DAY SET APART TO GET RID OF FOWLS NO LONGER NEEDED

IF WE were a rooster of the barnyard variety we would conclude from having a special day set apart to get rid of us that we were not very desirable to have around. It is well that a rooster is not sensitive to human caprice or capable of long-range fear. It happily struts and crows and is apparently undisturbed by thoughts of war or economic disorder. No impending doom causes it to head to droop or its voice to grow faint. It lives but a short time, and it does not know it becomes, following brief usefulness, one costly and intolerable nuisance. It does not have enough intellect to realize the narrow span between a triumphant crow and the slaughtering block. The annual parade of roosters from the barnyard to the frying pan is now due, and to encourage early riddance of an encumbrance an especially high price will be paid on the Wayne market next Wednesday, May 22. It will be rooster day here—not to glorify fine feathers or a noble past, as the barnyard songsters might suspect, but to hasten exit of what has become an acknowledged burden outside of the family cuisine.

Dr. Conrad Bergendoff, Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., gives the Wayne college baccalaureate address Sunday evening, May 19, at 8 in the college auditorium.

Rooster Day Is To Be Featured Next Wednesday

Chamber of Commerce Is Sponsoring Special Trade Event.

Roosters, ahoy! You are about through. You don't know it, but you are. You will be given a joyful ride to Wayne next Wednesday, May 22, when you will be sold at a substantial increase in the market price, and you will later be immolated on the altar of the human appetite. Whereas a few months ago you were desirable members of barnyard society, now you are passe, no good. You are a liability instead of an asset, and therefore your greatest remaining service to the world is to be railroaded into packing plants and later conveyed into delicate edibles.

The approaching rooster debacle is under the auspices of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce which will pay half of the increased price. Scrip in denominations of 1c, 5c, 25c and 50c will be issued to pay for roosters and be traded out on May 22, 23 or 24. After the last day the scrip will be just worthless scraps of paper. So, it will be necessary to cash in on supplies during the time specified.

The scrip will have extra value in the special bargains offered by local dealers participating. Wednesday, May 22, will be a great and glorious day for everybody but the star figures, the roosters.

Procedure for Stamp Plan Is Being Arranged

Issuing Agent to Be Named For Wayne County in New Program.

Wayne county commissioners, Relief Director Mrs. Esther Thompson and Chamber of Commerce Secretary W. H. Swett met at the court house Monday with Ed. Gary, in charge of certification, and Chester Elliott, in charge of procedure, to arrange for the sale of federal food stamps in Wayne county. A meeting is held again this Thursday. The plan is to set the new program in operation in eight northeast Nebraska counties June 3.

The likely order is that an issuing agent will be designated and this agent will arrange for sale of the stamps at headquarters and also at several places in the county.

Each relief client will soon receive full instructions about the plan.

The stamps here will be used only for groceries. A few days ago the plan was set in operation in the south for cotton goods. Since this plan will likely be extended where the food plan is set up, it can be expected that Wayne county may later have the same arrangement for purchase of cotton goods.

Authorized Port And Pilot Course Are Possibility

Aeronautics Commission Is Offering Instructor and Help on Field Here.

An authorized airport for Wayne and pilot's training course at the college can be certain for Wayne through cooperation with the Nebraska Aeronautics commission, according to L. E. Tyson of Lincoln, member of the commission. Mr. Tyson was here Friday consulting with several and looking over possible sites.

An airport designated by the commission is recognized by the federal and state government, and federal as well as private ships are allowed to land at such a port. Feeder lines for passenger and mail service by plane are being contemplated, and Wayne is favorably situated with reference to Yankton, Sioux City and Omaha to be designated as a stopping point in such service. Private flying is also growing rapidly. It is expected that, since flying is definitely to be an important phase of life in the future, this would develop into favorable business enterprises.

Providing the city furnishes the site for the port, which would cost about $400, the state commission pays other expenses of establishing the port. Mr. Tyson found several sites favorably located and well drained for possible choice.

The Nebraska commission has stated definitely that if Wayne college applies for civilian pilots' (Continued on Page Two)

RECOGNITION DAY DRAWS NEW VOTERS FOR CITIZEN OATH

SUNDAY'S recognition of new voters is a way to emphasize the obligations and responsibilities of citizenship. Not only those just reaching their majority, but persons of all ages become better informed in American fundamentals by such public observance. The music, the flag drills, the main speech, administering of the oath of allegiance, all blended to make an impressive program that none could witness without renewed feelings of devotion. It appears that Wayne county is one of the first behind this patriotic movement, and Sunday's large, representative crowd attests to popular interest. Entertaining and instructing new voters regularly, as proposed, will be an inspiration to all voters.

Dr. W. A. Brandenburg, president of the state teachers college in Pittsburg, Kan., gives the college commencement address Friday, May 24, at 9:30 in the outdoor theatre.

Child Injured in Mower Accident

Jack Kingston Is Improving After Leg Amputation Last Thursday.

Jack Kingston, Jr., who was 3 years old New Year's day, had his right leg so badly injured last Thursday afternoon in a mower accident at the college campus that the member had to be amputated a few inches below the knee. Though the child lost much blood and suffered from shock, his condition was reported very good at a local hospital yesterday.

Jack was riding his tricycle at the campus where G. L. Rogers was using a power mower to cut grass in the outdoor theatre north of the Student Store stage. The child, who was ahead of the mower, suddenly backed his tricycle. The mower caught one of the wheels. Mr. Rogers cut off the power at once but the machine had drawn the child's foot into the moving parts.

Mr. Rogers hurried to the Kingston home nearby with Jack and called for a doctor. S. B. Whitmore, who heard him, summoned his son-in-law, Dr. Reg Wells, who was here visiting, and the latter gave first aid. The Kingstons then rushed the child to a local hospital where the operation was performed.

Authorized Port Is Possibility

(Continued from Page One) training, the course will be granted. Other state schools are instituting the work; 110 young men and women now being enrolled in the courses.

The college course is established for five years, though each pilot trained completes the work as soon as he has received 72 hours of ground instruction and 35 to 50 actual flight hours. Present college instructors would furnish training in meteorology, mathematics, etc., which comprise the 72 hours of ground instruction. A flight instructor, paid by the government, would be sent to the school to train students in their actual flight work.

Each student would pay a laboratory fee of $40 for the whole course, $20 for physical examination and insurance and $20 to go to the college. In addition, the aeronautics commission would pay another $20 to the school for each one enrolled. The college would thus receive a fee of $40 for each student trained. Each one completing the course would be granted a private license which would entitle him to fly any place in the United States.

The government contracts with the flight instructor who furnishes the plane for training work. The course is non-military.

Mr. Tyson explained that when a new port at Fairbury was opened with a May breakfast, 55 flew there in 24 planes for the occasion.

Honors Banquet Is Sponsored by Club

Many Wayne High Students Are Special Guests at Annual Occasion.

Wayne high school annual banquet honoring all students who achieved worthy success in extracurricular activities, held in the Presbyterian church parlors Tuesday evening, was sponsored by the Pep club members whose mother prepared and served the dinner. A guest list of 160, including members of the faculty and their wives, indicates a healthy attitude on the part of students towards participation in activities.

The honored group has grown until this year more than half of the students in high school were invited guests. Each teacher sponsoring an extra-curricular activity, selects those students whom he feels have achieved something for the good of the school and these students are invited by the Pep club.

Throughout the year the Pep club sells candy, gum and apples at games and after school to defray expenses of this undertaking. This year the club earned a total of $113, of which about $90 goes to pay for the banquet. The remainder is placed in a sinking fund for new costumes for the organization.

In addition to the student and faculty guests, Mr. and Mrs. Fetter Henkel were guests at the banquet Tuesday, the occasion celebrating Mr. Henkel's 77th birthday.

The program included the following: Welcome, Carl Bader; response, Lyle Seymour; "Elegy" and "Careless," sung by Bill Hawkins assisted by the trio; "Rolling Down to Rio" and "Think a Little Kindly of Me," boys' quartet; "How High the Moon," "With the

Worth the Price
FREEDOM of democracy is worth the extra cost. More mistakes are doubtless made in a country of individual liberty than under an autocratic system, but people prefer errors to slavery — to centralized power.

Touching values in a democracy, the Lincoln Journal says:

"Prof. Alice V. Kehler of New York university laid her finger upon one of the principal weaknesses of democracy when she pointed out that when we fear to make our own decisions, we lessen the amount of our democracy."

"Democracy," she said, "is a process by which we live. The joy of finding mutual solution to our problems must be our security. We are born selfish, and never lose those basic desires for self-preservation. The democratic behavior is learned, not a natural trait."

"Standing opposed to democracy are a number of natural traits, one of them flagrantly exhibited in several men in Europe who have gathered power into their own hands. The tendency in the same direction has been noted here."

"When the people defer decision to those ready and willing to make it; when they fear to make their own decisions, then democracy begins to falter. No matter how cumbersome and awkward democracy may seem in its functioning, it is preferable to the surrender of the right of making our own choices."

War Is Hell

SHERMAN said war was hell. As practiced today it is worse than hell — at least worse than Dante's conception of hell. Late methods have enlarged and intensified the old-fashioned poet's idea. Modern war is full of guile and treachery. It comes with a smile or soft-spoken words as a screen for lurking death. It spreads poison with shrapnel, and blasts combatants and non-combatants alike. It has no mercy on helpless women or children. It crucifies innocents and impales every Christian principle. Like the homicidal lunatic who has run amuck, it is out to murder and destroy. In fiendish glee, it mocks every fine thought inculcated in the home, school and church during the past two thousand years. The spirit of modern warfare is just as bad as it was in the dark, middle ages, but evil results are multiplied by new and more hideous machines and methods. So, modern warfare, as exemplified in these days, does not have to drop behind medievalism in either cruelty or mass slaughter. Heaven must look on aghast!

Peter Henkel, who is 77 years old, is finishing his fortieth year as janitor of the Wayne high school. Such a long time in one public job is strong proof of faithful service. He has watched children from the kindergarten to graduation. Many heads of families — even some grandparents — started school in Wayne since Peter took charge. He knew a long line of teachers, and none ever failed to express words of good will for him. He treated them with every courtesy and help, and they have had uniformly high respect for him. In extending congratulations and good wishes, the Herald is certain it expresses the sincere feeling of the entire community.

It is often reported that President Roosevelt scores greater popularity than his new deal. This may be true, though it does not make sense. Roosevelt is the new deal, and the new deal is Roosevelt. They are inseparable. If he is to be commended for spending taxpayers' money for relief work, then he must be held responsible for failure to balance the budget, for failure to stimulate industry to absorb idlers and thus do away with dependence on the public treasury. Roosevelt is not superior to the show he has put on during the past seven years.

Report from American Red Cross headquarters states that its organization's machinery has been set into motion to raise ten million dollars for European war relief. Before the latest invasion, the Red Cross had spent $1,500,000 for aid in Europe. Ruthless human slaughter, stepped up to gigantic proportions, multiplies demands on the merciful Red Cross. What a contrast between the spirit that deliberately kills and ruins and the one that follows along to minister to the host of injured and suffering.

The president is reported warming up to Garner — accounted for perhaps by the fact that the latter has not made long strides of late in the direction of the presidency. It is also reported that the president, looking over republican candidates, has developed a vigorous dislike for Dewey. If the president is afraid of Dewey and does not wish to boost him, he should express a kindly, and helpful interest in him. In that way he might turn the tide against the ambitious New Yorker.

Probably Neville Chamberlain, retired premier of England, lacks the qualities needed in a successful war leader, but certainly he showed pre-eminent humane-ness in trying to keep his country out of armed conflict and to prevent turning Europe into sickening shambles. History will give Chamberlain a prominent place as a valiant defender of peace and good will.

When all parts of the middle west are soaked, safeguards against later drouth are more general and more certain. If some sections are wet and others dry, benefits may quickly disappear under a torrid sun. Heat is tempered by wide-spread moisture, and it gives a feeling of extra assurance to know rains have been general of late.

The republicans, who will meet in Philadelphia June 24, will have presented to them a lot of able men from whom to select a candidate. Any one of them, surrounded by easily available statesmen of a high order, would restore confidence and magnetize the country out of the dumps in short order.

The president's demand for prompt action to safeguard defense comes none too soon. Funds for other purposes may well be diverted to bulwark American safety. We can afford to spend much for defense. We can afford great sacrifices to defend home shores if necessary.

Unavoidable food scarcity in war-torn Europe should reasonably lead to a policy of abundance in the United States. With favorable crop prospects, now appearing, the middle west will contribute its full share to feeding a hungry world.

The Sioux City Journal, asked why the president selected Henry Wallace as a member of the cabinet, replied: "To match up with the others, of course."

Speaking of shifting war to the air, the Omaha Journal-Stockman says "battleships are not yet obsolete, but they seem to be on the way out."

Corn Situation Is Puzzling.

While American corn growers seem rather pleased to learn of the intention of the AAA to dispose of millions of bushels of surplus corn to England and other countries under the export subsidy plan, grain dealers hardly know what to think of the prospect in view of the changed European status.

"Such a movement will undoubtedly clear up a bad domestic situation," declares one prominent grain dealer. "With the government's decision to subsidize export sales of corn it means only that an outlet has been opened up for the grain that otherwise would not move because of the low price of corn in Argentina. Many of the bullish aspects of the subsidy, however, are nullified by the tremendous holdings under loan, currently estimated at 550 million bushels."

"Should the corn be taken from commercial stocks its effect would be significant in view of the restricted movement of the grain from the interior, but belief is that the plan will involve government-owned stocks and preferably that stored in steel bins."

"Corn at the highest levels in nearly three years is a rather peculiar situation in view of the big supplies under loan and the prospect for the largest carry-over on record at the close of the season. Many farmers now have several cents a bushel profit in sealed corn if they care to pay their loans and sell at the market, but few seem inclined to do so at present."

In the meantime, with the corn planting season right at hand, the temptation to put in as liberal corn acreages as possible is great in order to be in a position to meet the tremendous world demand for food and feed that is to follow the present devastating conflict.

The Political Leader.

The psychologists are getting around to the matter of investigating and explaining the political leader. These scientists divide mankind into extroverts and introverts. An extrovert is one whose emotions are moved by external interests, as distinguished from introverts, whose emotions or interests are self-centered. Interpreted in the language of the laymen this may be taken to mean that the extrovert is one who wants to attend to the business of other persons while an introvert is one who prefers to attend to his own business solely.

It is not difficult, therefore, to pick out to which classification the political leader belongs. He is burning with a desire to see his own convictions impressed upon the introverts, the silent people. He talks much, exhorts violently and when persuasion fails he resorts to coercion. This is the political leader as distinguished from the political boss who controls by more devious but often more effectual methods. Yet when one seeks to think the thing thru, he finds this to be a fact, that while the emotions of the extrovert are turned outward, it is difficult to find a political leader who does not exhibit selfishness of a type that should really belong to the introvert. Basically, of course, his urge is to dominate the thoughts and conduct of others. Yet at the same time he is not unmindful of the opportunity to gather power to himself. It is quite evident that the source from which he derives his energy is that of personal satisfaction rather than from the desire to serve.

Men who have been in a position, over a period of years, to observe at close range public officials in action have been struck by the rarity of those who place the obligation of a public trust first. Many of them use no political office as a stepping stone to a higher one, and that means they do that which enhances their chances of advancement — plain selfishness.

The extrovert in politics is always a colorful figure. He does things with a dash and fervor that attracts like the bright plumage of birds. He is egotistical and ruthless. European politics is dominated by the extrovert and he is not unknown in our own land.

PREPAREDNESS.

Speeding American preparedness for defense is urged. Hugh S. Johnson, once head of the defunct NRA, and now new deal critic, says the army and navy are poorly equipped — pitifully lacking in mechanized force. Johnson deprecates the spending of billions on unnecessary projects and neglecting important defense measures. Attack from the air is proved the most effective and the hardest to combat, and therefore more and better bombing planes and other aerial defense craft are in demand. In the present world crisis, the surest way to keep out of war would seem to be adequate means of defense. War is no gentlemanly performance. It is bestly savage, and recognizes no national or individual rights. Ruthless aggression has no thought of whether a step is right or wrong, but it does give heed to superior force. That is why a rich, attractive country like the United States must be prepared to meet any attempt at conquest or revenge. Preparedness will help designing savagery keep its hands off.

ABIDING HOPE.

The plea of the rank and file in politics is not for spoils or glory. It is based on hope for continuance of liberties bequeathed by thoughtful, sturdy forefathers. The average man is renewing his grip on inherited and cherished fundamentals because he thinks he visualizes portents of further economic disaster. This man does not want government help, but he does want encouragement to go forward in the exercise of initiative, the precious right of free enterprise, guarantee of individual judgment. The fire of independence, kindled by Revolutionary fathers and kept aflame by succeeding patriots, must not be put out by careless apathy or bungling incompetence. In a crucible of exceeding trial — brutalizing war abroad and tantalizing and obstructive fallacies at home — the average man must rise to meet and solve the country's most acutely serious problem. The rugged mid-west will join wholeheartedly in the task of rescuing American civilization from the terrors of threat and uncertainty, in restoring and revivifying constitutional government, and in extending and reestablishing sturdy fashioned according to the pattern handed down by noble founders. Let the iron in antecedent blood be reasserted in the veins of present descendants. Let old-time wisdom and courage revitalize the souls of men and women now and find decisive expression in rebuilding American economics on the original foundation which guarantees free speech, free press and free opportunity.

R. W. McDowell longed to make 1940 the biggest sales year in Mid-Continent's 27-year history. E. H. Merchant attended from Wayne.

R. W. McDowell, Tulsa, Okla., vice-president in charge of sales for Mid-Continent, was principal speaker at the dinner meeting which preceded an elaborate entertainment program. The presentation of two professionally acted stage plays and the showing of two motion pictures concluded the program.

"Forward in 1940 is our Diamond sales organization's campaign slogan for this year," Mr. McDowell declared. "Recent world events in Europe have called to our attention the absolute necessity of continued preparation for the unexpected happenings of the day. Business today is a continual battle between individuals and competitive business concerns for the business of the buying public. Mid-Continent's great selling army is going forward this year in an endeavor to capture its rightful share of the service station and farm-consumer market. Each Diamondman will be backed by the company's greatest advertising and sales promotion campaign."

Mid-Continent's new sound motion picture, "Performance Plus," proved the high spot of the sales program. The stage play, "Double in Diamond," was a graphic story of a service station dealer's daily business operations and activities. Chairman of the sales meeting was J. J. Dowling, division manager. W. F. Panaluna acted as master of ceremonies and special guests included representatives of Mid-Continent's general sales department at Tulsa and various jobbers and dealers from the surrounding sales territory. The one still being sought is, however, an associate of the one at Amesbury. Officers have learned that the man they seek is an ex-convict who served time for forgery.

Democracy Endures Where People Rule

County Young Citizens Are Honored at Program Here Sunday.

American government, in which all liberties are individualistic and in which all authority comes from the people, stands in sharp contrast to European governments, in which selfish men have come to power through aggression and in which any rights given to people are only those extended by the one in authority, stated District Judge A. E. Wenke of Stanton, Sunday in addressing a large audience attending Wayne county's first services recognizing young folks who have reached the age of citizenship.

In recalling the World war which America entered in the hope of carrying to Europe the individual form of democracy and in contemplating the great struggle now on in that continent, Judge Wenke pointed out the fulfillment of this country's vast gifts of boys and goods.

American colonies were established by those who were oppressed in their home lands. Here they found the political and religious freedom they craved. As they gained strength they realized that to yield a part was to yield the whole. Those early settlers gave of themselves and their goods to stand for their God-given rights. Their personal freedom was their most precious possession.

Authority in People. America has attempted to show other nations that from the people comes all authority. The same power that gives authority to those in office can take away this power.

In contrast is the individual in nations where various "isms" operate. One who has through aggression gained highest power controls individual rights at will. The same is true when territory is added. The United States has accorded to new people all the rights enjoyed by the original group, whereas an aggressor subjects the conquered victim.

Should Be Example. How can this country bring relief to this disturbed world? In answering this question Judge Wenke advised that America maintain its individualistic form of government for its 130,000,000 people so that it may guide the world to this form of government. Never will there be peace in a nation where an aggressor rules, the speaker stated.

"We must keep our form of government intact so that we can give ourselves and our goods to those who are in need. Our government is now at stake. We may have to sacrifice to maintain it. Let us keep intelligently informed so that we can make the proper decisions through the ballot and let us pray that our leaders will guide us right."

The speaker urged that all realize the true worth of American citizenship. The right to vote is democracy's safeguard. Every citizen should exercise this privilege and duty and do so intelligently. "American citizenship is the greatest privilege bestowed on any group in any part of the world at any time. In this franchise rests the security of our government," stated the judge.

In preliminary remarks Judge Wenke told how the flag should be displayed, and advised the new citizens about voting. He urged all to inform themselves on candidates and issues and to vote if they would serve their flag, the emblem of a free people.

History of Flag. A fitting history of the flag was presented in pageant form by the D. A. R. under direction of Miss Hazel Reeve. Mrs. D. S. Wightman was reader. Girls who showed various flags used by this nation were Patty Love, Lois Zeplin, Carla Wright, Betty Pile, Eleanor Ben- thack, Patty Thompson, Nancy Mines, Jacqueline Wightman, My- la June Thomas, Shirley Powers, Marilyn Stratton. Mrs. G. B. Childs assisted and Ruth Damme furnished music.

Oath Is Administered. County Judge J. M. Cherry administered the oath of allegiance for about 175 in Wayne county who vote for the first time this year, nearly half of the number being present.

Golden Eagle scouts and Golden Eagle girl scouts led the assem- blage in the flag salute. In this group were Quentin Whitmore, Robert Dale, Carroll Orr, Wilmer Ellis, Kenneth Petersen, Evelyn Noakes, Betty Helen Ellis, Dorothy Hook, Dorothy Liedtke, Ruth Lundberg.

Music is Provided. Wayne Municipal band, directed by Prof. F. C. Reed, presented a half hour concert at opening of the program. The city school a cap- pella choir, led by Austin Cramer, sang "The Blue Bird" and "White Birch in the Rain." Wayne col- lege a cappella choir, directed by Prof. Russell Anderson, sang "I See,

Priceless Treasure and 'Steal Away.'

T. S. Hook explained that this is the first time young voters have been recognized here and it is hoped to follow the plan annually. As some time is required to have records checked at Lincoln, the certificates will be mailed to the young folks soon. Assisting him were Prof. K. N. Parke, Rev. E. H. Ressel, Rev. Gerald Rosenberger, Rev. F. C. Ebinger, Dallas Evans.

Rev. C. G. Bader gave the invocation and benediction. W. H. Swett, Chamber of Commerce secretary, presided. On the executive committee with him were C. E. Wright, Dr. L. F. Perry, T. S. Hook, C. E. Nicholasen, Rev. C. G. Bader, Mrs. S. A. Lutgen and Mrs. Hobert Auker. Other commit- tees included: Ways and means, F. B. Decker, Judge J. M. Cherry, L. W. Needham, T. S. Hook, Rev. Ressel, Rev. Five loans under the Bankhead-Jones tenant purchase act have been approved in Wayne county since July, 1939, when the plan was instituted in Wayne county, according to Ray L. Verzal, county RR supervisor. Two of the loans have been closed and the other three are in the process of closing.

Loans approved are for Roy D. Day of Wayne, who is purchasing the Donald S. Wightman farm northwest of Wayne, for Ralph Beckenhauer of Wayne, who is purchasing the Ralph Parker farm southwest of Wayne, Charles C. Pierson of Wakefield, who is purchasing the Hattie O. Berry farm southwest of Wayne, and for Rolly Isom of Sholes, who is purchasing the George Noakes farm north of Sholes.

Aim of Churches Is Unselfish Help

Rev. Marcus Johnson, pastor of the First Congregational church in Norfolk, addressed the Kiwanis club Monday on "Life." Many are traveling the highway of life and most people are rushing to their destination not seeing the beautiful things, stated the speaker. "As we go through this world we see only the things most interesting to us and in our line of profession. What is missed in this world is due to neglect on the part of the person as it is there to be enjoyed," continued the minister. "The laboratory of life is at our elbows where the greatest of all things are being tested. "The church spies that arise in a community are anxious to help people. They want to be tailors who spiritually and mentally equip people for the rewards of living," concluded Rev. Johnson. The club board met Tuesday evening for business.

Because corn has been a rather precarious crop for several years, Ray Verzal is urging FSA borrowers to plant enough sorghums to insure adequate feed supplies for livestock. REPORT LICENSE

but they help protect every Nebraskan!

Beer retailing is a privilege conferred only by a license. And it is important to every citizen that this licensed privilege not be abused.

To safeguard this privilege, the Nebraska Brewers and Beer Distributors Committee employs a field representative to make reports on the operation of retail beer outlets. These reports show that the great majority of establishments are operated in the public interest. Only a few abuse their licenses, thereby jeopardizing the state's annual tax revenue of approximately $300,000 and the nearly $2,000,000 in Nebraska wages derived from the manufacture and sale of beer every year.

The brewing industry will continue to cooperate with the legal authorities to weed out these few and thus keep beer retailing as wholesome as beer itself.

NEW DERBY VITALIZED GASOLINES ARE BETTER

You know from experience that the better gasoline you use, the better and more economically your car will run. You know that there is a big difference in performance of gasoline. You know, too, that there is a big difference in per-mile operating and maintenance costs.

All these things mean much to you in added usefulness and pleasure from your car. That's why you'll want to use Derby Vitalized Gasolines all the time, once you've made your own comparison.

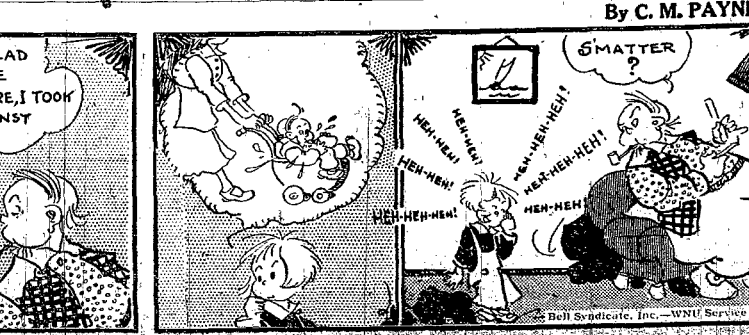

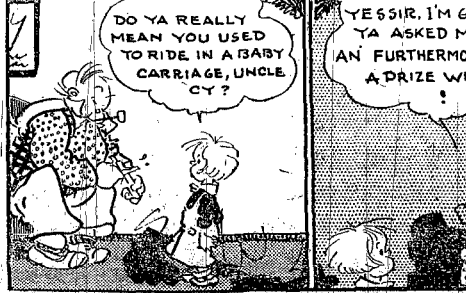

Derby's Vitalized Gasolines always have been good . . . but Derby's New Catalytic Polymer Vitalized Gasolines are even better. Unless you are a chemist the name of the process responsible for this improvement doesn't mean much. But as a car owner, this last step in Derby's long series of advancements is really important to you. It means:

1. Quicker Starting.
2. Smoother Acceleration.
3. High Anti-Knock Qualities.
4. Less Carbon.
5. Cooler Motor.
6. More Power.
7. More Miles Per Gallon.

Hazards and Pleasures Combine In Trip to the Philippine Islands

Weathering a hurricane at sea and passing on shipboard through mine-infested waters are hazards understood most thoroughly by only those who have had such experiences. Captain and Mrs. C. F. Maynard, who were here in the C. O. Mitchell home, have these in addition to many pleasant reminders of their six-week ocean journey which landed them in Manila in late March. The Maynards had been in this country about a year. A large, elegant and anxiously awaited their arrival in the islands and everyone greeted them so cordially that they are very happy to be back in Manila.

The Maynards took a Danish boat from San Pedro, Cal., February 15, there being only five passengers on the ship. The captain and other officers and their wives dined with the group. "Danish food deserves at least an essay written about it," states Mrs. Maynard. "Lunch is the big meal. I counted 12 big platters sitting side by side down the center of the long table. Here's a sample of what they have: Pickled herring and onion, a whole ham, cold roast pork, tongue, Danish sausage, liver and onions, cold fried chicken, fried fish, shrimp or crab meat with mayonnaise, head cheese, liver sausage, etc. With this there are celery, radishes and Danish bread. A first course is served before we tackle what's on the table and it's meat or fish with potatoes. For dessert they serve cheese." Mrs. Maynard didn't like the coffee and later learned it had chicory in it as most European coffee does.

Ship in Hurricane.
The sea was heavy and the ship rolled and pitched very much. The boat arrived in Yokohama four days late, due to the rough weather. "We spent two days in a hurricane with a wind of 80 to 90 miles an hour and great waves of 50 to 60 feet in height. The ship suffered some damage and took a little battered now. Some of the deck cargo was washed overboard and even the stack is now shiny with salt crystals."

Eight days were spent in Japan and the Maynards noted that things seem sadly changed there, the strain of the Chinese war evidently having its effect. Many shops are closed. Goods are of poor variety and prices are high. There are few people on the streets, few rickshaws and almost no taxis. There is a shortage of all luxuries including gasoline. It takes a government permit to buy gasoline at all. Japan has prohibited the importing of liquor, tobacco, candy and such items in order to keep the gold in that country.

The reason for the delay in Japan was the shortage of men to unload cargo. This worried the captain who was excited about what a week's delay would mean to his next cargo.

Japan used to resemble a beehive for activity and crowds of people. Merchants said that things are difficult. So many men and ships are gone and such high taxes are added to goods.

The Maynards spent three days in Shanghai. Japanese flags fly here and there and some Jap soldiers are seen. Otherwise there are no signs that things have changed. Most of the wreckage from the bombings has been cleared away, writes Mrs. Maynard, and one would never know the city had been bombed recently. The Scotch Highlander guards in their bright kilts still guard the bridge into the international settlement. "Shanghai is always a fine show—never a dull moment."

The exchange was wonderful, according to Mrs. Maynard. One American dollar was worth 15 Shanghai dollars. "We felt like millionaires paying $40 for lunch."

Mines Guard Hongkong.
The island of Hongkong, where the travelers made another stop, is British and they found wartime regulations in force. Quite a distance out at sea searchlights could be seen. "Just outside the harbor of Hongkong there is a mine field where we had to cross," Mrs. Maynard explains, "following radio instructions to keep in the safety lane. The mines are anchored there and it seemed rather ticklish business, especially as we came in at night. It was a beautiful night with a full moon. Finally a pilot boat came out and we followed it through the east section and then we arrived at the submarine net which is stretched across the narrowest part of the entrance. Two sturdy looking boats opened the net for us to pass through and at last we anchored. It took us more than two hours to come in. Hongkong, the city, is built on a mountain side and lighted at night is a pretty sight.

"This is a beautiful harbor, landlocked and surrounded by mountainous ridges," Mrs. Maynard continues in her description of Hongkong. "It is cleaner than Shanghai although there are hundreds of junkies full of Chinese drifting about. We can look down into these boats any time we like as they cluster around any ship waiting for pieces of lumber, empty bottles, garbage, anything. Whole families live on these junks and apparently live very happily. We can see them washing clothes and themselves, cooking the rice and drinking tea. They have chopsticks and playing card games of

Recital Is Planned By Four Students
