Special Courses Feature Session

The rural education conference and the workshop courses are pointed out by Dr. J. T. Anderson as high lights of the summer session which will end August 8 at Wayne college. Some of the workshop courses have already been given; the course in physical education is now in progress.

Nineteen county superintendents of education and approximately 100 rural teachers have attended the rural education conference. The workshop courses have had a total enrollment of approximately 100 students.

The conference was planned by a committee, appointed by President Anderson, consisting of Dean Clarence McGinn and Prof. K. N. Parke, both of the college, and Supt. F. B. Decker, Wayne.

Several visiting speakers have addressed the conference. A. V. Teed, Wayne, spoke at luncheon. Burl Price, research worker in Ohio State university, gave an address on progressive rural education and community relationships. Miss Chloe E. Traxler, of the Educational Records bureau, New York City, lectured on remedial reading.

County superintendents, who have served as chairman at various sessions of the conference are: L. E. Decker, Wayne county, J. Mike McCoy, Cedar county, Mrs. Gladys Homan Brodirt, Madison county, Mrs. Bess J. Waring, Stanton county, and Merle Haynes, Dakota county.

The workshop courses have dealt with teachers' problems. Dean H. H. Hahn, Coach James H. Morrison, Prof. K. N. Parke, Dr. Ray Bryan and Dr. Harold D. Griffin, as members of the Wayne college faculty, have helped to plan and to give the workshop courses.

Wakefield in Early Eighties

Road Enterprise Leads to Development Along Newly Built Lines

Wakefield will celebrate its 60th birthday August 10, 11 and 12, most early towns in this section. Wakefield was the product of railroad enterprise. Its early settlers gathered there to form a site because the location was the mainline from Sioux City to Norfolk. Wakefield is in reality less than 60 years; that is to say there were several small settlements near the present site whose inhabitants were later to form the nucleus of the new town.

The early history of Wakefield is the history of Logan Valley, led by hardy, ambitious farmers and merchants from Illinois, of speculators and railroad

Established farmer in this story was longhaired, colorful Barto, who came with his in 1869 and settled a beautiful tract of land in the immediate vicinity of Wakefield.

There is another man who at the same year and whose name has gathered tradition and life as the name of the family founded and nursed Wakefield maturity. In 1867 Willard Crane, prosperous farmer from Iowa, Ill., was traveling through the Logan valley on an annual western trip for his health. So impressed was he with the rich soil of this prairie land in the area that he purchased 40 acres of it at the U. S. land office in Dakota City. Returning he organized a "trick" to his venture; the settlers willing there were to repay him only 1869, Mr. Graves arrived in the valley with a number of settlers who bought land in the area that is now Wayne, Dixon and Cedar counties. Many of them hovered around the little "postoffice town" of Tall where Willard Graves and his partner, O. F. Crane had put two houses together to make a combination hotel, mail center and private home. In the north was the little post office of Park's Hill, which held the Wakefield settlers of Dixon and Cedar regions together.

Both of these "geographical expressions" were very soon overshadowed by the village of LaPorte (which became a social and economic center for the whole of the Logan valley population.

Origin in LaPorte.

In LaPorte the towns of Wakefield and Wayne had a common origin. Here the people who were later to separate and form respectively the populations of Wakefield and Wayne enjoyed almost 10 years of pleasant prairie associations.

Mrs. F. J. Hoydar of Wakefield, who spent most of her childhood in LaPorte, and whose father, C. E. Hunter, was one of its leading merchants, recalls many incidents of equal interest to the two towns. Her school teacher was Mrs. Mary Brittain. One of the play productions in the old LaPorte court house was "Ten Nights in a Barroom" and featured herself in the title role with a supporting cast of the future dignified Wayne leaders, J. T. Bressler and Jas. Brittain.

In the late summer of 1881 the railroad line through the Logan valley was being vigorously pushed, and Philo Graves, son of Willard Graves, deeded 40 acres of his inheritance as a town site on the railroad. A portion of LaPorte's population was quite easily persuaded to move to this spot and in August the town of Wakefield was organized.

When these people moved out from LaPorte there were already residents of Wakefield who had come earlier that summer. Mrs. Anna Cracmer, today Wakefield's oldest living citizen, had been there some time with her husband, foreman on the railroad. They had come by wagon from Emerson. She remembers how swollen Logan creek was that spring and how they had to make a boat out of their wagon and ford the stream.

Marriott Opened Store.

A month or two later the John T. Marriotts arrived. Mr. Marriott establishing the first store in Wakefield. He continued in business there for many years; Mrs. Marriott was the first woman to ride into town on a train and that train consisted of an engine and a cowhouse. It is said that the rails split a short way from the depot and she had to walk on into town.

Wakefield grew perceptibly in a few short months. Besides Mr. Marriott's general store and post office there was a hotel operated by David D. Lash; a drug store built by Philo Graves; a millinery owned by the Adair sisters; a hardware store; a lumber yard; a grist mill owned by J. O. Milligan; and the merchandise store moved from LaPorte and operated by the Hunter brothers, Lou and C. E. This store was remodeled later into a home, and is the residence today of Mrs. F. J. Hoydar, who lives just east of the Christian church.

Mrs. Aller, another of Wakefield's earliest settlers, was living on a farm when Wakefield was organized. Her family welcomed the new railroad town, since they no longer had to go to Emerson for supplies and the post office had been moved from Park's Hill to Marriott's store.

With the town came all the essentials of communal life; schools, churches and societies appeared immediately, although it seems that the first and last named existed in the territory before the town came into existence.

Establish First School.

The first school in Wakefield (township) commenced January 17, 1875, with several of Mr. Barto's children as pupils. Miss Lucy Morcy was teacher, while C. I. Blake and Philo Graves constituted the board.

Mr. Graves donated the land and building for the first school in town. It was started that winter of 1881 and was located on the present site of the Presbyterian church. Mrs. W. A. K. Neely was one of the first instructors. But there is a story about a Prof. Seacord who came there from Tekamah and was so strict that some of the children's parents organized a second, private school for a while; Prof. Stevens taught these children.

Mrs. Aller also reports that the "literary society," famed institution of pioneer life, was started among the farmers even before the townspeople arrived. People had to make their amusements in those days. However, those still living think back fondly on the gatherings. They are very proud and seem not to regret "what they missed."

All on Single Level.

The significant thing about society in those days was its one level. Everyone was young; there were many children and much work to do, but on holidays and evenings, people rode horseback to a home for elocution, debates or plays, and more than likely dancing and refreshments. There was always coffee and cake and maybe sandwiches—if enough bread had been baked!

Later the center of polite society was the church. First religious services were Presbyterian in nature and held in J. T. Marriott's store. Both Methodist and Presbyterian churches were formally organized in 1882; the Swedish Mission in 1888, St. Paul Lutheran in 1889, Salem Lutheran in 1883 and Covenant Mission in 1884.

The ice cream social, Sunday school picnic and box social were highlights in recreation in the church, and for 20 years or so even that of the entire town. Fresh lunch was had at the auction of box lunches. O. F. Crane being in great demand as salesman.

Stock company shows and a fair in 1885 were unusual events in these first years. The Logan Valley fair was put on by prominent Wakefield and Wayne people, Thomas Rawlings, J. H. Pomeroy, Mrs. C. L. Harrington and Mrs. John Bressler all helped. "Intoxication was forbidden," admission 25c on foot and all kinds of races and exhibits were featured.

Wakefield was not incorporated until 1883, when it was formally named after Engineer Wakefield, who surveyed that section of the country for the railroad.

By the summer of 1885 a number of brick buildings had been erected and the new railroad line from Hartington was giving the town considerable growing impetus. A small brick school house went up on the south end of the present school lot and in 1899 the present $15,000 building was erected.

Gives Library and Park.

Philo Graves again contributed to the growth of the community, this time in a cultural way. He dedicated a city library in honor of his son, Jay. And he donated a four-acre plot in northwest Wakefield for a park, where he planted walnut trees himself. Today this spot is walnut grove. Sometime before this Philo had offered another lot to the city as a park. But at that time they were unable to care for the trees, so a while at least he withheld the privilege.

Wakefield lived smoothly. It has never been known to rush into anything. The lights and telephone came in due time. A fire department was organized in 1908.

The town progressed in a conservative, well ordered fashion. Most of its citizens are and were stolid Swedish folk. Many came to Wakefield without much in their pockets and built fortunes. Hard-working, industrious, they made Wakefield what it is today—a pleasant little city, best noted for its neat, immaculate appearance.

CONGRESS
AS SEEN BY
KARL STEFAN

Washington, D. C., July 29, 1941.

With about 100 members on the floor, the house passed the first supplemental national defense appropriation bill for 1942. It amounted to eight billion dollars in direct appropriations and contractual authorizations. Most of the items in this measure are for our own army and navy. The time at which the new lend-lease appropriation bill will come up in the house is problematical, but it is coming.

In the eight billion dollar defense bill is an item of 35 million dollars for the construction of a building to house all of the activities of the war department. It will be located just across the Potomac river from Washington and will house a personnel of 40,000. It can be erected within a year and 1,000,000 square feet of space can be ready for occupancy in six months. The parking space around the building will take care of 10,000 automobiles. The war department now occupies 17 different buildings—some owned by the government, some rented—and removal from old quarters will begin as soon as the first new unit is completed. It is estimated that the efficiency of the department's operations can be increased at least 25 per cent by being housed in close communication. The surrender of the space now used in the 17 other buildings of other government agencies. The surrender of the munitions building will make that structure available for the navy department and will enable that department to effect a concentration of its personnel.

Some days have been so hot in Washington that thousands of perspiring employees have been excused from work. There have been many prostrations and several deaths due to this terrific Washington heat. Nebraskans who live here say they can stand Nebraska heat much better than the humid heat of Washington.

Members may have little or no vacation. After the tax bill will come the fight on the extension of selective service beyond one year. Then, a fight is due on price fixing. Then, members are told will come other important legislation with perhaps another lend-lease bill. If members want to go home, they will have to do so over week-ends or at the occurrence of very short recesses.

About five members of the subcommittee which handles the appropriations for the department of state will leave August 10 for 17 Central and South American countries to study our cultural relations problems. They will be gone for more than two months. The Third district member is also a member of that subcommittee but has declined the invitation to make the trip, believing that the present critical situation requires that he remain at his regular post of duty.

Treasury department inspectors have confiscated 300 stills in one New York congressional district. New liquor taxes may increase bootlegging.

The new tax bill does not propose to increase the taxes on beer, tobacco or gasoline.

The tax bill hit a snag in the house Tuesday when majority leaders and the chairman of the ways and means committee learned the house was ready to vote against a closed rule. So the rule was held up and the house adjourned until Wednesday to give the leaders time to reorganize their plan of procedure. The stage had been set to bring in a closed rule which would make out of order all but committee amendments. Many members have received complaints against mandatory joint income tax returns of husband and wife. Leaders feared the rule would be defeated. In that case they threatened to bring in a wide open rule which would result in plenty of trouble.

The wheat marketing legislation faced much trouble in the senate where several controversial amendments were tacked on. The house had passed a minor amendment which seemed satisfactory to the leaders and when it came up in the senate, one amendment was added to cut the penalty from 49 cents to 15 cents on winter wheat. Also an amendment to allow feeding of surplus to farm livestock and poultry. Vice President Wallace was in the chair. He saw cotton men add a few amendments for cotton. Chairman Fulmer of the house committee was present. So were a score of farm district members who now feel the future of the marketing legislation must rest with the house and senate conferees who will get the bill when the senate finishes with it.

The report rejected the conference report on the selective training and service act, amendments because of the property seizure sections. Democrats and republicans joined in the fight and the report was returned to the con-

Receiving Training In Weather Bureau
John J. Jones, graduate of Wayne college in 1936 and son of John D. Jones of Wayne, is one of a handpicked group of 60 men who are being trained by a faculty of distinguished scientists at the University of Southern California at Los Angeles, preparatory to becoming United States weather bureau men. John was graduated from Randolph high school and taught four years before applying for this training which is furnished by the government.

The intensive scientific course takes nine months, at the end of which time, some of the graduates will become second lieutenants in the army. Others will join the navy and the rest will go on duty with the weather bureau. A column in a Los Angeles paper says the men will be scattered from Alaska to Panama, and that "blitz" warfare has given meteorology a new importance.

Meteorological training is offered on five American campuses. Another Wayne boy, Quentin Whitmore, is taking a similar course at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Christian Science Services
"Spirit" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, August 10.

The Golden Text is: "The fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth" (Ephesians 5:9).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "No man hath seen God at any time. Hitherto we know that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit" (1 John 4:12, 13).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit being God, there is but one Spirit, for there can be but one infinite and therefore one God. There are neither spirits many nor gods many. There is no evil in Spirit, because God is Spirit . . . Spirit, God, has created all in and of Himself. Spirit never created matter. There is nothing in Spirit out of which matter could be made, for as the Bible declares, without the Logos, the AEon or Word of God, 'was not anything made that was made.' Spirit is the only substance, the invisible and indivisible infinite God" (pp. 334, 335).

Believe it or not, a lot of these foreign diplomats who are very friendly and chummy only a few weeks ago are not talking to each other today.

Many people who had a homeland, a fatherland and a country they called their own, are in Washington, thanking their Maker that they can stay here.

Waitresses in hotels here get $17.50 a week and make an additional $10 a week in tips.

British experts who are here admit that to defeat Germany there must be an invasion sometime. If they can do it with our material help, they would prefer it that way—but they also admit that the time may come when the United States will be expected to send men. Those statements have contributed to the great worry and great uncertainty here now.

Some American experts in our foreign service believe that all least-lead activities should cease immediately; that America should fight her own fight and give her own army and navy the best of all war materials and start clearing both the Atlantic and Pacific ocean and attack Japan now. That is only one idea, however.

Between September 6, 1939, and May 31, 1941, 338 organizations have reported to the state department as provided by law their activities in soliciting and disbursing relief to belligerent countries. One organization, known as the Union for the Protection of the Human Person, collected nothing and expended nothing. In terms of results, the most effective group was the Greek War Relief association, which collected nearly $5,000,000 and expended only 5 per cent of that amount in administrative publicity and campaign costs. Total amount collected by all organizations was $36,716,273.50, of which $3,701,882.30 was disbursed for collection and publicity expenses.

Given Promotion As Band Officer

Stanley Johnson, member of the United States Navy band who attended Wayne State Teachers college for several years, has recently been promoted to the rank of first class petty officer. The distinction is made more significant by the fact that comparatively new members, such as Stanley, who has been with the band 16 months, seldom receive promotions in so short a time. Stanley along with two others of the 85-piece unit received the recognition. On August 18 the navy band will go to Toronto, Canada, to play at the Canadian national exhibition. Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson, parents of Stanley, and their son, Kenneth, will visit their son in Washington, D. C., and in Toronto.

Increase Is Made In State Tax Levy

The state board of equalization at Lincoln last week fixed the tax levy for 1941 at 2.71 mills. A year ago the levy was 2.57 and two years ago 2.61.

The assessment of $2.71 per $1,000 worth of property is calculated to raise $5,283,892.

The increase is largely accounted for by three items, $15,000 bonus for oil discovery in the state, $32,600 for establishment of a trade school at Milford and $45,000 for revision of the statutes.

Rev. and Mrs. G. Gieschen, Roger, David and Eunice arrived home Saturday from Hayward, Wis., where they had spent a week. They had spent two weeks before in Milwaukee.

Patriotic Nature Is Noted in Books

Books of a patriotic nature seem to be the most popular publications on the market this summer. Wayne library has received three new ones, two of which combine high adventure with nationalistic background.

In "Captain Paul," Commander Edward Ellsberg writes the colorful career of John Paul Jones into a compelling historic novel. One of the most interesting sidelights of this famous seaman's biography is a story of the tragedy that caused him to add "Jones" to his original name.

John Buchan, better known as Lord Tweedsmuir, the late governor general of Canada, wrote before his death the last of a series of rich adventure stories. Into his romantic novel, "Mountain Meadow" he projects such famous English personalities as Lord Asquith and General Ironsides, men with whom he was intimately acquainted in the course of his political and military life. His last adventure, written in "grave good sense," tells the story of an Englishman's search for a prominent American banker who has disappeared into the rim of the Arctic circle.

The third book is the inevitable "Patriotic Anthology," an American history compiled from the old and new, familiar and unfamiliar poetry and prose of the nation. The collection contains such old favorites as "Paul Revere's Ride" and such newly discovered gems as Benjamin Franklin's ironical address to the British nation.

Interesting articles on the library magazine rack are found in the July "Readers Digest." They are "The Brain Power of Hitler's Army" and "Wanted—For the American Army's Youthful Leadership and Promotion by Merit." "World or Nothing" another outstanding current article, will be found in the July "Atlantic Month-

Anniversary Is To Be Observed

Wakefield Plans Features Three Days to Honor Town's Founding.

A gala three-day celebration starting next Sunday, August 10, is planned by Wakefield to celebrate their 40th anniversary. The affair, which features among other events, an historical pageant, Swedish costume dancing, anniversary parade and tribal dances by Omaha Indians, promises to be one of the largest festivals ever staged in Wakefield. Already citizens are decked out in pioneer regalia; the men in beards and wide-brimmed hats, the women in bright printed mother h Hubbard and pet bonnets. Store windows are filled with antiques, old-fashioned apparel and early pictures.

Local churches will join in the commemoration Sunday when special services will be held that morning by each congregation. A joint community service at 3 in the city park will have Rev. C. O. Gullen of Fremont, Lutheran minister who is well known in this vicinity, as speaker and music by a 100-voice united choir, directed by R. G. Hanson and Herbert Cecil. An impressive evening service, historical interviews will be held with each church and the Stanton band will give a concert. Festivities Monday begin at 10 with a ball game between Emerson and Wakefield Junior Legion teams at the park east of town. The 60th anniversary parade starts off at 1 with floats, bands, kiddies, pets and bicycles featured. Another ball game, Winside vs. Pender, will follow at 3. First part of the evening will be devoted to concerts by two different bands, special event being colorful Swedish dancing at 7-15. The historical pageant in the city park at 8:30 will climax the program. Written in Lincoln, especially for Wakefield's celebration, the story dramatizes founding of the Wakefield settlement.

Junior Legion ball game, Wayne vs. Wakefield, starts the Tuesday program at 9, and another parade is set for 10:30. Sioux City boosters will visit Wakefield same time that morning. Ball game Tuesday afternoon at 3 will be Wayne vs. Emerson. Big attraction for the evening will be appearance of the Norfolk drum and bugle corps at 8:30. The organization has new uniforms, new routines and new bugles. Band concerts and Swedish dancing will take place earlier in the evening.

Regular entertainment features for Monday and Tuesday are outdoor dancing to Larry Herman's band; old time dances in the auditorium, music by Erwin Schmidt; dances by Omaha Indians, and concessions of all kinds, including merry-go-round and Ferris wheel.

Desire to Serve Inspires Former Resident in West

Inspired by a real love of life and by a compelling desire to do something worthwhile, Mrs. Alice D. Ley, 81, of Encinitas, Cal., for many years of Wayne, has crowded an enormous amount of public service into her career. "Maybe it's the vitamins that give her so much pep," comments a San Diego paper.

The story of vitamins is this. Encinitis has an abandoned elementary school, and the donor of the site designated that the property should revert to him if educational pursuits ceased on the grounds. The school, besides being an educational center, had served as a community gathering place in the little seaside city. Citizens were of course interested in keeping it, so they asked for assistance. So Mrs. Ley organized a school for educational and social activities. Seven "scholars" started the project and the number has grown to 40. The women meet each Friday.

To satisfy the requirement that the site be used for education, Mrs. Ley conceived the idea that the group study. Because of the movement to promote nutrition as an aid to national defense, she proposed that they study vitamins. The best available text was used and women found the topic instructive and interesting. Each woman was given a special vitamin to report on, and contributed this vitamin to a potluck luncheon which demonstrated the value of balance in diet. In fact the project has gained such prestige that two of the women were invited to San Diego to report at a state meeting.

The urgent need for a hospital in the western city is now inspiring Mrs. Ley to promote this undertaking. The training of young men for national defense and the greater accident toll that accompanies such projects have led her to realize more and more the real need for hospital service, since San Diego is 30 miles away and often too far when emergencies arise. A Los Angeles man, who owns much property in Encinitis, has offered to furnish the site providing the town does the rest. And it is the rest which Mrs. Ley hopes to promote.

Not only does Mrs. Ley get back of civic enterprises, she has her own interesting hobbies. A visitor going to Mrs. Ley's place mornings will not likely find her in her home watching the ocean water dash against the rocks, but will locate her in her garden tending to a wealth of flowers. Mrs. Ley has made a study of her flowers too and just recently propagated a new variety of canna, a gorgeous orange and yellow variegated bloom. The new flower was developed after two years of work.

Another of the studies conducted by the "school" is that of birds, and for this Mrs. Ley gave a talk and showed her collection of stuffed feathered folk.

Mrs. Ley's activities in the west bring to mind her public service for years in Wayne. Mrs. Ley promoted many entertainments at the opera house to raise funds for the building, for the Woman's club rooms and for a swimming pool for young folks. She also helped the old soldiers build their fund. She and her husband, the late Henry Ley, Sr., were among those furnishing rooms in the hospital. Mrs. Ley was chairman of the finance committee for the Carnegie library, and helped raise funds for books.

Through the years the importance of service to others has inspired Mrs. Ley.

Miss Mary Mielenz who teaches in the university at Lincoln, spent the week-end with Miss Marie Hove. Miss Mielenz plans to spend her vacation in California.

Injuries Minor In Car Accident

G. A. Wade Auto Is Struck When Driver of Truck Goes to Sleep.

Members of the G. A. Wade family sustained minor injuries and their car was considerably damaged Thursday morning about 10 when a truck crashed head-on into the Wayne car in a short distance west of Jackson. The truck belonged to Carl and P. N. Weltenstein of near Ponca, and was driven by their hired man who said he fell asleep momentarily.

Mrs. Wade had a front tooth knocked out and her lip cut. Mr. Wade, Miss Margaret and Ned Wade were bruised and shaken up. The left side of the Wade car was damaged, the front wheel and both doors broken and a bad groove made in the top. The trucker was unhurt but the machine had a bent front wheel and axle.

The Wades were enroute to Sioux City for the day when the truck swerved across the road and struck them.

The Hobert Aukers, enroute to Sioux City, took Mrs. Wade, Margaret and Ned to the city and Mr. Wade remained with the car until a patrolman arrived to examine the accident.

C. J. Murray of Sioux City, nephew of the Wades, brought the Wayne folks home that evening, and a local wrecker went for the car.

Youth Is Injured In Fall from Pole

John Parke, younger son of Prof. and Mrs. K. N. Parke, suffered a broken right hip and wrist Thursday afternoon about 5:30 when he fell almost 31 feet while climbing a telephone pole near his home. The top was broken off the hip, and one bone in the arm was fractured about two inches above the wrist. The arm is in a cast. John was cared for in a local hospital. The lad was playing alone when the accident occurred. Mrs. Parke, who was in the house, heard him.

Patrolman to Come.

One of the state patrolmen will be at the court house Friday to pass on applications for drivers' permits.

Planview plans its summer celebration August 13.

Teachers Convene Before New Term

Pre-opening day for Wayne county rural school teachers will be held Saturday, August 30, at 8 o'clock in the court house, according to an announcement by Sup't. F. B. Decker.

Any wishing to get their boxes before pre-opening day may do so at Mr. Decker's office.

Teachers whose schools start before September 1 are asked to see Mr. Decker for supplies and instructions before their terms open.

Contrast Is Noted In School Report

Wayne county superintendent's report for 1939, compiled in the old court house at LaPorte, shows 11 districts at that time and 12 teachers. The school census figure for that year stood at 169, there being 95 boys and 74 girls of school age in Wayne county. Of the 169 children listed, 94 attended school, 53 boys and 71 girls. The number of districts having six months of school or more was five and average number of pupils in each district was 8.

Total value of all rural school property this year was $6,044.50; today the figure is set at $131,457. Several school houses were valued at $1,000. Apparatus in most was listed as worth $10; some didn't even mention equipment although all had blackboard space. Total expenditures then were $3,296.97 as compared with $54,456.58 expended in rural schools this year. The number of mills levied for general school purposes was .009 1/2. Today it is 2.6. On April 18, 1939, Wayne county had $1,090.30 in the district school fund and $245.02 had been apportioned by the county superintendent.

Teachers in those days received "compensation" instead of salary. Most of them received $30 a month compensation. ## See Our Display of Century Old Reaper

It was in 1831—over 100 years ago—that McCormick-Deering reapers were first made. We have secured one of these "old-timers" for the anniversary celebration and we invite you to examine this interesting piece of farm machinery.

McCormick-Deering equipment has not only stood the test of every demand placed on good machinery, but it has been modernized to serve new farming methods in the best possible manner.
