

Events Sponsored by the Herald — Free Picture Show Saturday, October 14 — Recollections of Some Past Festivities Revived — To Enliven Interest in Community — Business District Boosts Football.

The Herald's plan, announced today, to sponsor a series of free entertainments as means of expressing the community's appreciation and further justifying a spirit of good will, reminds us of the barbecued baby beef which we served to four thousand people at the old city hall in October, 1930. Influence of the Wall Street crash of the year before had not reached the middle west, and business was still going along in normal fashion. The Herald's barbecue was dedicated to the 4-H clubs of the county. We wanted to stimulate worthy youthful endeavors, and we realized a big thrill from the experience.

The next year, 1931, Wayne had its Golden Jubilee celebration, and Mayor M. L. Ringer, general chairman of committees, proved outstanding qualities of leadership. Aside from interferences one day from rain — a rarity now — the occasion was a success and a rightful tribute to a half-century of development. In 1931 times of the middle west were beginning to tighten up, and we could sense forebodings of approaching economic ills — ills that for nearly two years had proved disastrous to the far east.

Just before school opened in September, 1932, the Herald had a picnic designed especially for the school children of surrounding areas. Boys and girls with their pet dogs sat on a parade led by Prof. F. C. Reed's band. At Bressler park the youngsters were entertained by a health clown from Omaha and by a ventriloquist from Council Bluffs. The Herald distributed two thousand ice cream treats. In 1932 no one had to be reminded that tough conditions — certain aftermath of the World war — had arrived, and since then no one in the middle west has been able to feel any appreciable upswing in economic affairs. When symptoms were encouraging in spots with satisfactory prices, we had recurrence of droughts and nothing to sell. Employers had to cut wages, otherwise reduce overhead, tighten the belts, and hope for the best. A struggle to keep out of the red engrossed attention.

A few years later we became responsible for the town's first cooking school. In the absence of a large room, the school was held in the vacant garage building now occupied by Grant's machine shop. An expert culinary artist was in charge, and the building was packed at each session. The cooking school sponsored by the Gambel Store in the old city hall here on Thursday and Friday of this week promises to be very similar to the one we held. A woman with practical knowledge of cooking will be on hand to demonstrate fine points in manufacturing edibles.

The Herald has contracted with Phil March of the Gay and Crystal theatres, Wayne, for a suitable motion picture to be shown free to the public Saturday, October 14, beginning at 9 in the morning and running continuously until 6:30 in the evening. Each performance will last one hour and thirty minutes. Features are chosen especially to interest young persons, and whatever appeals to the young will appeal to adults. Both theatres will be used if necessary, and a total of 3,000 may be entertained during the day. The show is absolutely free to everybody, and all will be made to feel welcome. Tickets for the entertainment may be had without cost by asking any of the Herald's advertisers. This plan will facilitate distribution. Advertisers will be supplied with tickets each week beginning today, and the tickets may be had at any time and saved for the occasion. Whenever parents are in town they may feel free to ask for enough tickets for themselves and children. We trust children will ask only for tickets they can use. We suggest college students and town children and adults attend the forenoon shows if possible, and thus give room for rural children and their parents in the afternoon.

An explanation of the show to be presented will be found in next week's Herald. Other attractions for the day are promised and will be announced in detail in subsequent issues. This newspaper will be glad to give free publicity to contributions of any other institutions to the day's good-will activities.

Dates and particulars concerning November and December festivities as planned by the Herald, will be made known in proper time. The Herald expects to profit nothing materially. It expects to add to delightful recollection of wholesome public service — contribution without strings or obligation to the spirit of a live and hospitable community.

Outside Work Is Being Rushed at New College Hall

Application for Grant to Buy Equipment Likely Will Be Made.

Contractors on the addition to Connell hall, Wayne State Teachers college, were rushing outside work this week in order to beat the cold weather. Outside painting and concrete work were expected to be completed within the next few days. Washing down of the outside brickwork also was going ahead.

Areaways around the rear basement, windows were being poured and finished. An outside step at the rear kitchen door and concrete splash blocks under the downspouts remain to be completed. The painter this week has been giving the window frames the last outside coat, having waited for the head caulking to be applied between the window frames and the brick openings.

It was virtually a certainty Wednesday that the board of education, Nebraska State Normal schools, as owner, would make a second application for an amendatory grant from the Public Works Administration. While the previous amendatory application to PWA covered equipment for the building, a large part of the new grant would pay for permanent kitchen equipment, according to J. Wesley Noecker, architect's superintendent on the project.

A small shipment of flooring, needed to complete the strip on the first floor between the student's lounge and the main lobby, was received Wednesday, which will enable the contractor to complete the wood floor work this week.

A striking design in inlaid linoleum was completed Wednesday in the grill or lunch room. Linoleum layers were expected to complete all their work on this job by Saturday.

The kitchen office, a small room in the form of a balcony over the hall that connects the cafeteria and kitchen with the grill, was ready Wednesday to turn over to the painters.

Employment on the site fell from 53 to 37 men since last week, as construction entered its late stages, according to the report to E. A. Rufford, regional director, PWA.

Enrollment in High School Is Over Last Term

Grades Get Under Way and Kindergarten Will Open Tuesday Next Week.

Enrollment in Wayne high school Tuesday reached 251, which is an increase over 244 registered a year ago, 218 enrolled in 1937 and 203 at the opening of the 1936 term. Of this number 112 are tuition students this term, and last year the students from outside the district totaled 109.

As compiled by Principal G. B. Childs, the high school registration includes 49 seniors, 65 juniors, 69 sophomores and 69 freshmen.

George Derry, who came from St. Paul, Neb., and Donald Greenwood who had attended in Wisconsin, are new this week in the sophomore class; Elma Siefken will return to school in a few days after recovering from an operation.

PAID LEADER NEED OF COMMUNITY TO UNITE INTERESTS

A LEADING citizen says the investment Wayne most needs at this time is a paid secretary to look after and promote civic affairs. A thoroughly competent leader, generously rewarded, could, it is believed, coordinate divergent ideas and turn knockers into boosters. Individuals and groups are inclined to forget that careless and incessant faultfinding impairs a community — almost imperceptibly, but with deadly certainty — and they would not do so if they fully realized harmful results and threatened perils. As pointed out, a paid secretary could overcome obstacles and tactfully knit together community forces. Main street and the college, Main street and the high school, Main street and the city council, Main street and the county fair, and Main street and every important unit in the wheels of progress should gain a clearer understanding of problems and get together and work together for mutual advantage. A paid leader could fit into the foreground of leadership. Any reasonable price paid for efficient service would be little in view of the public need and of the possible losses incurred by slipping the wrong way.

Case to Be Tried in County Court

State Railway Commission Charges Joe Baska With Violation of Rights.

The state railway commission, through Inspector James J. O'Brien, in Wayne county court Tuesday charged Joe Baska, Norfolk, with violation of his certificate of public convenience. The case is set for trial Tuesday, October 10.

Baska owns a truck and has permission from the railway commission to operate between Norfolk and Omaha with occasional trips to Columbus and Fremont and return trips from those points to Norfolk. The inspector charges Baska with violating his certificate by operating his truck regularly between Norfolk and Wayne from August 2 to September 20.

With Mr. O'Brien here Tuesday was Archie W. Stephens, former Wayne county sheriff.

Eight Calves Place in High Show Divisions

State National Bank Buys One of Wayne County's Fifteen Bees.

Wayne county 4-H members showed 15 of the 419 baby bees from Iowa, South Dakota, Minnesota and Nebraska entered in the 13th annual inter-state show and sale in Sioux City last week, and the local calves took eight places. Lester Lutt's Hereford placed second in the senior class to earn $12.50. Leland Herman's Hereford placed in 5th division, which paid him a premium of $4. Dean Meyer was first in 5th division with his Shorthorn calf and won $4 premium. Roland Splitterger, Merlin Albers and Twila Herman had Herefords placing in 6th division with a prize of $2.65 each. Early Railroad Man Shoots Self

S. Fred Spaulding Wounded By Pistol Monday Noon in Sioux City.

S. Fred Spaulding, veteran railroad man who was conductor for about 25 years on a freight between Sioux City and Norfolk, was seriously wounded about noon Monday when he shot himself with a .32 caliber pistol while walking near a filling station at 27th and Court streets in Sioux City. Mr. Spaulding's wound is near the heart. He is in a hospital in the city and his condition yesterday remained unchanged.

It is thought Mr. Spaulding was despondent because of ill health as he had just a few moments before the shooting been talking to a friend about his recent nervous breakdown.

Since discontinuing his service on the train through Wayne, Mr. Spaulding has been on an Iowa rail south of Sioux City.

City to Supply Rural Electric Power for Time

Wayne Plant Will Furnish Energy Until Loup Plant Connection Is Made.

Wayne city power plant will furnish electricity temporarily to the Wayne county rural public power district until connection is made next spring with the Loup river power plant. It is expected that the local power will be used until next April or May when the Columbus plant will be supplying the energy.

The city council, at a meeting Tuesday, fixed the rate at 2c per K.W.H. for the first 25,000 K.W.H. bought by the rural power district. Additional power will be sold for 1 1/2c per K.W.H.

Other business consisted of allowing bills.

To Obtain Heat At Early Date in City School

Board Will Take Bids Friday On Equipment Needed in Wayne Building.

Chances for obtaining heat at an early date for the remodeled high school building appeared brighter today with the announcement yesterday of a move to install the old stoker in the new boiler until the new stoker is purchased and delivered.

F. L. Deines, plumbing-heating subcontractor, said Wednesday that it would be at least 10 days before the heating plant could be in operation if the old stoker is used. With bids not taken yet on the new stoker, it might be a month before one could be delivered and placed in operation, it was indicated.

Made for a stoker and coming without grates for hand firing, the plant could not be used without some kind of stoker. Engineers declare that the old stoker might prove satisfactory for October and November weather, but that it would not have the capacity in December and January for the new boiler and the increased demands that the enlarged building would place on it.

Bids are to be taken at 2 p. m., Friday for a stoker and several other items of equipment. The (Continued on Page Two)

Transport Line Will Go Through Part of County

Farmers of This Vicinity Sign Permits on Route of Pipeline.

A gasoline and oil pipeline to be built north and south in Nebraska will extend through the eastern part of Wayne county. Permission to pass through the area was gained recently from farmers in this region.

The pipeline is now completed from the Kansas fields to Superior, Neb. The new line will be extended north to Sioux City and beyond, toward Minneapolis and St. Paul. Now the products are piped to Superior and there loaded for transport north. The new line will carry them closer to their destination.

The new line crosses the Platte river five miles east of Columbus and extends almost directly north through Wayne county and then to Sioux City.

Sentence Three For Car Thefts

Young Men Plead Guilty in Court Wednesday to Taking Autos.

Vernon V. Weldon, Roman B. Pinkelman and Richard L. Schomer were sentenced in county court Wednesday to pay fines of $100 each and to serve three months each after pleading guilty to car thefts. The sentences are the minimum imposed under Nebraska law.

Weldon was charged by Sheriff J. H. Pile with taking a car belonging to J. A. Jensen of Winside Friday night. Besides paying $100 fine and costs and serving three months, Weldon is to pay for the damage to the Jensen car which was found a few hours later west of Winside where it had turned over.

Pinkelman and Schomer were charged by Sheriff Pile with taking Rev. H. G. Knaub's car from its parking in Winside Sunday night. Each pays the $100 and half of the costs of the suit, also serves three months. The Knaub car was recovered west of Winside early Monday morning.

Alex Gabler, chief of police at Winside, was commended by Sheriff Pile for his able assistance in apprehending the law violators.

Temperature Dips To Near Freezing

Following several days of summer-like weather, the thermometer took a dip Monday and reminded people it was time to start their heating plants. According to J. S. Horney's record, the temperature reached as low as 33, this being between 6 p. m. when it was 35 and 9 p. m. when it registered 34. The day was the coldest here since last May. Weather warmed up again the following day and has been pleasant since.

The coldest day last year in the month, Mr. Horney's record shows, was September 19 when the thermometer stood at 35. Rainfall Monday, as registered by the State National bank, was 29 of an inch.

CHANGING WEATHER EMPHASIZES NEED OF KEEPING READY

THE MERCURY dipped down to near the frost line Monday, and people started hurriedly heating plants and hustled into warm clothes to keep their blood from congealing. Last week the elements were unseasonably hot, and no one was ready for the reverse order. The change brought a light rain Monday evening, showing the atmosphere was still capable of producing moisture. Inches of rain — not thin, vapory wetness — will stimulate confidence. Out on the Pacific coast the heat reached unprecedented intensity last week. When the thermometer registered 107 in Los Angeles and 110 south of there for several days in succession, old-timers apologized to newcomers and explained the unusual and utterly senseless behavior of the elements. While the reputation of the southwest was undergoing repairs, another sudden burst of anger brought a violent wind and driving rain that upset fishing boats and did other damage. Temperatures lowered to a comfortable 80. A certainty about the weather — it doesn't ask anyone what he wants next.

The theatres will open at 9 a. m. and shows will be run continuously all day, the last beginning at 5 p. m. About 5,000 can thus be accommodated. Residents of Wayne are urged to attend in the morning hours if possible so as to allow those from rural districts and other towns to be accommodated in the afternoon hours.

Tickets for the October 14 show will be distributed through Wayne Herald advertisers any time between now and that date. Several other business firms have signified their desire to contribute to the activities of the day with special features which will be announced next week. Any others who wish to share in the good will movement are invited to do so.

October 14 will be a red letter day in Wayne, and all are invited to participate in the festivities. The Herald will sponsor other community features in November and December, and the nature of these will be announced in due time.

Tentative Time For Dedication Of Hall Is Set

Classes at Wayne College Organize for Semester Just Opening.

Dedication services for the new Student-Faculty building at Wayne college will be held here Saturday, October 21, or Monday, October 22. The contractors plan to have the structure completed October 19 if all goes well. At the time of the dedication the public is invited to inspect the building.

Homecoming on the campus is set for October 21. The football game will be in the afternoon with Hastings.

Pioneer Doctor Dies Wednesday

Dr. R. Q. Rowse Had Served Wakefield Before Going To Sioux City.

Dr. R. Q. Rowse, 69, of Sioux City and formerly of Wakefield, died of heart attack Wednesday morning at his home in Sioux City. He had been taken ill Monday night. Funeral arrangements had not been made last evening.

Dr. Rowse was born April 5, 1870, in Wyandotte county, Ohio, where he spent his early years. He was graduated from the Cincinnati Medical school, now the Ohio State Medical college, in 1892. He came to Wakefield to practice in 1893 and remained until 1904 when he went to Sioux City, his home since.

Deceased was a specialist in surgery. He was past president of the Iowa Surgical society, a member of the American Gynecological association, a fellow of the American College of Surgery and a member of the Woodbury county and Iowa Medical associations. Dr. Rowse was a member of the A. F. & A. M., Abu-Bekr Shrine, First Congregational church and a charter member of the Sioux City Country club and Boat club.

Surviving Dr. Rowse are his wife, Marian, a daughter, Mrs. Frances Sammons of Edouch, Mrs. Alice B. Krusel, who died Monday morning. Services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 at Chadron. Mrs. Lamberson will remain there about a week.

Former Resident Of Wakefield Dies

Mrs. Fred W. Bronn, former resident of Wakefield, and Ponca, died Sunday at her home in Portland, Ore., after an illness of several years, according to word received by her sister, Mrs. Myron Swenk of Lincoln. The Bronns lived at Wakefield and Ponca when Mr. Bronn headed the schools there. Mr. Bronn was also Dixon county judge. The family moved to Portland about 30 years ago.

Mrs. Bronn was the former Grace Bishop. She was a native of Indiana and came to Lincoln with her parents in 1886. After her marriage she moved to Dixon county.

Surviving Mrs. Bronn are her husband and one son, Frederick, of Portland, a brother, Dr. Arthur Bishop, in Illinois, and the sister in Lincoln.

While export demand for pork and lard apparently will be much greater than last year, there is little possibility that these exports will approach the 1920-29 levels, Mr. Podoll states.

Corn Referendum Not to Be Taken

Supply of Grain Is Under Marketing Level So No Vote Is Needed.

Since the nation's supply of 2,993,000,000 bushels of corn is under the marketing quota level of 3,030,000,000 bushels, it has been decided that no referendum on corn marketing quotas will be held this year, announced Herman J. Podoll, chairman of Wayne county agricultural conservation committee. If the total indicated supply of corn had been above the quota level, the AAA of 1938 would have made mandatory the holding of a producer referendum in which farmers would have voted on the establishment of marketing quotas for the 1939 crop, Mr. Podoll explained.

Mr. Podoll explains that consideration was given to the "consumer safeguard" clause which requires the maintenance of supplies of food and fiber adequate to provide for an average annual per capita consumption equal to that from 1920 to 1929, adjusted to trends. Under normal circumstances a downward adjustment from the 1920-29 level would be

To have 100 per cent survival of tree plantings is the remarkable record made by Marshall Rowe and David Rothfork of Thayer county. Each of the 4-H boys planted 25 trees and here are the highlights of their success: Good ground preparation; careful planting with roots packed solidly; a single on the southwest side of evergreens for protection against sun and wind; clean cultivation; plenty of water at planting time but no artificial water later on.

board is holding the equipment letting with the approval of the Public Works Administration with the thought that if PWA acts favorably on the application for an additional $30,000 grant, the district can purchase nearly $7,000 in equipment for approximately $4,000 of its own funds. Besides the library shelving, library tables, science tables, fume hood for science room, double tier lockers, shades, draw curtains, stage equipment and steel folding chairs.

Contractors Wednesday poured the north sidewalk, which leads to the main entrance of the new unit. This was rushed to complete outside concrete work before frost set in. Arerway walks at the west entrance of the remodeled building were poured and finished Tuesday. Roof over the new unit was completed Wednesday and roof flashing was being placed by the sheetmetal subcontractor.

All but one of the seven painters moved from the first floor to the basement Wednesday and the painting subcontractor, Charles Ritchey, said all the painting, decorating and varnishing will be completed within 10 days.

Carpenters were working on the kindergarten platform and should have the room ready for the painters in four or five days, according to Bert Lockwood, carpenter foreman.

Plasterers completed patching the old activity room and were to have the corridor between the old and new units and the boys' shower room plastered by this morning. The plastering crew has only three men but could use two more, George Stanley, general superintendent, said.

Employment on the site dropped off sharply this week with most of the work being confined to the new unit. Last week there were 61 men working 2,068 hours according to the report of Dan Farrell Jr., resident engineer, PWA, to R. A. Radford, regional director, PWA.

E. H. Quinney, traveling engineer, PWA, inspected the job Tuesday and said he was favorably impressed with the quality of the work and the progress to date.

Have you a little stick in your home? If not, come in and let us tell you how easy it is to own a Will-Burt.

"Does yo' wife take in washin'?"
"Ah wash 'er, Ah takes it in an' Ah takes it out. Ah she does it stay home and wash it."

"So Dora took the rich old man for better or worse?"
"No, she took him for worse, but he got better."

That house of yours will "get better" if you have it insulated before winter sets in. And what a difference a little insulation will make! It not only makes a more comfortable house, one that is easier to heat, but it certainly does cut the fuel bills. Insulate now and save money with comfort this winter.

Neutrality Is Topic of Talk

Wm. A. Crossland Addresses Kiwanians Monday On Big Issue.

The arms embargo should not be repealed. All we need to do is to allow the present neutrality resolution with all its provisions to remain on the statute books. Repeal the "cash and carry" clause which expired last May, and the job is done. This opinion was expressed by Wm. A. Crossland Monday noon when he addressed Wayne Kiwanians.

Profiting by experience gained in the World war, congress passed the neutrality legislation in 1935. This act, with amendments, provides an embargo on arms and ammunition to warring countries in times of war and to nations in a state of civil strife; it forbids American ships from carrying or transporting war supplies to belligerent nations in time of war; it provides that title must be in the buyer and the goods paid for before leaving American ports, popularly known as "cash and carry," which expired in May, 1939; it allows no loans to belligerents; it forbids American citizens traveling in vessels of belligerent nations in time of war; it allows no fitting out of vessels for belligerents in ports here and permits no raising of funds for belligerents; and it gives the president power to carry out these provisions.

Provisions of Law. The legislation passed by congress and signed by the president which now wishes it repealed. The present neutrality act is, according to the president, "unnatural and that it denies to England and France essential arms that they would be able to purchase and take away by reason of their control of the sea; that there is no essential difference between arms and ammunition and other non-war supplies; that failure to lift the embargo may involve us in war; that under international law this nation has a right to sell to all belligerents anything we have to sell; and that had congress repealed the arms embargo last August, it might have prevented war. It is doubtless true that a failure to lift the embargo would indirectly favor Germany," explained the speaker. "because she cannot break the blockade instituted by England and France. But France and England can buy from us everything they want except arms and can continue to do so. And they have been buying quantities of war materials, notably airplanes, until war was declared and the embargo became effective. The president himself said many raw materials are bought and can be processed later into war materials. "The president's failure to lift the embargo may lead to war. We ask what countries may declare war against us? Certainly not Germany who is indirectly favored by the retention of the embargo. Certainly not England and France who later on will need non-war materials and be glad to get them.

"There is some force to the president's contention that slight difference exists between arms and munitions and some types of non-war materials which may be processed into munitions. When we sell cotton we cannot prevent its being processed into gun cotton or uniforms or knap socks. When we sell a truck we cannot prevent its being armored for use in the combat zone. But when we sell guns or munitions we know that we are merchants of death, trafficking in instruments which will bring death and sorrow to human beings and that we are doing it for mere profit.

"If we repeal the embargo we must expect trouble," Mr. Crossland believes. "Foreign agents are going to attempt to sabotage our munitions plants, foment strikes and probably dynamite plants, quays and loading ships. Public feeling will be aroused and outraged and war hysteria would demand vengeance. This would hardly happen if we sold only non-war materials, food, clothing and raw materials.

Stake Not Worth Price. "And how much of a stake have we in this foreign trade? If we lost it all, would it be worth going to war about and being embroiled in Europe's conflicts? If we lost all our world export trade it would amount to about three and a third billion dollars. We haven't enough foreign trade worth fighting for and we can get along without the profit we might make by becoming Europe's arsenal.

"Why not admit that the real reasons for advocating the repeal of the embargo are arms and the profit. We want to make a profit; we want to help France and England? To supply demand we will gear up industry. The more we sell for cash, the greater will be the demand for credit. Then America should get out its 11 billion of European I.O.U.'s from the World war.

"Let us keep in mind that this war is as much a good old-fashioned dog fight over land, territory and colonies as it is a fight to save or crush democracies. Both the totalitarian states and the de-mocracies use ruthless methods to attain selfish ends. The Treaty of Versailles was a victor's peace and Germany paid plenty for being the loser. After twenty odd years the victor's right to conquered territory is again challenged. We have no stake in the conflict except some foreign trade and profit that we can afford to lose if necessary. Isn't it about time to step back from the brink of the European maelstrom and isolate? We feel deeply for the millions of people over there who have no voice and must pay for the war in blood and treasure. But we cannot help them. We should be adamant in our determination to oppose any step that might be the first step toward war. The arms embargo should not be repealed and we should not depend upon international law because it allows us to sell to all belligerents arms, munitions, anything we have, at any time, and carry it to them if we desire, and allows our citizens to travel as they like. International law sets out the rights of neutrals but it doesn't say anything about the consequences of enforcing those rights. And in time of war hard-pressed nations pay scant attention to neutral rights as we learned in the World war. The neutrality resolutions are better able to protect our rights and keep us neutral than the canons of international law."

Wildcats Ready To Meet Omaha

Coach Jim Morrison Trains Black and Gold Eleven For Friday Tilt.

A sudden change to cold, rainy weather forced Coach Jim Morrison to curtail heavy workouts for his Black and Gold eleven Monday night, being content to have the boys run through a short, snappy signal practice. Harder workouts were in store for the Wildcat players Tuesday and Wednesday with emphasis placed on stopping Omaha plays and with improving their own offense for the game at Omaha this Friday night.

Morrison, although being pleased over the stunning upset victory Wayne scored over Morningside issued words of warning to his players that Omaha would be "plenty tough." The coach was especially pleased over the performance of his new men, Childs, Peterson, Nitz, Riley, Best, and all other boys who saw action, and doubly elated over the work of Farmer, Lindahl, Spichal, Murray and the other Wildcat players.

The hard working Wildcats came out of the Morningside game without undue injuries although Virgil Lindahl has a badly puffed up eye; "Moon" Mullins, who played a steady game at tackle in his first regular assignment, has an infected finger; and Ed Nitz, freshman performer at end, received a cut over his left eye. Chuck Wehrer, who didn't see any action in this first game, may be in shape for the Omaha encounter.

The same lineup that faced Morningside at the opening kickoff will start the Omaha contest. Although odds are heavily in Omaha's favor, the Wildcats feel they again can upset the dope bucket and beat the Redbirds.

To Halt Party Interference

ALF. LANDON, defeated republican candidate for the presidency three years ago, made a hit with the country by pointing the way for the president to take politics out of discussion of means to keep this country out of the European war.

Touching the subject, the Norfolk Daily News comments in part as follows:

"As long as President Roosevelt stands as the probability for the nomination in 1940, how can the politics be adjourned during this or any other discussion? Certainly politics should be the last consideration in determining our attitude toward the European crisis, but how can it be avoided, if those who are making the decisions are suspicious that the president's friends and supporters are plotting to further his political cause, while the opposition is asked to lay down its weapons?"

"The thought that the president's close associates have 1940 in their minds during the maneuvering over the embargo, is a two-way obstacle to complete independence of judgment. In the first place, the president's supporters would have to be something more than the human politicians they are, if they could free their motives entirely of the thought of 1940."

"In the second place, with the opponents of a third term in as high a state of emotion as they are, how can they free themselves of bias which must affect their judgment toward any major policy the president advocates?"

"The one way to keep politics out of this momentous decision is for the president to make it clear that neither he nor his advisers have a political axe to grind, and he can do that only by taking his hat out of the ring where enthusiasm is tossed."

"If he doesn't do this, it will create suspicion in many minds, a suspicion that can't help affecting the attitudes of men on both sides of the neutrality issue."

Happy Students

"IT CAN happen in Wayne!" said a high school student in noting approach of improved school quarters. Some disappointed efforts for progress in the past had led young minds to wonder if no steps for educational betterment could be accomplished.

Adjourning Politics

THE LINCOLN Journal calls attention to Franklin Waltman's idea of adjourning politics on account of the war abroad. Mr. Waltman is publicity director of the republican national committee.

All Are Equal

WHATEVER may be an American's former nationality, he is not in the least responsible for the kind of government carried on in the land of his origin, and he is entitled to respect as an orderly, law-abiding citizen.

Edgar Howard of the Columbus Telegram, is fretting uneasily over his suspicion that republicans will help democrats nominate their candidate for United States senate, and that the nominee will thus be an anti-new dealer. Unless a one hundred percent new dealer asks for the nomination, Editor Howard fears Roosevelt admirers won't have anyone to support. They might even not vote.

"If you don't like Nebraska weather, wait a minute," observes the fellow who appreciates wonderful powers of versatility. When the mercury suddenly drops from a hot high to a cold low, people are likely to change their desires, feeling a little yearning for what isn't. Nebraska weather apparently notes and yields to every whim.

Right Course to Follow

Sam McKelvie was asked recently to express his views on the course farmers should follow now that the world is at war again. It will be recalled that Mr. McKelvie gave a great deal of attention to marketing and was a member of the federal farm board immediately after the war. In answer to that query he said: "We will anchor our operations even more securely against the storms of inflation. Based on sound economy and bitter experience, they make us more conservative. We believe that most farmers and ranchers will feel the same way about it. Fewer will get out on a limb than twenty-five years ago. That will be a good thing for the future of the country."

This Mechanical Age

One of the recent jobs assigned WPA was to compile statistics to show how many men were put out of employment by harvesting combines and other labor-saving farm machines. It was a huge total and it was made the most of by anti-machine-age enthusiasts.

The United States Forest Service reports that a machine is in use now by Uncle Sam to dig trenches to stop forest fires. A single machine does the work of 300 men. Not long since one of the reformers tackled the superintendent of a small bevy of men digging ditches with a machine. "Why don't you junk that machine and put 100 men in the ditch with shovels?" he inquired.

"Better still," replied the superintendent, "to put a thousand men in the ditch with teaspoons."

Dies Body in Favor

The American legion in convention in Chicago is on record as supporting the work of the Dies house committee investigating un-American activities. Stephen F. Chadwick, national commander of the legion, and others have been outspoken in denouncing subversive alien influences at work in the United States.

It also is of interest to note that Representative Dies of Texas, chairman of the committee, against whom personally criticism has been leveled from high places, no longer is looked upon as one who needlessly has frightened the people into believing un-American activities were wide of scope and deep in purpose. Today he is in favor with those elements of American life that are unalterably opposed to activities the purpose of which is to undermine our government and create disorder. Few if any criticize Mr. Dies and his committee now. More and more it has been realized that the committee was working in and for the best interests of the republic and the people.

Because of the easy-going attitude of this nation in the past, it probably is no error to say there are more subversive alien influences at work here than in any other country in the world. Let the work of the Dies committee continue, and let there be action against those it exposes. The United States cannot afford to take chances at a time like this.

War "Prosperity"

Discussing the effect of the European war on American business John T. Flynn sees some parts of it likely to be stimulated, others likely to suffer. Chief activity will be in the metals, useful to warring nations for armaments, and in farm products useful for feeding armies. What are known as luxury trades will probably suffer loss of sales volume. And there is no prospect of trade which will bring a solution of the nation's surplus cotton problem.

One thing should be well understood. It is that whatever the apparent immediate effect on "business" the world is being hourly poorer by this war. Millions of dollars worth of accumulated wealth are being wrecked in the effort to kill men with it, millions of able men are withdrawn from productive activity, and other millions of men and women are being employed in the manufacture of material useful for nothing save to increase destruction.

All this shocks not only the economy of the nations immediately involved, but also that of those with whom they customarily maintain trade relations. Except for a few acts of sabotage, very minor compared with the huge destruction which occurred in Europe, the United States suffered no visible material damage in the last war. Its industrial plant came through intact, its homes were untouched. And yet it suffered great economic loss. It suffered through the death of 50 thousand of its young men and the crippling of many more. It suffered through the transfer of its energy from production of things useful in daily life to the production of things marked for early destruction. It would have suffered economic shock even without participation. It suffered more severely because it became a party to the struggle.

Although we keep our heads and our soldiers at home this time and although there may be for a while more jobs for steel and copper workers and better prices for farm products, let no one call that prosperity. It is only the illusion of prosperity for which soon or late we shall have to pay with the pains of readjustment.

TO KEEP OUT

While honest differences of opinion exist as to the surest way to keep out of the war in Europe, there is perfect agreement over determination to keep out. The fact that Europe is a seething caldron of hateful conflict with no escape from its poison by the innocent and in-offensive redoubles reason why the United States should lead the Americas in maintaining armed aloofness. In all polls taken in regard to American participation in foreign fights not a dissent is heard in the voice demanding non-interference. Petitions sent to congress urging this country to keep to its own shores are eminently in order. Those sent to influence congress in regard to the kind of legislation needed to keep us out of war, however, seem ill-advised, because one is also, utterly certain, and none should wish to share congress' responsibility. Members of the senate and house should think questions of advisability through, and they should then know best what will serve the one chief aim—preserve our peace—and they should not have their judgment swerved by superficial knowledge in figuring out the right policy to attain the desired objective.

WORLD WHEAT SUPPLY LARGEST IN HISTORY

U.S. WHEAT ACREAGE

World wheat supplies are the largest on record. The national wheat acreage allotment for 1940 exceeds the harvest acreage recorded during any world war year.

Charts above compare the current wheat supply and the 1940 acreage allotment with the supply existing in 1914 and the harvested acreages of world war years.

The world carry-over of wheat July 1, 1940, is expected to total about 1,400,000,000 bushels. In the United States the 1940 allotment, with average yields, will produce a crop equal to domestic and export needs and still leave on hand the present large carry-over.

Newspaper Advertising Foremost. (Industrial News Service) Despite the appearance of other advertising media, the newspaper remains the most productive channel whereby industry can reach the buying public—and industry is fully aware of that fact.

A recent survey well illustrates the sustained popularity of newspapers among advertisers. The survey was made by four national associations serving chain stores, and covered 138 representative systems operating more than 33,000 stores, coast-to-coast, and having annual sales well in excess of $3,000,000,000.

During the typical year covered by the survey, these companies spent more than $55,000,000 for advertising, an average of $1,754 per store. Almost 58 per cent of the money was spent with newspapers. A little less than 10 per cent was spent on handbills and similar printed matter, much of which was produced in local newspaper plants. Only 4.30 per cent was spent for radio, with the balance made up of expenditures on miscellaneous media.

Breaking the figures down, it was found that drug chains spent 82.24 per cent of their advertising dollar with newspapers, grocery chains spent 56.53 per cent and general merchandise and variety chains spent 51.33 per cent.

This is a testimonial to the character of the American press. No institution holds a higher place in the esteem of the American people. This is particularly true of the newspapers serving the smaller towns of the country, which are read from "cover to cover" by their subscribers—news, locals, advertisements and all.

Let's We Forget

(Omaha Journal-Stockman) Right now there is a strong inclination on the part of the public to "dabble in stocks and bonds" in the belief that fortunes await the lucky investors. War conditions in Europe naturally stimulate speculative interest but it is a dangerous game, almost as dangerous as war itself.

Ten years ago this week prices on the New York Stock Exchange reached the highest levels in history. It was the zenith of the post-war boom and fortunes were made overnight. The wave of prosperity was sweeping the nation and staid business men and economists were swept off their feet. It was to be a permanent prosperity, a new era and there was to be an end to poverty and want.

A study of the history of the 1929 boom can be of little benefit in present conditions if it does not reveal the collapse of the speculative bubble. Suicides of speculators were so common to attract attention. The bottom dropped out of the market and an era of unprecedented depression was ushered in. We are still feeling the effects of that 1929 boom and the cruel but inevitable stamp that followed it.

Before plunging into the mad speculative market, wise folks will weigh the consequences, remembering the boom of 1929 and what followed.

Great Virgil Coming Here In Strange Illusions This Friday.

Whether or not one believes in spirits or spiritualistic manifestations, he will be thrilled and dumbfounded by the Great Virgil and his company when they present their big full evening show at the Wayne auditorium under the auspices of the American Legion the evening of September 29.

"Are they humans or demons?" These strange people seem to have the unbelievable power to change their bodies at will and pass through solid walls.

During one of the many spectacular scenes the Great Virgil introduces a spirit medium who, while completely surrounded by members of the audience, presents a regular old time spirit seance during which trumpets and tamborines sail through space and other strange and eerie happenings take place on a brightly lighted stage.

The Great Virgil claims to present any kind of spirit manifestation and has a standing offer of $1,000 to any spirit medium, fraudulent or otherwise, who can present a seance that he cannot duplicate by scientific means. Included in the spirit part of the Great Virgil's program will be: Spirit seance, table floating, the haunted house and spirit paintings.

A special feature of the program will be Julie, the psychic enigma and scientific marvel, with her act of "Human Television." Julie will prove her ability to read the minds of the audience, and will submit to many incredible mental tests, proving conclusively that she has a mind thousands of years ahead of her time.

The Great Virgil during one of his mysteries, allows one of his girl assistants to be tied in a strong sack and locked and tied in a trunk, then while being watched from all sides he changes places with the girl in less than one second. This one illusion is said to stagger the imagination and defy solution.

The Great Virgil carries hundreds of pounds of equipment and scenic effects and among the many beautiful and spectacular mysteries to be seen here are: The beautiful Hindu princess asleep in mid-air, satan burns a man, the famous Hindu rope miracle, the Hindu basket mystery, Chinatown after dark, the execution on Mars, Chinese opium den mystery and others.

Defeat Morningside Here in Year's First Battle for Wildcat Squad.

Wayne college football squad defeated Morningside Friday evening by score of 13 to 7 in its first battle of the season before a crowd that filled the grandstand and packed sidelines at the local field.

All scoring was done in the first two quarters of the game. Wayne made the first counter. After a punting duel between Burrow of Morningside and Murray, Wildcat halfback, Wayne took possession of the ball on its 20-yard line. Murray stabbed through the line and ran 75 yards to score. The placekick failed.

Morningside retaliated early. A sustained march was culminated when Hakala broke over his own right tackle to score. The placekick was successful and the score stood 7 to 6 for the visitors.

In the same quarter Murray got away consistently and soon had the ball on Morningside's 20-yard line. Hungerford, from the 35-yard line, shot a perfect pass to Quarterback Fox who habbed the toss in the end zone for a touchdown. Fox made the placekick good and the score stood 13 to 7 for Wayne.

Fumbles ruined scoring for both teams in the third quarter. The fourth quarter was a thriller as the Morningside team drove repeatedly toward the goal and once reached Wayne's 1-yard line.

The first down were 11 for Morningside and five for Wayne. Farmer, Lindahl and Spilchal started for Wayne in the line while Murray was the main gun in the backfield. Burrow and Hakala were Morningside's best bets. Summary:

Year of Unrest Noted Abroad

A state of unrest, entirely foreign to the experience of most Americans, has prevailed in England the past year because of war threats. Dr. Mary T. Honey told Wayne Men's club last Wednesday evening at Hotel Stratton. Her first week in England was the September crisis when Chamberlain went to Munich, Germany, to make peace settlements.

In England the people have no respect for the man who talks politics, and the English are offended by Americans' asking so many questions, so Dr. Honey had to make her own observations. The ordinary individual thought things too terrible to talk about. On the trip to England, the conditions existing were learned and everyone was impressed by Chamberlain's trip to make world peace.

Dr. Honey was at Casterton school located in a region regarded as safe since it is not located near a city. The country was marked off into three regions, safe, neutral and dangerous. The neutral included the large cities and the dangerous region was the manufacturing centers. The matron at the school where Dr. Honey instructed informed her that if war broke out, she could go. It was uncertain if the school would be opened last year. The gardeners put sand bags around the windows to protect from air raids. At classes, students and teachers were instructed as to what to do in case of air raids. Casterton school was to be used as a refuge for children from the cities in case of raids. One hundred would be sent every 10 minutes to the school and the provision for them had to be made.

In case of evacuation to the country, homes would have to be used for the people. The owners would receive a very small remuneration from the government for rentals. Relatives from a city could not be asked to come and fill up a house. For shelter, a person was permitted to run into any house, and no one was to be refused entrance.

The shelters, according to Dr. Honey's description, have the appearance of cyclone cellars. The English government provided information on the material and equipment for the shelters. A curtain should hang on the inside of the door to protect from gas. There should be an ax, fire extinguisher, water, some food and other articles. In every county was located a central station to notify the people of air raids. Telephones were the means of spreading the word and therefore they were not for personal use. At the sound of the warning, everyone was to put on his gas mask and be in the basement of the school, where Dr. Honey was, within 15 minutes. Wardens were people who volunteered to stay outside at the time of air raids. They learned to distinguish different kinds of gas. The wardens were also to wash away the gases, especially the liquid gases, from the doorways and roads before permitting people to come out of the shelters.

These preparations and instructions on war were experienced in Dr. Honey's first week in England. Word then came of Chamberlain's settlement with Germany at Munich. All year the country was in an unsettled state of affairs. Persons in the country went on with their ordinary lives, but in the cities preparations were being made. The Christmas spirit was overshadowed with the terror of war. All small countries were very nervous.

At Easter time, Rome was very calm, Dr. Honey found. Germans were seen there as that is one of the few places where Hitler allows them to travel out of their country. In London at that time, the parks are usually very beautiful, but this year Dr. Honey observed that the earth was dug up. Dark fogs were trying to break through this torn-up land.

This summer people abroad felt that there would be trouble in August. The librarians were learning where to place every book in the libraries in case of air raids. Protection was arranged for the stained glass in cathedrals. Complete "black outs" were being practiced in the country.

Very little is said about America in English newspapers. Roosevelt is very popular there, not as an American, but rather as an individual. The visit of the king and queen to the United States and Canada was given considerable publicity in English papers which reported their favorable reception.

Dr. Honey was constantly asked the question, "If England goes to war, will the United States join with them?" Those abroad were anxious for her opinion.

The return trip to the United States was more serious. The boat was packed, people being given places to sleep on any floor space. No radiograms were sent for fear of telling the location of the ship. Dr. Honey has been out of the United States several times, but never has the sight of this country been so welcome as it was September 5 when she landed at Boston.

Malheur Migratory Waterfowl Refuge In West Described by Harold Preston

The Malheur migratory waterfowl refuge, at which Harold Preston of Wayne is stationed, is located in southeastern Oregon in what is commonly called a semi-arid section. It embraces Malheur, Mud and Harney lakes, which are east and west and the Blitzen valley which extends 30 miles south of the lake unit. The refuge consists of 100,000 acres in elevation varying from 4,000 to 4,500 feet. The low lands are covered with aquatic and semi-aquatic plants. The higher lands support stands of excellent native grass, and the arid areas are covered with greasewood, rabbit brush, low sage and other annual and perennial plants and shrubs. Some of the meadows are bordered with dense willow growths, and generally in the Blitzen valley the sloughs and water courses are bordered likewise.

The refuge gets its water supply from Blitzen river which comes in from the south through Blitzen valley into Malheur lake, thence to Mud lake, lastly to Harney lake. This stream is one of the most dependable watersheds in eastern Oregon. The largest percentage of land in this watershed, which heads at an elevation of 9,400 feet, is privately owned and in some cases is abused by over-grazing. There is no timber on or adjacent to the refuge other than aspen groves and a limited amount of juniper and mahogany.

In addition to the water supply from the south is the Silvers river which reaches the refuge boundary on the north side of Malheur lake. It has an extensively timbered watershed. An extremely large amount of water is allocated from this stream for irrigation purposes and only in years when there is a surplus above irrigation requirements does Malheur lake participate in its distribution.

On Pacific Flyway. Malheur refuge is on the Pacific flyway, explains Mr. Preston, just north of the vast wintering areas of California and Mexico and south of Canada's large nesting areas. This refuge is considered one of the outstanding areas for nesting summer. This disease is caused by a toxin the ducks obtain from decaying vegetation and is most prevalent when the water level starts to recede in the summer. Malheur lake, like so many desert lakes, is merely a catch basin without an outlet. Water flowing into the lake for years has brought a great deal of alkali and minerals of various kinds. As a result, in the summer when evaporation is great the water that remains in the lake becomes highly alkaline and stinging bitter. Fermentable matter and it is thought that this is where the difficulty lies. Once the bird is affected, it seems to develop a sort of creeping muscular paralysis, first in its wings, then feet, then neck and finally its lungs. A similar disease is found sometimes in the domestic chicken, called limberneck. Last year the death loss from this in the refuge mounted to thousands.

Hunting Is Limited. From the standpoint of law enforcement the refuge is indeed fortunate as no extensive hunting areas are located adjacent and no population center is nearby, according to Mr. Preston. A limited amount of hunting takes place around the edges of the refuge and this requires some patrol work. At the time the "P" ranch was purchased, one of the best and most extensive areas in eastern Oregon was removed from shooting. Hunters had gathered from California, Idaho and Washington to shoot in this area. This influx of hunters created quite a business locally, the loss of which was felt by business operations when it was closed. In time it is thought it will be desirable to open a portion of the refuge to controlled shooting.

Considering the past history of the available water for the refuge, it is apparent that to make the best consistent use of the water, extensive development work is necessary. Particularly will this development work be advantageous during years of shortages.

At the refuge headquarters site are six beautiful structures of native stone with colorful tile roofs. These include the superintendent's residence, clerk's home, office building with bunk room and laboratory attached, service building suitable for storage of four automobiles, barn and pump house. A storage reservoir of 17,000 gallons capacity provides water for domestic purposes pumped from a large spring near headquarters. Water for irrigation is provided with hydraulic ram pumping water from the Blitzen river. Adjacent is a 100-foot steel tower which overlooks Malheur lake and the lower reaches of Blitzen valley.

Throughout the refuge are several dwellings for use by refuge personnel. The residence at "P" ranch was remodeled into a duplex for the engineer and one of the range riders. A tower there overlooks the ranch and upper Blitzen valley. At Frenchglen, a small village at the south edge of the refuge, is a refuge-owned hotel which has been remodeled and is under permit for operation.

Roads Are Problem. A very definite problem presents itself in the form of good roads, Mr. Preston writes. The exceedingly dry conditions of the section makes it very hard to keep a good road as one soon fills with dust holes and becomes corrugated. Until it is possible to have a hard surfaced road, probably oil mat, it is the local policy to keep road mileage down to a minimum. It is generally thought too that the more roads the more disturbance for the nesting and other wildlife throughout the refuge.

To Increase Recreation. Although recreational demands on the refuge at the present are not large, such interest is expected to increase as time goes on until recreation will become on this refuge a very important activity during spring, summer and fall. The refuge holds a captivating charm of its own, and, with attractive fishing and hunting available, it only remains for the public at large to become more acquainted with it and for the inevitable development of public roads until the place will be visited by increasing numbers of vacationists and sportsmen. At present a public camp ground and recreation area are maintained near the ranch and the hotel. Additional work will be done to improve this area. The entire section immediately surrounding the camp ground is to be set aside as a recreational area, being admirably situated as to proximity to good fishing in the refuge and in the Steens mountains, the unique Blitzen gorge, waterfowl areas in the refuge, two beaver colonies and a considerably large camping area.

Method of Support. An act of congress March 16, 1934, made it unlawful for anyone to hunt migratory waterfowl without a validated migratory bird stamp, commonly called "duck stamp." These cost a dollar each and can be bought at the time of purchasing a license. This provides a real source of income which does not come out of taxes, and the money is used for development of refuges, Mr. Preston explains. Some refuges have their own additional income from sale of their raw products. It is estimated that the Malheur refuge will be entirely self-sustaining within a few years. A large income is realized from sale of grazing and having permits, also from the sale of furs taken from the fur bearing ani-

Sixty Years Ago

Though radio was unknown 60 years ago and though often weeks were required to communicate a piece of news, the world in 1879 was relieved to hear that the Zulu warfare in South Africa had finally ended, according to an item in the Northern Nebraska Journal published at Ponca by Wm. Huse. A dispatch told that what was thought to be the final battle resulted in a loss of 10 for the British and 800 for the Zulus. It was the Zulus who took the life of Prince Eugene Louis, son of Napoleon III and Eugenie, in Africa in 1879.

In telling about the French notable, the early paper relates about the Napoleon family. It was in 1853 that Louis Napoleon III gave a grand ball with all the wealth and fashion of Paris represented. Magnificent as it was, Napoleon grew tired and longed to be outdoors to watch the beauty of the stars. As he was walking to the garden, he stepped through a balcony door and beheld a sight which almost took his breath. For a moment he stood as if in a dream, but the vision was a reality, the most exquisite creature he had ever seen, a young lady with golden hair falling into curls over her white shoulders. The emperor offered his arm to Eugenie de Montijo. The French ruler fell in love at once. He told his ministers that he wished to marry this charming woman and they frowned on the idea, for a courtship of love and one of short duration are not usual in royalty. But the marriage followed. Napoleon and Eugenie rolled away from Notre Dame in the coach that bore Napoleon I to his coronation. The bride signed the imperial register the last record in which was the birth of the unhappy king of Rome. (How could she know then that the life of her own son would be almost as short as his!)

Eugene Louis, son of Napoleon and Eugenie, was born in 1856. From 1860 to 1870 Napoleon III lost power in France. The republic was declared in 1870. Empress Eugenie and her son fled to England and the emperor followed in 1871. Then the Zulu warfare in Africa called for volunteers. Eugene Louis went to Africa and was killed in 1879.

Other dispatches in the issue of 1879 tell that China was preparing to engage in war with Russia to gain control of central Asia. Also Russia was on the eve of great operations in central Asia to neutralize British prestige in Afghanistan.

Rebellious elements seemed to find expression in other parts of the world. Attempts were made to throw from the track the train in which Queen Victoria was traveling from London to Scotland. Prince Charles of Roumania threatened to abdicate unless the Jews of his country were emancipated. Russian cattle and sheep were not allowed to be taken through Germany. The districts of Bulgaria near the Danube were in a state of siege because of apprehended disturbances. War between Turkey and Greece was said to be imminent.

The state of affairs 60 years ago makes one wonder how people abroad can stand the tension of warfare or threatened warfare during their entire lifetime.

Guests included pupils of Central school, Miss Helen Anderberg, Helen, Alice and Doris Holm and Merlin Holm. The hostess served luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnson of Weeping Water, Neb., were Tuesday evening supper guests in the Harry Johnson home. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Peterson of Seattle, Wash., were Friday evening supper guests.

Grain Sorghums Are Good Feed

Many fields of grain sorghums throughout Nebraska are a gratifying sight after drought and insects have taken so much of other grains. These fields will produce thousands of bushels of feed where there otherwise would have been none.

Sorghum grains have demonstrated their worth in live stock rations in this state and other parts of the country, points out Agent Chester Walters. A summary of experiments shows that sorghums are about 90 per cent as efficient as shelled corn in feeding cattle, lambs and hogs; fed sorghums gained as rapidly or more so than those fed corn. However, more feed is required to produce 100 pounds of gain. For this reason it is computed that their value is 80 per cent that of corn, according to W. J. Loeffel, acting chairman of animal husbandry at Lincoln.

Sorghums are palatable feed. They are given to sheep without grinding. This is true for hogs that are self-fed. Where sorghum grain is handfed, coarse grinding is desirable. For cattle feeding, coarse grinding is advantageous, especially when the entire head is ground. This produces a feed comparable with ground ear corn. The roughage reduces the requirements for roughage, and the bulk prevents digestive upsets. For cattle to be fattened to a high degree, it is desirable to replace the ground sorghum heads later in the feeding period with ground threshed grain.

Corn and sorghums are both deficient in protein and this is even more true of sorghums than of corn. The man who feeds either alone should feed a good protein supplement. This is especially essential with sorghums.

For pig feeding, milk, tankage or other good protein supplement may be used. With cattle and lambs it is possible that alfalfa hay makes up the roughage and protein heads are taken care of. But with younger animals, cottonseed or soybean meal are helpful.

Sorghum grains are deficient in mineral matter. Feeding of a mixture of two parts of ground limestone, two parts of steamed bone meal and one part of salt is good.
