

High School Commencement Orators Sojourn in Wayne Editor of Lincoln Star Deputy State Superintendent—Elgin Educator and Editor—Former Wayne College Instructor.

Wayne was stimulated by presence of some men of letters and of educational leadership the latter part of last week, drawn hither to engage in school commencement oratory here and hereabouts. We always receive more than we can give in an exchange of ideas with such fellows. We learned long ago that when one contacts an extraordinary background of reading and travel and careful thinking, he is wise to absorb all he can hold. If one gathers liberally from another's store of experience, the latter suffers no loss, but on the contrary, has the satisfaction of helping enlighten contemporary spirits.

Jas. E. Lawrence, editor of the Lincoln Star, was the first in order. He was the high school commencement speaker, and he advanced spiritual values as democracy's best defense. And as we recall him in his initial newspaper experience with the Beatrice Express while we were struggling in a managerial capacity to revive that moribund newspaper, we are not surprised that he stresses qualities of the soul as transcending all other forces in preserving American freedom and living Christian civilization. His thinking confirms our prediction of more than thirty years ago when he was soon off to the university and to the beginning of a distinguished newspaper career.

What we lacked in knowledge in that far away period we tried to make up in industry and earnestness, and while what we didn't know was more impressive than what we did know, we had certain vaguely fixed spiritual ideals which led us to appraise individuals according to the yardstick of mental fitness and character stability rather than according to that of power to accumulate worldly possessions. Lawrence was fair and square, intensely industrious and wholesomely ambitious. His mind did not run so much to what material value he could nail as to how he could serve and thereby enrich his own experience.

Though we may be separated in party affiliations, we are together in means to perpetuate American fundamentals and to avoid pitfalls surreptitiously planted by alienisms Lawrence's thinking follows a stratum far above cold gain, and our expectations, based on observations of the long ago, have been fully met.

Dr. Chas. F. Dienst. Next came Dr. Chas. F. Dienst, at one time superintendent of the Wayne schools, and now deputy state superintendent, to deliver the address to eighth grade graduates of Wayne county. The way he was greeted attested to his high popularity. Every child and teacher and parent touched by his sympathetic fellowship in the past was delighted to see him again.

Dr. Dienst strongly believes in people—in the American system of personal liberty and free enterprise. To him, every boy and girl affords an opportunity for the fashioning and fortifying process of cultured and high-minded leaders. He believes every man and woman may be lifted higher by kindly sympathy and interested helpfulness. He would fuse into the human element self-respect and self-reliance. He would do his utmost to overcome evil with good. He would not cast off as useless and hopeless those who have drifted away from sound moorings. He would not just kick an ornery rooster; he would also sharply point out wrong and right ways, and make him want to follow the right one. He leads people to see the bright side—makes them hopeful and courageous.

Valdemar Peterson. Valdemar Peterson, once a Wayne lad, now a sort of community generalissimo at Elgin—superintendent of schools, editor of the town newspaper and leader of useful civic activities—was well when we addressed high school graduates. Valdemar did not quit studying and improving after he left the university, and he has developed into a powerful dynamo for public service. He is ambitious to do more things well, and it is our guess that he will

GOOD PROGRESS SO FAR IN EFFORT TO BUILD HERALD LIST

THE HERALD'S special subscription-building campaign has been in progress three weeks, and participants have made good headway in gathering new and renewal subscriptions. Remaining weeks will doubtless show stimulated effort. Payment to every candidate on each settlement would seem attractive compensation with extra rewards to final winners. The object of the campaign to add new readers is panning out well so far, and the prospect of full realization by the end of the campaign is promising. The Herald desires to serve a wider area, and in so doing to attract more people to Wayne. This newspaper costs a trifle less than four cents per week, and besides its news features, its advertising columns guarantee buying economy that will many times justify the small investment. Savings by coming to Wayne to buy supplies will usually also more than take care of the travel expense involved by the use of gasoline. Most people within a radius of twenty-five miles are interested in Wayne as a business, social and educational center. The way to keep in close touch with the community's events, including trade opportunities, is to subscribe for the Herald and continue it as a regular weekly visitor. We believe benefits will be mutually advantageous.

Tuition Fee Is Proposed To Pad College Budgets

Senators May Reconsider Action Taken Tuesday For Four Schools.

Nebraska senate, at Lincoln Tuesday, decreed that the four state teachers colleges must pad out their operating budgets by charging tuition fees. Senator Emil Brodecky, Howells, expressed certainly that the matter will be reconsidered. To enforce its decree regarding tuition, the senate voted a reduction of $75,322 in appropriations for the four schools. If this is allowed it will mean that Wayne's sum will be cut from $293,373 to $224,212. Kearney's from $266,300 to $227,581. Peru's from $287,430 to $251,430. The senate proposes that the schools charge $10 a semester fee to make up the difference.

The amendment adopted by the senate permits the schools to operate under present fee schedules for the coming year and affords a year's time in which to make the adjustment. An attempt will be made to have the tuition matter reconsidered.

Action taken Monday by the senate took $3,750 off the Wayne appropriation and gave it to Kearney on ground that Kearney's enrollment is larger than Wayne's.

PICNIC SEASON IS ON WITH VACATION DAYS NOT FAR OFF

THE PICNIC and vacation season comes when warm weather settles down to stay. Many people relish eating in the outdoors. Viands spread on the grass or on park tables with no barriers to flies or mosquitoes or bugs afford a double-barrelled experience—fighting hunger and the insect neighborhood simultaneously. In the woods or on shore of a lake or the bank of a river, campfire coffee tastes better than any other kind. Around a fire at night the joy of reminiscing is usually enlivened by jiggers appearing from the ground and mosquitoes descending from above, all accompanied by lightning bugs which furnish the illumination. People are now planning their vacations and some will journey to one of the big fairs, while others will be content to spend leisure time at less distant places. All summer and until late in the autumn people will be going and coming, suspending routine long enough to be anxious to get back to it. Then, quite exhausted and wonderfully relieved, people will resume accustomed activities. Mingling with strangers and seeing unfamiliar scenes enlarge vision and make one better satisfied with his lot.

Wayne board has about $83,000 from the bond issue and federal grant for the building. After deducting for expenses already incurred the total available will be about $82,600, which is not quite sufficient for the low bid. Through 17 alternates it is possible to save $5,165 on the job. The board may select one of the alternates on roof (Continued on Page Two.)

Trained Scout Leader Coming

Short Course and Day Camp Are Arranged for Early Part of August.

A short course in girl scout leadership training and day camp for all girls of the community were arranged last Thursday when scout leaders came to see Dr. J. T. Anderson and other leaders in girl scouting. Mrs. Katie Lee Johnson of Washington, D. C., national girl scout director who has been brought to Nebraska for a year, and Mrs. F. H. Bucholz of Omaha, regional committee advisors, were here.

Miss Gertrude Steiner, will conduct day camp for girls from 7 to 10 a. m., August 7 and 8. She will give a training course at the college those afternoons.

Frank Phillips of a large petroleum company, has decided to use part of his wealth to promote character building for girls and boys. He has chosen the Coveted Wagon Area, Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado, Missouri and South Dakota, for this work which he will extend if results show promise. As Mr. Phillips' mother was born in Nebraska, he is offering the aid alone to this state for a year. His first plan is to train scout leaders, for he thinks that only through skilled leaders can young folks be trained.

Mr. Phillips is giving $30,000 to Nebraska for training leadership this year for girl scouts, camp fire girls and girl reserves.

The women hope to have courses offered in colleges at Blair, Hastings, Fremont, Lincoln, Omaha, Chadron, Peru and Wayne. The aim is to train about 300 leaders who will carry on the scout work.

Wayne, with 7 in two scout troops, and brownie pack of 30 just starting, has a larger percentage of girls enrolled in scout work than any place in the state.

The visitors invited those interested in scouting to attend the regional conference in Omaha next April or May when one of the features will be a pageant depicting the history of music.

Contract Let for School Building

construction to save $633, but it is expected that some savings can be effected in other ways, so that not even this alternate will have to be taken. The board is allowed 60 days to make this decision.

Seven bids entered. Other general contract bids presented Tuesday are the following: Keller Bros., Yankton, S. D., $97,950; John L. Soderberg Co., Omaha, $89,325; W. A. Klinger Inc., Sioux City, $86,650; B. E. Short Construction Co., Sioux City, $86,000; H. S. Holtz Construction Co., Sioux City, $85,365; R. M. Coomer Construction Co., Sioux City, $84,915. Bids were out $10,000 to $14,000 over the previous letting when eight bids were declared too high as they were not within the sum available. A few changes were made in plans by the architect, but none of these affect the quality of the building.

The bidding bid of $82,972 was accepted in full with the provision that the board may select the one alternate to cut the sum if necessary.

The contract is subject to PWA approval. Dan Ferrell, jr., PWA engineer, attended the meeting Tuesday so the approval is only a matter of form. Architect Wm. Beutler of Sioux City, and F. S. Berry, attorney for the board, were also present.

The final sale of the school bonds will be concluded when litigation is completed in supreme court. Last week the supreme court ruled that the school bond issue was legal. C. H. Hendrickson, who contested the legality, was allowed 40 days to ask for a rehearing. The final date for this would be June 15. Should such a request for rehearing be made, the supreme court will act on the matter immediately.

Wayne and Kearney ON THE CLAIM that the Kearney State Teachers' college enrollment is larger than that of Wayne, the legislature was persuaded this week to take $3,750 from the appropriation for Wayne and give it to Kearney. (According to the record, the yearly college attendance in Wayne exceeds that at Kearney. Wayne has better buildings and fewer faculty members and graduates more students, but seems to require less money. Is our college more efficient and more provident? Is Kearney's inability to practice equal economy with an equal showing due to the climate—and the narcotic effect of higher altitude and of more rarefied air?)

Let us interview some facts: Enrollment figured on a basis of one student for one school year of thirtysix weeks gives Wayne 1,361 and Kearney 1,291. Adding the summer school and two semesters together, we have a total of 2,536 for Wayne and 2,400 for Kearney. Included in the student totals, but separated from regular enrollment are numbers of pupils in rural and other public schools observed by Kearney's college teacher group. When a school is visited, its pupils are enumerated and embalmed in the record as affiliated students. This record projects some size and ponderousness into the record, but really means nothing in particular.

It is important to note that this year Wayne college graduates 89 from the four-year course, while Kearney graduates only 38. Wayne also surpasses Kearney in turning out graduates from one, two and three-year programs. With the appropriation for maintenance dropped from $308,216 to $293,373, and with omission of $11,750 previously provided for repairs, Wayne will have to struggle along on a total sum of $26,593 less than was available for the past biennium.

Wayne college must contribute to the economy program, but it should not be compelled to do more than its share. Its thrift should not be penalized nor its growth hindered. Kearney should practice some of the economics it endeavors to teach. It should cut corners in a way that would enable the legislature more nearly to fulfill its eagerness for economy.

This is written with no hope of raising Wayne's total to a par with Kearney's, but to straighten out the record and arouse acknowledgment to some points of superiority.

SPEAKING before the fifty-third annual Lincoln day dinner of the national republican club in February, Herbert Hoover, former president, made these concluding remarks:

"In conclusion let me again say that this republic is founded on inalienable liberties. It is dedicated to the dignity and personality of individual men and women. It is consecrated to truth, justice, tolerance and mercy. These liberties and obligations are inseparable. If political freedom, intellectual freedom, or economic freedom are any one of them undermined all the others will fall.

"These high purposes of this nation are being undermined by the policies now pursued at home and by alien theories from abroad. The first great mission of the republican party is the preservation of these principles.

"Today economic progress is being paralyzed. That destruction is the destruction of social progress. The imperious necessity of America is to restore economic productivity and thereby jobs for men. That alone can support our humanitarian aspirations. For social progress in the hands of the young, the ill-fed, the ill-clad, the ill-housed there must be parallel economic strength. Economic restoration is the second great mission of the republican party.

"We do not want to become entangled in another world war abroad. The third great mission of the republican party is peace for America.

"We are living custodians of the torch which fell from the hand of Abraham Lincoln. We may again rekindle the heart and mind of America with the glow of hope and promise for the future. Never since Lincoln has a political party faced such an opportunity for a service to a great people."

Reason WHEN a fellow is conservative he believes in preserving the existing order, and thus when President Roosevelt referred to himself and to his satellites as conservative, and opposing forces as radical, in his speech—nationally broadcast—before the retailers' national forum, he could easily imagine himself advancing tenable ground. The present order is the result of his leadership the last six years, and anyone who wants it upset and changed, may be termed, strictly speaking, in conflict with conservatism. According to the president's idea of handling public policies, as expressed in his speech, no one who is not a thorough new dealer, can safely be invested with responsible leadership. The president spurns the notion that an increase of twenty billions in federal indebtedness is much for a rich nation that is getting ready to swell its buying power. He believes business is growing and that people are able to buy more—a state of things they may not know from experience, but which they are expected to accept as an agreeable new deal theory.

We wish the legislature could figure out other ways than stripping schools down below needs to enforce a program of economy. If the maintenance cost at the Wayne college is a criterion of economy practiced in the other state colleges, there is no waste in administering higher education in Nebraska. As knowledge is generally accepted as the best guarantee of good citizenship, the schools should be kept up and permitted to afford easily available opportunities for ambitious young persons. The proposed tuition charge to justify reduced appropriations would work a serious hardship on poor but deserving boys and girls who are desirous of equipping themselves better to meet life's problems. There must be other sources of possible curtailment without tearing down institutions that mean most to our future civilization.

The president doesn't really need to tell people how they feel. When he tries to implant the idea that they are better off, he is wasting effort because they know if they are or if they are not. Informing a fellow that he is prosperous, or contrariwise, having a run of hard luck, is a good deal like appraising him that whereas he is now at ease he was but recently bested by a stomach-ache. American people are capable of doing their own thinking, and are not long misled. Since voters gave the president a majority twice it would seem only fair to give them an opportunity to reverse themselves. To afford this privilege the president would have to run for a third term.

Persons who started with nothing and after a life of hard work and self-denial, have saved a reasonable competence for declining years, do not relish the undermining of the system on which they have pinned their expectations. Further, they do not enjoy frittering away reserves on the hopes of less industrious individuals who would begin at the top and stay there without effort.

This is quoted from history in regard to the official record of President Harrison: "His administration was marked by a revival of American industries and a reduction of the public debt, and at its conclusion the country was left in a condition of prosperity and on friendly terms with foreign nations."

The legislature proposes more money for law enforcement, but less for education. Would not increased education make fewer candidates for crime careers, and thus diminish the cost of operating the machinery of justice?

The truth is mightily important, but it appears often to be handled with much abandon in these latter years of unrest and uncertainty.

A movement has been started to erect a suitable memorial to honor Nebraska's most distinguished citizen, General John J. Pershing.

If unreasonably hot elements are worked into the weather record this month, we may reasonably expect agreeable moderation in June.

A wet June will make liberal amends for a dry May.

Still Another Alternative.
(Omaha World-Herald)

The president, we believe, oversimplifies when he describes the alternatives before us as first, a continuation of his fiscal policies or second, a return to the conditions of 1929. There is another alternative, and it is the duty of a truly progressive administration to pursue it—namely, the adoption of fiscal policies which will break the log-jam of capital investment and pour life into a stagnant economy.

Idle Dollars, Idle Men.
(Omaha Journal-Stockman)

Statements given out by the treasury department show that billions of dollars, formerly employed in industry and business, are now tied up in government bonds and other tax exempt securities earning low rates of interest. The country is not particularly interested in these investors and is not overly sympathetic with them. What worries the country is the fact that these unemployed millions of dollars are mainly responsible for the unemployed millions of men and women today. It is this matter of unemployment that constitutes our greatest problem.

To Grandmother's Funeral.
Mrs. J. R. Johnson's grandmother, Mrs. Fred Barton, died last week at her home in Edgerton, Wis. Dr. and Mrs. Johnson, George Wilson, Mrs. Lester Rapp and Mrs. Walker Rapp, the last three of Lincoln, left Saturday for Edgerton to attend the funeral. The Wayne and Lincoln folks returned home Monday evening.

Plan at Ponca.
Mervin Pedersen and his science class from the Wayne high school went to Ponca Tuesday for picnic dinner and supper. Kenneth Peterson was awarded a pin for being the most outstanding student the past year in the work.

Tuition in Wayne School Increases
Wayne high school had a total of 519 students in the grades and high school the past year. Of these 284 were in the kindergarten through the 8th and 255 in the high school. The average daily attendance for the year was 454. Of the high school number 108 were non-resident students and one non-resident pupil was in the grades. The tuition for the year will amount to over $8,000 which is more than the year before.

Miss Charlotte Ziegler visited in the G. G. Heller home Thursday afternoon.

MEMORIAL DAY.
On the annual Memorial day which comes next Tuesday, people will gather to pay due tribute of respect to the soldier dead. Speakers will honor the sacrifices of departed and living veterans. Graves will be decorated with the season's richest blossoms. Prayers of mothers and fathers who lost sons in war or who saw them returned maimed and handicapped, will be deeply expressed in behalf of peace—freedom from brutalities out of which only untold suffering and waste can come. As voices everywhere in this democracy are lifted on Memorial day against ruthless slaughter, authorities must consistently reinforce their determination to keep American soldiers of American soil, and engage in conflict only in the event of aggression. Memorial day makes one think more profoundly of the horrors of war and of the immeasurable blessings of peace.

Notable

succeeded. He is one of many Wayne county fellows who have gone forth and made good.

Dr. F. M. Gregg.
Another well known commencement orator to tarry in Wayne was Dr. F. M. Gregg, who filled an engagement at Coleridge. Dr. Gregg, who recently retired from the teaching staff of Wesleyan university at Lincoln, was a member of the old Wayne college, founded by President J. M. Pile, and bought by the state through act of the legislature in 1909.

Dr. Gregg has been a live wire in Nebraska's educational circles. While in Wayne he was sent to Lincoln to represent this county in the legislature. He is broad-minded and tolerant, sharing the rational ground that everybody is headed for the same final goal. He doesn't like the way the world is running—the threats to peace, the growing tendency to government paternalism, the eagerness to get by without doing much if anything. But he has faith in the people. Dr. Gregg remembers affectionately the ties of friendship which he enjoyed while he lived in Wayne many years ago.

Musical Recital Planned Monday

The musical program for the college commencement this year is a senior recital to be given Monday evening, May 29, at the school auditorium at 8. The public is invited and no admission is charged. Virginia Beckman, Wayne, who has an exceptional soprano voice and has been heard many times during her college course, will sing "In the Time of Roses," by Reichert, "I Would Linger," from "Romeo and Juliet," by Gounod, "The Answer," by Terry, "Dearest Name," from "Rigoletto," by Verdi, and "The False Prophet," by Scott.

Marie Carstensen, Neligh, active in college music groups as piano and voice soloist, also appearing often in ensembles, will play two piano numbers, "Galatea," Op. 44, No. 3, by Jensen, and "Valse Caprice," by Cyril Scott.

Vivian Nelson, Wakefield, prominent in the music department during her four years of college, specializes in piano and for this program will play "Lotus Land," by Cyril Scott and "Butterfly," by Lavallee.

Added features of the program will be double-piano numbers by Miss Nelson and Miss Carstensen, including "On a Merry Folk Tune," by Elkas, "Deep River," arranged for two pianos from the negro spiritual, and "Coronation Scene," from the opera, "Boris Godunoff," by Rimski-Korsakoff.

Marion Seymour, Wayne, well known in music circles, will accompany Miss Beckman.

Prof. Albert G. Carlson and Prof. Russel Anderson are sponsors of the recital.

THE WPA.
In a recent article in Current History, Stanley High goes after the WPA as a political institution—as a force to swing elections. He shows how this group has been used to further partisan ends. He says WPA expenditures have totaled six and one-half billion dollars with two and one-half million persons on its payrolls. It has proved a giant power in determining elections. In one paragraph Writer High says: "The time to eliminate political abuses from the WPA is now. For, whatever party flag flies over the White House after 1940, this organization—or something like it—will probably have to be continued. And there is little in the books to indicate that republican politicians, confronted with this same political opportunity, would resist it with greater success than have the new dealers. Malodorous political machines are to be found in both parties. But the distinguishing feature of the WPA in politics is that the politicians have been exacting their tribute from people too poor to contribute and too helpless to protest. It is of critical importance, therefore, that the evils of the system be torn out before they become deeply rooted."

To Hold Classes In Creative Art

"Every child is a potential artist," a great authority in the field of art has said. With that idea in mind the art department of the State Teachers college is sponsoring creative art classes this summer for boys and girls of Wayne and the surrounding territory. Miss Harriet Hazinski will instruct the group in room 324 in the art building on the college campus. The classes will be held Saturday mornings from 9 to 12 o'clock on these dates: June 17, July 1, July 15, and July 29. The fee for this series of classes will be one dollar.

All first to eighth graders will be given the opportunity to express themselves as real artists with the following materials: Finger paint, air brush, tempera paint, chalk, pastels, excello squares, water color, paper, etc. No drawing ability is required. Materials will be furnished with the exception of pencils, paint brushes, erasers, paint pens and paint cloths.

A public exhibition of the children's work will be held in the week of July 29 - August 5.

College Cantata Is Well Received

The a cappella choir and symphony orchestra of the Wayne State Teachers college, under the direction of Prof. Russel Anderson, presented "The Rose Maiden" Tuesday evening at the Willow Bowl before an audience of about 1500.

"The Rose Maiden," a secular cantata by Frederic H. Cowan, is a musical work of great lyric beauty and its presentation in the outdoor arena was extremely effective," in Russell Wideo's opinion. "The thrill of delightful solos and rich harmonies of the choir, supported by the skilled musicians of the orchestra, as they musically depicted the beauties of nature so apparent there in the Willow Bowl, is one which the audience will long remember.

"The argument of the cantata has to do with the Queen of the Flower Fairies, her adventures, and unhappy end after the mortal gift of love is bestowed upon her. This story is unfolded by various solos, duets and choruses, with strains of true lyric beauty and climaxes of glorious full harmony. The thoughtfulness of the directors in providing a libretto on the program enhanced the enjoyment of the story considerably.

"An outstanding feature of the performance, and one which lent it a truly professional air, was the remarkable balance achieved by the singers and orchestra. Special credit is due the directors because this problem is not an easy one to overcome in an outdoor performance.

"The cantata was an outstanding musical presentation, representative of a field of music seldom heard but nevertheless greatly appreciated, and it is hoped that the music lovers of Wayne may look forward to a similar treat in the future," concludes Mr. Wideo.

Prof. John R. Keith directed the orchestra. Miss Marion Seymour was the accompanist.

Dramatics Class To Present Play

Dramatics class at the State Teachers college will present the beautiful and thought-provoking fable in three acts, "The Enchanted Cottage," by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, popular English dramatist, as its commencement play this week Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the college auditorium with Miss Florence Drake director. A simple but effective stage setting has been arranged. Costumes are modern except in the dream scene which is a part of second act where they are modern and fantastic. Careful attention is being given to lighting and stage effects especially in the dream. The presence of several small children is an added point of interest. The play deals with the emotional lives of several people whom the war has in one way or another caused to suffer, an unselfish but plain young woman, and others wrapped up in their own affairs. The story is just as true and just as pertinent now as in the years immediately following the war. It leaves the onlookers with a feeling that they have come close to some of the finer things of life.

La Verne Maurer as Miss Pennington plays the feminine lead. Gretchen Niederwimmer as Mrs. Minnett is the eccentric housekeeper. Both young women did very excellent acting in "Riders to the Sea," given by the college class in chapel last November. At that time Harold Hutchison in an explanatory talk presented the background for "Riders to the Sea." He also played two roles in Jane Eyre, one being the part of the lead Rochester. As Major Bashforth he plays the lead in the present production. Werner Welch, who recently appeared in the "Masque of Kings" carries an equally important role as Major Hillygrove.

Producing managers are Hannah Doyle and Delores Welch. Prof. John R. Keith is assisting with the music for the dream scene by directing a string quartet. Three posters were made by art students under the direction of Miss Harriet Hazinski.

THE VOICE OF RELIGION

Current Questions and Answers about Religion, Morals and Personal Problems by DR. WELDON F. CROSSLAND, Rochester, New York

Do you expect a religious revival in America? I believe one has been in progress in America for more than two years.

Silent rather than spectacular this new revival has very little in common with the mass methods of the Moody-Sunday campaigns, which so finely played their role in a former generation.

The following evidences all point to a continuance of the steadily rising tide of interest in and commitment to religion:

A renewed interest in the church and a keener appreciation of its necessity and value both to Christians and to non-Christians. Churches themselves are more aggressive and statesman-like in their planning than they have been in a generation.

A widespread conviction, voiced so often recently by columnists and educators, that only the power and principles of religion can save civilization from catastrophe. In this regard they are correct.

Signs of a moral renaissance are appearing after the change and chaos of the past twenty years. Moral rearmament is gaining momentum.

Devotional booklets for daily Bible reading, meditation and prayer have been published by the millions.

Youth both in and out of the colleges responded in an amazing way to the university preaching mission of last year. This changed attitude is typical of the more friendly, open-mindedness of most Americans to religion.

If for any reason this religious renaissance should be arrested, the future would become dark for most good things associated with the American way of living, especially personal liberty.

Is an American flag out of place in a Christian church? No. The church member is both a Christian and an American citizen. He is part both of that international brotherhood called the Christian church and of that national brotherhood called America.

He owes a duty to God and a duty to his country. These two loyalties ought never to conflict. The nation ought never to ask the Christian to do anything that would violate his Christian conscience.

Should this conflict of loyalties ever arise, the loyal Christian will remember that he ought to obey God rather than man. Duty to God and to Christ outrank every other obligation.

The fear that the Christian church may become subservient to the state, as in some countries, causes many to feel that the church should utterly dissociate herself in every way from the state, even to the point of removing the American flag.

In the church I serve we have both the Christian service flag and the American flag. The presence of both in our sanctuary helps us keep our loyalties in their proper order.

To Hold Festival At Willow Bowl

Physical Education Group Presents Old English Story Friday.

Women's physical education department of Wayne State Teachers college presents its annual festival Friday, May 26, at 10:15 in the Willow Bowl. This year's pageant is "Dick Whittington," an old English story. Participating are the women's college physical education classes, pupils of the college training school and the rural school. Miss Esther P. Dewitz is the director.

The story, told in five episodes each with its accompanying and appropriate dances, is as follows: The London Guilds and citizens are rejoicing at the installation of the Honorable Richard Whittington as Lord Mayor of London in the year 1335. Then the scene is taken back to 1320 to trace the rise of Dick Whittington to such esteem. Dick is wandering through the city in search of work. Failing to find employment, he decides to leave the city. Just then the bells of London Tower peal forth "Turn again, Whittington, Lord Mayor of London." So he stays after all. He meets Phoebe, the cat, and she introduces him to Alice Fitzwarren and her father who lets him help in the kitchen for food and lodging.

Dick soon had a goal in life—to work in Mr. Fitzwarren's warehouse, a very busy and exciting place with cargo coming in and going out to distant ports. One day, as Captain Brown of the Good Ship Nancy and his crew were about to leave, all in the Fitzwarren household were asked for a venture or investment to send along for Captain Brown to sell. Dick had nothing to send so Alice suggested that he send Phoebe, the cat, which he did.

At Faraway Island. The Good Ship Nancy sailed for many days, first, with favorable winds but later carried off her course in a storm. At last the ship came to the Faraway island inhabited by kindly people. Everything there would have been perfect had it not been for one thing—the island suffered from a rat plague. The chief councillor claimed that whoever would rid the island of rats could have half of the king's riches. Captain Brown and his sailors no sooner seated themselves than they were over-run with rats and mice. So Captain Brown sent for Phoebe, the cat, and before you could count five, every mouse and rat was gone. The king presented Captain Brown with bars of gold for bringing to the island this wonderful blessing.

Meanwhile Dick was still working in the Fitzwarren kitchen. One day amid great commotion, Captain Brown of the Good Ship Nancy and the sailors returned. They told of their adventure at Faraway island and how Phoebe rid the island of the rat plague. The sailors carried in the gold bricks, which Dick shared with the captain, the sailors and Mr. Fitzwarren. Mr. Fitzwarren promoted Dick to a position in the warehouse and a feast was held in his honor.

The string ensemble, which provides the music, is directed by Prof. John R. Keith.

J. E. Lawrence Speaker Here

Scholarship Awards Are Presented Wayne High School Seniors.

"Spiritual defenses of democracy, the preachings of the people since 1782, will preserve democracy in this country," in the opinion of James E. Lawrence, editor of the Lincoln Star, who gave the commencement address for Wayne high school's 51 graduates Thursday evening at the city auditorium. "The young people should in these times of government make it their lives, study and make it their own government."

The editor continued by saying that it is hard to find encouraging words for young people after eight years of depression and after realizing conditions existing in the country now. Education and spiritual forces will bring the country to the front and the young can help.

Compared on the basis of relative population, the number of unemployed and the anxiety to work are as great in the United States as in countries of Europe, according to Mr. Lawrence. In spite of that comparison, the speaker has yet to hear a leader of either political party advising organization of forces to take defenseless Mexico to the south. Nor has he found students anxious to get more wealth for the country. The general aim is to carry out the ideas of the ancestors who established this democracy.

America Wants Peace. "All young people should be endowed with the idea that we will live peacefully and get along with ourselves and neighbors, and that in America we live in peace. This is the spiritual defense," says Mr. Lawrence.

The speaker said that if the graduates seek higher education, and he hopes they do, "youth should remember that agreement is not the yeast on which democracy thrives." A person should defend his own opinion but have respect for others.

Mr. Lawrence praised Herbert Hoover as an example of one defending his own ideas. People hold him in high esteem for not changing his ideas and defending what he thinks is right.

Mr. Lawrence continued by saying that there is infinite work to be done in this country. "The frontiers of the pioneers were not so difficult to conquer as were the frontiers built up by man himself. Man never yet has solved the frontier himself created." Mr. Lawrence enjoyed coming back to the Elkhorn valley country as it made him feel like coming home. He was employed at Norfolk many years ago.

Miss Anna M. Geisler, sponsor of the National Honor society, announced the students picked for the society on the basis of character, scholarship, leadership and service. Ten per cent are seniors and five per cent are juniors chosen each year. The juniors for this year are Barbara Strahn, Marjorie Harrison and Lyle Seymour. Herald gift distribution. Nine days in which to annex the winning votes.

Nine days left for those whose vision is sufficient to lead them on to success and one of the big cash prizes in this prize campaign.

Those candidates who best avail themselves of the limited time remaining will naturally reap the most bounteous harvest. Can any day of the year compare with the day a candidate becomes the proud possessor of one of the big cash prizes?

With time so limited and the days speeding so rapidly, 9 o'clock Saturday, June 3 will be here almost before one knows it. With greatest vote making opportunity of the campaign existent only until Saturday night, every advantage should be gained while it is yet possible to make votes on the "double quick."

Figure Wars to Win. Candidates should and are turning all promised subscriptions into votes this week. Second payments on subscriptions previously given will also be a vote factor. Subscriptions for two years with their big vote advantage will not be overlooked by ambitious candidates. New subscriptions, that is, subscriptions from persons not now Wayne Herald readers, are especially valuable. The bonus vote makes new subscriptions for a year worth 10,000 votes while a renewal is worth 20,000 votes. Everyone will understand the winning ability of new subscriptions up to 9 o'clock Saturday, June 3.

There is no combination or circumstance possible to conceive which can profit a candidate as much as the votes from subscriptions voted up to the final hour Saturday.

Report Wednesday and Saturday. Candidates are requested to report each Wednesday and Saturday. Be sure to have your subscription in on these days in order that the votes may be counted and your score given the benefit of all votes you have up to that time. Remember hundreds of people are following the progress of the campaign. Your friends will be looking to see where you stand next Thursday.

Miss Margaret Mines went to Omaha Sunday and visited until Monday.

Laura E. Lyons Writes Herald From California

The honor bestowed on Wayne county rural district 68, the Flag school, in having the 8th grade pupil with the highest average is appreciated by Miss Laura Lyons of Long Beach, Calif., who writes that she, also Bufile Lyons Wingett and Alna Smith Boling finished that district in 1901 with Adelia Flour teacher. Arele Smith, who had the average of 97, the county's highest is a niece of Mrs. Boling. Bonnie Bruggeman and Dorothy Lyons were two of the next highest with averages of 95, and Dorothy is a niece of Mrs. Wingett and Miss Laura Lyons.

Miss Katherine Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter G. Barnes who formerly lived in Wayne, was married to Daniel R. Stalnaker May 6 at the beautiful community church in Lakewood Village, suburb of Long Beach. Rev. W. M. Perry officiated. Mrs. Leo J. Benzini, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The couple will live at Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller entertained Mother's day for the latter's mother, Mrs. August Piepenstock of Ocean Park.

Mrs. John Larson and son, Evelyn, and family have been quite ill with influenza, Miss Lyons writes. They may drive through to Wayne later. Miss Pae Evans, who has been with the Larson family, several years, accompanied her mother, Mrs. Roxie Evans, on a trip to San Francisco and other points en route to Wayne to visit relatives.

Mrs. Nathan Chace has been elected president of the Ebell club which meets every Monday in the lovely big Ebell club houses.

The Leys from Encinitas regretted that the worst wind storm they ever encountered in southern California kept them from attending the Wayne county picnic. LeRoy Leys has purchased a new home at Encinitas and Mrs. Alice Leys has dinner with them every evening.

A year ago April 15 ladies of Encinitas honored Mrs. Alice Ley with a birthday party but could not persuade her to reveal her age. However, they exacted a promise that if they repeated the honor another year she would tell them. In her own clever way she did but the women had to work to find out by doing quite a long mathematical problem. The first one completing the problem learned her age and also received a prize. Mrs. Ley has done outstanding work in the Townsend movement in her neighborhood. When she learned the birthday party was to be at 2:30, she invited seven prospective members to come at 2 to surprise the surprisers. To welcome the guests Mrs. Ley was attired in the dress and big pattern hat she wore at the reception for her son, R. W. Ley, over 30 years ago. Mrs. Ley also planned and executed a little play, "April Drama," by the Ley and troupe. She personified the legend, typifying a "gatefold" old gentleman with grayish black sideburns and wearing a silk stovepipe hat. Mrs. LeRoy Ley was grandma. Alice was a married daughter and her girl friend was a younger married daughter. "Pat" LeRoy was the naughty boy dressed in tuxedo. All caused much merriment, and Mrs. Ley was complimented on her originality.

Miss Lyons writes that a week's vacation from caring for an elderly woman allowed her time to visit her cousin, Ethel Williams, in Hollywood, and friends at Eagle Rock. She joined friends on a trip to Los Angeles and to the navy landing where they saw a fishing boat and a water taxi. They also went to Point Fermin park in San Pedro where flowers and shrubs were in gorgeous bloom. Nearby are the barracks and many camouflaged weapons 'planted' on the hill top.

Dr. C. F. Dienst Addresses Class

Countryside Is Inspiration For Finest Character, in Speaker's Opinion.

"The life where you live! Character is formed out of adversity rather than out of prosperity. Our government and liberty are challenged today. It is our duty and privilege to build out of our opportunities the kind of character that is America's tradition. Go into the struggle of life with faith and courage." This was the message brought by Dr. C. F. Dienst of Lincoln, deputy state superintendent, to Wayne county's 118 eighth grade graduates Saturday at the exercises before about 1,500 in the municipal auditorium.

In ancient times scholars were lonely explorers for truth. They didn't get honors for their achievements. On the contrary many received persecution from their fellows who neither understood them nor appreciated the values of learning. The world now gives honors to Columbus in geography, yet he died in chains. First commencement exercises in America were at Harvard 300 years ago when four young men were graduated. Girls didn't enter graduation exercises until 200 years later. From this small beginning the procession has grown. This class of 118 is part of 24,000 finishing the 8th grade in Nebraska and part of 2,000,000 in the nation.

"What of this increasing emphasis?" asked Dr. Dienst. "It means larger appreciation of the torch of learning that throws light on the pathway of man." And amidst the perplexing problems of depression, religion, war, taxes, etc., students ask for some encouragement for the future. Dr. Dienst finds the answer to this is the "contribution of the countryside."

What is encouraging in your Nebraska neighborhood?" questioned Dr. Dienst. Nebraska is mainly a countryside, for most of the people live in the country or in small towns. Rural and town people ride in the same cars, use the same telephones, have the same highways and will soon have the same electric power. The line of distinction between town and country is gone.

Dr. Dienst cited examples to show the importance of the countryside in national, state and local life. George Washington was more proud of the fact that he was a farmer than he was of being president or being a general. Abraham Lincoln's life proved that "work on a farm makes a real man." General Grant, Henry Ford and numerous others prominent in national life have come from the farm. The same is true of Nebraska's governor and many other officials. Wayne county has contributed its share from the countryside for special honors.

State Winner Champion Here

Boone County Girl Is First Among Spellers Entered From Nine Counties.

Margaret Ann Mahoney, state champion and Boone county 8th grader, won both the written and oral divisions of the first northeast Nebraska district spelling contest held in the Wayne county court room Friday afternoon. Geraldine Kilgore, Madison county, was second in the oral and Jacqueline Platenberg, Thurston county, was second in the written division. Twenty-two contestants represented nine counties, Madison, Dakota, Wayne, Thurston, Cuming, Antelope, Dixon, Boone and Cedar. Dr. R. W. Eaton of Omaha, author of the contest, conducted the event.

County Supt. F. B. Decker presented two medals, one of them a championship award, to Margaret Ann Mahoney for her winning of both divisions. A second place medal was awarded Geraldine Kilgore for second place in the oral contest; and Jacqueline Platenberg received the second place medal in the written division. The written contest was conducted first and the high seven in that participated in the oral division.

Ratings in the oral division follow: First, Margaret Ann Mahoney, Boone; second, Geraldine Kilgore, Madison, down on minutes; third, Jacqueline Platenberg, Thurston, down on palette; fourth, Robert Heese, Cedar, down on mandible; fifth, Marjorie Caauwe, Wayne, down on analog; sixth, Ione Boch, Boone, down on proceeding; seventh, Oliver Dooley, Cedar, down on condensing.

In the written contest ratings were: First, Margaret Ann Mahoney, Boone; second, Jacqueline Platenberg, Thurston; third, Robert Heese, Cedar; fourth, Geraldine Kilgore, Madison; fifth, Oliver Dooley, Cedar.

Dr. Eaton stated that this contest was one of the best to be conducted in this territory, and further declared, "the national contest won't get within a thousand miles of these people here today."

Dr. Eaton's statement will immediately become more believable when one realizes that three World-Herald winners participated in this district contest, Margaret Ann Mahoney won the championship gold medal and $200 in the Omaha contest; Robert Heese of Cedar county, had placed third at Omaha and high at the interstate contest in Sioux City; Jacqueline Platenberg of Emerson, placed fourth in the state contest. Margaret Ann had also won second among 113 in the interstate contest held in Sioux City and in which six states participated. This interstate group is the largest to be held in the United States. She is also one of two persons in her county to receive an average of 98 per cent in her 8th grade county examinations. Her home town community club, that of Cedar Rapids, Neb., recently presented her with a gold watch as evidence of its recognition of her outstanding record.

Names of contestants and the counties they represent are as follows: Arvin Reynolds, Madison; Geraldine Kilgore, Madison; Betty Ruth Lamp, Dakota; Delores Peters, Wayne; Marjorie Caauwe, Wayne; Jacqueline Platenberg, Thurston; Raymond Smith, Cuming; Gertrude Batenhorst, Cuming; Mary Lamson, Antelope; Lorraine Lorenzen, Antelope; Barbara Kinney, Antelope; Rachael Kingston, Dixon; Armella Dohman, Boone; Ione Boch, Boone; Margaret Ann Mahoney, Boone; LaVern Grose, Dixon; Betty Marlene, Wayne; Corrine Parish, Thurston; Marjorie Jara, Thurston; Teresa Feltz, Cedar; Olive Dooley, Cedar; and Robert Heese, Cedar.

Superintendents Miss Orna Thompson of Boone county, Mrs. Gladys Breitert of Madison, Miss Margaret Meyer of Cuming, Mrs. Bess Waring of Stanton, Miss Genevieve Welch of Thurston, Elmer Lindahl of Antelope, and J. Mike McCoy of Cedar, and Mrs. Decker served as judges.

Quarterly examinations were given the last week of school and pupils who had averages of 90 or above are Robert Rohde, Twila Lorenz, Harold Hall, Gurney Lorenz, Merle Rohde, Phyllis Hall, Marian Sellon, Johnny Sohler, Hans Burmeister, and Vernell Oberding.

Marian Sellon won the race in reading, this completing her score of winning every one in reading and also in arithmetic.

Arbor day was observed by cleaning the school yard and planting trees, flowers and rose bushes.

Supt. F. B. Decker was a welcome visitor May 3. Miss Genevieve Bruggeman, public health nurse, came May 9.

Puppets—Oldest Form of Amusement

The puppet, world's oldest form of dramatic representation, will be demonstrated by Miss Catherine Troy of Chicago, on the college campus during the week of June 19. Miss Troy, an expert in the creation and use of puppets and marionettes, will present a marionette show to the school children of Wayne county and adjoining territory Saturday, June 24, at 2:30 p. m. at the college auditorium.

The origin of the marionette is not exactly known. Perhaps the child playing with his doll, making that doll dramatically alive, gave the idea to the world. The child dresses the doll, gives it personality and characteristics. When and where this condition exists might be the first manifestation of what has grown to be the marionette, the oldest form of dramatic representation. Records of movable dolls go back as far as India, Greece and Rome.

The marionette, a puppet moved by strings or by hand, grew out of the old puppet type and was known everywhere, especially in Italy where it seems to have originated. The French called the dolls marionettes "a la planchette." The showman, who made the puppets dance by moving his legs to which the strings were tied, accompanied their steps on some kind of instrument—flute, tamborine or bagpipes.

Some say the name marionette was used because many of the original puppets portrayed the roll of Mary and were known as "Little Marys." Later it was said that the name might have been derived from "Marion," the pet-name of the heroine in one of the Robin and Marion pastorals. The etymology, as has been stated, is still not absolutely settled; all we know is that about the end of the 16th century and the beginning of the 17th the name is in regular use and accepted everywhere.

In Italy during that time attempts were made to perfect the marionettes. Mechanisms were improved, but the creations were so startling as to cause people to think they contained little devils and to worship them. This fact testifies to the excellence and extraordinarily life-like quality of the puppets. In 1573 the first permanent theatre of Italian marionettes was established in London; this made an impression on Shakespeare, for we find him mentioning them frequently. In the permanent Spanish towns the custom began of providing the puppets with a dialogue of their own—this also being found in England. To differentiate the various characters this showman made use of a small instrument which he put in his mouth when interpreting certain parts. Much use was made of puppets and marionettes in the morality and miracle plays of those centuries. Later on the marionettes had many adventures, among them actors of the regular stage. The string puppets—predominated in the sixteenth century. In the seventeenth century the hand puppets, along with their typical figures Punchinello and Punch, took precedence.

The English Punch. The most famous member of the hand puppet family is the youngest of the line, the English Punch. His name is simply Punchinello, and he seems to have taken a roundabout journey to England instead of coming straight from Italy. In spite of the attacks made on it as mentioned before, the puppet stage seemed competent to remain popular. The puppet-showman as a class became so numerous that in the 18th century they were formed into a kind of guild with their own special regulations and customs; one peculiar rule was that none of the play texts was to be written out, all having to be learned by heart.

During the last half of the 18th century public interest in the marionettes declined. However, it was this period when Punch flourished in England; he was the representative of the English folk humor, and must very soon have assumed the appearance by which he is recognized now—the bird-like features, with the huge nose, the hunches in front and at the back to amuse the mob who find deformities of this kind ridiculous, and lastly his peaked cap and the ruff around his neck.

In Nineteenth Century. A great revival came about in the field of the marionettes in the 19th century, with Germany as one of the leaders in modern work with them. Many things contributed toward its revival. The primal impulse came from the professional artists. The dramatists greeted the puppet stage because it excelled the regular theatre in pure simplicity. Not the living actors, only the marionettes, they thought, were capable of expressing poetry without a distracting willfulness. The marionette is naught but the expression of the artist's idea; the actor is always a man, and only to often his personality seems to get in the way of true expression of thought. One advantage of the puppet theatre is that it does not require the expensive and elaborate equipment which the regular stage demands, that it can produce wonderful things with the very smallest outlay. It is well advanced in the matter of practical instruction. There is only one danger: That commercial interests take control of the affair and, by offering all possible "improvements," deprive children from developing and exercising their own initiative.

PEACE

The justification of war lies in the hearts of individuals. When a nation memorializes the valor of those who died for their country; when a people are one in their hopes for enlightenment by example—then there is a justification that absolves blame and reveres our living dead.
