of Wayne vicinity. Rev. L. F. Suedmeyer, cousin of the bridegroom, of Fairmont, Minn., read the lines for the double ring ceremony.

Attendants to the couple were Miss Lucille Wittler, sister of the bridegroom, and Lester Menke, cousin of the bride. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Lohengren's wedding march with Miss Lorene Wittler, sister of the bridegroom, at the piano. "Wedding March," by Ashford, was played for the recessional.

Immediately preceding the ceremony, sang "Oh, Promise Me" and following the exchanging of marriage vows she sang "I Love You Truly." Miss Wittler played her accompaniment. The bride was attractively attired in a floor-length gown of white satin with lace sleeves and yoke. She wore a finger-tip veil held in place with a halo crown. Her accessories were white. Her bouquet consisted of chrysanthemums and roses tied with white tulle. Miss Wittler wore a floor-length gown of blue satin with jacket. Her accessories were also of white. She wore a shoulder corsage of sweetpeas.

Both the bridegroom and his attendant wore dark suits with a chrysanthemum boutonniere. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's parents' home which was attractively decorated in the bride's chosen colors of blue and white. A large wedding cake made by the bride's mother was used as the table centerpiece. It was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Guests at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wittler, Mildred, Lucille and Lorene of Randolph, Rev. and Mrs. L. F. Suedmeyer, Bryan and Catherine and Miss Adelaide Suedmeyer of Fairmont, Minn.; the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wittler of Cook, Neb., Ed. Excerpts from a letter written by Gerald Dahlquist, formerly of Concord and now a missionary in French West Africa, are given by Miss Laura Lyons of Long Beach, Calif., who writes January 2 to Herald readers. Mr. Dahlquist, who was a student of Miss Lyons in Golden Gleam school near Concord, is now one of six missionaries, two of them men, in Bamako, Soudan, French West Africa. "I am out at present on a trip with Lloyd McRostic in our French car," writes Mr. Dahlquist, November 7, "spending a few days in each village. There is so much superstition but a few natives have professed faith in Christ in three villages here along the big highway. Next week we hope to make a village out in the bush. There is no auto road going out there so we shall have to go on foot. The rains are now over and the dry season is upon us. As the harvest is soon over it will be the best time to instruct believers. There is much work to be done and few in the field."

Miss Lyons writes that Long Beach and vicinity have been having heavy fogs following a week of severe rains. The vegetation looks clean and fresh. Since the dawn, mornings are somewhat frosty.

The Tournament of Roses parade in Pasadena January 2 attracted thousands from Long Beach and large numbers from many other cities. Sheriff Biscailuz of Los Angeles county, and 56 of his best riders led the parade which was headed by Shirley Temple. The fact that Laguna Beach was going to depict "The Last Supper" in its float caused some comment, Miss Lyons noted. Many thought it would be sacrilegious, but others argued that people should see the float before criticizing. Those who favored the plan thought that the idea fitted well into the general parade theme of "Golden Memories."

PWA workers are completing a new foot bridge at the foot of the flood control in Long Beach to replace the one washed out last March during the flood inland. This bridge is at the west end of the pike, near the navy landing.

Miss Lyons reports having visited with Mr. and Mrs. Merle Roe of Carroll, and their daughter, Mrs. Paul Retiwisch of Bellflower. All the Retiwisch relatives spent Christmas with Mrs. Paash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Retiwisch at Long Beach. Miss Ethel Williams, a cousin of Miss Lyons, was also with her recently from Hollywood. Miss Lyons is now caring for two elderly women so she has only a few hours a day free. She sends New Year greetings to friends here.

Dies in Dakota County.
Mrs. Ruth Culbertson, 66, of Dakota county, died Tuesday last week. Miss Amy Culbertson of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Kenyon Lewis of Lincoln, former Wayne students, are daughters. There are also two sons, Horace and Joseph. Her husband, Fred Culbertson, died three years ago.

To Rose Tournament.
Mrs. Jessie Reynolds, who is spending the winter in Los Angeles, attended the 50th anniversary of the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena Monday last week. The crowd watching the parade was estimated at 1,250,000. Mrs. Reynolds writes that the traffic was so heavy in some places that it took a half hour to travel a block.

FIFTYSEVENTH YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 12, 1939.

NUMBER THIRTYSEVEN

Contrasts Prevalent In Southern States Interest Wayne Travelers

Whatever may be one's preferences, Louisiana pleases the most exacting. Those who favor historic spots as well as those who like latest modern development will be satisfied. Those who enjoy the old southern plantations as well as those who like latest industrial accomplishments will be delighted with a visit to the state. So New Orleans and the gulf region intrigued Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Noakes, Evelyn, Warren and Willis who arrived home Thursday after spending two weeks in the south with relatives of Mrs. Noakes.

New Orleans, a city of a half million population, is spread out over 200 square miles, the area being the fourth largest covered by any American city. Most of the city is of the finest modern style, and the business section is highly industrialized. The main thoroughfare, Canal street, is the widest in the country, about a city block across. In early days a canal ran through the middle with a street on either side. When small boat traffic in the city was replaced by other means of transportation the canal was closed and the center of the wide thoroughfare now provides space for seven or eight street car lines with wide space at either side for cars.

The Mardi Gras is the big winter festival in New Orleans and attracts many tourists each year. Balls and other events start the season soon after the holidays and Mardi Gras week in February climaxes the season.

Visit French Quarters.
Not more than five minutes walk from Canal street, explains Evelyn Noakes, is the old French section, the site of earliest settlement, which attracts many visitors.

Contrasting with Canal street, the thoroughfares in the French section are so narrow that cars cannot be driven there. The city was laid out in 1717 with Jackson square as the center. Near this beautiful park is St. Louis Cathedral, a huge stone church with clock tower, which was destroyed twice, once by hurricane and another time by fire. The structure was rebuilt in 1794 by a Spanish nobleman, Don Almonroy Roxas, in whose memory special mass is held each week. Several archbishops and other notables are buried in the church near the highly ornate altar. On All Saints' day, an occasion similar to Memorial day, vaults in the church yard are decorated with flowers.

Near Jackson square also is the Cabildo which served for officials when the territory west of the Mississippi was under Spanish rule. It was in this stone building that the Louisiana purchase was transferred from Spain to the United States. This structure now is the Louisiana state museum and houses many historic relics.

The old red brick buildings around the square, built during the Spanish regime, have been converted into apartments. The structures, a full block long, still have window and door frames and balcony railings of hand-wrought iron, just as nearly two centuries ago.

Market Is Interesting.
The French market is one of the most interesting places in that section of the city. There one sees blocks of stands where fruit, vegetables, fish, etc., are sold. Most of the stands are operated by little old Frenchmen who are descendants of the early settlers. Great quantities of bananas and other fruits and vegetables are sold at the market to jobbers who resell them for shipment to various parts of the country. In one part of the market is retained the custom of serving French doughnuts and coffee. The doughnuts are more like biscuits, Evelyn found, for they have no hole in the center.

Of special interest to Mr. Noakes and the twins was the Sugar Bowl football game they saw in New Orleans Monday last week. The huge stadium at Tulane university was packed for the occasion. Many track, tennis and other sports tournaments are held in the southern city this time of year also.

Shushan airport at New Orleans was also visited by the Noakes family. One of the large hangars at this mammoth airport is named for Lindbergh.

Monuments to Long.
Crossing the Mississippi to or from New Orleans the main thoroughfare of travel is now the Huey P. Long bridge which the late senator started when he was governor of the state and which was completed after he was killed. The distance is two miles by car and five by train. The bridge, described as one of the state's great monuments to Long, cost $11 million dollars. The other monument is the capitol building at Baton Rouge. This is similar in style to the Nebraska capitol though not so large. It costs five millions and was built during Long's administration. The senator's grave is on the capitol lawn with a monument erected for him. The state is traversed with paved highways which Long promoted to provide employment. The Wayne folks were informed that Huey Long's followers are still prominent in the southern state's politics.

Has Unique History.
Louisiana is the only state in the union with subdivisions called parishes instead of counties. This is a carry-over from early days. The state is unique also in the fact that it has been under four flags—French, Spanish, Confederate and Union.

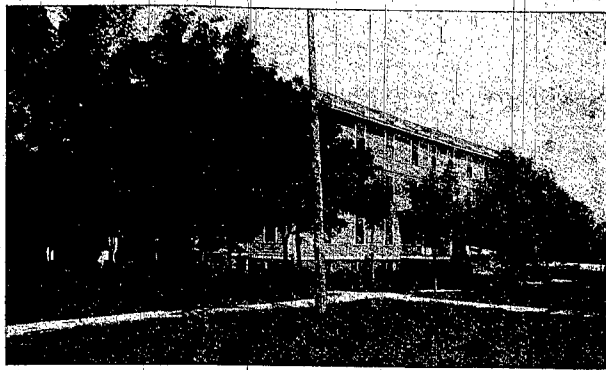

Cities and towns in the southern state are close together, often only three to five miles apart. The 90-mile road from Donaldsonville to the gulf is lined with houses for the entire length and is called the longest street in the world. The homes, most of them shanties occupied by colored people, are so close together that one can easily talk from one to another. The homes of the colored people, Evelyn noted, are all alike, made of cypress wood and unpainted from the time they are put up until they fall with age.

Colored people in the south live separate from the whites. Their homes are together in one section of the city. Street cars are divided so they have their own compartment. Always one finds two drinking fountains, one designated for colored people and the other for whites. Each respects the rights of the other but the two groups do not associate.

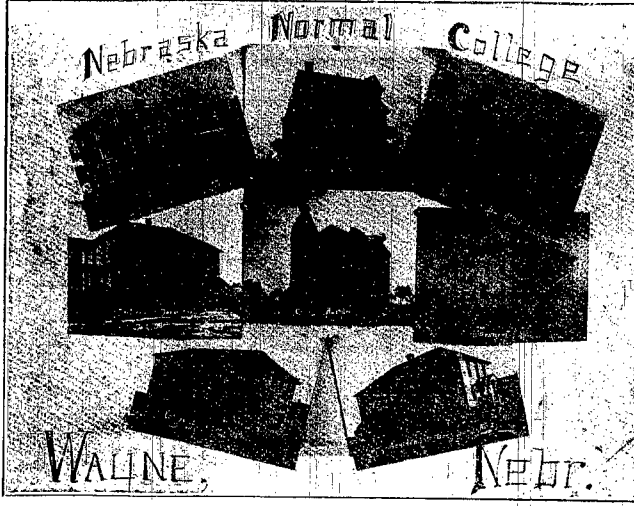

Many southern plantations have been kept up as they were in Civil war days. Some of these are furnished in antique style and are opened for inspection of tourists.

Louisiana is rich in natural resources. Sugar cane is grown extensively in the southern part and cotton in the north. Grapefruits, tangerines, pecans and all kinds of vegetables are grown extensively. Sea food is an important industry also, oysters, shrimp and crab being the principal ones shipped. More small fur bearing animals are raised in that state also than in any other, and the state is rich in mineral deposits such as sulphur and salt. The Noakes family visited a salt mine. Though they were not able to go into the mine because of this being the rush season, they did visit the refinery and packing factory. They learned that salt was first found at a depth of 150 feet and that it is now mined at 800 feet below the surface. Oil is also most important in the southern state. The Wayne folks visited in Houma, a city which has grown in 10 years from 6,000 to about 16,000 because of oil discovery. Rich oil wells are being discovered continually. Evelyn reported that they saw there a kitchen window and a natural gas supply has been found there, the family having this hooked up now for their own use.

Another industry of interest in the south is that which uses moss which grows in great clusters on trees, mainly on cypress and live oaks. Near New Iberia is a mile of oak and pine trees planted by slaves in 1720. On these one sees prolific growth of the moss which is gray and fibery. The moss is gathered and made into upholstery, mainly for cars.

See Evangeline Shrine.
One of the interesting oaks which the Wayne folks saw was the Evangeline oak. This oak at St. Martinville is the one about which Longfellow wrote in his poem, "Evangeline." The grave of Evangeline is in the little plot back of St. Martin's church. In the south all the burial grounds are back of churches and are above ground because sea water is reached at a depth of nine feet. A statue of Evangeline also marks the site at St. Martinville. This was presented by the motion picture actress, Dolores Del Rio who played the part of Evangeline in the film depicting the story of the poem.

The distance from Wayne to the southern state is 1,300 miles, and the Wayne folks traveled about 1,000 miles while in Louisiana.

Large Number at Services Monday Pay Tribute to V. G. Williams.

Funeral rites for Vaughn G. Williams, resident of Wayne county nearly half a century, were held Monday afternoon at 2 from the Methodist church in Carroll with Rev. Allen Magill and the Hiscox service in charge. Mrs. John H. Owens, accompanied by Mrs. L. E. Jenkins, sang "I've Done My Work." A large concourse of relatives and friends and a wealth of beautiful flowers bore testimony of the high esteem in which Mr. Williams was held. Masons attended in a body and Wayne lodge officiated at Masonic committal in Bethany cemetery.

Mr. Williams had been failing in health but was about his work at the bank as usual last week. He was stricken suddenly Wednesday evening, January 4, at his home in Carroll and died within a few minutes. A doctor pronounced his trouble as a heart clot.

He was a member of the Carroll Methodist church and was treasurer at the time of his death, having held this office for some years. He was also village clerk at the time of his passing and had served on the village board and school board. Mr. Williams was a member of the Masonic lodge at Wayne. His untiring and unselfish devotion to his family and friends will long be an inspiration to all who knew him.
