

Severe Storm Grips Area And Results in Damages

Monday on account of Armistice holiday.
Bus travel through Wayne halted Tuesday morning.
Telephone systems probably suffered heavier loss than any others in the Armistice day storm. According to reports received by Manager C. L. Pickett, damage resulted all through the storm area but was especially heavy in north-east Nebraska.
Line breaks are the chief source of trouble. Comparatively few poles are down. Ice on wires was blown off by the high wind, causing the lines to vibrate and break. Repair men checking damage between Norfolk and Wayne Monday found hundreds of wire breaks but only two poles down. The same was the finding of Wayne men who went to Wakefield Monday and to Carroll Tuesday.
With the continued high wind Monday, actual repair could not start until Tuesday. Breaks are being mended and toll service is being reestablished. Wayne had connection with Randolph, Laurel and Concord Monday. Other lines were repaired gradually Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday.
Country lines out of Wayne were damaged considerably. Only 17 were in use Monday and service on some of these was not good.

Wakefield was without rural telephone connection for a time. No interruption of service was experienced in town.
Drifts Are Numerous.
Wayne residents who ventured down town Monday found freakish drifts in the business district. Drifts five and six feet deep were piled along the west and north sides of streets. In front of some places the snow carefully left tiny paths next to buildings and in other places the snow was packed hard against the store fronts.
Concord Out of Power.
Concord put in an emergency call early Monday as that town was without electric power which is supplied by the highline with headquarters at Ponca. Gerald Wright of Wayne, radioed a message to Norfolk station and a broadcast carried word to Ponca. Repair work started Tuesday. Scribner was also reported out of power Monday.
Many Turkeys Lost.
About 100 of the 500 turkeys in Myron Colson's flock perished in the storm. Plumage of the birds was soaked in the week-end rains. When they crowded together in the shelter they smothered. Others froze. W. E. VonSeggern had the only other large flock of turkeys in this vicinity and he had sold his birds just before the storm. Some losses were sustained in small flocks. It is estimated that one-third of the turkeys of the state perished.
Chicken flocks suffered somewhat in the early blizzard. Many birds had frozen combs and their egg production will diminish.
As a rule livestock in this area was well sheltered from the storm.

Amateurs Serve Well.
Amateur short wave operators, whose help was so effective in last June's flood emergency, again performed an important service in the early winter storm. All through the day Monday they stayed at their sets, receiving and sending emergency messages for marooned trains, buses, orchestras and individuals. They also gave information about road conditions, and transmitted word which could not be relayed because telephone and telegraph toll service was badly hampered. W. C. Swanson picked up messages on emergency traffic throughout the day, and Gerald Wright relayed some 20 important calls. The latter got word from Lincoln to Sioux Falls and also made other necessary contacts.
The short wave operators all over the middle west rendered a real service in the emergency. Norfolk, Omaha, Grand Island and Hastings radio sending stations formed a temporary circuit Monday and relayed important information for many who were stranded.
Radio performed an important service for the Norfolk News. As all lines to that city were down, the paper could not receive its associated press news by wire. This news was relayed slowly by radio and was thus picked up for the Norfolk paper.
Some Corn Unpicked.
Corn picking was well along in the vicinity but the storm struck before many had finished. Thanksgiving is the usual time for completing this fall work. The crop in this area is better than in some seasons and most farmers still have some picking to do.

The blizzard found many people unprepared for winter and consequently stores and garages have been busy caring for wants. Many stalled cars had to be towed out.
Wind or ice broke a window in the Frank Sullivan apartment in the Seymour building Sunday night and froze pipes in short order.
Recall Hard Winter.
Pioneers recall that the winter of 1880 started off much like this one. Storms initiated winter early that fall and kept coming at intervals all winter. The ground was covered with snow from the time of the first snow until late spring. The hardships of that winter could not be repeated in modern times.
The similarity between the weather on the first Armistice day and this year's was noted by Miss A. McEachen. The winter of 1918 was a severe one and started early. Mrs. McEachen recalls that two storms had visited this area by Armistice day in 1918 and many were caught unprepared for winter. An added worry that year was the severe flu epidemic which swept the country.
The Herald has been under the present management since 1910 and Monday was the first time in that period that it was impossible to reach news sources in nearby towns by train, road or telephone.
Schools Are Dismissed.
Practically all schools in towns and rural areas of northeast Nebraska were closed Monday. Town schools resumed Tuesday. The extreme cold and drifted condition of roads kept some rural schools closed longer. College classes were held Monday with mainly those in the dormitories attending.

Mrs. Minnie Strickland and others from the Central garage drove new cars here from Omaha Friday.

The storm which disrupted telephone service, blocked roads and put one circuit of the electric lines out of commission, inconvenienced everyone more or less. A number of teachers were unable to get to their schools. Many of our neighbors were without light and radio service and the news reporters were more than usually handicapped. As the wind abated, things became normal again and we appreciated our conveniences a little more perhaps.

Willkie Speaks
WENDELL WILLKIE, defeated for the presidency in the late election, addressed the American people by radio Monday night, urging unity in defense plans, but also urging revitalized support of principles for which the minority fought in the late campaign. He emphasized the importance of loyalty to the democratic form of government and to means for its preservation—not slavish obedience to men in pursuit of ideas in conflict with earnest conviction as expressed in the pre-election contest. He would have unanimous support of adequate defense and ample expenditures to safeguard the country against foreign invasion, but he would not surrender principles believed essential to the perpetuation of democracy. He would aid security and defense by cutting down other expenses, reducing burdens, relieving big and little businesses of unnecessary burdens in furtherance of re-employment and prosperity. He would lead people to self-reliance and self-support, and away from dependence on government paternalism, these objectives without sacrificing needed help to the aged or unfortunate.

Mr. Willkie urged the more than twenty million of people who voted for him to remain a virile force in behalf of democracy, stoutly upholding the principles of democracy, going along with the administration in things deemed sound and opposing it in things deemed faulty. While the minority yields to the voice of the majority, it is not obligated in a free country to smother convictions and become inert in considering economic values.

Mr. Willkie pledged himself to remain alive to the issues involved in the late campaign, be watchful of the trend of public policies and lend assistance to the task of holding democracy together and making it function for all the people.

The Cities and the South
IT IS apparent that the great cities and the solid south control elections. The Norfolk Daily News points out that the rural communities carried New York, Illinois, Wisconsin and Missouri for Willkie. The big cities with their political machines switched majorities to Roosevelt.

The Lincoln Journal calls attention to the fact that the south voted for the democratic party because it used to uphold state's rights. Party abandonment of such rights seems not as yet to have dawned on the southern mind. Anyway, southerners are still supporting the party of their fathers, and doubtless no issue could persuade them to change. The Journal comments in conclusion:

"We submit that any condition that anchors a state to the small political party year after year—and this has been true in the south in every campaign save one, where religious intolerance swayed the majority—is bad for a democracy. It can be kept alive only through intelligent participation by the voters in the decision of vital issues. Practically every northern state has swung back and forth as between the two political parties, even such a rock-ribbed republican state as Pennsylvania, being included, and this has made for a healthy, vital interest in democratic principles. The south alone remains a known integer in every election result."

Wires down, telephones out of commission, trains off schedule and highways impassable Monday, the Herald experienced the hardest task in its history in trying to gather news from neighboring communities. Shortcomings in outlying service are thus unavoidable this week. We have had bad storms and other interfering calamities, but they had never happened at such an inauspicious time before.

The weather is never perfectly satisfactory to many people at the same time. Seasonal elements are usually accepted without kicking unless they interfere with personal plans, but if they do, they should be changed; what is, should be postponed; what isn't, should be forthcoming. It is so futile to try to regulate the weather that even dictators pass it up as beyond their power.

It is evident that Wendell Willkie would not accept a position in the national administration's cabinet if the same were offered to him. If he accepted, he would disappoint and weaken the army that supported him. He knows that. Instead he will continue to lead along lines that will help the administration pursue a sound, constructive course.

Roger Babson, economist, looks for a big upswing in business due to the rearmament program, but fears later consequences. It will be up to people to keep demands within earning powers, and thus help the government in its necessary defense plans with least possible breakdown in our economic structure following the emergency.

The passing of Neville Chamberlain, former British premier, reminds the world that peace-time appraisal will be needed to do his record full justice. He did his best to avoid the hostilities for which his country was not prepared. The brutalities that developed were wholly out of accord with his spirit of peace.

Disastrous explosions in powder factories of late arouse sabotage suspicions and fire the FBI to action. If enemies lurk within the country, they will in time be detected and the atmosphere will be purified by shipping them out or otherwise separating them from orderly society.

The week-end storm found corn picking unfinished, and the task will now be considerably greater. Too early picking runs the risk of warm weather that spoils the corn; too late in gathering the crop imposes the threat of ugly weather and increased hardship.

In an interview, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, said both major parties should drop partisan politics in support of total preparedness, but that "we do not want unity in the sense of totalitarian government in which the voice of all opposition is silenced."

Republicans are convinced that Nebraska and neighboring states are emphatically the nation's bright spots.

Johnsons still scale the top as political magnets in Nebraska. Four of them won state offices in the late election.

The move for a constitutional change to restrict a president to one six-year term promises to gather momentum.

Newspapers urge people to forget campaign animosities, but to remain alert and vigilant.

NEEDS.
Oil production in southeast sections of the state encourages prospecting for the precious fluid in other parts in the hope of developing a new source of income. Nebraska needs it. Recent drought years have diminished cash returns and largely taken the profit out of agriculture. Oil discoveries and more irrigation would insure more freedom from annoying uncertainty. While northeast Nebraska had a fair crop this year, most other sections of the state were again devastated by drought, and they are especially in need of irrigation at critical junctures. Oil production and use of wells and streams to insure crops will defy inauspicious elements and insure rewards.

Helpful
That Nebraska has for a half-century been a very independent voting state, perhaps the most independent in the union. It takes more than a mere party label to carry Nebraska.

"The gradual growth of public jobs, through commissions and bureaus, is well illustrated by Nebraska. Today the state has more than 300 per cent more public employees per thousand of population than it had 40 years ago. It has more employees in one department today than it had in all departments 40 years ago. If it keeps up we of the United States will be like the party wrecked on a desert isle where each member got rich by taking in each other's washing."

MANNERS.
In some respects campaign manners have improved. Newspapers do not turn loose the mud guns of vituperation as they did in the days of Horace Greeley and Henry Watterson and Nebraska's Edward Rosewater. Then ugly truths were revealed in all the horrors of which those early editors were capable of picturing, and they were masters in handling invectives. Today minorities are treated with friendly consideration. No one of fine sensibilities brags about victories and none exults over a defeated foe. In the early days every little community was the scene of a bonfire with loud exclamations of joy. There were even those who expressed themselves by getting drunk, often landing in jail, the latter depending somewhat on the party complexion of the officer in charge. Especially in the middle west whose superior civilization we have often emphasized, partisans behave with courteous regard one for another. The victors not gloating, the vanquished not cowed.

Super Highway Is Dedicated on Armistice Day

Southern California's new streamlined six-lane super-highway, the new Arroyo Seco Parkway, is now open for nine miles between Pasadena and downtown Los Angeles and dedicated Armistice day, writes Miss Laura E. Lyons of Long Beach. Sixteen streets and railroads overhead separate this highway from all crossing traffic and connect with a new one going through the tunnel on Figueroa which lies a little to the west of the heart of the city.

Miss Lyons writes that she went to Huntington Park November 2 and Mr. and Mrs. Ben McEachen took her to Pomona to attend funeral services for Mrs. C. A. Grothe, formerly of Wayne, at the Todd, Reeves parlors. Wayne friends were at the Grothe home afterward to meet Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Davis, the latter the former Maude Grothe, of Reseda, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Grothe, son and daughter of Upland, Prof. and Mrs. J. J. Coleman, Prof. and Mrs. Howard, Sam Barley and daughter of Pomona, Ralph Bohner and two sisters, Madeline Olson and Cathryn Dickinson of Van Nuys.

Miss Lyons has been staying with a lady who is ill. She has been in a doctor's home four days a week for the past four months.

The Ben McEachens have two cars in use by salesmen now. Their nephew, Donald McEachen, recently announced their marriage of June. Donald, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McEachen of Wayne, lives in Huntington Park. Mrs. Andrew makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Coleman, since her stroke. She was able to be with another daughter, Mrs. Ben McEachen a while this summer.

Miss Lyons sees Mrs. Bert Brown at church each Sunday morning. The Browns live at 954 Cedar avenue, just five block from Miss Lyons. Mr. Brown is feeling much better than for several years.

Mrs. Walter Hurlbert, who is with her son and family in North Long Beach, is recovering from a bad hand injury which resulted from a fall. No bones were broken.

Joe Lutgen of Grand Island, was here over Sunday in the Dr. S. A. Lutgen home.

Armistice Day Start of Drive

Workers Convene Friday To Get Instructions And Supplies.

Wayne county Red Cross launched its annual membership drive Armistice day following a meeting for 38 workers Friday evening at Hotel Stratton. The roll call continues through November 30. Due to increased demands the national organization has set no quotas for this year but asks all people to subscribe as liberally as possible. Last year Wayne county raised about $485.

Mrs. Frank Heine, roll call chairman, urged all workers to do their best in making a thorough canvass.

Mrs. R. W. Ley told that the Red Cross plan is to give everyone an opportunity to subscribe voluntarily. Memberships are $1 but any sum is accepted. Mrs. Ley urged workers to see all in their districts so that they may have an opportunity to help in the world's most humanitarian service.

Prof. K. N. Parke explained some of the services of the national organization. He told that vast amounts of clothing, hospital supplies, blankets and other much needed goods had been sent to innocent victims of the war in Britain. The Red Cross has cared for thousands in this country during floods and other disasters. Northeast Nebraska experienced a flood last spring that required much Red Cross help. Prof. Parke told of the valuable life saving training provided many young people at the college through the Red Cross. Lives have been saved because of this. These are only a few of the important services of the relief organization which is always ready to help.

Local work was explained by Mrs. E. W. Huse, county chairman. She told of the helpful service that started during the World war and of the relief work that has continued. Half of the membership drive money goes to national headquarters for disaster needs and the other half remains for local work in the county. With this sum the chapter has provided clothing, milk and other food for those in need. Wayne county sent additional sums last spring for relief in the flood area of this section.

Other towns and rural areas were represented with Wayne at the workers' meeting Friday. Supplies were distributed.

A special radio broadcast for the Red Cross is planned Sunday, November 17, from 12:30 to 1:30. Such stars as Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Amos and Andy, Bob Hope, Belle Davis, Lionel Barrymore and others will be featured.

Two New Officers Locate 'at Camp

Mr. Kane is new commander of Winside CCC camp, taking the place of M. Hoffman who went to the district office in Omaha. Dr. Harris is new camp doctor and he succeeds Dr. Hall who went to Blair camp. Both men are living in Winside.

Survival Is Good In Areas Planted

Trees and Shrubs Placed During Season Show Healthy Growth. More than 85 per cent of the trees and shrubs planted in 1940 by the Winside CCC camp work area survived, according to report compiled by W. R. Harder. The count shows that 130 acres of 140 acres planted have a satisfactory stand for permanent woodland area, this being a most satisfactory survival.

The trees and shrubs as a group made a very vigorous growth for the first year. Some of the more rapid growing species are six to eight feet in height. The thorough and timely preparation of the planting areas by the cooperators made it possible to have a high survival of vigorous, growthy trees. In addition, most of the cooperators gave careful attention to the cultivation of the trees during the growing season. Thus, they kept the weeds under control and reduced the loss of plant food and moisture that the weeds would have caused otherwise.

The CCC camp enrollees assisted in the care of the trees and shrubs by weeding the areas after the cooperators had cultivated them. The enrollees have also fenced most of the planted areas so that they are protected from livestock. In the future, the plantings will have a chance to develop into a typical woodland cover for erosion as well as providing some posts and fuel wood for use on the farms and for sale.

New Honors Come To Wayne Writer

New honors in the field of poetry have come recently to Mrs. S. A. Lutgen. The Wayne writer has just received word that she is represented in the new volume of "Principal Poets of the World," put out by Mitre publications in London. This book is accepted as standard throughout the English speaking world. This company is the one issuing the coronation series. Scouts over the world recommend poets whose works have appeared in magazines. One must have had at least 10 poems accepted for publication before being chosen for the English book. For each one chosen the book includes a biography, bibliography and a couple of representative poems. The English press has put out the book this year in spite of the war. No copies have as yet been received in this country but the Mitre press says they will be shipped as soon as possible. America has works of 110 poets represented.

Mrs. Lutgen has also been honored poet in the late issue of Poets Scroll, magazine edited by the Nebraska Poetry society. A competent judge passes on poetry and vote of the readers is considered. "The Parting" is Mrs. Lutgen's poem which earned high appraisal of the state writers.

Mrs. Lutgen has had 42 poems accepted for magazine publications in recent weeks.

Two in County Receive Honor

Wayne and Hoskins Men Are Among Twentyfour In Recognition.

Albert Watson of Wayne, and Wm. F. Langenberg of Hoskins, are the Wayne county men who were among 24 from 14 counties honored at the northeast Nebraska pasture-forage-livestock meeting in Norfolk last Thursday. Three given outstanding recognition were Alex Luska of Niobrara, C. A. Oss of Newman Grove, and Milo Cheney of Stanton. Others from this vicinity among the 24 were Fern Huwaldt of Randolph, and Delmar Ankeny of Laurel.

The Wayne county men who were honored, also several others from this vicinity attended the day's program. The morning session was devoted to a discussion of types of cattle and sheep, this being held at South Norfolk pavilion.

J. S. Campbell of Chicago, marketing specialist, spoke to the group in the afternoon at the auditorium. He said that preparations for national defense will help the farm because it takes "five people behind the lines to keep one in military training camp."

The Wayne county men, also the others honored spoke briefly at the evening banquet. Congressman Karl Stefan and Hugo Gramlich, the latter of Chicago, also gave talks.

Personnel Named For Soils Office

Ed. Stipsky is district conservationist for Wayne county soil conservation district, and Henry Richardson is assistant conservationist. Both spend their full time in the Wayne district. Lloyd E. Early Days in Ponca.

From Ponca Journal for November 15, 1886: Trains got through on Friday after digging snow at the summit two days. . . . An almost unbreakable snow blockade struck this territory. . . . The ice on the Missouri was strong enough to allow footmen to cross. It was not a very safe journey for the ice was only about a quarter inch thick. . . . Dr. O'Connell and Dick Nichols went by team to the home of the latter's brother, who suffered a broken leg. It took all day to reach the home. . . . If a wave of hot air had come along and melted all the snow in one day, what a freshet there would have been! Or if a wind from the north pole had changed the snow to ice, what a lot of dynamiting it would have taken! The present happy medium should be appreciated. . . . The rickety old coach that takes passengers on the train to Sioux City should be replaced with one of moderate comfort.

Miss Isabelle Dodd resigned her teaching at Pender and will be married. Miss Erma Enke of Emerson, succeeds her.

But It's True!

Almost 100 years ago the country—from Boston to Philadelphia—was more than upset about a group of radicals who believed that bathing in tubs was a way of getting pneumonia. Further, the habit was considered indecent, as a bath must necessarily be entirely closed. Philadelphia also enacted legislation, but not as drastically. It decreed that people could not bathe in tubs between December and March.

The only horses and camels in the world today are domesticated or are descended from domesticates. Some horses in the Americas are not under direct control. If they are running in free packs they are the offspring of horses which were privately owned at one time.

Humanity Animates Scenes

The old house, the empty house, the wreck of days gone by. The lovely things of loved ones, gone, under a deep blue sky. But the boat and its sailors still pass by!

Visit Old Kentucky.

Another treat was a trip to Kentucky in October. Following the Ohio river we went over into Newell, W. Va., to visit the largest single unit potteries in the world. Here the Fiesta ware is made, also crockery and beautiful dishes. As one watches the transformation of clay into things of beauty he is reminded of the promise, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be, but the song, 'Thou art the Potter, I am the clay.' Surely if human hands can fashion such beauty from dust, the Creator has some thing ahead for us that we know not of."

Following on the Ohio side to a toll bridge at Ashland, Ky., one is intrigued by river boats of the Mark Twain variety. Mrs. Hillier explains, "How the Indians must have loved this river before the manufacturers came to destroy it; banks and mar its beauty!"

Girl Realizes Desire.

Four hours into Kentucky, right in the land of feuds, was the Bridges at Children's home. Miss Doru Bridges, a Tennessee many a girl who struggled for her own education, had a vision. So 15 years ago this girl "put her all into 10 acres of Kentucky land and built a one-room cabin. Trusting for support she sent out word that she was ready to take neglected children. The second winter she had two rooms to accommodate herself and seven children. Kentucky makes no provision for her children. Clothing and food have been contributed and to date Miss Bridges has made a home for over 50 children."

Miss Bridges' present family numbers 10. "The three eldest are 14 year old girls. They all work. The home now has seven rooms. The property adjoins the public school grounds, and seven of the children go to school there. They boast of a Jersey cow and a guest room. To sit by the fireplace during evening song and prayer is to have always a never-to-be-forgotten memory."

The autumn colors made the Hilliers revel in the beauty of the hills. How do these people make a living? This was the question ever uppermost in Mrs. Hillier's mind, and so she put the question to her hostess who replied, "They mostly live up the small creeks and raise a cow and a pig, some potatoes and beans and well, I don't know how else they do live."

"This week I visited Christ Mission in Youngstown, Ohio," continues Mrs. Hillier. "One sees there what is being done in a big way in the reclaiming of material things along with the reclaiming and stabilizing of lives. There is work for the blind, handicapped and crippled in the making of brooms, repairing of shoes, sorting of rags, papers and clothing. A day nursery, kindergarten, recreation center, night school and a summer camp are provided for undernourished and clubs for all ages. It is a self-supporting project in the heart of a mill city, filled with disillusioned people from many different countries. 'A soul saving project with just ordinary faith!'"

Josephine Peables and her seeing-eye dog, Peggy, are interesting friends of the former Wayne lady. Josephine comes along with Peggy every day on the bus from Niles to her stand in the market house at Warren, Mrs. Hillier explains. Josephine is 27 years old, was born blind and is an only child. She is educated and has been self-supporting for several years; selling candy, smokes and cards. "We have become fast friends and her optimism and independence would put many a less-handicapped person to shame."

Wayne County Rural School News

Dates for County Events Are Fixed

Supt. F. B. Decker has set the county spelling contest and music festival early next spring so, as to avoid conflict with examinations and other later events. Tentative date picked for the spelling event is March 1 and for the music festival, April 5. Examinations, set for April 25 and May 8, have been set later in an effort to keep 8th graders in school longer.

District Winners Named in Contest

The 52 winners in the 1940 Young Citizens' contest, four from each of the 13 districts into which Nebraska is divided, have been announced. These young people will go to Omaha November 18 and 19 to compete in a second examination at which time a state winner will be chosen. The winners of the Third district, in which Wayne county is located, are: Laura Ann Anderson, Cedar county; Harlington, Miriam Samuelson, Cedar county; Harlington; Carl Frensd, Cedar county; Cole-ridge; Richard Alvin Merriman, South Sioux City, Dakota county.

A contest was held in each of the counties of Nebraska the latter part of October for a select group of young people, seniors in high school. The papers written were sent to Dr. A. A. Reed of the University of Nebraska who picked the 52 winners.

Among those placing high in the district competition were Patty Bressler and Kenneth Whorlow of Wayne Prep.

Children at the Crossroads

Mischief Brewer. A note of utmost sincerity in his voice, Norman, 13, would look the juvenile judge straight in the eye and solemnly promise that given another chance, he would never again get into mischief. The chance granted, he would, in all probability, before the sun had set that day, be back in court for some such petty offense as letting the air out of all four tires on an automobile, or reporting to a policeman that there was a fight down the street a couple of blocks away, delighting to see the officer rush from his post of directing heavy traffic.

Norman never stole property nor injured a human being. A sick dog or a stray cat never failed to touch a sympathetic spot in his nature, as Norman invariably carried home every one he saw, fed it, and nursed it back to health.

A "big brother" who successfully reared several sons of his own took Norman under his wing, but the boy outraged his charitable nature almost at once by engaging a taxi to take him all over the city and at the end of the pleasure jaunt instructing the driver to present the three-dollar bill to "big brother."

Although bitterly disappointed, the sponsor continued to work with his little human skyrocket and began to grow quite fond of him. Nothing happened for about six weeks; then Norman appeared in court with this note across his card: "Creating a disturbance by gathering a crowd of people and blocking traffic." A unique complaint!

Interviewed for more specific allegations, the officers said that Norman had placed a soap box by James Fox and Dean Menke. The 1st graders know 90 words and are completing more Dick and Jane stories.

The 7th and 8th graders are studying The Man Without a Country.

Miss Elmer Barelman had an average of 100 in spelling last month. A Halloween party was a happy event October 31. Jack-o-lanterns were lighted, and luncheon was served after games.

School Calendar. November 16—Teachers' examinations. November 10 to 16—American Education week. January 25—Teachers' examinations. March 1—County spelling contest. April 5—County music festival. April 25—Eighth grade examinations. May 8—Eighth grade examinations.

District 75. (Audrey F. Fox, teacher) Pupils will be perfect attendance for October are Dean Stingley, Charlene Rethwisch, Joyce Stingley and Dorothy Anne Rethwisch.

A grade of 100 in spelling for the month was earned by Charlene Rethwisch, Donald Stoltenberg and Vernon Hansen.

Black cats, witches and pumpkins were made to decorate the room. A miniature cornfield arranged in one corner consisted of a wooden fence made by 8th grade boys, corn stalks brought by 3rd and 4th boys and pumpkins brought by other pupils.

A Halloween party was given on the money deposited in the school bank organized by pupils. On the entertainment committee were Charlene Rethwisch and Annabelle Stoltchenberg, and on the refreshment group were Dorothy Anne Rethwisch and Eleanor Hansen. Dile Stoltenberg, Jeanette Rethwisch and Daglene Helms were guests.

NEWS IS INVITED.

Wayne county rural schools are invited to send news items for the rural column. This service is rendered by the Herald without any charge whatsoever. Any contributions may be left with Supt. F. B. Decker or with the Herald.

Stewart, Ruth Davis, Christine Larsen, Ruth Bartels, Harriet Jones, Elizabeth Jones, Loretta Whitney, K. Mitchell, Wilma Francis, Nellie Wingett, Doris Zomer, Lila Morris, Margaret Stamp, Esther Taylor, Elizabeth Gemzell, Evelyn Hendrickson and Mrs. Meiner.

District 72. (Edith Sals, Teacher) Claire Finn had perfect attendance the second month.

Mrs. Gilmore Suh and Karen June, Donald Osburn, Junior Peterson, Jeanette Finn and Supt. F. B. Decker were recent visitors.

The "ain't" box, which proved to be the downfall of that word, has been changed to a game box. Names of 20 games were slipped in the box. Each noon a slip taken from the box tells what game is to be played at noon hour.

The 7th and 8th reading class finished "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and has begun "The Churchship of Miles Standish."

Jimmy Bush and Claire Finn brought aster bouquets to beautify the school room.

Claire Finn won the arithmetic contest. Billy Evans gave an interesting report on the state corn husking contest which he attended.

Each pupil made a wise owl spelling book. On the last day of the week, in place of regular assignments, each one studies the words he misspelled on his daily papers. There are written in the book. The plan has improved the spelling on papers handed in.

A Halloween party was held October 31. Games were conducted and prizes given. In a treasure hunt Claire Finn won the jack-o-lantern for finding his treasure. Miss Sals served luncheon at close of the afternoon.

Thanksgiving decorations and a pilgrim sand table scene were made during drawing periods.

District 65. (Lorene Wittler, teacher) Halloween decorations adorned the room in October. All enjoyed a party October 31 when Mary Lea Jensen's side entertained Joann Rubeck's group as a result of a spelling contest.

The 3rd and 4th graders made a Halloween sand table scene. Gary Nelson, 1st grader, read several stories in his second book, More Dick and Jane Stories.

Books Accessioned At Wayne Library

"Faith for Living," by Lewis Mumford, is one of the new books at the Wayne library. No matter how long when the war ends, a good part of the world in which civilized men have lived for the last 2,500 years is already in ruins.

People who take a more hopeful view of the situation either refuse to face the facts or, like the fascist barbarians, are active perpetrators of the ruin itself. With this belief as a starting point, "Faith for Living" seeks to provide an answer to the question that all decent people are now asking—what beliefs and hopes will give the survivors the courage to resist to the death the present wave of barbarism, and to lay down when the dusts and the corpses have been buried, the foundations for a more humane and stable society?

Among the new novels on the shelves are "Richard Halliburton," a story of the author's life's adventure; "Big River to Cross," Mississippi life today by Ben Luce; Burman; "Hawkeye," a biography of the state of Iowa, by Phil Stong; "Bring Home the Bride" by Gale Wilhelm; "The House of Lee," by Gertrude Atherton; "Master-at-Arms," by Rafael Sabatini; "Dark Lightning," by Helen Topping Miller; "Smoking House," by Elizabeth Goudge; John T. Flynn's book, "Country Square in the White House," has been placed in the library. This ran in the Omaha World-Herald recently.

Miss Elsie Warnock has donated three books to the library. They are: "The College Omnibus," edited by James Dow McCallum, which contains a biography, essays, novels, short stories, drama, poems and a novelette; "1936 Essay Annual," a yearly collection of significant essays, personal, critical, controversial and humorous, edited by Eric A. Walter; "Modern American Poetry," a critical anthology edited by Louis Untermeyer. Mrs. S. A. Lutgen presented the library with "The World's Four Anthology of Verse," edited by Paul Emory Carter, a comprehensive compilation of poetry, commemorating the culture, civilization and progress of the centuries as exemplified in contemporary poetry.

Deer Sighted In Wayne County

Unjust Punishment Given Man Who Befriended Another in Fire.

One of the most unusual news items of the week occurred right in Wayne county Friday morning when George Bruns and men helping him pick corn saw a deer. The animal had antlers and was walking about in the field. The men were close to the animal when they sighted it down the corn rows. Then the deer saw them and darted off to the south. The Bruns farm is in the vicinity of Altona. Deer used to roam this region when it was prairie, coming down from the north at winter time to seek food. It is thought this animal must have escaped from some zoo or to have come down from hills to the northwest.

Smelting smoke, Louis Durby dashed into a neighboring hotel room and rescued a sleeping guest whose cigaret had started a blaze. Firemen threw the burning bedding out a window and it lit on Durby's car, causing damage to it.

Miss Farrar of Montreal, found on her doorstep an elongated metal object bearing the word, "strike," and she thought it was a bomb. Neighbors helped her carry it carefully to the back yard and watched it for hours through a telescope. Later a watch maker called Miss Farrar and asked if the clock he sold her was working well. She replied that it was excepting that it failed to strike. The man asked her if she put in the counter weight which he had left on her doorstep. The "bomb" proved to be the weight.

Two Sol Gollins, both living at the same address, complicated matters at a Milwaukee draft headquarters. To avoid future confusion, board members wrote on the card of Sol Gollin No. 1, "scar on right leg and tip of nose." On the card of Sol Gollin No. 2 they wrote, "scar on left eye, born in Russia." No. 1, brother-in-law of No. 2, was born in Milwaukee.
