Active Fiber of Old-time and Modern Editors—Present Publishers Have Less Animus and More Sense—Anniversary and Other Observances During Week

In a recent edition of the Publishers' Auxiliary appears a discussion of the old and modern qualities of rural editors. The two disputants hail from the south—the one, Clayton Rand, of Mississippi. McDaniel says editors have lost their punch and have become soft. He recalls the time when they huddled together in caves—some to create reader interest. On the other hand, Rand contends that reader taste has changed, that flinging out editorial barbs to fasten into rival or offending individuals no longer finds popular interest. McDaniel thinks editors lack the courage to express the few convictions they happen to have. Rand maintains that people regard wrongs more indifferently than they did in the old days and that the militant editor who attacks an erring person, provokes more sympathy for the victim than condemnation of things charged. McDaniel thinks old-time editors were better off financially and in popular respect by reason of their fighting conduct than they are today shrouded in a sort of listless aloofness.

From our knowledge of the old and the new, we would say that rural newspaper circulations are several times bigger than they were in the fire-eating times of which McDaniel writes. Multiply early-day foundation costs by ten and you still would not have the size of the modern investment. Operating expenses are more in one month than they used to be in a whole year. The modern country publisher has more to lose, more to protect. He serves more people, and he finds comparatively few who would subscribe in order to see some neighbor—even up to ridicule and scorn.

We have found over the years that what readers of country weeklies and city dailies generally want most is news, truthfully and impartially presented. Secondly, they appreciate fearless editorial expression with no unwarranted attempt to discredit some person or institution.

We remember when respectable citizens were exoriated by prejudiced editors. We remember when friendly groups became permanently estranged over too fearless and often defamatory editorial utterances when the children of one group learned to hate those of another group because of the lines of spiteful disagreement drawn through careless employment of editorial invectives. Newspaper rivalry that revealed in billingsgate and mud, was taken seriously by the innocent families and friends of the battling editors and frequently proved a source of deep humiliation to them. We remember when fiery newspaper policies split a town into political, business and social factions, and when divided newspaper earnings reduced the editor to struggling and helpless impotence. Opposing factions gave him no support, and the favored faction dealt out rewards grudgingly after the fashion of bestowing aims.

Unless the public welfare requires uncovering sources of evil, or calls for correcting manifest wrongs, editorial conflict is usually interpreted as an expression of hateful envy or the product of an ill-balanced mind.

Conditions have changed in newspaper fields—usually for the better, we believe. More service, more readers, larger investments, larger returns and greater community responsibility tower far above consideration of the applauding ring-siders who have an innate desire to see the other fellow dragged through ill-conceived dirt. Personal piques concern a very small minority these days. The restricted circle eager to see a neighbor hurt is overshadowed by the masses whose vision is lifted high in appreciation of real values.

The world may have grown worse in late years, but we believe the rural press has become better—entertaining higher; objectives, freer; from personal animosities and narrow self-seeking, giving larger service without thought of financial rewards and thus, perhaps paradoxically, winning more substantial support.

Numerous Celebrations. There did not appear to be enough days in last week to accommodate all town celebrations without conflict. Free days, rodeos, anniversary celebrations and old settlers' picnics drew attention, and sometimes two points necessarily celebrated on the same day. All celebrations were carefully planned with satisfactory tries of entertainment, and none suffered lack of attendance.

College Unrest Comes to Head

Member of Board Justifies Writing Letters That Lead to Climax.

Complimenting the majority of Wayne college students as "very quiet and better behaved than in most schools," Dr. Walter Bentback, member of the state board of education, Monday emphasized that the board had "unanimously approved" disciplinary action taken by the administration of the college in "inviting" an undisclosed number of students to seek their higher education elsewhere. This statement was given by Dr. Bentback to the daily press and was also presented by him over radio station WJAG, Norfolk.

Strained relationships which have resulted in a disturbed situation on the Wayne campus were brought into the open in an article written by Lawrence W. Youngman for the Omaha World-Herald Sunday edition. Mr. Youngman interviewed a number and presented both sides of the controversy.

As summarized by Mr. Youngman, student dissatisfaction is based mainly on charges of a "spy" system and on too strict rules. Letters inviting some students to seek their education elsewhere brought the matter to a climax.

Dr. J. T. Anderson emphatically denied the "spy" charge. He stressed the belief that parents appreciate strict supervision, and he expressed confidence in the proposed student organization as a solution for other difficulties.

Dr. Bentback emphasized the fact that teachers colleges are primarily for teacher-training. He justified the disciplinary letters by stating that "Nebraska schools do not desire as teachers individuals who have been either poor students or disciplinary problems."

The article in the World-Herald followed. (By Lawrence W. Youngman) Wayne, Neb., August 16.—This usually placid community is disturbed by reports that the administration of Wayne State Teachers college has "invited" a number of students to seek their further education elsewhere.

Among the students who received the "invitations" were several who were prominent last spring in campus agitation for formation of a student council and easing of dormitory rules.

The "invitation" was given in letters sent by the school's personnel committee after the spring term ended and the students had gone home.

"Doesn't Know How Many." (Rumors have placed the number of letters from 60 to 90 and up. These do not include the 38 students dropped because their grades were below passing.)

Dr. J. T. Anderson, school president, said he did not know how many students received the letters. Most were written by Dean of Men Clarence McGinn, chairman of the personnel committee, now away on vacation. The president said he did not retain a list.

The dean of women, Dr. Martha Smith Smith, informed the president that she had sent out seven such letters to girls. But apparently a far larger number went to boys, Dr. Anderson said.

41 Are Listed. A representative of The World-Herald showed the president a list of 41 students whom reportedly had received the letters. Of these, Dr. Anderson mentioned five as being included among the 38 who had been dropped because of poor grades. The remaining 36 may have gotten such letters, he conceded, though he questioned one or two of the names. He conceded also letters may have been sent to others whose names were not on The World-Herald list.

Dr. Anderson said he considered the use of such letters more or less routine at a number of Nebraska schools and said he doubted that the number written at Wayne was higher than at other schools. In fact, he added, he thought the Wayne administration had been "awfully liberal."

ONE YEAR LATE IN GOING TO EMERSON FOR FLOWER SHOW

THE FOLLOWING Wayne flower admirers and fanciers went to Emerson Friday afternoon to revel in the beauties of a flower show held a year ago: Mrs. J. W. Jones, Mrs. H. H. Hahn, Mrs. Jas. G. Miller, Mrs. Henry Ley, Mrs. D. S. Wightman and Mrs. E. W. Huse. They had a printed bill which advertised a flower show at Emerson August 15, and accordingly, they decided to attend. All the way over they talked about flowers, and wondered if Emerson would marshal in orderly array its usual floral excellence. Arriving at their destination, they sought the display. But they discovered to their disappointment that the show had been held and adjourned on August 15, 1940. On the way back they mentioned flowers lightly, if at all. Rather, they discussed with charity the human liability to err, the tendency in looking to overlook, the facility with which one often slips from a supposé premise to a false conclusion. They comforted themselves by exchanging examples of forgetting to keep appointments—happily fastening most of such mistakes on the mental delinquency of the male variety. On arriving home, they tried to forget by retreating to their own flower gardens and inhaling the fragrance of their own blossoms. Lesson: Depend more on newspapers, less on bills.

Minor Injuries Result of Crash

Three Air Pilot Students on Motorcycle Are Hurt in Sunday Mishap.

Sterling Stewart, Ponca, Harley Hartung, Newport, and Raymond Wiedenfeld, Hartington, students in Wayne air pilot training school, sustained minor injuries Sunday afternoon about 1 o'clock when the motorcycle on which the three were riding collided with F. A. Mildner's car at the southeast corner of the city school block. The youths were thrown to the pavement.

Stewart, owner and driver of the cycle, suffered a broken left thumb and bruises. Hartung and Wiedenfeld had cuts and bruises. All were taken to a local hospital. Stewart and Wiedenfeld were dismissed Monday and Hartung left the middle of the week.

The young men were riding west on the cycle, planning to go to the fair grounds. Mr. Mildner, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Herman Mildner, came from the south. The Mildners were not hurt. The front of the cycle was considerably broken, and the car was only dented.

The young men will confine their flying course and complete this as soon as possible.

COPIES OF HERALD FREE TO DRAFTEES IN ARMY SERVICE

WE HAVE decided to send copies of the Herald free to boys inducted into the army service from Wayne county or neighboring areas, and who are interested in news from here, and if they or their relatives will inform us of their wishes and give us their names and locations, we will see that they are added to our list. Any who have paid for subscriptions to trainees up to this time may have credits transferred to other persons designated. Anyone called into the military establishment is buoyed by news from home, and it is not too much for a newspaper to serve him without cost. His defense participation reflects highest patriotic service without adequate pay, and we feel we should provide home news channels without monetary reward. Therefore, if boys in the army desire receipt of copies of this newspaper regularly, all they or their relatives need to do is to let us know. We will do the rest in the hope of brightening the army ordeal.

Wilbur Is First Among Precincts

Who wrote The World-Herald about the situation at Wayne. "I think probably certain ones will be denied admission because of this present publicity," said Dr. Anderson, a name named Bruce. "We're going to consider that more of a crime than anything that happened last spring."

Another whom he expects to deny readmission is Henry S. Laurinot, jr., Mapleton, Ia., who served as chairman of the student committee last spring when a group of students agitated for organization of a student council and relaxation of the rules which governed dormitories. At that time, Laurinot also signed his name to an article which appeared in a downtown publication.

Twelve on Committee. Bruce Laurinot and 10 other students made up the protest committee. The students say that at that time the president agreed to all of their demands and promised there would be no punitive action against them for serving on the committee.

Apparently nine of the 12 who served on the committee were advised not to return to school. However, Dr. Anderson said that all were treated as individual cases and that the school's action had no connection with the protest affair. "I can state that as a definite fact," he emphasized.

The personnel committee which passed on the student cases is composed of five faculty members. "It is the responsibility of this committee," the president said, "to study cases of students whose conduct indicates they are not properly adjusted to college life and to endeavor, if it is possible, to assist these students to make the most of their time and effort."

Attracted By Low Cost. "Sometimes they find students who do not care to prepare themselves for teaching but are persuaded by parents to enroll here because the cost is low. Some who come here merely because the cost is low feel they are too good for the school. In some cases, consultation with the parents has induced them to permit the students to enter other colleges where they can get training for the profession of their choice."

"Sometimes members of the committee are able to show a student the folly of wasting time, and the value of cooperation. Sometimes they advise that students be dropped from college because of their inability to adjust themselves to the college program."

Aside from these reasons, three of the students were advised not to re-register on moral grounds, said Dr. Anderson, and one of the three is accused of forging a signature to a letter.

The president pointed out that a student at Wayne gets three chances. The first semester their grades fall, they are warned and asked to drop part of the load. The second semester they are subject to temporary suspension, but if they can show reason or give evidence that the situation can be corrected they are permitted to return for a third semester.

Door Left Open. The letters, received by some girls seemed to leave the door open for their re-registration. For instance, some letters advised the girls they would be happier elsewhere, but ended with this sentence: "If, however, it seems imperative that you return, will you kindly see me before registering."

But the letters to at least some of the boys contained no "if" phrase. The message received by Bruce from Dean McGinn read: "The personnel committee has asked me to pass on to you the decision in your case. The committee felt that it would not be wise for you to re-register here in Wayne. The committee felt that you would be happier elsewhere, and therefore advise that you seek your further education at some other institution."

Bruce's grades were well above passing and, since he said he had never been called in for discipline or had any trouble at school, he twice wrote Dean McGinn asking the reason for the letter and requesting to know if there was any specific charge against him. The dean replied that if he were in the student's place he would not care to attend any school where he did not have confidence in the president. He said he had talked with the president and the latter sustained the recommendation of the personnel committee.

"It is not my authority to tell you that you cannot return here to school," wrote the dean. "The Nebraska school law gives Dr. Anderson that power, and for a final answer you would have to go to him."

That statement is somewhat in error, according to Dr. Anderson, who pointed out that final authority lies with the state board of education.

Received Help. Commenting on the Bruce case, Dr. Anderson said: "When Bob Bruce came to us three years ago from Grand Island he was unable to finance his way through school. He was given work by the college during his entire time of attendance, and also some work during the summer vacation. The president of the college assisted Bob in caring for his fees until he could pay the money back from his work. We have tried to help him as best we can."

To say he was advised to go elsewhere because of his part in the protests of last spring is erroneous. Transcripts of credits, enabling students to transfer to other schools, stated that the students had been advised not to re-register. This resulted in a hot discussion between Dr. Anderson and one student, George Lebens of Lindsay, Neb. When Lebens, who has a B plus average, went to Dr. Anderson's office last month to complain about his letter, he said he pointed out that each time he had registered for a semester's work he had indicated he was taking a three-year prelaw course, and therefore would not return after last semester, his sixth here. There were warm words. Lebens claimed the president called him "skunk," tossed his hat out of the office door and shoved him toward the door. The president says only that he ejected Lebens.

Wayne students frequently make two charges against the administration, that a "spy" system is maintained under which certain students are expected to inform on the actions of other students, and the school is too exacting in the rules set up for student behavior, particularly dormitory regulations.

The first is denied by the president with all the emphasis in his power; the second complaint he admits is probably justified. "Call it spy system, stool pigeon system, or what you will, there has never been such at Wayne," he said. "No person has ever been asked to stoop to such a thing."

"And, frankly, I don't know what to do to halt such an ugly rumor. Some time back I offered one hundred dollars to anyone who could prove such a charge."

Two students who attended last year and one who dropped out of a year ago told The World-Herald they considered they had been asked to report on the actions of other students. All incidents occurred in 1939 or earlier.

Dr. Anderson said he was confident the students either misunderstood, or were in error.

'Follow Parents' Wish. As far as discipline is concerned, Dr. Anderson said he had made it strict because he was convinced parents of students who stay in the dormitories desire strict supervision. "Probably restrictions were above those of other colleges," he said. "It was thought that this was in harmony with the parents' wish. "The hour, at which girls were required to be in their dormitories (8:45 p. m.) was set by a former student council. During the intervening years other schools relaxed theirs, and we hadn't. When we found this out, we changed ours. The new hours, which went into effect this summer set the closing hour at 9:30 o'clock week nights, midnight on Fridays and Saturdays, and 11:30 on Sunday."

The president said, he felt the student council to be organized this fall will do much to iron out most difficulties between the faculty and the student body. "I don't know how or why the former student council was permitted to fall and evaporate year before last," he said. "I presume it was because we were all too busy with other things."

State Fair Shows Rank Among Best

"Belles of Liberty," one of the outstanding shows of the year, is billed to show each evening, Monday through Friday before the state fair grandstand, September 1 to 5. This performance featuring musical numbers and entertaining acts is on a par with the state fair show of 1940 which was such an outstanding hit.

Many northeast Nebraskans who saw "Belles of Liberty" at Sioux City this summer will vouch that this show is worth driving miles to see. Other features are the automobile races Sunday, and afternoon grandstand attractions during the week in addition to horse racing.

Mildred Mitchell Is Only Woman on Railroad Division

(By W. A. Lerner)
The song, "I've Been Working on the Railroad," brings to the average person's mind a picture of the male personnel of train service. Here in Wayne the C. St. P. M. & O. line has its only woman employee on the western division. She is Miss Mildred Mitchell, better known to trainmen as "Millie," who is officially known as a freight office helper.

Miss Mitchell was born in Spring Green, Wis., September 13, 1896, and began her railroading career November 13, 1917. She admits that 13 is a lucky number.

During World war I, a shortage of men prompted Miss Mitchell to apply for railroad employment, her first job being coal-clerk and later ticket seller at Spooner, Wis. She had the honor of being the first woman ticket agent on the entire division. During her 24 years of service since her initial start at Spooner, she has worked in Herob, Lake, Minn., Wausa, Bloomfield, Hartington, Pender and here in Wayne. She has been in the local office eight years, following Robert Henkel, who was transferred to Omaha.

"Millie" is of English ancestry and one of nine children, all of whom are living. Railroading does not run in the family, but one other member, a brother, is employed by the Union Pacific in Portland, Ore.

"There is no definite future for women in railroading, no matter how efficient they may be," commented Millie. When asked why, she continued, "Efficiency experts comment on the efficiency of women, but admit their impracticability is due to their inability in handling certain jobs."

While the interviewing was taking note of the orderly office, No. 92 was coming into the station. Pulling on a pair of well-worn leather gloves, Millie said in conclusion, "There's no piece of freight too large for me to handle, and I love my work." A few minutes spent in observing her in action convinced one that she was not kidding.

THE KNOT-HOLE

Vol. 8 Wayne, Neb., Thur., Aug. 21, 1941 No. 28

"Have women more courage than men?" "Certainly! Have you ever seen a man try on three or four suits with only thirty cents in his pocket?"

Buy an air conditioned, all-steel, stoker, save money on your coal bill and put the difference in your pocket. Many a man, and woman, is doing that very thing right now. Are you going to be the next one to take advantage of this opportunity?

We are very well pleased with the response to our appeal to fill coal bins early. More people have done so this year than ever before. You have not taken advantage of today's prices, see us at once.

College in Limelight
SENSATIONAL publicity given the Wayne State Teachers college by the World-Herald is the culmination of disagreeing points of view entertained by the administration and certain members of the student body.

Trying to dodge or suppress publicity in connection with tax-supported institutions is not the way to clear up damaging disagreements, as we believe. Touching the subject of publicity, Dr. J. T. Anderson, president of the school, explains that his observation was misunderstood, that he was not so much averse to giving out facts as to an attitude which he interpreted as an attempt on the part of certain students to create a breach between the administration and the taxpayers.

The Wayne college plant on the gently sloping hillside is probably the best in the state, and there is no reason why misunderstandings should be permitted to prevent healthy development or impede a full flow of benefits. Closer relationship is needed between the president and the faculty and the students and the community. Brushing shoulders and exchanging impressions are certain to supplant distrust and aloofness with sympathetic understanding and cordial cooperation.

Severest critics of past policies would scorn student vandalism or defiance of college rules. They would call in authorities to do their duty. They would fasten guilt definitely and act summarily. But they would be careful to avoid casting doubt on the innocent. We believe more dangers lurk in suspicion than in evils feared.

The rank and file in Wayne, having no personal grievances, will be found uniformly behind their biggest asset, ready to serve it and anxious to contribute to its growth and expanding usefulness. Let all concerned get together, give vent to their feelings, thrash over disputed policies, cure irritations and find ground for sensible amity.

FRUITION.

Henry Ford, 78-year-old industrialist, is bringing to fruition his prediction that automobiles could be made largely from farm products. He has produced a model of the plastic car creation which it is said will stand more abuse than steel. Twelve years ago Ford employed 29 scientists to find ways to convert cotton, wheat, soybeans and corn into automobiles, and the finished sample is now acclaimed the success of the effort. Literally tens of thousands of articles and manufactured automobile parts now made from metals will be made plastically from materials grown on the farm, says Ford. It is estimated that a million automobiles would absorb 170 thousand tons of agricultural products. Despite his advanced years, Henry Ford is ever on the alert for improvement. His latest discovery will open new markets for things grown on the farm. At the same time, his latest contribution will decrease demand for metals needed in defense building.

CONGRESS

AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN
Washington, D. C. August 14, 1941.

Many letters have been received here asking questions about Albert Engel—the one-man army camp investigating committee. Engel is a member of congress from the state of Michigan. He is a member of the house committee on appropriations and also a member of the sub-committee which handles appropriations for the war department. He saw service in France with the A. E. F. during the last war and he has made steno-graphy a hobby. Many members who know him intimately believe he is probably more completely informed regarding the details of expenditures in the war department than any other member in the house today. He is a republican, but often consulted by members of both parties. He has confidence of members on both sides of the aisle and they know that no matter what party his statistical information affects, he lets the chips fall where they may.

When the committee began receiving requests for huge appropriations for national defense, Engel determined that the waste and inefficiency of the first World War should not be repeated. When the war department began building new camps, Engel determined to make a personal investigation. He served notice on his colleagues that he feared the cost-plus program of construction would result in great waste of money and he proceeded to go out and get the facts.

He first requested committee approval of his action and that was promptly accorded. He secured official permission from the adjutant general to inspect the camps and then he formulated his plans of procedure and started out. The result has been that he has, without contradiction, developed the fact that out of an expenditure of $800,000,000 in the building of army camps, about $250,000,000 has been wasted.

Certain changes in plans were made and correction of some of the abuses has been made by legislation. He has made it possible to cut the engineering costs from 11 per cent to 7 per cent. He has unearthed a wealth of information which has aided the elimination of waste and inefficiency and he is now reporting to congress those who have profited by commissions on insurance and bonds in connection with the building of these camps. He has shown up the waste in camp construction up to this time amounts to nearly the total cost of the entire camp construction program of the first world war. To stop further waste and inefficiency he is continuing his work and is taking the floor of the house frequently to point out constructively how costs can be held down and how efficiency can be promoted.

Engel has not yet submitted his bill to congress, but he has told friends that the entire cost of his investigation is $248. What he has saved the government in exposing useless waste and inefficiency will undoubtedly amount to many millions of dollars. Frequently, leading democrats have come to Engel and praised him for the work he has accomplished.

Following Engel's reports to congress, the naval affairs and military affairs committees have started investigations. These will be more expensive but with the foundation laid by Engel, it is believed that additional savings can be accomplished for the benefit of taxpayers.

It must have been quite a surprise to the commanding officers of the various camps when they were suddenly confronted by this lone congressman and asked to produce the information he required. Engel's procedure was unique. He drove his automobile from Washington in the very early morning and arrived at camps at about 6:30 a. m. After driving around the camp, by himself, until about 9 o'clock, he made his appearance at the office of the commanding officer. By that time he had taken many pictures of the buildings and had counted the trucks and machines going into the camp. His first instruction to the commanding officer was to direct the public relations officer to give no publicity to his visit. He then called in the construction engineer, the contractor or his representative and the ordnance officer for a five-hours session during which he asked questions. Frequently he had the engineers and contractors alone. Many of his questions related to the recommendations the engineers and contractors had made to the army and he also fully developed the facts about recommendations that the army had rejected.

In 18 days he had visited 13 camps and not one word of publicity came out until he had finished his investigation and reported the results on the floor of the house of representatives. To date, his figures have not been disputed. He has shown that there has been waste and that there has been inefficiency and that there have been rackets. Taxpayers will be glad to learn that congress is listening to these reports and has demanded that the money being expended for national defense be watched more carefully and that we get a dollar's worth of defense for a dollar spent.

Heavy underwear, a heavy dress, two sweaters, shoes and overshoes and a fur coat and a life belt! Washington, D. C. August 14, 1941.

Many letters have been received here asking questions about Albert Engel—the one-man army camp investigating committee. Engel is a member of congress from the state of Michigan. He is a member of the house committee on appropriations and also a member of the sub-committee which handles appropriations for the war department. He saw service in France with the A. E. F. during the last war and he has made steno-graphy a hobby. Many members who know him intimately believe he is probably more completely informed regarding the details of expenditures in the war department than any other member in the house today. He is a republican, but often consulted by members of both parties. He has confidence of members on both sides of the aisle and they know that no matter what party his statistical information affects, he lets the chips fall where they may.

When the committee began receiving requests for huge appropriations for national defense, Engel determined that the waste and inefficiency of the first World War should not be repeated. When the war department began building new camps, Engel determined to make a personal investigation. He served notice on his colleagues that he feared the cost-plus program of construction would result in great waste of money and he proceeded to go out and get the facts.

He first requested committee approval of his action and that was promptly accorded. He secured official permission from the adjutant general to inspect the camps and then he formulated his plans of procedure and started out. The result has been that he has, without contradiction, developed the fact that out of an expenditure of $800,000,000 in the building of army camps, about $250,000,000 has been wasted.

Certain changes in plans were made and correction of some of the abuses has been made by legislation. He has made it possible to cut the engineering costs from 11 per cent to 7 per cent. He has unearthed a wealth of information which has aided the elimination of waste and inefficiency and he is now reporting to congress those who have profited by commissions on insurance and bonds in connection with the building of these camps. He has shown up the waste in camp construction up to this time amounts to nearly the total cost of the entire camp construction program of the first world war. To stop further waste and inefficiency he is continuing his work and is taking the floor of the house frequently to point out constructively how costs can be held down and how efficiency can be promoted.

Engel has not yet submitted his bill to congress, but he has told friends that the entire cost of his investigation is $248. What he has saved the government in exposing useless waste and inefficiency will undoubtedly amount to many millions of dollars. Frequently, leading democrats have come to Engel and praised him for the work he has accomplished.

Following Engel's reports to congress, the naval affairs and military affairs committees have started investigations. These will be more expensive but with the foundation laid by Engel, it is believed that additional savings can be accomplished for the benefit of taxpayers.

It must have been quite a surprise to the commanding officers of the various camps when they were suddenly confronted by this lone congressman and asked to produce the information he required. Engel's procedure was unique. He drove his automobile from Washington in the very early morning and arrived at camps at about 6:30 a. m. After driving around the camp, by himself, until about 9 o'clock, he made his appearance at the office of the commanding officer. By that time he had taken many pictures of the buildings and had counted the trucks and machines going into the camp. His first instruction to the commanding officer was to direct the public relations officer to give no publicity to his visit. He then called in the construction engineer, the contractor or his representative and the ordnance officer for a five-hours session during which he asked questions. Frequently he had the engineers and contractors alone. Many of his questions related to the recommendations the engineers and contractors had made to the army and he also fully developed the facts about recommendations that the army had rejected.

In 18 days he had visited 13 camps and not one word of publicity came out until he had finished his investigation and reported the results on the floor of the house of representatives. To date, his figures have not been disputed. He has shown that there has been waste and that there has been inefficiency and that there have been rackets. Taxpayers will be glad to learn that congress is listening to these reports and has demanded that the money being expended for national defense be watched more carefully and that we get a dollar's worth of defense for a dollar spent.

Filipino leaders who have fought all moves to extend the While soldiers in foreign lands are fighting, great diplomats are developing political strategy behind closed doors. Statements made by men in high offices are made only after long conferences in secret diplomatic chambers. What the soldiers do usually follows the decision of these diplomats.

In answer to questions about the interest we pay on our national debt, it can be said that the annual interest payment now is around one billion one hundred and twenty-five million dollars based on a debt of fifty billion dollars. Next July, that indebtedness will be around 62 billion dollars and the annual interest payments must be correspondingly higher.

The vacation of Lord Halifax has not been unexpected in Washington. Some of his critics say that he has not been discreetly tactful with Americans who feel that too many Britishers have talked out of turn and have left the impression of the assumption of superiority and in some cases have tried to tell American officials how to run their business. From now on more diplomacy will be used by the thousands of Britishers here working in close co-ordination with our government.

About 300 new restaurants have opened in town. Thousands of girls have joined the dancers and entertainers who are trying to make the visit of thousands of soldiers to Washington pleasant.

The federal government is undertaking to discourage Washington's effort to procure conventions this year. There is no room left for conventions. Conventions have been banning about five million dollars a year to this town and the board of trade here is always on the job to get more business. That organization is fighting the decentralization program which has started.

Army maneuvers which started last May, will continue through to November 30 next. A number of members of the house have been asked to attend some of these maneuvers and stay in the camps with the soldiers for a week or 10 days.

Three Hundred Thousand Miles Of Safe Driving Is Record Made

(By W. A. Lerner)

A northeast Nebraska motorist whose name should be blazoned in letters of gold across the sky and underneath whose name should be written his three safety hits for drivers, is James Henry Wright, 86, who has driven 300,000 miles without serious accident and whose present car—a 1929 Essex—shows 52,000 miles on the speedometer.

Mr. Wright says, "I am extra careful when driving, for I once read that over 35,000 people are killed every year in our country by cars. My rules for driving are: Don't drive over 40 miles per hour; keep eyes on the road at all times; obey the traffic laws and signals."

Mr. Wright bought his first car, a Ford, in 1912. "Twenty miles an hour was my top speed then," he said. "My wife wouldn't let me go any faster, or else she'd get out and walk."

Mr. Wright has no church membership and says he is going to church because church members today smoke and drink.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Wright, Miss Lucile and Gerald Wright and Miss Marian Dodderer, the last of Columbus, arrived home Sunday from a three-week trip through the west. Mr. and Mrs. Wright and Gerald drove out through Salt Lake City and the young women, who had attended U. C. L. A., returned with them through San Francisco, Seattle, Portland and Yellowstone park.

Miss Hazel Reeve, who had been visiting her brother and family in North Dakota, stopped in Wayne Tuesday on her way to Brock.

(By W. A. Lerner)

A man who once was Wayne's busiest housecleaner and whose coming was always hailed with delight is Leonard Leindecker, of 5th and Nebraska street. Born in Germany in 1863, Mr. Leindecker worked in a shoe factory there for 14 years.

Leindecker, 78, grew to maturity and was married in Germany. He came to America in 1893 upon the advice of a friend, Anton Biegler, whom he knew in Germany.

For 10 years he was employed in Piepenstock's harness shop in Wayne and for 28 years was employed as a "house-cleaner." When he began, wages were $1.75 per day and increased until he was receiving $4 per day when he quit work in 1931.

Mr. Leindecker's wife, Louisa, died in 1931. He has no children, and he lives alone. His home is very neat and clean. Mr. Leindecker does not smoke, but uses snuff at times.

He was considered one of Wayne county's best dancers in early days—he learned to dance at the age of 9. He has lived on Nebraska street 46 years. He raises flowers as a pastime but has no garden.

Mr. Leindecker is a man with a hobby that is very unusual—he is adept with a needle and thread and makes silk flowers, mounted on screen wire. He also makes quilts, having made 68 in the past 10 years.

Every quilt is hand-stitched and he has a rare ability of blending colored pieces. One quilt that he made recently contains 4,000 pieces. He gives the greater number of quilts away to prospective brides and bridegrooms, he says, though occasionally he sells one.

A hobby as valuable, because it keeps one's mind off one's worries. He can see no particular merit in what he is doing and wonders why anyone should think it worthy of publicity.

Reunion Is Held. The Oehrling reunion was held at the Wayne park Sunday with about 67 attending, some being unable to attend because of the rain.

Those present were: Mrs. Emma Weiersheuser, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hinrichs, Herbert Hinrichs and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kopping and son, Mr. and Mrs. George Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Meyer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dranselka and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hollman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Roeder and family, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Weiersheuser and daughter, Mrs. Alvina Echtenkamp, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Sampson and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sohren and baby, Ruth Ruser, all of near Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gieselman and Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Rabe and daughter of Arlington, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolter and family of Dixon, Frank Dranselka of Milata, Minn., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ahlman of Norfolk, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reichwald of Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Smith and baby of Laurel.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Brugger and Marcella will go to Sioux City Sunday for the wedding of Mrs. Brugger's brother, Adolph Jotzko, to Miss Irene Eudraka. The ceremony will take place in the Concordia Lutheran church at 5 o'clock.

Proves Samaritan To Trapped Skunk

Dream of Losing Teeth Is Reality to Kansas Man in Cycle Crash.

A southern senator proved Good Samaritan to a skunk the other day. He saw a skunk with its head caught in a can. Willing to lend a hand to an underdog—even when it's a skunk—the senator put a bag over the skunk and pulled it in vain. Finally he had to get a pair of tin shears and cut the can. This skunk was grateful for its scampered away without even a scent.

A truck stopped in Georgia, a middle-aged farmer jumped out and was grinning from ear to ear. "Boys," he said, "I have never tried it but I am going to try it now." And he stood on his head in the middle of the road. Cause of his exuberance? His tobacco sold for 33c a pound.

Last fall he retired at 74, began building his boat and invited friends to the christening. But there won't be any party. Nebraska State Fair Ready to Go

The 1941 edition of the Nebraska state fair promises an unusual combination of exposition and entertainment.

Unusual interest in the livestock and grain exhibits promises one of the outstanding years in fair history and most certainly the best in a decade. Information from the office of Fair Secretary Miller is that interest is high, as shown by the increased space reservations.

Interest in 4-H Clubs Reaches Record High

L. M. Frisbie, state 4-H club director, is looking forward to the best year in 4-H history at the Nebraska state fair this year. Mr. Frisbie has stated that the interest is higher this year and the largest number of projects are being carried by boys and girls since organization.

Unusual interest is being shown in the 4-H baby beef sale which will be conducted on Friday, September 5, as the closing feature of the show.

The Lincoln Junior Chamber of Commerce, active in the promotion of this sale, has made some unusual arrangements to insure the best possible prices to the exhibitors and give supporters a full return for their loyalty.

Special tickets have been printed which will admit the purchaser to the fair gate Friday morning up to 10 o'clock. The outstanding feature of this ticket is that it is good for the purchase of 4-H state fair baby beef in addition to admission in the amount of the 50c face value. It is redeemable in this manner whether used or unused for admission.

Price Schedule on Corn Is Revised

The department of agriculture announced today that, effective August 1, government corn stored in terminal elevators and subterminal elevators will be offered for sale into consumption channels at market prices between 73 and 75 cents for No. 2 yellow corn, basis Chicago. Differentials applicable to points other than Chicago now in effect will remain approximately the same. For the present, release prices on corn in steel bins and country elevators will continue to be the legal market price, or 65 cents per bushel, whichever is higher.

On June 7, 1941, the secretary of agriculture announced that corn would be sold in Chicago at prices between 69 or 75 cents. All sales in recent weeks have been at the 75-cent level. The change in the release prices is being made in view of the recent increase in parity prices and in view of the fact that loan rates on the 1941 crop of corn at 85 per cent of parity will be higher than loans on the 1940 crop. This change represents the beginning of a gradual adjustment of release prices to the prospective 1941 loan levels.

All other provisions of the corn release program, which is designed to assure livestock, dairy, and poultry producers with ample food supplies at fair prices, remain unchanged. With the higher release prices, feeding ratios for most livestock, dairy and poultry products will still be unusually favorable and higher than they were when the release prices were established on June 7, 1941.

Highlights in Trip By Swans Recently

Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Dearborn, Toronto, Detroit and Chicago were the highlights of the two-week trip taken by Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Swan recently. War preparations in Canada and Greenfield village at Dearborn, Mich., built by Henry Ford in memory of his late friend, Thomas Edison, proved to be the most informative and most interesting.

The matter-of-fact way everyone in Canada is doing what he or she can to help war preparations was impressive. While there, the Swans saw a detachment of Scottish soldiers with their kilts and Scottish plaids leaving for service. Many English and Norwegian boys are in Toronto to receive training in flying. In fact, a part of the city is called "Little Norway." There boys who have escaped from Norway are being trained in preparation for joining the English fighting forces. Mr. Swan conversed with one English boy who was in Toronto receiving further training, and was surprised when he learned that in England air raids are so common that they are given little thought.

While Swans were in Toronto a regiment of Canadian boys left to go into service with the British. There were no loud farewells. Everything was quiet and in keeping with the way the Canadian and British people are accepting the war.

Gasoline is now being rationed in Canada. Mr. Swan commented on this by saying: "I was very careful to fill up my tank before crossing the border, for one has to pay 33 cents a gallon, and it cannot be had before 7 a. m. or after 7 p. m."

Greenfield village at Dearborn is a place where the Swans would have liked to spend a month. The village contains 73 buildings, each the original or an exact replica of some building which is famous in the history so dear to the American public because of the personage who has inhabited it.

Three of Edison's laboratories have been moved to the village. Moving his laboratory from Ft. Myers, Fla., and his first laboratory from Menlo Park, N. J., emphasizes the way Mr. Ford is paying tribute to the great works done by that scientist.

All the automobiles, from the first invented to the silver and chromium affair built in 1941, are collected here. Models showing what had to be worn to keep one's clothes intact during a trip, yards and yards of chiffon wrapped around the car, and an ulster covering the car, served to make the trip even more uncomfortable in early means of conveyance.

In Greenfield village are also collected all types of radios, buggies, wagons and other implements which have been keeping pace with American civilization. The first steam engine built by James Watt, the court room where Lincoln practiced law, Stephen Foster's house, Noah Webster's house and Luther Burbank's house are other attractions in this great little village.

Mrs. Swan thought Cotswold cottage the most interesting building at Greenfield. This is a sheep herder's cottage brought over from England. The building is between 200 and 300 years old. The yard with its rich green grass and bright colored flowers is the same type as that grown in England many years ago. Sheep were in the barn land ran loose as they naturally do.

Finishing Camp Course. Pfc. Harold Grenwald, Co. F, 184th infantry regiment, of Wisner, is in Camp Luis Obispo, Cal., where he has just received a certificate from the school for bakers and cooks after an intensive two months' course.

Records which were not known to exist and which otherwise might have been discovered only by chance, have been uncovered by this project and many people who previously might have been unable to verify their citizenship can now do so. This is especially true of persons who, in order to establish their own citizenship, must produce evidence of their parents' naturalization years ago.

Upon completion of the project in all Nebraska counties, the naturalization service will have a complete index of all recorded naturalizations in the state down to the present time, and original records in the various counties will have been located and made accessible for reference at any time.

A Dollar Down, and— (Omaha Journal-Stockman.) Now there is threat of a government edict that would kill off installment buying. It might be about the best thing that could happen, whether as a defense emergency, or just as a matter of common sense. The old-timers, the hopelessly conservative who still guide their buying by the rule to buy only when cash payment can be made, at least never find themselves wallowing in a debt they never will meet. It is true enough that installment buying has stimulated sales, but we wonder if it has represented net profit, when recoveries because of inability to pay run so high. Many a poor family has over-extended itself because it took "only 50 cents down," and that inevitably gives thrift a kick in the pants from which it never fully recovers. And thrift is still a good thing, modern theory to the contrary notwithstanding.

Project to Locate Naturalization Data

WPA project workers have completed a search of records in the office of Frank Korff, clerk of the district court for Wayne county, as part of a statewide project to locate and index all naturalizations recorded since the organization of the county up to September 27, 1906.

A total of 276 naturalizations was located in this county for the period covered. Forms listing all the available information in regard to each naturalization have been sent to Omaha where a card file index is to be prepared in duplicate by a staff of typists. One index will be retained in Omaha by the immigration and naturalization service as part of the master index for the state; the other will be forwarded to Wayne for use in local reference to the records.

The immigration and naturalization service, which sponsors the project, has a complete record of all naturalizations granted from September 27, 1906, down to the present time. Records for the period prior to that date, however, have been available only in the offices of the clerks of the district court in Nebraska's 93 counties, making it necessary for the service to write or visit any county from which information was desired on the earlier naturalizations.

Now, with proof of citizenship becoming increasingly important or essential in qualifying for defense work, old age pensions, social security, and many other matters, requests for information on naturalizations have flooded offices of the naturalization service, and frequently those of the clerks of the district court. In the case of the older naturalizations, this meant considerable difficulty, delay, and lost time, for often many volumes had to be searched to locate a record if it was found at all.

Realizing the urgency of assembling all information on the older naturalizations where it would be readily and easily available, the naturalization service requested the services of WPA to accomplish the work which now is being prosecuted in all counties of Nebraska.

WPA project workers examined in detail, page by page, not only the particular records which pertain to naturalization alone, but also the court journals which contain all official actions of the court, appearance dockets, court calendars, trial dockets and other volumes which might possibly contain naturalization records. In addition, many loose papers in file drawers or boxes and tied bundles, which pertain to naturalization, are frequently discovered and supplied much-wanted data. Basement and attic storage vaults and cupboards also yield important information on naturalization which has been inaccessible or undiscovered for many years.

The fact that often much time must be spent in looking for these older naturalization records represents no reflection on present clerks of the district court. In the earlier days, before passage of federal laws to provide uniformity, the business of entering naturalization records was sadly neglected, sometimes left entirely undone. Furthermore, there was no set procedure at first for setting up such records and early office holders often picked what to them seemed the most convenient, logical or sometimes the most economical place to record naturalizations. As a result, many naturalizations are discovered in unexpected places, mixed in with other records or proceedings, written on margins or index pages, or even in old ordinary notebooks. For instance, insanity records, criminal dockets, and fee books have sometimes contained naturalization proceedings.

Records which were not known to exist and which otherwise might have been discovered only by chance, have been uncovered by this project and many people who previously might have been unable to verify their citizenship can now do so. This is especially true of persons who, in order to establish their own citizenship, must produce evidence of their parents' naturalization years ago.

Upon completion of the project in all Nebraska counties, the naturalization service will have a complete index of all recorded naturalizations in the state down to the present time, and original records in the various counties will have been located and made accessible for reference at any time.

Aquarius Pleases Area With Rain

Sewage System Considered As Possible Project in Wayne Years Ago.

Early Days from the Wayne Herald for August 20, 1925.

Aquarius whose absence most of the summer had been a cause of tense anxiety, showed up Sunday and spread over an inch of rain in this vicinity. Tuesday night over a half inch fell over the area. Moisture refreshed suffering corn and chased the brown out of pastures. Lawns had renewed their green and remind one of irrigated spots in California. The rains revive confidence and courage.

Arthur Hennessy, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Both were thrown from the car. Arthur's skull was fractured, and he suffered a broken arm and leg. Elmer was not hurt.
