

Through the First Six Months of 1940 As Taken in Hand by Prognosticating Economists — Old-Time New Year's Calls — Christmas Values.

One has to engage in a couple of empty swallows, clearing one's esophagus through its full length, before putting himself into gear to swallow the rosy business predictions made by reassuring economists for the first half of 1940.

Distance not only lends enchantment to the view, but it begets understanding to such an extent that one may easily persuade himself that bright-hued conditions prevail in remote areas!

It is recalled that lack of production has kept the middle west from sharing equally in upward market trends for several years past.

This has not always been so. Time was when the east was flat, and then the middle west, garnering big crops, was enjoying the heyday of prosperity.

New Year's Long Ago. New Year's formal calls, customary in the old days, were designed especially as means of felicitation—to get human relationships tuned up and started off in proper order for another year.

Whiskers were in order—full beards, often mere mustaches, sometimes President Chester Arthur sideburns or Buffalo Bill goatees. These facial adornments—sometimes silken and soft, sometimes coarse and wiry, but always proudly displayed—possessions—came in handy when conversation lagged or when fueling the jinner man recessed. Then uneasy fingers sought relaxation in caressing their draperies, or in deftly straightening out real or imaginary tangles, or in curling and reshaping ambitious ends.

Anyway, everybody was out in style and duly fasted for the occasion. Substitutes for old-fashioned New Year's calls — listening to radios, attending motion picture shows and going on automobile rides.

Benign Influences. Myriads of Christmas cards and other expressions of good will found their way to friends and relatives during the holidays.

And speaking of inconsistency, the whole world seems to have become more and more so. Leaders (Continued on Page Four)

FIFTYEIGHTH YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1940.

NUMBER THIRTYFIVE

Conservation Is To Be Stressed In New Program

Tree Planting and Grass Will Be Credited in Farm Practices.

Wayne county farmers who participate in the 1940 AAA farm program will carry out more soil conservation practices on their farms, according to Herman J. Podoll, chairman of the county agricultural conservation committee.

The rates of credit for soil-building practices under the 1940 program have been changed to give farmers a better opportunity to carry out needed practices which they do not normally include in farming operations.

Practices which Wayne farmers are expected to use more widely under the 1940 program include: Tree planting, for which a special payment of $30 has been allotted each farm, and broom grass, which with other adapted perennial grasses will earn two units per acre payment.

Formation of an organized weed control district whereby operators may obtain soil-building credit for controlling creeping jennies and other noxious weeds is another possibility which deserves serious thought.

Soil-building practices applicable in Wayne county which farmers normally use are the seeding of sweet clover and alfalfa together with growing of forage sorghums on non-depleting acres. Under the 1939 AAA program these practices were carried out to a considerable extent.

Revision of the playground area at Wayne city school was discussed by the board of education at its meeting Tuesday evening.

Anniversary Is Observed Here

Mr. and Mrs. Swan Lundahl Have Family Gathering New Year's Eve.

The 55th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Swan Lundahl was observed New Year's eve at their home three miles east and a mile and a half north of Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Lundahl, the latter formerly Mary Cederquist, were married at Red Oak, Ia., December 31, 1884. They lived in Iowa until 1914 when they moved to a farm near Wakefield.

Former Student Of Wayne Weds

Mr. Julius Shultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Shultz of Scribner, and Miss Florence Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Johnson of Lindsay, Kan. were married Christmas day at a Lindsay church.

Couple at Pilger Marries Sunday

Miss Esther Koehlmoo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Koehlmoo of Pilger, and Mr. Frederick Heller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Heller of Beemer, were married Sunday morning at 11:30 at St. John's Lutheran church in Pilger.

Taken Ill on Train

Mrs. I. H. Brittel was taken ill on the train the first of this week when returning to Milwaukee after spending the holidays at Madison, S. D. Miss Fannie Brittel was with her mother. Mrs. Brittel was taken from the train by ambulance at Sioux City and is in the Methodist hospital. Mrs. V. A. Senter was in the city to see her Wednesday.

LOOKING BACKWARD AND FORWARD WITH NEW YEAR OPENING

WHAT does the new year hold? The fear expressed a year ago that war would engulf Europe before the end of 1939 came true, and we enter another twelvemonth with rival nations abroad engaged in a titanic struggle for supremacy.

Uneasy apprehension that the United States would be drawn into the conflict has been greatly modified by the generally expressed determination to keep out of it. Cost of the other war in men and treasure and the utter futility of participating in it have raised what seem at this time impregnable safety barriers.

An order from Washington during the past week indicated that the Omaha office, PWA headquarters for eight states, would be abolished as an economy move.

Word received here indicated that the move is due to the completion of the greater portion of projects in this area, which enabled the Omaha office to be consolidated with the Chicago office.

Curtailing of administrative expenses will have no bearing on the government agreement with the respective boards in charge of the Connell hall addition at the college and the Wayne city school job, as in both cases only a 10 per cent grant payment, which has been set aside pending a final audit, remains to complete the PWA participation.

On the college job, seven equipment and furnishing contracts remain to be completed, with further awards probable.

Playground Area May Be Revised For City School

All Contracts Completed For Building Projects This Wednesday.

Revision of the playground area at Wayne city school was discussed by the board of education at its meeting Tuesday evening.

All contracts in the building project have been completed. Laboratory tables were installed and connected, and new lockers are in use. Curtains in the activities room were hung yesterday to finish all furnishings.

Psychological test for all new students will be given Wednesday, January 24, in the auditorium at 3:08. Freshmen English test is to be conducted Wednesday, January 31, at 3:08 in the auditorium.

Funeral Service To Be at Winside

Barbara Ann Fenske Passes Monday Evening After Short Illness.

Funeral services for Barbara Ann Fenske, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fenske of Winside, will be held Friday afternoon at 1 from Gaebler & Neely's and at 11:20 from the St. Paul Lutheran church in Winside.

Four Youths Enlist For Army Service

Raymond Nelson, Bill Carlson, Harold Hansen and Dean Baird, all of Winside, were in Sioux City last week Wednesday to enlist in the United States army. They went to Omaha Friday to receive further assignment.

Coat and Overshoes Needed by Youth

An 11-year-old boy is unable to attend school because he has no coat or overshoes. His shoe size is about 2 1/2. Anyone who can provide the youth with either or both of these is asked to call Mrs. L. W. Needham.

Anniversary Is Observed at Home

The 56th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Gossard was observed New Year's day. In a group having no-hust dinner with them were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sorensen and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hall and children, Mrs. G. W. Crossland, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ahlvers. A number of others called in the afternoon.

Wayne Projects Are Unaffected

Moving of Omaha Office to Chicago Does Not Cause Any Change Here.

Contemplated closing of the Public Works Administration regional office in Omaha, scheduled for February 1, will not affect the completion of the two Wayne PWA projects or the government's financial participation therein, it was learned in Wayne Wednesday.

Word received here indicated that the move is due to the completion of the greater portion of projects in this area, which enabled the Omaha office to be consolidated with the Chicago office.

PROMISE OF ROAD IMPROVEMENTS FOR THE COMING YEAR

AN IMPORTANT road project promising realization in Wayne county this year is the one running north of Wayne to a point connecting with No. 20 east of Laurel. This is to be surfaced with asphalt, as we understand, and it will give inhabitants to the north the same convenience now enjoyed by those to the south.

Another long-needed improvement will be the hard-surfacing of a highway from Carroll north to No. 20. Like other all-year highways, the two proposed ones will further facilitate travel to the county seat. While good roads help distant trade centers, they also aid nearby ones that offer proper inducements. A town like Wayne with live-wire dealers, is certain to gain more than it loses by reason of the improvement. Contrasting hard-surfaced highways with bumpy and often muddy cow trails of the old days makes one appreciate the change for the better.

School Resumes After Holidays

New Lockers Are Installed To Accommodate Pupils In Wayne High.

Wayne city school resumed Tuesday after the holiday recess. Sessions will be conducted Saturday this week to make up for Monday. This will enable the term to close the last of May.

First semester of the year closes January 26.

High school classes will soon select members for the student council, of which Lyle Seymour was chosen president.

The 82 new lockers recently bought have been installed in the school basement. With the lockers on the second floor this provides locker space for all high school students. Two use the double lockers and one in each single one.

Make Typing Pictures.

Typing classes have started a project on picture writing or artistic typing. Students may use original designs, or copy from patterns or other materials. Various colored ribbons have been secured so that pictures may be vari-colored, instead of black and white as in former years. The best designs will be mounted and used for the fair exhibit next fall.

Study Fine Lines.

The class in retelling has been examining various articles in class so as to become better acquainted with goods, and to be able to get selling points. Before Christmas Lyle Pfeuffer brought in a display of beautiful linens which have been in his grandmother's family for many years. Some of them were woven from flax grown on their home farm in Germany, but one of the most beautiful pieces was a table cloth with a panel showing the famous picture of "Lord's Supper" woven in two positions so that it may be viewed from either side of the table. The faces are not more than an inch in size, but the features and expressions are perfectly distinct. All members of the class were thrilled by this exhibit and are extremely grateful to Mrs. Gus Behrens for making this possible.

The Christmas issue of The Harbinger was an eight-page bulletin front of which was decorated in green and red. The outline of a Christmas tree and holiday greetings were used.

A formula spelldown was conducted in chemistry class with Lyle Seymour and Donna Loy Reese captains. The latter's team won, and Edna Penn was class champion.

Juniors are reading plays to make selection of one. "Out of the Past" is a play presented by Sigma Mu Gamma by Bill Hawkins, Edna Penn, Robert Haas, Jim Pile and Richard Claycomb.

Sixth Grade News.

Pupils made winter scenes in art and are starting original story booklets.

In Fourth Grade.

Billy Conry entered the 4th grade January 2.

In art class pupils learned to cut letters freehand from three main beginnings. The method is simple but makes good letters.

The pupils talked about resolutions that would be valuable to the room and all are going to try to keep them.

Third Grade News.

Pupils are making scrap books of winter scenes and sports. They are bringing snapshots of themselves in snowsuits, on sleds, etc. They studied a snowfall Tuesday, observing how the snow falls and comparing it with rainfall. They caught flakes and examined them with magnifying glasses. They discussed safety rules for stormy weather and icy streets.

The class is divided into four groups for an arithmetic subtraction tournament. Each group has a leader who coaches those who need help. The winners will compete with the 4th graders.

Kindergarten News.

Children brought some of their Christmas gifts to school. Claude Harder, who attends the training school, visited with his sister, Lois.

Pupils are learning songs about January and about snowbirds.

Jackson Dinner. Republicans in congress are puzzled by invitations to the annual Jackson day dinner.

When former President Herbert Hoover asked newly elected Franklin Roosevelt to get together with him seven years ago to talk over government policies and help reassure the country, the invitation was bluntly refused.

At that time the incoming president doubtless thought he could wave a magic wand and magnetize the country into a state of confidence.

At that time the incoming administration thought existing policies were mistaken and obstructive. Undoubtedly republicans in congress — and now many democrats — believe the new deal program has few sound legs on which to rest after seven years of economic guessing.

With all due respect to memory of the honored Jackson, whose public record was quite in conflict with the new deal's program of undemocratic centralization, members of congress may be expected to decline invitations to the annual dinner, employing courteous diction.

As to the Unicameral. LIEUTENANT Governor William E. Johnson contributed an article to a recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor setting forth the objections and advantages of Nebraska's unicameral legislature.

The objection that the one-house legislature is not adequately representative is believed offset by concentrated effort and reduced cost. The lieutenant governor thinks the plan would not work so well in thickly populated states like Illinois and New York where urban, industrial populations dominate and where thinking is often restricted to ability to get the next meal.

Faith Lives. IN ITS New Year's editorial survey, looking out on a profoundly disturbed world, and finding ground on which to fasten faith and hope, the Omaha World-Herald draws this conclusion: "However heavily the hand of tyranny may lie upon the world, we know that the spirit of freedom will eventually throw it aside."

The charm that snow holds for youth is not usually felt by oldsters, aside from consciousness of soil benefits. Beautiful snow, embalm'd in a picture and hung up on the living-room wall, becomes less fascinating as the reality chills an aging anatomy or threatens to throw unsteady feet into the air.

The special session of the legislature, called together by Governor Cochran, to make funds available for old-age assistance, started this week and is expected to be short-lived. Reason for the session is failure of usual tax sources to yield sufficient cash. It is said favorable action will have to be taken on the proposed appropriation by January 10 to bring desired results this month.

Mark Sullivan, columnist, expresses the belief that the country is headed unmistakably in the direction of conservatism. We have been going the other way so long with reform emphasized above recovery that the economic fabric has become frightfully out of order, and the efforts of sound statesmanship over a considerable period of time will be required to make due repairs.

Response to the Herald's call for used clothing for needy families has been prompt and generous. This newspaper is pleased to act as a medium between those who have things they cannot use and those who are unable to buy sufficient wearables to keep comfortable.

Labor unions have asked for so much and have conceded so little in recent years, trespassing on employers' rights of property so brazenly that reaction is reported setting in against them. The unions will have to be satisfied with a more nearly middle course, endeavoring to deserve the gains they have made.

According to Bible prophecies, the "last days" must be overdue. We were to have wars and rumors of wars, famine, pestilence, persecutions and general cussedness preliminary to the final windup.

Discarded Christmas trees have been parked in back yards hanging with bread crumbs and other eatables for the birds. This generous policy is a source of relief to feathered creatures, especially while there is snow, and while digging square meals out of the ground is almost impossible.

The New Year holiday took a toll of 280 fatal accidents, 128 caused by motor wrecks. California led with thirty-two violent deaths, including seventeen traffic accidents and six suicides. Nebraska escaped with one fatality.

The snowfall for December, 1939, totaled five inches as compared with one inch during the same month in 1938. This may encourage the hope that the moisture business has undergone a sharp turn for the better.

Besides balancing financial budgets, we need to balance emotional budgets—get our feet on the ground, avoid hysteria, keep out of the dumps and out of high altitudes, and maintain an equable state of mind.

College students who have engaged in goldfish-swallowing marathons could reasonably be expected to listen approvingly to Earl Browder's communistic doctrine as borrowed from Russia.

Dunning and being dunned and getting square with the world caused a lot of pedal padding hither and yon this week. Now everything is set to start off the new year in proper order.

By reason of an extra day added to February and the month beginning and ending on the same day, the Herald will issue five times during that month.

Local organizations will benefit for ten years to come by helping census takers make a complete count. No one should be missed.

220 Jobs. (Omaha World-Herald) The recent case of Omaha's United States Brush company affords an excellent illustration of the difficulties which confront the idealism of the new deal and the pitfalls into which it may drop if it does not watch its step.

The United States company makes camel's hair brushes for the application of nail polish. It employs 220 people here. It pays its ordinary factory workers 30 cents an hour, in accordance with the wages and hours law. That is little enough, and doubtless the factory management wishes it could pay more.

But the company faces competition from Japan. After a prolonged legal tussle the courts have finally ruled that Japanese brushes must be admitted at a low tariff rate, and so they will come into the market at a price with which the Omaha firm cannot compete.

And why can't the local factory face competition? Because the wage scale for brush factory workers in Japan is 14 cents a day for a 12-hour day. Although the state department had nothing to do with the court decision on camel's hair brushes, nevertheless the effect of the decision was in line with the policy of reducing tariffs by agreement until, eventually, trade barriers are wiped out.

Academically that is an excellent policy, designed to promote world peace and express the brotherhood of man. But 220 Omahans thrown out of work by a clause in the tariff bill can't be expected to throw their hats in the air and cheer for brotherhood.

The incident affords a perfect example of what may happen to the industry of a high-wage country if necessary protective tariffs are arbitrarily reduced or wiped out. Under the American law and standard of living our workers cannot compete with those of Japan, India or Outer Mongolia—just as our farmers in many instances cannot compete as to price with the huge ranches of the Argentine.

SELF-DENIAL. Practicing self-denial, especially to the extent necessary to avoid embarrassing situations, is a womanfully satisfying experience. One may not be able to gratify every desire, may not be able to fly high, may not be able to enjoy the trips or leisure that others seem able to afford, but if he can make ends meet and live without serious discomfort, he is rewarded by peace of mind that far transcends any passing indulgence that one's financial condition cannot well support.

Looking (Continued from Page One) abroad prate of desire for peace while inflaming social and religious hates and trying to embitter one nation against another. The great exemplar of peace and good will whose nativity was briefly observed in trenches and on board fighting ships, was soon set aside to give place to premeditated slaughter and ruin.

Birth Record. A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Mathney of Wayne, December 28 at a local hospital. She has been named Janet Louise.

Deed Is Filed. In a property deed filed in Wayne county December 27, Alice Seace and husband confer to Verna Elefson for $1,400 the middle 50 feet of lots 1, 2, 3 and 4, block 23, College Hill addition, to Wayne.

DEMOCRACY. A poorly working democracy—one that makes costly mistakes—infinately more desirable than a highly efficient dictatorship. An age-old struggle for human freedom, an eagerness to pay dearly for it—seemed to reach its height of achievement before the World War. Then it appeared democracy was destined to make a clean sweep of the world.

Church of Christ.
(G. B. Dunning, minister.)
Delegations from Churches of Christ of this section of Nebraska were present at Madison for the re-dedication service held there Sunday afternoon. Ewing, Clearwater, Neligh, Oakdale, Norfolk, Wakefield, David City, Wymore and Wayne were represented.
The re-seating of the church auditorium is now complete and the congregation is happy over the improvement in appearance and comfort.
Dr. Griffin will bring the morning message on "The Church's One Foundation." This will be a dedication of the furnishings and special music is planned.
Young folk service in the evening will be resumed after being interrupted by the Tri-County meeting at Madison.
The evening sermon will be "The Cause of War." The Bible prophecies wars and rumors of war until the very return of Christ. What? is the underlying cause of them?

The bureau of civil aeronautics, created by act of 1938, controls aviation routes, schedules and rates just as the railway commission controls these for railroads and buses. Requests for change...

Plane service is becoming increasingly important. The trans-oceanic lines as well as passenger and mail lines in this country are developing steadily and enlarging their part in travel. The planes are owned by private companies but are subject to federal control.

Many white people in the south, and of course the colored people, are very poor. Their unpainted homes look like small boxes placed on four low corner posts. They are share-croppers and barely get enough for existence.

The conception that the south has many huge plantations with beautiful mansions seems to be wrong in the Carolinas, Alabama and Louisiana. On the outskirts of cities are fine plantation homes, but these do not seem to be the rule farther out.

Miss Larsen found that the colored people of the south show much more respect than do those in the north. They show politeness in every act. Class distinctions are prominent in New Orleans where many French still live. The colored whites, the French and the colored people do not mix a great deal.

Miss Larsen likes Washington and finds much of interest each day in the nation's capital.

Couple Married At Meadow Grove

Miss Marjorie Baker Bride Of Donald H. Hicks at Pretty Service.

The Meadow Grove Methodist church was the setting for the wedding Wednesday, December 27, of Miss Marjorie Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clement G. Baker of Tilden, and Mr. Donald H. Hicks of Rockton, Ill., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Hicks of Wayne.

Two large baskets of white chrysanthemums and 10 tapers in two candelabra at either side of the altar formed an attractive background for the service. The pulpit was banked with ferns and green houghs.

Miss Baker wore a white satin gown fashioned along simple lines with high sweetheart neckline, pearl-embroidered bodice and long point sleeves. Her veil was short in length. Her arm spray bouquet was of white roses.

Miss Baker was attended by her sisters, Miss Lucile and Miss Claudia Baker, who were attired in rose and blue tulle and carried rosette bouquets of sweetpeas.

Mr. Hicks was attended by C. Kenneth Banks of Kansas City, Mo., and Wayne Galen of Meadow Grove. Assisting with the ushering were Gordon McIntosh, Wm. McIntosh and Carl Berg, jr.

Diane Baker of Tilden, cousin of the bride, lighted the altar tapers preceding the ceremony. Earl Jenkins of Blair, cousin of the bride, sang "Because" and "O Promise Me." He was accompanied at the piano by his mother, Mrs. E. L. Jenkins. The wedding party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's processional played by Miss Mildred Dohren of Pilger. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Rev. G. L. Weik of Meadow Grove, performed the ceremony.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony, this being given by the bride's parents. The bride's table was centered with a bowl of pink and white sweetpeas and white tapers were at either side. Two large baskets of chrysanthemums formed a background for the table setting. Miss Inez Baker, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the serving. Friends of the bride, who served, are Miss Helen Grandlund of Norfolk, Miss Margie Dean Holm of Orchard, Miss Roberta Baas of West Point, Miss Helen Tassemeyer of Tilden, Miss Dorothy Kile of Creighton. Friends of the family assisting included Mrs. Margaret Baker, Mrs. D. O. Whitehorn, Mrs. Carl Berg, Mrs. E. L. McIntosh, Mrs. Herbert Osborn and Mrs. J. P. Galen.

Mr. Hicks is a graduate of Wayne State Teachers college and has done graduate work at the University of Wisconsin. He is now an instructor of science in the Rockton high school.

Mrs. Hicks, who also attended Wayne college, has been teaching at Sergeant Bluff, Ia.

The couple are at home at Rockton, Ill.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Wayne, Pilger, Brunswick, Lincoln, Neligh, Blair, Kennard, Creighton, Norfolk, Sergeant Bluff, Iowa City, Chicago, West Point, Orchard, Albion and Culver, Ind. Those from Wayne were Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Brock and sons, James and George, Miss Marion Seymour, Carroll Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Hicks, Miss Mary Hicks, Mrs. Roy Day, Elwood Morris.

LOCAL

Miss Josephine Ley went to Lincoln Wednesday to resume her studies at the university.

Interviewer Comes Alternate Weeks

O. B. Ziggafos, interviewer for the Nebraska employment service, will be at the court house in Wayne on Fridays, January 5 and 19, February 2 and 16, March 1, 15 and 29, from 9:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Sustains Bruises In Car Accident

Paul Back was bruised when the car in which he was riding skidded on icy pavement at the edge of Omaha as he was enroute here to spend Christmas. He was with Geo. Young of Imperial, by whom he is employed, and the latter was going to Des Moines. When the Young car skidded, it collided with a semi-trailer, the driver of which was slightly hurt. The Young machine was considerably damaged.

Rededicate Church Now at Madison

The former Highland Church of Christ, located four miles southwest of Battle Creek, which was moved to Madison, repaired and full basement added, was rededicated Sunday afternoon with services attended by members of northeast Nebraska congregations. G. B. Dunning of Wayne, gave the dedication address. A number from Wayne, Wakefield and Magnet were among those present. Miss Virginia Beckman of Minnesota Bible institute, former Wayne student, sang. The tri-county young people's service was held in the evening with Paul Neilson, graduate of Minneapolis Bible school, as speaker. Mrs. Neilson is the former Marcia George of Ewing, a niece of Dean Allen Cook who used to live here.

The Neilsons plan to leave in February or June for mission fields in Japan. After a year there they will go to Korea. Mrs. Dunning, Miss Lila Brauer, Miss Beckman and Gail Dunning accompanied Duane Dunning to his regular services at Valparaiso and David City Sunday morning and then all stopped at Madison in the afternoon.

Books Accessed At Wayne Library

Fourteen books for boys are appreciated gifts to Wayne city library from Don and Bob Shulteis.

"The Grapes of Wrath," by John Steinbeck, is one of the newly accessioned books at the library. Political insight, a grasp of a whole people traversing a wilderness, kindness and bitter condemnation combine in this American novel.

"The Nazarene," by Sholem Asch, is a novel on the life of Christ.

"Western Union," by Zane Grey, is an epic of a single strand of wire.

In "The Revolution of Nihilism" Hermann Rausing, former president of Danzig, presents the crisis which civilization now faces.

"A Treasury of Art Masterpieces," edited by Thomas Craven, contains reproductions of famous paintings and information about each.

"Christ in Concrete," by Pietri di Donato, pictures life in phases very little known to middle westerners.

"Capital City," by Mari Sandoz, author of "Slogum House," brings the author's answer to the question of how strongly the fascist movement is rooted in this country. In it the author sees the pioneer spirit threatened by political intrigue and hatred.

"A Half Inch of Candle" is by A. Hamilton Gibbs. This is a novel of helpless humanity driven like cattle to war by those incapable of understanding the truth or afraid to speak.

"White Magic," by Faith Baldwin, is a romance on skins in a settlement of snow and mountains.

"Escape," by Ethel Vane, tells of one condemned under nazi rule and who happens to her, unbeknown to others.

"It Takes All Kinds," by Louis Bromfield, is a gay novel combining the old and new world as well as the old and modern times.

A. L. Swan was in Omaha last Thursday to consult a specialist. He has been ill several days.

Blackbird Hill Legend Is Told

An Indian legend of interest in northeast Nebraska is that which tells about the cry which Indians claim to hear at intervals on Blackbird Hill. The story, as related in Nebraska Folklore printed under sponsorship of the state superintendent's office follows:

"The well-known landmark, Blackbird Hill, located on the east bank of the Missouri river in Thurston county about eight miles from Decatur, served various Indian tribes for centuries as an observation point. The scene of this legend in all of the various versions is consistently placed upon it. Yet, if from these circumstances the hill was ever given a name, that name was entirely lost and the present one substituted, when it became by his own request the burial place of that great Omaha chieftain, Blackbird.

"One fall in the middle of the 18th century the Indians discovered a wandering white man who was raving mad and nearly starved. They took him to the medicine man of the tribe. After the Indians had left the man upon a couch in the wigwam, the medicine man sent them away. Then he stroked the white man's forehead and murmured strange words. Selecting some dry herbs from his medicine pouch he placed them on live coals, and gently fanned the smoke over the white man.

"The man continued to live with the Indians for some time. Gradually he began to take an interest in life and before he left for his home in the east he told the Indians his life story.

"He said that after finishing his course in an eastern school his father had sent him abroad upon a business mission. On his way home he was shipwrecked and five years passed before he was able to reach his homeland. In the meantime his mother had died and for her boy with her last words she had finally yielded to a former suitor and married him. With such information as the sailor could give him, he set out to find his sweetheart, believing that her husband, a young man, would release her. He went westward and scattered in California where people were rushing in search for gold, but his efforts were fruitless.

"Discouraged, he again started for his home in the east sailing down the Missouri river he landed one evening at the foot of Blackbird Hill. A well marked path led him to a cabin, and here to his great surprise he found his sweetheart. After telling their stories of the intervening years to each other, she promised to ask her husband to release her and said that she would go with him on the next day.

"When the husband returned and the girl told him what had happened he pleaded with her to stay. He struck her with his hunting knife, almost severing her head from her body. Her former sweetheart had been near the cabin and saw what was happening through the window. Before he could recover from the shock, the husband picked the girl up in his arms, came to the edge of the cliff and with a loud scream hurled himself and his dead wife into the stream below.

"The white man knew no more until he found himself on a couch in the Indian wigwam.

"The man returned to the east, never to be free of the memory of this harrowing experience. The story became known to all the Indians. Each year in October when the moon is full that same piercing cry is said to be heard. The blood dripping from the girl's body killed the grass on the trail from the cabin to the cliff. The grass has never since grown on that patch."

Children at the Crossroads

Ernest L. Reeker

Tiny Thieves.
Fral Donny, much younger-appearing than 13 years, persisted in believing that the clever little gadgets attractively displayed on open counters in stores were placed there so that he might choose what he wished and carry it off without paying for it.

The scene of his first petty thievery was a hardware store. Placed on probation by the juvenile court, he made little progress because he was unable to comprehend the seriousness of his offense and the meaning of probation.

Four weeks later he had changed the setting for his pilfering to a chain grocery store. The "big brother" under whose charge Donny had been placed, was called into court, then, and told that he seemed not to be accomplishing much with his tiny ward. He promised to devote more time to the little fellow, see that he attended Sunday school, and try to teach him the difference between right and wrong.

But in spite of all his efforts Donny again "shop-lifted" small items, this time from a dime store. "Big brother" had been successful with other delinquent boys, but he could bring about no improvement in Donny; why, we do not know.

To sentence to the industrial school such a helpless, innocent-appearing lad seemed unnecessary.

Sunshine School, District 77.
(John Sellon, teacher.)
December seemed short because pupils were so busy making gifts, decorating the room and tree in preparation for a visit from Santa Claus. Mothers were invited for the party December 22.
Pupils enjoy spending spare time on stormy days doing wood work.
A new furnace was installed and gives good service. Snow windows have been repaired and placed.

District 56.
(Agna Fredrickson, teacher.)
District 56 has issued Hillside Events as its bulletin each month. A Pilgrim boy carrying pumpkins decorates the cover of the November issue, and a Christmas candle and holiday greetings is on the December bulletin. Dorothy Hamer, Mary Faith Owens, Milton Owens and Eldon Woods made the December design. Eldon Woods, Milton Owens and Lowell Owens helped Dorothy Hamer with the November cover. Dorothy Hamer is editor and Jean Roberts assistant.
Patrons may was observed November 29 when classwork was conducted for visitors. An Indian moving picture made by a Thanksgiving puppet show were featured. Eldon Woods sawed the sticks for manipulating the puppets.
Dorothy Hamer, Eldon Woods, Ruth Owens, Haydn Owens, Lowell Owens, Milton Owens and Mary Faith Owens have had perfect attendance for the year.
Christmas cards were made in art classes. Shoe racks and calendars were made as gifts for parents, and pupils exchanged gifts before the holidays.
Vacation extended from December 23 to January 2.
Lowell and Milton Owens wrote original Christmas poems.
A stagecoach made by pupils of district 68 in Cedar county is on display at the school. Pupils of Hillside school plan to make a stagecoach this winter when weather is unfavorable.

An earthquake shocked southern California the last of the week and more severe ones were predicted early in January.

Wild Life Books Are Received Here

Interesting books on wild life, published by the National Geographic society, have been received by Supl. F. B. Decker. Book of Fishes, Book of Birds in two volumes, Book of Dogs, Wild Animals of North America, Book of Wild Flowers, Hunting Wild Life with Camera and Flash Light in two volumes are included. These may be examined at the office.

Plan Celebration For First Birthday
Hawaiians plan a special celebration for each child on his first birthday, according to Isabelle Gueso of Honolulu, in a letter to Jacqueline Wightman. On such an occasion a pig, cooked under ground, is served. Limu is also part of the menu. This is a sea weed. Kukui, another of the choice foods, is a round nut which is roasted in an oven, then cracked, ground and salted.

People in the islands have been busy preparing for the holidays, the little girl writes. Much rain has been falling and sometimes the weather is very cold. Only snow is lacking to make the season seem more like Christmas.

District 34.
(Marjorie Cary, teacher.)
Maxine and Evelyn Odegaard moved from the district to No. 57.
Children prepared a Christmas program for December 21. Many Christmas decorations were made for the room.
Visitors in December were Evelyn Nissen and Maria Test. News was prepared by Bonnie Nissen.

District 20.
(Mrs. Elvira Sullivan, teacher.)
A jolly Santa Claus, wearing a bright red suit, is receiving a letter from a little girl in the picture which decorates the cover of the December issue of The Beacon, school paper issued in district 20.
Morris Backstrom earned a notebook by selling $1 worth of health seals. Those who earned pins for selling 25 seals are Delmar Vahlkamp, Betty, Gene and Richard Finn, Ruth Backstrom and Darlene Rethwisch. The school earned a game of pick-up sticks for selling $3 worth.

District 3.
(Lorene Langenberg, teacher.)
A large crowd attended the program December 15 and proceeds amounted to $14.
Second graders wrote letters to Santa Claus.
Art classes spent December on room decorations and Christmas cards.
Christmas gifts were made for parents. Upper grades made handkerchief boxes for their mothers and hat racks for their fathers. Lower grades made tie-backs and doorstops for their mothers and calendar pads for their fathers.
Visitors last month were Arlene Walker, Mrs. Fred Brumels and Lorraine Ulrich.
Parents were guests at a Christmas party December 22. Contests furnished entertainment after which gifts were exchanged and luncheon served.

District 28, North.
(Norma Frese, teacher.)
Pupils with perfect attendance records so far this year are Harvey Brader, Vivian Heithold, Betty Joyce Davis, Donna Heithold, Verdelie Mae Niemann.
A Christmas scene showing Santa Claus leaving his home with his sleigh packed full of toys was made by pupils for the library table. A miniature pine tree stood at each corner of the table.
Miss Jessie Gemmill and pupils of district 40 were invited to district 28, north, December 22 for a Christmas party. After lunch, Santa Claus arrived and distributed candy and gifts to all.
First graders made stockings with little pockets into which they placed a colored toy for each good reading lesson.
Guest books of sheet cork were made for parents for Christmas.

Verdelie Mae Niemann and Betty Joyce Davis received the highest averages in spelling for the month.

Much Borrowing, dialogue: The Postilion, Jopann Rubek and Mary Lea Jensen; South of the Border, Lloyd Straight and Joann Rubek; Alabama Coon, dialogue; Merry Christmas Wishes, Virginia Straight and Mary Lea Jensen; Edgewell, song, school, Pie, cake and coffee were served. Miss Nelson provided treats December 21.
Mrs. T. A. Straight visited school December 22 when she brought a surprise treat of jelly with whipped cream and cake in honor of Verna Mae's birthday of December 26.
Patsy and Bobby Denesia brought treats recently, and Gloria Swanson gave candy bars December 15 for her birthday.

Study Charts Ready.
Teachers who have not yet called at the office for their course of study charts are asked to do so as soon as possible.

District 41.
(Marjorie Hausmann, teacher.)
Perfect attendance records for December were earned by Kenneth Kaun, Carroll Welch, Marvin Kleensang, Donald Drews, Myron Riggert, Alan Kaun, Lester Kleensang, Donna Miller, Herbert Kleensang.
Proceeds from the Christmas program December 15 were $16.60.
Holly wreaths were made for the windows, and 3rd and 4th graders made calendars. "Cht stairs" were strung from corner to corner, brought together by a large red bell in the center of the room. Wooden letters were made and strung on wire with red or green bells at either side to spell Merry Christmas. A Christmas tree and suitable picture were other decorations. Gifts were made for parents.

A Christmas party was given December 22 when games were played, carols sung, gifts exchanged, jello and cake and candy treats provided for all.
As a health project for December Christmas trees were drawn, and for perfect lessons pupils were allowed to color the tree or candies. Donna Miller received the prize for most perfect scores.

Highest averages in spelling for November and December were earned by Carroll Welch, Donald Drews, Myron Riggert and Delaine Buss.

District 32.
(Opal Granquist, teacher.)
A Christmas program given December 20 was well attended. Gifts were exchanged and daisy treats given. Luncheon closed the evening. Pupils presented gifts, which they had made to their parents. They had also made decorations for the room and windows. A large tree was at the front of the room.
Christmas seal sale amounted to $5.31. Those who sold all their seals and will receive prizes are Freddie Dinklage, Herman Dinklage, Jr., Esther and George Biermann. Others who sold 25c worth or more and will receive pins are Harold Schulz, Betty Tarnow, Marilyn and Melvin Barelman. A school prize will also be awarded.

Miss Granquist provided treat for her birthday December 2, and Jerry McGuire brought treats for his birthday December 10.
New curtains have been purchased with fair money.
History booklets on a colony chosen by 8th graders were made, and new Christmas songs were learned.
Perfect attendance records for December were earned by Marilyn, Barelman, George, Esther, Ellen and, Herbert Biermann, Jack and Kay Bowser, Freddie and Herman Dinklage, Betty Tarnow.
Pupils and teacher thank all who helped in the school contest.

Meat and sugar are being rationed in England.
The pope and king of Italy conferred last week for the first time in many years. A misunderstanding had kept them apart.
Russia has summoned more troops to help in the war with Finland. The Finns with a tiny country compared to Russia, have so far outwitted the Russians. Finland's ski troops made a drive last week to damage the railroad which Russia uses for supplies.

Recipes

Refrigerator Fruit Cake.
1/2 pound dates cut fine
1/2 pound figs cut fine
1/2 pound marshmallows cut fine
1/2 pound graham crackers rolled fine
1/2 cup nut meats chopped
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon orange rind

1 9-ounce pkg. dry mincemeat
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup strong coffee
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup seeded raisins
Beat mincemeat into pieces; add water and cook slowly, stirring constantly until all lumps are broken up. Bring to a brisk boil and boil for three minutes or until mixture is nearly dry. Add coffee infusion and cool. Cream together butter and sugar; add beaten eggs, blending thoroughly. Add bread crumbs, baking powder, spices and raisins. Fold cooled mincemeat into above mixture; pour into a well greased pudding mold, filling 2/3 full. Cover pudding out of mold, garnish with candied cherries and citron.

Hard Sauce.
1/3 cup butter
1 cup confectioners sugar
1 1/2 teaspoon angostura bitters
Cream butter and gradually add sifted confectioners sugar. Cream until fluffy. Add bitters, mix thoroughly.
Remove from the fire, add the vanilla and pour into an oiled pan. When cool remove from the pan and cut into 1/2 inch squares. Wrap in oiled paper. If desired 1/3 cup coarsely chopped nuts may be added before pouring into the pan.

1 1/2 cups white sugar
1 cup butter
3 eggs
pinch of salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon soda dissolved in 2 tablespoons milk
3 cups flour
1 pound raisins
1 pound English walnuts
Do not break the nuts too fine; have the batter lumpy and drop from a teaspoon on a cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven 12 to 15 minutes.

Sand Tarts.
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup butter
1 egg
Flour enough to thicken. Roll out, sprinkle with granulated sugar and cinnamon. Bake in a hot oven.

Chocolate Caramels.
1 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 squares chocolate
1/4 cup milk or cream
1/3 cup butter
1/4 cup corn syrup
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
Mix the ingredients together, excepting the butter and vanilla. Bring slowly to the boiling point and cook to the soft crack stage. Adding the butter toward the last of the cook. Stir as needed to prevent scorching. Remove from fire.

Chocolate Fudge.
1 tablespoon cornstarch
4 cups granulated sugar
1 1/2 cups cream or milk
large piece butter
3 squares chocolate
pinch of salt
Cook to 232 degrees. Cool before beating to make creamy fudge. Add nuts if desired. Cool, cut in squares and wrap in waxed paper.

Fralines.
5 cups sugar, half brown
2 tablespoons cornstarch lump butter, size of walnut
2 cups cream (half milk if desired)
Cook to 237 degrees. Remove from fire and let cool before beating. When beaten knead on a slab and knead in more butter if desired to make it richer. Add nuts finely cut and shape into flat patties. Or knead into a roll, let set and slice.

Uncooked Fondant.
1 egg white
1/2 tablespoon cold water
1/2 teaspoon flavoing sugar
3/4 cups powdered sugar
Put the egg white, water and flavoing in a bowl. Beat well with a Dover egg beater. Add the sugar gradually until stiff enough to knead. Form into shapes.

A Plea for Tolerance.
(Omaha Journal-Stockman.)
In these troublous times the country is coming to value the opinions of experienced advisers rather than the views of mere theorists. The school of hard knocks has turned out many graduates who are not concerned so much with theories as with real facts.
The address of President William M. Jeffers of the Union Pacific railroad in Omaha recently offers much food for thought in looking at present day conditions. We have learned that labor is something more, something infinitely greater than a mere commodity.
"Labor has also learned," says Mr. Jeffers, "that if it is to prosper business too must prosper. One trouble today is that business and industrial executives are not always in intimate personal touch with their employees.

"A college education will help the youth of today, but it is not necessary," Jeffers asserted. "Some of the most outstanding men in the world have little formal education."
"In the United States government too much higher education has been applied by professors advising the administration in recent years, with too little intelligence in its application."
"We must remain tolerant today, and most important, in all decisions, consider the viewpoint of the average fellow. We must convince youth that opportunities for promotion are still open to all."
Intelligent and sympathetic tolerance is the key that will unlock the most difficult labor situation.

Sound Loan Policies.
(Omaha Journal-Stockman.)
Anyone who is 40 years of age or past can recall the day in this country when, to the average family, being in debt was almost as great a shame as being out of it. At that time was commonly called. Most of our rugged individualist ancestors thought it was better to do without than to buy and use things they couldn't pay for in cash.

All that, of course, has been changed. Individuals and families use their credit now as readily as business firms, not only to acquire an interest in a business, and buy homes and other property, but also for cars, radios, furniture, and even frequently for the clothing they wear and the food they eat.

In some respects this modern trend toward the free and easy use of credit may have been partly responsible for the breaking down of earlier ideas regarding thrift and the acquisition of a competence for old age. Much depends on the purpose for which credit is used. Surely in buying a home, getting an education, or in financing some investment that will bring an enlarged business opportunity, a wisely made loan can be of tremendous help. Such use of credit benefits not only the individual but the whole community.

Captioned "A Loan Is Not a Favor," a pamphlet issued recently by a leading bank accurately reflects the present-day attitude toward credit.
"A loan is a business transaction and should be of mutual benefit to borrower and lender," the leaflet continues. "If you wish to obtain a loan for a sound purpose, and if you meet our other credit requirements, we will approve your application promptly."
"If it does not meet our requirements of sound banking, we will tell you so frankly, together with our reasons."

"In granting loans, we have important obligations to four groups; depositors, borrowers, stockholders, and our community. To protect the interest of all these people we have definite policies, made in accordance with sound banking principles, which guide us."
Surely such a policy is wise and constructive. Loans which such a financial institution as this will approve are pretty apt to bring benefit not only to the parties most directly affected, but to the communities at large. And where loans are refused, as they are bound to be, for proposals that on careful analysis appear to be unsound, the would-be borrower can thank his stars for having sought and received wise financial counsel, and the community is saved the loss that inevitably results from another bankruptcy. Banks operated along the lines outlined above are an asset of which any city, town or neighborhood, may well be proud.

A loan may not be a favor, but as the Industrial News Review so aptly puts it: "The banker does the would-be borrower, and everyone else concerned, a definite favor when he refuses an unsound loan."

First Sunday of the year. Let us begin the year of 1940 resolving by the grace of God more fully to give ourselves to Christ and seeking the "more abundant life" in His church. Let us pledge ourselves to faithful attendance and support of the church and then alone will it be "A Happy New Year." Begin the year right by worship. Morning worship services Sunday at 11. Anthem by choir. Sunday school and Bible classes for all at 10 a. m. Evening services at 7:30. This will be an introductory service to the universal week of prayer. Dorcas society will meet this Thursday (today) entertained by Mrs. Chell at the parsonage. The Ladies League will meet Friday evening this week at 7:30 at the church. A topical program has been arranged. Choir meets Saturday evening. Bible study hour next week at 7:30 p. m., Wednesday. All our annual meeting last Tuesday we rejoiced in a blessed year which has passed. Thus it had been spiritually and materially. All obligations for missions had been met. We can begin a new year with accounts clear. A Happy New Year to all.

Round About This Funny World

Headlights have been arranged for skates to be used in night skating. A North Carolina publisher is driving a new car. He traded in a car he had driven 264,000 miles in 22 years. An Indiana teacher took up carpentry in her spare time and has finished a four-piece bedroom suite for herself. A St. Louis woman coughed so hard that her $85 gold tooth popped out and fell down a drain. Amateur prospectors found it. An Indiana man took some potted plants into his home. Grasshopper eggs in the pots hatched and his house was full of hoppers. Talking birds competing in a London show were quiet until one called out "Joey's won first prize." The birds prediction was fulfilled. Two boys are needed in every home for a happy marriage, according to a couple who celebrated their golden wedding. They are "bear" and "forbear." The governor of Greenland, whose residence was destroyed by fire, chose a snow hut for his home until spring weather would permit replacing the structure. London's male "fainting Bertha," who made his living by feigning illness and collapsing on busy streets, fainted once too often. A car ran over him. Jesse James packs a gun in Indiana but it's on the side of law and order James, new chief of police, has the same name as the Missouri outlaw but is no relative. Thieves at Lebanon, Mo., who stole 14 hogs from a Mike Kelsey left a note tied around the neck of a hog rooster: "Thanks for the chickens. We'll be back for the rooster tonight." An Oregon girl stayed out of school to rummage through the dump heap. She found an old canvas bag containing 26 $20 gold pieces. The money is in the bank in her name. A Minnesota snowplow bucked along a street. The driver yelled to a companion that he saw a hand sticking out of a drift. The two uncovered an intoxicated man, none the worse for his burial. A man for whom a North Carolina sheriff has a warrant was reported to be a fast runner. The sheriff swore in as deputy the star sprinter on the university team and the student got the man. A Portland, Ore., hospital nurse, noting duplicate records, at variance only in ages, checked up. She found John Dexter, 42, and John Baxter, 82, each getting three stitches in his left hand to close wounds suffered while chopping wood. Debate in the Oklahoma house of representatives was fiery and the atmosphere tense. Suddenly the presiding officer roared out the first verse of a popular song and asked all to join in. After a short singing bee business resumed under better conditions. A San Francisco man wanted his own zoo so he bought some seals and lion cubs. A seal reached for a fish in his back pocket and bit him. A lion lunged for a piece of hamburger and missed it, the owner having to get his little finger sewed back in place. Now the zoo is for sale. It was night but lights blazed brightly in a motor firm office. At a desk sat a man with arms outstretched and book before him—obviously a clerk burning midnight oil. But next morning employees found the figure was a dummy. They also found that the safe had been battered and $500 taken. A 17-year-old boy saved a younger one from drowning with his teeth. The younger boy had fallen into a well. The older one went down to the water to rescue him but found that he had to use both hands to hold himself. He leaned over, grabbed the boy's collar in his teeth and held him above water until help came. A Detroit woman, in a hospital with her first baby, asked visiting friends why her husband had not been to see her for two days. Friends notified police who went to the home, found doors locked and lights on. Officers broke in and found the man dead beside the desk where he was addressing announcements of the baby's birth. He had suffered a heart attack.

Merchants Sell Wares at Doors Of China Doors

Every conceivable form of trade is carried on from door to door in China, according to Mrs. W. W. Lippold, formerly Marian Ahern, who is in Shanghai. When Mrs. Lippold wrote to Miss Frances Cherry November 27, Dr. Lippold, who is a dentist in the U. S. navy, had been on duty on the Marblehead for two months, and she was expecting him home any day. The Lippolds planned to be transferred to Manila, P. I., this year. These door-to-door merchants all carry noise makers, the former way carrying their wares until somebody comes out to buy. Flowers, lace, linen, eggs, fish, cloth, hardware, etc., are thus marketed. The leather man carries raw hides over one shoulder and tools over the other. Tailors, jewelers and others also come. In fact, explains Mrs. Lippold, one seldom needs to go away from home to shop unless he just wants to look around. The egg man, junk man, flower seller, leather man each has his own distinguishing call, and Mrs. Lippold finds that she is able to tell which is there by the call. The realization that these men will call every morning adds variety to the day's events. Mrs. Lippold has found that these merchants do not enjoy their selling if one does not bargain with them. The rate is usually to offer half what a man asks for flowers, then work up to a mutual settlement. Both the buyer and seller are then satisfied. Use Bright Colors. In describing the dress of Chinese people, Mrs. Lippold tells that those folks favor bright yellow, red and green. The Chinese bridal color is red instead of white and the funeral color is bright green. Colors and materials used in Chinese clothes are characteristic. The coolies wear a cotton cloth which looks like overall material, only softer and lighter blue. They wear pajama-cut trousers with no belt. But they fold over the top across the front and tie a piece of cloth around their waists to hold the trousers. Their little vests with no sleeves or buttons are always carried or else worn because on the backs of these are the coolies' license numbers applied in white cloth letters. This is if they are ricksha pullers. Girls and even room boys and coolies in a hotel wear lovely satin slippers while doing their work. So much hand work is done at a cheap price that these satin slippers, with bright hand embroidery across the toes do not seem so important to Chinese. The men and boys in their "skirts" are an interesting sight, and they are careful to lift them when crossing a street in the rain. Most of the women wear long trousers and the over-blowse waist. If these are not in blue cordie cloth they are of white top and black trousers. The black and white are usually worn by those who consider themselves a little better than the poorer class. Monks in the temple wear black cotton one-piece full-sleeved robes. When they enter the temple they throw full capes of red silk around themselves, the capes fastened under one arm. Their heads are shaved. It seems to be only the very poor people who can't afford to have their heads shaved. It is more sanitary. Head lice are mere nothing compared to the many other wretched skin diseases one sees on Chinese people, from tiny babies to adults. Embroideries in the temple are all in lemon yellow. A pagoda is more of a shrine than a temple, Mrs. Lippold explains. The temple usually has people living in it and business flourishing on the ground floor. Some- times in the temple will be a room set aside for the goddess which is carved of jade or made of lacquer or something else precious. Cholera and dysentery are very prevalent in China and in the islands, Mrs. Lippold writes. War news receives prominence in papers in Shanghai. And Americans there are glad that this country is able to keep out of the conflict.

No Physical Criminal Type. (Sioux City Journal.)

It long has been a popular impression that the law violator was a distinct physical type, varying, of course, but possessing distinct characteristics in the shape of the head and the cast of countenance. Pictures of criminals reproduced in newspapers and periodicals frequently provoke expressions from readers to the effect that the features plainly proclaim the individuals as offenders. Most persons might insist that they would be able to select criminals from groups merely on the personal appearance of the specimens studied. And there isn't a word of truth in it, according to Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of anthropology at the Smithsonian institution in Washington. In a recent article in the Journal of Criminal Psychopathology he declared there was no "criminal head shape." He took issue with many prison warden's, police officials and crime experts and insisted that the criminal does not bear a physical stamp that betrays him. Dr. Hrdlicka wrote as follows on this subject: "It is hopeless to expect that anthropometry (physical measurements) and physical examination can ever aid in separating the potential criminal. The diagnosis, if it is to be made in any individual case, must rest wholly on the circumstances that have affected that individual's heredity and life and on his mental behavior. "Crime is not physical. It is mental. It is not due to disorders or even abnormalities of the body, but partly to acquired antisocial habits and partly to brain, nervous system and internal glandular disorders. "The criminal facies is not inborn but acquired through the criminality and the reactions of the criminal with other people. Except for brute violence and actions due to brain disorders, crime itself is no organic entity, but is a social phenomenon, differing vastly individually in degree and shading." Dr. Hrdlicka also said that physical measurements of the actual criminal can show only that the tends to be abnormal but there is no possibility of connecting such abnormality with criminality. Indeed, measurements of lawabiding citizens also could show physical abnormalities without their behavior indicating that at any time in their lives they had owned a tendency toward wrongdoing. Apparently the reason for the popular belief that criminals' countenances betray them is that offenders frequently are shown in newspaper pictures or in courtroom scenes to their own disadvantage. The power of suggestion is strong. Knowledge of the fact that a person is a criminal inspires others to guess that his criminality is reflected in his countenance. The environment of the captured offender may contribute to this in a somewhat extensive degree. Fear, dejection and defeat may go far in transforming a criminal's facial expression. In happier surroundings he would appear altogether different.

that "surely things will get better." As to definite prediction regarding just when the improvement will come, that is another matter. Astrologers and numerologists have made their prophecies, but the ordinary variety of fortune-tellers are finding the prediction business ever more difficult than usual. Consequently they aren't saying much, and what they do say is more guarded in tone. One reason for that is the fact that for all their disappointments, the thirties have taught us some things. We've learned that neither a nation nor a group of nations can create prosperity by law or fiat. We've learned that the realities won't disappear at the wave of a magician's wand and that there are fundamental natural economic laws which man cannot repeal at will. We're learning that there is still merit in the time-honored virtues of honesty and thrift.

In America are coming to a greater realization of the value of our so-called inherent rights of freedom and liberty—realization, too, of how easily these rights, for which our ancestors fought so hard, can be lost by peoples who do not constantly guard and defend them. Lastly, we probably have a greater appreciation today than ever before of the horrors of international conflict and the blessing of peace. Stripped naked of its tinsel and glamor, we see war today as the repulsive thing that it really is and we are more determined than ever to seek human and civilized means of settling the differences that are bound to arise between nations. In these things, rather than in any magical formulae, lies the hope for 1940 and the years that are to follow.

University of Nebraska Research Perfects Farm Machinery Metals

This is how metals look when magnified 100 diameters. In the upper left is a photograph of a cross-section of copper, which is used in oil and gas lines of tractors and automobiles. The large areas are the grains of the metal, the dark spots the impurities. Bronze, the principal bearing metal, is pictured in the upper right. The small dark spots are the hard constituents in the metal, which give the bearing its durable quality. The gray background consists of softer materials, which form a cushion for the harder elements. Prof. W. F. Welland of the University of Nebraska department of
