Application for Additional Grant Is in Washington

Connell Hall Project Will Be Completed in April It Is Estimated.

Second amendatory application of the state normal board for Public Works Administration funds to equip Connell hall has been received in Washington and placed on the active file, according to word received here this week.

The board is asking $8,327.45 in additional government grant to outfit fully the refitted and enlarged building. The application was held up for several weeks in the regional office of PWA, which until recently was located in Omaha.

Corrective work on the second floor corridor floor was to be completed by noon today. Some asphalt tile floor surfacing was relaid in this part of the building. Additional corrective work remains on small areas of wood floor, laid in mastic paste and, on some items of millwork.

The construction contracts, all substantially completed, are expected to be accepted within the next ten days after all adjustments have been made.

Some of the recently delivered furniture and equipment were put in place Wednesday so that photographers could get pictures of several of the rooms and other features of the new unit for use in college publications.

The board has approved a change in the design of grill room units which will result in the elimination of a fry griddle at a proportional saving to the board.

A report forwarded Monday to David R. Kennicott, regional director, PWA, indicated it would be April 1 before the project, including all equipment, would be fully completed.

WAYNE ATTENDANTS AT BIG POLITICAL MEETING THRILLED

WAYNE persons who attended the Hoover meeting in Omaha Monday evening and heard the former president analyze the country's ills and hopes were reinforced in determination to uphold democratic institutions. Five thousand crowded the auditorium. Flags and Lincoln's likeness and patriotic songs added to the thrill of the occasion. Appearance of Mr. Hoover on the platform was the signal for a spontaneous demonstration. His carefully prepared speech was frequently interrupted by bursts of applause. The former president is not an accomplished orator, but he knows his subject and he knows how to handle it in plain, understandable English. One evident objection to outstanding greatness is the necessary safeguard of police and secret service officers—the practice of being led or directed in every step. Manifestly, one has become great when his personal liberty has been destroyed.

Soil Districts Are Considered

Wayne County May Organize Its Own Conservation Program Soon.

The matter of organizing a Wayne county soil conservation district will be considered at meetings planned this Thursday and Friday evening. Tonight the meeting will be in Brenna school, district 81, three miles south and four east of Winside, at 7:30. The Friday meeting is called at the Lueck school, district 32, four miles east of Altona at 7:30.

Stanton county and the south-west part of Wayne county want soil conservation work. State officials prefer to organize these districts within county borders. The aim of the meetings this week is to see if it is possible to form a district through the south part of Wayne county, this then allowing Stanton county to have its own district.

M. J. Hankins and Ed. Stipsky of Winside camp, speak at the meetings and show pictures of soil work. Some Wayne county farmers who visited the Blair project will tell what is being done there.

Dramatics Class Will Give Plays

Dramatic department of the Wayne college will present two one-act plays, "A Dish of China Tea" and "Just a Little Mistake," February 20. The first will be presented at the chapel meeting in the morning. The other play will be given at 7:30 in the evening.

"A Dish of China Tea" pictures the passive conflict between the aristocratic woman who remains loyal to King George and the so-called "rebels," two girls who favor the continental army. Gretchen Niederwieser is director with Donna Lou Herichs, Betty Ellis, Eileen Politt, Lorreen Lindburg, Ruth Harin, Dorothy Nyquist and Willetta Walters taking the parts.

Sewage Disposal Considered Here By City Council

Damage Case Makes Need For Early Action by Wayne Voters.

Because of the pending damage action in which the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company charges that Wayne city and Wayne Rendering works sewage disposal is a nuisance and asks correction, the city council Tuesday evening discussed presenting the matter to voters at the spring election April 2.

Investigation made some time ago showed that a sewage system for Wayne would cost about $50,000 at that time it was figured that labor could be provided through WPA and that the state would care for some expense because of the college. The city figures that a bond issue of about $20,000 to $25,000 would, with such auxiliary aid, provide the improvement.

The council Tuesday asked City Attorney J. E. Brittain to investigate the procedure to be taken in presenting the matter to the people.

Peter & Co., Omaha, bought the bonds last fall and refunded them. The fact that the bonds brought par indicates they are regarded a desirable investment.

Complete Power Lines for Less Than Allowance

Officers Are Relected at Annual Meeting Held For Project.

Wayne's first rural public power project was built for approximately $60,000 less than the amount allowed, according to report of Treasurer Albert Watson at the annual meeting Tuesday. The full mileage allowed in the first district was built for approximately $135,000 which includes construction, engineering, legal and general overhead expenses. The REA budget estimate for this was $197,000, which means that about $60,000 was saved.

Mr. Watson reported that directors had been paid $3 per board meeting and were allowed one paid meeting a month. The general office overhead for the year ran approximately $300 a month. He added that 59 loans had been made by the district to its customers to aid them in wiring their farm premises. The loans totaled $6,388.40.

At the annual meeting A. G. Sydow, Wayne, was reelected president of the power district; Edward Grubb, Wayne, vice president; Lyle Maroz, Hoskins, secretary; Albert Watson, treasurer. J. G. Sweigard, Winside, and Lawrence Ring, Wakefield, are directors of the district.

Mrs. W. H. Buetow, 67, resident of Wayne and vicinity for 60 years, passed away at her home here early Sunday morning, February 11, after a lingering illness. Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 from the Presbyterian church. Rev. George Bray of Ponca, a pioneer friend of the family, officiated and was assisted by Rev. W. F. Mrs. Buetow, whose maiden name was Carrie Esther Wilbur, was a daughter of Russell H. and Esther H. Wilbur, and was born at Ponca, Neb., June 9, 1872. Because the auditorium is engaged for March 6 the tournament will either be played Thursday, Friday and Saturday or will begin Tuesday, skip Wednesday and then be completed Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Wayne is one of the few cities having a full 16-team schedule in the class B tournament. This will insure a more interesting event. Perhaps two class C winners will play off here also.

Mr. March has secured the attraction on a "road show basis," an important concession to a town the size of Wayne thus early. The larger towns where the show is scheduled to be presented indicate Wayne's good fortune. Mr. March explains that the charge here will be the same as that charged in big centers. The manager calls attention to some outstanding attractions booked for the Gay ahead of "Gone With the Wind," including "His Girl Friday," "Destiny Rides Again," "Broadway Melody 1940," "Pimochio," "Little Old New York," "Hunchback of Notre Dame," and "Northwest Passage." FIFTH PLACE ENTERED EARLY TUESDAY NIGHT

Four Wayne business firms, the Mines jewelry store, Safeway store, Standard Oil station and Edward Sala's garage and service station, were entered and robbed Monday night. The greatest loss was at the Mines store where about $100 worth of merchandise was taken. Sheriff J. H. Pile and other officers are at work on the matter.

Paul Mines discovered the loss Tuesday morning when he opened the store. Entrance had been gained by removing a heavy storm window at the back of the store and by prying open the inside window. The loot included bracelets, lockets, pendants, rings, ball-folds, pipes and alarm clocks taken from show cases. Diamonds, silver and such things of greater value were in the safe, which was apparently untouched. No glass or other breakables were missing. No insurance is carried on the loss.

The Jewelry Security Alliance, with headquarters in Kansas City, is offering $100 reward to the person furnishing any information that leads to the arrest or conviction of the party or parties entering the Mines store.

The Safeway lost only small coins left in the change till. A back window in the Safeway store was broken, the intruder crawling through this and then cutting the wire netting over an inside back door. Manager L. G. Reising left the store about 7 Monday evening. When he returned two hours later to check up before night he discovered what had happened.

The Standard Oil company station was entered through the front door, the intruder evidently picking the lock only from the cash register. Manager Glenn Walker, who closed the station at 9 Monday evening, discovered the loss early Tuesday morning.

Edward Sala's station was also entered after 9, when he closed the place of business for the night. He found what had happened Tuesday morning. A window in the driveway door was broken to gain entrance to the shop and the door between the shop and office was forced open. A small amount of change was missing from the till, also a flashlight, fire iron and fountain pen. The office and shop were ransacked.

It is believed that the places were entered shortly after 9 Monday night.

Another Robbery Tuesday. The A. G. Adams garage was entered Tuesday evening. Mr. Adams left at 6:30 and found the door lock broken when he stopped there that night at 8:15. A few car parts may have been taken.

The robberies are the first in Wayne since two years ago Christmas when the Brown-McDonald store was entered. The intruders were then apprehended within a month.

Sixth Grade News.

"Time Through the Ages" is the name of the play on which the class is working. Most children have parts learned.

An art gallery of original drawings planned in the room.

The decoration committee made some February decorations for the room.

Fifth Grade News.

Pupils have made arithmetic booklets. Each day pupils have eight problems to work in a definite number of minutes. Each child records the number worked correctly, each day, making a graph for his own work. In this way he is able to see if he is making progress. Speed and accuracy are aims.

In a group who gave an original play for the rest of the room are Herbert Reese, Stanley Stratton, Billy Hoine, John Addison, Paul Brunnahl, Francis Mitchell and Richard Reese, the last of the 4th grade.

David Earhart made and brought the Valentine box.

Pupils have conducted an experiment in evaporation to decide whether salt or clear water evaporates more rapidly. Billie Kugler showed the class how quickly the oxygen in a bottle is used by placing lighted matches in it and noting what a short time it would burn.

Each child told something about the trip.

Lois Russell made a house with doors and windows and a heart chimney for the Valentine box.

First Grade News.

Instead of a Valentine box the 1st graders got their Valentines through the room post office. Some time was spent Monday and Tuesday making toy money and buying stamps for Valentines. Each child acted as postmaster some time and put out into post office boxes the Valentines which he brought.

In Kindergarten.

Kindergarten classes had parties after recess Wednesday. Each child took turns passing out Valentines when the box was opened. The boxes were decorated by the children.

The rhythmic orchestra can play four pieces. Each child has an opportunity to play each instrument.

Hoover FORMER PRESIDENT Herbert Hoover made a convincing address in support of practical democracy before a packed house in Omaha Monday night.

There has been some talk of a comeback to the presidency for Mr. Hoover, but there is no sound reason to believe he is motivated by any such personal ambition.

In his speech Monday night, Mr. Hoover discredited the notion that unemployment is the product of a free system.

"This talking of the whole system over is the economic theory that the house must be burned down to kill the rats.

Before the machine age got out of gear, more than 85 per cent of our people lived better than any race in history.

"We do have an obligation to the unfortunate, the sick, the unemployed. But these are also minority groups.

Rational Remedies TREATING at length and with approval Herbert Hoover's diagnosis of America's ills and charting a course for rational cures, the Omaha World-Herald closes with this observation:

"Our national task—its performance is imperative if ours is to remain the free government of free and self-supporting, self-respecting men and women facing the future with confidence and courage.

"We share Mr. Hoover's optimism that the task can be much better done. We share his fear that, unless it is, this country faces deeper distress and greater danger than anything yet experienced.

"And as it is being accomplished. After 10 years it remains with no substantial achievement save relief. That can't go on forever—or very much longer.

CONGRESS AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

Watch for news that the department of agriculture wants a new farm program based on stabilization of farm prices without continuously tapping the treasury for funds.

The prairie states congressmen met the other day to hear about H. R. 2371, which was originally the cost of production bill and which has been changed to the "parity price bill".

Prairie states members are being told that they better get busy with their agriculture bills because congress will adjourn in June and that both political parties may want something in their planks about agriculture.

Prairie states members have sent a delegation to the house committee on agriculture demanding a hearing on several important farm bills with a view to getting their principles included in the new department legislation which will be announced soon.

When the senate sub-committee on agricultural appropriations meets to take up the house bill, amendments are ready to put back into the bill the stamp and parity money. There are sufficient funds on hand to carry on the stamp program and pay benefit payments for the 1940 fiscal year.

There will be a new farm program offered soon. Leaders on farm legislation in the house include Marvin Jones, Texas, chairman of the committee; Clarence Cannon, Missouri, chairman of the sub-committee on appropriations; Bill Lemke, North Dakota, author of the farm refinancing bill; Sam Massingale, Oklahoma, author of the cost of production bill—now the "parity bill".

Legion Auxiliary.

(By Mrs. C. Hegel.)

To maintain law and order, to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism. This is the aim of the Americanism program of the Legion Auxiliary for 1940, according to Mrs. Frank Heine, chairman for the local unit.

The year's Americanism program will include a study of the Constitution and Declaration of Independence, conducting "get out the vote" campaign; sponsoring adult educational activities, such as citizenship schools, naturalization ceremonies and speakers; sponsoring youth activities, such as boys' and girls' states, scouting, 4-H clubs, oratorical and essay contests; aiding conservation work by planting memorial trees, cooperating with the Legion in patriotic holidays, teaching proper respect for the American flag and proper methods of displaying it, and combating subversive influences seeking to undermine democracy in America.

The Legion Auxiliary has 407-551 members enrolled for 1940, according to Mrs. W. S. Bressler, membership chairman. This is 83.14 per cent of the year's membership goal. The aim is to enroll a half million this year. The local unit now has 63 as compared with 40 at the same time last year.

National Commander Raymond J. Kelly and National Vice President Mrs. G. E. Chambers will be principal speakers at the annual conference in Grand Island February 23.

Each Auxiliary unit is entitled to send a quilt block for the membership quilt being made as a gift to the national president. The blocks are five inches square, of cotton material, and on each is to be embroidered or applied an early American object. Indian chiefs, dainty colonial ladies, spinning wheels, cradles, etc., are used. A block from the Wayne unit, to be displayed at Grand Island, was made by Mrs. E. Kostomlitsky.

Snow in South Is Novelty and Brings Holiday

Such novelty is snow in the south that, when that region received a good fall recently, business houses declared a holiday and everyone went out doors for a good snowballing. This happened just shortly before Carl Wright, R. L. Larson, L. W. McNatt and W. C. Coryell arrived there to spend a couple of weeks. The Wayne men were informed that weather in Texas had been the coldest in 41 years, reaching as low as 10 and 12 above zero. Fruit crops were damaged and considerable fruit could be seen on the ground. Vegetables, which stand more cold weather, did not suffer so much. Southerners were greatly pleased with the moisture that the snow and heavy rains brought, for that section has experienced much drought in the past few years.

When the Wayne folks were in Texas rain fell two or three times, and frost was noticed some mornings. But the weather warmed up after the sun came out and the temperature rose to about 75.

The Texas open golf tournament was one of the events the Wayne men saw. Many excellent players took part.

One of the most interesting experiences was a visit to Randolph flying field about 17 miles from San Antonio. J. C. Miller accompanied the others there last Thursday. The men secured a guide and were shown about the field as well as through one of the big bombers. The field, which is really a government town with its stores, theatre, etc., has 250 practice planes for training fliers. The bomber they examined has a wing spread of 90 1/2 feet and is 68 feet long. It is equipped with two motors of 800 horsepower each, several airdrops and many intricate mechanisms. The regular crew includes eight but the plane can carry 12. Besides the big gasoline tanks in the wings, the plane can carry reserve tanks beneath it and these can be dropped in case of emergency. Bombs are also carried on the lower side of the plane and the number depends on the size of these. The engines are checked after every 100 hours of flying, and after 100 hours of service a plane is completely overhauled. Young men in training said the planes are all larger than the ordinary type.

"Soul" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, February 18.

The Golden Text is: "I will set my tabernacle among you, and my soul shall not abhor you. And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people" (Leviticus 26:11,12).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Truly my soul waiteth upon God: from him cometh my salvation" (Psalms 62:1).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Life is the law of Soul, even the law of the spirit of Truth, and Soul is never without its representative, Man's individual being, can no more die nor disappear in unconsciousness than can Soul, for both are immortal. If man believes in death now, he must disbelieve in it when learning that there is no reality in death, since the truth of being is deathless" (p. 427).

LOCAL GAMBLE STORE MANAGING PARTNER ATTENDS SALES CONFERENCE

Orrville Tusland, managing partner of the local Gamble Store, returned today from Omaha where he spent two days attending the 15th annual sales conference of Gamble Store managers and authorized Gamble Store dealers. The Omaha meeting was attended by Gamble men from Nebraska and surrounding states who gathered at the Fontanelle hotel for their annual two-day session on Monday and Tuesday. The highlight of this meeting, according to Mr. Tusland, was an address by P. W. Skogmo, one of the founders of Gamble Stores, in which he stated that even though 1939 was one of the most successful years in the history of Gamble Stores, business prospects for 1940 for Gamble Stores and every other merchant or business man, who aggressively promote his business are far more favorable than they have been for any similar period for the past several years. It was brought out that every index points to greater possibilities for increased business and profitable operation if merchants take advantage of these conditions by more concentrated effort and more attractive merchandising.

The meeting at Omaha was one of five similar meetings held by Gamble Stores during the month of February. Other meetings were held in Chicago, Denver, Billings and Minneapolis, covering the entire territory in which Gamble Stores operate.

Gamble Stores is a Minnesota institution with headquarters in Minneapolis. Although only 15 years old it has rapidly gained national prominence through its aggressive merchandising methods. The company now operates 353 employees and 14 warehouses located throughout 23 midwest and north-west states and supplies over 1,400 independently owned authorized Gamble Store dealers with merchandise at retail prices, acting as wholesaler for them. The history of the company has been one of constant growth and only in number of outlets and sales but also in many lines of merchandise handled. Originally these stores carried only auto supplies. However they now carry complete stocks of household appliances, radios, refrigerators, washing machines, tools, hardware, paint and house-hold needs in addition to automobile supplies. Many Gamble Stores also carry furniture and some stores carry an extensive line of cosmetics and similar items. The company also has a mail order shopper service which enables buyers to purchase almost any item imaginable from farm lighting plants to sewing machines and jewelry. The company is unique in that it is owned by employees through a plan that enables and encourages employees to own stock in the company and to share in the profits.

These annual meetings are held to bring store men, office personnel and factory representatives together for an exchange of new ideas and information, and to outline future plans. In addition to Mr. Skogmo, other men addressing the meetings are M. O. Weiler, Lloyd Johnson, Paul Gnam, C. T. Gibson,

W. P. THOMAS LOCAL REPRESENTATIVE

Seeing the Sandhills from W. B. Ranch

(By Mrs. Art Auker, Springfield.)

Keya Paha—the county without a railroad, the county immune to bridge, the former statement is an historical fact, the latter is a social fact.

The Springview Herald does not devote a column or two to bridge clubs and their activities because the ladies of the west have natural resources of entertainment that are more interesting and educational.

So when guests arrive we do not get out the Madeira, Rock crystal and Sterling and arrange for a bridge luncheon. No, indeed, we take a frying pan under one arm, a loaf of bread and a pound of butter under the other and we go places.

First to Auhl's fish hatchery where, nestled among the hills and surrounded by trees, we find three lovely little lakes stocked with trout and bass.

The lake host provides a boat, all sorts of fishing equipment and bait. Then when you have your "catch" the fish are cleaned for you.

The charges are based on the number of pounds of fish taken from the lake. Next, to the park, surrounding the state fish hatchery near Valentine. Here, under big trees, we find picnic tables and fireplaces with convenient grates for a big fish fry.

Huge platters of fried trout, fresh from the lake, imagine it!

An hour later we leave, regretfully, for it seems while at Auhl's the eyes were the biggest part of the anatomy, to visit the grounds and hatchery.

The grounds are beautiful with many lakes, immense flower gardens and trees.

Supt. Jack Mendenhall told us the state owns 720 acres on the Valentine station and about 640 acres on the subdivision on Schlegel creek.

The work there consists of propagation and distribution of fish. On the floor of one building were large glass water-filled cases with wide aisles for visitors to walk.

In these cases were fish, toads, frogs and other specimens of water life. Those poor toads and frogs have the sympathy of sightseers for no sooner do they find a nice rock to rest on than some inquisitive water creature frightens them off and away they go in search of another rock, only to have the same experience.

That much exercising might have a tendency to toughen fried frog legs. It seems there is nothing we can do to help the helpless frog so we move on to write our names in the register.

Mr. Mendenhall reports approximately 8,000 visitors annually. Now the drive to Snake falls. The Omaha World-Herald featured these falls in its picture section of a Sunday edition last July but evidently their photographer failed to go on north and east of there and find Smith falls, said to be the highest falls in the state, and in a far more scenic setting than Snake falls although the latter falls with greater force.

Barbecue at Norden.

On the way home we will stop at the Norden fair. For 46 years the Keya Paha county fair has been held at Norden. Last fall two buffalo were purchased from the federal game reserve at Pine Ridge for the Norden barbecue.

The meat was prepared by Jack Gibson of Springfield and 2,000 sandwiches were made. The Norden fair is always a very successful affair and a big social event although the population of Norden is only 41.

No, Editor Huse, I did not make a mistake writing that number. A special count was taken last Sunday for this particular article and the population of Norden is 41, but those 41 must be exceptional planners and entertainers for Norden certainly gets the crowds.

Another day we will take our guests to Fort Niobrara game reserve where we could find material for a long feature article, but cannot resist a few items in this, and Gene Amundson, refuge manager, is so alert to little traits of his animals. He tells us of a range romance between a male white-tailed deer and a black saddle horse.

Their constant companionship, as they played and romped over the pasture, attracted much attention. Their friendship ended tragically. In the winter of 1936-37 a few yearling buffalo were put into this same pasture awaiting disposal and White-tail resented the intrusion and proceeded to chase the buffalo out. In the skirmish White-tail was fatally injured and Blackie mourned for days over her lost playmate.

In 1936, 34 young antelope, picked up soon after birth on their fawning grounds in South Dakota and Wyoming, were added to the Niobrara group. The Hollywood stars have nothing on these young antelope. They, too, arrived by airplane. The Texas Longhorns cannot be classed as a game animal, but the species is so rapidly disappearing that 136 of them were brought in May, 1936, from Wichita Mountain Wildlife refuge, Okla. These animals were closely associated with the early history of the sandhills, and it is interesting to have them here.

Only Spreading Cedar Tree.

Mr. Amundson and his animals are very entertaining but we want to take you to Meadville to see the spreading cedar tree, the only one of its kind known to exist.

Learned men, educated to know plant life, from Lincoln, Omaha and points farther east have been here to study this tree. Analysis of its roots, bark, branches and leaves find it no different from any cedar tree, yet through some freak of nature, instead of growing up, it has spread itself in an almost perfect circle, flat on the ground. The tree was first noticed in 1916, and has grown with the same normal growth that an upright tree might show. It is now covered with snow so we could not get an accurate measure, but old settlers agree that it has a diameter of about 30 feet. It has been fenced and is well cared for. The spreading cedar attracts many visitors.

Rattlesnake Roundup.

If our guests come in November we will take them to a rattlesnake roundup. It isn't quite as dangerous as it sounds, but we wouldn't advise you to try it unless you know your snakes.

When cold weather comes in October the rattlers begin to "den up" for winter. As many as 150 or 200 may be in one den. Then should there be a few nice, warm, sunny days in November, the snakes will crawl out, semi-dormant, to sun themselves. Then is the time to get them. They resemble a huge mass of tangled rope, as they twine round and round each other. It's fascinating but frightening, and of course dangerous. Arthur Dixon, whose ranch joins this one, was out one November looking at his fences to see they were in good repair for winter, and found a den. He was alone and had no weapon but a spade. Being a true westerner, he did not side-step his duty, and started in on them. He killed 87. He told me this and when he finished, I asked "And what did you do then?" He said, he had an empty tobacco can with him and he filled it full of rattles to take home to the children. Four miles north and east of here on the Keya Paha ranch 125 were killed from one den. But one never hears of many of them being seen in the summer and seldom is a person reported bitten by one. In talking with a man who has lived here nearly 60 years I asked "But where are all these rattlesnakes in the summer time?" He replied, "I reckon they're strolling around among the hills and canyons." Art claims he has not seen one. But one day, as I was standing in a vine-covered porch, I heard him say to the foreman, "If you ever see a rattlesnake on this place, don't tell Maude!" so possibly I am not well informed as to how many are "strolling around" on the W. B.

Modern Cattle Sale.

In former years one might picture a cattle sale as an auctioneer in fur coat and cap, high topped overshoes, standing on a snow drift and selling the cattle to the highest bidder. If this is still your idea of a cattle sale, we will take you to By-the-Way ranch of Wood Lake, owned and operated by former Governor Sam McKelvie and his lovely wife, Martha. Mrs. McKelvie is a wonderful hostess and almost as many women as men attend these annual entertainments, for that is what they really are. The crowd was estimated at 1,200. And such a dinner as Mr. and Mrs. McKelvie served. The main "dish" was a 1,300-pound barbecued heifer which was excellent. After dinner the guests are shown about the place. The lawn, almost a small park, is a story in itself with its bird sanctuary, baths and cages, canaries, parakeets, finches and many other kinds. The barns are to the men the center of attraction. Guests are given paper and pencil for a guessing contest on the rating of calves shown for sale. You may think this is a man's contest but not with such women as Mrs. McKelvie, Mrs. Essie Davis, Mrs. Edith Osborne and many other ranch women present. They know their cattle. Then the crowd moves to the sale barn. Mr. McKelvie enters with "Hello folks, having a good time?" Next is the parade of show cattle, which is followed by the sale. Ending the day with a visit with one's sandhill neighbors. It's a real treat to spend the day at By-the-Way. The ranch three miles west of us, known as the H. B., has 8,800 acres besides several acres of leased land, runs about 800 cattle and cuts 1,000 tons of hay annually and is the largest ranch in our community.

I would like to tell you about the Sunday dinners in this neighborhood with from 75 to 125 present with home-talent plays and music in the afternoon. These are not summer picnics. There are 76 of us invited to the Heerten ranch for dinner next Sunday and four

Heart Attack Fatal While Man Sleeps

Earl Basmutson, 63, father of Mrs. M. C. Russell of Wayne, was found dead in bed Tuesday, February 6, at his home where he had lived alone since the death of his wife about a year ago. Lives of Pioneers Leaving Homeland Are Much Like Stories of Adventure

Pleasure and sorrow are combined in the adventures of pioneers who left their homeland to seek new advantage for their families in America. The story of the lives of most of these brave people reads like fiction. Such is the case of the life story of Robert Hughes, uncle of the late Mrs. John R. Morris of Carroll. Lot Morris has just completed translation of the account of Mr. Hughes' life as it appeared in the Welsh paper following his death in San Francisco April 21, 1915, at the age of 88.

Mr. Hughes spent 23 years of his life in the comely village of Aber-Wales, and the rest in California, and he was one of the oldest Welsh settlers in this country.

"Robert Hughes was born on a small farm named Brecintau. His father, Thomas Hughes, was a song leader and sang with the renowned singer, Tony-marian, who was a minister at the time in Dwygytychen. Robert Hughes' trade was a stone mason.

"There was much migration from the village at that time, the landlords doing away with the small tenants to make room for pheasants and rabbits or to give more land to men of influence.

"Robert Hughes and his young wife sailed from Caernarvon harbor on the sail boat, Higgins. It took three weeks to cross the Atlantic. They had to take their food with them. Among other dainties they had a barrel full of oatmeal bread, (bara-ceirch). Nearly all the passengers were Welsh. It was a merry crowd and Roland Jones kept the crowd in good humor.

"The first job the Welshman got in this country was in Philadelphia on the palace of Dr. Jayne. He was there for eight months with no better wages than he could have had in the old country. When he heard of the discovery of gold in California he decided to go there. With Jim Clark, Flint Shire and Dick Morris he started for the Isthmus of Panama on the ship Ohio. After reaching Chagres, Panama, they hired a boat to take them to Garguona, a journey of two days and two nights, and from thence the three Welshmen walked to Panama, 27 miles. Then they sailed from Panama to San Francisco, 3,500 miles. It took 51 days to make the trip. Only for the golden expectations the three would have turned back early in their trip.

"It was easy to get work after reaching California. There were better wages there than in the east. An ounce of gold a day netted $36. "In a year Mr. Hughes' life partner came to him. The two were of service with the first Welsh church at Pollard place, and Mrs. Hughes gathered the money for the first hymnbooks on the spot.

"Mr. Hughes worked in many mines in the state. In 1859-60 he was one of the main masons building San Quentin prison. He accumulated some of the golden ore but he treasured for himself that treasure not known to the world. The Bible and the hymn book were his favorites.

"He had many afflictions. He lost his only daughter in 1905. His cozy home was destroyed by the great fire of 1906, and his beloved wife died the same year. Afterwards he was robbed of thousands by a young man that he had been as a father to. But he received consolation and strength from the Bible which was always near him.

"Mr. Hughes was buried with reverence. The Honorable John S. Thomas officiated. Godfrey Price and his party sang and the Welsh together sang 'Yny dyfrodde mawr ar tonau' and 'Heddwch iwlwch."

Music and Art Are Subjects of Talks

Mrs. J. T. Bressler and Miss Maude Curley in Program For A. A. U. W.

Women in the fields of art and music were the subjects for the program given by Miss Maude Curley and Mrs. John T. Bressler, jr., at the A. A. U. W. meeting Thursday evening.

Miss Curley's paper pointed out that "women have not just entered the realm of art the last century due to their new-found freedom, for we have some knowledge of women artists in ancient days."

A few names are noted of Greek women artists of the centuries immediately preceding and following the Christian era, but little is known of their lives and works. In the annals of Roman art few women's names appear.

More definite records of women artists and their work are found in the last three decades of the 15th and the first half of the 16th century, during the Renaissance. It was in this period that more was done for the advancement of women as scholars and artists.

During the 17th century women artists were prominent in Italy, Flanders, Belgium, Holland, Spain and Germany. Women were associated with men in the work in that period and the women were winning distinction in the field.

Miss Curley then gave the history of art in America and the women in American art. Women were busy with homes for a number of years. In 1889 five young women artists founded the "National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors." The main purpose was to provide exhibitor privileges for a carefully selected group of women artists so that their work could be brought before the public under dignified auspices. Today the organization numbers over 800 members drawn from 40 states.

The lives and works of Harriet Hosmer, Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, Georgia O'Keeffe, Jean MacLane, American artists, were described in some detail by Miss Curley.

Mrs. Bressler explained that women's influence in music is as ancient as the Hindoo legends surrounding Brahma as shown by the fact that at his command his goddess of speech and oratory giving the Hindoos their first musical instrument, the vina. Through the civilizations of Egypt, Greece and Rome, women have exerted some influence on the progress of music and while the Church of Rome admitted no women to share in performing its services, yet made a woman the patron saint of music.

Women played a very small part in the development of music especially in the field of composition during the medieval period of European history, due to their restricted field of activities, caring for homes and families. The wives and sweethearts of many famous composers such as Bach, Haydn, Wagner, Mozart, Schumann and others have played a large part in shaping the musical destinies of the world.

Mrs. Bressler gave a brief resume of the part a few American women are taking in shaping the musical destinies of this country. Mrs. H. H. Beach, Mrs. Ed. MacDowell, Alma Swenson, Rosa Ponsette, Grace Moore, Jessica Dragomette, Maud Powell and Ruth Slenczynski were the composers, soloists and musicians whose lives and works Mrs. Bressler described.

Reports by chairmen were given at the Thursday meeting.

Refreshments carrying out the Valentine motif were served by Miss Gretal Hackenberg, Miss Jessie Boyce, Miss Mildred Clark, Miss Ruth Pearson and Miss Miriam Huse.

He came by train to Sioux City, his home 10 years ago, and will visit in Chicago before returning to Seattle. Don is employed in a steamship office. Diseases of Stock Are Being Reduced Losses from anthrax, bovine tuberculosis and sheep scab, which have been menacing animal contagions, were greatly reduced in 1939, according to Harry Boyts, Sioux City live stock commissioner. Less than one-tenth of one per cent of the slaughter cattle at Sioux City were retained for tuberculosis in 1939, this being the lowest on record. Sheep scab has been held to a minimum through efficient quarantines and proper dipping.

A Sioux City doctor reports that in three and a half years, since dairy herd inspection started, the bone and joint tuberculosis in children has been 14 per cent of what it was in the 10-year period between 1926 and 1936. This was probably due entirely to tuberculosis testing and inspection of dairy herds and removal of reactors.

Results in reducing animal disease losses have been accomplished by concentrated efforts. There is urgent need, Mr. Boyts states, to attack avian tuberculosis and other poultry diseases which are causing nearly one-third of the poultry deaths each year and injuring markets. Also of major importance is the prevention of another serious outbreak of anthrax which occurs every four or five years.

Children at the Crossroads

Ernest L. Reeker

Tim Needs a Good Example.

Tim is 10, but he is anemic, so under-nourished that you would think he is not more than 7. Charged with breaking and entering, particularly with having committed several petty thefts, the little tot seemed incapable of realizing the seriousness of his offenses, as if he had no concepts on which to base our reasoning with him.

His father and mother, who appeared with him in court showed little interest in what we might do with the wail. Under our questioning they professed membership in a certain church, and so we placed the boy on strict probation to the pastor of that church.

Twenty-four hours after Tim was permitted to return to his home, he again committed numerous petty thefts. Indignant citizens demanded that something be done with the boy, that he be removed from their community.

Three days later Tim's father less. Now lead me behind that big hill and leave me there until morning." And the boy did so.

The next morning he found with the dun horse a handsome white gelding finer than any horse the Pawnee had ever owned. That night the dun horse told the boy to leave him again behind the hill. In the morning there was with him a beautiful black gelding. For ten nights he left the horse behind the hill and each morning he found a beautiful horse of a different color—bay, roan, gray, blue or spotted.

The boy, now rich, married the daughter of the Head Chief and later was made Head Chief himself. He had many children. When his oldest boy died he buried him in the spotted robe.

The Dun Horse Indian Legend Typifies Tribe

Ernest L. Reeker

"The Dun Horse" is an Indian legend typical of the Pawnee tribe, Nebraska Folklore, written and compiled by the Nebraska Writers' project under sponsorship of the state superintendent, relates this story as follows:

The scene of this legend is near Courthouse Rock, which is on the south side of the Platte in Morrill county, about five miles southwest of Bridgeport.

There once lived in the Pawnee tribe an old woman and her 16-year-old grandson, who were despised by the rest of the tribe because they were poor. When the village moved camp these two would remain behind to look over the camp and pick up things that the other Indians had thrown away.

One day as the tribe was moving, the old woman and her boy came upon an old dun horse which they supposed some of the Indians had left behind. He was so worthless that the other Indians had not taken the trouble to drive him along. The boy said, "Let us take this old horse."

The woman put her pack upon the horse and he limped along very slowly.

The tribe camped at Courthouse Rock. One day the scouts who had been sent out to look for buffalo, came hurrying in with the news that a large herd was near and that there was a spotted calf among the buffalo. The Head Chief ordered his crier to go through the village and announce that whoever killed the spotted calf should have his daughter for his wife.

The charge was to be made from the village, and the man with the fastest horse would be most likely to kill the calf. When the rich young men on their fast horses saw the poor boy on the dun horse they said, "Oh, see, there is the horse that is going to catch the spotted calf." He rode off to one side where he could not hear their jokes and jeering.

When he had ridden a short distance away the horse stopped, turned his head, and spoke. He said, "Take me down to the creek and cover me with mud."

The boy was afraid when he heard the horse speak, but he obeyed. "Now," said the horse, "do not go back to those who have such a poor horse. Remain here until the order to charge is given."

Soon the horses were lined up, prancing and eager to go. When the old crier at last gave the word, "Lo-o-ah!" the riders leaped forward and yelled as they let their horses go. Suddenly to their right they saw the old dun horse sailing along like a bird. Reaching the buffalo he charged to the side of the spotted calf. The boy's arrow flew and the calf fell. The old dun horse was completely changed; he was no longer blind nor lame nor sore. He pranced about near the dead buffalo.

The boy had begun to skin the calf and cow before any of the other warriors reached the spot.

The boy went down to him and when he came near the horse said, "You have seen how it was today. But this cow has been good to you. After this do what it tells you; no more, no more."

here. He packed the meat on the horse and placed the spotted robe on top. He started back for camp leading the horse, which seemed afraid of everything he saw. A rich young chief rode up and offered 12 good horses for the spotted robe, but the boy laughed at him.

Before the boy reached the village, one of the warriors rode to the old woman's wretched lodge and said, "Your grandson killed the spotted calf." She replied, "You ought to be ashamed to make fun of my grandson."

The warrior said, "I have told you the truth." Soon another brave rode up and said, "Your grandson killed the spotted calf. The old woman was very unhappy because they made fun of her boy."

Very soon the boy came and he gave his grandmother the spotted robe. She laughed joyously. The horse snorted and jumped and would not let the old woman take the meat so the boy had to take it off.

That night the horse said to the boy, "Tomorrow the Sioux are coming to attack the village and there will be a great battle. When the Sioux are drawn up, ride as fast as you can into their midst, count coup on their Head Chief, kill him and ride back. Go four times, count coup on four of the bravest warriors and kill them. If you go the fifth time you may get killed or lose me. Remember!"

The next day the Sioux came and the boy rode into their lines. When they saw that the boy was going to strike their Head Chief the arrows flew so thickly that they darkened the sky. But he counted coup on the chief, killed him, and rode safely back. Then he charged again and again until he had gone four times.

But the battle was not ended and after a short time the boy charged again. An arrow struck the horse and pierced him through. As the horse fell, the boy jumped off and fought his way through to the Pawnee. The Sioux said to each other, "This horse was like a man." They took their knives and cut him in pieces. Toward nightfall the Sioux broke and fled.

The boy felt very badly. He went to the place where the horse had fallen, gathered up the pieces of flesh and bones and put them in a pile. Then he went to sit on a hill nearby, drew his robe over his head, and began to mourn for his horse.

As he sat there a great wind-storm came up, and after the wind came rain. As he sat there looking down through the rain at the spot where he had piled the pieces he thought that it looked like a horse lying down. After another gush of wind and rain had cleared somewhat he thought he could see the horse raise its head and move its tail. The boy was afraid but he did not run away. As he waited the wind and rain increased again. When it subsided the dun horse raised and looked about. "There he stood!"

The boy went down to him and when he came near the horse said, "You have seen how it was today. But this cow has been good to you. After this do what it tells you; no more, no more."

Sixty Years Ago

Party conventions were called 60 years ago to nominate candidates for district judge. Democrats held theirs in Norfolk, Wayne, Boone, Greeley and Valley counties were entitled to one delegate each, Antelope, Knox and Pierce to two each, Cedar, Holt and Stanton three each, Dakota and Dixon four each, Cuming and Madison five each. Republican district convention was called at Stanton. To this Greeley, Wayne and Holt counties were to send one delegate each; Antelope, Cedar, Dakota, Stanton and Valley, two each; Boone, Dixon, Knox and Madison, three each; and Cuming, four. Possible candidates were J. C. Crawford of West Point, Mr. Fletcher of Norfolk, and T. L. Grifley of Dakota county. Since then the convention system of nominating candidates has been replaced by the primary in which voters make selections. And too judges now run on non-political tickets rather than on partisan ballots.

The boom in the Black Hills continued 60 years ago, according to the Northern Nebraska Journal published by Wm. Huse at Ponca. The Homestake company was at that time building a reservoir to hold 300,000 gallons, and several new stamps were installed. Business in Rapid City in one month aggregated $4,000. Produce was rushed to that region to satisfy the demand. Young pigs sold for $5 each, and chickens 50c to $1.

The Union Pacific and Northwestern were rival railroad companies extending lines in northeast Nebraska 60 years ago. The St. Paul & Sioux City division bore five million dollars to extend the C. C. & B. H. to the Black Hills with a branch to Columbus. It was proposed to make this one of the best roads in the west.

The branch of the Union Pacific from Jackson to Niobrara was as good as a fixed fact, according to an Omaha dispatch. The bed was graded to the Loup and contract was let for the new road between Madison and Norfolk.

The growing town of Niobrara had a new bank. Incorporators were Dr. C. B. Holmes, B. F. Chambers, James Stot, S. Draper, I. B. Miller, Joseph Harkey and C. A. Cadish.

Nebraska's capitol building at Lincoln was outgrown 60 years ago and a new wing was to be added at a cost of $64,000.

G. A. R. veterans and friends gathered in Aurora, Ill., numbered 50,000. General John Logan was among the speakers. How different from the number of Civil war veterans that could report to bugle call today!
