

Fair Is General Impression—Another Lean Crop Year in South Part of State—Loaning Corn—Editors and Party Leaders Gather Separately—Wayne Needs An Oil Well—Autumn Speeds On—An Essential in School.

In number and variety of entries and in cooperative interest and support, the late county fair was a success. On most days the attendance was up to expectations.

Speeding up the fair one day, closing Friday, and fleeing Saturday for customary routine would seem more satisfactory to the public with no disadvantage to the fair management.

Contrast in Corn Crops. A trip to Lincoln reveals the comparatively good fortune of the corn crop in northeast Nebraska.

Butler Plan Popular. The plan proposed by Hugh Butler, republican candidate for United States senator, to furnish corn from sealed supplies to tide over live stock feeding, is meeting popular approval.

Two Groups Meet. Two important meetings were held in Lincoln Friday, one by republican leaders of the state to confer on points involved in development of the forthcoming political campaign, and the other by the board of directors of the Nebraska Press Association to consider affairs of the organization.

Why Not Find Oil Here? If Homer has discovered oil, as reported, this immediate area could reasonably be expected to do the same thing.

Looking Ahead. Now that the fairs are over, schools and colleges have resumed, and the autumn is moving toward frost and a foretaste of cold days, it looks as though buying supplies should develop snap and that business should gain in momentum.

Americans are becoming increasingly impressed with the idea that Admiral Perry should not have awakened the slumbering Japanese.

Wayne Folks Find Crops Are Greener Here Than in West

Northwest Nebraska is much greener than other parts of this state and Colorado, according to Dr. and Mrs. C. A. McMaster and Miss Virginia McNulty who arrived home Thursday after a western trip. On their way west the Wayne folks were in a most severe hail storm between Yankton and Mitchell, S. D. While they were in Salt Lake City rain fell and residents reported it the first since April.

The Wayne folks went to the Bad Lands and Black Hills enroute to Yellowstone park. At Gardner they met Wayne McMaster who spent two days with them in the park. They then took Wayne to Butte, Mont., and he went to Troy, Mont., where he will be located until the close of the season. Wayne has been helping control forest fires. The fire hazards are now decreasing because of fall rains.

Temperatures in Yellowstone dropped to 28° at night. The familiarity of bears in the park was a new experience for the Wayne folks.

From the park Dr. and Mrs. McMaster and Miss McNulty drove to Salt Lake, Denver and Colorado Springs. They enjoyed a swim in Salt Lake, and a trip up Pike's peak gave them rain, hail, snow and sleet along with some sunshine.

Roads are in excellent condition through the west and the McMasters saw no accidents. Careful driving is the rule.

THE KNOT-HOLE

Vol. 7 Wayne, Neb., Thur., Sept. 12, 1940 No. 42

How to sharpen the lawn mower at home is told in "Hints to the Handy Man." A later edition will tell what to do till the doctor comes.

What to do when winter comes? There are a number of questions, but there is one thing we are sure of. The man with a Will-Burt stoker doesn't even worry about the question. He's all set for a winter of solid comfort, regardless of how wild the winter may be. Have you been trying to get heating satisfaction without a Will-Burt?

"Give me an example of indirect tax."

"The dog tax."

"Why is that an indirect tax?"

"Because the dog doesn't pay it."

By the same sort of reasoning it is easy to prove that it doesn't pay to plant your buildings. Yet you know that this is false. The thing to do is paint this fall—using Glidden Paint, of course, and save the buildings.

When you see a man with a beef steak over his eye, you know someone gave him a bum steer.

When you want good coal in a hurry, call 147. Really, though, don't you think the right thing to do is fill that bin right now while the weather is good and there is no rush? Be all set when bad weather hits. Just call the same number—147.

This lassie says that the only difference between a cutie and an old maid is that the cutie goes out with the Johnnies and the old maid sits home with the Willies.

You can save yourself a bad case of "Willies" this winter by insulating your attic with Red Top wool batts. It costs little to do the job—and what a difference it makes! Can we give you an estimate?

Early History of Wayne County Found in Records

Early history of Wayne county, now dating back about the length of one life span, is of interest to many. When in Lincoln records looking through old records Dr. J. R. Johnson, of the college history department, found some information about Wayne county in pioneer days.

"Nebraska Gazetteer and Business Directory for 1879-80," compiled and published by J. M. Wolfe, Omaha, Neb., 1879, contained the following: "Wayne is bounded north by Cedar and Dixon, east by Blackbird, south by Cumming and Stanton, and west by Pierce. It was organized in 1871, has an area of 448 square miles, and a population of 400. Its productions for 1878 were estimated at: Wheat, 100,700 bushels; corn, 240,000 bushels; oats, 70,000 bushels; rye, 30,000 bushels; barley, 90,000 bushels. Its livestock consisted of 218 horses, eight mules, 516 cattle, 373 sheep, and 658 hogs. It has eight schools and one newspaper. Lands sell: Wild, at $1 to $5; improved, $4 to $12.

county, was settled first by C. E. Hunter in 1869. It is situated in the eastern portion of the county about eight miles north of the boundary line. The nearest railroad station is Wisner, 13 miles south. The court house is one of the finest in the northern part of Nebraska, and was built of brick but recently, at a cost of $15,000. With its beautiful location, magnificent surroundings and great agricultural resources, LaPorte must in the future become one of the most important towns in northern Nebraska. The Wayne County Review is the county organ, published here by C. E. Hunter. The stage runs daily from LaPorte to Wisner and semi-weekly to Ponca.

In Early Directory.

"Wayne county business directory includes the following names: Clerk, R. B. Crawford; treasurer, John T. Bressler; judge, C. E. Hunter; surveyor, L. F. Jones; superintendent of schools, D. C. Patterson; commissioners, I. O. Richardson, O. F. Crane, E. Behmer; blacksmith, W. P. Agler; attorney at law, James Britton; druggist, etc. Crawford and Brown; dry goods, groceries, T. Hardenburgh; postmaster and publisher Wayne County Review, C. E. Hunter; attorney at law, D. C. Patterson."

Describe Early Wayne.

"Nebraska State Gazetteer and Business Directory for 1886-87," J. M. Wolfe and Co., publishers, Omaha: "Wayne, a town noted for its enterprise, on the Norfolk branch of the C. St. P. M. & O. Ry., 118 miles from Omaha. It is the judicial seat of Wayne county. Population, 1,000. Wayne is surrounded by a very fertile and productive country, being located in the famous valley of the Logan. The soil is adapted to all kinds of grain, which yield in abundance, and from its numerous ravines and gulches, as well as a plentiful supply of water, it is especially suited to stock raising. The town was plotted in 1881, and soon after the county seat was transferred from LaPorte to this point; since which time rapid progress has been made. Among the buildings erected during the past year was a new roller mill, costing $10,000; Citizens' Bank building, $6,000; Lutheran church, $2,250; Methodist, $2,100; Catholic $2,000; grain elevator, $5,000; school house, $6,000. Other improvements aggregate $64,000 in value of which amount $5,000 was expended for sidewalks, greatly adding to the thrifty appearance of the town and creditable to its citizens. A new engine was added to the fire department, which is under excellent management. The shipments of grain for 1885 were 130 car loads; of stock, 138 car loads; and 146 car loads of lumber were received to be applied in improvements of all kinds. In harmony with its outward appearance a high educational standing has been maintained by its schools, and its churches kept in a prosperous condition. A general banking business is transacted by the First National Bank. There are excellent hotel accommodations. The Boyd has recently refurbished and is ably conducted by A. H. Ellis, proprietor. The Scott House, A. Scott, proprietor, has a liberal patronage and shares with the Boyd in the entertainment of guests. Two of the local weeklies have been consolidated under the name of the Wayne Herald-Tribune, which is influential and progressive. It is published by Goshorn & McNeal, who have built up for it a wide circulation. The Wayne Gazette, Childs Bros. proprietors, is the official county paper and has a large subscription list. The churches are: Baptist, Rev. G. H. Travis, pastor; Methodist, Rev. H. G. Pittinger, pastor; Presbyterian, Rev. G. M. Lodge, pastor; and Catholic, Rev. D. W. Moriarty, pastor. Societies: Wayne Lodge, No. 120, A. F. & A. M.; and Cassey Post, No. 5, G. A. R.

Sixty Years Ago

A Sioux City dispatch reported that John I. Blair planned to buy the narrow gauge railroad, according to the Ponca Journal of 60 years ago. "Then he will cross the river at Dakota City and connect with the Sioux City & Pacific road down near Sergeant Bluff somewhere. The road from Dakota City to Covington would be abandoned. It is supposed that the Maple Valley road would be pushed on to West Point on the Elkhorn by way of Onawa and Decatur. The Union Pacific grade from Jackson to Norfolk is finished but no ironing is done. The Sioux City & Pacific, after grading 15 miles and ironing five on the branch from Norfolk to Niobrara, stopped work and is now pushing the Black Hills branch west from Norfolk, laying iron at the rate of one and a fourth miles a day."

More than half the American railroad mileage was in western states. The demand for rails continued to exceed the supply.

Cuming county seemed to be a favored locality. The Elkhorn valley is "unrivaled for scenery, farming lands and salubrious climate. The valley is adapted to big cattle and big vegetables and also to wonderful politicians. West Point, the inner temple of that favored valley, is the home of Judge Valentine. The district attorney also resided under the shadow of that place and now it is proposed that J. C. Crawford of that place be district judge."

Candidates for officers for the full election were: Judge of supreme court, E. Wakely, Douglas, democrat; Amasa Cobb, Lancaster, republican; judge of 6th district, J. C. Crawford, Cuming democrat; J. B. Barnes, Dixon, republican; Dixon county commissioner, John McKinley, republican; Aug. Drager, Republican; county judge, W. C. Smith, democrat, E. H. Porter, republican; county clerk, T. R. Orr, democrat, E. M. Bisbee, republican; county treasurer, Dennis Hurley, democrat, R. H. Knapp, republican; sheriff, E. H. Jones, democrat, H. C. Fields, republican; superintendent, W. N. McDonald, democrat, A. S. Palmer, republican; surveyor, O. P. Sullenberger, democrat, A. S. Palmer, republican.

The Iowa women's suffrage association met at Des Moines and passed resolutions against taxation and laws without representation, against governing marriage and property wherein the husband has disposal of property, also in favor of petitioning the legislature for the ballot, in favor of temperance and equality of wages for similarity of work.

The remains of Wild Bill, killed at Deadwood in 1879, were exhumed at Ashland. The body was petrified and the form perfectly preserved. When buried it weighed 180 pounds and at removal weighed 300.

A Political Typhoon. (Sioux City Journal.)

In the latest Pathfinder poll, published in the current edition of that magazine, Emu Hurja, said to be the foremost political prophet in the country, makes an observation that is of particular interest to all Willkie followers. Mr. Hurja writes as follows in commenting on the Pathfinder poll: "Centering about the eastern seaboard, a November typhoon is in the making. Whether it will swing through the populous areas of the middle west, whether it will veer into the farming belt to spend itself in the western prairies, we must confess it will take a better weather eye than ours to tell. But one thing appears certain—in this mid-August hurricane season a storm is brewing on the political horizon, and it bodes ill for the democrats."

For if Pathfinder's current poll means anything at all, it means that the magic of President Roosevelt has hit a definite downward trend, a trend that has been evident to this observer ever since the days before the 1936 election."

The Pathfinder poll sought to discover two things: (1) the indicated percentage of votes lost by President Roosevelt since 1936, and (2) the indicated pluralities now held by him and Wendell Willkie in the eight broad groups of states. The Roosevelt loss in votes cast for him in 1936 is given in the following percentages: New England, 23.2; eastern seaboard, 23.5; border states, 16.9; farm states, 22.8; lake states, 23.3; mountain states, 15.8; Pacific coast, 22.5; solid south, 6.1.

The pluralities indicated for these sections are: Willkie, 3,502,395; Roosevelt, 2,576,613, which, gives the republican candidate, as Mr. Hurja puts it, "an edge of more than 925,000 votes."

Mr. Hurja and the Pathfinder, it must be kept in mind, are not predicting a Willkie victory in November. They merely are giving the results of the poll from week to week, and this is what they find.

Social Gains IN HIS Nebraska Farmer, Samuel McKelvie justly pooh-poohs social gains under government policies that have doubled the national debt and kept millions idle or on relief. Speaking of the president's coddling of pet schemes that didn't work, Mr. McKelvie said:

"Clearly, the experiments have not worked, nor will they. The philosophy of government spending, increased taxes, reduced production and constantly shorter hours of work are signs of defeatism under a capitalist system. They have not worked, and will not, under any system, except as the worker is ground down to serfdom while bureaucracy rules the state.

"Mr. Roosevelt is very proud of his so-called social gains. To him, their preservation is paramount. When he accepted the third-term renomination, while the democrat convention was still in session, he scarcely finished discussion of the national emergency for preparedness—requiring that he stay on the job to see it through—when he emphasized again that, 'There is nothing in our present emergency to justify making the workers of our nation toil for longer hours than those limited by statute.'

"And what are those hours? Forty hours per week, and the highest wage scale in history.

"This nation was founded and built by individual sacrifice; it will be preserved by it, or die. Mr. Roosevelt cannot preach that doctrine. His political fortunes prevent it. In order to save face, he must insist that his policies and measures, allegedly right in the past, are still right. He never yet has admitted error, or retired from a position once taken, except as he was forced to.

"So instead of being indispensable, he is the most dispensable of all. He has disqualified himself to continue as a national leader, especially in this time of emergency and need for individual sacrifice."

Wallace Complain NEW DEAL Vice Presidential Candidate Henry Wallace, late head of the agricultural department, was apparently aggrieved over what he interpreted as lack of appreciation on the part of Nebraskans, for bounties bestowed on the state by the federal government. His conclusion was reached following political speeches he made in this state in the course of his campaign. Audiences that gathered to hear him were small and not enthusiastic. They burned no red fire, gave no shouts of laughter.

Nebraskans are of too fine type to rise to high ecstasies of joy over plights that have prompted federal aid. Appearance of Candidate Henry only reminded them of painful facts. They would prefer a substantial business structure and ample employment in private industry to stimulate buying power and strengthen market values. They have found by sad experience that the policy of scarcity is a grievous error and a source of galling loss and hardship. The ghosts of five million sacrificed pigs rise to haunt them when they see Candidate Henry or think of him. Nebraskans are sinewy and resolute. They want to live the traditionally independent, American way. They are too alert to the disappointing realities of the new deal to feel the joy Candidate Henry would like to see manifested.

And from whence comes the money dished out by the federal government? The mounting public debt with an increasing tax load, is the answer.

Leopold Mixes In IT APPEARS that one Leopold Melo, Argentine statesman who was a delegate to the recent Havana conference, has assured his people that the North American market will be open to Argentina cattle soon after the November election. He said President Roosevelt told him so in a good neighborly fashion. The president issued a denial. Leo explained that western senators were more inclined to listen to voters than to the president. That may seem an odd custom to Leo, but it is the American idea of allowing the people to rule. The Omaha World-Herald comments:

"That also was the way Mr. Roosevelt disposed of early reports that he intended to trade 50 American destroyers for British naval bases. His present declaration will not entirely lift the fears of those who are interested in the prices of North American cattle."

Hugh Butler, republican candidate for the United States senate, is not just trying to be elected. He isn't out just to capture political renown. He has some practical ideas about solving farm problems and helping bring agriculture and live stock growing back to a sound, workable basis. He has no political machine. He is favored by no group angling for political spoils. He came from the farm, and his interests are embedded in the farm. He knows the anxieties and needs of those who till the soil and produce the world's food. Butler answers the demand for less shifty politics and more practical statesmanship.

The rider hitched to the conscription bill that passed the senate authorizes the government to take over industry and all facilities believed needed to prepare for defense. That step is interpreted to mean the government could absorb everything considered essential to the public service including the radio and newspaper. That would mean farewell to free speech and a free press. We would certainly be making progress in the wrong direction.

It is not strange that Jeffersonian democrats join republicans against the new deal program of centralization. Jefferson was strong for state rights. Republicans have seen their old-time tendency to centralized power carried to such an alarming extreme that they have reversed themselves in the interest of balance and safety and are pulling the other way in the hope of re-establishing a workable middle course. Thus, it is no wonder republicans and old-time democrats are uniting forces.

The administration at Washington admits that conditions have become critical. All will agree. Every new deal fallacy was in answer to an emergency, and every launched fallacy created another emergency. Thus, after seven years of economic tinkering, careless pledging and wild bragging, it would seem high time to change leadership, to handle both foreign and domestic problems. The foreign situation is a reason for change rather than a reason not to change.

The deal by which the president traded fifty over-age ships to England for certain insular bases in waters of the western hemisphere would likely have been authorized by congress if its members had been given a chance to express themselves. The wisdom of the transaction is not often questioned. It was the manner of handling it that caused a series of kicks from those who shrink from the growing tendency to one-man government.

Ghastly war enforces a system of bold-est deceit. While destroying hospitals and noncombatants, it whines about the unfairness of the enemy. Is anything fair in war? It is utterly ruthless—a devouring ogre wholly bereft of sense of mercy.

Sense of humor is a powerful antidote to the partisan hysteria exhibited by new dealers who are feverishly trying to avoid being dislodged. We have in mind irritable Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior.

Nebraska-weather is a marvel for quick and extreme change. Probably nowhere on earth does one have to wait less time to get the kind of weather he wants.

It is refreshing to learn that Wilkie prepares his own speeches. He is thus certain not to rely on others to do his thinking.

With more than half of the civilized world going to bed hungry every night, what could be more appropriate than the crowning of the Nebraska 4-H boy and girl winners of the good health contest at the state fair with a coronet roast of lamb garnished with luscious corn fed beef and pork?

While the rest of the world is engaged in a ruthless and devastating war for supremacy, a war that is taking hundreds of lives daily, causing untold misery and suffering and filling the countries of the Old World with helpless widows and orphans, the state of Nebraska, in company with the other states of the union, emphasizes in our state, district and county fairs, the health of our splendid boys and girls and stresses the production of those things that contribute to their well being.

The picture is one that must carry a wonderful appeal to the pride and patriotism of every American.

Social Justice and the AAA.

Speaking at Falls City last week the new Secretary of Agriculture, Claude Wickard, hard-fisted, dirt farmer of Indiana, defended the surplus removal program and the food-stamp plan "on the basis of social justice and national security," because "we cannot permit the recurrence of hunger amidst plenty."

Many Nebraska farmers in recurrent drouth sections are wondering how much the element of social justice and national security applies in the farm program wherein farmers in the favored states with huge corn yields are being assured corn loans at levels which penalize the farmer without feed, and benefit and parity payments to boot, while the distress areas get the minimum of benefits, must reduce crop acreages more, and are able to eke out a bare existence if they do not lose their farms entirely.

We have a hunch that a lot of these farmers might want to tell Mr. Wickard that social justice, like some other things, begins at home as far as they are concerned.

Sound Talk from the Past.

P. T. Barnum may have had some of the weaknesses generally credited to showmen, but he was highly successful and he ran a good circus where you generally got your money's worth. A word of advice from the man who operated the "Greatest Show on Earth" is therefore apropos at the present time.

Here's a very pithy declaration from Barnum's own lips:

"Advertise, or the chances are that the sheriff will do it for you."

The Great Showman's estimate of the value of advertising is surely worth the attention of certain individuals, even some in high places, who are inclined to view it with contempt. Those who argue that advertising is a waste of money forget that it sells goods widely, helps to make mass production possible, and thus in the end leads to far lower prices for the average consumer.

Barnum understood these matters. It was perhaps when he ran into folks with a contrary view that he made a second famous remark: "There's one born every minute!"

FREE ENTERPRISE.

In Nation's Business, Merle Thorpe urges freedom of enterprise in the task of hastening preparedness. Bureaucrats who would take over industry or direct its operation, are unskilled in the job of production. They would obstruct and delay the work that needs to be done. If conscription is allowed to take over everybody and everything, including free speech and labor and property, we would fasten upon ourselves the very system against which the nation is preparing itself on a gigantic scale to oppose. Writer Thorpe says among other things: "There is a job to be done, the like of which has never before faced a free people. Wisdom, it seems, would counsel the removal of those political controls which prevent our returning again to the American plan whereby workers—men, management and machines—without political meddling, organize wholeheartedly to do the job. Problems arising from the nature of man himself will always be with us, our present distress is the fallacy that the long arm of the federal government can solve those problems better than they can be solved on the home ground."

Successful

ciety and to himself grows lamentably small if he sees how little constructive effort he can put forth to get by, and how much time he can spend in nocturnal carousels and still hold his job. The human fiber must be developed early to resist evil tendencies. The child must learn to enjoy mental or physical labor and to appreciate earned fruits, no matter how meagre. Pride in the course of work should be as great as that in the field of play. Teachers may show that persons properly attuned to a day's task are rewarded far beyond the monetary compensation received. Self-denial and acceptance of responsibility and unwavering loyalty and reliability fortify character in a troubled world where they were never more pressingly needed.

PIONEER SPIRIT.

The Sioux City Journal bares the president's reversal of thinking in connection with the "pioneer spirit," return of which he says is now imperatively needed. As pointed out by the Journal, its need has been apparent for seven years in solving domestic problems. From the start of the new deal in 1933, so-called softness, the antithesis of pioneer pluck, was encouraged by government paternalism, short working hours and diminished production. The Journal comments in part:

"Washington's attitude toward the depression and its accompaniment of unemployment was wrong from the beginning of the first Roosevelt administration. The government under the new deal behaved as if it had accepted as an indisputable fact the idea that the richest country on earth suddenly had become impoverished, that its resources in everything but money had been dissipated, that the fiercest of the people had been worn out, that we had nothing in reserve, that we had lost our resiliency, that our courage had ebbed, that we no longer were virile and competent and self-reliant. Then began the practice of the most insidious paternalism known, perhaps, to history, and it has gone far toward banking down the character of millions of people through making them dependents."

THE BIGGEST "BOLT" OF ALL

Edmund Duffy, in the Baltimore Sun.

Washington, D. C., September 3, 1940. Washington has had about two weeks of rainy weather. In spite of that, thousands of tourists have been coming to town to listen to debates on the conscription bill; to see places of historic interest and to ask members of the house and senate questions about war. These armies of tourists are augmented by hundreds of people who are here looking for jobs and, also, hundreds of others who are interested in selling national defense supplies to Uncle Sam.

The leaders have tentatively set September 20 as the day when congress can either recess or adjourn. They figure that by the time the selective service bill is out of the way, there will be no other immediately pressing legislation. However, a bloc is still active against adjournment, sine die, feeling that representatives should stay on the job and continue their fight to keep this country out of another war.

For weeks it has been almost impossible to get into the senate galleries during debate on the conscription bill. All of that activity was transferred to the house during the past week and standing room was at a premium. Lobbyists for an against conscription came to the house side, overflowing into the offices of nearby every representative. The pressure was so terrific in some cases that members asked policemen to keep crowds out of their offices. Baskets filled with propaganda for and against the draft came to the various offices. Letters by the thousands were included in the campaign.

The passage of the conscription bill in the house was a foregone conclusion. The anti-draft members concentrated their efforts on what they hoped would be helpful amendments. Just what the bill will finally look like depends upon the few men who are designated conferees. It will be these men who, at last, bring out the completed bill which must then be approved by both houses before it is sent to the president for signature.

The anti-draft bloc in the house was not exclusively made up of isolationists. Most of those who voted against conscription, did so because they did not believe in compulsory draft during peace time, feeling that it is too great an alteration of our traditional system. Many felt that the voluntary enlistment program had not been given a full chance. Many of these members voted for the national guard and reserves bill, feeling that this will give the army sufficient men for training until modernized, mechanized equipment has been acquired. Those favoring the draft, felt that the voluntary program had failed and that selective service was the wisest method to pursue to meet present national defense requirements. Now that the big question has been debated and voted on, there remains much seriousness in the tone of discussions. All of these talks usually end with the expression of the hope that the United States will not be forced into this second world war.

The Third district member has been in constant touch with the department of agriculture regarding drouth conditions in some of our counties where farmers need grain. The department has been asked if it is possible to take some of our surplus grain and give it to these farmers, to be replaced, bushel for bushel, in kind, when these farmers get a drop again. The department is not in favor of such a plan. The department is also opposed to a similar plan embraced in a bill introduced by the Third district member long ago, respecting the liquidation of feed and seed loans.

Politics is creeping into most of the debates as the time draws near for the conclusion of this session of congress. One democratic leader, discussing presidential candidates with a republican leader, stated: "You got a candidate and we got a candidate, neither of which has an inferiority complex."

Needy farmers in drouth districts must continue to turn to the farm security administration and the farm credit administration for aid. According to information given the Third district member, who has been anxious to release some of the surplus grain to these farmers. The surplus commodities agency will also play some part in the relief of these needy farmers. The battle for these farmers has been and will be continued by the Nebraska delegation which has had several conferences on this subject.

The bill to give the people in Washington a vote is now out of the window for this session. A southern bloc stopped the passage of the measure, fearing that if the vote and representation were given Washingtonians, the more than 230,000 colored people would run the town. Authors of the legislation say it is all off for the present.

A Nebraska youth who works in one of the departments here says he is now one of the 650,000 fellow citizens in Washington, but he does not have one neighbor in the sense we know neighbors back home. About 1,700 Nebraskans work in this town.

Labor day brought about the end of what Washington people say is the summer vacation. The stores have about finished their sales of summer goods and the society racketeers are back on the job. The usual program for 20,000 teas, cocktail parties, receptions and musicales has started. That means a gigantic harvest for the caterers, florists, dress shops, photographers and liquor stores.

"Galloping Teas" to raise money and bundles for Britain are the popular social programs here. Society is out en masse these days attending these teas. Service bands and officials from the executive and other branches of the government are present at these functions. In the past, ordinary people have found it very difficult to walk upon the British embassy lawn, but now it is occasionally open for these functions.

Senator Ernest Lundeen who was recently killed in an airplane crash, was very close to many mid-western representatives who joined him in fighting the conscription bill. Lundeen was born in South Dakota and was a member of the farm bloc which has been fighting for farm legislation. He had planned to sit around the house chamber during the debate on the conscription bill. He told Nebraska and South Dakota members the day before he left Washington on his fatal trip, that after speaking to a labor group in Minnesota, he would fly back to Washington and aid the anti-draft bloc. Probably his last statement to a house member was made on this same Friday, when he expressed fear that compulsory draft during peacetime would lead this country into the present war. Lundeen was an outright isolationist.

Diplomatic and army experts who have recently returned to Washington admit that the best informed minds in Europe never dreamed that the present war would take its present form. They admit that England and France were not prepared to wage war and that the events which transpired were so surprising that admissions of misinformation and no information are now made. These experts say that no one today knows what will transpire tomorrow, or within a week or within a month. In all the jittery war talk in Washington today, there is not one word of peace. In fact, talk about peace is frowned on. No one here is talking about peace, but the probability of this nation becoming involved in the present war is the number one topic of conversation. Serious statesmen admit that civilization is paying a tremendous price. There are yet a few who hope that the message of peace on earth, addressed to humanity nearly two thousand years ago, will emerge from the present chaos.

In spite of statements that unemployment will be unrelucted during the coming winter, big business which is here in big numbers, predicts that the business boom which is ahead of us will be the biggest in our history. They admit that the war and national defense are the causes. There is no answer yet to questions as to what will happen when and if peace comes. When that comes, it is admitted here that the farmer will have to supply a lot of hungry people with something to eat. In the meantime, the American farmer is going to be called upon to raise a lot of food for hungry soldiers and sailors and also those who are not in the military services.

members of his family. The same thing is happening around some of the public buildings, including the bureau of standards. Explanations bring this answer: "It's the war."

The so-called excess profits tax bill, another step toward preparedness, was passed by the house under a gag rule which permitted no amendments and there was no record vote. The object of the measure is, primarily, to prevent another big crop of new millionaires from profits upon expenditures for national defense. There was no objection to that idea, but many members feel that the bill contains a lot of loopholes open to speculators, brokers and numerous industries. The legislation applies more particularly to corporations. Very few members understood the bill and most of the word of the ways and means committee members who had been wrestling with it for many weeks. One member of that committee says that the bill may have to be rewritten again next January.

Recent visitors to the Third congressional office include the following Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Beckenhauer, Sr., and Kenneth Paul and Virginia Beckenhauer, all of West Point. Former Governor Arthur J. Visit of Undeveloped Interior Points Of Panama Canal Zone Interesting Trips to interior points in the Panama canal zone, taken recently by Paul Berrinton of Balboa Heights, reveal that the country there is undeveloped and still in a rather wild state. Paul tells of his experiences in a letter written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Berrinton, excerpts of which follow:

 "I took a short trip up to David, Republic of Panama, and Garfito, Costa Rica. Roberts Evans, Leo Lyons and I went by Pan-American plane to David. That is the only means of getting there except by boat or over roads that are scarcely more than jungle trails.
 "We left here at 5:05 Thursday night and were in David, which is only a few miles from the Costa Rican boundary, at 8:30. As you know, it was my first experience in the air and I enjoyed it immensely. The terrain is so much more beautiful than anything you could possibly find in the States, and although most of the time we were flying in the dark there was a full moon casting a luminous reflection on the Pacific which we skirted most of the way. There are many mountains up in the interior of Panama and as we rose to cross them it was extremely cool. I had gotten out my heavier clothes but nevertheless I shivered.
 "There were eight passengers on the plane in addition to the two pilots. Two of them were German Jews on their way to David to peddle Swiss-made watches and they were most anxious to strike up a conversation with us as the rest of the passengers were Spanish. People down here make much more use of airplane services than they do in the States and it is not at all uncommon to see a poor Panamanian rancher or farmer flying into Panama City from way out in the sticks.
 "The worst thing about the trip was the landing—the field at David seemed to have as many gulches in it as a cultivated corn field. Our rooms in the Hotel Palencia were far from inviting, and the food was worse. David is really a town in the jungle, not at all like Panama City or Colon. It has no paved streets, and now during the rainy season they are a soggy mass of red clay. There is a small railroad which runs up to a few of the banana and coffee plantations in the interior but it doesn't connect with any other city and so it naturally doesn't add very much to the town's cosmopolitan air. People are not as fully clothed as in Panama City either—in fact, it's rather unusual to see small children with any clothes on at all.
 "Friday afternoon we got on board the Chiriqui, a small vessel engaged in coastwise trading and carrying a few passengers. It is owned by the Hans Elliott Steamship company of Panama City—some white people, so we had some pretty good food on it. Played cards most of the night as a herd of steers in the hold managed to keep us awake, and we didn't want to sleep anyway. I don't know how far it is from David to Garfito, Costa Rica, but we landed there just as the sun was starting to come up. Leo knew a young fellow there by the name of Godoy who works for the United Fruit company so he was down to meet us. Leo is the boy who used to work as a salesman for McGraw-Hill Publishing company and he's been all over through Central America. The United Fruit company provides bachelor quarters for its employees similar to those provided by the Panama canal and so we stayed in these Saturday night. They're a lot nicer than the ones we have in Balboa as they're much newer. In fact, Garfito itself is not more than two or three years old so everything has to be new. We went swimming early Sunday morning at a beach about 10 miles from the town, and as the tide was out Godoy drove his car all the way there on the beach which was a 100 per cent better than the trail we had to take back. Had fresh strawberries and also fresh cantaloupe and pears for lunch. That's in addition to the usual bananas, mangoes, papaya, etc.
 "Last Wednesday night Leo and I were down on the S. S. Manhattan and had dinner. The Manhattan and the Washington are the sister luxury liners of the United States lines. They are truly beautiful and are something like 35,000 tons in size. The Manhattan had over 600 cruise passengers on board, most of them rich folks who have no better use for their time or money. We had dinner in the first-class dining room at $2 a plate, and what delicious food and what beautiful surroundings and fine service. We had the place almost to ourselves as the passengers had deserted the ship almost as soon as it docked to visit the shops in Panama City and get in as much sightseeing as possible. But we didn't mind, and there were a lot of people from Balboa and Ancon who came down to give the ship a once-over. The gangplank entered the ship on G deck, and then there were Decks F (on which the dining rooms were located), E, D, C, B, (the pomenade deck), and A. There were six elevators throughout the ship, two swimming pools, a tennis court, volley ball court and numerous other things.
 "Both of the ships had previously been in the European trade and only recently have been transporting refugees to the United States. Now, however, they're both plying between New York and San Francisco while the new super-luxury liner S. S. America of the same lines takes in the Caribbean trade.
Visit Interior Points.
 "Sunday Burman Spangler came over about 7 a. m. and we took an all-morning trip up into the interior on the east side of the canal. Took a route via the towns of Sabanas, Pedregal and Pacora, which is located on the banks of the Rio Tataro river. This part of the interior is very seldom traveled by anyone from the canal zone on account of the exceedingly poor roads and almost jungle-like trails. However, we took our own sweet time and didn't arrive at Pacora, about 65 miles from Panama City, until almost noon. Parts of the country are far from one's idea of a Panama jungle as in some places high grassy plains extend for miles and miles until in the distance they merge into wooded hills and mountains wreathed in a deep purplish mist. The valleys generally have some river or stream running through them and it is here that you will find your tropical jungle growths. One such place that we went through must have been for a couple of miles, almost level, with huge stately trees, giant tree ferns, feathery bamboo-like plants, and over all a damp and sweet smell. I enjoyed the drive immensely, especially so as I had never been farther than Old Panama on the east side of the canal.
 "Pacora is a very small native village consisting of mostly thatched huts and I should judge there are as many cur dogs in the village as people. Burman went swimming in a small pool below some rapids in the river alongside the village but I just couldn't do it because a short distance away the river was full of natives swimming and washing clothes, and still further up the river a string of pack horses were crossing laden down with sugar cane and coconuts. It was very swift running water so of course it would have been pure, but still I couldn't swim in it. The water really was pure because the natives drank it, even without boiling.

 "Substance" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, September 15.
 The Golden Text is: "If we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it" (Romans 8:25).
 Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be thou my strong habitation, whereunto I may continually resort; thou hast given commandment to save me; for thou art my rock and my fortress" (Psalms 71:3).
 The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay. Truth, Life and Love are substance, as the scriptures use this word in Hebrews: 'The substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.' Spirit, the synonym of Mind, Soul, or God, is the only real substance. The spiritual universe, including individual man, is a compound idea, reflecting the divine substance of Spirit" (p. 468).

Championship Game To Be Held in Wayne

Game Is Necessary Because Of Randolph's 8 to 0 Win Over Wayne Sunday.

Wayne and Randolph will clash here next Sunday afternoon in what will be the deciding game of the final series to name this year's champion of the Big Six baseball league. Two weeks ago Wayne won from the visiting Randolph team by a 7 to 0 margin, and last Sunday Randolph enjoyed revenge by trouncing the local lads to the tune of 8 to 0.

Sunday's Game Uninteresting.

In a contest that provided far less thrills than were expected last Sunday, the Randolph lads connected with the offerings of Cross and Heyne for a total of 17 hits while Wayne was able to tap Kaiser only three safe blows. Randolph scored in but two frames, the 3rd when they counted five times on six hits and the 7th when they tallied three times on four blows. However, they put forth serious threats in several other innings. Kaiser of Randolph, was never in danger, striking out eight men and pitching to only 31 men. M. Kaiser led the victors in their assault pounding out a triple, a double and a single in four times at bat. D. Dion and Larson each connected twice. Heyne, Powers and Del Alderson were the only Wayne men able to hit safely.

Locals Win in Fair Opening

Juniors Have Easy Time of Defeating Pierce Lads Here Thursday.

Playing in a feature game at the Wayne county fair Thursday afternoon, Wayne's Junior Legion baseball team defeated the Pierce Juniors 11 to 3. Powers led the Wayne hitters with a triple and two singles, and Granquist gathered three singles. The Wayne lads bunched 12 hits in three innings, four in the 3rd for two runs, three in the 4th for five runs. Powers, lead-off man for Wayne in the 1st frame, pounded out his triple and died on third as the next three men went out in order.

Wayne Teams Score Victories

Town Team and Juniors Cop Two Games Each Here During Festival.

Wayne's baseball teams enjoyed a clean sweep of wins at the Wayne county fair last week, the town boys winning two and the Juniors also winning twice.

Wayne Jr. 11, Pierce Jr. 3.

In the first game of the festival the local Junior Legion lads found little opposition in the Pierce Juniors and came out on the long end of an 11 to 3 count.

Wayne 8, Spiders 5.

In the upset game of the fair Friday afternoon, the local town team defeated the highly touted Texas Black Spiders by an 8 to 5 margin. The colored players proved to be somewhat of a disappointment to many who had hoped to see some fancy baseball which somehow failed to materialize.

The pitching of Dale Alderson was effective enough to hold the Spiders to but six scattered blows, while Wayne connected for 10. The big scoring for the local team came in the 3rd frame when five hits, a base on balls, a hit batsman and error accounted for all eight counters. In addition to pitching a fine game, Dale Alderson also led the local hitters with a triple and a double. Heyne pounded out three singles and Powers connected for a double.

Saturday's Games.

In the first of the two games Saturday afternoon the Wayne Juniors outscored the Stanton lads in a close 11 to 9 contest. Both teams connected for numerous hits and the outcome was in doubt until the final inning. Wayne defeated Wakefield in the final game of the fair by a narrow 8 to 5 margin and an interesting contest.

England As a Farm Country.

(Omaha Journal-Stockman.)
American farmers often wonder how farmers get along over in England now that the entire island is under nazi bomb fire night and day. It certainly must be exciting and the rules issued to farmers by the government afford some faint idea of present conditions on the average English farmstead these days:
(1) In the event of activity of any enemy aircraft during the day or night all persons are strongly recommended to seek shelter as quickly as possible. In the event of workers being in the fields and unable to reach shelter when bombs are dropped or firing takes place, they should immediately lie on the ground face downwards with the hands placed over the ears and neck.
(2) Livestock.
Horses—Horses at work should be unyoked and allowed to run free in the field in which they are working, or, if a more suitable field is adjacent, they should be turned into it.
The owner must use his discretion as to whether horses in the stable should be retained there or turned into a convenient enclosure.
Other stock—The farmer will have to decide for himself whether, in the circumstances prevailing, stock other than horses should be released from buildings.
It is most important that dangerous bulls should be kept under control.
Owners of stock should make themselves familiar with the local arrangements made by the Animal A.R.P. committee for the veterinary treatment, slaughter and salvage of injured animals.
Miss Mamie McCorkindale came from Wakefield Saturday.

4-H Baby Beef Honors Go to Leland Herman

Lester Lutt, Honors Winner In Other Years, Takes Reserve Champion.

Grand championship baby beef at Wayne county fair last week was the 880-pound Hereford fed by Leland Herman, 17, who also showed the winner in Shorthorn division. Leland plans to take his champion calf to the Omaha Ak-Sar-Ben this fall.

Leland's Hereford, given to him as a birthday gift by Max Wolf of Albion, last November 13, was from the T-O ranch in northern New Mexico. He started feeding the beef January 15 and has watched the animal's diet each day. Shelled corn, protein supplement and alfalfa hay were fed the calf, and ground barley was added recently.

Leland has fed baby beefs seven years. This is his first champion calf, although he has taken other awards. Leland especially favors Hereford calves.

Lester Lutt, whose calves twice took championship honors at the Ak-Sar-Ben and five times in Wayne county, showed the reserve champion this fall. He entered only one calf, a Hereford, which weighed about 950. Lester placed first in showmanship.

Several of the Wayne county baby beefs will likely go to the Ak-Sar-Ben. About 12 will be taken to the inter-state show and sale in Sioux City.

Awards on baby beefs follow:
Shortorns: Leland Herman, Wayne, 1st; Don Meyer, Wayne, 2nd; Milford Barelman, Wayne, 3rd; George Bierman, Wisner, 4th; Carl Bierman, Wayne, 5th. Other entrants: Frances Muller, Wakefield, Homer Bierman, Wisner, Warren Helgren, Wayne, Muriel Sydow, Wayne.

Angus: Don Meyer, Wayne, 1st; Berneal Gustafson, Wakefield, 2nd; Muriel Sydow, Wayne, 3rd; Robert Meyer, Wayne, 4th; Merlin Albers, Wisner, 5th. Homer Bierman was the other entrant.

Junior Herefords: Leland Herman, Wayne, 1st; Robert Meyer, Wayne, 2nd; Faith Gustafson, Wakefield, 3rd; Wesley Pflueger, Wayne, 4th; Harris Pflueger, Altona, 5th. Others having entries were George and Homer Bierman, Wisner.

Senior Herefords: Lester Lutt, Wayne, 1st; Don Meyer, Wayne, 2nd; Eugene Helgren, Wayne, 3rd; Carl Bierman, Wayne, 4th; Berneal Gustafson, Wakefield, 5th. Frances Muller, Wakefield, and Merlin Albers, Wisner, had other entries.

The number of beefs was smaller than usual because of high prices and scarcity of feed last fall.

Given Sentence In Arson Charge

Action Breaks Ring Which Has Been Operating In This Vicinity.

Charges of arson, which followed an unsuccessful attempt to burn the wrong grain elevator, last week Wednesday brought a plea of guilty from Walter A. Moseman, 46, grain elevator operator and a leading business man of Thurston, when he was tried before District Judge Mark J. Ryan of Pender. Moseman was sentenced to serve one to 10 years in the penitentiary. Sheriff J. H. Pale was one of the officers who assisted in Moseman's apprehension and the Wayne sheriff had at different times held her ren connected with the affair. County Attorney Alfred D. Raun, Pender, says the action will break up an arson ring which has operated several years in this territory.

Moseman was charged with two counts, the burning of a Moseman elevator at Thurston in October, 1938, and the unsuccessful attempt to fire a competitor's elevator at Thurston in July this year.

Mr. Raun also filed charges against four Bellevue, Neb., men whom he alleges Moseman had to set fire to the elevator. Oliver Watson, 46, charged with connection in both counts against Moseman, was sentenced to one to 10 years. Allen Watson, 41, in both charges, got one to five years. Lee Jasper, 41, charged with the July attempt, drew one to five. Sentence of Lee Watson, 39, accused in the 1938 fire, was one to three. Lee Watson and Jasper had been arrested in Plattsmouth last week on corn stealing charge. Fingerprint found on a jar of gasoline held in identification. Oliver and Allen Watson were in custody here at times.

Moseman's elevator in Thurston stands within 50 yards of the Herman Heyne elevator. On the morning of July 20 Caretaker Hill found an arson setup at the Heyne elevator. A fuse leading to blasting powder and a gasoline jug had gone out just before the flame reached the powder. Apparently, Raun said, the arsonists had intended to fire the Heyne elevator at Pender instead of at Thurston. Because the wind was blowing in the wrong direction and might have caused destruction of other buildings, the Thurston affair was substituted. Raun absolved Heyne of any connection with the arson attempt.

Last week Oliver and Allen Watson drove through Pender and within 30 minutes were followed by Moseman. Raun reported. Moseman was gone from town 30 minutes and then returned. "Right away we went after the Watsons to catch them with the pay-off money," Raun stated. "We searched but couldn't find any." The Watsons were held, however, and Saturday before the trial ten $20 bills were found concealed in Oliver Watson's clothing. Watson declared the money had been given to him by his mother, but Raun contended it was paid by Moseman.

Raun said Moseman had collected $2,500 on the 1938 fire, and that the July affair was an attempt to damage a competitor. In the past four years, he added, there have been several fires in Moseman elevators in Wisner, Pender and Thurston.

Auxiliary Helping Disabled Veterans
While the United States rushes preparations for defense against the danger of a new war, men disabled as a result of the last war require a vast amount of attention and help, the rehabilitation chairman of the Wayne unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, announced after receiving a report of the Auxiliary's rehabilitation work this year.

During the past 12 months a total of 116,419 hospitalized veterans received aid from the Auxiliary. Visits to hospitals where veterans are confined numbered 106,166. In addition, the homes of 39,896 disabled veterans were visited and needs of the families supplied. Expenditures in this work amounted to more than $900,000.

Increased attention has been paid by the Auxiliary to the condition of the hospitalized veteran's family this year, said the rehabilitation chairman. Through a personal contact program, Auxiliary units have been able to assist the veterans before, during and after their stay in the hospital. Activities of the Auxiliary have been closely coordinated with those of the Legion to bring the maximum benefits to the disabled men.

The Wayne unit has carried out a large amount of rehabilitation work during the year, following the program of the national organization and bringing aid to many disabled veterans and their families in Wayne community.

THE DOCTOR'S HOURS

Rare indeed is the Doctor who can say his working time is confined within certain hours. Office hours may be thus and so, but what with free clinics, Hospital staff service, Hospital calls, operation hours and emergency calls, the Doctor's working day is long and arduous. Even the Doctor with a highly specialized practice is not immune to broken hours of sleep and rest.

But It's True

It has even been said by some students of bees that they show a reasoning power comparable to that of human beings.

Mr. Bunting plays a few sets at least twice a week.

All the Brazilian claimants have their right on succession to the last emperor. The nation is a republic today. People interested in the matter have established that the story of Raleigh throwing down his cloak for the queen to walk on could not have been true. His refusal to wear one at the time caused people to think of him as an eccentric.

Mutual Concern.
Everything seemed to be for the 17-year-old Julia. Her parents had died when she was very young, and she was taken into a relative's home, where the environment was not in the least conducive to right living.

Examinations revealed that she had "low general intelligence" and, among other physical defects, a bad heart.

She had grown up to be immoral and incorrigible; altogether, it seemed, a fit subject for the girls' training school. Yet there was always plenty of time to commit her after she had been given a chance in a wholesome foster-home.

A social worker believed that Julia would fit into a certain home where the husband's income had been greatly reduced in the recent economic depression and the wife's health would not permit her to carry the full burden of the household cares. Three-months-old twins rounded out the family circle.

Probably more than any other one factor it was the twins' need of her that brought about Julia's regeneration. If one stirred uncessarily in his crib at night, Julia was up in a flash to look after him.

As the foster-mother, herself not much older than Julia, became stronger, she coaxed the girl to accompany her to public programs, introduced her to worthwhile people, and completely won her confidence. She called forth Julia's best qualities, nurtured them, and in turn learned to depend more and more on her foster-daughter's cheerfulness and ability.

Julia joined her foster-mother's church and there met a young man whom she later married.

She and her husband established a pleasant home on a ranch in western Nebraska. For their first shipment of turkeys, she recently wrote her foster-mother, they received more than $2,000. Her interest in the twins has grown deeper as the years have passed.

The sympathy and understanding of the foster-mother brought Julia character and health; Julia's services, at a critical time, filled a very real vacancy in the home. Between the two young women is an enduring friendship based on mutual need.

Prospects Good For Corn Crop

Nebraska appears to be a bright spot in the country for a good crop this year, according to reports from the annual DeKalb hybrid seed corn dealers' convention held September 5 and 6 at Lake Okajobi. Thomas Erwin and Bilger Pearson of Concord, were among the 2,000 dealers who attended from the various states.

Iowa, the banner corn state, will probably again lead all others in total production, even though its yields will be considerably under last year. Wisconsin will have a big crop. Illinois' prospects diminished during August, particularly in the central part of the state. The yield is expected to be 50 per cent under 1939. Representatives from Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Missouri, Minnesota and Kansas estimated the crop below last year's.

Mr. Erwin and Mr. Pearson report that one of the major features of the convention was a huge educational exhibit devoted exclusively to hybrid corn. The association's 11th processing plant at Jackson, Minn., was also dedicated. The main speakers were C. L. Gunn and R. R. St. John, two of the nation's prominent corn breeders.

Nebraska has some drawbacks, such as drought frequency and weather extremes, but it also has some advantages, notably a salubrious climate and a rugged, four-square quality of citizenship.

Nebraska may not have the most uniformly soothing climate in the world, and it may not always produce the abundance that it needs or that its efforts deserve, but it is safely removed from exposed coast lines and comparatively free from dangerous fifth columnists.
