

Of the World War — High Flying, Collapse and Depression — Suggestion to Dixon County — Conflict in Weather Predictions — Diversifying Crops — Waste of Parking Room.

The depression which has lingered longer than wiser national leadership might have permitted, undoubtedly started as an aftermath of the World War. It is remembered that before the war, conditions were moving along moderately — reasonable parity of values — fair wages and fair commodity prices.

The foolish and futile World War, aggravated for Americans by American participation, came along and wrecked the economic system. It failed to get back into place. An unhealthy state of swollen values prevailed for a time following the declaration of peace.

Thus, desires were satisfied. Advertisements for more and better material possessions reached dizzy, dangerous heights. Wives once predicted collapse, but even they could not accurately visualize distance to pitfalls ahead.

It was no more desirable to have continuance of the economic mania after the war than it is beneficial to have the prostrated values of the post few years.

Dixon county is threatened with a county seat contest. Soon the supervisors are to meet at Ponca to consider a petition to call an election to decide on moving the seat of government from that town to Allen, Martinsburg.

England issued a declaration to return Palestine to the Jews November 2, 1917, which gave 60 million Jews of the world a place to call home.

We would suggest as a way for the north half of the county to prevent intermittent county seat fights, that it cede two dissatisfied townships—Logan and Wakefield—to Wayne county.

Understanding Is Needed To Solve Problem for Jews and Arabs.

County Seat Storm.

For 1860 years after the Jews were exiled from Palestine the land was neglected as there was no government to take an interest in beautifying the country.

England issued a declaration to return Palestine to the Jews November 2, 1917, which gave 60 million Jews of the world a place to call home.

Needed moisture covered the state the first of the week—rain turning to snow in some parts. It will boost vegetation and revive fearful spirits.

There is much worry over the problem of how to create more jobs to absorb the idle and reduce dependence on the government.

racketeering should be intensified until the nefarious business is finally and thoroughly exterminated.

The storm of opposition to becoming embroiled in any foreign war is growing steadily in size and force.

While the penalty for being agreeable is sometimes paid in getting trimmed by slickers, it is still better and more remunerative to be agreeable and run the risk.

As long as knockers and obstructionists are kept in the minority, a community is certain to grow and progress.

Another Breathing Spell?
(Nation's Business)

"If the wheels of invention were stopped and the processes of discovery settled, we would, I am sure, continue to live in comfort," opines William O. Douglas, chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission.

Doubtless we also would manage to survive if the wheels of innovation in social reform were stilled for a spell.

Local Problems First.
(Omaha Journal-Stockman)

Some day we are going to wake up to the fact that there are more important things for this nation to consider than the danger of being drawn into a land grabbing war over in Europe.

Here It Is in One Sentence.
(From the Cincinnati, O. Times-Star)

Here's a one-sentence formula, from Chairman Sloan of the General Motors Corporation, for an "economy of abundance."

"More investment in better tools to make new and useful things at lower cost for sale at lower prices."

That is the dream of American industry, substantially translated into fact in the fabrication of automobiles and in a fair number of other lines.

Whoever makes a good article at a lower price or a better article at the same price benefits everybody.

Flaming Youth.
(By William Allen White)

Kansas university has the live goldfish eating championship of the United States. Last week a K. U. undergraduate, at a public demonstration, swallowed 50 live goldfish and took the rag off the bush which had been waving proudly before Harvard.

It is odd that such tomfoolery should come from our colleges. It emphasizes the need of two kinds of colleges in this country, one for students who want to know something, and one for exhibitionists, show-offs, smarties, nit-wits, rah-rah boys, Joe College addicts and well-placed economic cake-eaters.

As we sit here in our somber monastic cell grieving over the evils of this world and particularly the Saholy-whoop-to-do of American higher education, the spectacle of that goldfish-swallower rises before us and leaves us with a gentle, yearning nostalgia for a big-bottle-shaped, brass-lung, brainless football player, in sad contrast and gloomy comparison.

Car Testing Out.
(Sioux City Journal)

The unicameral legislature in Nebraska has repealed the compulsory testing of motor cars. It had been recommended by Gov. Cochran, who is expected to sign the measure ending the statute's existence.

A similar law is on Iowa's statute books, and no one suspects efforts to repeal it will be made in the future. For it has been found, at least in this state, that it achieves results in providing greater traffic safety.

The conditions today generally are better with reference to the mechanical fitness of motor vehicles than they were a few years ago.

There is much worry over the problem of how to create more jobs to absorb the idle and reduce dependence on the government.

What Light Does Science Throw on Life after Death?

One should remember that science is still very young and that its voice is but one of several that have the right to be heard on the subject of immortality.

As yet science has little that is definite to say in confirmation of life after death. Societies of metaphysical research are investigating such matters as telepathy, spiritualism and hypnotism in relation to the persistence of personality after death in as objective and scientific a way as possible.

Scientists who know anything about the problem are generally of the opinion that life after death is not impossible. This attitude is in striking contrast to the unscientific one of fifty or a hundred years ago when most reputable men of science denied or scoffed at immortality.

Psychology, one of the newest of the sciences, may be expected in the next fifty years to throw a great deal of light on life after death through a continued study of the nature of personality.

As in so many areas of life, men may be at the threshold of astounding discoveries.

Can a person forget the past? One can never completely forget the failures and sins of the past but he can be redeemed and freed from them.

Psychologists state that every experience is recorded in that strange filing cabinet, the subconscious. It is latent, not lost. Pushed back out of sight of consciousness even for years, most experiences can be recalled voluntarily or under the power of hypnotic suggestion.

One need not live under the threatening clouds of a broken or sinful past. One's personality can be changed, remade and transformed from a "divided, inferior and unhappy" one to a "united, superior and happy" one, as William James once said.

How? By asking God to forgive and to lift the load of guilt and the sense of failure from your life. Confession is good for the soul and forgiveness cleanses the spirit.

By remedying the wrong or failure in so far as restitution can be made. One's conscience is easier after he has done all he can to balance the scales of justice.

By substituting positive thought patterns and definite planning for the future. One must use his mental energies in boldly claiming the future instead of futilely re-viewing the past.

Look ahead! Watch the road before you instead of keeping your eyes on the rear view mirror.

Much of the past with its friendship, achievement, struggle, hopes and joys one delights to remember. They are glad for memory who live well.

THE VOICE OF RELIGION

Current Questions and Answers about Religion, Morals and Personal Problems by DR. WELDON F. CROSSLAND, Rochester, New York

What is the worst sin of fashion and communism? The degrading of personality to the point where a man is used as a thing instead of being treated as a child of God.

In spirit and method communism and fascism are very similar. Both demand man's highest loyalties. They subjugate or destroy religion. They have no morals.

They bring efficiency and order by taking away man's liberty, rights and privileges. They warp the minds of youth to their own ideologies.

They execute, imprison or intimidate all opposition. They make the whole nation a military machine.

They enslave men's bodies and minds in a new slavery of forced labor as absolute as that of Pharaoh employed to build the pyramids. They use their nations' resources to create a vast Juggernaut which today endangers all civilization.

Under communism and fascism the individual is no longer a citizen but a subject, whose duty is to believe what he is told, to do what he is ordered and to die for any cause the leader chooses.

In these anniversary days of the American constitution Americans ought to treasure and protect their liberty as one of their most priceless possessions. They will surely lose it, if they abuse it, as so many selfish pressure groups are now doing.

Jews Contribute To Church Relief

Robbi Hyman Rabinowitz, addressed college students in conversation Tuesday morning on the subject, "Judaism Through the Ages." In the course of his remarks he stressed the doctrine that the belief in the spirituality of God is a Jewish contribution.

Another doctrine, that of "Love thy neighbor as thyself," was first enunciated by the Jews. Their philosophy teaches that the brotherhood of man and that all are related through a common descendant from Adam. It is easily recognized that the Jews have made many and basic contributions to the other religions in existence, and that the summation of all beliefs should be "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

The Rabbi's talk gave evidence of his being well-informed, a keen student of literature, social and political history.

Apparently congress has finished with emergency relief appropriations for the fiscal year 1939. The second supplemental relief appropriation since congress convened in January has now passed both the house and the senate. It is in the amount of $100,000,000.

There are rampant charges of graft in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Mexico. Charge followed charge until both parties in the house demanded an investigation. Many know that investigations of this type frequently produce a disappointingly small amount of good, yet those who believe that the relief question will be with us for many years feel the investigation of the various complaints against the administration of relief may tighten the efficiency of the system and increase respect for the intent of congress. That intent is that needy unemployed men and women be given jobs of some kind until they can relocate themselves in regular private employment. Most of the membership of the appropriations committee are well aware of the fact that congress has not been voting enough money to give a job to all of the unemployed persons in our nation. The real reason that the committee sponsored $725,000,000 instead of the $875,000,000 for supplemental relief recently was that they wanted more information from the new WPA boss, Colonel Harrington. This army officer came back to the committee and about convinced members that the $725,000,000 was near exhaustion and that an additional $150,000,000 was needed to run the business of relief until July 1, 1939. The $100,000,000 figure in the bill was a compromise with the ultra-conservative members who demanded that the sum be cut to $50,000,000 with resultant forceful elimination of unnecessarily expensive administration. Some members told their constituents they were going to vote for the extra $100,000,000 because they felt that the WPA chiefs had laid off the poorest paid and the most needy men and women first in order to force congress to accept the larger figure. The hearings disclosed that administration costs are too high and that though prevailing scales of wages are little objections, it seemed neither necessary nor right for one class of workers in one state to get $250 per month from WPA when men like those in Nebraska could get but $40 to $50 per month. The prevailing wage ideal came about when union chiefs felt that if prevailing wages were not paid, it would result in lowering the wages of all classes of labor in private industry.

Already there are many demands for change in WPA set-up and for merging of some of its work with PWA. One recommendation is that all emergency relief money be expended by a single agency and that regular accounting be made to congress. Regular accounting has heretofore not been made. The principal demand from all sides is that the expenditure of emergency relief funds be so safeguarded as to eliminate existing abuses and to increase the net share of the appropriation that actually reaches the people in need of relief. Even members from New York with somewhat radical tendencies admit that if orderly distribution of relief is ever to come, discrimination must be eliminated. One of these members who is close to the real radical groups admits the politicians must discontinue the exploitation of human misery and cut out the utilization of relief funds in local petty graft. Members who would otherwise vote enough money to put every idle man and woman to work, vigorously oppose the alleged pull and rackets that inevitably are to be found in the expenditure of any large sums of public money. A majority of the house membership is not opposed to voting some federal funds for relief. Most of the conservatives feel that the states must assume an increasing share of the responsibility in the job of giving relief to needy people. There is a growing sentiment in the house that private business can take up much of the slack in unemployment if given the opportunity, but these advocates admit that private business cannot

Cows in India Manicured Daily

Vere Culver Says Some of Them Have Character and Intelligence.

IN Wales, farmers consider white cows unlucky and sell them cheap. An Albanian believes that if a cow kicks, she can be gentled by having her own milk poured on her back. Sacred cows in India are manured daily. Milk was spattered on the battle flags of ancient Rome to assure victory. The ladies of Zululand use milk and butter for hairdressing.

These are a few of the incidental bits of information filed away by Vere S. Culver, an authority on cattle, who has been selected by the five major breeding associations of the country to be herdsman of the 150 pure-bred cows in the Borden Company's Dairy of Tomorrow at the New York World's Fair 1939.

Mr. Culver, a jovial country gentleman of the Mid-West, has countless stories and odd facts about cattle at the tip of his tongue. He has spent his life studying them, breeding them, judging them and experimenting with them.

In an interview he told his champion, May Walker O'H Houder, a Holstein, which produced 1,216 pounds of butterfat and 15,805 quarts of milk a year from 1922 to 1927.

"At a dispersal sale on the 29th of July in 1927, May was put in a box stall next to her two-year-old daughter," Mr. Culver recalls. "She recognized that cow, even though she hadn't seen her for nearly two years. They just stood there tacking one another's heads."

Says Cows Have Intelligence "I didn't say anything about it," Mr. Culver said. "But up at the house a little later John H. Alcock, who was formerly Deputy Commissioner of Police in Chicago, said he had noticed it."

"Old May just the same as told us that she knew she would never see her daughter again," Mr. Alcock said. A couple of other people later commented on the same thing. "Mr. Culver is convinced that cows have intelligence and character—in varying degrees—just as humans do."

"Butter Lass Louise, a prize Holstein I had at Baker Farm in Exeter, N. H., where I was herdsman before I came to New York, was one of the most intelligent cows I ever saw," he said. "One time she was rubbing her head against a post as cattle do. There was a big hook on the post and as Butter Lass Louise rubbed against it, it caught under her eyelid."

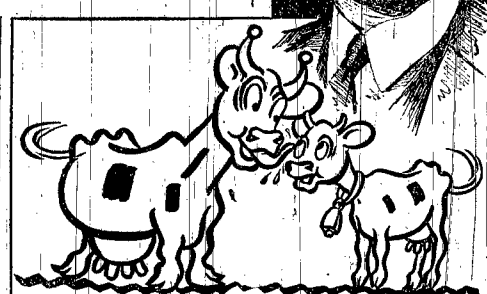

"Now the first reaction of a less intelligent animal would be to jerk away in panic. That would have just torn out the eye of the cow, but that cow was smart enough not to try to get away. I saw her standing quietly alone, holding her head to one side against the post. I knew something was wrong."

Let Him Twist Head "When I got to her, blood was running down her nose," Mr. Culver recalled. "But she stood still and allowed me to come up to her and even let me twist her head so that take up all of the slack no matter how much help private business gets from the federal treasury and elsewhere. Nobody in the house today will admit that expenditures for relief should be cut off immediately and that the federal government should stop all relief assistance. The building of the now 40-thousand-ton battleships at a cost of about 70 million dollars each has taught members to realize that the profits in the building of these expensive battle boats go to private industry and while such building of armaments means much for idle men, and, at the same time, helps a national defense, they realize that with all of the billions in armament, with all of the millions of subsidy for merchant marine, with all of the millions of loans to private industry, less than half of the unemployment load can be eliminated. These beliefs have been confirmed by not only experts on relief but by many private business experts.

A private report which is a supplement to the printed report on the investigation of relief in the city of Washington, indicates that reorganization of the relief set-up here, about a million dollars can be saved annually. This private report states that duplication, favoritism, rackets and petty graft could easily be eliminated but that relief will have to continue for many years to come because private business cannot take up the slack entirely. This is one reason why appropriation committees who hold the purse strings of the 130,000,000 people of the United States are worried over the pending regular relief bill. These committees cannot legislate. They can only appropriate and while doing that they are hoping for legislation that will improve the administration of relief and protect relief funds from misuse.

The new regular relief bill will pass the house. The principal fight will be with reference to the Famous herdsman, Vere S. Culver and a scene he reports observing.

"There are cows that never drink," he says. "Grazing in the valleys on the slopes of Mauna Kea, a volcanic mountain 13,800 feet high in Hawaii, where mists constantly drift in on the trade winds, cattle make their way through the air they breathe or by creeping the wet grass. When taken to dry regions, they balk at the sight of water troughs, not knowing what they are."

In Mogador, Morocco, he asserts, cattle have learned to climb trees to get at tender leaves. In Sussex, England, there is a cow with a glass eye. During hunting season in Beaver Bay, Minn., a farmer winds strips of bright red cloth around his cows, making them look like animated barbed-wires.

In Clarksburg, W. Va., Mr. Culver continues, "a Holstein became mother of an entire herd at one clip. She gave birth to sextuplets, the first such event recorded. The feeding problem was solved with the help of another Holstein and a Guernsey. Even triplets are rare, but in Silesia, a totally white cow gave birth to four totally black calves."

For example, to the Toda natives of India, a dairy is a sanctuary and the milkman a deity whose divine person nose may touch except another milkman. A cure for lockjaw in England and olden days was the practice of pouring milk on the patient's back. If an Irishman squeezes while milking a cow he stops milking for the rest of the day, lest the cow go dry. Welsh dairymen feed their cows pie every New Year's day as a feature of gratitude.

of farmers from the middle west. Thousands upon thousands of former sharecroppers, tenants and cotton pickers of the south are flocking into the industrial cities. So today industry is realizing what has happened to the real American customer—the farmer. Even representatives of big eastern cities, contain great factories, ask farm members what could be done about keeping the farmer on the farm. These city members admit, after hearing experts, that there is a great shortage of skilled mechanics and skilled workers, but an oversupply of ordinary labor which should be on the farm. They realize that the purchasing power of the farmer has dropped to rock bottom and if the farm is again rehabilitated and put on a par with industry and city labor, a great part of the problem can be solved. To members from farming districts where farms are being abandoned, where farmers are losing their farms by foreclosure, where farmers' purchasing power has disappeared and where farms can be purchased for about the same cost as the pioneers paid during homestead days, it is refreshing to hear these admissions from the members of industrial centers. Sectionalism plays a great part in the passing of legislation in the United States house of representatives and even though the agricultural map of the nation is being somewhat changed, city representatives are beginning to look to farm district congressmen for counsel and collaboration in their patriotic hope for victory in this war against unemployment and economic depression.

Every representative and senator has stacks of letters suggesting plans for solving the big problem of unemployment. Almost weekly members attend meetings at which experts tell how their plans solve the problem. The same members attend emergency meetings where it is suggested that the chemurgic movement holds the solution. Labor representatives also have plans and the farm bloc has plans. These plans are reflected in the various pieces of legislation that have been introduced in both branches of congress. All of these ideas are reflected in the heated debates and speeches on the floors of both houses and out of all of these arguments and all of these compromises both in committees and on the floors of congress, some helpful legislation may come. The entire picture, however, is rather gloomy for those who can't get a job today if they are of the belief that there is enough money in the federal treasury to put all unemployed to work. The federal debt in excess of 40 billion dollars proves that this is impossible. Taxpayers begin to realize that they are paying the bill and all cannot expect a place on the government payroll. So, Uncle Sam is hobbling along, borrowing and spending, to keep three million people working until better times arrive.

Many members from farm districts believe a large part of the problem will be solved when industry makes a definite compromise with agriculture. Industry is realizing that young people are leaving the farms. Even those who have farmed for many years are quitting and adding to the exodus

Miss Staines Gives Talk to Pupils

Miss Kathleen Staines, exchange teacher from England, spoke to Wayne prep 7th graders this week, talking about light houses, life boats and rescuing people in distress. She showed pictures of light houses and boats and a newspaper clipping telling of a rescue. Miss Staines said that it is impossible to get more than 73 miles from the sea in Great Britain.

The 7th grade English club had book reports Friday, also poems and talks. Mr. Mentzer, English teacher the last quarter, visited the room and helped give critics reports. He also read a poem he composed. Mr. Cheney, the new English instructor, has charge of all news. Miss Richtig has charge of club affairs.

New club officers are: President, Billie Miland; vice president and program chairman, Mickie Gillespie; secretary, John Phillips; playground chairman, Beryl Hughes; bulletin board chairman, Don Belletts; library chairman, Merlyn Finn. Other officers will be elected in the summer.

Frank Perkins returned to school Monday after a week's illness.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ross and Miss Ruth and Dr. and Mrs. Chas. Ingham, the last two of Norfolk, were Sunday dinner guests in the Clarence Ross home at Laurel.

Looking Toward the Nation's Largest Church. Setting up administrative machinery for a church of nearly 8,000,000 members, will be the task of the Methodist Uniting Conference which convenes in Kansas City, Mo., April 26, for probably three weeks. The conference will be the first official gathering after the reunion of the Methodist Episcopal, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant churches under the name "The Methodist Church."

The conference must combine and harmonize the Disciplines of the Uniting Conferences and arrange the agencies which handle the missionary, educational, temperance, and other organized work of the church. During recent months eight committees have been at work preparing recommendations to be considered by the Uniting Conference. These recommendations with changes made by the Joint Commissions on Unification, have been collected in one printed volume for use by the delegates.

Among the problems before the Uniting Conference will be the question how to arrange the missionary enterprises of the three churches; whether into one great board, including the women's missionary work and home and foreign missions, or three separate boards with the women's work independent.

The new church is divided into six jurisdictional conferences, five of them based on geographical regions and the sixth including all Negro conferences, and overlapping the others geographically. The present effective bishops will be assigned to these jurisdictions. The bishops at work in foreign lands, four in number, will be continued in their present work until the General Conference meets, if the recommendation of the preparation committee is adopted. Hereafter bishops will be elected by the Jurisdictional Conferences the number to be determined by the General Conference, and ordinarily will do their work within the jurisdiction where they were elected. They will serve, except under certain provisions, within the borders of those jurisdictions. The residences of the bishops will be fixed by the Uniting Conference. The Methodist Protestant delegates will elect two bishops on the day before the Uniting Conference meets. Negro Methodists will have more self-government than before, electing their own bishops in the future.

There will be 900 delegates at the Conference, 400 from each of the episcopal Methodist churches, and 100 from the Methodist Protestant church. Of these delegates 77 are women. It is expected that 20,000 to 25,000 visitors will attend. The Conference has no power of election. Present officers for the administrative agencies that are set up will be continued probably until the first General Conference of the new church, which will meet at a date to be fixed by the Uniting Conference in 1940, in 1941 or in 1942. Many of the powers of the Jurisdictional Conferences cannot be exercised until the General Conference meets.

The groups which formed the Methodist Protestant church separated officially from the Methodist Episcopal church in 1828 in protest against the alleged autocratic power of the bishops and against the failure to give laymembers representation in the General Conference. The Methodist Episcopal church, South, was formed in 1845 after a split in the General Conference of 1844, over the issue of slavery and a sharp division of conviction concerning the power of the General Conference over a bishop. Many former attempts have been made to unite the three churches. The last important one failed by a close vote in 1924. For over seventy years Unification has been discussed and urged. The present plan was adopted by great majorities, the last vote being taken in May 1938, by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Original Sketch Comes for County

County Suplt. F. B. Decker received the original historical sketch for Wayne county, used a few months ago in the Omaha World-Herald. This sketch bears a picture of Anthony Wayne, Revolutionary war hero for whom Wayne county was named. On it also are sketches of J. R. Russell, pioneer homesteader, Mrs. W. F. Durin and daughter, Anna, who lost their lives in a prairie fire, and the woman who delivered the first sermon in the county. Wayne county was organized by proclamation of Governor Butler in 1870. The framed drawing is about two feet in length and a foot wide.

Mexico --- The Land of Contrasts

Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Ley returned to Wayne the last of March after nearly a month spent in Mexico, land of smiling, friendly, courteous people. That month was filled with seeing things of interest and beauty. Just as most tourists do, Mr. and Mrs. Ley drove to Mexico City via highway 31 from Laredo, Texas, south to Monterrey, on through Tamazunchale to Mexico City.

Mexico has an area of 767,055 square miles, and a population of approximately 16,000,000, of whom less than a million are of pure or nearly pure Spanish descent. The remainder are pure Indian or a mixture of Indian and Spanish. There are perhaps 125 different Indian tribes, each with its own tribal design which is woven into sarapes and rugs made by that particular group.

Mrs. Ley was especially interested in the handicrafts of that country—the native industries—which produce wrought silver, hand-hammered jewelry, carved wood, glass ware and tile, hand-tooled leather, pottery, textiles (sarapes, blankets, embroidery etc.) and lacquer. Specimens of much of this work were brought back—beautiful sarapes and hand-woven blankets, delicately hand-carved wooden boxes, wooden bookends carved by Aztec, a native artist, pins and brooches of wrought silver and filigree, solid silver pieces, and many more.

Imprint of Colonial Days. Monterrey is the leading industrial city in the republic, and is a leading tourist center. The imprint of old Spanish colonial days may still be seen, Mrs. Ley says, in the narrow streets, the flat-roofed houses and patios. This same situation, exists in Taxco perhaps in a more marked state. The maintenance of that city in its original state is deliberate; they do not allow it to be destroyed by the products of modern civilization.

The section of the road between Tamazunchale to Mexico City offers the most spectacular views of the entire Pan-American highway. Along this stretch one may see Indians planting corn on the steep mountain slopes with ropes tied around their waists and secured to trees to keep them from falling into the ravines below. There is no modern corn-planting machinery there. A sharp pointed stick makes a hole in the ground, a couple of grains of corn are covered just by stepping on the soft ground. No plowing or cultivation is necessary. One may also see many small villages and hundreds of primitive Indian huts clinging to the sides of the mountains. Native huts in general may be the adobe type, or of bamboo, or thatched. In contrast to this, however, there are many beautiful modern homes in the new residential districts of the cities. Some are still being built according to the old prescription—flush with the sidewalk with barred windows, and the garden or patio in the rear. These larger homes are usually surrounded by a wall which is characterized by lovely and delicate iron grill-work.

City of Eternal Spring.

Mexico City, although located in the tropical belt, is a city of eternal spring because of the altitude. The days are always pleasant and the nights are very cool. Mrs. Ley states that the climate in general was perfect—so perfect that one just forgot about it, and accepted it for fact. That city is perhaps the oldest city in America, founded in 1325 by the Aztecs as their capital city. There today one may see the cathedral, probably the largest and richest church in America, begun in 1573. The marble altars, statuary, wood carvings, silver railings and paintings represent the best in Mexican decoration. One may also see the palace of fine arts or national theatre. This ornate and imposing structure, built of white marble was begun in 1900 and dedicated in 1935, and cost 35,000,000 pesos— one peso equaling 20 cents in American money. It is a blend of Mayan, Mixtec and classical architecture, designed by Adam Boari. Because of its enormous weight and the soft character of the underlying soil the building has settled five feet since construction began. It contains the national theatre, auditoriums and art galleries. The theatre has a famous colored glass curtain, depicting the volcanoes, Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl, made by Tiffany at a cost of $47,000.

Bull Fights Popular.

Many interested in national sports attend the bull fights. They are held in the Plaza de Toros, largest bull ring in the world, seating 20,000 persons. Mr. and Mrs. Ley saw six bulls killed in one afternoon from 4:30 to 6 o'clock. In the arena the matador is aided by three men, each of whom has two banderillos—a spear perhaps two feet long with a hook in the end. Each helper succeeds in placing his banderillo in the neck of the bull. Every move of the matador is along prescribed patterns—this is a certain scientific technique which is followed in each killing. The crowd seemed especially excited on that particular afternoon because the matador was a general favorite and because he was working for special awards.

Three distinct side trips were taken from Mexico City—to Puebla, Toluca and Cuernavaca. Puebla is located in the center of the onyx quarry district, about 40 miles from Mexico City. Mrs. Ley brought back with her several pieces in white and green onyx. The green onyx is considered the best although the white seems prettier. One sees much "glass ware"—hand-blown and consequently imperfect, but of beautiful and graceful line. The "cathedral" there is three centuries old and one of the finest in Mexico.

Another trip was taken to Cuernavaca, the home of the late Dwight Morrow, and a very popular resort. With its red-tiled roofs, luxuriant vegetation and brilliant flowers, it is a town of enchantment. The Aztec kings made their summer homes there; Mexico's rulers since the time of Cortes have had residences there. The palace of Cortes was begun by him in 1530, but has since been much altered. It contains many interesting paintings and sculptures, and frescoes by Diego Rivera, a gift to Mexico by the late Ambassador Morrow mentioned before. Morrow was successful in mixing with the people there and seems to have done much to foster better feeling between Mexico and the U. S.

Toluca was visited on Friday, market day. That city is noted for this large and well-ordered

Progressive Homemakers.

Progressive Homemakers club had their guest day and annual achievement day Thursday afternoon in the Valerius Damme home. Mrs. Damme, Mrs. Ernest Greenwood and Mrs. Ben Nissen were on the committee. Guests were Mrs. Fred Sillken, Mrs. Lou Bauer, Mrs. Martin Bastian, Mrs. Dave Bender, Mrs. Bernard Barelman, Mrs. Bill Barelman, Mrs. Wallace Meyer, Mrs. George Fox, Mrs. Roy Daniels, Mrs. Art Erxleben, Mrs. Charles Meyer, Mrs. Emil Luth, Mrs. Mary Bergl, Mrs. B. F. Von-Segger, Mrs. Walter Meeske and Miss Lillian Greenwood. Games and contests were diversion. Plants were exchanged. An exhibit of antiques and the club's work for the Lorraine Wilson of Randolph, was chosen to go to girls' state. A star mail route has replaced the railroad train on the Scribner-Oakdale line. Jacqueline Plantenburg of Emerson, was chosen Thurston county spelling champion. Edward Luther bought a 40-acre farm five miles northwest of Wisner from the Federal Land bank for $2,200. Mrs. Matt Wagner, 79, early resident of Wisner, died April 7 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wayne Brisben, in Omaha. Mrs. Wagner suffered a stroke a few market, its fine basket work, and sarapes.

Skillful in Handwork. Taxco, located in the center of the silver mining region, was also visited. It is especially famous for silver, tin and leather handwork. The metal used in the solid silver pieces carries a greater percentage of silver than sterling in this country. It is interesting to note that the filligree work is easier to do than the wrought silver pieces. All of this handwork is done in little shops, consisting of a workroom in the rear and a show room in front. Each shop has, of course, its own workmen. As soon as one piece is finished it is brought to the room in front for display and sale. One may have pieces made up following an original idea or design. There are, however, few sets of silver knives and forks for the reason that they are so hard to make. Sets have to be perfect—same weight, size, shape, design, etc. It would take an artist of remarkable skill to make the pieces uniform.

The tin used in this sort of handwork is solid, and will not tarnish. Beautifully elaborate candle sticks and candelabra made in these little shops, especially in Taxco. In general, Mrs. Ley was impressed with the amount of beautiful woods. All public buildings have a wealth of hard wood panels as part of the decoration, and all beauty is increased by the lovely paintings and crystal glass one sees everywhere. In speaking of the amount of handwork being done, Mrs. Ley seemed to feel a trend toward rehabilitation along this line just as we give people relief through work on public projects, so they encourage the natives to resume the art of their fathers. There seemed to be so much more of this sort of thing now than there was two years ago when Mrs. Ley was in Mexico before.

Highways Are Excellent.

The highways there are excellent—grades are perfect and the balance is good. One feels safe at all times because the roads are very well made and well maintained. They are patrolled all the way to Mexico City. Thirty-three miles northeast of the capital is a zone which contains majestic pyramids built many centuries ago, supposedly by the Toltecs. Here one finds the pyramid of the sun, and of the moon, and the temples of the sun and rain. The pyramid of the sun is 761 feet long, 722 feet wide, and 217 feet high. Some of the mounds and temples are elaborately decorated with serpent heads, snake bodies, etc.

Many in Agriculture.

Much of the land is under irrigation, and one sees many oxen in the fields, sometimes as many as 10 or 12 pair in one large field. Agriculture is and always has been the chief occupation of the Mexican people. The number engaged in agriculture and stock raising far outnumber those engaged in all other industries. The total value of agricultural products is over 600 million a year. The production of henequen fiber, coffee, tomatoes and vegetables, bananas, cotton, vanilla and tobacco is carried on extensively. The great crop of the country is corn, almost all of which is used by its own population, forming the basic food of practically all the people.

Mining is the most highly developed and best organized of the Mexican industries. Lead is wisely distributed, and the copper resources, although not so extensively exploited as silver and gold, are known to be tremendous.

There, as here, a president is to be elected in 1940. One is able to distinguish an undercurrent of uncertainty—business and papulace seem to be waiting to see what may happen.

DID YOU KNOW?

April, 1926, was the driest month in Nebraska since 1910. George Francis Train (1829-1904), Omaha's eccentric genius, was active in Nebraska pioneer days. He assisted December 2, 1863, in breaking ground at Omaha for building of the Union Pacific railroad. He once built a hotel in 60 days because he didn't like the one in which he was staying in Omaha.

A sand dune is only a knoll of sand shifting without any goal; you see it one day, then it blows away, and next is just a big hole.

"No drought until 1975" is the prediction of Dr. Chas. Abbot of the Smithsonian Institution, who believes that the rain cycle is due to start again.

In 1860 a government order brought several hundred Sioux Indians to a mass meeting at the Santee agency. Instead of negotiating a treaty with or ceding lands to the government, the Indians, organized a 24-piece Indian band which gave concerts in Lincoln and Omaha over a period of 12 years.

In 1873, while a tribe of Ojibwa Indians under Chief Medicine Horse was hunting near Red Cloud, the chief's daughter became ill and died. A big grave was dug and in it the girl and her pony were put. Settlers, learning that the Indian intended to kill the pony, offered the chief $75 for it. But Medicine Horse declined. "No, squaw needs pony to ride in 'happy hunting grounds,'" he said. The Indians choked the pony to death, painted the tail red, put corn in front of its nose, and left it. For years the grave was visited by Indians. Later the body of the squaw was removed.

Tests Are Taken By Many Students

Wayne county 7th and 8th graders took examinations Thursday and Friday at each town of the county and also at Wakefield, 109 taking the tests at Wayne, 31 at Carroll, 22 at Winside, also others at Wakefield, Spokes and Hoskins.

Students of both grades will be given another opportunity to take the tests at the same places May 9.

An average of 75 or above with no grade below 60 allows a student to finish the 8th grade work. County Suplt. F. B. Decker recommends that pupils take over any subjects in which they have grades below 70.

Mrs. Lloyd Behmer Is Head of School

Mrs. Lloyd Behmer, formerly Miss Anna Anderson, will complete the term as head of Hoskins school, taking the place of W. S. Idler who resigned effective at the close of work last Friday. Mrs. Behmer has had much experience in school work.

How the plus of OIL-PLATING brings you more than an oil-change

YOU KNOW right off that the fresh oil needed in your crankcase today, isn't to lubricate the crankcase. Either your oil is in the bearings and up to the cylinder head every turn of your engine, or your lubrication isn't 100%.

Now what's the chance for any of the general run of oils to stay up while you've parked the car, for instance? Just about as much chance as there is for a geyser to stay up all by itself! Then every time you start, don't pistons get up to the top before oil gets up from the crankcase? You kill that risk by changing now to OIL-PLATING.

The "magnetic action" of Conoco Germ Processed oil—patented—makes OIL-PLATING stay on inner engine surfaces throughout all your stops, starts and runs this Summer. Your Germ Processed oil keeps a steady hold on the "Full" mark, too, as you'll see—by changing today to Your Mileage Merchant.

Round About This Funny World

An Indiana dog had a successful appendix operation—most unusual the doctors report. A Los Angeles woman, 77, and man, 59, say they are happily married. It is the woman's 9th husband. An Illinois man, 85, resigned his position as elevator operator so as to devote the rest of his life to hunting and fishing. After a Missouri lodge made elaborate plans to observe its golden anniversary, someone discovered the chapter was only 45 instead of 50 years old. A month ago, Theo Upchurch, 55, was struck by an automobile near Raleigh, N. C., seriously injuring him. Last week, at the same spot, another automobile hit him. He died. Ira Yates, 79, who began digging peanuts as a boy for $10 a day, died last week Texas' richest millionaire. The state's most prolific oil pool was discovered on the Yates mile ranch. An effort to locate the oldest person living has located a Serbian man who is 126. The man doesn't look a day over 100, the report states, and he has been married 14 times. When 3-year-old Joan Erwin of Kansas, refused a fish of ice cream, her parents called a doctor. Then came a quick trip to a hospital where a penny was taken from the child's throat. The average stride for Ames, Iowa, students is 23 inches compared to 18 for other schools. It is figured that the large size of the campus makes Ames students increase the length of their walk. A Los Angeles man is to pay a fine of 30 quarts of milk. A dairyman and a customer got in an argument. The dairyman hit the customer in the nose and as a result the customer gets $80.30 worth of milk. Gene Kelly of Branford, Conn., would be a poor prospect for an alarm clock salesman. He parked his car on a hill and went to sleep. The car rolled down hill, smashed into a telephone pole, a policeman ripped open the door of the wrecked car. Kelly was still asleep. Sam Simonson of Chicago has been an umbrella repairman for 42 years. The other day he applied for his annual peddler's license, was reminded that last year he said he was going to retire. "I can't retire now," the 72-year-old man replied. "It's that fellow in

The bulge in a stranger's coat looked like a gun to Filling Station Operator Arthur Peters at Rochester, N. Y., and Peters reactively handed over a roll of $50 in small bills. The bandit heeled off a dollar bill, handed back the rest of the money.

A new divorce theory developed from records indicates that separations are more prevalent among couples when birthdays of husband and wife are 45, 40, 135 or 180 days apart and 90 is the worst. Intervals of 30, 60, 120 and 150 days show very few divorces.

For 10 years Roy Lewis of Shelburn, Ind., refused to leave his house at night. His wife at last induced him to go out to see his daughter in a high school opera. "Something's going to happen," he said as he consented. "Our house is probably going to fall in or something." The house burned down.

A Los Angeles man was charged with being drunk because he staggered, he smelled of alcohol and his speech was thick. The man explained that he staggered because he is bow-legged; he smelled of alcohol because he uses wood alcohol on his knees for rheumatism; and he talked thickly because he had a wad of tobacco in his mouth. The jury acquitted him.

Opinions have been blamed for blighted romances and for housewife's tears but this is the first time they have to carry the blame for closing a school. Spring vacation at Halford, Mass., planned for this week, was postponed because the weather was too cold for planting onions. Onion raising is the town's main industry, and when planting time arrives, young and old go to work.

The bridegroom's face was scarlet as from the back porch the minister pronounced a couple man and wife. The couple had set Easter day for their wedding and in spite of the fact that the bridegroom looked scarlet he went ahead with the ceremony. The bride entered the quainted sick room as the minister performed the ceremony from the porch. They will be quarantined 30 days, and if the bride takes the fever it will be 30 more.
