Some southerners who live here would like the slave days to be back again. They still hold a grudge against the north and also against Lincoln. That is seen in the celebrations of the two great birthday anniversaries — Washington and Lincoln.

As was predicted, the house voted to continue the president's power to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements for another three years without ratification by the house and the senate.

The alleged Finnish loan bill was passed by the house as it was passed by the senate. As passed, the bill says nothing about a loan to Finland. It does not provide for one.

More than 75 million dollars was spent by one organization in the United States to assist the rehabilitation of alien refugees during the past few years.

When the agricultural appropriation bill was going over its last hurries in the house recently, Representative Wadsworth told of an incident that happened 36 years ago.

If a foreign agent wants to come to the United States to do some lobbying, or if he wants to come here and get some business for foreign steamship lines, or foreign railroads, or foreign corporations, or foreign factories, or if he wants to come here to lecture and spread information about foreign governments, he has to register with our department of state.

The following is a partial list of the results of the Dies committee's work: Fritz Kuhn is in Sing Sing; Earl Browder is on the way to Leavenworth; several communist leaders are under indictment for passport frauds; the American League for Peace and Democracy, the leading Communist transmission belt in America, has folded up; the American Civil Liberties, another important communist front organization, is cleaning house — ousting all "ism" members from executive positions, and electing a new chairman opposed to communism; our department of justice has become active in prosecuting subversive agents in the nation; and last — but far from being least — we now have an aroused, awakened America, determined to get rid of the "enemies within our gates."

There are now 40 members on the committee which has been organized by house members to do something real about the unemployment problem. This committee has put this problem down as the number one piece of unfinished business in the nation. Just what to do about it is the object of the search of this committee which is composed of members of both major parties. Committees are being selected to study some of the following questions: Agriculture, immigration, technology, chemistry, patents, mass production, youth affairs, and many other subjects. Unless the unemployed problem is solved soon, this group feels the nation faces serious danger.

If later lambs can be produced cheaply enough they may be marketed in the fall, even though the market is lower, with an equal profit. Ewes lambing on grass will require less grain than ewes lambing early, and if the summer and fall pasture is very good lambs may be sold off grass without grain and top the market.

Market Outlook Good For Lambs

Nebraska sheep producers may be supplying more early lambs for the market this year than ever before, in the opinion of Walter Tolman, assistant extension livestockman at the University of Nebraska.

The Easter rites of the Orthodox Greek church and the Jewish Passover, coming at about the same time, create a special demand for these choice 60 to 70-pound lambs; and the Easter market is usually the highest of the year.

Lambs selling before June 10 ordinarily have been lambing before March 1, have received plenty of milk from their mothers and almost always grain in addition, and must have been sired by thick-bodied, early-maturing rams.

Creep-feeding early lambs pays since it not only helps get them ready for a favorable market but experiments at the University of Nebraska indicate a bushel of corn or grain sown eaten by a lamb will produce 12 pounds additional weight which will sell for double the cost of the grain.

Poultry Meeting Held for Farmers

Jack Redditt Lists Chicken Feeding As Bringing Best Returns.

Over a period of years, poultry will bring a higher return for the amount of feed fed than any other kind of livestock, according to Jack Redditt, poultry specialist from the agricultural extension service at Lincoln, who held two meetings in Wayne county Tuesday of this week.

Problems discussed in the meetings were brooding, feeding and management of sanitation. Mr. Redditt listed the following points in regard to management, stating it is much easier to prevent diseases than it is to cure them:

1, clean feeds, feeders and feeding practices; 2, clean water, waterers and watering equipment and practices; 3, screen platforms for feeders and waterers which will prevent chicks picking in waste and litter; 4, clean litter, changing the litter as often as necessary to prevent fifth accumulation; 5, provide all feed in feeders rather than scattering it in the litter; 6, provide clean ground for range; 7, provide tender, green feeds to help balance the chicks' diet and thus maintain good health and growth.

Turkey Production Evidences Increase

With Nebraska turkey production in 1940 apparently headed for a new high record, many growers are considering the possibility of over expansion, Extension Poultryman J. H. Claybaugh pointed out this week.

Last year, Nebraska produced nearly a million turkeys—a 60 per cent increase over the 1938 crop. Total United States production was estimated at around 32 million, or a 22 per cent increase over the preceding year.

With more than 65 million pounds of the 1939 turkey crop in storage, there will be less demand for early hatched, out-of-season turkeys. The storage holdings are expected to effect prices during the summer and early fall.

Predictions of a record Nebraska production again this year are based on the following observations: There is an increase in breeding stock of 10 to 40 per cent. Despite much lower prices, careful growers profited from their 1939 operations.

There is a tendency for growers who started with small flocks to increase the size by starting full size brooder house units. Poultry packing houses are offering a minimum guaranteed contract price near the cost of production.

"Matter" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, March 24.

The Golden Test is "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal" (Matt. 6:19).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Every law of matter or of the body, supposed to govern man, is rendered null and void by the law of Life, God... God is the law-maker, but He is not the author of barbarous codes... Let us banish sickness as an outlaw, and abide by the rule of perpetuated harmony—God's law" (pp. 389, 381).

Rat Control Here Is Demonstrated. Most animal pests, while doing a certain amount of damage to man or his interests, have some redeeming features to offset the harm, according to Don B. Whelan of the university college of agriculture, who was here last week to conduct rat extermination demonstrations at the Lee Selton, H. J. Podoll and Lawrence Bard places. But in the past 100 years the rat has revealed nothing to make up, even in part, for the harm it does. Estimate of Damage on Farm. There have been several estimates of the amount of damage done to the farmer by rats. One conservative estimate is that it costs the farmer $1 for every rat on his farm. Even on farms with few rats there are probably at least 50 of these rodents which would mean an average cost per farm of $50 per year. Still another way of looking at it is that each rat will eat the equivalent of 50 pounds of grain each year. Besides this, rats waste and spoil more than they eat. Besides grain, they feed on stored fruits and vegetables, as well as flower buds, seeds, stock and poultry feed. They will kill the young of poultry and many animals, as well as feed on crops growing in the field. This is not all of the damage they do for they make holes in farm buildings and carry many kinds of diseases. Rat Migrations. There are two general migrations on the farm. The fall migration takes place in October when food becomes less attractive in the fields and rats go to farm buildings for shelter and food. The spring migration usually takes place in April when they leave the farmyard and go to the fields, not all, however, leaving the protection of the farm buildings. In this county, according to recent reports, there are 1,523 farms. Using the conservative figure of $50 per farm the damage done by rats in Wayne county is about $76,650 annually. Control Campaign. As a preliminary to the actual control campaign rats must be kept from obtaining food, water or shelter. If there is a shortage of food there will be fewer rats to fight and the number of young they raise will be much smaller. Also if they are deprived of food, they will more readily take the poisoned food given to them. To remove their shelter, block up their burrows in the ground or in buildings, as far as possible. Remove old lumber or junk piles around which they may be living. Poisoned Baits. In the control of rats the kind of bait is much more important than the kind of poison. In preparing the poisoned baits the poison must be mixed in the bait material in a thorough manner. In deciding upon the kinds of baits to use give them the kind they are short of. Around grain bins and corn cribs fresh meats would be better but other places cereal, fruit or vegetable baits might prove to be more attractive. In poisoning rats, do not mix up just a little bait to try it out. Mix up a lot and put it all out so that more rats can be served. Many small parcels of baits are much better than a few larger packages. Be sure to put out enough in all places where the rats might be found. Place them out in the evening and gather the uneaten baits in the morning before they can be found by farm animals or children. About a teaspoonful of the bait is placed in a piece of paper and the paper twisted to keep the bait in. These are dropped in back of boards, in dark corners and other places where the rats frequent. When the baits are taken up in the morning be sure to burn them or bury them deep enough so animals will not dig them up. Remember they are poison. Kinds of Rat Poison. Many kinds of poisons are used to kill rats but only two are recommended: Red squill and barium carbonate. The others are too dangerous to be generally recommended. Red squill is the safest poison to use against rats. It is less liable to poison farm animals. It loses its strength when exposed to air. Safety to other farm animals is one of the main reasons for using it. It has a sharp, biting taste so most animals will leave it alone. Barium carbonate is a comparatively cheap poison that is tasteless, odorless and does not lose its strength on exposure to air. But it will kill other animals if they find and eat the baits. These baits must not be left lying around. In using the red squill one ounce is mixed with one pound of the bait. Since it is a powder, first add a little water to make a thin paste. THOMAS ERWIN Concord. BILGER PEARSON Wakefield.

Here's Your DeKALB SEED. If you want to save money on seed this spring, plant highest yielding De Kalb hybrid seed corn in round grades and save two to three dollars a bushel. DeKalb's perfected 3-way grade - length, width and thickness - insures round kernel seed that's easy to plant, with accuracy equal to the most uniform flat grades. We have a special plan that will be helpful in reducing seed cost. I will be delivering corn from the Wayne Motor Co. every Saturday. Come in and see this fine seed. I have a limited supply of extra stock in all grades. ALFRED SYDOW Phone 7F22 Wayne, Neb.

WANT ADS. TOUGH LUCK - You can't blame a man for growing poor crops if the rains don't come when they should... if the bugs swarm all over the farm... and if the hot winds burn the plants to living ash, That's tough luck. That's when a fellow needs ANOTHER CHANCE. The DeKalb Agricultural Association has made "special provisions" to give 1939's hard-hit Nebraska farmers ANOTHER CHANCE in 1940. These provisions are designed to lighten the hybrid seed corn cost at planting time, just when many Nebraska farmers need "a break" the most. I have been authorized by the DeKalb Agricultural Association to go into your problem with you and help you over the bumps. Ask me to tell you about this plan. Come in and see the fine seed I am distributing this year.

Don't Want 'War Prosperity.'
(Omaha Journal-Stockman.)
On one point, apparently, American business men are fairly well agreed: They do not want a prosperity built upon war. Reports that some concerns have refused to accept war orders probably are exaggerated, but they reflect a quite general feeling that no lasting good can come to this country through war business, even though our own nation remains neutral and at peace.

This attitude is not dictated to any degree by humanitarian reasons, but is the product of cold, hard logic, plus a recollection of the lessons learned following the last war. So far as that goes, there is little danger of our being deluged with any war prosperity or inflation so long as we stick to our present neutrality laws and the cash-and-carry principle which they embody. As matters stand, most lines of business probably are being hindered more by the war than they are being helped. Certainly that appears to be true of agriculture.

But that's the business men, is the way they would prefer to have it. Even if they were offered them, they want none of the fleeting wealth that was being, for the bump back to reality which inevitably follows such a financial spree is too abrupt and painful.

This slight on business thinking is something that farmers and stockmen may well consider carefully in planning future operations. Adoption of a similar sound and conservative attitude in their own affairs will undoubtedly save agriculture from costly disappointments.

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, MARCH 21, 1940

NUMBER FORTYSIX

Queen Elizabeth Makes Epic Trip

The Queen Elizabeth, England's mighty "sea queen" that made its epic dash across the U-boat-infested north Atlantic on its maiden voyage, was equipped with 29,000 gallons of Socony-Vacuum oil products—enough to take care of the requirements of 23,200 motor cars, the total automobile population of cities the size of Detroit, Gary or Knoxville—for charging the four great turbines, according to word received by R. G. Fuchter, local dealer.

"All the cumulative experience which the Socony-Vacuum oil company has gained in the manufacture of Mobiloil and Mobilgas was put behind the specific problem of properly lubricating the Queen Elizabeth," Mr. Fuchter is informed. "Oil specialists naturally had the advantage of experience they had gained in lubricating the Normandie and Queen Mary."

The Queen Elizabeth is the world's largest ship. Her length is 1,081 feet and her beam 118 feet. Steam is supplied by 12 huge boilers, the largest ever made for a ship. They generate steam at the terrific pressure of 425 pounds per square inch. The total length of the engines is 220 feet, and each of the 257,000 turbine blades had to be tested and fitted by hand.

Mrs. Sarah Tracy of Adams, who had visited in the Mrs. Gus Wendt home, went to Omaha Friday to visit her brother.

Road Contracts Are to Be Let

Several Improvements to Be Made in This Part Of Nebraska.

New surfacing is to be contracted for 146.7 miles and resurfacing for 155.4 miles. The improvements will make possible continuous pavement on No. 77 from the Kansas line north to Lyons and on No. 81 from Madison north to No. 20.

In addition to the Wayne-Laurel project, hard surfacing will be let on 18 miles on the new location of No. 81 between Norfolk and Pierce, also on 12 miles between Oakland and Walthill.

Education Suffers In State Program

Nebraska Ranks Highest in Holding Students to Their Graduation.

That education has suffered considerably during the curtailment program of the past few years was shown in statistics quoted for Wayne branch of A.A.U.W. Thursday evening in reports from study groups.

Nebraska's state employees have increased to 55,000 while the staffs of the teachers colleges have decreased.

Public assistance is given to 250,000 or 18 per cent of the people in this state. The sum spent for this purpose is $85,638,946 or $26.13 for each resident. Of each 1,000 in Nebraska, 269 are over 65 years of age and 217 of these are receiving public assistance.

Property tax pays a heavier proportion for educational purposes than the total tax dollar. Miss Louise Wendt showed. The property tax dollar is divided as follows: State fund, 13.8; county, 21.7; city, 21; school, 43.5. Of the whole tax set-up 17 per cent goes to education.

The unusually large number of school districts is shown in the fact that the state is 15th in area, 32nd in population and 8th in number of school districts.

Nebraska is first among the states in holding high school enrollees through graduation. Miss Ida Fisher stated. Of the 8th grade graduates, 94 per cent enter high school and 57 per cent take college preparatory work. A direct relation is shown between the number of years in school and the adaptability to employment.

Reports on Withdrawals.

A survey of college withdrawals in Nebraska, given by Mrs. H. D. Griffin, shows that the mortality is 1.4 per cent greater in public than in private schools. The withdrawals are 14.5 per cent greater in public and 19 per cent greater in private colleges of this state than in respective types in the United States.

Records show that of 100 students entering public colleges, 50.8 per cent leave the first year, 71.7 by end of the second year, 76.5 by third year and 78.9 by close of the fourth year. Mortality is 12.5 per cent greater among women than men in public schools. Private colleges also have 6.3 per cent more women withdraw than men. The reverse is true in the two classes of colleges for the United States.

Relatively fewer degrees are obtained in Nebraska in the four-year period than in the country as a whole. In this state private colleges issue 2.4 per cent more degrees than do public colleges. Private and public colleges of Nebraska grant 18.6 and 12.9 per cent less degrees than are granted to similar colleges in the United States. Men exceed women in obtaining degrees in the four-year period. The reverse is true in the United States.

Financial difficulties are given for about one third of the withdrawals reported. Next important cause is taking of positions. Drop outs increase progressively from less than 17 years to 20 years and over.

Training Aids Placings.

Results from 4,900 questionnaires sent to college graduates show that 86 per cent obtain jobs in the line of their training within three months after graduation. Mrs. G. W. Costerisan reported. Nursing leads the list with 95 per cent getting employment. Others following are: Agriculture, 94; business, dentistry, pharmacy and teaching, each 91; medicine, 90; engineering, 88; fine arts and journalism, each 79; law, 77; liberal arts, 76.

Men and women seem to have equally good success in obtaining jobs. As a rule men's salaries exceed those of women. Jobs are usually well in line with previous school training. Initial pay is usually satisfactory in agriculture, business administration, dentistry, engineering, law, medicine and nursing, and rather low in journalism, liberal arts, pharmacy and teaching.

Reports on Plastics.

Plastics were stressed by Mrs. G. B. Childs who reported for the social studies group. The numerous uses and many advantages of lucite, plexiglass, bakelite, coffee plastics and other products being made from mineral and vegetable materials were stressed.

Play Is Presented.

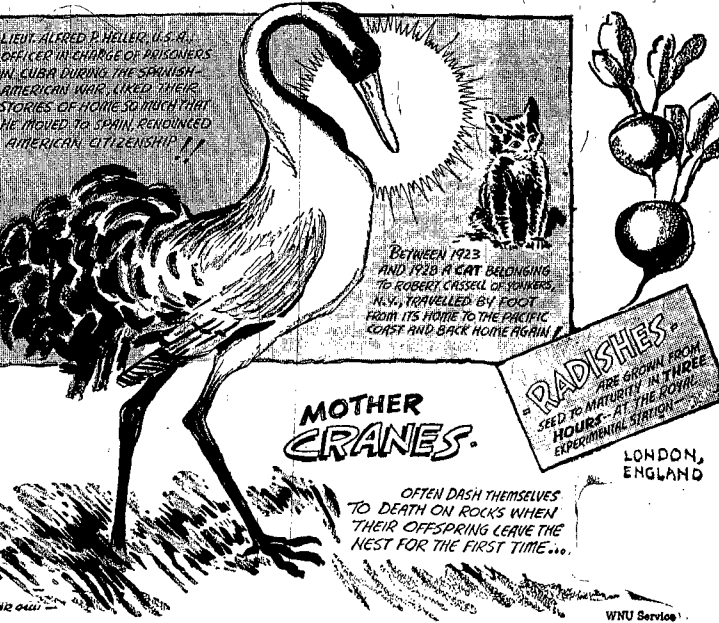

Drama group presented a play, "They Are None of Them Perfect," with parts taken by Mrs. J. A. Moore, Miss Gretta Hackenberg, Mrs. H. E. Ley, Mrs. Clara Heylman, Miss Ruth Ross and Mrs. D. S. Wightman.

Refreshments, carrying out St. Patrick motif, were served by Mrs. T. S. Hook, Miss Lois Crouch, Mrs. W. F. Dierking, Miss Beatrice Fuller.

Exchanges

Wm. Herbolsheimer of Pierce, died March 8 at the age of 53 years. Miss Lois Utecht and Roy Marks of Pierce, were married Sunday last week. Elaine, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kratochvil of Pierce, died March 9. Seven damage actions appear on the Cedar county district court docket for the session opening this week. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Webb observed their 55th wedding at Laurel, March 4. The former is 81 and the latter 76.

But It's True

The former American officer is now serving with the government army as a colonel. He has a wife who was born in Spain, and they have five children. Some of his closest friends, he reported 10 years ago, were men who had been in his charge as prisoners in Cuba. The cat wore a collar on which its owner's name was inscribed. People in almost every state along the way reported feeding the pet, including Charles H. Hackett of Santa Clara, Calif. The cat was well when it ended the round trip, knew its home.

A son, Allen Henry, was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Peterson March 15, 1924. Judge Ben Landsey of Denver, who has won world fame because of his juvenile court work, will speak in Wayne. E. A. Chapman will head Wakefield school again next year. Other teachers are Mrs. W. E. Bucklin, Miss Vida Beck, Mrs. Hilda Nelson, Miss Eleanor Borg, Miss Lotie Ostrander. August Kay is having new buildings erected on his place south of Wakefield. A daughter was born March 13, 1924, to Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Koonce. Mrs. Koonce is the former Edna Hinnerichs of Wakefield. Wakefield nominated C. S. Beebe, E. J. Burman, C. L. Davis and V. H. R. Hanson candidates for school board. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rewinkle of Concord, March 8, 1924. thony & Dakota lumber company.

Hartington will have a new brick depot. Ice in the Missouri river broke up March 6. Plans are that the new bridge over the Missouri at Yankton will be open by fall. F. C. Reed, director of Wakefield band, has gone to Wausa to lead the band. Joe Dellin of Wakefield, bought the Adolph Scharz house at Emerson and will move there. Miss Emma Obermeyer of Cole-ridge, and Edward Evers of Laurel, were married March 8, 1924. J. D. Phillips of Kansas, took charge of the Coleridge hotel and Emil Henrikson, who had operated the hotel, moved to Wakefield. Pender has organized a band with A. H. Owens director. From Wayne Herald for April 14, 1924: A fierce blizzard raged in this vicinity. Mrs. Ed. Fork died at Carroll April 9, 1924. Wakefield voted to invest $400 in improving roads leading to that town. A 150-pound catfish was caught in the Missouri river near Newcastle. A boy near Winside, caught a live pelican which is on display at Winside. Alex Jeffrey and Miss Grete Hogue were married April 5, 1924. Henry Westerhouse and Miss Hilda Kruger of Winside, were married April 17, 1924. Norfolk West Point business men are planning to close their stores on Sundays. Nebraska will May 30 celebrate the semi-centennial of its admission as a territory. J. D. King were stockholders in the institution that was sold. James Miller, who was cashier, will return to his father's store, and O. A. King will be employed in the Citizens bank. From Ponea Journal for March 23, 1922: Between Covington and Sioux City the railroad is again transferring cars by boat. The past year brought 700,000 immigrants to this country and a million are expected this year. Civil service reforms will be ineffectual until salary reforms are effected in education. Young men must grow up with the knowledge that their success in life depends upon their becoming identified with some industry rather than making government office their ambition. There is employment for all who are willing to work. In the beginning it is essential to work hard for small pay. Those who are diligent and trustworthy, commencing at the lowest, rise to the top. Ponea plans its annual "Days of '56" celebration for June 28 and 29. Whisker and Sunbonnet clubs are already making plans. Coleridge merchants each invited a WPA worker to a banquet last week. A. L. Miller, republican candidate for governor, was speaker.

'Round About This Funny World

Mexico City had its first snowfall in 34 years. A California couple, divorced 40 years ago, have remarried. An Iowa man arranged for the funeral of his invalid wife who was near death and then he died. A $10,000 art collection has been placed in the new jail in Rockport, Mass. The paintings are mostly marines. A California man forgot that his car had been hoisted on a service station grease rack, he stepped out and was treated for lacerated scalp. University chickens were fooled into thinking spring had come. They were fed green vegetables and egg production increased 50 per cent. A Pennsylvania paper carried this ad: "Wanted, reliable cat, one wishing to learn the drug business and willing to catch rats and mice while learning." A South Carolina cook was wondering what she would have for dinner. She went to the back porch and walked an opossum. That solved the problem. To put realism in his perfume ad, an Illinois store keeper armed a girl with an atomizer and had her spray the ad with perfume as the paper ran off the press. An ex-convict survived the ordeal of having a bullet cut from his back with a razor used by a friend. The operation was performed in a car beneath a street light. A New Jersey man woke up with a dislocated shoulder which had to be set at a hospital. He doesn't know what happened but thinks he must have moved while sleeping. A three-ton elephant reached too far for a peanut and fell into a three-foot moat. Attendants at the zoo had to drain the moat and build a stairway for the elephant to get back. Policemen L. H. Sauter and Tom Sketchley of the police station at 4526 Pico street, Los Angeles, went to investigate a bad check. It was signed "Cauter Sketchley, 4526 West Pico." An Illinois economist says women can solve the farm problem. If they will allow just two inches apiece to be added to their waistlines the farm surplus question would be gone. A law school graduate, who "never took one case," worked only two of his 92 years and "lost money at it," is dead. An eastern man inherited a fortune and wasted his life and money. Roy Montgomery of Rushville, Ind., bought his 1940 car license plates with 825 pennies he saved last year. All the pennies were

CONGRESS AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

Washington, D. C., March 15, 1940

A lot of foreign service officers have been called home. Those who know a lot about our foreign service, feel that there has been a quiet shake-up in the service and that the presence of Sumner Welles in Europe has more than political significance. The president is entitled to have first-hand information from his diplomatic corps. The foreign service is our first line of defense. Some experts know that the service sometimes stops wars, is as important as the army and navy. There are United States military and naval attaches in all the foreign countries. Foreign governments have their military and naval attaches in this country. Everybody knows that these attaches are glorified spies. They are on the job to look, listen and report. In times like these, those who are unbiased feel it a pretty good idea for the president to send out a trained diplomat to look and listen and bring back some reliable information.

Picket lines continue in Washington. Believe it or not, two groups of organized labor are picketing each other. The business places which hire union men and pay union wages are complaining because the pickets are keeping business out of their establishments. One union leader tells congressmen that the unions are hurting themselves and unless they get together pretty soon they may lose the good public opinion that was built up for them by Samuel Gompers.

The end of the Russo-Finnish war seemed to shock some people here and also pleased others. A lot of pressure was being put on Uncle Sam to do something about the war and now a lot of people here who didn't want that kind of peace want Uncle Sam to do something about that. There are some people here who think peace will hurt their business and there are some Scandinavians here who feel Finland saved her republic and no matter what kind of a peace it was, it stopped human slaughter, at least temporarily. There is a feeling among many people here that so far as Uncle Sam is concerned, he ought to keep out of the entire mess and tend to his own troubled business.

The best job for male stenographers here is that of the men who take down the debates in the house and senate. They get $7,500 a year; work in 15-minute shifts; dictate their notes into a machine and have an expert transcriber. They don't work when congress is not in session. The stenographers who take the testimony in committees get around $8,000 a year.

A letter from Berlin indicates that January brought 10 and 20 below zero weather there. Butter, coffee, fruit and fresh vegetables can't be had. The letter says the coal shortage is or was serious, which indicates the effect of coal blockades. The people, the letter says, are looking for spring to bring relief from the cold and perhaps some fresh garden products. The letter says: "Don't let them kid you—you can't do without food."

United States exports for the first nine months of 1939, totaled $2,184,893,807, a loss of $110,553,564 from the first nine months of 1938, and imports rose from $1,434,000,000 in the first nine months of 1938 to $1,620,000,000 in the first nine months of 1939, or a gain of over $187,795,000. This answers the question as to the volume of our foreign trade. It means that our gross foreign trade was $562,948,000 for the nine month period.

The farm chemistry movement is not dead. In fact it is being revived with reports given to an independent committee here, on the prospects of new industries going closer to the farms. The program of the farm chemistry program has as its objective an increase instead of a decrease in the agricultural output of the United States, through the establishment of new markets and new industries for the utilization of farm products. Farm chemistry proposes to create for the American farmer an adequate cash market for all of the things he can grow and provide him with an income far above the level possible through subsidies.

The week has been a hectic one for the farm bloc which succeeded in putting the parity payment money back in the agricultural appropriation bill. Just how much that bill will carry in parity payment and farm surplus commodity money, depends upon what the conference committee will do with the bill when it gets it from the senate. It is now admitted that the present method of securing parity payment money from the treasury is temporary and must be changed. That is why the chiefs of the department of agriculture have been appearing before the various committees and before the public urging the certificate plan. On the other hand, farm leaders, of whom Ed. O'Neal, national president of the American Farm Bureau Federation is one, are opposed to that plan. Some of them feel there ought to be a sales tax. Others feel there ought to be some kind of a processing tax. There are a number of gigantic farm organizations, all of which have national representatives here in Washington. None of them seem to be agreed on any particular plan, and a definite, permanent farm program is far from being complete at this time. In the meantime, the farm bloc is planning to get parity payments so that the benefits promised to the farmers shall be available.

About this time every year, hundreds of thousands of starlings

Proposed Wayne County Soil Conservation District

come to the nation's capital and cover almost all of the buildings. The way the police undertake to get rid of them is to scare them away by discharging shotguns. The resulting blasts shake the territory and the birds leave, but they soon return. The remedy has not been successful.

For many years, some kind of stream pollution control bill has been up in the house. The other day, the house approved a modifying bill with an amendment which was approved by the Isaac Walton League and the Audubon Societies. Under this amendment, no new form of pollution, either sewage or industrial waste, can be discharged into any navigable water or its tributaries, except upon license of a special administrator set up in the public health service.

The immigration committee is working on several new bills, one of which has as its objective the allowing of many thousands of immigrants to enter the United States. It is estimated that about five million foreign refugees want to come here. There is one group in congress which would stop all immigration until we catch up with our employment problem, figuring we already have about ten million unemployed people here. Another group wants to cut the present quota figures, and still another group wants to raise these quotas. What to do with the millions of foreign refugees, all wanting to come to the United States, is one of the big problems facing Uncle Sam today.

Washington, D. C., March 7, 1940

Visitors to the nation's capitol and grounds notice a good many policemen. They are finely uniformed and are the sole guardians of order on the "hill." No regular Washington metropolitan policeman or detective; no secret service detective and no F. B. I. man can make an arrest on capitol hill. That's the reservation of congress and only the 140 policemen who get their jobs through patronage can make arrests here. Usually these capitol hill policemen are youths who got their jobs through their house or senate members who are at the same time members of the majority party. They are inexperienced and a lot of them go to school after the eight hours they put in for the capitol police force. But recently a number of F. B. I. agents and metropolitan plain-clothes men have appeared on duty on the hill. When there is war in the world, cranks appear around legislative bodies and the more experienced policemen were needed. Very few people know who these secret service men are, but they are on the job and mingle with the throngs which pack the capitol building and grounds every day.

A lot of folks from home wonder what compensation is received by the guides who take people through the capitol building. These guides, about a dozen in number, make very little in the winter time, but when crowds come between Easter and Labor day, they make as much as $250 a month each. That's only in the rush season. People who are taken through the building usually pay the guides from 10 cents to 25 cents each. That money goes into a jackpot and at the end of a certain period the guides divide the money up among themselves.

The restaurant in the house continues to lose between $20,000 and $25,000 a year for which the taxpayers of the country must pay. It is used to lose a lot more than that. The senate restaurant loses much more. The reason is that it's a one meal restaurant a day and those running it never can tell just when and how long the house will be in session and when it will adjourn and nobody knows just how much food to buy. Some feel private people ought to be given a concession to run it. Lots of things have been said about it, but nothing much has ever been done about it.

Each house member is given 400 yearbooks of agriculture each year. Demands for the books run into the thousands. The department of agriculture which gets out these books, advertises them over the radio and members who have a purely farm district with around 300 thousand people, have a hard time getting enough of these books. So the rural members do a lot of swapping with city members who don't have a farm in their district, yet they, too, get 400 yearbooks. One city member now demands that in place of 400 yearbooks of agriculture, he be allotted 400 books on something in which people who live in cities will be interested.

Life on an Indian Reservation In Minnesota Is Interesting

"Life on an Indian reservation is far from dull," according to Miss Alice Shields who is doing missionary work among these native Americans near Onamia, Minn. Miss Shields has now spent about a year on the Mille Lacs reservation located about 100 miles north of the Twin Cities. The 55 families on the reservation make a total population of about 275. The reservation, one of the smaller ones of Minnesota, consists of approximately 1,400 acres on the west shore of beautiful Mille Lacs lake. "Though so near to the cities," writes Miss Shields, "we find the people about the most backward of any in the state. This is no doubt due to the attitude of whites in not mixing with them but rather keeping them pushed back as much as possible. We find the Indians much more civilized on the reservations farther north in the state, where the attitude of whites is more tolerant. The Indian population of Minnesota is about 15,000 and these people are of the Chippewa tribe, formerly called the Ojibwas.

"Living conditions are most deplorable but constant improvement is made in this line," Miss Shields explains. "Houses are largely one-room tar-paper buildings, a few having two rooms. If less of the meager income were spent on the curse the white men brought them—liquor—how much better living conditions would be, not to mention the cultural and spiritual progress." Miss Shields quotes figures from the 1938 survey to show the need for necessities of life. In the 55 homes, 41 have cookstoves, 52 tables, 27 chairs, 9 neither chairs or benches, 52 beds, 32 cupboards, 22 trunks, 14 sewing machines, 3 radios and 10 phonographs. Half of the families had gardens and 82 of these canned a total of 122 quarts of food for winter use. Five took a newspaper and 17 had automobiles. The colony had 72 cats and dogs. The only other livestock on the reservation included 3 horses and 2 chickens.

"Twenty new homes are under construction on the rehabilitation plan and will be ready for occupancy in May. If there is need for them anywhere in the U. S. it is right here," adds Miss Shields. "They are well-planned four-room houses, insulated and finished nicely on the interior. These are in sharp contrast to the 12x14 one-room house having the inside wall covered with newspapers, building paper or none at all. There is no ceiling. In place of closets the old homes have poles or boards used as racks for clothing and bedding. There will be built-in closets in the new homes. Instead of the makeshift floors houses now have, there will be oak flooring. We only wish it were possible for each family to have a new home to move into this spring with new furnishings for each.

"Most of the families are on WPA; a few have private employment and a few are on direct relief. Hunting and fishing no longer provide enough to live on, though in season most of them still do some. The women make birchbark work which they sell at roadside stands in the summer, when the whole family moves into a wig-

Shields have charge of the Vinland Indian Mission, which is the only work of its kind on this field. They conduct meetings two evenings each week and one for the children one afternoon each week. However, their contact in the homes is even more important in this line of work, and every home is open for them to visit and distribute Christian literature. They have a little group of Christians, and a goodly number of others who are interested. They find the work most enjoyable even though progress is slow. "If you could spend a day or more with us and get a hand insight into the needs and problems of these fascinating people I'm sure you would agree with me that life on an Indian reservation is far from dull, and very eventful," concludes Miss Shields.

Hugh Butler -- a Farmer Farm Background Strengthens Butler's Bid for Senate

Editor's Note: In accordance with our firm conviction that voters should be given every opportunity to know the background of candidates for public office, we present the following sketch of Hugh Butler's life and aims.

Born and raised on a farm, and still active in the operation of his Furnas County holdings, Hugh Butler, Republican, is a strong campaigner for United States Senator primarily on the stand that the farmers of Nebraska need an actual farmer representation if they are to benefit through proper farm legislation. Attempts of the present administration to solve the tangled problem of farm income have failed chiefly because "they don't know the first thing about what the problem really is."

Mr. Butler recently told farm audiences: "Farming has always been Butler's chief interest, even after moving to Omaha to become highly successful in business. Growing up on the farm, he worked hard through high school and at a college at Crete. His own experiences have led him to be deeply interested in providing educational opportunities for deserving young people. He is now chairman of the board of trustees of Doane college.

For ten years, Mr. Butler was a construction engineer for the Burlington railroad, becoming superintendent of construction. In this position he supervised the building of 150 miles of railroad through a mountainous area of Montana and Wyoming in record time. When that job was completed he resigned to enter business for himself as proprietor of a mill and elevator at Curtis. He entered the grain business in Omaha in 1918.

Throughout all that time, however, Butler's love of the soil persisted. 1924 found him with two small farms, the beginnings of the present 1,800 acre holdings of Lincoln and Blair counties. Frank — Man. Aged on a sound businesslike basis, these farms have been built into a profitable, paying business. Hugh Butler believes in a definite pay-as-you-go policy. The Butler farms are an outstanding example of this principle.

There are about 700 public libraries in the United States, exclusive of branches of the libraries in the larger cities. Also, there are approximately seven thousand private libraries in the various schools and universities. Most of them get considerable service from the congressional library. As a result, appropriations for this institution are going higher and higher each year.

About 27 thousand blind people are receiving the talking books which are issued under the auspices of the library of congress. These cost the taxpayers about 70 thousand dollars a year, but are so popular among the blind people that the service is going to be continued. About 21 thousand machines have been sent out over the country on which the books, which are in reality phonograph records, are used and which books contain the words to which the blind people listen. Any blind person can secure these talking books by application to the various library centers.

The Azalea show by the United States government is attracting thousands of people to Washington. These Azaleas are very beautiful and are on display at the botanical garden here. Already the program for the annual cherry blossom festival has been completed. The stage is set for the ar-

Warm and Clean Housing Needed
Swine authorities advise facing A-shape hog houses south during farrowing time to take advantage of all possible sunshine. By lining the houses up side by side and packing straw between them and on the north side, they can be kept warm in coldest weather. If stationary houses are used they should be cleaned with boiling lye water before farrowing time and plenty of bedding put in them.
