Sewage Disposal Matter Taken up

Public Address System Purchased Here Tuesday For Auditorium.

The matter of a sewage disposal plant for Wayne was considered by Wayne city council Tuesday evening. This problem, which has been arising from time to time for a few years, was renewed last week when the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, owner of land northeast of Wayne, filed in district court an action against the city and rendering works, charging that the disposal in South Logan creek is a nuisance and asking that the situation be remedied.

Hearing in district court is set for December 11, and City Attorney J. E. Brittan will have an answer to the petition on file before that date. If an injunction is granted, it is expected that the court will grant sufficient time for the city to act on the matter. In a similar situation in Omaha, the court granted two years' time to correct conditions.

Most cities the size of Wayne, if not located on a large stream of water, are providing modern sewage disposal, the council has learned. Such a plant costs from $50,000 to $60,000. The city had some time ago hoped to make such an improvement through PWA, securing a federal grant for $20,000 to $25,000. With this help and with the state furnishing about $1,000...

FRED DALE GIVES LOCAL CLUB TALK ON STATE'S STRATA

PROF. FRED DALE of the Teachers College faculty, has a rich fund of knowledge about Nebraska's surface and subsol, and he has an interesting way of explaining what he knows. He took the Kiwanis club through a course of training at its noon-day luncheon Monday, and conveyed a lot of information touching the whys and wherefores of the state's water sources and subterranean possessions. He did not express strong convictions in the direction of oil deposits, and pinned greater faith to corn production as a wealth producer. He said Wayne county has not only more cultivated acres than any other county in the state, but more than any county in the United States. He mentioned that our underground water supply depends more on moisture in the mountains than on immediate rainfall. He said there is a low altitude accounts for the excess in southeastern Nebraska. By maps he explained the series of dry years and series of wet years, and he added that this year's rainfall had been the least ever recorded. He thinks it is high time for the dry cycle to end, in which he voiced a general wish.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Hagel spent the week-end in the Leonard Nechavatal home at Schuyler.

Injunction Case Filed in Court

Loup River District Asks Order to Prevent Delay in Construction.

The Loup River Public Power district has, through Attorneys C. W. McElfresh and August Wagner, filed in district court an injunction action against Lisetta Marotz Gutzman and Walter Gutzman. Plaintiffs ask that the court restrain defendants from interfering with construction of their rural power line.

The petition explains that Minnie Marotz, who owns a life estate in NE 1/4 of 25-25-1, delivered to the Loup river district August 8 an easement for construction and maintenance of transmission lines and for this privilege plaintiffs paid her $180.

Lisetta Marotz Gutzman and Walter Gutzman, her husband, this petition continues, who have no right in the premises until the death of Minnie Marotz, have forbidden the contractor to construct the power line on the premises. The plaintiffs further state that they have an obligation to fulfill with those who have agreed to purchase electricity and delay will result in irreparable loss as electricity cannot be brought to that territory from any other source.

The Loup river company asks a temporary injunction to restrain defendants from interfering with delivery of materials and construction of lines.

Is American Democracy to Disappear? This Question was Asked Last Evening by Captain S. N. Dancy of the Citizenship Foundation in Addressing Wayne Men's Club and Guests at Hotel Stratton.

The next 18 months will determine the answer, stated the World war veteran, world traveler and newspaper man.

The United States now faces the gravest problems in its entire history, according to Captain S. N. Dancy. With communism working to overthrow this government from within, with organized forces trying to lead this country into war abroad and with this the only country in which citizens have to be jarred into patriotism, this nation is now the most fertile ground in the world for subversive movements.

Communist Threatens. Socialistic tendencies here are threatening and must be stopped, the captain continued. The most dangerous movement is communism for it is working so industriously to overthrow the government. Six million people in this country belong to communist associations. Some are innocently teaching communism and using communist tactics. The speaker showed that the C. I. O. and other movements in this country are directly connected with the communist movement in Russia. (Continued on Page Two)

Using New Unit In High School

Minor Finishing Remains To Be Completed in Addition Here.

High school classes were to take over the greater portion of one new unit of Wayne city high school today.

The boys' shower and locker room in the new unit has been in use since Monday. The baskets for the open lockers have been received since and put into place.

According to regulations of the Public Works Administration, building will be substantially completed as of today, subject to the correction of some minor items.

Also in the new unit, besides the boiler room and corridors, are the girls' locker room, and shop in the basement; art room and activity room no. 1 on the first floor; recitation room no. 15 in the connecting wing and the science laboratory and recitation rooms nos. 6 and 7 in the west wing on the second floor.

Work on the gymnasium floor was the big item so far this week. The floor, laid and finished last week-end, has been finished and lines have been drawn for basketball. The two baskets formerly used in the old activity room have been set up and a portable stage has been erected at the north end of the activity room.

PWA approval of the awards made following last week's letting on steel lockers and inoleum has already been received and the work is scheduled to start as soon as the contracts are signed.

Twenty-one men were employed on the site last week. The docket as a whole, including equipment, was 86.6 per cent completed as of last week-end.

Patriotism Needed Protect Democracy

speaker showed that word from Russian headquarters urges communists in this country to encourage strikes and other means to hasten overthrow of the government. This would mean the disappearance of democracy.

Another Danger in War

Other forces in this country are trying to push the United States into war. If the country gets into war, a dictatorship is said to follow, stated Captain Daney. This would mean not only that democracy would vanish here, but that the worst depression in history would follow. This country cannot stand a more severe depression than the one from which it is recovering.

Can Save Democracy

In spite of this discouraging outlook, American democracy can be saved, Captain Daney is certain if citizens will wake up at once.

In this country people have been trained for business and not for citizenship. Here, where citizens have the best opportunity to gain facts about their government, they are the most lacking in such training and are the most opinionated. Here 95 per cent of the people are uninformed in government citizenship. Of the 32 per cent casting votes, less than 10 per cent do so intelligently. Twenty per cent of the people have been supporting the other 80 percent. In 18 months, 425 industries have been forced to close.

Hope Lies in Midwest

The purest strain of old-time Americanism is to be found in middle western states, according to Captain Daney. The speaker complimented farmers as the best informed and most patriotic class of people in the nation. With New York having only 22 per cent American citizens and other cities east and west having similar proportions, the midwest citizenship stands out as typical of the Americanism which the Citizenship Foundation hopes to revive.

Captain Daney still has faith in American people. If they are given the facts and see the dangers, he has confidence that they will rise to defend democracy. The Citizenship Foundation, the national clearing house for service, civic and patriotic groups, with headquarters in Washington and bases in Chicago, Lincoln, Seattle and San Francisco, has 126 speakers over the country. These men are finding that Americans are re-orienting as soon as they learn the dangers. In sympathy with the movement, 1,400 new patriotic organizations have sprung up to aid in the work.

Informed Citizens Aim

"Alert, well-informed, patriotic American citizens" is the slogan and aim of the Citizenship Foundation move. This can save American democracy.

Captain Daney addresses college students this morning at 10 at convocation and speaks to high school students this afternoon. He will speak in Chicago Friday, then return to Deadwood, S. D., and afterward to Omaha. He has been speaking mainly in Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Montana. F. S. Berry arranged for his visit here.

Change Hog Feed For Winter Months

With winter just ahead, the majority of hog growers in Wayne county are changing rations to keep step with the season, County Agent Walters observed this week. Rations which produce good results when pigs are on summer pasture may be inadequate for winter months.

From Walt Tolman, assistant extension animal husbandman at the Nebraska college of agriculture, comes the suggestion that a full feed of grain apparently keeps the pigs warmer and in more thrifty condition. Experiments at the agricultural college show that one pound of tankage will replace around seven pounds of corn in the average fall pig ration, and may replace an even greater amount of sorghum. Pigs seem more thrifty and produce even more rapid gains with abundant skim milk than with tankage alone.

One-third to two-thirds gallons of skim milk per hog each day furnishes enough protein to balance the ration. Around two gallons of skim milk will equal a pound of tankage. When skim milk is not available, tankage is more or less the standard protein feed, and probably should be self-fed if the grain is also self-fed.

When necessary to reduce cash outlay, limited feeding of tankage is still economical. One-fourth to one-third pound daily will meet protein needs fairly well. Vegetable protein such as soybean meal or cotton cake mixed with tankage will increase the rate of gain. If the vegetable protein costs less than the tankage, the cost of gain also will be cut. Soybean meal now furnishes protein at lower cost than tankage in many parts of Nebraska. Either two parts tankage to one part vegetable protein, or equal parts of each make a satisfactory mixture.

Many hog producers feel it is more important to have alfalfa in the winter brood sow ration than a high protein feed. Tolman points out. The alfalfa supplies necessary vitamins and minerals. Keeps bowls in condition, and affords exercise when fed in the rack. In addition to the alfalfa a protein supplement is highly desirable. From one-half to two-thirds of a gallon of skim milk is satisfactory. One-third to one-half pound of tankage or a tankage and vegetable protein mixture are also excellent.

Recent work indicates sorghum is an entirely satisfactory substitute for corn in fattening Nebraska swine. However, it requires about 11 bushels of sorghum to produce as much gain as 10 bushels of corn. Litter corn or grain sorghum probably is as satisfactory as oats for brood sows if not fed too generously and if the sows exercise enough to avoid excessive fat.

Recorder Given To High School

New Addition to Building Is Being Put to Use This Week-End.

In accord with tradition, the 1935 and 1940 graduating classes of Wayne high school have purchased for the city school a recording machine which it is anticipated will be of special service to all students. The machine, which combines record-making equipment, public address system, radio and phonograph, will be formally presented to the school by the presidents of the two classes, Roy Larson of 1935, and William Hawkins of 1940, as soon as students can convene in the activities room. The first record made for the machine was for the pep rally last week. The recordings are on a rubberized disc and can be used many times. Among the uses the equipment will record music and speech, the record to be played in pointing out possible improvements. The machine will also be used to record special talks of other programs which the school wishes to preserve for various classes to hear. Sept. 11, F. Thorpe anticipates that the equipment will be of great value to the school.

Move to New Addition.
The new addition to the city school is complete with the exception of installation of some linoleum, lockers, laboratory tables, etc., which have not yet arrived. The process of moving to the new unit started Wednesday and classes are held there today. Though the addition can be used, the building cannot be formally accepted by the school board until all equipment is installed.
A noon recreation program for students bringing lunches is being worked out. Coach Elwood Morris and one other teacher will remain in the building at noon. Mr. Morris to conduct games for pupils of all ages. Mr. Morris also plans intra-mural athletics for high school boys. The program will be extended as far as possible into the grades. This aim is to give all an opportunity to enjoy some wholesome play during spare time.

McAdoo FORMER SENATOR William Gibbs McAdoo, who has returned to California from a visit in Washington, expressed the belief that President Roosevelt should break precedent and run for a third term.

Comments on recollections hovering around Armistice day are uniformly high in commending the courage and achievements of American veterans who took part in the World war, but they are equally strong in expressing aversion to mixing into future European wars.

The death of Alexander Hamilton in a duel with Aaron Burr virtually disposed of the senseless custom of settling points of honor in that way. War between nations would seem equally senseless means of settling questions of dispute.

Injustice that will be done innocent people on suspicion of complicity in the recent Munich bombing, is one of the horrors of war that absolves all responsibility to rules of evidence or to public knowledge.

We are glad the city has purchased a good sound system for the auditorium. It will solve many ear problems, making platform voices audible in remotest parts of the house.

Deifying a dictator—permitting him to displace objects of Christian worship—would seem the veriest sacrilege—paganism of the worst sort.

No Last Frontier. (Cincinnati Enquirer) "Our last frontier is gone," sigh the historians who read the history of America as the pushing forward of the frontier from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The earthquake business has lately been transferred from southern California to Oregon and Washington. If seismic disorders become common in the northwest, we may fear the water will be jolted out of Crater lake in Oregon and the huge cavity returned to its original habit of throwing out volcanic ashes.

The different Wayne clubs are usually engaged in research and study, and accordingly their members are constantly adding to their funds of knowledge. Seldom a meeting that does not produce valuable information and enrich the experience of those inclined to profit by it.

Senator Norris proposes to settle the Thanksgiving holiday confusion by consolidating it with Armistice day. This seems more reasonable than the senator's successful move to combine the two legislative causes.

A sewage disposal plant has been under consideration by the city council in recent years, but the pressure to keep down taxes has caused delay, and now court action is likely to speed up the improvement.

cover richer deposits. Steadily increasing market for oil is a reasonable assurance against over-production.

The foreigner who had been on relief for fifteen years and who explained that he trampled the American flag because he didn't like this country, must be crazy. He showed an amazing streak of ingratitude and ill nature. He should be put on board an outgoing ship and kept going until he reaches his native land.

The fact that the New York world's fair ended its season with a loss of $23,000,000 and the statement by exposition officials that it was a success led the Christian Science Monitor to observe that "the big show must have taken lessons from the achievement-through-deficit school of finance."

Propaganda is fashioned to appeal to the emotions, not to reason. Applying common sense largely negates the intended effect of propaganda, and the many apparent contradictions in war stories, intended to influence public opinion, awaken the forces of discrimination and rational judgment.

The Lincoln Journal issued an excellent 48-page edition yesterday to mark that city's seventy-two years of growth. AT THE FAIR. Exactng exorbitant wages from foreign exhibitors at the New York fair, labor unions caused bitterness instead of intended good will.

The Recession After the War. (Omaha Journal-Stockman) Far-seeing men of affairs are urging the nation to be awake to the dangers of a lull in business and industry after the present war in Europe has run its course.

of raising hogs comes out of the feedlot. It is the result of years of feedlot experience at the Purina Experimental Farm—experience gained from 145 farrowings and 12,900 pigs. The Sow-to-Pig-to-Packer plan is built to help you make money with hogs, and it combines four factors—good BREEDING, stock sound MANAGEMENT, careful SANITATION, and the following Purina FEEDING plan. Many outstanding hog men following this plan to get:

- large litters at farrowing time
- heavy, vigorous pigs at birth
- plenty of sow's milk for suckling pigs

Fire Loss Heavy

A blaze which may have been caused by a cigarette destroyed the interior of the Trianos grill in Norfolk early Wednesday with loss of $10,000 to $15,000. Heat was so intense that it wrecked booths and fixtures newly installed two years ago. Water and fire destroyed candy making equipment and supplies in the basement.

Outlook in Stock Business Noted

Beef cattle prices in 1940 may average slightly higher than in 1939 and hog prices probably will be lower in the first part of the marketing year just started, surpassing last summer's figure later on. These are the highlights of the 1940 hog and beef cattle outlook, received this week by County Agent Chester Walters from Arthur George, extension economist at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture.

Hog marketing for the year which began October 1, probably will be 20 per cent heavier than for the previous year, due to the sharp increase in spring and fall pig crops. Slaughter may be a little larger than the average for the five years preceding 1934.

Most of the increase in hog numbers has been in the eastern corn belt, with some in states west of the Missouri river. This is the result of abundant feed crops in states east of the Missouri river the last two, or three years, while feed grain production has been very low west of the Missouri.

Increased consumer demand is expected in 1940, which with increased consumer incomes will tend to strengthen prices for pork and offset to some extent the increased production for next year.

The outlook for increased pork and lard exports next year seems favorable, but the demand probably will be greater for pork than for lard. Hog numbers may increase slightly, but little or no increase is expected east of the Mississippi river. West of the Mississippi, the potential increase probably will not occur until there is greater feed production.

Factors pointing to higher beef cattle prices in 1940 include a probable reduction in the number to be slaughtered, increased consumer demand, and probable higher prices for hides. Feeds for beef production will probably be no lower in 1940 than in 1939, and increased pork production will tend to offset the shortage of beef, retarding any rise in beef prices.

Cattle number in the United States next January 1 are expected to show an increase of two million head, or three per cent more than a year earlier. Indications now are that cattle numbers will continue to increase for a few years. While this is taking place, it means that cows, heifers and heifer calves are being retained for building up herds and slaughter numbers are reduced by that amount.

There probably will be little or no change next year in numbers of cattle fed and marketed. The number of cattle fed in the corn belt this winter is expected to be larger than the number fed a year ago. However, this probably will not hold true for Nebraska, as indications point to fewer cattle on feed here this winter and spring than were fed in the same period last year.

With a rather heavy demand for feeder cattle in areas where feed production was abundant in 1939, the spread between prices of feeder cattle and finished cattle probably will be quite narrow during the coming feeding season.

Pasture and Forage Banquet Planned

Plans for the finish-up of the state-wide 1939 pasture-forage-livestock program in Omaha, Tuesday, November 28, now are being completed. Agricultural Agent Chester Walters was informed this week. A delegation of local farmer cooperators probably will attend this all-day gathering to talk "shop" and honor outstanding participants.

Several nationally known agricultural authorities are scheduled to speak on the "clinic" program which will be held in the afternoon at the livestock exchange in South Omaha. Among them is Dean Coffey of the University of Minnesota, who is well known among livestockmen throughout the country. Dean Coffey is a gifted speaker and has appeared in Nebraska before farm audiences once before.

The evening banquet, as usual, will be held at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce and this year six farmers will get outstanding recognition while 44 others will receive honorable mention. More than 600 farmers from all parts of the state are expected to attend the big meeting.

THE VOICE OF RELIGION

Current Questions and Answers About Religion, Morals and Personal Problems

Dr. Weldon F. Crossland Rochester, N. Y.

Do you think compulsory military training in colleges and high schools a danger to peace?

Yes, I strongly feel that if military training is offered at all in our system of education, it should be strictly optional. The dangers to peace lie in these directions:

Military training in youth teaches our young men to think in terms of guns, armies and force instead of in terms of justice, reason and conference as normal means of settling disputes between nations. The handling of arms, the use of military terms, and the war pattern of thought have other than a peaceful effect.

Young men are influenced to accept war as probable, if not inevitable. They tend to come in their thought processes to consider peace an idle dream. They forget that the goodwill between Canada and the United States, for example, is the strongest possible guarantee of safety and peace.

Compulsory military training follows the exact pattern of the dictatorship as they have forged their nations into swords for war. Regimentation of youth in absolute obedience to the military should have no place in an educational system based on free thought and free speech.

Many educators have held that the military drill, as a compulsory matter, has no educational value. They hold that the physical benefits of out-door exercise can be better secured in athletics than in drill.

My personal conviction is that military training has no place in high schools and only an optional place in colleges and universities.

Is Hitler the anti-christ?

No. The title "Anti-Christ" is found in four places in the New Testament, 1 John, 2: 18; 2: 22; 4: 3; and 11 John, 1: 7; where it is applied chiefly to those who deny that Jesus is the Christ of God.

Across the generations it came to mean as Webster says, "One who denies or opposes Christ; a great antagonist expected to fill the world with wickedness, but to be conquered by Christ."

The first century Christians thought of the Roman emperor, especially Nero, as the anti-christ, while Mohammed, founder of the religion that bears his name, later came to inherit the title. The name has been used by religious leaders, both to apply to any opponents.

To increasing numbers of Christians the title stands for any personification of evil, any spirit of evil that is hostile to all that Christ did and taught.

The evil man, who brutally exercises his power through murder and enslavement, is found in every century of history. He brings suffering and disaster to countless souls. He has the spirit of Anti-Christ, but he is not the one spoken of in the New Testament.

Can religion be safely taught in the public schools? How?

It is my judgment that religion and morals in their broad lines can be taught in the public schools and should be offered as elective courses.

It will be news to many that already in stores of public schools, colleges and universities, such as the University of Michigan, courses in religion and ethics are offered for regular credit. Taught by qualified teachers these subjects deal in a broad and strictly non-sectarian way with the history of religion, comparative religion, the lives of the great religious leaders, the Bible and the history of the Christian church.

The growing feeling among educators is that one cannot be intelligently informed about history unless he knows the creative social and personal forces that have been released through religion.

The place of religion in education was recognized recently by a committee of the New York state chamber of commerce, which urged that public school children be taught "to appreciate and understand the importance of their following and making the most of the faith with which they are identified. We are convinced that the great lack in our homes and in our national life is the lack of true, simple religion."

The boards of education could offer elective courses in religion and morals. Pupils could choose such courses only with their parents' written consent.

American life must be undergirded with the ideals and disciplines of religious faith, or lapse into an impotent paganism. (Copyright 1939 by Weldon F. Crossland, Rochester, N. Y.)

Team Is Third In Conference

Wayne Wildcats Win Game At Kearney Friday by One Counter.

A newly and freshly inspired Wayne college eleven won third place honors in the N.I.A.A. conference race by defeating Kearney at Kearney last Friday evening, 6-0, in a closely fought game. The spirited Wildcats, at full strength for the first time since the opening game, played smart and alert ball throughout the game, climaxing a march of 45 yards to score in the opening period. Runs by Murray, interspersed by passes from Murray to Lindahl and from Wehrer to Garvin, carried the ball down to the Antelopes' 20-yard line. Murray then shot a direct pass to Lindahl over the line, Lindahl making a beautiful catch eluding two Kearney men and scoring the first, and only counter of the contest. The try for point by place-kick was blocked.

Kearney threatened shortly before the first half but an alert and hard fighting Wayne line repulsed the Antelopes near the Black and Gold goal line. The Wayne line played hard determined ball, probably the best line play since the opening game, to stop the fleet Kearney backs before they could get started. Bernard Spilchal again continued his fine defensive play. He was ably aided and abetted by Joe Lindahl, who should be a cinch for all-conference honors again this year for time after time stopping plays around end, and by Dick Peterson, who has improved rapidly as a defensive player the past two games to rank as one of Wayne's outstanding linemen this fall. Ted Farner, Allan Mitchell, Moon Mullins, Fay Webb and Al Killian all helped to stop any enemy advance into pay dirt by consistently piling up plays through their respective positions. In the backfield, Murray and Hungerford came through with some fine pieces of running while Fox and Murray were keeping Kearney in check with some fine punting.

Kearney newspaper men had nothing but praise for the Wildcats and the general idea seemed to be that had the Wildcats not been troubled by the injury jinx that another championship would belong to Wayne college. It was the first home defeat for Kearney this season, and the first time that Wayne had defeated Kearney in over five years, the past two years playing tie games.

The injury jinx bobbed up again when Al Killian suffered a leg injury that will keep him out of the final game against Western Union Friday. Chuck Wehrer received a smashed hand, and Mort Galley hurt his ankle.

Five seniors, namely Allan Mitchell, Lyle Mullins, Quil Fox, Fred Murray and Chuck Wehrer will close their football career here against Western Union Friday afternoon.

The lineups: Wayne (6) Peterson, Je, Blessing, Mullins, Jt, Snyder, Farner, Jg, Hester, Killian, Jc, Schoenthal, Spilchal (gc), Jc, Smith, Mitchell, rt, Newell, Lindahl, re, Stegeman, Fox, qb, Wilmot, Murray, Jh, Meyer, Garvin, fh, Shada, Wehrer, fb, Fahey.

Wayne substitutions: Webb, Childs, Best, Hungerford, Hansen, Riley and Galley.

Wayne High Wins In Randolph Game

Wayne high school football team defeated Randolph at the college field here Friday by 27 to 0. Wayne players showed good form and led at the half by 20 to 0.

Fitch pushed the ball over the line in the early minutes of play for the first counter. A pass from Fitch to Powers was good for the second counter and Stull kicked the extra point. Kessler made a 40-yard run to chalk up Wayne's third touchdown and Stull's kick was good. In the second half Kessler took the ball over the goal and Stull kicked the extra point.

The concert included: "Recuerdos," Santos, for two pianos played by Maxine Mills and Frances Blezek; "Danse Hongroise," Du Val, played by Eleanor Gustafson; "Canzone Amorosa," Nevin, Dolores Nelson; "On the Sea," Schytte, and "Shadow Dance," MacDowell, Lela Swenson; "Prelude in B Minor," Spross, Orson Jeffrey; "Nocturne," Leschetizky, and "Valse in G Flat," Chopin, Harold Humphreys; "Arrival at Platform Humlet" from "In a Nutshell" suite by Percy Grainger, for two pianos and played by Genevieve Lundak and Orson Jeffrey.

Prof. Albert G. Carlson, of the college piano department, gave a short talk on "Music as an Educational Factor." In part he said: "Music and the other arts have no clearly defined place in our educational system. They are often restricted or kept out in favor of other less useful subjects." Mr. Carlson quoted William J. Cooper, a U. S. commissioner of education who said, "The important phases of the curriculum today are literature, music and art. They are the fundamentals—not fads and frills." Mr. Carlson went on to say, "music study has as its strong point the development of creative and dynamic qualities. This is in line with the efforts and thoughts of many of our most progressive educators."

The next of the music hour concerts is to be given December 7 in the college auditorium.

Sixty Years Ago

Doc Middleton, the frontier desperado who operated in northern Nebraska and who was captured by Captain Llewellyn at Niobrara, was an unusual character, according to an 1879 issue of the Northern Nebraska Journal published at Ponca by Wm. Huse.

Middleton's real name was Jack Riley. He was a native of Texas where his father was hanged for murder in 1876. Doc was 32 years old in 1879 and was never regarded as a "bad" man in Texas. There was such an air of romance about Doc that he was often called the "Bandit of the Niobrara" or "The Man with the Golden Tooth."

Doc was not an educated man but he possessed good understanding and an air of command that made him king among the men by whom he was surrounded. His word was law with them and they swore by him. Doc was a fine looking man, nearly 6 feet tall, straight, well proportioned with hazel eyes, dark hair grown long, dark mustache and quick, decisive expression in every movement. He paid great attention to his personal appearance, wearing fine riding coat, neat top boots and a brigandish hat. He had a good countenance and fine white teeth which showed continually. One of his front teeth was broken half way down and was built up with gold which accounts for his sobriquet, "The Man with the Golden Tooth."

Doc was a perfect horseman and carried in his belt two navy revolvers with which he was a "dead" shot and was uncomfortably quick in handling. "He feared neither God, man nor devil."

Circumstances which led Middleton to enter upon a crime career were not generally known. Doc had come from Texas in May, 1877. At a saloon or dance house in Sidney he was repeatedly insulted by a bullying sergeant. The sergeant seemed determined to pick a quarrel with Middleton who was a stranger. At last the officer knocked Middleton down without warning and then several others kicked and beat him. In self defense Doc drew his gun and fired, killing the sergeant.

In the excitement that followed Middleton got a horse and started for the open prairie. There he fell in with other fugitives from justice and gradually assumed the life of a brigand or cattle stealer, operating mainly in the territory of Holt county. He made raids on Indian reservations and great cattle ranges in northern Nebraska. Naturally other fugitives congregated about him and his band grew to an estimated 150 men. Some were scattered about the prairie and others were stationed under guise of employment in Nebraska and Kansas where the gang ran off stolen horses.

In Holt county, when Indians or whites not in his band had stolen property, Doc acted as a detective and returned goods to owners. His operations extended into Cedar and Knox counties. Doc came and went without danger. Either he was liked or feared.

Marries Holt County Girl.
A 20-year-old girl in Holt county, at whose father's home Doc had stopped for food and water, fell in love with the bandit. To her he was the symbol of all that was noble and good. His dashing appearance, splendid physique and fine horsemanship captivated her. She had an infatuation for Middleton and he married the miss under the name of Jack Lyon. Middleton and his wife held greatest devotion for each other, though Doc controlled a gang of fugitive criminals from Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Texas. Captain Llewellyn, sent to "get" Middleton, met the bandit on horseback. Middleton rode fearlessly to the officer and asked his name. Llewellyn gave a fictitious one. "Don't lie to me, your name is Llewellyn," replied Doc. "All right," said Llewellyn, "have it as you please."

The captain led his soldiers to Niobrara, arriving there on a Sunday. Officers from nearby counties joined the party. The river was crossed by ferry and the party started under full gallop for the home of Llewellyn's father-in-law. They captured the latter and five others, giving them a chance to lend them to Doc's camp or be punished. Middleton's wife was with him at camp.

Go to Capture Bandit.
With tears falling down his face, the unhappy father-in-law led the 14 mounted men up the hills seven miles to deep canyon. Large pines filled the gorges and no sounds came from the crevices. Soldiers were picketed on commanding points and officers took defiles to the main canyon. The Middleton camp was discovered and the stillness was broken by a needle gun. Mrs. Middleton screamed for cessation of hostilities and came to the officers who told her to advise Middleton to surrender. She did so and returned to say her husband would not give himself up. The men worked cautiously to the camp which was deserted. A short distance away the soldiers found Middleton crawling through deep grass. Middleton explained that he had been shot by Hazen a week before. The bandit was taken to camp where the men found fruit, lemons, sugar, ammunition, bedding, powder and canned goods. Only five were with Middleton at the time of the surprise attack. Others of his gang were away building a new camp.

Early Monday the expedition of soldiers took the brigand chief to Columbus. Middleton was placed on a bed in a wagon and was guarded constantly. An attempt on the part of his gang to rescue him would have resulted in death. So ended the crime career of the desperate Doc Middleton.

His love for his mother led him to the belief that she was being destroyed.

Accession Books

At City Library

"Doctor Hudson's Secret Journal" by Lloyd C. Douglas, is a new book at Wayne library. This is not a sequel to "Magnificent Obsession" but rather an expansion of its philosophy, illumined by the full story of Dr. Hudson's experiences.

Other adults' books are "The Best Plays of 1938-39 and the Year Book of Drama in America," edited by Burns Mantle, and "Religious Living," by Georgia Harkness.

Most of the new books added to the library are in the children's department. "Cowboy Hugh," by Walter H. Nichols, is a story of a boy starting for a ranch in Wyoming where he is to work during the summer. In a town near his destination, he learns that the foreman was killed in a feud between cowboys and sheep-herders and is taken on by some cowboys hurrying out of town. On reaching the ranch he finds mystery, and strange events occur.

"Sue Barton, Senior Nurse," by Helen Dore Boylston, is another book in this series. The redheaded nurse finishes training and goes to new experiences which are both humorous and exciting. In the beginning Sue gets mixed up in a minor mystery of the hospital. The interest grows as the story goes on.

"Sally and Her Kitchens," by May Worthington, is a story of Sally Lewis who graduated from the home economics course in Wil-mantic university. She had only a vague idea of the wide variety of kitchens that she might rule over. She takes on several positions.

"Smash Picture!" by Robert Van Gelder, tells of the adventures of Joe Spode as a news camera man in New York.

"Doll Cottage," by Adele De Loeuw, is the discovery of a fascinating career by a girl when she was making things to amuse a little girl injured in a car accident.

"As the Crow Flies," by Cornelia Meigs, is an exciting story of a young officer sent to explore Mississippi and make treaties with the Indians he meets on the way.

A young Indian boy goes for the Crow people to stir up trouble for young America and destroy his plans. How each fulfills his own mission and works out his destiny is a thrilling adventure.

"Ben and Me," by Robert Law-son, is an astonishing life of Benjamin Franklin as told by his good mouse, Amos.

"Scally Alden," by Ada Claire Darby, is the story of a little girl who took a long summer trip and made friends everywhere. Scally is a very lovable little girl.

"Cyclone Goes A-Viking," by Eva M. Kristofersen, is the quaint daily life of a Norwegian farm through more than one season of the year.

"A Doll's Family Album," by Edna Knudsen King, has 105 photographs of dolls with a story of each.

Other books for the smaller children are "Children Everywhere," "Children of Switzerland," "Children of China," "Children of Mexico," "Little Rose of the Mesh," "The Three Bears" and "General Shop Electricity."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hrabak of Dodge, parents of Howard Hrabak of Stanton and formerly of Wayne, observed their 60th wedding anniversary Sunday last week. Charles Hrabak was a pioneer merchant at Dodge.
