

Never Lacking in Farm Communities — Hartington Editor Returns — In South America — Clearinghouse for Ideas.

The state grasshopper control leader in Lincoln announces that "hopper eggs were not destroyed by the freezing of winter of the wetness of a backward spring, but that cold, wet spells in May would likely catch the hatching insects at the proper time to put them out of business. We have heard of no serious grasshopper infestation in this area, and the report doubtless refers to other and less fortunate sections.

Worries of farmers and communities dependent on them do not end with reasonable assurance of ample moisture. Plenty of rain is of course a prime essential. But besides grasshoppers which, however, are least annoying in wet seasons, nature imposes the need of constant vigilance by providing chinch bugs, rats, gophers, rust, hail, floods and other threats to certainty. Without them life would be too easy. Annoyances toughen human fiber.

But if the farmer successfully overcomes numerous obstacles and is rewarded by a big harvest in the autumn, he is relieved and justly proud of his persevering effort. If returns are sufficient, he feels well repaid. That has not happened for a long time, but it is logically anticipated this year.

Back from Arizona.

F. D. Stone, editor of the Hartington Herald, returned last week from his winter's sojourn at Phoenix, Ariz., where a climate fashioned to his demand, eased him through the winter. Mr. Stone has spent many winters in Arizona to safeguard his health which suffers under the rigors of the Nebraska variety. While at Phoenix he writes for the Gazette of that place as well as contributes generously each week to his home newspaper. Also while there he helps look after the daily editions of a certain cafeteria—a popular rendezvous for eating and visiting—as he advises. Mr. Stone is an implacable foe of midget pie, and we wonder if he permits its appearance on the menu. He is back home just in time to see new verdure spring from deeply soaked soil and to seize the gladness of people who entertain high hope for normal crop production.

As reflected by his writing, Mr. Stone relishes the songs of birds and the beauty of the landscape at this season when the foliage of trees and vines is being renewed, and when richest garbs of green spread everywhere, all enlivened by the dulcet notes of feathered songsters—and nowhere can this fine sense of values be so well satisfied as right here in Nebraska. But the rather disturbing requirement is early rising to insure full realization, and we are tipping this off to Mr. Stone as a safeguard to disappointment. Let him drive forth as the sun peeps above the eastern horizon, as darkness slowly melts and long vistas are sharpened, and he will see new heights of ecstasy. But we would warn him he cannot realize any such delight if he waits until 8 or 9 o'clock to start out.

Castle System in Peru.

James Carey, former Wayne college student, who writes the Herald from Lima, Peru, where he is teaching, stresses the caste system which prevails there to an astonishing degree—astonishing to Americans who have been reared in an atmosphere of equal opportunities. In a country with castes based on material wealth—earned, inherited or stolen—with a lower social stratum kicked around and kept down, there can be no real democracy regardless of the claims of the government. In a free society—free from educational or occupational restraints—the keenest brains may spring from the most indigent source. If merit cannot win above the rattle of accumulated dollars, the social order is bound to be robbed of many constructive advantages.

A caste system does not reflect high intelligence on the part of those who perpetuate it. It shows leaders have not risen above a progressively low level. Its progress in the direction of democracy is slowed in that way. It is noted in this country that many extraordinary geniuses have come from inferior levels and contributed liberally to life's best values. No one is so impoverished materially or so humbled socially in a real democracy that he cannot attain surpassing heights in personal achievement. That is the advantage of free enterprise. It is what makes a nation great and strong. It is what Peru and doubtless other South American countries sadly lack.

Constructive Meetings. Frequent meetings of farmers to talk over common problems have impressed us as an eminently desirable. Getting together, revealing experiences and exchanging observations must prove helpful as well as agreeable. One finds others have difficulties to overcome. (Continued on Page Four)

Return Verdicts In Court Cases

Arnold Mau Is Exonerated By Jury; Rohrke-Puls Suit Is Settled.

District court jury returned a verdict of not guilty Tuesday afternoon in the case of the State of Nebraska vs. Arnold Mau. The action charged that Mau converted to his own use $37.50 belonging to the Graham Ice Cream Co. when he was employed as clerk by that firm. Preliminary hearing in the matter was held in the county court last December 26 and Mau was bound over to the district court for trial. The matter was presented all day Monday and until Tuesday noon in district court, and the jury returned the verdict of not guilty about 3 Tuesday afternoon. County Attorney Burr R. Davis served the plaintiff and Mark Ryan, the defendant.

The second case on the assignment, the suit on a note filed by Lloyd E. Rohrke vs. Ernest Puls was taken up Tuesday afternoon. Late Wednesday the jury returned a verdict for the defendant. In 1932 Puls executed a note to Mrs. Martha Rohrke for Hoskins bank shares which the former bought. Mrs. Rohrke transferred the note to Lloyd E. Rohrke, and a second note was given for renewal of the first one. Rohrke sued Puls for payment of the note in 1939. The county court at that time found for Rohrke and fixed the amount due him at $438.84. Puls appealed. H. D. Addison and R. W. Bartels are attorneys for Rohrke, and Mark Ryan and Tim Grady for Puls.

The damage action filed by Margaret K. and William Walter Moore, trustees under the will of Clara Moore, vs. Wayne county rural public power district has been deferred because C. A. Sorenson, one of the attorneys for the defendants, has duties in federal court. Plaintiffs seek damages for trees cut down north of Windsor when the power line was built. Fred S. Berry and Perry W. Morton are attorneys for plaintiff, and H. E. Simon, C. A. Sorenson and Crofoot, Fraser, Connally and Ströfer for defendant.

Another damage action, that of Harry N. Larson vs. H. M. Sears, has been settled out of court. This grew out of a car accident south of Wakefield. R. W. Bartels served Larson and H. D. Addison served Sears as attorney.

Three suits on notes / and one damage action remain to be tried. The suit of the General Exchange Insurance corporation vs. Robert P. Hanson was started Wednesday. R. W. Bartels is attorney for plaintiff.

Another note suit is that of Mary Laase vs. Antone Granquist, with R. W. Bartels and H. E. Simon attorneys respectively. The other suit is that of Alice Toelke, et al., vs. Fred Wittler, et al., R. W. Bartels serving the plaintiff. The damage case yet to be tried is that of George Bressler vs. John Michol, this growing out of a car accident. R. W. Bartels is attorney for Bressler, and Clinton Stephenson serves Michol.

Judge A. E. Wenke is presiding at the jury session of court.

City Will Develop New Site as Park

Wayne now owns a new municipal park a mile north of town and application has been filed for WPA project to develop the public recreation center. Wayne Golf and Country club, purchasers of 58 acres belonging to Henry Giese, presented the property to the city council Tuesday evening and the deed was filed Wednesday. The property is given to the city on the condition that the site be developed into a public recreation center. That of the proposed development was prepared in advance and was ready for forwarding to Washington, D. C., yesterday with application for WPA project to develop the site. WPA officials think the project may total $25,000.

The Country club bought the land for $4,720 and raised about $2,700 of the amount. So as to have a fund with which to provide seed and a well for the park at once, the club retained about $800 and mortgaged the land for $2,000. The Country club assumes the entire mortgage and has provided for its payment by April 25, 1949.

In the transfer to the city the Country club deeded the land and all personal property of the club, the latter including a club house, dwelling, shower building, garage, caddy house, swings, mower, tractor, pumps, doodlebug and many small articles of equipment. The buildings will be moved from the former club site east of town to the new grounds north.

The park plat not only includes a golf course but also tennis courts, outdoor fireplaces, spacious picnic grounds with many trees and other recreation facilities.

As anticipated, the plan is to charge fees only for golf. The money so raised will help keep up the golf course. All other recreational facilities at the grounds are to be public.

INSTEAD of trying to discredit those who express disagreeing ideas touching foreign policies, the administration could serve defense plans better by stopping the activities of labor union radicals and preventing strikes that tie up essential industries.

It should be understood that Ford handles government defense contracts without a cent of profit. The Chrysler company receives $2 for handling a twenty-million-dollar project, and the Humble Oil Co. does the same thing.

SOME early and desirable improvements are in prospect for Wayne, according to proceedings of the council's late session.

Whether one agrees with Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh or not as to the most effective way to defend democracy, he would seem entitled to his opinion and a liberty to express it.

Planned reduction in electric rates, ordered by the council, will be acceptable relief to consumers at a time when costs of most things are disposed to ascend.

Whether one agrees with Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh or not as to the most effective way to defend democracy, he would seem entitled to his opinion and a liberty to express it.

This week L. B. 170, the bill to exempt from tax gas used for agricultural purposes was advanced. The amendments all related to better administration.

and doubtless it will be forthcoming in case of actual war.

The administration would serve the ends of early and adequate defense by forgetting such so-called social gains as short hours and getting down to business in turning out the things needed to equip an army.

We think Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce at Washington, does not employ the best psychology in boldly announcing that the public debt is likely to rise to a new high of 90 billions of dollars before we recover from this latest and worst emergency.

We note the Country club has included one doodlebug in its transfer of assets to the city.

At this time of spending billions for defense and drawing young men into military training, if we cannot get along now without government projects to furnish employment, when can we?

The appropriations committee's report is before the legislature this week, and it is hoped the wisdom of adequacy will carry members above the rocks of destructive economy.

Often people who do not have enough responsibility to feel its weight, relish picking flaws and making the load heavier for those already overburdened.

Describing the present wave of strikes and mass picketing, with all the rough stuff the term implies, as only disputes between employees and employers shows a complete failure to understand what is taking place.

This is the "surging forward" of the masses for which Rex Tugwell sounded the trumpet call in his California speech several years ago.

The following news story appeared on the front page of the Fremont Tribune Friday:

"Numerous requests for domestic help and for farm laborers have been received by the county assistance office, Mrs. Clara Metzger, county assistance director, reported Friday.

"The situation has become critical," Mrs. Metzger said, "as we cannot supply labor to fill all the positions."

Similar stories could be told in most Nebraska communities and reports of the same kind came from South Dakota not long ago.

Relief is costing about as much as it was in the days when there were no jobs, farm, domestic, defense or other, to offer.

draw their funds for emergency purposes. Much of the important legislation of the session is still to be considered.

Your senator will be very happy to introduce all high school groups to the legislature should they make the trip to Lincoln.

INGRATITUDE.

Is ingratitude disappearing from the world? We have heard of people on relief complaining bitterly because they do not receive more.

Prosperity Era Is Found in East

Dream of Fatal Accident With Tractor Proves to Be True Omen.

Residents of Newton, Mass., come pretty close to fulfilling the goal of the prosperity era—two automobiles in every garage. The tax assessors' 1939 report showed the city had 14,894 homes and 27,527 cars, 4,508 more automobiles than last year, at a valuation of $1,265,000.

Haywood Stevens, 32, of Pleasant Hill, Ia., reported to a friend that, three times recently he dreamed he would be killed by his new tractor. Shortly after his latest dream Stevens started the tractor across a bridge. The bridge gave way and the tractor fell on him, inflicting fatal injuries.

A Cornell university student sat in a pasture 24 consecutive hours just to find out how hard cows really work. He came up with the conclusion cows "work" an eight-hour day but even then "lout" at times. Keith Kennedy of Vancouver, Wash., watched the actions of a pedigree Aberdeen Angus, found bossy grazed eight hours, spent 12 hours lying down and the remaining four hours "standing or just walking around."

At Elkhart, Ind., Ralph Correll's Jersey cow was intrigued by the bright yellow ball beside her stall and tried to eat it. Now Correll has to buy a new electric light bulb—and a new cow.

Betty Bowser, 5, Ontario, Cal., stung by a honey bee, fled blindly into a street. An automobile struck her. She suffered concussion; possibly a skull fracture.

The police always get their man. Police turned an ambulance on an errand of mercy into a patrol wagon and got their man at Atton, Ill. Speeding to pick up a man reported shot, officers learned he had been taken to a hospital. They altered the ambulance's course and caught the fleeing assailant.

The horn of a car parked on public square, Independence, Mo., blared incessantly. Traffic snarled, pedestrians started. A gleeful 3-year-old gave no sign of a letup. Then help arrived and the car door was thrown open. Mamma spanked. Blissful silence—from the horn—followed.

Last November, Dr. H. A. Held was elected Dubois county coroner at Jasper, Ind. His two-year term started in January. He was called into the navy service. So his brother, Dr. G. A. Held, took over. He was called into army duty. Dr. Joseph Hennessy, erstwhile deputy coroner, is filling his place—with fingers crossed.

Little Tommy Blasingame, 4, can take it. Kicked by a horse, he was laid 300 yards with a broken leg. Then to his frightened mother he said without a tear: "Don't cry, mother. Just be tough like me."

When Chicago draft board officials received a letter from a registrant asking deferment because of a "stiff arm," they decided to call the man in for interview. They asked him a question which stumped him, and in groping for answer, unconsciously raised the "stiff arm" to scratch his head. He's in the army now.

The first remedy ever found to prolong human life in acute leukemia, the "blood cancer," which has been invariably fatal, was reported at Chicago. The medicine is shots of radio-active phosphorus, an artificial form of radium, made by giant cyclotrons. Acute leukemia usually kills in two months, occasionally two weeks. But in Boston today six of these patients are alive—more than a year. All are comfortable and one has returned to work. The phosphorus is so new and so scarce that only three places in the United States are trying it.

Barbara L. Lewis says if robins are a sign spring has come, then spring is certainly here. Thousands of the birds settled around her car while she was driving through Ellensburg canyon in Washington. The birds were so thick she was forced to stop and wait for them to take off.

"Everyone in Barada, Neb., forgot about the municipal election on the scheduled Tuesday. But the city fathers are not perturbed about it. They just said, 'It may not be strictly legal but we'll hold it some coming Tuesday.'"

Charles Goessell, 50, San Rafael, Cal., had a very bad day, very bad indeed. He was hauling his pet dog and two cases of beer to his country cottage. The car turned over in a ditch. The frightened dog tore across the fields and never came back. And, to make matters worse, while Goessell, with two broken ribs, was lying helpless in the wreckage another motorist stopped and stole the beer.

Famous Musician Comes to Concord

From a Wisconsin farm boy, who at the age of 12 built and played a most unusual musical instrument without any training whatsoever, has emerged a fine musician, Orben Sime, missionary of music and song, who will appear at Concordia Lutheran church Tuesday evening, May 6, at 8. The public is invited.

Mr. Sime has in 20 years given 5,000 concerts in 40 states. He has had outstanding offers from radio, movie and vaudeville companies.

The concert features the theremin, an instrument played entirely without touch. There are no strings and no keys, but music is produced by electronic pulsations from the body when the hands are waved over it. The fork-cello, the one-stringed instrument originated by Mr. Sime and perfected by a famed violinist and wood carver, will also be used. Hymns and chorales that are favorites will be played on the instruments. Mr. Sime also sings in three languages, English, Scandinavian and German.

No charge is made for the concert, but a freewill offering will be taken to help defray the artist's expenses.

Conflicts of Past Center in Balkans

Dr. J. R. Johnson Explains Differences That Cause Animosity There.

Racial, language and religious differences, which have made the Balkan states a hotbed of animosity all through history, have again been displayed in the present world crisis, according to Dr. J. R. Johnson who spoke to Kiwanians Monday following noon-day luncheon.

The Balkans are rich in resources and strategically located and for these reasons have been drawn into conflicts all through history. It was too much to expect that unity, never yet achieved, could be attained by the British in the present crisis.

The great distrust among nations of the Balkans is not only due to differences mentioned but is also based on the fact that at some time each country has been powerful. This recollection of former supremacy creates jealousy and at times disturbance the powderkeg ignites.

Homes Are Needed For State Children

"I wish I could help one of Europe's unfortunate children," many have said this and then dismissed the thought with the assurance that the world's unhappy children are too far away. Not so. Right here in Nebraska are many youngsters eager to find foster homes.

The Nebraska Home for Dependent Children at Lincoln, La. supported institution under supervision of the state board of control, admits children committed by the courts. It is the public's way of caring for neglected or orphaned children.

Children from the ages of three weeks to 21 years are cared for temporarily. The home realizes it cannot supply the love and consideration of a mother and father and therefore places the children as soon as possible.

The placement of babies is no problem except that there are not enough babies to go around. Homes for older ones are also easy to find as they are able to work. The middle-age group, from 6 to 16, is harder to place. And yet here are found some of the most charming boys and girls. Peter, for example, is a nice looking boy of 7 years. He likes to clean, cook and make garden. Helen is a chubby, pretty girl of 14 who likes housework and is good to children. There are many others just as interesting.

Nebraskans are asked to help place these children who will bring much happiness to homes.

Children at the Crossroads Ernest L. Reeker

Important Patient.
Spring was in the air, and Jim could no longer withstand the temptation of the display of camping equipment in the hardware store window. For what boy of 16 does not yearn for the adventure of spending a time in the open? Jim, however, should never have attempted to enter the store and help himself to the paraphernalia.
When he appeared in court, his mother and father came with him and listened attentively as Jim, after several denials, finally admitted his "wrong-doing." The father, a prominent physician and surgeon, was greatly disappointed in the boy's conduct and frankly declared he had little faith in Jim mending his ways. The mother was deeply concerned about her son, and her actions disclosed that she pampered him, granting his every whim.
The doctor had a large country practice, answered calls all hours of the night, left his home early in the mornings to perform surgical operations, and was completely out of touch with all the members of his family.
Jim was a bright lad, but he was considered "odd" by his classmates and was teased to the point of humiliation because of his artistic interests.
Although we hesitated to suggest to the physician-father that his son be examined by a "psychiatrist," we did so, and the father readily consented. The psychiatrist reported that Jim was mentally superior to the average boy of his age but was afflicted with a fully developed case of inferiority complex.
Jim told his examiner that his classmates often referred to the skill of his successful father, how he had saved this person's or that person's life. He declared, "It is apparent that my father is paying attention to everyone else but me. I'm sure he doesn't like me." And so he lived a dream-life of his own, of which his father had no inkling.
It was a difficult task to go to the physician and tell him the diagnosis of and treatment for his son's social conduct. He was shocked into realization of the way he had neglected his own son, and immediately set about remedying it.
The boy's daily routine of diet and sleep was improved. The father, directed to devote more time to his most important patient, eagerly complied with every suggestion to go hunting, fishing and camping with him. Father and son soon became great pals, and Jim took pride and interest in everything his father did, no longer being jealous of his success.
Shortly before the father moved to another location we visited his office to check up on Jim, and while sitting in his waiting room we looked up on the wall and observed this motto in a golden frame, "He who helps a boy to become a good and strong man makes a contribution of the first order to the welfare of society." — Phillips Brooks.

"I remember well the first time I used Long Distance—called back home from nearly 200 miles away. I waited half an hour to get through and then it was mighty hard to hear."
