

At Sidney, Iowa, Happy Surprise to This Writer... Wonderful Enterprise Built up by American Legion in Town of 1,200

Our first experience in attendance at a rodeo changed a prejudiced viewpoint to delightful realization. Our long entertained notion that a rodeo meted out cruelty to animals and presented a series of tragedies to cowboys and cowgirls was a mistake.

It was our first trip into southwest Iowa, going through Council Bluffs, and stopping for lunch at Tabor, where Mrs. R. W. Ley of Wayne, used to live and attend college, and near where she still owns a farm.

Iowa's usually superior corn crop looks spotted—some fields badly scoured by drought and none apparently quite up to the standard of promise reached on the Nebraska side of the Missouri.

The Sidney rodeo was launched by the American Legion seventeen years ago, and by a spirit of enterprise and coordinated effort, it has become one of the leading institutions of the kind in the world.

The management has every detail so well worked out that everything is started and finished exactly on time. An exploding bomb a few minutes ahead of the appointed hour commands attention.

At the conclusion of the advertised program, editors from Iowa and neighboring states, all guests of the rodeo organization, were entertained by a program in charge of President Hill of the Iowa Press association.

The mounting success of the Sidney rodeo, which is steadily increasing property holdings and piling up a cash surplus in a town of 1,200, is probably due to a basis of wholehearted cooperation.

MONTH'S RAINFALL CAME IN TIME TO INSURE CORN CROP

IT WAS the two-inch rain during the night of August 16 that took the fear out of corn prospects in the Wayne vicinity. Northwest the fall was heavier; southwest, lighter. According to the gauge at the State National Bank of Wayne, August so far has furnished less moisture than the same month a year ago. Up to this time the year has fallen short about two inches. But July this year scored more than an inch above the July record of 1940, and absence of scorching winds helped safeguard the crop against firing. Corn was threatened, just prior to the July 16 soaker. Besides that saving rainfall, 21 and an inch fell August 11 and 12 of an inch August 21. The heavy rain of the month came at the right time to do the most good. Other parts of north Nebraska have been visited by rains that missed this area.

Antiques Shown In Display Made By Gamble Store

Interesting antiques, some 145 years old and all belonging to people in Wayne community, have been collected and are now on display in the Gamble store window. One double-barreled musket, belonging to Lloyd Jones of Wisner, was used before the railroad came through Omaha. It was loaded 50 years ago and remains loaded to this day.

A phonogram, 41 years old, played records which cost 50c and each played for about one minute. Upon investigation of the records it was found that one of them was a favorite of today, "The Strawberry Blonde." This machine, belonging to Mrs. B. H. VonSeggern, together with the loud speaker device, cost $60 when it was purchased.

A coffee pot, 75 years old, which was brought over from Holland, was added to the collection by Mrs. Chris Laeders.

A beer mug, belonging to Bernard H. VonSeggern, has engraving at the top which donates 1 1/2 liters. This mug originally came from Germany. A pitcher and dish, which are at least 75 years old, were contributed by Emma Splittgerber.

A child's high chair, used by three generations and at least 70 years old, is today in the possession of George VonSeggern. A black plane, used before Nebraska was a state, is also in the possession of George VonSeggern, and is in Gamble's window.

A spinning wheel, with the linen thread still on the spools, is another of the relics being shown. The owner of this is Mrs. Leonard Martens.

A muzzle-loading musket, patented in 1889 and made in the United States, was added by Austin G. Bressler. A cradle scythe, over 100 years old, also belongs to Mr. Bressler.

A Waffenfabrik-Bern gun, belonging to Bernard Barelman, offers a chance for interesting speculation about range. It was said to have had a terrific kick.

A padlock over 145 years old and hand-made is in interesting contrast to the ones being offered for sale today. This is owned by Geo. VonSeggern.

Mrs. Wm. J. Barelman brought a condiment set in to be shown in this window of relics. It is not known exactly how aged this set is, but the style shows it is many years old.

A map of the United States in 1847, when Nebraska had its only white people in Bellevue village and at Fort Calhoun, is owned by Lloyd Jones. Omaha is spelled Omahaw on the map. Nebraska, Minnesota, and the Dakotas were mere territories at this time.

It also gives practical advice about the home study of fashion for high school students, the choice of a school and the courses to take.

"Wilma Rogers," by Sophia Engstrand, is the story of a girl who became public librarian in the small town of Milo, Ill. "Above Suspicion," by Helen MacInnes, "The Sun Is My Undoing," by Marguerite Steen, are new fiction books.

Mexico Is Moving Forward Wayne Folks Find on Trip

The next five years will see a great increase in the number of schools in Mexico and also in the number of people attending them. Even today many of the Mexican youths are learning to speak the American language. It is a mistaken idea that most of the Mexicans are ignorant. The upper class is exceptionally well educated and brilliant. Mexico is rapidly moving forward. These are the opinions of Dr. and Mrs. Victor West, who arrived home Thursday evening after a three-week trip through Texas and Mexico.

In Mexico City the Wests stayed at a hotel on the square, in front of the Federal capital building and across from the oldest cathedral in North America. Both the capital and cathedral were built by Cortez when he came to Mexico in his search for wealth. The cathedral has never been completed because of lack of funds, and Dr. West comments that it is a pathetic sight to enter the building and see immense pillars and beautiful walls unfinished. The altar is the most magnificent one outside of that which is in St. Peter's in Rome. Many of the poor and Mexican poems come to this church and there kneel to offer their humble prayers amidst the unfinished magnificence.

Traffic is all one way in Mexico City. Dr. West said, "They seem to drive like mad and honk their horns all the time, but then I guess it just seemed that way to me because I was a foreigner. While the Wests were in Mexico City a school was being held to teach better driving habits to the natives. The stores are closed each afternoon at 1 o'clock and remain closed until 4. During those hours cafes are crowded to overflowing with people of the business world seeking relaxation and enjoyment. When the stores do re-open they remain open till 9 p. m. They are then closed for the night by pulling huge iron shutters down in front of the windows. This makes streets at night seem dark and deserted.

Dr. West believes the social conditions of Mexico to be about the same as the rest of the world. He says, "The Aztec Indians live in hollows and huts, carry their loads on their heads, refusing to ride in autos, and many of them shunning chances for an education. But in every country you will find conditions similar. A federal law now prohibits the women from wearing shorts. A woman in Mexico cannot enter a church in slacks. In this country below the border the women still adhere to the aged custom of keeping their heads covered.

The Wests visited Taxco, the only really colonial Spanish city in Mexico. All houses are highly colored, Spanish colonial style, and streets are cobble. Houses are built facing away from the streets with patios in front of each house. Taxco is one of the richest cities in Mexico, most of the inhabitants being engaged in silver mining. Silver trinkets may be purchased direct from silver smiths.

Toluca, capital of the state of Mexico, was visited by the Wests folks. This is a great market center. Every Friday merchants gather to sell all kinds of products ranging from corn and cabbage to silks and satins. These products are all sold in open market and present a colorful scene in Mexican life.

Desert of Lions, an old monastery surrounded by beautiful timber, was visited and admired. This place is so named, not because of

Remarkable Health Has Been Enjoyed By William Mears

The lions which abound there, but because the brothers who founded it many years ago were named Lion. The shrine at Guadalupe was erected to honor the only brunette saint, all others being blonde. "Whenever you visit the shrine you will find fresh flowers." Floating gardens at Xachinilco, Mexico, were viewed by Dr. and Mrs. West from a canoe decorated with fresh flowers. While drifting up the lagoon where these gardens are the Americans were approached by Mexicans who desired to sell them fresh flowers and various edibles.

The Wests crossed the tropic of Cancer. There they saw much tropical growth. In the south fresh bananas, oranges, pineapples, sugar cane, rice and coffee grow in great abundance.

Peasants farm the most vertical mountains in Mexico. It is impossible to use any machinery on these steep inclines, and the natives have to be sure-footed or they will tumble off. Corn and peanuts are the crops usually grown by these farmers.

"I've never had to wait for a doctor," proudly remarks Wm. "Billy" Mears, Wayne county's oldest resident, who will be 91 years old August 29.

New Pasture Ridges Prove Efficiency

Newly constructed pasture ridges on the Roy D. Day farm six miles northwest of Wayne proved efficient in retaining every bit of a 2-1/2 inch rain last week. In the construction of these pasture ridges, a back furrow was made with a two-bottom plow. The spacing of ridges is a minimum of 12 feet on the steepest slope. The ridges are only partially complete as the only construction prior to the rain was a back furrow with a plow. Additional work will be done.

Ridges are constructed on an 11-acre field which will be retired to broom and alfalfa pasture. Slope of the land will average about nine per cent.

When ridges are completed they will be seeded to rye and they will be pastured late this fall or next spring. Then they will be seeded down. The rye is used to pack the soil prior to seeding broom grass.

Credits Exercise With Activity at Age of Ninety-two

Still going strong at 92 years! That describes Mrs. Maflia Tibbles, Wayne woman, who mows her own lawn, 50 by 75 feet, because she needs the exercise. She makes her own clothes, too, and threads the needle without glasses, if you please. Yes, she wears glasses once in a while, but they are no good for "close looking," she says. In addition to these activities, Mrs. Tibbles makes her own garden and raises flowers. She visits with her neighbors and especially enjoys the "oldsters" in the neighborhood. When occasion requires she uses the telephone, but the radio "jumbles the words too much" for her to enjoy it.

Two incidents Mrs. Tibbles will never forget are hearing Abraham Lincoln speak in Beloit, Wis., during the campaign of 1860. Although she was but a young girl of 11, she remembered him as the homeliest man she has ever seen. As a speaker he kept the attention of the audience and possessed a remarkable sense of humor. The other incident was in 1861 when she accompanied her mother to Janesville, Wis., to visit her father who was in service with a Wisconsin volunteer infantry detachment. The meals served the "boys in blue" were far from those served the present-day soldiers. An average meal consisted of beans, hard-tack, coffee and soy-belly.

Mrs. Tibbles has a keen sense of humor, and she doesn't believe that the world has gone to the dogs. Nor does she think the young people are any worse now than they ever were, but on the contrary are a pretty good lot. "Smoking is vulgar," she thinks, for women, and she has never approved of it. Her mother was addicted to the habit, but when she broke her mother's pipe, her father also quit smoking.

Mrs. Tibbles gets up at 5 o'clock on Mondays, wash day. She scrubs her own floors and keeps her house as neat as a pin. She ascribes her long life to the fact that she has always worked hard and had regular habits, and didn't abuse herself by overeating.

The daughter of a Civil war veteran and the widow of a veteran also, she has heard much "war talk" in her time. She has lived through four wars, she says, and now views the present condition across the waters as a "very bad business which I hope never reaches us."

This Wayne lady is of French and English descent and was born in Canada, July 2, 1849. She was married in March, 1866, in Rock county, Wis., moved to Iowa and then to Idaho where she remained but 11 days, and then went back to Iowa. In 1888 she located at Craig, Neb. She is the mother of nine children, seven of whom are living.

Speaking of her early school days, Mrs. Tibbles says that her tools consisted of a slate and a sponge, and that with the aid of a hickory stick she was taught reading and writing and arithmetic.

The eldest daughter of Mrs. Tibbles, 74, and the youngest, 53, live in Dillon, Mont., while her eldest son, Joseph, 68, lives in British Columbia. She has traveled extensively and keeps mentally alert by reading daily and weekly papers and health magazines.

"So you're engaged?"
"Yes, but I took my time about accepting him."
"You mean you waited until he actually proposed?"
"Don't wait for us to make a proposition before inquiring about a Will-Burt stoker. If you do, you may be left out in the cold this year. Get your Will-Burt now while we still have a few on hand."

"You are going to need coal this winter, that's sure. And it is just as easy to fill your bin now as later on. Help national defense, the railroads, and yourself by putting your coal in early. Be sure of a supply of coal—at lower prices."

"You can build that crutch quicker, easier and better with 4-Square lumber. You can also build it cheaper, for 4-Square lumber enables the carpenter to do a quicker job. Ed, us show you crib plans that can be built out of practically all standard length 4-Square lumber without sawing and waste."

Increasing prices for metals, due to government priorities, include lead, which means a rise in paint prices sooner or later. Do your painting now while prices are still low on quality paints. Insist on Glidden for any paint job for Glidden is Time-Tested, a label that means better paint.

Colleges OUT OF the travail of the college tempest should come something more constructive than puerile wise-cracking or the by-product of personal revenge. Charges have been made and grievances have been aired. The public has been satiated by pros and cons. Stories have been retold without losing size. Minors have been fanned into majors. It would seem nothing has been left concealed. Doubtless motives have often been misconstrued and aims misunderstood.

Students cannot be allowed to shape the policies of the college, nor should the administration be more exacting in its requirements than other similar institutions. If differences cannot be reconciled otherwise, the state normal board should be called to the rescue, and the administration should welcome court action on the part of any students dissatisfied with results.

It would not seem impossible to harmonize disagreements and restore unity. The college is too important to Wayne and northeast Nebraska to be buffeted by ill-considered knocks. Wayne is jealous of the college which good fortune located here. The town's force acquired the institution, and its cooperation through the years has aided large and steady development. Let differences be settled amicably, and let the college year, soon to open, present a solid front with piques forgotten, suspicions dispelled and with a resurgence of the spirit of good will.

PASTORAL lives, used to the ways of peace and the meagre fruits of their industry, cannot readily become war-minded. They live among friendly neighbors and are generally free from the virus of hatred. They cannot enthuse over the cruelties of sanguinary conflict. Common sense tells them the war monster now spreading death and ruin abroad will cause irreparable loss with no gains. When tyranny, unleashed in the world, threatens the free way of life, rural communities reluctantly arm themselves for defense. They are inured to peace. They believe in individual rights and the old-fashioned virtues of civilization. But when they are aroused to take notice of the threats of totalitarian tyrants, they can be depended on to rise in their might, rooted in toughest fiber, to assert their independence and bulwark cherished American traditions. Pastoral mildness will, when enraged by alien threats, prove an insuperable support for human liberty.

Striking to enforce demands in the work of defense building is altogether out of line with the spirit of unity needed in the present crisis, and the action of the government in taking a hand in the tie-up at Kearny, N. J., to compel immediate resumption of operations should be followed by similar steps wherever the program is being unnecessarily interrupted. The freest and most remunerative labor conditions in the world may be protected by the very service to which union workers are asked to devote their energies. Blocking defense activities is a move in the direction of abridged liberties for labor and for every group. Union workers should lift their vision and see the danger of loss in trying to enforce unreasonable demands at a critical time.

Touching next year's senatorial campaign, the Norfolk Daily News suggests that Senator Geo. W. Norris is the new deal administration's best chance to retain a friendly member in the United States senate from Nebraska. The senator has indicated that he wants to retire, but he has changed his mind before and under the influence of the White House he may decide to do so again. Governor Griswold, Kenneth Wherry and ex-Governor Arthur Weaver have been mentioned as probable candidates for the republican nomination. It remains to be seen whether Senator Norris can recapture his old-time voting strength.

County fairs, picnics, family reunions and annual vacations will soon be over. Trips to the mountains and lakesides and to visit cousins and other near and distant relatives will stop as the autumn approaches. Mosquitoes and figgers have not filed their reports, though they have doubtless had a satisfactory season. The grand foliage of trees and shrubs will disappear before the first killing frost. Any who like winter with its cold blasts and icy snow will not have to wait long for happy realization.

Nothing is sacred to the Nazi dictator. He revels in the destruction of human life and in the overthrow of religious, faith and supernal hope. He tortures subjugated peoples without mercy, and, as the modern world's worst brute, he is preparing himself to rank in history with the universally despised Negro.

We note that Norfolk proposes to vote on establishing a junior college on the ground that northeast Nebraska demands such an educational opportunity. With millions invested in the state school at Wayne we can see no feverish lack of higher schooling privileges in this part of the state. We can see, however, how we may weaken advantages in a maelstrom of local disagreements.

We heard a republican editor of Grand Island recently that the United States is headed for national socialism. Then, individualists should pull harder in the direction of rugged individualism. We should not want to be weakened by leaning on government paternalism nor have our identity swallowed in a sea of inertia.

Lying seems to be one of the implements of war, and liars lie unabashed. They apparently figure that the end justifies the means, entertain the mistaken belief that people will rebound with confidence after being rebuffed by bald falsehoods. The masses are not so dumb as dictators seem to think.

There's Still Plenty of Corn.

The estimate of this year's corn crop was reduced to 1,889,172,000 bushels in a supplemental report issued yesterday by the department of agriculture, based on conditions existing on Aug. 15. Drouth and hot winds during the latter part of July and the early part of August cut probable yields more than 100 million bushels. Iowa's yield is estimated at 437,808,000 bushels and Nebraska's at 116,640,000 bushels. Unless the price fixers boost corn quotations too high there will be a world of corn fed to livestock in Iowa and Nebraska the coming fall and winter.

The Old-Fashioned Grocer.

G. F. Kane of the Lake Andes Waye wonders what has become of the grocer who used to keep a help-yourself box from which chronic pipe smokers might fill their clay or cob pipes "on the house." The chances are he has gone to the poor house, along with the butcher who used to give away liver.

Scarcity of Teachers.

With Nebraska schools ready to open next month reports of teacher shortages are received by the state department of public instruction. Those who are studying the problem say that this situation is the result of the low standard of wages paid by the Nebraska schools as against those paid in other states and the fact that many teachers have left the profession to take positions in the national defense program. Some instructors have been inducted into the army because of the failure of national selective service to grant deferment.

Freedom from Everything.

Leon Henderson has assigned to the Young Democrats of America a truly formidable task. Addressing them in their club meeting at Louisville he told them it was up to them to establish economic freedom, freedom of work, freedom from want, freedom from fear of being without a job, freedom from fear of old age, freedom from fear of accidents and sickness and death.

One wonders how soon the young democrats will be able to report back that the job has been done. Wonders, too, how everyone will like it, and profit by it, once we have been plunged up to our ears into an effortless and assured Utopia.

Sometimes it seems that the more starry-eyed of our uplifters are losing, if they have not already lost, all touch with reality.

Brakes on Buying Habits.

President Roosevelt's Executive Order setting up a system of control to restrict installment buying has brought the "do without" phase of the national defense program close home to the average man.

Essentially, there is nothing wrong with installment buying during normal times. More than half of our cars, refrigerators and vacuum cleaners, to say nothing of other goods and services, are sold that way, and the practice has played an important role in increasing consumption and providing jobs—in raising our standard of living.

As the national income has been swelled by defense production, however, installment buying has increased rapidly—too rapidly. One of the reasons behind the Executive Order was a desire to discourage consumers from going too far into debt and thus to check credit inflation of the disastrous 1929 type.

There are other reasons, however. The airplanes, tanks and guns that America needs to defend its freedom are made from the same raw materials as washing machines, automobiles and similar articles. By making it more difficult for people to purchase such consumer goods, less of them will be sold. As a result, the materials and labor that would be used to produce them can be diverted to urgent defense production.

In addition, the fact that people will be doing without those articles will create a demand for them when the defense program is over. In that way factories will be given something to manufacture when they stop making armaments, and the jobs of countless employees will be protected.

Final effect of the curb is expected to be an increase in the amount of funds available for investment in defense bonds and other forms of savings, thus building up a reserve fund that can be drawn upon for purchases when jobs in defense industries end.

Though the new restrictions are bound to cause many inconveniences, they will be welcomed by every American anxious to do his bit for the defense of his country and to help it through the difficult emergency period ahead.

FINGERNAILS.

Some girls, fashion-bent, but with peculiar twists in their mental domes, have lately come forth with fingernails that outrage the eagle. Every eagle will be mad—enraged by the surging fires of envy. One young lady is pictured with long, sharp nails that imitate the eagle's talons. Instruments provided by nature to gather food and put up defense. When fingernails are allowed to grow to an abnormal length, they remind one of the tailed individual who presides over the infernal regions, or the collection of bones used to demonstrate facts about the anatomy. Perhaps we could become accustomed to elongated fingernails as we were once used to long hair, long whiskers, bustles and hoop skirts, but adjusting one's feelings to a startling, novelty takes time and causes pain. Before such an adjustment becomes necessary, we hope long fingernails disappear under the force of popular disapproval. We hope the habit stops before it gets well started. Long fingernails look gruesome, terrible.

enterprise started in a small way, but the managers increased attractions from year to year, and as they spent more money, they took in more. Spectators are charged well for what they assemble to see, and they are amply repaid. We heard not one word of complaint or of disappointment.

While on the rodeo grounds we met Stanley Norris who was employed for a few years as news reporter and advertising solicitor for the Wayne Democrat, then owned by John Davidson. Mr. Norris, who was accompanied by his wife, is located at Stanton, Iowa, where he owns a thriving newspaper. We also met J. R. Feauto, now a Sidney publisher, who for a term of years was proprietor of the Wakefield Republican. We recall that Mr. Feauto's father, Nelson Feauto, was a pioneer northeast Nebraska publisher, owning a newspaper called the Echo at Emerson.

Let us visit the 6 by 18 foot fluorescent-lighted repair shop on 520 East 4th street and note its contents and talk with one of Nebraska's few gun repairmen. At present there are 20 different rifles to be seen, all mounted on a wall rack. The calibers of the rifles vary from the popular .22 to the .25 Favorite rifles are the .220 Swift, .219 Zipper and the .218 Bee. The oldest gun in his collection is an 1886 model 45-90 Winchester lever action. Lee has a special love for lever action rifles of the medium power range.

Lee's latest remodeled gun is a Krag .30 caliber that he changed over to a .25 caliber weapon. The gun has a mounted Weaver scope and a beautiful hand-made stock and forearm of native walnut catch the eye. His improved Winchester rifles have attracted the attention of riflemen in neighboring towns who have purchased rifles for target use and also for coyote hunting.

NO DANGER.

Stuart Chase is the author of an encouraging magazine article dealing with disappearance of communism in the United States. He points out that communism is a proletarian dictatorship, and that by reason of the increased use of labor-saving machines, our proletarians have become white-collared individuals who have developed skill in directing automatic machines which do the work. Men behind production are no longer slaves to an industrial machine, but masters of many machines. Those squeezed out of industry by machines are now running gasoline stations, automobile repair shops and other things which depend in considerable measure on individual initiative for success. Speaking of the old antagonism between proletarians and capitalists, Author Chase says: "But the facts show a declining proletariat, getting richer rather than poorer as average wages increase, a capitalist class which lost its top hat in 1929, and a middle class which obstinately refuses to be crushed. It above all others is carrying civilization on; it is now the largest and most vital class in existence."

Work in Firearms Proves Worthwhile And Very Enjoyable

(By W. A. Lerner) When the late Peter Cauwe gave his son, Lee, a rifle when the boy was 13, he couldn't foresee that he was starting him on a career as a gun fancier or that he was providing him with an inspiration that would shape his whole life. The gun was a .22 caliber Winchester, and today Winchester remains Lee Cauwe's favorite firearm.

Today Lee Cauwe, aged 43, is a gun repairman and rebuilder. He started this work as a hobby and it remains a hobby, yet as the means of making a little on the side though his daytime work is that of superintendent of the J. N. Einung Gravel Co., Wayne. He spends five or six hours weekly with his guns. He says people are far happier if they can occupy their leisure time profitably.

Cauwe's work with firearms consists mainly of rebuilding rifles. He rechambers and fits barrels, and spends several weeks on one gun. Lee makes beautiful stocks for guns from native walnut, re-butes barrels, makes sight mountings and reshapes barrel blanks. For those local citizens who have not met Lee, he offers a "glad-hand" to visitors and is more than willing to answer any inquiries. Lee is a native Nebraskan, born near Stanton in 1898, and moved to Wayne with the Cauwe family in 1919. He has always been mechanically inclined and once operated a garage here for five years. Later he worked in the Baker garage. He married Miss Phyllis James in 1923 and their only daughter, Lea Jean, was a 1941 home student at Wayne high school.

Let us visit the 6 by 18 foot fluorescent-lighted repair shop on 520 East 4th street and note its contents and talk with one of Nebraska's few gun repairmen. At present there are 20 different rifles to be seen, all mounted on a wall rack. The calibers of the rifles vary from the popular .22 to the .25 Favorite rifles are the .220 Swift, .219 Zipper and the .218 Bee. The oldest gun in his collection is an 1886 model 45-90 Winchester lever action. Lee has a special love for lever action rifles of the medium power range.

Lee's latest remodeled gun is a Krag .30 caliber that he changed over to a .25 caliber weapon. The gun has a mounted Weaver scope and a beautiful hand-made stock and forearm of native walnut catch the eye. His improved Winchester rifles have attracted the attention of riflemen in neighboring towns who have purchased rifles for target use and also for coyote hunting.

Cauwe tests and fires all guns that he remodels and repairs. Perfect balance is always stressed in the workmanship and with the use of a South Bend steel lathe he also machines his needed parts. He has an improvised loading tool and die for shells of 12 different sizes, also an inside micrometer that is accurate to .001 inch. The latter is his special self-made precision instrument of which he is doubly proud today. On the south wall are a "home-made" drill press and mill-dial attachments. "Why buy machines, when they can be made?" Lee asked.

This kind of hobby requires a license called a federal firearms permit No. 1856. Since Lee handles powder and reloads shells for his own use only, he needs no other permits. The present defense program affects his procurement of materials, especially powder.

Lee does not claim to be an authority on guns. He is very well informed on gun repair work. His apparent modesty, prompted by the above statement, this interesting workman stated that, "Outdoor life goes with love of guns." When asked about his "shooting eye," he remarked, "I'm just a fair shot," but inspection of a few target-gives him away. Four bullet perforations were found in a space the size of a quarter, and the distance was 50 yards.

Recently Lee repaired and remodeled some guns for his brother Frank, of Norfolk, who has a very fine collection of firearms. Inquiring about safety precaution he stated, "Never point a gun at anything you do not wish to kill."

No ticking clock was to be heard in Cauwe's shop to warn him lest he might work overtime. His Dutch descent is in evidence when one notes the neat and orderly arrangement of firearms and materials.

Walking over to a felt-lined drawer, Lee uncovered his prize sidearm, a .38 caliber Colt police positive revolver. Three other beautiful Colt revolvers were to be seen within. "I just have a love for Colt revolvers and Winchester rifles," said Lee, as he returned to his loading tool and "tamped home" another load of powder in a shell casing.

Several hours had already passed—and what interesting hours they were! And this congenial host commented that the person's hobby gets the best of him and becomes his master, then it is time to make a change.

Ruling Is Received.

Walking to Town Keeps Elderly Lady Of Wayne Active

(By W. A. Lerner) A well-known citizen of Wayne who keeps herself "active" by walking to town twice daily is Mrs. Otto Voget. Mrs. Voget will celebrate her 88th birthday September 6. Born in Dortmund, Westphalia, Germany, in 1853, the daughter of Albert and Augusta Scheurman, this Wayne lady married Otto Voget in Germany and came to America in 1891. Mrs. Voget is the mother of five children, three of whom are living. A son, Karl, died in Germany, and a daughter, Erna, passed away in 1927. The living children are Otto, director of the Norfolk Conservatory of Music, Mrs. Oswald Maltour of New York City, and Ernest of Wayne, with whom she makes her home.

Despite the severity of the weather, Mrs. Voget journeys twice daily the one mile distance to town. This has been her practice since 1900. These trips during this period of years, would be equivalent to 25,000 miles, or once around the world.

"Why should I sit at home when I enjoy going to town to shop, see things and visit with friends?" this active little lady asked in German. From childhood days Mrs. Voget has been a lover of violin and piano music. She encouraged her children to study music and she is proud of their musical achievements. Her son, Otto, of Norfolk, began studying violin in Germany at the age of 7, and is today a composer and excellent musician. On the walls of the Voget living room are seen pictures of such masters as Mozart, Beethoven and Wagner. She prefers classical music to jazz.

In 1938 Mrs. Voget was hospitalized for several months due to a broken hip. This accident necessitated her now using a cane. At present Mrs. Voget is suffering from neuritis. Her hearing is exceptionally acute for a person of advanced age. Offering me a handful of ripe plums and saying, "Auf weidersehn," she hastened to the kitchen to prepare dinner.

A Shade Tree's Worth (Omaha Journal-Stockman)

In these days of highway construction, of ditch digging, of building power lines through the country and other so-called modern improvements, the tragedy of destroying shade trees is always before us. We are spending millions of dollars in planting shade trees every year so that the tragedy of destroying such trees is all the more evident.

"Gentlemen," he pleaded, "my father and I planted these trees 36 years ago

"Gentlemen," he pleaded, "my father and I planted these trees 36 years ago. How much are they worth? More, in one sense, than you can fix with just money. They are the beauty of this place. Birds visit them each summer, the snows of winter clothe their branches in white. When these trees are removed 36 years of nature's slow nurturing also is removed."

Christian Science Services
"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, Sunday, August 31.
The Golden Text is: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (Romans 1:16).
Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached. And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me" (Luke 7:22-23).
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus' works established his claim to the Messiahship. In reply to John's inquiry, 'Art thou he that should come, Jesus returned an affirmative reply, recounting his works instead of referring to his doctrine, confident that this exhibition of the divine power to heal would fully answer the question... When Christ changes a belief of sin or of sickness into a better belief, then belief melts into spiritual understanding, and sin, disease, and death disappear" (pp. 131, 142).

TO RE-MANUFACTURE USED CARS

Here is Mr. Coryell of the Coryell Auto Co. greeting C. T. Pickens, a factory representative of the Chevrolet Motor Co., who is stationed at the Coryell Auto Co. to instruct the mechanics on new methods of re-manufacturing used cars which will run through an assembly line, assuring the purchaser of a better used car.

1. First the chassis and motor are thoroughly steam cleaned... all dirt and grease removed.
2. Next the motor and other mechanical units are tested with the latest type of instruments to detect any mechanical defects.
3. The car is then taken to the metal and body department to have dents removed. This is done with the latest type of high-speed equipment.

Mrs. Bracken suffered a fractured skull, broken right lower limb and bruises.

Mr. Bracken, who was driving the car, received a back injury and cuts about the head. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Dripps of Derry, Pa., were accompanying the Brackens home for a visit. Mr. Dripps, cousin of Mrs. Bracken, was bruised and suffered nervous shock. Mrs. Dripps has a skull fracture, back and neck injuries. The three trapped by the car were conscious all the time. A patrolman and the sheriff helped free those in the car.

It's all very confusing but soldiers at a North Carolina cantonment don't know what to do about it. The full name: Sergeant Cap Major. Ask for Sergeant Major and you'll probably get a sergeant-major who is not Sergeant Major. Get familiar and put in a call for "Cap," and a captain will answer who is not a captain. You get all straightened out with the captain and ask for Major and a major comes along and asks: "Was someone calling me?" After about two hours and 17 minutes you find Sergeant Cap Major and you've forgotten why you were looking for him.

Attractiveness of Wayne Impresses Early Resident on Recent Visit Here

That Wayne is one of the most attractive and friendly little cities in the middlewest was the opinion of Elmer R. Lundburg when he lived here 32 years ago. Just this week Mr. Lundburg, here on a visit from Portland, Ore., reaffirms this belief and adds that in his journey through Idaho, Wyoming and Nebraska he saw no city of the same size that compares with it.

When Mr. Lundburg was here in 1920 the city was installing pavement. He complimented the completed job as an excellent one with good finish and uniform flow curbs attracting one wild often cusses poor engineering and high curbs. Modern structures have supplanted the frame structures on Main street, and residences have improved. Mr. Lundburg notes the beauty of parks and the attractiveness of trees and lawns. Wayne, in his opinion, is an "ideal home and business town with the added advantage of the cultural influences of the college." The visitor complimented the fine farming area as a most important contributing factor.

Family Came Early. Mr. Lundburg was one of the Phillip Lundburg family of five sons and one daughter who came here in 1888. He was graduated from the Nebraska Normal college as was his wife, the former Blanche Shutt. Mr. Lundburg also trained himself for law. He joined the First Nebraska division, Company F, when the Spanish-American war broke out in 1898 and went to the Philippines. He was the only Wayne man in the First division, though several were in the Second. Among these was George Wilbur who, with his wife, the former Clara Phillee, also lives in Portland. Mr. Lundburg wrote from the islands many interesting letters which were published in the home paper.

Perhaps this "war correspondence" aroused Mr. Lundburg's interest in newspaper work. When a lad he had had some glimpses of the newspaper office for R. M. Goshorn used to hire him for 75c a week to ink the old hand press on the Herald office.

On his return from service Mr. Lundburg had the Carroll paper for a few years. He enjoyed the work and realized well on it. Then he came to Wayne and for some over a year he ran the Herald with R. Phillee and himself owning the paper. Mr. Lundburg worked 18 hours a day for he changed the paper from one with patent insides to a paper of all home print. He also installed a new Cranston press. Everything was harder in those days, but recollections left are most pleasant. Mr. Lundburg and Mr. Phillee sold to two brothers from Hartington who in turn sold to the present owner, E. W. Huse. Mr. Lundburg went to Portland in 1908 and he and his brother, Edward, were in partnership in the law business. The latter, later attorney for Swift & Co., died in 1925. Mr. Lundburg's younger brother, Louis V., a native of Wayne, is now in law partnership with him.

Cherishes Friendships. Among the many, many friendships which Mr. Lundburg cherishes in connection with Wayne are those of Judge J. M. Cherry and the late Miss Charlotte White. When Mr. Lundburg was a lad here he recalls that Mr. Cherry, then in charge of a grain elevator, used to encourage lots of boys by giving them odd jobs for employment. "When we did a man's job, the judge paid us a man's wages," Mr. Lundburg remembers. Miss White, county superintendent

Defense Preparations in Hawaii Are Now Reaching New High

"Pearl Harbor seems literally packed with submarines, destroyers, huge battleships, and airplane carriers." This is the timely observation made by Lieut. Charles Norris, grandson of Dr. T. B. Hecker of Wayne, who arrived in the Hawaiian Islands recently to assume duties at Schofield barracks on Oahu island. Lieut. Norris says the island itself is jammed to capacity with a race mixture of everything from Haitians to Honolulu, giving the streets of Honolulu a very colorful aspect. Even with a great number of Americans pouring in for defense jobs the Japanese population remains greater than any other single race living there.

Routing defense preparations were trebled several weeks ago when hostility between the United States and Japan rose to a new high. Lieut. Norris explained that "since then, we have been on an 'alert' basis, 50 percent of the men in each regiment being in the area at all times and the rest subject to constant call." According to Lieut. Norris the army in Hawaii is prepared for any emergency, for the entire army personnel is busy occupied in laying out, digging and erecting firing positions all along the coast and up in the hills. Navy patrols, marine and coast artillery units also keep constant guard along the coast.

Part of defense preparations is the defense training, both for officers and privates. Lieut. Norris' first assignment was to take an entire company out to their positions in the field. They remained isolated in the hills for an entire week. Officers' school is held every afternoon and Lieut. Norris was looking forward to an aerial reconnaissance flight in which he and several other officers were to fly around the islands for two or three hours in an army bomber, attempting to identify various defense positions.

Lieut. Norris is very enthusiastic about the island climate, describing it as the type California claims to have. He says, "We have rain here almost every day, but it is a warm mid S&T and rarely does one wear a raincoat; he just gets wet and then lets the sun dry him out. It gets pretty warm here during the day, but at night we sleep under blankets."

"Only a technicolor film can do justice to the natural beauty of Hawaii," thinks Lieut. Norris. The army reservation is many miles square and wonderfully landscaped. Along Wahiawa road are located the well-appointed barracks of the various regiments, each set placed in a hollow square with a large drill field in the center. The officers' quarters are Spanish in design, their cream-colored walls and bright green roofs making a vivid contrast to the rich volcanic red of the island soil. Hundreds of funny little black birds strutting around the grounds are a source of much amusement to the soldiers.

Although they are only 10 miles from the ocean, Lieut. Norris says it seems so far removed he sometimes forgets he is walking around on a speck in the middle of the Pacific.

Nebraska youths are among those from the middlewest being sought for such careers as they have proved their intelligence, ambition and fine moral character. At the suggestion of Secretary of Navy Knox, F. W. Huse has been named one of the navy editors to bring information about the opportunities of navy service.

An announcement from Washington states that a limited number of men between the ages of 17 and 50 will be given opportunity to enlist in the navy or naval reserve and thus get training in jobs for which they show an aptitude. They will be placed, as a result of examinations, in one of the 50 different trades and vocations for which they are best fitted. These trades include aviation machinist, dental technician, photographer, diesel engineer, radio technician, electrician, welder, storekeeper and baker. Enlisted men may also qualify for commissions as officers.

Starting this week the navy will accept new qualified men for training for a limited time. These men will be sent to one of four naval training stations and may have a chance to go to a navy trade school even before assignment to the fleet. During this period they will be given regular navy pay and the navy's free schooling.

"Never in the history of the United States has there been greater opportunity for loyal young Americans to serve their country and build their futures than right now," states Secretary Knox. "It is possible for a bright young man to increase his pay seven times during his first enlistment and he can earn as much as $126 a month. This monthly figure is worth more when it is remembered that the man has few living expenses and is provided with the finest of medical and dental care. He has all his food and lodging, also his original outfit of clothing provided free by Uncle Sam. In addition there are free sports and entertainment, free travel and adventure in colorful places."

The navy will select only 15,000 applicants a month from many times that number throughout the United States. "Navy men are a hand-picked lot. They are intelligent, ambitious men of fine character recommended by at least two local townpeople."

Issues Paper Fifty Years. A. L. Brande came to Pierce 50 years ago, August 21, and began editing the Pierce County Call. The equipment used by the Call in those days is obsolete today. All type was set by hand and presses were operated by foot power.

Receives Injuries. James Jones, Jr., of Emerson, suffered a broken collarbone, a deep gash on his head, and a badly bruised and wrenched right arm August 15, when the car in which he was riding with Bud Mitchell of Wakefield, struck the side of a culvert, somersaulted in the air, came down and pinned Jones underneath. The accident occurred three miles north and one mile west of Wakefield. Jones is convalescing at the home of his parents.

About 25 miles of new rural power lines are being built in Cumington.
