With present-day furnaces, stoves are uniformly heated. One doesn't have to circle around to keep one side from freezing while another side busters.

Now comes the anniversary of the world's greatest one-day blizzard. As mentioned annually for fifty years, the storm broke at noon, January 12, 1888, after a morning of unusually balmy elements.

A number of teachers and children perished in the storm, while others never fully recovered from effects of the dire experience.

Salaries for road work remain the same. The county will pay 40¢ an hour for man and team, 55¢ an hour for man and two teams, 30¢ an hour for man.

Artificial teeth were not common in the earliest days, and that is the reason an old-timer's facial contour sometimes caved in and surrendered its original fullness.

The depression of the past decade has been particularly severe on churches. Too many who lean on the church as a means of shortening the route to heaven, grudgingly meet inadequate pledges.

In order to escape an excess of soul-corroding material worries, and to permit a spiritual institution to get the whole length in analyzing and emphasizing spiritual objectives, the church budget must be fashioned to cover requirements, and then must be met faithfully.

Speaking of the church's uphill task, one of the Herald's spiritual advisers complained recently that many are too apathetic in matters of religion.

MINISTER DECLINES CALL TO CHURCH Rev. Ralph Ranglefer of Lincoln, to whom St. Paul Lutheran church extended a call, declined the pastorate.

REGULAR NEBRASKA WEATHER FOLLOWS UNSEASONAL HEAT

AFTER a mild dry autumn which made people fear the weather had been thrown out of plumb, a change to normal came with introduction of the new year, and snow and cold have been the rule since. To the blanket of snow already spread over the middle west, a fresh supply was added Sunday. As soon as the storm subsided, the mercury dropped and by Monday morning it indicated below-zero temperature. This is recognized as eminently regular by persons accustomed to the weather at this season in this latitude.

Plan Recreation Center in Wayne

Wayne is to have a recreation center sponsored by WPA, according to decision of the city council Tuesday. The city furnishes the room, heat, light and equipment and WPA hires local directors for the work.

The large hall on the second floor of the old city hall will be used this winter. A man and a woman will probably be secured to conduct entertainment for old and young. Ping pong, checkers and other games will be provided. In the summer the program will probably be enlarged to use six or eight who will conduct play at the parks, have charge of tennis courts and care for public rest rooms.

The state has 152 such projects. Norfolk has two, Madison and Stanton each one. Material for the grandstand at the new ball park in the east part of town has arrived. A small basement with shower and dressing rooms will be under this, and construction will progress when weather is favorable.

To Finish Work Soon for Hall

Completion of the principal construction contract on Connell hall project was expected late this week or early next week, according to John L. Soderberg, contractor.

The contract was reported substantially completed in November but since that time the state normal board added the painting of the cafeteria kitchen, which was completed during the holidays, and the installation of a large plate-glass mirror in the student lounge. Delivery of the mirror is expected late this week. Installation is expected to take two days or less time.

According to word received here Wednesday from Fred W. Anderson, comptroller, state normal board, contracts have been signed and work authorized to proceed on items totaling $3,630.79. These contracts were approved some time ago by the Public Works Administration.

To date, seven equipment contracts, in addition to the four construction contracts, have been awarded and approved by PWA.

With the completion of the construction contracts it is planned to have a semi-final PWA audit, so that the board can obtain the final 10 per cent of the government grant and pay the construction contractors without waiting for the delivery and installation of all of the equipment.

Church Records Ordered Brought To District Court

Time Is Allowed to File Amended Petition in Damage Actions.

In the action in which Rev. E. J. Moede and his wife, Beata Moede, are seeking $108,041.30 in damages in connection with Rev. Moede's former pastorate at Altona church, District Judge A. E. Wenke here Friday ruled in favor of defendants in requiring Rev. Moede to produce and deliver books and records of First Trinity church of Altona, now in his possession. The court ordered that the books and records be placed in the custody of the clerk of the district court and that they be made available for inspection of all parties in the action.

Because of a technical difference between Iowa and Nebraska law, Attorney Carlos W. Goitz of Sioux City attorney for plaintiffs, is allowed 30 days in which to file amended petitions.

Rev. Moede charges in one action filed in November that he was accused of misuse of money belonging to the church. In another he files claims for salary and rent, also asks a sum for future salary loss. The third action charges that defamatory statements were made about Mrs. Moede.

The case will likely be set for trial when the jury is called in March.

Given Time in Cases. The City of Wayne and the Rendering Works were granted an additional 10 days to plead in the district court action in which the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co., a corporation, seeks to have the sewage disposal plants of the two declared a nuisance and asks that correction be made. The insurance company owns land north-east of Wayne which, it is claimed, is damaged by the sewage disposal. This action was filed in early November.

Ruby Heinemann was granted divorce from John Heinemann and the former's maiden name of Ruby Dunklau was restored. Property settlement was made in lieu of claims for alimony, and costs were taxed to defendant.

Next equity session of district court is February 9.

Indian Legend Is Told About Name Of Weeping Water

Weeping Water, a beautiful stream in Cass county, may have been named from an early Indian legend or by the French who discovered it and chose the name to fit the swishing noise the water makes. Nebraska Folklore, compiled by the Nebraska Writers' project under supervision of the state superintendent, tells the legend as follows:
"A powerful but peaceful tribe of Oto Indians once dwelt near the source of the river known as Weeping Water. Their laws were good, their chief mild-tempered and valorous. The braves of the tribe were as straight as arrows and as fleet as the horses upon which they rode. And so lithe and lovely were their maidens that their beauty far exceeded that possessed by the maidens of any surrounding tribe. Fairest of these fair maidens was the chief's daughter.
"Strong as was their tribe, it happened that to the westward lived one still more powerful. The ruler of this neighboring tribe, chanced one day to visit the Oto upon friendly business. Seeing the chief's daughter, he was captivated and asked the maiden's father for her, but the father refused. The chief, however, was determined to have this beautiful maiden for his wife; he decided to steal her. He prowled about the village night and day awaiting an opportunity to carry her off. On the third day he saw the chief's daughter and her companions going out to bathe in a still lake near the village. He quickly dashed up, lifted the chief's daughter to his horse and rode away.
"Her companions ran to the village and spread the alarm. Angered because this strong warrior had carried off their most coveted prize the braves all rushed out in pursuit, leaving the lodges in charge of the women and the infirm. They rode fast with great hatred in their hearts. In their anger they were reckless and the results were disastrous. The warriors of the other tribe came out to meet and aid their chief. Every one of the pursuers was killed in the fight that followed.
"For three long days and nights the Oto waited for their warriors to return with the chief's daughter. On the fourth day they started out in search of their fathers, husbands, sons and lovers. At length they found them dead upon the plains. Seeing their braves dead, the women began to weep. They wept so long that their many tears flowed together and made a stream that still exists."

Poultry Diseases Shown on Increase

(By Harry Eoyts, Sioux City.) Early poultry clinic reports indicate that avian tuberculosis, leucosis (fowl paralysis), roup, flu and other respiratory diseases are very prevalent and spreading among the poultry flocks of this section.

The adoption of extra preventive measures immediately to prevent flock losses from becoming too heavy are urged in the note of warning issued to flock owners. Avian tuberculosis is widespread in old birds. Although this disease may be detected in the advanced stages, there are many birds that are unknown carriers of tuberculosis. Only by tuberculin testing or post-mortem can the presence of tuberculosis generally be determined.

Leucosis is the most common disease to be found in sick birds. This disease is swinging right through the cycle with full force, and drastic methods will have to be followed to prevent heavy losses. Roup, flu and respiratory diseases increase with close housing, poor ventilation, and damp floors.

The first step in controlling disease is to cull weak and sick birds from the flock, and thus reduce overcrowding and improve ventilation and sanitation. Four square feet of floor space should be allowed for each laying hen, and clean dry bedding provided regularly.

Separating chickens from hogs will prevent the spread of tuberculosis to swine, which increases during close confinement in the winter. Maintaining old birds separate from pullets in clean houses will help prevent the spread of tuberculosis through the flock.

Work that is done now to improve the health of the poultry flock is more important than at any other season. Correct diagnosis, proper treatment, and disease control require qualified veterinarians, and anything less has proved expensive for the poultry grower.

Sixty Years Ago

An encounter with a steer in the cattle pens at Chicago was a terrifying experience for one of the city butchers, according to the Ponca Journal of 60 years ago. The man of powerful physique had gone to the pens to drive a steer to the slaughter house when the animal became enraged and rushed at him. Butcher Smith struck the steer with a club and the animal wheeled. Smith ran for a fence but the steer followed. Smith struck again and clutched the animal's horns. He then blinded the steer with a knife. The man's cries finally brought help and the steer was shot.

Bean Soup

1 pound navy beans 5 carrots 1 onion 4 quarts water 1/2 pound bacon salt and pepper Soak beans over night, drain and put on stove in water, add grated carrots and onion. More water will have to be added if the soup becomes too thick.

Add the browned onions to the soup stock, season lightly with salt and pepper and let simmer for 20 minutes. Toast bread cutting slices in half. Lay them in a deep glass or earthen dish, pour onion mixture over toast and sprinkle with the cheese. The toast will come to the top so set in oven under the broiler until the roast and cheese become brown. Serve in regular soup dishes with extra cheese on the table.

Forest Workers Receive Training

The United States Forest Service is training employees through "experience clinics." "on-the-job" training, and "planned experience." Such training provides a short cut to information and experience. Workers on the service roll are listed under more than 30 different types of skilled labor and 17 professions. They are scattered over about one-thirtieth of the United States land area. Skilled workers engaged in forestry operations include fire guards, packers, bull-dozer operators, powder men, road locators, radio operators, telephone linemen, and electrical workers. The professional classifications include such positions as administrators, foresters, engineers, range examiners, silviculturists, accountants, economists, ecologists, chemists, and airplane pilots.

Peter Keplinger, forest service training chief, reports that officers who spend some time in training employees, such as that given in fire-control schools, may expect their workers to accomplish more during the remainder of the year because of the short cuts and improved methods learned. He points out that many employees in some of the lower-pay positions take greater interest in their work when they understand its value to the public and its use in saving time for other service workers.

Approximately one-half of the forest service employees now receive State tested, 98% germination. Special help also is given to seasonal and short-term workers such as fire fighters, and planting crews.

CONGRESS AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN. On Opening of Congress. The last session of the 76th congress opened with crowds of people waiting outside the capitol trying to get in to hear the opening prayer and also to hear the president deliver his message. There was an additional number of metropolitan police in and around the building. Every precaution was taken by the police and Col. Starling's secret service police to guard the president and his family. House Represented at Heinke Funeral. Death has hit the house a severe blow since the close of the special session. Six deaths have occurred, including that of Congressman Geo. Heinke of Nebraska City. Mr. Heinke died following an automobile accident in Arkansas. He was driving to Washington to be present at the opening of this session when the accident occurred. Speaker Bankhead appointed Congressman Curtis, McLaughlin and Stefan of Nebraska and Gwynne of Iowa to represent the house at the funeral services. Mr. Heinke served with distinction during the first session of the 76th congress and was unusually active on the committee on labor. During his short service he made many friends in the house. Whole Country Icy. Snow and ice are general from Nebraska to Washington. The Third district member made the trip by automobile, but most of the highways were passable providing care is exercised. Many automobiles were found in ditches along the way. Highway patrolmen all along the route were rendering valuable service. In many places cinders are being used on all icy curves especially in the mountains where the use of cinders has eliminated a large number of car accidents. Hard Work for Appropriation Committee. Appropriation committees have been working since December 4. They will be the committees which will carry on while the house does general debating. The budget director talked to ranking members for two hours before the new session opened. He showed figures somewhat lower in many cases than a year ago. But the money to run the government in 1941 will climb far into the billions. Just where to cut and what to cut out are questions facing these appropriation committees. Hints of cuts in relief funds and road funds have started quite a stir among members who want to continue federal road work and also continue relief appropriations.

Increased Government Business Booms Washington.

All the decorated Christmas trees which were so numerous over this town have disappeared. The New Year's parties were wild but the town seems sobered up with the opening of congress. It is all serious business now and people are gathered here from every state in the union and every country in the world. The Commercial club of Washington announces the best year in its history. It claims the population has increased from 625,000 to around 800,000 because of increased government business and also because of the heavy increase in government employees. A vote for the people of the district and more federal appropriations are the order of local demands for the year 1940.

Birth Record. A son was born January 9 to Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hamm of Wayne at a local hospital. A son was born Thursday, January 4, to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Pice of Wayne. Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Roberts, the latter a daughter of Mrs. C. E. Liveringhouse of Wayne, are managers of the Omaha Henshaw hotel in which a disastrous fire raged early last Thursday. The blaze, which started in the storeroom of a shoe store next to the hotel, resulted in injury to 15 persons and property loss estimated at least $200,000. One lady died later.

Mr. Roberts, who leased the Henshaw and Keen hotels, owned the furnishings and lost about $30,000 worth of these. He carried no insurance as the building was regarded fireproof. Mr. Roberts had just recently spent several thousand dollars for new carpeting in the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts live at the Keen hotel so were not in the Henshaw when the blaze broke out.

Case Is Appealed To District Court

Loup River Public Power Company Seeks Right of Way Through Land

Loup River Public Power company has appealed to district court in the action in which it sought to gain right of way to build a power line through the NE 1/4 of 25-25-1. The company had paid $160 to Mrs. Minnie Marotz, who has a life estate in the property. Mrs. Lisetta A. Marotz Gutzman and husband, Walter Gutzman, sought to stop construction of the line. The county court appointed True Prescott, Oscar Reinhardt, Roy N. Meier, Geo. Peters and Geo. Noakes as appraisers. The appraisers December 2 reported that Mrs. Lisetta A. Gutzman and husband should have $800 in addition to the $160 paid the former's mother.

The Loup river company has appealed the matter to district court.

Fourth in Series of Programs Is Fixed

For the fourth of the music hour concert series, to be given at the college auditorium this evening at 7:30, the program consists of solo numbers and double-piano ensembles. Miss Willetta Walters, reader, is assisting with two pianos. Prof. Albert G. Carlson will give a short talk on "Why Music?"

In this concert the purpose of offering new modernistic works is carried out. Abram Chasins' "Parade" is such a work. Novel in character and unusual harmonies, it is given in a double-piano version by Genevieve Lundak and Orson Jeffrey. "Gopak," a Russian dance, is another offering. It is a modern work with a distinctly national flavor by; Moussorgsky. Frances Blezek and Maxine Mills play this at two pianos.

Technicians Expect Twelve Thousand Acres to Be Under Contract

Technicians at Winfield CCC camp expect 60 farms to be signed up for conservation work by spring planting time. Previously the SCS personnel placed the estimate at 40 farms to be under agreement by the spring season in 1940. But the records show 43 planned and signed December 31, so it is figured the number will increase to 60.

The estimated 60 farms would be equivalent to 12,000 acres, 19 sections, or a little over half a township.

When crops are in and growing there will be about 4,800 acres under contour cultivation, it is believed. Technicians have about 600 miles of surveyed contour lines plowed out for farmers to start contour farming next spring.

Camp boys will plant about 110,000 trees this year.

To date the boys have done 125,000 square yards of gully bank sloping, 175 sod and brush dams, 18,000 square yards of sodding work, 1.5 miles of diversion terraces, 14 miles of contour ridges and 10 miles of fence built.

Winter weather has halted work on farms at present.

Sioux City Man Released on Bail

Jack Harden, 23, of Sioux City, was released under $2,500 bail last Thursday after being charged in Sioux City municipal court with assault in connection with the injuring Christmas day of Lloyd Dolph, 33, of Laurel. Dolph has been in critical condition in a Sioux City hospital, suffering from a fractured skull and hemorrhages of the brain.

Harden allegedly struck Dolph when the latter was in front of a store in the city. Friends picked Dolph up and took him home with them after he insisted he was not hurt. A few days later Dolph was taken to a hospital in a semi-conscious condition and his condition has been serious since.

Mrs. Dolph has been with her husband in the city and the children are with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kohnhehn, at Laurel.

Joseph Lammers, 73, died at West Point December 31.

Faces Charges of Injuring Lloyd Dolph on Street Christmas Day.

Joseph Lammers, 73, died at West Point December 31.

Greet New Year At Western City In Outdoor Style

While Pasadena greeted the new year with the famous festival of roses parade and football game, Long Beach, Calif., welcomed 1940 in its typical outdoor holiday fashion, writes Miss Laura E. Lyons. Surf and beach sports, deep sea fishing and archery were some of the attractions.

The Long Beach float won third in the Pasadena parade. This was made up with orchid chrysanthemums. First prize was two life-size horses of white flowers. A million saw the parade and 90,000 were at the Rose Bowl game. The day was foggy and some rain fell during the football match, writes Miss Lyons: The sun shone a short time about noon.

The Messiah and other Christmas features were enjoyed by Miss Lyons and others in the southwest. Church choirs played Christmas carols and also welcomed in the new year.

Ella Pieperstock Miller and her band spent the holidays in Ocean Park with the former's mother who has returned from a hospital where she had been several months with a broken hip. Miss Lyons writes that Mrs. Alice Hurlbert is staying with her son in North Long Beach, and the former recently visited Mrs. Peter Barnes.

Quite a severe earthquake was felt in Long Beach Thursday, December 28, but no damage resulted. This was the hardest since March 10, 1933, when such great destruction followed in a very short time. Miss Lyons found that the shock made her patient hysterical.

Much concern has been felt over the results of the quake in Belmont shore and Alamitos bay sections where tides have been so high as to destroy many homes.

Ben Evans, 66, Deatur banker, died last week.

The new capitol building at Albany, N. Y., will cost about $10,000,000 when complete.

At Berkeley, Cal., Mesdames S. M. Hardin, J. S. Cassidy, N. P. Goelzer, G. C. Johnson were playing at a country club invitation bridge tournament. Suddenly Mrs. Johnson gasped: "I have 13 hearts." Echoed Mrs. Cassidy: "I have all clubs." Mrs. Hardin, partner of Mrs. Goelzer, held 13 spades, and Mrs. Goelzer all the diamonds. When the turmoil died down, Mrs. Hardin bid seven spades, scored 1,210 points for a non-vulnerable grand slam. Statisticians figure the hand will be dealt once in 158 billion deals.

Hysteria and Tantrums. Charlie embarked upon a career of thievery when he was but 9 years old. Respect for property or rights of others was totally lacking in him. Determined to have his own way in everything, he exhibited a violent temper when hindered. Although quite young to be given a mental examination, he was submitted to one, which revealed that he was normal. A "big brother" appointed to Charlie, visited his home on numerous occasions, but for some time he could find no cause for Charlie's actions. Then it was made unexpectedly clear one evening when "big brother" met Charlie in the down-town district and asked him to wait so that they might walk home together. Charlie carried home a calendar with a pleasing picture that attracted his mother's attention at once. Without a "by your leave" she snatched it from Charlie's hands, and Charlie flew into a rage, screaming, kicking the furniture, and tearing newspapers into bits which he scattered about the floor. His temper tantrum upset Charlie's mother to the extent that she became hysterical and threw herself upon a nearby settee, crying, "Give him his calendar and a dozen more. I will go crazy if I have to endure his acting that way any longer."

Lucky Boy, 2d, Grand Champion live stock show, fed by Mayfield Kolthmann, Mason, Texas, weighed 1240 pounds and was fed a ration of shelled corn, ground barley, whole oats, Purina Omolene and Purina Steer Fatena. Lucky Boy sold for $1.35 per pound, a total of $1,647.

Texas State Fair, Reserve Champion of the 1939 International Live Stock show, was fed and exhibited by Jack Baker, 4-H club boy from Bluff Dale, Texas. This steer, which weighed 1072 lbs., was fed on a ration of cracked corn, whole oats, cottonseed meal, Purina Omolene and Purina Steer Fatena.

"The Hereford show was a marvel," said Judge Geo. Gordon-Davis. "I have never before seen two such steers as the Grand Champion and the Reserve. I never believed it possible to breed and feed out such sensational animals. In my judgment they are the two best steers ever shown at any show in any land."

Thousands of corn-belt cattlemen will back us up when we say that Purina Steer Fatena is just as fine a feed for cattle being fed for show. Steer Fatena has been a favorite with corn-belt cattlemen for many years. Fast gains, top quality finish, gains at a low cost per pound... any way you look at it, Steer Fatena does an outstanding job.
