THE KNOT-HOLE
Vol. 8 Wayne, Neb., Thur., July 10, 1941 No. 26

One of the more homelike sights around the White House is Ma Perkins knitting sweaters for the pickets.

A pat on the back develops character if administered young enough, often enough, and low enough.

We get many a pat on the back from users of Glidden paint. And well we should, for a Glidden user is always a satisfied customer. Buy Glidden, and look for the Time-Tested label on the can!

There can be such a thing as keeping the place too tidy. In Kansas, after the spring cleaning, a housewife walked through a window.

For economy, better heating, and less sickness in the family, remember the Will-Burt Stoker. Stoker heat is the ideal form of heat. Why not put your Will-Burt in your present heating plant now?

Are you going to have enough bin room for your grain? If not, it's not too late.

Citizen Rights
WAR FEVER, rampant in the world, often causes rise of the spirit of unrestraint and the thoughtless doing of unwarranted things. It often causes altitudinal nerves and crazy thinking. But it is supposed officers of the law know their duties well enough to avoid trespassing on personal rights. It seems the state sheriff, acting on advice from Mayor LaGuardia of New York, national director of civilian defense, instructed Nebraska patrolmen to stop all motorists on Nebraska highways at 3 p. m. July 4, on account of President Roosevelt's speech. LaGuardia exceeded both authority and good judgment in issuing the advice, and the state sheriff manifestly erred in carrying it out.

We are still living under a democratic form of government which guarantees certain well understood personal privileges and exemptions. If exercise of such rights does not interfere with the regular order, it should be protected rather than molested and penalized. Especially enforcement officers have the responsibility of avoiding action that bears an alien flavor.

In dictator-ridden countries inhabitants are forced to listen to what is prescribed for them to hear and not to listen to what is deemed unwise or inimical to the state. So far in this country no such arbitrary procedure is permitted, and officers, elected or appointed, should keep their minds on the things the flag and constitution stand for and not be swayed by the frenzied pronouncements of quick-triggered advisers—individuals or mobs inclined to half-baked thinking and premature conclusions.

The president's speech was all right, but contained nothing to justify halting the wheels of traffic or requiring the populace to stand or sit at attention. Nothing in our present system required anyone to glue his ears to the radio and listen to the voice from Washington.

Burden on Business
THE responsibility of business in defense plans is explained in an article contributed to the current Nation's Business by Merle Thorpe. "As the defense effort increases in speed and scope, the role that business plays becomes the leading part," says Thorpe. "In a very real sense it is the civilian quartermaster corps at once charged with the vital job of supplying the needs of the fighting forces and the subsistence of the civilian population. The 'arsenal of democracy' is stocked with everything from aircraft to zippers." The writer makes this observation: "The practice of citizenship, as business men have recognized from the first, comprehends a double responsibility—their duty to outfit and equip the nation's military establishment and their duty to provide the wherewithal to satisfy the everyday wants of the people. But good intentions are not enough. There is no plain sailing for management. More and more intricate become the charts of public policy. Between 'can' and 'can't' the course is tortuous, beset with hidden rocks and reefs."

It is noted that Senator Norris voted against confirmation of Harlan F. Stone when he was appointed to the supreme court by President Coolidge in 1925. At the time the senator justified his action on the fact that Stone had been an attorney for Morgan & Co. But lately when Justice Stone was advanced to the place of Chief Justice by President Roosevelt, the Nebraska senator reversed himself and voted for confirmation, offering this explanation: "I was entirely wrong. One of the greatest satisfactions of my life is to rectify that now." Mellowing years may lead the senator to modify his judgment in some other particulars before he closes his public career.

The fact that European dictators are prevaricating monstrosities, perfected in the nefarious game of duplicity, saying one thing while meaning another, and leading helpless subjects to pitiful slaughter, should fire free America to fix its feet firmly on the rock of candor and truth, than which nothing is more precious or enduring. The example among ruling tyrants abroad should shock American sensibilities into even greater resistance to double-dealing and double-crossing. It should strengthen practice of the Golden Rule.

Armed clash in the world is over sharply disagreeing ideologies. True Americanism, in which duly elected representatives carry out popular wishes, is arrayed against foreign dictatorship, in which the masses have no voice and no chance for appeal. Sufficient disagreement over men or policies here results in change, whereas in totalitarian states the ballot is strangled and objection invites the firing squad or concentration camp.

Inhabitants of dictator-ruled countries are protesting as much as they dare to protest against the studied effort to crush the Christian religion which has been the main source of hope for centuries. Dictators and the Christian church are wholly out of accord, but as autocratic tyrants disappear the religion of stricken countries will come back with more zeal than ever.

It is the part of wisdom not to write letters bearing critical implications because they are certain to rise to haunt one at very unfortunate junctures. Church Howe, once prominent in Nebraska politics, said he would rather travel one hundred miles than write a letter.

So many big things command attention in the world that it is strange, indeed, that trifles are permitted to take an unwarranted toll of anxiety and energy. Too often unimportant differences are given precedence over supreme essentials.

Secretary Ickes will not reduce his popularity by ordering reduction in gasoline consumption. He is already at the bottom in that respect and could not drop lower.

Independent thinking and individual action in conformity with orderly, lawful processes, are qualities of a successful democracy.

Transfer of Funds Favored by Officials
The federal park service officials in Omaha were visited by H. D. Addison, Carl Wright and E. J. Hunter Tuesday relative to the city's request that $7,800 WPA funds be transferred from the athletic park to the new park north of the city. The park service is favorable to the action which must first be sanctioned by WPA in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Strahan arrived in Wayne Saturday morning. They had been visiting in the B. F. Strahan home in Cherokee, Ia., and came here from Malvern where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Strahan's brother, Walter Larison. The Strahans plan to remain in Wayne for some time.

WASTE
In view of huge defense spending it would seem high time for the federal government to cut out appropriating money for unnecessary projects. Complaint is made that there is much waste of cash in building army encampments. It is reasonable to expect the defense emergency to supplant sundry emergencies incident to the new deal's planned economy. Another in a series of emergencies—and probably the greatest one of all—will be the task of reconstruction after the war. More care now in spending would soften later blows. Of waste over the years, Congressman Karl Stefan mentions an example reported in the Congressional Record as follows: "I call your attention to the bridge we helped build at Chouteau, in Honduras, in 1937. That bridge cost about half a million dollars, and our taxpayers paid $250,000 toward its construction. There are no roads or approaches on either side of this bridge, and it is high and dry with no one using it. It is just a half-million-dollar bridge sitting out there alone, with no roads in any direction."

Christian Science Services

"Sacrament" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, July 13. The Golden Text is: "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another" (John 13: 34, 35).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Then Peter said unto them, repeat, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:38). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our baptism is a purification from all error. Our church is built on the divine principle, love. We can unite with this church only as we are newborn of spirit, as we reach the life which is truth and truth which is life by bringing forth the fruits of love—casting out error and healing the sick" (p. 85).

Services Sunday at 11 a. m. in Woman's club rooms.

faces and necks parboiled by the July sun. Those who were able to remain for the fireworks, were rewarded by a pitifully feeble display. The day was remembered as a severe test of the pioneer's rugged fiber. But in the absence of other diversions, the experience was repeated each year as a means to break dull monotony.

Young people are much misguided and little understand if they think they lack privileges enjoyed by early settlers. If the young could realize the disadvantages imposed and the self-denial exacted they would shrink from thought of return to primitive ways.

Prescribes Control For Chicken Lice

Dusting, dipping and such practices are recommended to control chicken lice as this insect pest stays on chicks at all times, according to J. R. Redditt, extension poultryman.

An effective dust treatment consists of sodium fluoride of one part mixed with four or five parts of fine road dust or ashes sifted into the feathers and well down into the skin of the infested birds. An old-fashioned powder can with holes punched in the top makes an excellent container for sifting the powder.

An equally effective process, and one which may be applied in the warm summer weather, is dipping. Sodium fluoride is used at the rate of one ounce per gallon of water. Two persons working together, over a tubful of the solution can treat a sizeable flock in a short time. The work should be done on a warm day when the wind is not blowing. Caution should be used in not getting the solution into the eyes and throats of the birds.

Redditt says the blue ointment is one of the oldest and most reliable products for ridding the hens of lice. Small portions about the size of a bean, if rubbed well into the feathers around the vent, will generally drive lice away. The material should not be rubbed into the vent.

For lasting and effective control, it is frequently necessary to treat the birds more than once. Young lice hatching out from eggs present at the time of the treatment may require a second or third treatment.

LOYALTY

Many Americans came from foreign countries or from foreign-born parents. Those who left lands beyond the seas to locate in the United States usually did so to get away from intolerable civil or religious restraints. Here they found opportunity and free enterprise. They found equal school privileges, no caste system, no feeling of superiority of position or wealth. Their energy and frugality were rewarded, and positions in no field were beyond their reach. Whatever recollections they may entertain of former days in the now battle-scarred old world, conditions at their best there are far below those at their worst here. Though we may sharply disagree over public policies in this country, there is every reason why we should unite solidly to defend liberties assailed by communism, fascism and nazism. We cannot safely coddle these alien isms. Each would break down our free institutions and make, if it could, a totalitarian state, destroying life's independent incentives under a tyrant's ruthless heel. No one should want to fashion America after the pattern of the country whose enslaving policies he came here to escape.

CONGRESS AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

Washington, D. C., July 2, 1941. The "B. P. M." is the British Purchasing Mission. The agency occupied an entire floor of the Willard hotel. They ordered air conditioning and sent the bill to the lend-lease administration. It was turned down because that money is for war materials and not for air cooling. So, the B. P. M. moved.

There is some criticism here regarding some parts of our army rehearsing the battles of 1862 in the south. The critics say maneuvers should follow more modern methods of fighting.

Here is what experts here say about the Russian-German conflict: Germany will defeat Russia in six weeks. Germany could reach over and join hands with Japan by next October. That would put Germany very close to United States territory. The premeditated activity in and around Alaska will be much accelerated. More demands to provide material for our own army which is short of many things, are being made right now.

Hamilton Fish of New York, a non-interventionist leader, left Saturday for active service in the army at Fort Bragg, N. C. That is where Col. Art Harris of Nebraska is now located.

Lincoln keeps Otto De Vilbiss here to watch for business. Omaha has just hired Homer Grauch, former secretary to former Senator Ed. Burke, to do the same thing for Omaha. Each Nebraska member and his staff keep a daily check on all activities, doing their very best to see that the communities in their districts are not forgotten in case there is any business to be secured.

Washington newspapers are advertising for chorus girls to help entertain the soldiers who come to town on furloughs. A lady writes a local newspaper and asks if the government took her husband to be entertained by a soldier or to be entertained by a good looking hostess. The newspaper replies to the worried wife to try to be brave, gay and very patriotic.

Half a dozen Lincoln businessmen have been here asking that Lincoln be chosen as the site of some additional government activities in the event of decentralization from Washington. A bill to effect some decentralization has been introduced but the best guess is that there will be very little done about it.

Governor Griswold has been in town after attending a governors' conference in Boston. The governor was honored guest at a dinner given by Senator Butler. Most of the Nebraska delegation was present.

An official who has been in China for 12 years, has just arrived in Washington. He tells the story of 20,000 European refugees who are in Shanghai trying to get to the United States. Their plight is sad, he says, but not half so sad as that of the Chinese who are starving because there is no food.

Chapel Is Held. Dr. Frank Gracy spoke at convocation Wednesday morning on "The Influence of Religion on Art."

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Knipprath and daughter, Eleanor, and Mr. and Mrs. Becker of Chicago, stopped in the W. P. Canning home the Fourth when enroute to the Black Hills. Mrs. Knipprath is the former Anna Jacobi who lived here some years ago. Approve Council To Help Farmers

Committees Are Appointed For Rehabilitation in Wayne County.
 Wayne county's new FSA council and committees, working with the United States department of agriculture, were announced Tuesday by Ray L. Verzal, rehabilitation supervisor. The council, approved by the department, includes George Bruns, J. H. Brugger, Mrs. Laurine J. Beckman, F. Irving Moses, George R. Noakes, L. E. McClure, C. I. Walters, Mrs. Esther Thompson and Frank Erlinger of Wayne, and Ludwig C. Bauer of Randolph.

Memberships on the council and committees overlaps. On the committees are: FSA farm debt adjustment, F. Irving Moses, George R. Noakes and L. E. McClure; rural rehabilitation advisory committee, J. H. Brugger, Mrs. Laurine J. Beckman and F. Irving Moses; tenant purchase, George Bruns, J. H. Brugger and Ludwig C. Bauer. In a recent communication to Ray L. Verzal and to others, Cal A. Ward, regional FSA director, Lincoln, said: "Local citizens know their own problems much better than any outside officials could know them. The county FSA council of local substantial citizens with the interests of home farmers at heart and in sympathy with the self-rehabilitation program, can do much to help farm families develop local resources; build community cooperation and improve the general welfare; and opportunities of farm families."

It is being emphasized in all FSA personnel meetings, Ray L. Verzal said, that strong national defense depends on existence of large numbers of reasonably self-sufficient communities, and that neighborhoods cannot be self-sufficient with many of their people subject to sub-standard living conditions. Rehabilitation is being regarded as a community responsibility because it involves adjustment of local debts, farm and home planning, cropping systems, soil conservation, live stock production, local government costs and taxes and other factors that have community-wide application. The county council will meet at state intervals and members will be reimbursed, through FSA, for their time and work. They will cooperate closely, it was stated, with the county land use planning committee, AAA committee and other community groups in tackling problems as they affect low-income farm families. They will work with the FSA personnel in making the rehabilitation program effective locally, and will assist in spreading knowledge of these problems and programs of work among the people of the county. Council members will work with FSA personnel and other groups in encouraging group meetings and group discussions pertaining to all phases of agricultural and community life problems. Mr. Verzal says community or group meetings would figure largely this coming year in the development of the rehabilitation program.

Bones of Indians Uncarried Nearby

Archaeologists have been excavating Indian graves to learn more about early civilization in northeast Nebraska. Many Indian bones have been investigated from an artificial mound, located on a high bluff, near Honey, Neb. The bones seem to be of the late prehistoric period. This Indian grave may have been there long before Columbus discovered America.

On one lead necklace found with the bones was a shell from the Gulf of Mexico which indicates that these early people traded with Indians in the south. By looking at the vertebrae in the backbone the archaeologists found that the Indians had suffered from arthritis.

The fossils will be taken to the University of Nebraska where they will be reassembled for display in the museum.

Research work has also been going on near Wynot. Nothing has been uncovered yet but archaeologists have hopes of unearthing a "Bad Village" of the Omaha Indians.

Card of Thanks.

National Defense Has Resulted in Changing Capital

Miss Evelyn Larsen, now visiting in Wayne, who went to Washington, D. C., as a civil service worker in Wayne, has seen the city change from a well ordered government capital to a "madhouse."

Stories of five girls to a room and someone standing behind one's chair during a meal are not just newspaper accounts to Miss Larsen. The Wayne girl has been an eye witness to all this and can cite instances of apartment rates being upped a third and occupants being given only two weeks' notice to pay $50 instead of $38, if they intend to stay. Result is that people are always moving in Washington. One girl moved four times in a year.

The post-office's biggest job is keeping track of everyone. Miss Larsen and three girls are feeling particularly fortunate, having lived in the same apartment for two years and as yet not threatened by an outlandish rise in rent.

Although the influx of girls to Washington has made the social ratio rather bad, there are 800,000 office workers stationed in the two forts of Meade and Belvoir, one at each end of the city. Churches sponsor dances for the boys, and government girl workers are transported in buses out to the camps.

The girls are investigated thoroughly as to character and possible spy relations. Miss Larsen enjoyed her experience at one of the dances. Most of the boys are good fellows. They looked unusually healthy, admitted they had never felt better physically and that since their disappointment at receiving papers have learned to enjoy their new existence. Their only regret is loss of a year in school or business. The White House, closed to the public for some time, has been reopened by Mrs. Roosevelt for the benefit of sightseeing soldier boys.

Washington is a wonderful city in which to meet interesting people and visit interesting places, thinks Miss Larsen. Her best times are spent with friends in the Norwegian society there. Many of the members work in the Norwegian consulate and it was through them that Miss Larsen met Crown Prince Olaf and Crown Princess Martha of Norway, now living in Washington, D. C. One young Norwegian attaché at the consulate, an acquaintance, was deported when his four-year visa ended. He went to Cuba where, within an hour, he had arranged to reenter the United States and file his first citizenship papers. Cuba is overrun with refugees, he reports; and all kinds of corruption, such as marriage to obtain United States citizenship, prevails. United States immigrant officials are more lenient with the northern European nationalities.

Miss Larsen, being connected with the civil aeronautics bureau, does not work under the conditions of the defense agencies. People in the war and navy departments must wear picture identification badges to work. They are absolutely not allowed in the building should they report without them. Since last spring these workers have been compelled to put in overtime. If they don't work Sundays or nights, they must be on 24-hour call. A bill is underway in congress to allow extra pay for the extra hours put in by defense civil service workers.

Miss Larsen says Washington is a queer town, with picketers that nobody bothers to notice, with restaurants and theatres crowded to capacity all the time, and soldier boys coming in by the thousands over the week-ends. It is an exciting place to live and she will return there next week.

Knox county Historical society plans a picnic at Young's park near Bloomfield, July 20.

Library Bulletin Tells of Courses

The library has received an informative bulletin pertinent to the schedule of the public training defense program. Training for defense production jobs has been divided into six divisions or schools. Five of them offer instruction in aircraft mechanics, auto maintenance, mechanical drafting, electrical construction, foundry, sheet metal work and similar trades. A sixth school is open only to persons who have had college work. Their training is advanced work in the fields of chemistry and physics.

In one of the trade schools, vocational defense training, 18 years is the minimum age, and application for entrance should be made at the state employment bureau or WPA office. In vocational high school training, 21 is the maximum age, and application must be where technical high schools are located. Vocational high school night school has no age limit and application is the same as for day school. Civilian conservation corps defense training is for ages 17 to 23 and application is made with the department of public assistance office. National Youth administration is for boys 18 to 25 and application is made at NYA headquarters. Courses for these schools last from two weeks to six months depending on nature of the training.

The more advanced school, engineering defense training, has no age limit and offers technical courses of college grade such as: Drafting, metallurgy, testing, chemistry, technology, x-ray testing and meteorology. Application is with the United States office of education and the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Schenly park, Pittsburgh, Pa. Most courses in this school cover a year's work.

Robert had ridden to his cousin's home at the outskirts of the city and was going to return home when the accident occurred. Scott A. Safford, Omaha, driver of the car, told officers that the bicycle swerved from the shoulder of the highway in front of his car.

Funeral rites for Robert were conducted Thursday at Elk City Methodist church and burial was in that town. Supt. and Mrs. Decker attended from here.

Deceased leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Samson, and four brothers, Leo, Harold, Floyd and Ray Dean.

Two Suffer Burns At Norfolk Home

Mrs. Arthur Heithold and Vivian are injured in explosion Tuesday.

Mrs. Arthur Heithold and daughter, Vivian, 7, formerly of Wayne, suffered burns Tuesday last week when kerosene the former was using to start a kitchen stove range exploded in the Heithold home two and a half miles north of Norfolk. Mrs. Heithold was quite severely burned about the face and arms, and Vivian has burns on her hands. The Heitholds are at the home of Mrs. Heithold's mother, Mrs. Wm. Harder, near Wayne while they recover and while their home is being repaired.

Mrs. Heithold was starting a fire preparatory to baking bread. The explosion threw burning gasoline onto the two and also set fire to the kitchen. Two other children, Ardith, 12, and Donovan, 11, helped check the flames by carrying buckets of water until neighbors, the Millers and Meierhenrys, arrived.

The dining room as well as the kitchen in the home was damaged.

Has Major Operation.

Mrs. Al Boock of Black Rock, Ore., formerly of Wayne, underwent a major operation June 30 in a Portland hospital.

Intimate Account Is Told by Writer

Newest book in Wayne city library is William L. Shirer's "Berlin Diary," the first unexpurgated and intimate account of Germany in the 2nd world war. This dean of foreign correspondents has at last been able to tell his many fans the things he couldn't say over his C. B. S. censored German microphone. His book, written in the gentle sincere tone of his famous speaking voice, tells everything from the Paris fiasco uprising of 1934 to the 1940 June Armistice of Compiegne.

Outstanding articles in current magazine publications at the library are "Ghosts of Woodrow Wilson," by G. W. Johnson, in the June "Harpers"; and "Do We Want a Mass Army," by Collins, in "Reader's Digest."

The state board of educational lands and funds is investigating the proposal of South Sioux City to refund $306,466 in bonds issued by the city and owned by the state.

Prudence and Patriotism call for immediate coal buying

Railroads and armament industry are using more and more coal. Much more will be needed soon. Authorities say this growing demand—coupled with home heating needs—may overtake ability to maintain an adequate supply.

Filling your coal bin now, without delay, will help relieve this pressure on supplying a vital need of defense. It will assure the better grade you want—undoubtedly give you a lower cost than if you wait.

So it's both prudent and patriotic to buy—today if you may. On our part, we've ordered in full stocks, ready to serve you with top notch value.

HARGO SP

School Levy Blank Form Is Changed

A new form of school levy blank, which makes it practically impossible for a district to build up a surplus, will be reissued next year. With the new blank, the county board can levy only the difference between what the district needs and what it has on hand.

The new ruling does, however, make provisions for the school to continue to operate on a cash basis and avoid issuing warrants when the tax returns are low.
