Fallacies PEOPLE who believe in a sound financial base for the country, will feel profoundly relieved over defeat of two pronounced fallacies in Tuesday's election—overthrow of wild old-age pension plans in California and Ohio. The scheme in California called for the issuance of $30 in scrip to persons over 50 every Thursday, and the one in Ohio proposed $50 per month to retired single persons over 60 and $80 per month to couples, the money to be raised by a state income tax and a levy on high-priced real estate.

l estate. Defeat in Ohio was more overwhelming Defeat in Ohio was more overwhelming than that in California, the reason doubtless being that the western coast state has more oldsters encouraged by an atmosphere that has long cultivated fantastic ideas. In both states plans were under the glib leadership of men whose past experience had proved no practical business judgment. Either proposed massacre of sound economics would, if approved by supreme court decisions, have created an octopus that would have fastened its destroying tentacles into public policy and stroving tentacles into public policy

Results strengthen the hope that the country will insist on renewed adherence to govern-ment fundamentals as directed from Wash-ington.

Paternalism WHILE deprecating economic follies proposed in Nebraska California and Ohio, the Norfolk Daily News warns against a movement in the same impractical direction in Nebraska. It warns against a petition soon to be circulated for a proposed constitutional amendment that, if adopted, would contain enough potential dynamite to contain enough potential dynamite wreck business in the state.

The News says in part:

The News says in part:

"This is not wholly because of the size of the promised pensions, although the difference between $100 and his existing income, offered to every person over 50 in Nebraska, would impose an annual new burden of millions of dollars on Nebraskans. The proposed constitutional amendment would also put upon Nebraska taxpayers a 'letter of credit' amounting to $250,000,000 to finance the Bank of Nebraska, which would receive $2,500,000 in cash out of the state treasury."

Hope in DR. WILL DURANT, historian an and philosopher, who will be remembered as having lectured in Wayne on the iniquity of Russia's communistic government, was interviewed recently on the trends of civilization. Next year's wheat crop looks dubious Next year's wheat crop looks dublous, according to experts who have considered the dry ground and the inability of seed to sprout, but the Omaha Journal-Stockman says that while the prospect for that crop is not overly reassuring, "the experts do not know any more about next year's wheat crop than the rest of us."

Even in the presence of devastating drouth, some fields hereabouts have been yielding some corn—more than had been expected. As one journeys north, production increases. In the neighborhood of Condord, Dixon, Laurel, Belden and Randolph corn yields are larger than in several former years.

Whatever may be the cost of increased armaments for national defense, it will be considered advisable if it prevents becoming involved in the war abroad, or if it has a restraining influence on designing nations that would invade our shores.

Oil Discovery.

(Omaha Journal-Stockman)

In view of the discovery of oil in the southeastern section of Nebraska we are inclined to doubt the charge, so frequently made, that Americans are wasting their resources faster than new sources of supplies are being developed. If there is oil in Nebraska in paying quantities the chances are that our supply of oil is practically inexhaustible. This is at least a comfortable conclusion in the face of the expanding use of oil products in every branch of industry. One reason for the supremacy of the United States in the automotive field has been the abundance and cheapness of oil.

wholly discouraging if it were not for the inclusion of America where a blending of many races and creeds gives hope of democratic control.

Dr. Durant suggests this ground for hope:

"An end is natural to man and all his works, but western civilization has this one thing that all other civilizations lacked — America, the melting pot, the gathering place for all the races where a new man should grow and with him should grow—unless history is wrong and there is some evil new thing under the sun—a new civilization."

In Dickens' Christmas Carol, which is scheduled to show at the Gay theatre all day December 16, free to everybody, appears Ebenezer Scrooge who is introduced as a self-seeking brute. As the story unfolds, however, his, heart is softened by certain benign influences, and he turns out to be a regular Santa Claus. The transition from ugly stinginess to lofty generosity brings final rewards that every noble soul welcomes. The show will start at 9 in the morning and run all day, and we want everybody to see it. Keep December 16 in mind. The show is worth seeing.

From all indications communist Russia is a yulture that must be watched. On the anniversary of the red revolution, the Russian premier, stimulated by the ascending power of the soviet union of late, made, a speech in which he struck out in an ugly fashion at all capitalistic forms of government will eventually be out all it has spent on the grain which it holds or will hold.

WALLACE.

In discussing democratic presidential possibilities, with President Roosevelt eliminated, Mark Sullivan, columnist, suggests that if farm prices go up under the influence of the war under the influence of the war in Europe, Secretary Henry Wallace might become a prom-ising candidate. After six years of experimenting under the sec-retary's guiding genius, the farm program, as a price lifter and stabilizer, is deemed by close observers a good deal of affailure, but under the stimulus of increased demand due to a failure, but under the stimulus of increased demand, due to hostilities abroad, the secretary might gain considerable favor, though without merit on his part. In the event of an ascending candidacy, however, he ing candidacy, however, would have to overcome stacles in the democratic gr would have to overcome obstacles in the democratic group with which he has allied himself. Columnist Sullivan explains: "The regular democrats will be disposed to resist Mr. Wallace. They think of him as too changeable, too fluid. Their objection is illustrated by the fact that Mr. Wallace has belonged to two political parties—republican and democratic—and a third, if you think of the new deal as a separate body of political doctrine. At present farmers and farm labor are exempt from the act, and farmers and their families will continue to work whatever number of hours per day—10, 12 or 20, if necessary—to get the job done. They are not kicking about that if they can save cash outgo, and im-

if necessary—to get the job done. They are not kicking about that if they can save cash outgo, and improve the family income by so doing, but they are concerned over the effect of the wage-hour law on costs of commodities they must buy, and the selling price of those produced on their own farms. To reduce the work week without cutting the hour wage, and to increase maintimum wages must automatically increase the cost of the commodities or service upon which labor is performed. Thus the consumer will pay more for what he buys. Farmers will be among the first to feel the impositions of the new law, not only through higher prices for commodities they must buy, but also in what they sell when laborers in the handling and processing of such commodities work shorter hours or for higher wages.

In a period when, unemployment is still near the depression peak, and consumption is at a low level from reduced purchasing power, how can any effort to force higher commodities casts prove other than cock-eyed, and uneconomical from beginning to end?

We find that such trunnts, with few exceptions, come from unchurched homes. The excuses for truancy and non-church attendance range from lack of shoes to criticism of schools, churches, teachers and ministers. Many of these parents have, stated in open court in the presence of their children that the ministers devote too much time to doctrine, ladies' aid societies, panning for larger concettes, panning for larger concettes, panning for larger concieties, panning for larger con-tributions, and preaching hell-fire; while the schools place too much emphasis on dramatics, music and athletics.

Little do the parents realize that by such radical conclusions they are undermining the con-fidence of their children in Am-Indence of their children in America's greatest institutions; that nowhere in the world is the right of gvery human being to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience so jealously guarded as in 'America, and nowhere else do children have the educational advantages they have here. Our churches and schools, public and parochial, are the two forces available to every family, rich or poor, to guide the destinies of the future generation. Their resources should be taken advantage of and their principles upheld by every citizen, public official, and civic group.
