Laurel Pioneer Active for Age

two Civil war widows in Laurel, Mrs. Catherine Craig, the other, is 89.

When 14 years old Mrs. Collins, then Emma Bingham, migrated with her parents to Des Moines, Ia., making the trip in a covered wagon. While passing through the timber, a cyclone struck, killing their horses and cattle. They were obliged to camp there for two weeks until help arrived to move the fallen trees. In Iowa the Bingham were burned out by prairie fire, barely escaping with their lives, a barn and the stock being burned.

At 17 the Laurel pioneer was married to James Carter, Civil war veteran, by whom she had two daughters, Mrs. Owens and Mrs. Gilbert. Following Mr. Carter's death she was married to John Collins at Audubon, Ia. The couple came to Nebraska where Mr. Collins farmed. They experienced grasshopper devastation, drought, blizzards. Wolves killed their dogs. After Laurel was started they moved to town and Mr. Collins operated a corn sheller until his death in 1915. The Collins home is the former rural schoolhouse in which W. H. O'Gara as a boy with 11 others spent the night of January 12, 1888, during the terrible blizzard of that date.

With a vivid memory and acute mind Mrs. Collins recalls the excitement attending the inauguration and assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

THE KNOT-HOLE

Vol. 7 Wayne, Neb., Thur., Feb. 22, 1940 No. 17

"What do they mean by the 'witching hour'?"

"Don't you know? That's the hour when the wife greets you with 'which story is it this time?'"

For those quick fires in spring use Economy Nut. Economy starts quickly, is hot, and costs only $8.00 per ton.

There are many uses for lime around the farm. It's a good idea to have a supply on hand at all times. Get a package the very next time you are in town.

"Johnny, what's the difference between a battle and a massacre?"

"A battle is where a lot of whites kill a few Indians and a massacre is where a lot of Indians kill a few whites."

Well built brooder houses pay big dividends. If you have ever had a drafty, poorly-built brooder you know what we mean. And yet, the difference in cost between a well built brooder and one poorly built is very small. Come in and get our prices.

Only 75c. What? Carhart's water softener, of course.

"Dear, I saw the sweetest little hat in a shop today."
"Put it on and let me see how you look in it."

Everyone has his or her own ideas about the house they want to build. Sometimes it seems quite a job fitting these ideas in. If you need help, come to us. If we don't know the answer, we can at least put you in touch with someone who does. At any rate, don't let a few perplexing problems keep you from having that home of your own. Build this year!

The boat was sinking. The skipper rushed up to a crowd of scared passengers.

"Who among you can pray?" he asked them.

"I can," answered a minister.

"Then pray, minister," ordered the skipper. "The rest of you put on life preservers. We're one short."

Plainview Game Will Determine Conference Win

Wayne School Debaters Do Well on Saturday at Elk Point Meet.

Wayne high school basketball team meets Plainview this Friday here to determine conference title. Wayne now holds the lead and the Friday game is the last for the local team in the conference.

South Sioux City plays here Saturday night. Wayne high debaters entered a tournament at Elk Point Saturday. Bill Hawkins and Paul Harrington won two and lost two debates, winning from Elk Point and Yankton and losing to Beresford and Howard. Barbara Hook and Irwen Hatfield won three and lost one debate. They won from LeMars affirmative and negative and from Vermillion and lost to Bloomfield. Three new mathematical books added to the school library are: There Is Fun in Geometry, by L. Kasper, The Queen of the Sciences, by E. T. Bell, Mathematical Snapshots, by H. Steinhaus. These books are intended to give the reader more practical and enjoyable aspect of mathematics aside from the rules and facts which have to be learned in the classroom. More books are to be added in the near future. Miss Beatrice Fuller served as judge for the Wakefield declamation contest February 12. Juniors and seniors are competing in English to see which class can keep a more attractive and interesting bulletin board. The invitation for annual play day at Wayne college has been received for March 16. Senior gym class is making plans for the skit to be given then. In Seventh Grade. Junior high English classes are putting out the first issue of their paper, The Junior High Chatterbox, this week. New officers for the Citizenship club are: Alice Smolky, president; Donna Granquist, vice president; Billy Allen, secretary; and Richard Sala, treasurer. Sixth Grade News. In connection with a Valentine party February 14 pupils had a contest on making up Valentine rhymes. Pupils are writing friendly letters in language. Monday mystery sisters and brothers were selected and friendly letters written to them. Pupils also plan to correspond with the 6th graders in Bunker Hill school, Columbia, Miss. In response to a letter written by Jack Fitch, pupils received samples of toothpaste. The company also sent a wall chart, "Why Do Teeth Ache?" Fifth Grade News. Marilyn Swett, who moved here from Sioux City, enrolled in 5th grade Monday. Midget Town's new president is Paul Bramhall. Heading the cleanup committee is Billy Helpe, and the patrol committee has in charge David Carhart. These children, along with their helpers, were voted by other children as the best 5th graders for certain days. Nine have been on the Midget Town citizenship honor roll since it was started a few weeks ago. Wanda Koplin brought part of a pig's tongue for the class to examine in connection with hygiene. For Fourth Grade. The 4th graders completed a study of snow. Each child has a booklet with pictures, drawings, stories of snow countries and snow animals, poems and biographies. Bonita Cadwalader enrolled. She had been attending Winside school. In the sports club, based entirely on effort and good sportsmanship, Richard Reese ranks first with the most points. Virgil Puts is second and Donald Franzen third. In the reading group children who have continued to improve are Betty Steele, Françoise Steele, Billy Conry, Lawrence Kohrt, Dorothy Foltz, Lowell Fleming, June Horrell, Carol McIntosh, Russell Nelson, Norma McDonald, Rodney Steiner, Virgil Puts, Marvin Johnson, Richard Reese, Donald Franzen, Shirley Jones, DeVee Reikofski, Arlen Childs, Kurt Otte, Roland Johnson, Elaine Colson, Bob Bathke, Shirley Longe, Junior Thompson, Myla Granquist, Stanley Peterson and Anita-del Fitch. In Second Grade. Margie Lou Cary treated children Monday for her 7th birthday. All are making an effort to improve their reading and study habits. In a class discussion objectives were listed as being able to find answers to questions. When a child masters one ability his name is written on a chart under that particular ability. "Let's play it" is frequently heard in 2nd grade. It may be a story that all children have read or one found during library study. The plan helps make better readers.

Following Seven Years PRESIDENT Roosevelt's name is to appear on Nebraska's democratic primary ballot, and of course without opposition on the ticket, he will be declared the party's choice in this state.

Our mystery-loving president is likely to postpone announcement of his third-term intentions until the convention rolls around, and his satellites shout the emergency and demand which they have been creating.

Many observers welcome the president as a candidate for a third term. They think he should lead his shattered, limping policies, and thus courageously identify himself with them at the November interment.

Farm Life THE LINCOLN JOURNAL refers to Marie Sandoz's high evaluation of old-time farm hardships in strengthening and burnishing the human fiber.

Many of the singers of the praise of a life of hardship and privation on the farm are persons who availed themselves of the first opportunity to get away from the farm's discipline.

The Wayne county farm bureau, presided over by Chester Walters, agent, would seem as important to agricultural and live stock interests as any town organization is to commercial development.

IN COUNTRY. How much safer and freer and more agreeable to live in rural communities where everybody knows everybody! What a relief not to have to be suspicious of everybody — a usual safeguard among milling multitudes in great cities! What a source of comfort to know every one, to know what to expect from every one — a happy assurance in the country! Perhaps everybody in rural territory cannot always be trusted to do what he says he will do. Perhaps he is too weak always to reveal the truth. But if he is a doublecrosser — no matter how long he is branded and avoided as such, it is impossible to know every one in a big city, and slickers more easily conceal their dark, devilish motives there. In the country there are no great extremes of riches or poverty. People are not engaged in an incessant, feverish grind for dollars, and the result is an easier, more friendly state of mind.

"Mind" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, February 25.

The Golden Text is: "Great is our Lord, and of great power: his understanding is infinite" (Psalms 147:5).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For the Lord giveth wisdom: out of his mouth cometh knowledge and understanding" (Proverbs 2:6).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mind is God. The exterminator of error is the great truth that God, god, is the only Mind, and that the supposititious opposite of infinite Mind—called devil or evil—is not Mind, is not Truth, but error, without intelligence or reality. There can be but one Mind, because there is but one God; and if mortals claimed no other Mind and accepted no other, sin would be unknown. We can have but one Mind, if that one is infinite" (p. 469).

Alpha Psi Omega To Present Play

Alpha Psi Omega, dramatic fraternity, will present a three-act murder mystery Friday, March 1, at the college auditorium. The play, "The Donovan Affair," has a plot that grips from the rising of the first curtain to the drop of the final one.

Peter Rankin's home has been the scene of the bloody murder of Jack Donovan. Before the first murder is solved another murder is committed and one man has been shot. Besides these tragic events the past life of almost every one present has been revealed. Only at the very close of the drama is the guilty one disclosed.

A thread of a love story runs through the play and complicates the search for the murderer.

The hard-boiled inspector of police is played by Harold Boche; Professor Donovan, the father of the murdered Jack, Charles Pearce; Peter Rankin and his wife Linda, host and hostesses at the dinner party, played by James Kingston and Virginia Stroh; the philandering Niel Linsey and his wife Ruth are played by Ellis McShannon and Gretchen Niederwimmer; Ben Holt and Anne, the bride and bridegroom, are portrayed by Kenneth Pierson and Dorothy Carey; Nelson, the butler and Mary, the maid, are played by Werner Welchert and Maxine Humphreys. Assistants to the inspector are Carney, Vernon Jacobs, and Mrs. Dowd, the police matron, Hannah Doyle.

The play is directed by Miss Lenore P. Ramsey.

Mrs. Carl Nussland and Miss Helen Nuss were in Sioux City last Thursday.

Work Competing In State Contest

Marjorie Harrison Enters Opinion to Be Judged Next Saturday.

Marjorie Harrison, winner of the district D.A.R. citizenship contest held here Saturday, wrote a 50-word opinion on government affairs which will be considered in the state contest at Lincoln next Saturday. The state winner receives a free trip to Washington, D. C.

One senior girl from each of 10 towns was eligible for the district competition but only three schools had entries. Marjorie represented Wayne city school, Constance Owen Wayne prep and Betty McQuistan Wakefield. The scaled question on a topic regarding government was opened by Miss Hazel Reeve, chairman, after the girls were ready to write their opinions. Contestants picked numbers unknown to any excepting themselves. They were allowed one hour to write 50 words on the topic. The judges, Miss Coral Stoddard, F. B. Decker and Aldo Molinari, selected the best by number. They picked Marjorie's.

The question for the state contest was then opened and Marjorie wrote on this. Her entry was sealed in the presence of the judges and mailed to Lincoln.

In recent contests Betty Helen Ellis was state alternate and Marilyn Glenn was entered in state competition from Wayne.

Newspaper Death.

Termon, S. D. Leader: The Hurley Herald, for years a live newspaper representing a live community, has suspended publication. Although it is a common fault not to miss the water until the well runs dry, many Hurley residents are wise enough to know that the loss of their newspaper will sound the death knell of their town. The most valuable asset any community can have is its newspaper.

A newspaper cannot survive without support for which it gives far more than value received in return. A newspaper is the only advertising medium that reports the progress of a community, works for the development of a community, and records its history faithfully. Newspaper advertising always produces larger returns than those of any other medium. Manufacturers of automobiles and other articles and commodities who lead in the sale of their products are large users of newspaper space. They know that newspaper advertising pays because they can reach more people and particularly more people who read the advertisements and who have the money to buy.

Besides, no matter what the circumstances may be, a newspaper keeps the last vigil. When it folds up a community is already dead because it has chosen to die.

Wayne County Rural School News

School Tuition Total Compiled

Supt. F. B. Decker paid $383.50 to Norfolk high school for tuition for Wayne county pupils during the first semester. This makes a total of $12,335 paid schools for tuition for Wayne county rural pupils during the first half of the year.

Colored Maps and Codes Are Ordered

Supt. F. B. Decker has ordered historical maps of Nebraska for all rural schools of the county. These are like the one appearing in last week's Herald except that they are larger and are colored.

Schools will also receive copies of the flag code. Mrs. R. W. Ley has ordered them as a gift from Wayne D. A. R. chapter.

To District Meeting.

Supt. F. B. Decker was in Norfolk Monday to attend a district meeting of county superintendents. The group discussed problems of common interest and decided on uniform procedure for northeast Nebraska schools.

District 84.

(Opal Swanson, teacher.) At a Valentine party February 14 pupils exchanged Valentines. James Jones was a visitor. The 3rd and 4th graders designed attractive Lincoln booklets for language.

The 1st graders mastered 30 spelling words and all letters of the alphabet.

Margaret Eddie and Helen Harper will take 4th grade examinations in April. Noema Larsen and Virginia Larson have perfect attendance records for the term.

District 57.

(Lorna Granquist, teacher.) Donna Bauer has been neither absent nor tardy this year.

A Valentine party was enjoyed. A Wednesday afternoon last week all pupils brought and mailed Valentines in a red and white box and a mail man distributed them. Window and board decorations and appropriate calendars helped decorate the school room. Ice cream, cake and candy Valentines were refreshments.

Classes read poems and stories appropriate to Abraham Lincoln's birthday. Posters and calendars were also made for his birthday.

Hot lunches have been enjoyed cold days. Warren Dammie and Maxine Odegaard received 100 in spelling for the month. Others with good records were absent because of illness so were unable to compete.

District 69.

(Lozen Baird, teacher.) A shield in patriotic colors decorates the cover of the four-page bulletin, "Who's Who in Pleasant Valley," issued for February. Also on the cover is "I am Just an American" which is as follows: "Just today we chanced to meet down upon the crowded street; and I wondered when he came, what was one his nation's name. So I asked him. Tell me true, are you Pole or Russian Jew, English, Scotch, Italian, Russian, Belgian, Spanish, Swiss, Moravian, Dutch or Greek or Scandinavian? Then he raised his head on high, and he gave this reply, 'What I was is naught to me, in this land of liberty. In my song, as man to man, I am just American.'"

Valentines were exchanged February 14 and Melvin Otte served as postmaster. Darrell Gamble and Marilyn Gamble delivered the Valentines.

The book, "Josie and Joe," has been completed. Two snow forts have been built on the grounds and children enjoy playing in them.

Melvin Otte and Arthur Grone were on the affirmative and Rayoma Heikes and Don Simonin on the negative in a debate on "Resolved: That our school room is sanitary." Lyle Gamble was timekeeper and judge.

In a review in geography, the class established what they pretended were broadcasting stations. Darrell Gamble, broadcasting from station WARM, reported conditions in southern states. Lowell Mann announced from station COLD and told about northern states.

Bobby Simonin, 1st grader, is reading his first grade book. Older girls are embroidering tea towels in spare time. These tea towels will be sent to the fair this fall.

Children at the Crossroads

Ernest L. Reeker

"I'll Make Him or Break Him." Brilliant intellectually, Frank was small for his 14 years. When the police officer who arrested him was questioned as to what kind of boy Frank was, he declared, "He is the terror of the whole neighborhood where he lives. He steals everything he can lay his hands on."

The basic complaint against Frank was that he had assaulted a companion and stolen his show money. Unaware of the fact that Frank was an illegitimate child, the judge, asked him who his father was. The lad replied, "I don't know. I guess my mammy picked me off a tree."

Evidence disclosed that Frank had been "farmed out" from relative to relative, and an uncle who appeared in court with him stated, "You do whatever your please, judge. I tried to beat all h--- out of him, but it won't work."

Frank stood before the court, looked the judge in the eye and emphatically denied every single charge against him. The judge did not dispute Frank's denial, but asked him the same questions over and over; and each time, Frank, weakening, told his story differently. Soon the truth slipped out, the judge's attitude having won Frank's confidence. The boy hung his head in shame.

A few boys can be sent to the industrial school and be benefited thereby. Some come out full-fledged criminals, and Frank seemed to be the type that would so react. Realizing this, the judge called in a middle-aged business man, a captain over-seas during the World war, who had captured, single-handedly, four German machine-gun nests.

Would he be willing to act as "big brother" to Frank? "You bet I will," was his unforgettable reply. "And I'll either make him or break him."

The captain put Frank to work in his business, compelled him to report in the morning before school and come to his place of business after school. Occasionally it was necessary to lay Frank across his knees and give him an old-fashioned spanking.

"Big brother" visited Frank in his school-room often and unexpectedly. He took him fishing and to movies. After 12 months' daily attention he gained the confidence and friendship of his rebellious young soldier.

The arresting officer, who apparently harbored a secret fear of Frank, then came into court one day and asked, "What sort of magic did you fellows use on the little son-of-a--- Frank?"

"Officer," the judge said, "we didn't do a thing except to help Frank find himself."

army at Hawikuh, a Cibola village, for several weeks, resting and gathering provisions and news of the land. Exploring parties were sent to the northwest where another group of cities was found in the province of Tusayan. These natives, drawn up in battle form behind a line of corn meal which they had made, insisted that the Spaniards should advance no further. Impatient at this delay, the Spaniards gave the Santejo (war cry) and rushed to run down the Indians' who, were, afoot and at a great disadvantage, and who fled before them. Indians from the whole province then came in to submit, bringing presents of cotton cloths, skins, corn meal and turquoise.

Having learned of a river of great width and high banks, a party, well stocked with provisions supplied by the natives, went westward until stopped by the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. This was the first time Europeans had seen it.

While in Cieuve a city of Tiguex, they learned of the buffalo and took an Indian slave, a native of Florida. He told Alvarado of such great things about the wealth of a country to the east that he lost interest in seeing cows and hastened to tell Coronado the good news. Coronado rejoiced to hear about the level country in which there was a river six miles wide, where big canoes sailed with awnings, golden eagles on the prows and 20 rowers on a side. They learned that Tartarax, lord of that country, took his nap in a garden of roses, under a tree upon which hung a great number of little gold bells. The commonest dishes were of wrought silver and beaten gold. The king prayed by means of a string of beads and a cross of gold; he worshipped the image of a woman, the queen of Heaven. The name of this kingdom was Quivera.

The army started out from Cieuve, and after a four days' journey they came to a river (Rio Pecos). They had to build a bridge in order to cross it. They passed settlements whose inhabitants confirmed the Turk's statements. The soldiers took skins and other articles from the natives. They passed through settlements, through which Cabeza de Vaca had gone. This somewhat reassured the soldiers, although another native of Quivera and some native with whom the Turk had not conversed said that Quivera was farther north than the Turk was leading them. As they passed over the prairies the advance division made occasional piles of rocks or buffalo chips to guide the main army.

When they had traveled 37 days and had covered about 250 leagues from Tiguex, they found that provisions were running low and that there were no settlements where they could procure more. Suspicion had increased against the Turk and he was put in chains; Ysopete was accepted as the guide. Considering these conditions, Coronado decided to proceed with 30 horsemen and a half dozen other soldiers.

They had been traveling east and a little south toward the Florida country. They now began to travel north and a little east. After 48 days they found

A dispatch from England, 60 years ago, according to the Northern Nebraska Journal published at Ponca by Wm. Huse, expressed regret that truly English Christian names were all but unknown. In the "good old English days," the paper stated, names were compounded from words having significance, such as mercy, charity, patience, earnest. After the invasion of that country by Duke William, such names as John, Thomas, William, James, Mary, Ellen and Elizabeth became common.

Farm Bloc Members Defend Agriculture

(Special to the Herald by Karl Stefan, M. C.)

The 1941 bill making appropriations for our department of agriculture, is in the hands of the senate, after being riddled by the house.

The president sent it to congress with a total of 789 million dollars as compared with a billion and 300 million a year ago. (Back in 1904 it was 15 billion.)

The farm bloc set up a real fight in the house to defend the farmer, but to no avail and the bill was finally sent to the senate with a total of 722 million dollars recommended. A bitter fight is being staged in the senate at least to raise the amount to that recommended by the president, and also to include farm tenancy and the staling plow.

The blows dealt in the house over the farm bill have left bitter wounds. The farm bloc, composed of both republicans and democrats, feels that the industrial district colleagues are discriminating against the farmer in their economy push and are showing too much favor to the army and navy.

The farm group is also dissatisfied at the administration, including the president and secretary of agriculture, for publicly yelling for parity payments and then failing officially and before the house committees, to ask for this item.

They charge that the administration has made a promise, and an agreement with the farmers to the effect that if the farmers reduce their acreage and submit to regulation, the administration will give the farmers parity prices; that the farmers have carried out their end of the agreement but are not receiving parity prices and the administration has made no effort whatever to get the parity item into the bill, but has gone out of the way to demand huge sums be provided for the army and navy.

Most of the farm district members want $225,000,000 placed in the bill for parity payments — a sum similar to that of last year. They also want $83,000,000 provided for purchasing of farm commodities. The south is sworn to fight to the end for farm tenancy money.

Until some permanent and equitable solution is found for the farm problem, the farm state members feel that the promises made to the farmers must be carried out. They believe that if subsidies are being made to other sections of the nation's business life, the farm business is entitled to its share and must be given help until it catches up with business and industry.

That is one of the answers given to Earl Smith, vice-president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who was quoted in the house as follows:

"Everything yet done by congress for the solution of the farm problem has been done to appease the farmer rather than to solve the agricultural problem."

Ed. O'Neill, national president of the same farm organization, looks at it differently and asked the committee to raise the parity payments from 225 million to 800 million dollars.

Bill Lemke, North Dakota congressman and author of the farm reference bill, also feels that the present farm program represents just so many "handouts" and appeasements but he feels, like other farm state members, that it will have to suffice until the cost of production and farm refinancing bills are enacted into law. Incidentally, over 100 members have signed the petition to get these two bills out of the hands of the committee which is holding them up.

While this fight continues over the farm money bill for next year, a lot of farmers over the country are short over nine million dollars in benefit payments for 1939. The agricultural department miscalculated that much and are now asking that this money be transferred from the 1940 provision of 225 million. The senate has asked that this be done, but they find opposition in those who say that will just cut about a cent per bushel off the 1940 parity payments. Now a deficiency bill is suggested.

In the meantime, the fight on the farm bill in the senate is being carefully watched. Secretary Wallace who gave little help to those demanding the parity payments before the sub-committee, is now quoted as being in favor of the parity money. But he is also quoted as anxious for support of his streamlined processing plan to make the parity payments self-liquidating. Strong opposition has developed in recent weeks, so whatever the chief of our agriculture department has to say about parity payments in the senate hearings will be of the utmost importance to the farmers at home who are wondering what our future farm programs are to be. The hearings will start in the very near future.

Rural School

the long sought for kingdom of Quivera and the hairy headed old ruler King Tartarax. They found no magnificent cities, no metals and precious gems, no beads or huge fish. The villages were much like those of New Spain, the houses were round with straw roofs, covering lots in which the people slept. Coronado and his followers were bitterly disappointed. They were reluctant to return to New Spain with a report of their discoveries. In one of Coronado's reports we find: "Where I reached Quivera it was the 40th degree. He permitted his guides to lead him on northward as they said there were things there of great importance. Having come to a large river and thicker settlements they said that this was the end of Quivera. Having asked if there was nothing beyond, he was told that a settlement known as Huatley was beyond, which was much like Quivera. Coronado sent for the Lord of Harahney, who came with 200 naked men.

Here he erected a cross. At the foot of it he chiseled, "Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, general of the Spanish army arrived here." He spent the winter in Tigüex, intending to return in the spring to explore and settle the land. A short time before the army was ready to set out for Quivera in the spring the general had a fall from his horse. Recalling the prophecy that he would not recover, Coronado wished to return to his wife and children at New Spain to die. Many soldiers hinted that the fall was used as an excuse to get back to his beautiful wife. At any rate Coronado returned to New Spain and never returned to that region.

While the village decayed, interest in Lincoln grew. The first step in recreating New Salem came in 1906 when Wm. Randolph Hearst became interested in preserving the site and bought it. In 1918 the land was transferred to the state. The sum of $50,000 was appropriated in 1931 for restoring the village. Cornerstone for the first reconstructed building, the Berry-Lincoln store, was laid in November, 1932. The only original building in the restored New Salem is the Onstot cooper shop. This was built in 1834, moved to Petersburg in 1840 and returned to New Salem in 1922. In this shop Lincoln studied Blackstone, Shakespeare and Burns by the light of the cooper's shavings. Thirteen cabins, six shops and the Rutledge tavern have been reproduced and furnished as they were in the 1830's. Many of the articles are the original, such as wheat cradles, candle molds, cord beds, flax shuttles, wool cards, dough and corn meal chests, early American plaster and earthenware. For the doctors' offices there are mortars and pestles, surgeons' instruments; medicine chests and old medical texts; for the cobblers' shop, awls, lasts and rasps; for the tavern, old kitchen and tableware; and for the store, call-cob bolts, implements, jars and items of merchandise typical of the times. Even flower and vegetable gardens and trees have been planted for historical authenticity and to recreate the original village scene. Red haw, Osage orange hedges, wild crab, wild plum, shadblow, witch hazel, wild blackberry, wild gooseberry and other trees and plants popular with New Salem pioneers have been planted. At the homes of the two doctors in the village herb gardens grow again. The state continues its restoration each year. The dam, and saw and grist mill on the Sangamon river are under construction, and plans are being drawn for the Hill carding mill to be operated by ox power. The ultimate goal is to reproduce in every detail the New Salem of a century ago so that visitors today may get a glimpse of the surroundings that inspired Abraham Lincoln.

Restore New Salem Village

The month of February, with its birthdays of famous Americans, brings to the fore news about movements connected with members of these patriots. New Salem park, a restoration being conducted by the state of Illinois, is one of these. Details of this have just come to Mr. and Mrs. John Sylvanus of Wayne.

As the passing years add to the stature of Lincoln among figures in history, so do they enhance the significance and importance of New Salem state park among the shrines of America. Infinite labor and research characterize the recreation of the village where young Lincoln clerked in a store, chopped wood, enlisted in the Black Hawk war; served as postmaster, deputy surveyor and legislator, failed in business and courted Ann Rutledge.

The park, situated on a hill 100 feet high, overlooks the Sangamon river valley in west central Illinois, about 100 miles northwest of Springfield. It was on this bluff in 1828 that James Rutledge and John Campion erected their homes and the following year, after building their grist and saw mill on the river below, laid out the town of New Salem and started selling lots. Strangely the six years that Lincoln spent in New Salem almost completely encompass the town's brief history. The community was growing and thriving when Lincoln reached there in 1831, but in 1839, just two years after he went to Springfield to practice law and advance himself in the fascinating maze of politics, the county seat was established at nearby Petersburg and New Salem declined rapidly.

APPROVING A 'NEW CONCEPT' These statements by the Liquor Control Commission and the Press should interest Nebraskans. W. W. CARMICHAEL, Chairman Nebraska Liquor Control Commission

THE PRESS... North Platte Bulletin "As an example of an industry which by its nature is likely to be subjected to abuse from within or from without, Nebraska's beer industry still sets the pace for the country... also the industry has now become a vital factor in the state's economy. It pays heavy taxes, it pilfers its own constituents and it ties its best to do a job respectably and well."

Omaha World-Herald "Much of the work of this organization is of a kind that the public does not see. It consists of friendly hints and suggestions to beer retailers which usually meet with ready compliance. In stubborn cases where it appears that the strong arm of the law only will suffice, the Committee lends its assistance to secure convictions and suspension or revocation of licenses."

The Norfolk Daily News "The committee has lately been active in the Omaha drive to rid the city of the 'dine-a-drink' and gut sutures and has been working behind the scenes to advise and warn beer drinkers as to their practices in conforming with the law. Mr. Sandall, in his address to the lawyers of Omaha, said he believed that the Committee was performing the purpose for which it was established and that a better observance of the law by beer licensees will result."

We are grateful for expressions like these. We are going forward in 1940 with renewed determination in behalf of our industry self-regulation program based on this "new concept" of responsibility. Nebraska Brewers & Beer Distributors Committee CHARLES E. SANDALL, State Director 710 First National Bank Bldg., Lincoln

Scouts Set Aside Month of February To Promote Peace Lord Baden-Powell saw the goals of scouting as the development of people whose qualities of mind and spirit would lead to better understanding among human beings. And so to friendship across natural boundaries as a step towards permanent peace. The dream of international friendship is one cherished by the girl scouts. One month out of each year, February, is dedicated to this ideal. In their own small way, girl scouts make a contribution to better understanding among the peoples of the world. They correspond with fellow scouts in other countries. They study the gifts of other nations to their community, and to their country. They inquire into the origins of their own family and of their friends. Understanding grows as they become acquainted with cities, towns, rivers, in other lands—places that have associations because their parents or their friends' parents once lived near them. Each summer a group of selected girl scouts embark for Switzerland to live for a few weeks at the girl scout chalet at Adelboden in company with sister scouts from all corners of the earth. There they learn first-hand that language, and a variation in custom, are the only real differences between themselves and their friends. They come to know that Nanette has an older brother whom she loves dearly. That Jean loves her Scottish moors in the same way that we love our rolling hills, and sweet-smelling plains. That Elsa, the Swedish delegate, shy and grave, burns with the desire to serve humanity. That gay, laughing Kati from the land of windmills, worries about favorable trade agreements for her country. At night, round the council fire, they discuss peace and how they can help further it among their countries. Each group has agreed that first, there must be understanding. Year after year American girls cross the seas to meet their sisters in scouting. And each year the nucleus of young women acquainted with the thinking of other nations grows larger. On their return they spread the news of their happy encampment. The circle of understanding grows wider. Later, they pass their experiences onto their children. And the circle grows wider still. When misunderstandings arise among those nations typified by the faces of loving friends, these girls become keepers of the girl scout watchword, "Go and find out the facts." Having known Nanette, and Jean, and Elsa, and Kati, they will not believe propaganda. They must have the facts. Knox county board met February 20 to consider a request for dividing Herricks township in that county and making two townships from it. The request, made by a petition signed by 160, says the township is too large to function for the best interests of all. Opposition to the proposal is based on the fact that the north half is so hilly and has such low valuation that it may not be able to maintain itself alone.

Restored New Salem Village. Karl Stefan of Norfolk filed Wednesday for reelection as congressman from the Third Nebraska district, which comprises 22 counties in the northeastern part of the state. Congressman Stefan is completing his sixth year in the house of representatives. In the 76th congress he has been a member of the important committee on appropriations. Born on a little farm in Bohemia, on March 1, 1884, Stefan came with his parents to Omaha, where he became messenger and check boy in the telegraph office. Learning telegraphy, he worked in many states, then became a member of the telegraph division of the Philippine constabulary and served through the Felizardo campaign. Following this, he worked in a number of foreign countries as an interpreter, but returned to Omaha to be employed on the Omaha Bee. In 1909 he located in Norfolk as Associated Press telegrapher, later becoming city editor of the Norfolk Daily News. He resigned this position in 1924 to become wholesale representative of several large magazine houses. In 1922 he became the first announcer of radio station WJAG in Norfolk and continued in that capacity for 12 years, discontinuing his radio work upon election to congress in 1934. From Washington, where congress is now in session, Congressman Stefan issued the following statement in connection with his candidacy for reelection: "My first thought now is of conditions in my home district, where the people have had to battle year after year against the most discouraging series of crop failures in our history. Northeast Nebraska will again raise big crops, but until that day comes we must endeavor to help farmers stay on the land, to keep open the doors of our churches and schools, to keep up our morale. "I have tried to help by giving personal attention to the thousands of individual problems which come to the Third district office and by supporting farm legislation which seemed sound and workable. "I have opposed bureaucracy government extravagance and un-American influences. I am opposed to dabbling in European politics. Visiting Europe last summer I stood with bowed head before the graves of our American boys and vowed to fight every movement which might involve our nation in the insane quarrels of European diplomats. "I can make no new promises for the future, but will renew the pledge given at the beginning of my public service: To give the people of northeast Nebraska vigorous, honest representation, without regard to partisan politics. Miss Delia Nye of Filget was married February 10 to W. E. Wise in Washington, D. C.
