Too many burdens and extra costs are involved in the Herald's special carrier service...

Thus, during coming months copies of the Herald will be distributed through the post office as formerly...

In view of largely increased costs of production, the Herald is increasing its subscription price...

Farm and factory values have gone up. Wages have increased. Everything that enters production is in the ascension...

Subscribers will agree that in the presence of increased costs along all lines, the $2 rate is too low...

Within the next week copies of the History of Winside, in the production of which F. M. Jones and F. J. Dimmel collaborated...

The Fairbury editor has a saving sense of humor. Note these solutions: "If they can't make tires out of alcohol, maybe they could make alcohol out of tires..."

Over-indulgence on the one hand and stinted advantages on the other are extremes that should be avoided in molding juvenile character...

Wayne county rural public power district is one of 273 REA systems in 34 states that made advance payments amounting to $3,075,611 during the fiscal year ended June 30, according to Rural Electrification Administrator Harry Slattery...

Latest tabulation shows that all prepayments by REA systems during past years totaled $4,828,690. This was in addition to regular principal and interest paid totaling $17,417,913.

The prepayments made by the district have been in addition to the regular principal and interest payments required under its loan contract. REA has loaned the Wayne county district $273,036 which has enabled it to finance 310 miles of distribution lines now furnishing electricity to rural consumers in Wayne, Thurston, Cedar, Dixon, Stanton and Pierce counties.

Preparation in East Described

Lieut. Gerald Wright and W. A. Behl Tell Kiwanis Club About War.

The war from the viewpoint of one in service and also from that of the civilian on the eastern seaboard was presented to Kiwanians Monday by Lieut. Gerald Wright of Cambridge, Mass., and W. A. Behl of Brooklyn, N. Y. The former is visiting the B. W. Wrights until Friday, and Mr. Behl is with the Wm. Beckenhauers, both were introduced by A. V. Teed.

The importance of the communications service in the war was stressed by the army officer. If messages fail, results could be disastrous, he explained.

The young man told about the intercepting of a message in the first World war which enabled the Allies to launch a major drive which proved successful.

In military circles the second has come to seem longer than formerly for this unit of time has been broken down to 1000 parts. Television, the development of which has been progressing rapidly in recent years, is used in the communications service, the young man explained. Atmospheric pulsations recorded by delicate instruments enable men in service to detect movement of planes, numbers of planes, etc.

Lieut. Wright learned from RAF pilots who are recuperating in this country that the sneak trap of the Nazi ships through the English channel some time ago was a difficult problem. A time was picked when clouds hung so low that planes could not bomb from high altitudes. Low-altitude bombing is not effective because the bombs graze off and fail to get results.

The youth was informed that last week's commando raid was very successful in providing the Allies with information about defenses in western Europe.

Proposes Survey To Aid in Period

Robert Wallace Has Plan To Compile Resources Of Community.

Robert Wallace of Kansas City, regional business consultant for the United States department of commerce, spoke to a group of Wayne businessmen Wednesday noon at Hotel Stratton on "helps" for the small community and small business during the war and in the post-war period.

Wallace explained that perhaps more than any other single problem the department of commerce is concerned with the difficulties confronting small towns. Inadequate skilled labor, inadequate housing, transportation and power facilities, also remoteness from sources of raw materials and complementary industries have made it impossible for small towns to secure industrial plants. The great contribution which these communities are making to winning the war is normal business of agricultural production.

The "Small Town Manual," a survey compiled by the department of commerce, shows small towns how to help win the war and at the same time help themselves by making the town a better place in which to live.

"Investigate your facilities and bring them to the attention of the proper authorities," the speaker urged. "The department of commerce is ready to refer to the proper agencies in Washington any prospectus which the small city provides." Wallace assured Wayne folks that careful attention will be given suggestions made.

Kiwanis Attends Church in Group

Wayne Kiwanis club has recently voted to attend, as a body, one church service each year as a club project. This custom is observed by many Kiwanis as well as other clubs. Next Sunday the club will attend the Methodist church. The members are expected to bring their ladies. Bows will be reserved for the group.

"We Are Builders" is the club's watch word. Dr. Victor West will use that theme for his sermon text. Sale Is Success. The Frank Woehler estate sale Monday was attended by a good crowd and things sold well. State National bank clerked the sale.

STOPPING TRAINS DUE TO INEVITABLE TREND OF THE DAY

PERMISSION to discontinue passenger trains between Sioux City and Norfolk and between Sioux City and O'Neill has been granted. Old-time jostling crowds at Wayne railroad station long ago faded with increasing automobile travel. Disappearance of branch-line rail service generally is in prospect, and is unavoidable. Railroad heads are too smart to stop trains that are profitable. If they could afford to run them, they would do so. Community representatives who tried to convince the railroads that they were doing well enough to keep up their service, showed noble public spirit, but in face of the facts—especially patent to railroad investors—the effort was a good deal like an overly confident sheep bleating at the moon and expecting to be able to change its course. Doubtless the time will come when no branch railway line will be in operation in the state.

War Materials Must Be Found

District Gathering Is Held In Wayne to Intensify Salvage Efforts.

Intensified and constant salvage of materials needed for the war effort was stressed Wednesday evening last week at a district meeting in Wayne auditorium. R. M. Carhart, Wayne county chairman, presided. J. T. Bressler, Jr., is district salvage chairman. John Clapper and Robert Woods of Omaha, were here to stress the need for the continuous campaign and to give technical information about materials sought.

All kinds of metal, rubber and grease are urgently sought in the new intensified effort which begins at once and continues for the duration.

Nebraska just completed the most successful scrap drive in the nation and realized about 66,000 tons of material. It is estimated that this state alone has 100,000 tons more available. The only way that steel and rubber mills can be kept operating is through the salvage drive, and these plants must be kept moving for successful war effort.

The necessity for farmers and townspeople to make an extra special effort this fall to gather material. (Continued from Page One)

Elected to High Office in State

Dr. L. J. Kilian Is Chosen Senior Vice-Commander By Legion Group.

Dr. L. J. Kilian of Wayne, was elected senior vice-commander of the Nebraska department of the American Legion Tuesday, the final day of the annual meeting in Omaha. This places him in second to the highest office in the state organization. Dr. Kilian was also named delegate at large from Nebraska to the national convention. Dr. Kilian has been Third district commander this year.

John E. Curtiss of Lincoln, was chosen commander of the Nebraska department.

Nebraskans decided at the convention that men serving in the present war should not yet be taken into membership of the Legion organization.

Other Wayne Legionnaires attending the meetings from Sunday to Tuesday evening were C. E. Nicholas and Frank Heine. Mrs. J. H. Brugger, Mrs. E. J. Hunter and Mrs. Frank Heine attended the Auxiliary meetings of the convention. Mrs. Kilian accompanied her husband to Omaha and visited in the Carl Schweider home.

Regular term of district court is set for September 21. Judge Lyle Jackson of Neligh, will likely be here.

Group Inducted From This Area

Supply of 1-A Men Here Is Sufficient to Make Up September Quota.

Wayne county men who passed physical tests at Fort Crook last week for induction into army service are Henry Mau, Howard Summers, John Russell Johnson, John Koll, Clark Kai, John Roll, Emil Kell, Warren Erlanson, Julius Meyer and Lawrence Heikes. Leo Martinson and Marshall Fleming, who went from here, and were accepted, had been transferred from other points. The men had gone August 15 for examinations and leave August 31 for service.

Enlistments include Allen Spittenger, Donald Wacker, Leslie Walden, M. A. Siel, Fay Wilbur Hampton and Donald Wayne Gillespie.

A quota of 50 to 60 is to be called for September 18. Wayne county has sufficient 1-A men for this call. Thereafter, however, quotas will have to be met with 1-B men being transferred to 1-A, with newly registered youths reaching the age of 20 and with those having dependent status.

Abandonment of 1-B class, announced from Washington, will soon speed using these men to relieve others who are qualified for more active service. The 1-B men are those physically able to do only limited military service. Nebraska has 5,600 of these who will be reclassified to 1-A.

Reclassification of all married men will begin late this fall, according to Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey. "Men with secondary dependents or a wife only will be taken first. Industry must replace so-called vital men otherwise eligible for army service with women or older men," the officer stated.

A ball game between the farmers and town men was featured, the farmers winning 14-10 in seven innings. Walfrid Carlson was umpire and manager for the farmers. C. C. Sturtz and W. P. Thomas were in charge for the town men. On the farm team were Jiggs Walker, Clarence Carlson, Don Carlson, Kenneth Ramsey, Robert Meyer, Louie Brauer, Butch Weible, Leo Jordan, Mr. Beckner of Winside, Russell Fryer and Gilbert Dangle. Wayne band, also the Blue Moon swing band from Winside, furnished music for a concert Monday evening.

Joins in Protest On Train Removal

Congressman Karl Stefan said Monday that he has written to the railway commission and Governor Dwight Griswold in support of the protest against abandonment of trains No. 4 and 5 on the Norfolk-South Sioux City run.

The congressman said he had joined citizens at Wayne, Winside and other points along the line in asking that the railway commission order approving abandonment of the trains be reconsidered and that a new study of the situation be made.

Stefan believes that there will be a heavy demand for freight service, particularly in view of the large small grain harvest and the large corn crop soon to be harvested.

Fred A. Krienke, Jr. and Miss Adeline M. Hoffman, both of Stewart, Minn., were married August 25 by Judge J. M. Cherry.

THE KNOT-HOLE

Vol. 6 Wayne, Neb., Thurs., Aug. 27, 1942. No. 5

Nature, as always, thought of it first when it fastened rock backs under bees.

The man who thinks of it first is the one who is going to be well prepared this winter. He has already bought his winter's supply of coal, we have made arrangements to have that new corn crib built, he's fixing his fences right now, and he'll have his buildings painted with children's paint next month. How about you?

If you are going to have a temporary crib this fall, we have a bunch of them bought and on the way to Wayne. How long this supply of cribs will last is hard to say. If you are going to need any, stop in and let us know how many you want.

Soldiers in large numbers will vote this year, and an admiring congress

New Type Letter Proves Practical

The post office department announced that the V-mail service, inaugurated June 15, 1942, is now past the experimental stage, with each week showing large increases in the number of letters mailed to American soldiers overseas.

V-mail service provides for the use by patrons of a special letter sheet form which is a combination letter and envelope of uniform size and design. Victory food special

Wayne county AAA community committee members and their wives met at the city hall Saturday to discuss current problems with Fieldman Reed. Nebraska farmers are tentatively slated to go to community polling places September 18/19 to elect community AAA committee members for the coming year. Farmers are asked to remember the date. WPB board has delegated to the commodity credit corporation authority over vegetable oils and products. CCC will handle price, storage and processing problems on bumper crops of cottonseed, flaxseed, peanuts and soybeans. Jumbo peanuts are scarce because of their large oil content. Department of agriculture estimates the number of cattle on feed for market in the corn belt August 1, 1942, at 10 per cent below a year ago. This does not mean fewer cattle for cattle numbers are higher. Nebraska last January had 183,000 head more cattle than on the same date in 1941. One factor in the decrease of cattle on feed is the excellent condition of range land which enables producers to hold back stock for increased grass gains. OPA has amended rationing regulations to permit one pound of sugar for each four quarts of home-canned fruit juices. This is in addition to sugar allowances for home-canned fruit. Food production in the United States is expected to go 9 per cent over the previous all-time figure established in 1941. The total is estimated at 25 per cent over the 1936-39 average. The increase this year alone is greater than the entire 1914-18 war increase of 5 per cent. Farmers have been asked by Secretary Wickard to aid in the battle against wartime inflation as well as in the wartime production. The secretary advocates ceilings after prices reach 100 per cent of parity and subsidies where needed to guarantee maximum production. Every effort should be made to conserve baling wire as supplies will be less in 1943. NEWS ABOUT THE WAR From Office of Emergency Management The rumors that mercury will be rationed is not true, the OPA says. Because funeral services involve caskets, urns, burial garments and other miscellaneous articles, the OPA says that this business must have ceiling prices also, so nothing can be sold for higher prices than in March. Pupils who live less than two miles from school will not be provided with transportation facilities by school buses. An urgent appeal has been made to housewives in Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas to turn in more fats and greases, for less has been turned in this part of the country than in any other section. The container in which fats and greases are saved should be kept in a cool place—for rancid fat loses its glycerine content. The WPB has reduced the iron and steel that can be used for cooking utensils to only 70 percent of the rate used during the 12 months ending June 30, 1941. American farmers and dairymen have produced so much cheese that the department of agriculture urges people to eat more of this nutritious food. Omaha graduated 1015 air raid wardens at Joslyn memorial August 19. Boston city had established a "Rumor Clinic" to track down the source of and analyze all the war gossip which circulates in that area. A warning was sent out by the OPA that the tire quota for September is going to be cut below that of August. A new amendment to the tire rationing regulations was that trucks carrying luxuries such as alcoholic beverages, soft drinks, candies, furs and such will not be allowed to have tires. Truck owners who signed U. S. truck conservation corps pledges warned not to send them to Washington, but to the official U. S. truck conservation corps station.

tion now also covers these things: Repair, maintenance, storage, parking, rental, washing, painting, towing and other services in connection with automotive vehicles. The WMC has issued an appeal to all men working in mines, mills and smelters producing lead and other metals essential to the war industry, to stay on their jobs and produce these metals in these times when they are so needed. The WPB tightened its restriction on shearings. Now all shearings, except grade No. 4, are to be used in army and navy flying suits. Movie owners and operators are urged to conserve their equipment, because due to war regulations it will be hard to get. The government is anxious to keep theaters open because of the effect they have on the morale of the people. A maximum price regulation has been set on numerous wood products which are made by turning or shaping lumber to a pattern on a cutting machine—such as tool handles, wagon spokes and tent pins. Another special regulation has been set on the maximum price that farmers can pay for their jumpers, overalls, work shirts and other staple clothing. Because the manufacture of wire hangers has been stopped, dry cleaners and laundries may require a reasonable special deposit to make sure that the wire coat hangers in delivery garments will be returned. School busses which are used to take athletic teams on trips will lose their eligibility for new tires. Patronize the advertisers

Sharp Reminder
ON SEPTEMBER 1, 1923—19 years ago—Japan was visited by a devastating, death-dealing earthquake. About one hundred thousand natives were killed. Buildings were reduced to ruins, supplies were destroyed, famine stalked and disease descended. Where did Japan turn for relief? To America, operating through its wonderfully efficient Red Cross. Ten million dollars were raised in the United States and were converted into means to help the stricken Nipponese whose leaders then exclaimed: "Japan never will forget."

Soon, however, the devilish little islanders did forget. They stealthily drew from the United States materials with which to fight us. Then came Pearl Harbor, and evidence of ingratitude that was blacker than darkest night. Japan stabbed its old-time benefactor in the back.

Amidst its burning embers and misery and death, it turned to the democracy which it would now overthrow. But it will find it has stirred a giant from its peace, and that its bold treachery will be avenged. The agony of Pearl Harbor is deepened by recollection of America's contribution to sufferers in the 1923 earthquake.

Hard SMALL businesses are in a tough spot. All are hurt by the unavoidable exigencies of war—some have had to suspend. If they behaved selfishly as union labor leaders we would feel like giving up in despair. But they don't. They usually accept the inevitable with iron courage, knowing that the war must be won in order that they may later come back in full flower.

The bulk of the country's business and of innumerable little services is handled by persons of comparatively small investments and small incomes. These groups, eclipsed in popular attention by other groups, are indispensable to satisfactory functioning of free enterprise, and burdens imposed on them in the course of emergency regulations should carefully consider consequences.

Small supply and service units are numerous and necessary in the smooth working of economic freedom, and they should be protected as far as consistent with the war effort. The mere fact that they do not complain may cause neglect of their needs.

Future of Business
A WARNING appears in the current Publishers' Auxiliary that an attempt may be made in congress to prohibit the use of brands and trade names on all commodities and further to abolish the profit system. If successful, the movement would put operation of business into the hands of the government and destroy competition. The report senses a revival of Rexford Tugwell's idea which was frustrated some years ago. As suggested by the Auxiliary's report, a bill of the kind mentioned might be put over during the excitement of war unless newspapers and others are awakened to prevent it. The result would threaten nationalization of business and industry and would virtually strangle the newspapers of the country. Without an independent and self-sustaining press, popular liberties would suffer.

The Harlan, Iowa, Tribune tells a story of childish treatment of the proposed scrap metal drive in Iowa. The Omaha World-Herald which had gained valuable experience in sponsoring a successful campaign in Nebraska, had offered to cooperate in the neighboring state's effort, using its columns freely for the purpose and putting up attractive prizes to spur interest. The Iowa director at Des Moines wanted to know if Iowa people wanted the World-Herald to run its drive and suggested that Nebraska might try to capture credit. The imperative need for old metal seems wholly overlooked in manifestations of such pettiness. Powers in Washington should weed out of leadership in war activities everywhere every individual who is unable to put the one big objective—winning the war—above trifling jealousies.

Nebraska weather has plenty of both vitamins A and B, reflected in its energy in making changes. Last week furnished an emphatic example. An all-summer high was reached one day, and an all-summer low the next day. Since expressing two extremes with intensity, the elements settled down to an agreeable mean. Corn is still reassuring, and no likely turn in the weather can be had enough to hurt. Stalks are tall and heavy and ears are big and sound. Barley was rather disappointing, but other small grain equalled expectations. A wet fall, soaking the soil to a great depth, will lay the foundation for next year's promise.

The place to lead in suspending politics is in Washington. The place to lead in cutting out trivial differences and uniting in war activities is in Washington. The president recently advised department heads to quit quarreling over little things and get busy in the big job of winning the war. The mid-west's scrap iron drive, bond purchases, subscription campaigns and its dynamic action in behalf of everything back of prosecution of the war may well be emulated by the capital city and other neighboring areas. They may not be complacent, but they waste a lot of misdirected energy.

An oldster dreams of his youth, and sees fresh young faces, now seamed with age. He sees active and buoyant companions, now unsteady and halting under the weight of years. He feels a resurgence of an inferiority complex, common to young persons. In his sleep, the personalities of fifty years ago reappear, and realities then are recast in the imagination—often to delight, sometimes to annoy. If one may be restored to youth in his dreams, may he not also be able to adjust himself to any age when he becomes disembodied? That would facilitate acquaintance.

Jim Farley's man, John Bennett, defeated the president's choice for the democratic nomination for governor of New York, and Tom Dewey, aspirant for the republican presidential nomination in 1940, is the gubernatorial nominee of New York's republican state convention. Neither candidate is favored by the new deal or by the labor unions. In commenting on New York politics, Westbrook Pegler, columnist, says both candidates are inimical to labor rings and will be opposed by them. A third candidate will help assure Dewey's election.

Youth is an asset of surpassing value. Its vista stretches so far into the future that a big program may be fashioned and almost anything may be conceived as possible. But the largest asset falling to the lot of the oldster whose hopes are largely behind him, is popular respect and confidence, and the knack to persuade little children to trust and like him.

Nature horned in on man-directed blackouts Tuesday night. It was an eclipse of the moon, and it scored the usual success.

Perhaps toadying too much to Argentina has made it the least friendly among South American nations.

What He Really Means

(Norfolk Daily News)

County Fairs Doing Well

(Omaha Daily Journal-Stockman)

Reports from county fairs this summer are all to the effect that they have not been adversely affected by war conditions or by the temporary abandonment of the larger district and state fairs. This is all to the good as the county fair has always been a healthy stimulator of farm improvement. At the same time the nation is going to sadly miss the big livestock shows this fall. We will learn by actual experience what a large place the good stock shows have made for themselves here in the United States. Furthermore, it now seems certain that after the war is over these fairs and stock shows will assume greater value and importance than ever in the rebuilding of livestock production.

Let That Be Their Epitaph

(Lincoln Journal)

Calling the Dieppe commando raid "one of the great military enterprises of history," where "no man reckoned his life higher than the cause he stood for," Drew Middleton, correspondent of the Associated Press at London, and who was an eye witness of that successful venture, added, "Let that be an epitaph for the dead." In that greatest of all raids on enemy held territory men died for a cause. They faced deadly gunfire of a defending force. They reckoned not the cost as they fought for the cause. "They died to make men free."

Comparisons are distasteful, but they are seen in vivid contrast on the production and the battle fronts. If men die for freedom, can't we at least work for it, pay the cost of keeping it, and carry the torch along to us by those who fall?

Look West, Mr. Stimson

(Omaha World-Herald)

Secretary of War Stimson's decision to lop off 75 or so of the army's "public relations" officers in Washington and assign them to active duty with troops should receive a lusty cheer from the country. It is an overdue recognition of the fact that the war will be won by fighting, not by showing the enemy a hefty book of press clippings.

And while applauding the secretary's action in this case, we invite his attention to the situation at Fort Des Moines, as revealed by Edward Morrow of this newspaper's staff.

The public relations office at the WAAC post there requires, according to Mr. Morrow, that every visiting newspaperman sign a statement pledging that he will submit everything he writes for censorship. And the censor, naturally enough, is very choosy about what he permits to be printed. His guiding principle is to allow publication of only those news items and pictures that will present the WAAC "in a proper light."

If a photograph shows a WAAC lady officer in an unattractive pose, the public-relations censor bans it. If a news item seems to him slighting or disrespectful in any degree he suppresses it. Nothing may go out unless it seems to the censor to convey a favorable impression of the camp's personnel and its activities.

As Mr. Morrow observes, that is not military censorship. It is propagandist censorship. Its purpose is to keep legitimate news—of no conceivable value to the enemy—away from the American people. Its result will be to prevent criticism of the management, even though criticism may be richly merited and needed.

How about it, Mr. Stimson? Do you still have the ax handy?

CHRISTIANITY.

The bold attempt on the part of axis leaders to crush Christianity has intensified the underlying spirit of the one great hope kept alive and aflame in subjugated lands. Every minister and follower of the doctrine of the peaceful Nazarene must recoil with horror at thought of the brutal treatment meted out to people on account of their religion. The Christian Science Monitor reports that in Poland about 800 priests were executed, murdered without trial, or tortured to death, and that about 3,000 are now in concentration camps. Similar reports come from other enslaved countries. The Monitor comments in conclusion: "Thus the beast—not man—slouches on. But as it slouches, Christian soldiers march. Today it is reported that the Christian church is leading the spiritual revolt against the cruelty and moral corruption of the Nazi rule, and that persecution is strengthening Christianity rather than weakening it. History shows it ever has been thus."

INTENSE LOYALTY.

We herewith refer to a letter received from Rev. W. A. Mansur, at one time pastor of the Methodist church at Winside, now residing in Omaha, to show the intense spirit of Americanism possessed by a man of foreign birth. He knows from experience the difference between living in the United States and trying to exist abroad. Contrasting conditions here with those in alien lands fires his devotion to the country of his adoption. He recalls the struggles among castes, the shackles on thinking, the barriers to progress and he is eager to do more and more to keep America free from totalitarian tentacles. In his closing paragraph, he expresses himself in this way: "My son has been placed in the third year at the University of Omaha. His mother and I and the family thrill with the thought that some day we shall have a son in the American uniform and stand for all it means to us. For after all, liberty won at a price, is also liberty worth defending and fighting for."

Is Lost in Action In Egyptian Battle

Sergeant Raymond Collier Was Only Brother of Wayne Young Lady.

Sergeant Raymond Collier, 21, brother of Miss Eileen Collier who is here with Miss Margaret Scherfel, was killed in action in Egypt. The young English RAF bomber is thought to have lost his life in July when the English and nazis clashed in Africa. Word came to Miss Collier from England.

Sergeant Collier, only son in the English family, enlisted more than two years ago in the air service. This summer he was sent to Egypt on a conveyer that made the trip around Cape Horn, requiring two months and reaching Egypt, June 24. The youth wrote to his sister here after he had reached Africa.

The sergeant leaves his widowed mother and one sister, Gwendolyn, 8, in England, and his other sister, Miss Eileen, here. It was five years ago this month that Miss Eileen was with her mother, brother and sister before coming to America to make her home.

vanced communications training in Cambridge.

Tells of Kij Defenses. W. A. Behl told Kijwanians that he feels just as safe in New York as though he were in Nebraska. The mammoth job of organizing defenses has been accomplished most effectively. This protection was arranged after a committee made a special trip to London to secure information.

Guns, listening posts and searchlights are successfully hidden and ready for use in an instant. In all vacant lots are anti-aircraft guns and crews ready for action. Reconnoiter planes fly over the land and sea areas constantly in search of enemies.

Any report of a suspicious plane or sea craft is reported to the information center and is then sent to the filter center. There the importance of the danger is determined and decision made as to what to do. The message is then relayed to defense headquarters, the location of which is not known to the public. Messages go from headquarters to each borough of which New York has five. Then the information is sent to precincts and from there to the sectors. Each sector includes about 5,000 citizens and an air raid wardens watches over each such division.

Medical, demolition, feeding, housing and other emergency services are organized in each sector and are ready to function on notice.

This process for each danger signal sounds as though it might take some time but actually it is done within a very few seconds of this procedure. The blue signal, indicating danger, is not public. The yellow signal, meaning that danger is closer, is also not made public. When danger is certain the red light is used. The public is then warned to take needed precautions.

Wardens check each home in their district to see that blackout curtains are used, and that seven-foot-handle shovel, pail of sand, pails of water, bathtub of water and spray pump are on hand.

Bright lights of New York show no more, Mr. Behl explained. They are out for the duration. Stop signals on streets are tiny crosses of light. Cars either use dimmers or painted headlights.

The policy of crowding into underground shelters is passe, the easterner explained. It seems that officials now believe that the greatest safety is afforded when persons assemble on the main floor of a building rather than crowding into underground spaces.

Mr. Steube and his attendants, Herman Steube, jr., his brother, and Walter Johnson, brother of the bride, each in brown suit and wearing a white carnation boutonniere, entered from a side door and took their places at the altar.

Miss Doris Fredrickson, niece of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, led the bridal procession. She wore peach organza with high neck, Peter Pan collar and full skirt trimmed with lace edging. Her corsage was of Johanna Hill roses.

Miss Irma Hinnerichs, as bridesmaid, followed. Her gown was of blue organza. The square neckline was trimmed in lace and the full skirt had lace inserts between the flounces. Her corsage was also of Johanna Hill roses.

Mrs. Herman Steube, jr., of Winside, was matron of honor. She wore pink chiffon, fashioned with full skirt and lace bodice. Johanna Hill roses made up her corsage.

Miss Johnson, who entered with her father, wore a gown of white satin fashioned in princess style and with a train. The sweetheart neckline was trimmed with lace and pearls. Her lace-edged fingertip veil fell from a coronet trimmed with seed pearls and beading. She carried an arm bouquet of pink Briarcliff roses and baby-breath.

The bride's chosen colors of pink, peach and blue were carried out in the reception. Tapers and a wedding cake decorated the bride's table. Miss Patricia Tucker and Miss Ila Jean Roberts of Carroll, Miss Ardath Bareman, Miss Fern Nimrod and Miss Priscilla Sandahl of Wakefield, and Miss Alta Baier of Wayne, who served, wore dresses in pastel colors and white organza aprons. Besides guests from nearby points, the W. F. Broecker family of Bancroft, and Aug. Broecker family of Pillager were here from a distance.

Mrs. Steube and two of her brothers are triplets. These brothers were unable to attend the wedding as both are in the armed forces. Alvin is in Glendale, Cal., and Robert at Rice, Cal.

AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

The war department differs with congress in many matters, some of which relate to the war and some of which are domestic problems occasioned by the war. The war department is looked to by all people to provide the military leadership to win the war. It has received from congress every dollar it has requested for the war program, and every grant of authority it has asked for. Its influence because of its responsibilities is very great and constantly becoming greater. With winning the war the first and paramount issue, that influence is not likely to become less until peace comes after victory.

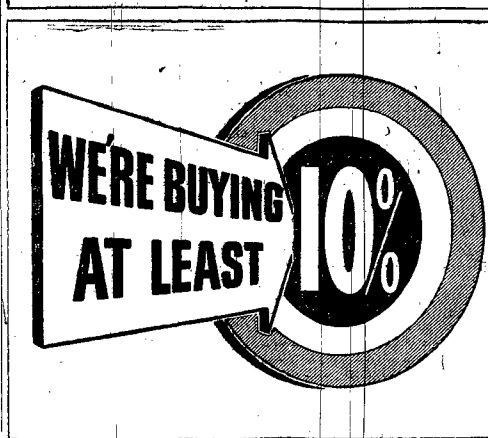

But there are differences of opinion between congress and the war department which in no way detract from the earnest endeavors of congress to support the department in every possible way. There has just been a flare-up in congress over the payment of allowances to the dependents of enlisted men in the armed services.

When the expansion of the army was begun, and the national guard was drawn into the federal service, the matter of dependents commenced to demand attention. When the base pay of soldiers was increased from $30 to $50 per month, provision was made for soldiers' allotments, but not in anticipation that soldiers could make allotments sufficient to maintain their families at home. The exemption of married men from selective service did not settle the question of dependency as to parents of soldiers, etc.

To meet the situation, congress passed the servicemen's dependents allowance act of 1942 which provides for the payment of family allowances to certain relatives and dependents of noncommissioned enlisted men. The allowance consists of a monthly contribution from the government and one from the enlisted man which is deducted from his pay. The war department insisted that due to the immense amount of clerical and administrative work involved, there would need to be an interval of not less than four months before the beginning of the payment of family allowances to the dependents of soldiers. It is true that possibly a million applications will be filed, that there will be much work connected with the servicing of each application; that it will take much time to send communications to and receive communications from men now serving outside of the United States. Originally, at the instance of the war department, the beginning of the payment of family allowances was deferred to November 1, 1942, although then or thereafter, there would be payment of all of the allowance that had accrued since the application was filed. The pinch of hard times for dependents caused congress to receive thousands of requests for immediate payment of family allowances and the result is that, now, both the house and the senate have passed a repealer of that language in the servicemen's dependents allowance act of 1942 which deferred payment of the allowances until November 1, 1942. It does not follow that all allowances will or can be paid beginning immediately, if and when the president approves the repealer. It does follow, however, that the allowances can be paid as fast as applications can be processed and without any fixed postponement of pay day in the law.

The president has issued a further appeal for increased production of war goods and facilities. He praises the remarkable progress made, but wants more and more accomplished. Co-incident with his appeal comes a critical statement from one of the new war boards that as yet our country is only "knee-deep" in our preparations. It demands that hundreds of small industries shall be enlisted in the war effort. It may be remembered that congress has endeavored to have the smaller industries so engaged, and made available hundreds of millions of dollars, thus far without much success. Then comes another administrative bureau complaining that there is a great shortage of materials for industries now in full operation, including plane factories.

Let Everybody Know You're Investing 10 Percent of Your Income in War Bonds

The attractive red, white and blue window sticker, pictured above, is the new standard of patriotism in the War Bond drive throughout the nation. With the slogan, "Everybody every pay day, ten percent," sweeping the country, patriotic Americans on the home front are rallying to their Government's appeal for funds with which to help finance the war. The home which displays the "ten percent" sticker is doing its share toward Victory for America and the United Nations. The stickers are being distributed through local War Savings Chairmen.

With the war news from abroad less encouraging than all of us wish, more reports and comments of the kind are likely to come. The president points out that great progress has been made and is being made. Over $60 billions are available in this fiscal year. Money alone will not produce, but with the enormous expansion of facilities now being made, and the millions of new employees being trained and entering industry, all production is likely to be in excess of the original demands by the end of the year.

The department of agriculture states that agricultural production is surpassing the estimates made for this year by approximately 21 per cent. Even the corn crop which did not promise so well earlier in the season, may break all records and approach three billion bushels.

The Alaskan situation occasions more and more concern, particularly in Alaska and in the Pacific coast states. Anthony Dimond, who knows much about Alaska and its outlying islands, has made several stirring speeches in the house upon the necessity of ousting the Japs from the few islands they have occupied at the western end of the Aleutians. Among his demands is one for a unified command of army, navy and air forces. The war and navy departments have been reticent as to what is being done, but the naval attack on the Japs at Kiska may indicate that there is a surprise move impending just as has been sprung on the Solomon islands in the southwestern Pacific.

In the conservation of materials for war purposes one of the recent orders is that of "freezing" used silk hosiery and socks. Experiments have produced a method of utilizing used silk for some very essential purposes. There will be no drive put on for socks and stockings. It appears, however, that there have been dealers purchasing silk stockings and repairing them for re-sale to the trade, and such stockings will be taken over. Bacon fat from frying pans is being bought and paid for to provide additional glycerine for ammunition. These are only a few instances of orders for conservation of what in ordinary times would be regarded as rather inconsequential commodities. Fats for glycerine also are obtainable from vegetable oils, peanut and soybean oil yielding about nine percent of glycerine. The production of both those oils will exceed by millions of pounds that of previous years.

Supt. J. W. Litherland was in Lincoln Monday on business.

First Blackout. (Norfolk Daily News) The northeast Nebraska town of Creighton was honored by its selection as the first in Nebraska to put on the blackout test. Cash In Advance Basis For The Wayne Herald Goes Into Effect October 1

Production costs are increasing. The tire situation is critical and prevents additional canvassing of the territory. The Herald is being sent FREE to hundreds of home boys in the armed forces.

Due to all these factors, the Herald will enforce a strictly cash in advance policy before a likely necessary increase in subscription price.

Subscribers who are in arrears should contact the Herald office at once to make arrangements satisfactory to both parties and to insure continuation of their papers.

No subscriptions, new or renewal, will be accepted at the $2 a year rate further than two years in advance.

Present subscribers are urged to attend to their subscription dates without delay. New subscriptions may be entered now at the $2 a year rate.

Books Accessioned At Wayne Library

Wayne library has received a shipment of new books. Among the ones for adults is "Follow the Leader," by Clyde Brion Davis, which is a brilliant novel, a story of a man's rise to fame and power told knowingly. The author made him a character one will not forget. Another novel is "The Uninvited," by Dorothy Macardie, which borders on the mystery. It has been compared to the story, "Rebecca," which was so popular last year.

Other novels are "The Boy from Maine," by Katharine Brush, about a young man from Maine who came to New York after the other war and made a success; "Mr. and Mrs. Cougatt," by Isabel Scott Rorick, which is a light and fast entertaining story; "Small Town South," by Sam Byrd, a very human story.

The new mystery books for adults include: "The Case of the Drowning Duck," Eric Gardner; "The Man Who Slept All Day," Michael Venning; "Murder in Retrospect," Agatha Christie; "Enter a Murder," Nagio Marsh; "Haunted Lady," Mary Roberts Rinehart.

Among the children's books are: "Ginger Lee War Nurse," by Dorothy Fleming, a career book for teen age girls; "Andy Jackson, A Boy Soldier," Augusta Stevenson; "A War-Time Handout for Young Americans," by Munroe Leaf.

IT'S PATRIOTIC to Get 'Em to Market

Pig Early AND Early and It's PROFITABLE, too!

Meat is fighting food—more pork and more beef are needed for your country's fighting men. It's your job to produce as much as you can this year. Come in, let us show you the Purina plan to help you produce capacity pork and beef for your country.

Ask Us About Doing the Job with these PURINA SUPPLEMENTS

PURINA HOG CHOW
Many leading hog men say they average 100 lbs. of pork with 5 1/2 bushels of corn and 50 lbs. of Purina Hog Chow on the Purina Plan. That means fast gains that help them hit the early market—get a better price for corn on the hoof. Hog Chow puts on the pounds...quick and thick. Ask us about it!

PURINA STEER FATENA
... goes with your grain to put on fast gains and market-topping finish. Steer Fatena doesn't take the place of the grain you raise on the farm... it's built to round out your feeding program—help your grain give better results—and get more money for your grain.

Arrangements can be made to finance this feed. Payment to be made when hogs are marketed.

Soldier on Hike With Broken Arm

Women Hunters of Bargains Finally Give Up Shoes When Price Rises.

Pvt. John J. Murphy dropped out of line as his outfit returned from a 14-mile hike under full field equipment. To his captain he explained: "I broke my arm last night and I think I'd better have it put in a sling."

Out from the dollar day shopping crowd around a Williamsport, Pa. shoe counter limped two women, each holding one shoe—mates. Neither would give up her share of the bargain, and both sat down to wait. Four hours later the women were still sitting, glaring. So the manager took the shoes off sale and replaced the regular price tag. The ladies left.

Ollie Smile, Chicago, frowned as he telephoned the police that all the door knobs, locks and hinges and towel racks disappeared just as his workmen were preparing to install them in the house he was building. Upon the suggestion of police, Smile's six workers started taking a lie detector test. Two of them had passed the test successfully when the detector broke down. Then three express packages came and brought a smile to Smile's face, for they contained the hardware. Police, checking the return address, found only a cemetery.

Laborers came and went so fast on a federal building project at Oxnard, Calif., that officials got busy and figured out why. The workers who must drive quite a distance were eligible for recapped tires, and many were working just long enough to get them. Things are different now.

Geo. Metzger who has been on the same job for 72 years, thinks he may be the oldest war worker in the nation. Metzger, a blacksmith in a Philadelphia factory, helped make dies for the government during the Spanish-American war. He's doing it again now—at 85. Philadelphia cops broke up a game of cops and robbers when neighbors complained that the play was too realistic. Police Sgt. John Armstrong said the cop, 15 years old, had a blackjack and a jobber, aged 15, was armed with three revolvers, one loaded. The arsenal—which the boys said they had "borrowed" from their fathers—was confiscated.

At Poplar Bluff, Mo., Deputy Sheriff Bill Brent was busy all day warning people not to leave valuables in unlocked cars—the circus was in town and he feared the influx of pickpockets. He was so busy, in fact, he confessed to the sheriff, that he forgot to lock his own car. From it someone stole his new pants.

Velox, the blind polar bear at Denver, was moved into the sealion's spacious, moat-grilled quarters because the bear's former home was too small. The seal lion hasn't had a good swim since. It's still hiding atop a rock.

Charles Karlove of Crystal Lake, Ill., didn't let a thing like seven dental cavities keep him out of the naval air corps. Rejected by an examining dentist, Karlove returned two hours later and showed the officer six shiny new fillings and the space where the seventh bad tooth had been. He passed.

A plane swooped low and San Francisco residents found thousands of little pill-like objects on the ground. Fearing some weird Japanese weapon, they called the police. Laboratory experts studied the white pills and decided: "It's typhoid." The pills didn't come from the plane, small boys had been using them in slingshots and pea-shooters.

At Fort Bliss, Tex., Sgt. Clyde Russ got beyond his depth while splashing about in Ascacate lake. He said his cries for help went unheeded—until he yelled in desperation: "Rescue me at once! This is an order." Two buddies quickly jumped in and dragged him ashore.

Ernest Pershing Rasberry, Columbus, Ga., has petitioned the superior court to change his surname to "Berry." His petition said the change was desired because "when the petitioner is introduced socially or in private, he is instantly looked upon in the spirit of puns, jokes and jests—all to his humiliation, embarrassment and annoyance."

Even a police ambulance isn't safe, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kabat and their four children learned at Los Angeles. Injured in an automobile collision the former Lincoln, Neb., family was enroute to a hospital. The ambulance and another machine collided. The ambulance driver, seriously injured, called two other ambulances.
