to change the general plan of the building, but we can keep in constant repair. The young people of this audience can not only build well, but they can even change the plan. Remember nothing is static, a house, a reputation, a love, a religion, a friendship or a country,
all of them must be constantly built up left they fall into ruin.
There are always the termites of distrust, the rust of disbelief, the decay of hatred, the dry rot of jealousy at work on these buildings of ours. Only constant building and rebuilding by faith, be-the sacred nurture of beautiful friendships, unchanging in this de-votion. We dedicate this building to the daily formation of charac-ter, as a shield against the un-counted fears and accusations of a troubled world."

H. E. Siman presided at the pro-gram and introduced Dr. Ander-son.

See Need to Guard Freedom

New York City, June 21, 1940.

All the speeches we have heard note the threats to free peoples and voice the determination to maintain the freedom of America. Conversation turns to trouble abroad and the need of safeguarding the western hemisphere. People are deeply troubled by the menace to civilization, but express abiding faith in the democratic way of safe government.

Appointments Fire Interest.

The appointment of two outstanding republicans, Colonel Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war, and Colonel Frank Knox as secretary of the navy, has fired new interest in public affairs this morning. The New York Times gives editorial approval to the appointments on the ground of efficiency. Coming on the eve of the Philadelphia convention, resentment flares in republican circles. Confessed lack of qualified material in new deal ranks or a desire nephia convention, resentment flares in republican circles. Confessed lack of qualified material in new deal ranks or a desire to establish a coalition cabinet for political advantage is suggested. None will deny that changes were needed. Perhaps in this trisis changes could not await replacements that would follow under an entirely new regime. It is impressive, if not strange, so note how in serious emergencies new leal experimenters have turned to so-alled big business, William Knudsen of Jeneral Motors, and others, and to republicans of seasoned experience, to occupy, posts of practical leadership. If such ried and proved leadership had been intelled early in the new deal administration, how much sooner the country would nave been lifted out of the bog of economic lespair, how much less would be the public debt, and how much greater would be preparent that reform and progress must have a sizable common-sense ballast to be nade to work and survive. to work and survive.

At the convention session yesterday morning, Bristow Adams of the staff of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., talked on "The Press, the Farm, the War." To the press he gave the responsibility for rational thinking. The farmer stands for production and peace; the soldier for destruction and violence. The farmer is followed by Weeklies Have Reader Interest.

We were interested in a talk by Charles Allen, editor of the National Publisher, rho gave the results of a research made to letermine the relative reader interest beween metropolitan newspapers and country weeklies. His report was altogether avorable to the rural community newspapers. He showed that the higher rate inch charged by a newspaper of 50,000 irculation was more expensive as deternined by results than the lower rate fixed y a community publication of 2,000 circulation. The country weekly is more carefully and completely read, as the reearch proved.

We visited the Times building Wednesday night and had a buffet dinner on the ourteenth floor. From that height we vere started on a tour of inspection of the highbuilding and plant. The elevator which we boarded to descend to the next lower loor was over-crowded and wouldn't stop in time to allow passengers to get off. The perator tried the next floor down, and he elevator did the same thing — halted wo or three feet below the level. Suspecting a cable might break and precipitate he human cargo some hundreds of feet elow, we sagely advised the operator to colon down to the bottom, discharge part in his load and start over. This he did, and we happily got out, passed up further limes inspection, and journeyed over to Radio City where we saw a wonderful how.

New Yorkers Appreciate West.

Thursday (yesterday) noon the editors were entertained by the Merchants association of New York at Hotel Astor. The ditor guests were seated among New Cork's leading business and industrial epresentatives, and the latter, as typified by those at our table, were very gracious nd eager to know about conditions in the sually productive bread basket of the uddle west. Speeches at the dinner were y productive bread basket of the ewest. Speeches at the dinner were by Read Admiral Clark A. Wood of the United States navy, and by F. H. LaGuardia of New York City. Assuming that the war ends with victory for Germany and Italy, the "world crisis is by no means over and the quicker the American people understand that the better it will be for our security and fluture prosperity. We have the advantage of natural resources and mass production and there is, no need to be alarmed that we cannot produce all that is necessary for the protection of our country. But there must be a real driving action behind it. We must stand united," warned Mayor LaGuardia.

Urges Strengthening Navy.

"Battleships of today combine greatest concentration of fighting strength and utmost power of resistance, or power of survival, ever built in one hull," Rear Admiral Woodward told the editors. The navy officer acknowledged that airplanes are indispensable as auxiliary weapons, but he is convinced of the final effectiveness of battleships. The present building program, when completed in 1946 or 1947, will give the United States 80 per cent of the tonnage held after the World war. The officer referred to this nation's scrapping of ships after the Washington conference of 1922 and the London conference of 1922 and the London conference of 1922 and the London conference of 1930 as a "silly gesture, as no other nation followed our lead." Read Admiral Woodward advocates an additional 70 per cent naval tonnage to provide a "minimum of battleships needed because of our enormous stake in the world which must be protected at all costs."

Millions Visit New York.

The job of the New York convention and visitors bureau of the New York Merchants association is two-fold: To bring conventions and visitors to New York, and to help them be comfortable and happy while there. In the year just past New York served as host to 756 conventions which were attended by 260,000 delegates. It is estimated that in the single year, 7,500,000 people from out of town stopped in New York hotels on business or pleasure. In the afternoon we visited at the home of relatives in Elizabeth, N. J., going through nearby traffic, under the Hudson river and through Jersey City. On the trip we saw the French Normandie and the English Queen Elizabeth at dock and properly camouflaged.

New York City, June 22, 1940.

New York City, June 22, 1940.

Prof. and Mrs. W. A. Behl, the latter formerly Fave Beckenhauer, called on us yesterday afternoon. Mr. Behl, who taught in the Wayne school for four years, is now teacher of public speaking in the Brooklyn college. He says eighty per cent of the students are Jews. He like's his work, but he still feels that Wayne is his home.

While Mrs. Behl and my wife spent the afternoon sightseeing, Mr. Behl joined me with a few others in a visit with Herbert Hoover, former president, in his apartment on the sixteenth floor of Hotel Waldorf-Astoria. We spent a half hour listening to Mr. Hoover explain his efforts in conveying relief to distressed peoples abroad. Late aggravated conditions in Europe have increased the task of supplying wants. Mr. Hoover thinks food scarcity, due to devastating war, will greatly stimulate the demand for farm products.

The final session of the National Editorial association was held yesterday with a banquet in the Roosevelt Hotel last evening, and most of the members leave this morning for a trip up the Hudson to Albany and from thence to Lake George. Later they go to Lake Placid, and the excursion will last most of next week. We will leave early today to attend the republican national convention in Philadelphia.

will last most of next week. We will leave early today to attend the republican national convention in Philadelphia.

One speech at the banquet last evening was by a reporter who had just returned from war scenes in Europe. He explained that the Maginot line built by France was considered impregnable. The line was a veritable junderground city with ammunition and food and other supplies to last a long time. But he explained it could not stand up under the machines of modern warfare. Under the force of attack it disappointed every expectation. His words suggested that America should get busy in developing latest means of protection against attack.

Some Newspaper Awards. (New York Times)

This week the National Editorial Association is holding its Fifty-fifth Annual Convention in this town. Such meetings of working newspaper men who are too often too busy to do much visiting are always professionally instructive and socially pleasant. It is superfluous to bid these friends welcome.

This year the first place for excellence in daily newspapers with a circulation of more than 3,500, excellence in typography, newspaper production and job printing went to our Nebraska contemporary, The Hastings Tribune. This "voice of Nebraska's great southwest" happens to be an old acquaintance. Its make-up, its news, its variety of reading material, its pictures, indicate the presence of an alert and intelligent auditionee. In fact, Hastings is a college town and The Tribune one of its most distinguished professors. Hastings has a population of 15,000; the professor an audience of 10,000. But this is diffused over a considerable farming tract.

The list of award-winning papers of smaller circulation in a number of states will make homesick many a New Yorker that read it yesterday. To hundreds of thousands of us these country town papers recall the home folks. They are like kind friendly faces. We have heart, a lot about the trials and tribulations of country editors. Yet their journals show a skill, a good task, even an elegance of form that speak of prosperity. It is their habit to give awards to the

The bill introduced by Senator Burke, Nebraska, to set up a system of compulsory military training may or may not be acceptable in its original form, but it is the certain fore-runner of legislation to accomplish its principal aim. The Burke bill, which embodies plish its principal aim. The Burke bill, which embodies legislation to be known as the "Selective Training Act of 1940," would divide the male population into front-line and home defense groups. The allaround soldiers would be selected by lot from men trained eight months in the lage group 21 to 45. The youths of the 18 to 21 group and ripe adults in the 45 to 65 group would be liable for training and service close to home. The president would be authorized to select for training and service, immediately upon passage of the bill, as many men as he believed needed, either in war or peace, for the adequate protection of the country. Men in lieved needed, either in war or peace, for the adequate protection of the country. Men in training would be paid $5 a month and traveling expenses. The act would be in force only till May 15, 1945, unless extended before that date. Here is a beginning to provide debate in congress and discussion the country over. The idea that country over. The idea that every man has a duty and a privilege in protection of his home and his country will be eventually translated into a practical law.

the country. The editor-in-chief was born and reared in an Illinois town of 450 people. In managing a newspaper he emphasized the policy of having "no friends to favor, and no foes to punish!" He said national defense could be materially buttressed by being fair and just in directing news and editorial features. He believes in compulsory military training as a way to man planes and other instruments of defense in case of emergency. He thinks a great-force of men and machines will persuade dictators to let us alone.

Convention City Sidelights

We reached this City of Broth-erly Love after a two-hour ride from New York City, but sharply in conflict with the brotherly love in conflict with the brotherly love idea, we ran' into a strike at the Normandie hotel where we had engaged a robm. I had never been in such close contact with a strike before, and when I saw the pickets marching back and forth with placards telling the world what was wrong, I happily anticipated a new experience. It seems as convention time, approached, the bell hops and house maids suddenly discovered they were not getting enough pay. So they organized a strike and put it into effect early vesterday morning. The cab man strike and put it into effect early yesterday morning. The cab man hauled our luggage to the door of the hotel, but asked to be relieved from taking it inside in order to escape the vengeance of the strikers. Aside from an air of noticeable solemnity and unexpected quiet, the hotel seemed to be running all right.

Several hundred pickets will be on hand tomorrow, according to the report. The Bulletin says organized labor's decision to lend such animated attention to the session was reached at a meeting in A.F.L. headquarters.

Members of the Nebraska delegation arrived yesterday noon. In the group are Frank Williams of the Lincoln Journal and James Lawrence of the Lincoln Star. Lawrence reminds me of the time many years ago when he helped me pilot along the old Beatrice Express, later deceased. Since then Lawrence has made iong forward strides in the field of journalism.

Members of the Nebraska delegation met at 9 this morning to receive budges and tickets of admission and to decide on Jother matters pertaining to organization and procedure. The delegation decided not to adopt the unit rule, but each member to vote as his judgment suggested. Meeting of the convention at 11 this morning was a colorless formality and none the convention at 11 this morning was a colorless formality and none of the Nebraska delegates attended. We were busy thrashing out details, and then journeyed to Dewey headquarters on invitation to see him. The convention adjourned to 10 o'clock tonight to listen to the keynote speech by the governor of Minnesota. We are tolerating lateness of the hour on the ground that it will be 8 o'clock in Nebraska and 6 o'clock on the Pacific coast. We hope voting starts by Wednesday.

Last evening we attended a musical program in the academy of music which seats 10,000 people, and which was crowded to overflowing. The entertainment was sponsored by Wendell L. Willkie, candidate for the presidency. Mr. Willkie and wife and son appeared and were frequently photographed and loudly applauded. Mr. Willkie gave a short talk and received a big ovation. Philadelphia Inquirer closing observations:

"Policy-makers of both great political parties would be well advised to note the resurgence in this country to grass-roots Americanism, the return of simplicity and directness of thought and statement.

"If the mind of the average American could be accurately read, these desires or demands might be found uppermost in his consciousness:

"First, I want my country to keep out of Europe's war. We can't help by getting mixed up in it. Intervention would cost far more in death and dollars than it would be worth.

"Second, I want my country to build up defenses so strong that no aggressor or group of aggressors would dare attack us. If we have to pile out indebtedness higher to protect ourselves, the sky is the limit. Just get going and get it finished.

"Third, I want to see business improve so that more people will get steady work. It seems to me one way to bring this about would be for the government to relax some of its restrictions so that industry could plan ahead with confidence and hoarded capital could be lured qui of the banks into productive enterprises.

Outline Program To Be Proposed

Maintaining Farm Plan in Present Form Favored At Group Meeting.

Maintenance of the ever-no granusy for corn, wheat and other grains as an effective national defense measure as well as a protection to consumers in normal times was one of the recommendations suggested when farmer representatives of Nebraska and nine other states in the AAA's north central region gathered in Chicago. Other provisions of the recommendations, according to H. J. Podoll, advocate keeping the program sufficiently flexible to meet the demands of any national emergency in agriculture, but at the same time preserve all of the essentials necessary to protect farmers when the emergency has passed.

That "permanent security for the United States does not rest alone on armed forces, but upon the high morale of our people" was the opinion voiced by C. Harving the property of the United States publication of the United States publication for the United States publication of that organization held in Minneapolis June 17 to 20. R. L. Larson and W. C. Coryell, were delegates from Wayne. Mr. Hippler went on to say that youth looks for leadership, and "we must use all the social and recreational facilities throughout the nation for instructing young people in the American way of life." Pressure groups, the fifth column and other foreign organizations are seeking to influence young people, substituting for democratic ideals the policies of Moscow and Berlin.

Glenn L. Cayanaugh of Omaha, chairman of the boys' and girls' work committee for Kiwanis International, said that "Unemployment for youth can be received by attendance at hight schools, con-

Some of the speakers heard were Martin Dies, chairman of the special house committed investigating unAmerican and subversive activities; H. V. Kaltenbotm, war commentator; and James G. Gardiner, Ottawa, Ont., minister of agriculture for Canada.

As a means of advancing still further the friendly relations between Canada and the United States, Kiwanis of Canada, erected 17 boundary tablets at various points on the border. These tablets impress upon all citizens the essential friendship between the two countries and that the boundary for thousands of miles is completely unfortified.

The Tale of a Watch.

The three-year burden of supporting a shiftless family, a task which appeared more nearly which appeared more nearly hopeless as time went on, finally became too heavy for Mack, now 17 and ambitious to advance himself. He gave his last dollar to the family and hitch-hiked to a Madison county town, where a bachelor uncle was elated to have his companionship. The uncle found him a job.

One evening the two called on a jeweler who whiled away his iotherwise lonely hours -in his store. The men visited in the little office at the rear, leaving Mack to wander in admiration lamong the cases of jewelry.

Soon Mack stopped behind a counter in which lay a beautiful wrist-watch, just such a watch as he long had wanted. His wages were sufficient for his

Mack and accused him of theft, believing that he was delivering the watch to them in hope of a reward. When called to the station, the jeweler suid his store had not been broken into and Mack had had access the night before to the watch, which he missed that morning when he came to the store.

Thereupon Mack confessed, but his reason for coming to the police was that he could not face

The jeweler pleaded that no action be taken against Mack, as did the uncle. Mack was placed on strict probation to an elderly railroad engineer, who found him a new position and persuaded him to save half his weekly earnings.

After 18 months the sponsor induced Mack to spend part of its savings on a course in accounting. Six months later, when Mack's probation period expired, he asked that it be extended so that he might still enjoy the guidance of his sponsor. But that was 'not necessary, as his sponsor's interest never flagged. At the height of the economic depression Mack departed for a west coast city, and for some years did not communicate with old friends.

years did not communicate with old friends.

The railroad engineer retired and took a long vacation trip to west, among other places the city to which Mack had gone. The boy's address proved to be a beautiful, modernistic hotel, in the lobby of which the engineer looked in vain among the beli-hops for Mack.

Slightly feeble, somewhat timid, the gray-haired sponsor approached the desk and made inquiry as to Mack's whereabouts. The clerk, thinking the aged man was seeking employment, insisted on knowing his errand. Railroad cards and passes cleared the path to a room in which Mack sat at a desk.

After they had greeted cach other as old friends do, the sponsor commented, "Well, Mack you must have a pretty fair job now."

ranches ruising the heavy birds. They never serve the small pieces of a chicken, but have them for sale to take home if one so desires. A clipping from a Long Beach newspaper, enclosed in the letter explained how the streets of that city are kept clean. Seven-ton, three-wheeled, streamlined machine, having a built-in sprinkling system and assorted brushes keeps the 250 miles of paved streets and alleys clean.

This street machine costs about $7,500. Three of them are needed to do the job. The mechanical sweepers cruise along at six miles per hour. A water sprinkler in the front end settles the street dust; a whirling broom spins gutter dirt and debris toward the center of the road, and a revolving street broom sweeps it into hampers. During the course of the year 10 tons for bamboo, imported from the Philippine islands, and about five tons of spring steel are worn to a frazzle.

Robert Isom of Allen, and Miss Paulina Dutton of Sioux City were married and will live in Sioux City.

Calcium chloride was applied to some streets at Schuyler to eliminate dust. The chloride was sprinkled with water after it was laid.
