

Plans and Gift Buying Start Earlier Than Usual — Wayne County Workers in Scrap Campaign Commended by Governor — Northwest Area Comes Back in Crop Production.

On account of problems of transportation and distances between soldiers and their homes, Christmas buying starts early this year. Already many centers are putting up suitable decorations to arouse holiday spirit and to help people become en rapport with the occasion. The boys in the service stationed in this county and abroad — many in the British Isles and many others in the southwest Pacific — are warmly remembered, and we hope all receive substantial gifts in time for the holiday. Soldiers' recipients should understand as they doubtless do — that gifts from loving hands and yearning hearts but faintly express depth of feeling. Every token of esteem will be accompanied by an earnest prayer for early victory and safe release from the present struggle.

Christmas good will seems at first thought wholly out of accord with grim war, though, as a matter of fact, it is prominently in harmony with the aim of a nation at war. In the fight for freedom and upholding the gentle spirit of Christmas, the life of the noble Nazarene led and forfeited is an example of what Christian leadership is now striving with all its might to maintain. The road from the manger, to the cross — lighted by lofty precepts, and then darkened by bestial lust for power — the horrors of Golgotha, the tragedy of Calvary — hope breathed by the Resurrection, pagan chains broken — fires determination and broadens and sharpens the mental horizon. Uncertainties are multiplied by the climactic conflict between forces of good and evil, and the meaning of Christmas is made stronger and more personal.

To preserve the Christian ideal which enemies seek to overthrow and crush will give increased emphasis by the central thought in the December holiday. The truth spoken and the helpful character manifested two thousand years ago will be felt more than ever. War is out of tune with the things Christmas stands for, but it must be so vigorously prosecuted that Christian virtues will rise triumphant and secure.

Through the centuries Christians have been persecuted and attacked. Again the right to follow conscience and understanding is as sacred, and the only relief — the only safeguard — is to put down assailants and dispossess them of their power. Christianity as well as other forms of liberty is threatened, and would be destroyed if enemy dictators could do what they had started out to do.

We would remind the boys who belong to the armed forces of home shores, or on the ocean, or in strange lands that they are upholding precious Christmas and the independence which it implies. On these boys depend the recurrence of Christmas and its manifold joys long after the smoke of battle has cleared and the blessings of peace have been restored.

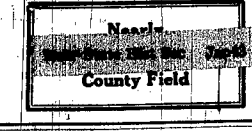

A letter from Governor Dwight Griswold to the editor expresses high appreciation for the good work done by Wayne county people in the recent scrap metal campaign. All understand how the drive was intensified and its results enlarged by the active part taken in it by the school boys and girls under the supervision of their teachers.

The farm area, northwest of Wayne has fared better in crop production than it had in a long time. In recent years it had suffered more from drought than some other sections. When a dry spell was interrupted by moisture, hail came along to spread destruction. For a series of years the northwest seemed to be out of luck. This year, however, no part has been more generously favored. It managed to escape everything unpropitious. We have heard of a field on the farm of Wm. Bebensee that is yielding 85 bushels of corn to the acre, and doubtless many others are equally fortunate. The immediate problem of Mr. Bebensee and others is to gather the big crop.

LESS GLOOM, MORE RAYS OF SUNSHINE AN ESSENTIAL NOW

IT WOULD be a source of comfort and courage if government and other experts would quit expiring in the direction of gloom. If they would stop telling us how bad it is and how much worse it will be going to be, we could carry the load easier even if it became increasingly heavy. We know self-denial in behalf of winning the war is no joy ride, and we expect extra duties and extra taxes, but we don't like to be told that business is in the toboggan and that the going is altogether uphill. We do not like to be reminded of a miscellaneous assortment of economic ills and personal restraints that perchance may fall by the wayside and fail to materialize. We wouldn't want to know what is going to happen to us in the way of sickness or accidents in the course of another year. We would meet calamities or exigencies as they overtake us rather than be in the grip of constant fear. We are advised to be calm and happy, as we brush aside blue devils, and then our feelings are pushed down to nehermost depths by lugubrious warnings. Let us bear what comes along to be borne, but let those who think they know stop spreading trepe and creating unnecessary shadows.

The monthly allowance of gasoline is 16 gallons per car, figured to give 240 miles of traveling. Persons who feel that their needs exceed this amount may make application to the county ration board. The government has fixed rules for such cases, and the board will pass on these applications.

Progress of War Looks Favorable

Machinist in Navy Predicts Americans Will Hold Solomon Islands.

That the allies will hold the Solomons and that the war will be won by next March were the encouraging opinions expressed by Machinist Freddie Reim Monday when he addressed Wayne Kiwanians. The youth, wounded in the battle of the Solomons September 5, is visiting in Concord, He, Rev. O. W. Swaback and Miss Dorothy Reimers of Concord, were guests of the Wayne group Monday.

Mr. Reim enlisted in the navy after finishing high school two and one-half years ago. He trained in Newport, R. I., three months and then went to sea. He was in Ireland and Dakar, Africa, before this country's entrance in the war. Then he was transferred to a destroyer in the Pacific and his ship took part in the last phase of the Midway battle. Afterward the destroyer helped take marines from New Zealand to Guadalcanal. It was 7 a. m., August 7, 1942, just six months to the hour after the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, that the American marines turned the tables. They found the Japs asleep on the island in the Solomons. The enemy bombers were grounded and their ships unmannead.

After landing the brave marines, the destroyers turned to the task of ridding the seas in that area of Jap submarines. The ship on which Reim was stationed, sank seven Japs. The youth told that after locating a sub by use of beams, the destroyer circles the area and finally cuts across the circle, dropping depth bombs in a V-charge, so as to dislodge the sub but not damage the destroyer. The bombs are timed, and if they explode within 500 yards of the sub, the job is usually successful. A damaged sub comes to the surface and then sinks so it is easy to know when a hit has been scored.

The youth stated that a destroyer is hard to hit with torpedoes of a sub and also difficult to strike from the air because of its fast maneuvering.

When the destroyer on which Reim served and another were watching for Japs in the waters near Henderson field, they suddenly found themselves at the mercy of three Jap cruisers and four Jap destroyers. The Japs dropped flares so they could keep track of the

Annual Education Week Is Scheduled

Halloween is observed by Training School Grades Here Last Week.

"As we approach another American Education week, teachers and students ask themselves this question: What can we do to help win the war? Among other things," states Dr. Ray Bryan, "the schools must teach the following three attitudes: First, the meaning and the value of work. We're going to have to match the totalitarian nations work for work, labor hour for labor hour, and efficiency for efficiency. Second, we must teach the meaning of self-discipline. We must do the things we're supposed to do in the place where we are and do them without whining, without excuses and without attempting to cut the corners. Third, we must maintain and increase our faith in the American way of life and our fathers' faith in our father's God. Your schools need your help. Plan to visit your school during the week November 8-14."

Field of Dairying A LETTER to the Herald from H. B. Graham, veteran ice cream manufacturer, sounds alarm over the prospect of producing sufficient cream to meet growing demands. He thinks a farmer may reap largest rewards by diversifying sources of income. The total cash payments to farmers every week by Mr. Graham and other Wayne buyers justify cooperative efforts.

Mr. Graham says he just returned to Omaha from a large meeting of dairymen, milk dealers, ice cream makers, state and national officers and government representatives and listened to discussion of the serious milk problem. It was brought out that labor shortage had curtailed production and caused many dairymen to dispose of their dairy herds. He predicts that the farmer who keeps his cows and finds a way to milk them will be in luck during the coming year. He says in part:

"Wayne has been a heavy milk and cream producing district, and the cash resources from the same have been very helpful. The demand for dairy products is going to be extremely heavy the coming year, and I, as an ice cream maker, would be very seriously affected by a shortage of sweet cream. The market is very high at the present time, and I predict that it will be high all next summer, as the demand will be heavier than ever, and I believe it would be a very great mistake for the farmers to give up their dairy interests in connection with the operation of their farms, as they will have their own feed, and costs will not be increased very materially except possibly from the labor standpoint."

Farmers' Problems WHILE crop production in the current year has been somewhat above normal, the government urges still greater increase in 1943. It is becoming more and more apparent that food is comparable to munitions and men in the category of war necessities, and Washington authorities are recognizing the fact by announcing the intention to keep farm boys on farms as far as possible. To draft a farm boy for military service when he is needed to produce food for the armed forces as well as the civilian population, is dawning on Washington as shortsighted. It is hoped the farm help problem will be solved in order that production may be stepped up to meet expected requirements.

Other things besides lack of help enter into the farm business as possible hindrances. Climatic conditions have been generally favorable this year, with comparative freedom from insect pests. No one knows what coming years hold in the way of calamities. The guess is that we have entered a wet cycle, and that no drought will reappear to cut down production. Plenty of moisture is a usual safeguard against insect destruction. But the future is always uncertain, and possible reverses must be taken into account in planning crop returns. The effort to speed up production must be great enough to overcome any shortages due to bad weather or other unavoidable misfortunes.

Changing Political Party Realignment

Party Ties Party realignments are apparently growing. Cleavage between left and right-wing tendencies has become more evident. Many democrats of the old school have seen their party taken into the camp of radicalism, expressed by dangerous labor union demands, and some republicans, long inclined to centralized authority and planned economy, have been slipping down the left road. Old-line democrats have been unable to bring their party machinery back into the middle course, and left-wing republicans have failed to control their party organization. Ideologies supersede party labels. Traditions are still deeply rooted in the republican party. The new deal which has taken over the democratic equipment, tends to government paternalism and to the effacement of the individual. Thus, former sticklers for party have kicked over the traces and followed the beckoning of conviction. So, new faces will be found in republican ranks, and left-wingers of republican heritage will go where they feel they belong.

The thirst of labor leaders will stimulate the realignment. Democrats, deeply incensed by the behavior of labor radicals, will join republicans of kindred feelings. The future promises to see the new deal defined as the "labor party," and arrayed in opposition will be republicans and democrats of the Lincoln and Jefferson types.

Election Returns

THE new deal was caught in an increased tidal wave of opposition in the middle west, and there was no chance for anyone who sought office under its banner. Perpetuation of unnecessary peace-time bureaus, and bungling efforts and contradictory statements in high Washington circles no doubt largely accounted for sweeping disapproval. New deal defeat was not only pled high in the middle states, but was extended to various places in the grand forces.

the first republican to win the governorship of New York in twenty years. His opponent had the endorsement of the president.

Manifestly Kenneth Wherry would have won the United States senatorship if the new deal had not been divided between Norris and May. It is regretted by many that Norris was persuaded to enter the race by petition in the face of his expressed intention some months ago to retire. He would feel better now if he had followed his own judgment. Administration endorsement evidently did not help him.

Kenneth Wherry will make an able, forceful senator, and in cooperation with Senator Hugh Butler, he will work efficiently for Nebraska and sound government.

Trusting Americans

CONTRIBUTING to Nation's Business, Merle Toupe invites business Washington authorities to manifest more confidence in the American people and do more leading and less driving—more helpful advising and fewer nettling threats. In one paragraph he explains:

"The heart of America is sound. It knows what it is fighting for. And it is fighting. It deserves more of the spirit of 'Come on, let's go!' than 'Do this, or...' Its tradition is a willingness to be led; its aversion is deep-seated against being driven. The president has wisely called for an end to the haranguing of the people. Even that is not enough for equally blighting is the attitude of those who would curb the spirit and spontaneous activities of a citizen. Bureaucrats discount individual initiative."

General MacArthur gives proper rebuke to persons who have been trying to create a presidential boom for him. He said the only thought he had in mind was to prosecute and win the war. Hero worshippers of whom there are many in America, should take the hint and govern themselves accordingly. This country has too much of a job on hand to figure on the presidential succession two years in advance. And before the time rolls around a constitutional amendment to fix the presidential tenure at six years with the incumbent ineligible for reelection, would be sound.

We hope the next legislature will have the wisdom and courage to change the primary law so that its operation may be simplified—so that candidates may be made with clearer understanding. A convention to take care of part of the job may be a practical solution.

J. J. Steele and Frank Korff, democrats, who retire as county treasurer and clerk of court respectively, have reason to be proud of official records that won repeated reelection for a long series of years in a normally republican county.

Jealousies are ugly deterrents in any public or private service. Officers in all war activities—in all positions of trust and responsibility—hurt what they are trying to do by eyeing one another in a spirit of envy.

Elmer Weeds the Handouts.

In last month's issue Senator Tydings of Maryland contributed an article entitled "Ideologies in the Budget," in which he described the waste of taxpayers' money caused by the tremendous volume of government publicity handouts from overlapping federal offices. Since then Elmer Davis, chief of the Office of War Information, has announced curtailment of a number of so-called handout "services," and still others are slated for abolishment. Mr. Davis deserves applause for walking where angels have feared to tread. But, although he has stopped a number of the publicity mills, he hasn't been able thus far to dispose of the mills. The personnel formerly engaged in turning out the handouts continues on the pay roll. However, Mr. Davis has made an excellent start.

Rubber Situation Encouraging.

Probably the most encouraging feature of the tire situation is the fact that Mr. Jeffers, the rubber czar, is not doing any talking. He has never been a man of many words and since he has taken on the big job he has been doing very little talking. His silence is really eloquent.

The recent Washington announcement which said that it is now hoped that enough rubber can be provided to keep all civilian cars going, is extremely encouraging. For the first time, the people have been given something beside "official" rumors and conflicting statements. And for the first time, it looks as if the government is going to attempt to solve the rubber problem with speed and efficiency. In this connection, the work and the policies of Mr. Eastman, head of the Office of Defense Transportation, and Mr. Jeffers, who has charge of the rubber program, are particularly outstanding. These men are demonstrating conclusively that they want results and mean to get them.

Economists who have studied the situation carefully have long been convinced that the rubber problem is not insoluble. Very important progress has been made by the oil industry in developing usable synthetic rubbers, and it is an unfortunate fact that this phase of the program has been held back by political indecision. Other kinds of rubber, with special properties which make them valuable for various purposes, are being successfully produced from coal, grain alcohol and other materials. American inventive genius, in short, is doing a fine job in finding ways to offset the loss of natural rubber.

This country's cars must be kept going. America can't be compared to other nations, where the motor car was a luxury enjoyed only by the rich. We have literally built our social and industrial life on the automobile. If, because of lack of rubber, any substantial part of our 27,000,000 cars were taken out of circulation, the resulting slow-down would have a catastrophic effect on the war effort. The rubber program must go ahead—and go at forced speed.

WILLKIE.

One writer compares Wendell Willkie's idea of world responsibility, as outlined in his recent speech, to that expressed by Vice President Henry Wallace. We can see no resemblance. The latter voiced the notion of spreading the new deal with its planned economy through all countries of the earth. Willkie favors freedom of nations to govern themselves according to their own inclinations without interfering with one another or imposing upon one another. He evidently thinks the United States will have to exercise a large part in maintaining order and self-government among nations to insure future peace. Willkie has proved himself a practical economist. He would simply govern, safeguard the independence of nations and make them behave themselves. Wallace rates in our judgment as a theorist.

America ships. The crews decided that all they could do was to battle it out the best they could. The Japs shot the men on deck and Reim was the only one left with his gun. Shells came so close to him that shrapnel took the set out of his ring. Finally the young man was wounded in the leg.

Both American destroyers were sunk. Reim and other survivors floated about in the water for 30 hours. Even after they were in the sea the Japs turned guns on them. The Americans used their life preservers to make a raft on which four of the most seriously wounded were placed. The others kept afloat by holding to the sides of the raft. Marines from the island rescued the navy men after the long stay in the water. And every survivor was placed aboard a transport and brought to the United States to recuperate.

In answering questions, the youth told that the Japs are taught that it is better to be killed than captured by Americans. But after they are captured and are shown that they are treated fairly, they want to stay with the Americans. American equipment is superior to that of the Japs, the youth believes. It takes about four of their cruisers to match one American. And the Jap zero planes are no match for American bombers. The Jap losses in planes, cruisers and other ships have been heavy, and they can't stand such destruction of materials without being greatly weakened. But the youth adds that the Japs are supremely treacherous.

The late movement of the Japs to shift from one island to another in the Pacific is, in the opinion of this modest youth, an admission that the Jap power is waning. Mechanist Reim spoke at college chapel Tuesday. Rosemary Von Dracek provided vocal music for Monday's club meeting. She sang "Dark Eyes," "La Sorella" and "We Must Be Vigilant."

Speaks at College On Pacific Battle

Wayne college students and faculty had the privilege Tuesday morning of hearing Freddie Reim, machine gunner on a destroyer in the navy, tell of his participation in the battles of the Solomons and Midway. Dean Clarence McGinnis presided and introduced Rev. O. W. Swaback who presented the speaker.

The young man's insignia showed that he already has an outstanding service record. The command ship on which he served was a destroyer from World War I. The ship reached Midway the closing day of the battle and picked up some of the survivors. The youth then traveled with the destroyer to the Solomons where the ship was engaged in a furious attack September 5, the ship finally being sunk by Japs after being credited with sending six subs to the bottom. Reim also picked off two Jap planes. He and others were rescued by marines from Guadalcanal after being in the water 10 hours.

Prof. Russel Anderson led the group in the national anthem at the opening of the program and in "God Bless America" at the close.

ARMISTICE DAY

Next Wednesday is Armistice day—marking the conclusion of World War No. 1. This happened twenty-four years ago, and besides recalling what took place then, we find ourselves on this anniversary with attention focused on a worse and more perilous conflict. We are hoping for an early armistice that will call a halt to the present struggle, but no one would urge it until it can be made on a solid, enduring basis. The allies were clearly forced into this war, and no one wants peace gilded over with specious promises, beneath which lurk motives and plans for another conflagration. Self-determination of peoples will have to be made easy and compulsory. Then we may hope for lasting freedom from war's death and desolation. As thoughts pause in contemplation of Armistice day, we may profoundly hope a satisfactory peace goal will be reached before another year rolls around.

AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

Washington, D. C., October 27, 1942

The president has signed the new tax bill and now it is in full force and effect. Much of the increased revenue will be forthcoming until after January, but some increases in excise taxes on liquor, beer, cigars, cigarettes, etc., will become payable after November 1. It is estimated that the increased excise taxes will amount to about $50 millions monthly.

The total added revenues obtainable are variously estimated. The treasury estimators who wanted a much higher return say it will be about $7 billions. The senate committee placed the figures at from $9 billions to $11 billions. The larger part will come from corporation and income taxes and the amount of such taxes will not be known until March. The tax on excess profits is expected to yield big returns. But even 1942 estimates may not be a very reliable basis to figure on. Several hundred thousand small business firms have closed up. There are thousands of vacant business buildings in big cities and small cities as well, and small business has been paying many millions in corporation and income taxes in recent years. Big business will be hit harder with considerable leeway left for profits.

Gross federal taxes with the new revenues are expected to reach $24 billions for 1943. About half of that is expected to come from the various forms of corporation taxes and levies upon high individual incomes. There are 470,000 business corporations, or there were before the war, but over 200,000 of them did not have taxable income during the depression. In 1941, their total income, before taxes were paid, was about $11 billions. With three times that amount flowing out in war expenditures in 1942, the operating income before paying taxes may have increased to $20 billions or more. In 1929, corporations had about $6 billions left for surplus and dividends after payment of all taxes.

The new tax measure represents the work of 10 months. The house passed it last July. There are many unsatisfactory compromises evident. Many of the schedules could never have received approval in time of peace. But now added revenues are needed for the largest program for war expenditures the world has ever known, and that need dominated. The victory tax of 5 per cent, deducted monthly from wages and salaries exceeding $12 per week, had the strongest opposition. It probably would not have been inserted over such opposition except for the threat of a general sales tax.

Every new tax bill involves more administrative costs and additional employees. Hundreds of car-loads of paper will be required for printing the millions of new blank forms, while as much more will be needed for the central and field offices of the bureau of internal revenue. The victory tax also is going to increase considerably the number of bookkeepers in the offices of larger business firms to keep track of deductions from wage and salaries. Incidentally, government employees, now numbering over two millions, will pay in their monthly amounts and all government agencies and departments will have their clerical forces working over-time on the deduction program. The war department civilian staff now numbers over one million employees, including the workers at army camps, bases and projects.

A Washington conference has been called to discuss a draft of "man-power" for industry. Donald Nelson says that over one-third of our working population will be doing some form of war work in 1943. The growth of war industries and that of the army and navy has reached a point where some organization of man-power is deemed necessary to increase production accordingly. It is claimed that many big industries are "pirating" workers from each other through bonuses and wage increase inducements. This is occurring notwithstanding an order against such practices and in spite of wage ceilings supposedly in effect.

Included in the phases of the labor situation is that of the farms. So much attention was given industrial employment that agriculture failed to receive consideration until the movement from the farms became so acute that production of food products commenced to decline. Now what to do to keep up agricultural production has become as important as the maintenance of industrial production. What Washington chiefs may offer as a solution will be learned with interest.

One of the strange ideas coming from the eastern press, which is even being considered by some writers who should be better in-generals immediately appeared before the committee and demanded instant action. Hearings were held day and night as the legislative highway was cleared for action within the week. The bill passed the house with precision and is now in the senate. The war department insists that there must be 1,500,000 more inductees in the army by January 1. Congress has passed every war measure demanded by the president and the war and navy department since our country was drawn into the war by the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor.

The war department has furnished much of the news on the home front the past couple of weeks. War department representatives have been before the Murray committee in the senate, and there have been several titles which made the news-paper headlines. The Murray committee is trying to ascertain why 60,000 small industries are not permitted to aid in production of war commodities and equipment so that war production may reach the maximum possible volume. It may be remembered that the president recently complimented industry upon its good work but declared production was not at more than 50 per cent of our national capacity to produce. Congress passed a measure to enable small industries to share in the war contracts, authorized loans of one hundred millions to improve plants to efficient production standards and generally undertook to encourage the greatly desired expansion of production.

The War production board moved slowly. The claim was made that big industries which are well represented in the higher WPD officialdom were responsible for the delay. Donald Nelson took a hand, and promises were made but not kept. The senate then moved to see what is the matter, but the generals who appeared before the Murray committee indicated that they were not concerned about the production increases possible by the utilization of small industries. One general frankly stated that fact. So, the investigation proceeds, and small industries are waiting for the orders they need to keep their plants going and for the orders that will add up to "all out production" for war purposes.

Secretary Wickard of the department of agriculture, is also having his troubles. As the war preparations expand, and nearly seven billions of dollars are being paid out monthly, and the size of the job grows by leaps and bounds, Washington is a strenuous place, with "headaches" in plenty. The secretary keeps harping and away on the fact that farms must produce to protect the food supply. He wants more help on the farms to keep the farmers from moving away as more are steadily moving, mostly to defense industries. Just as he felt that something might be done on the farm problem, the head of another department lets loose a lot of publicity that two million more people must be taken from the farms, the coming year, to keep war factories going to capacity. The lowered draft age will call many boys from the farms as well as from the cities.

Secretary Wickard is endeavoring to find a way out of the increasing difficulties, and his advisors are just as much concerned. The problems of the dairy farmers are particularly acute. Not only are the cows going to the middle west, but even the big dairy districts of New York which have received the highest prices for milk, also are selling out their herds, 5,000 herds having been sold out in the past three months. To meet that situation the department proposes buying all the milk needed for the big cities at $3.30 per hundred and selling it to distributors at a loss of 20 cents, to keep milk below ceiling prices in cities like New York. Then comes the distributors with the protest, that if the farmers are to be paid a subsidy, so should they. The world seems woefully in peace-time, occasionally, but in war-time some parts, it at least seems to be turning upside down.

Both the house and the senate have adopted the conference report on the record breaking revenue act of 1942 and when the bill left the capitol, presidential approval was anticipated within 24 hours.

Warren J. Krebs, Humphrey Nebraska, 1941 graduate of Georgetown University School of Foreign Service, after serving one and one-half years in Trinidad, B. W. I., as naval accountant has returned to Washington by air and expects to enter active service in the United States navy. His civilian service in Trinidad was in connection with naval base installation. He expects to visit his parents at Humphrey before entering the navy.

Chlorate Is Available. Sodium chlorate for eradication of bindweed is available in Wayne county, according to Agent W. R. Harder. Any distribution on bindweed should be done immediately. Moisture conditions have been the best in 10 years. Providing the weather remains moderate with little freezing, the chlorate may be used effectively in the coming week or 10 days.

Christian Science Services
"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, November 8.
The Golden Text is: "As by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous" (Romans 5:19).
Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (II Timothy 3: 16, 17).
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Scriptures are very sacred. Our aim must be to have them understood spiritually, for only by this understanding can truth be gained. . . . The spiritual sense of truth must be gained before Truth can be understood. This sense is assimilated only as we are honest, unselfish, loving, and meek. . . . Jesus said: 'Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures. The spiritual sense of the Scriptures brings out the scientific sense, and is the new tongue referred to in the last chapter of Mark's Gospel' (pp. 547, 272).

NEWS ABOUT THE WAR From Office of War Information.

Nylon and silk hose have not served their usefulness when runs develop. Mrs. America is asked to store them away until a time when they will be salvaged. The materials can be converted into powder cases for the armed forces. And prices of hose are controlled by OPA.

A reduction in the variety and types of cast iron kitchen utensils has been ordered to save vital materials.

Stocks of vacuum cleaners have been "frozen" so Mrs. America is urged to care for the machine she owns. This is a temporary measure so as to check on military needs.

Manpower commission asks that women be trained and allowed to enter all phases of war production for which they are or can be fitted.

Twenty per cent of the pack of salmon and sardines will be available for civilian consumption.

Favoritism is not a part of Wm. Jeffers' plan to conserve rubber. One of the first things he did was to ban use of buses and autos to Sun Valley resort. Buggies will be used in summer and sleds in winter.

War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt has announced that all "necessary workers on the nation's livestock, poultry and dairy farms will be frozen in their present occupations." The local selective service boards will be requested to classify all such workers in class 3-B, but they will be subject to immediate induction "as soon as they ceased to perform the necessary work for which they had been granted deferment."

Now farm machinery and equipment will be subject to rationing according to Secretary Clark Wickard. Repairs are not subject to restriction.

Governor Dwight Griswold reports that the state guard will be expanded with a company to be formed at Scottsbluff. The guard now consists of four companies at Omaha. Other cities will have units.

Migratory farm hands don't have to worry about being stranded away from home without gasoline when rationing goes into effect November 22. OPA advises these workers to stick to their jobs as the government will see that they will be able to buy gas to return home when their jobs are done.

Trucks, buses and taxicabs will be required to have certificates of war necessity starting November 15. If the owner of such a vehicle has not received a blank, he should contact his OET office at once. If he has a blank and has not filled it out, he should do this at once. Private passenger cars not used for hire do not require certificates.

Motorists are asked to sell extra tires at once for Uncle Sam needs them to ration for essential use. A passenger car with more than five tires after November 22 will be denied gasoline. Whether the extra tires are usable or are beyond repair, they should be turned in.

Snow fencing and corn cribbing have been brought under price control for winter months.

OPA has ruled that beginning November 1 a single manufacturer can make no more than 150 house trailers.

Car owners will be denied basic "A" gasoline ration books if they have more than five tires in their possession for each car, OPA announced. Those possessing more than this number must act immediately to qualify for their basic gasoline allowance under the general mileage rationing plan. Registration starts November 12. The official OPA price will be paid for the tires. These ceiling prices vary from $4.45 to $11.15, depending on the size and condition. Tires with smooth treads, all sizes, will be bought at $1.50. The maxi-

After December 1 only 15 pounds of steel will be allowed for a full-sized bed. In normal times the amount is 60 to 100 pounds.

The Omaha recruiting office has released information that boys of 18 and 19 may still enlist and have the privilege of picking one of 13 branches of service.

The nation has 72,000 doctors under 47 years of age, and it is estimated that two-thirds will be in service before the war is over. It is estimated that 60,000 of the nation's 179,000 doctors are needed in the war effort.

With five sons already in service, Dewey Long, Gering, received notice from his draft board to report for army duty.

Permission has been granted manufacturers to complete wood- upholstered furniture which has been completely made except for the final fabric covering.

More than 2,000 of the 18,601 aliens in this state are now enrolling in citizenship classes. The plan provides opportunity for the foreign-born to prepare themselves for citizenship and participation in democratic government.

Mrs. America and 40 million other women in the United States will have to get along with one bobbin or hairpin in 1943 for every four they had in 1941. With proper conservation measures, however, the available supply should be sufficient for all needs, Mrs. America is assured. The supply in 1943 is expected to provide slightly less than one package of pins for every woman in the country.

Restriction on the styles and colors of Mrs. America's shoes will not show up in her purchases until the 1943 spring line goes to market. And even then, there will be enough style variety and staple footwear. The WPB's restrictions limit the colors for footwear to six and novelty styles are out.

Probably no meat rationing program can be put into effect until early in 1943. So a voluntary cutting of meat in civilian diets will be necessary to keep the distribution fair. The supply of meat substitutes, beans, poultry, cheese and eggs is high.

Work clothes will soon carry a new label, the letter "S." This will indicate that the clothes have been made according to new regulations requiring simplification of design. The purpose is to save materials and valuable man-hours in the manufacture.

Soap and water used plentifully and correctly are best allies in the war against waste in the home. Careful laundering can make everything last longer.

A recent WPB order reduces the amount of fats and oils in salad dressings, mayonnaise and similar products. Also, the types of oils available for paints, varnish, lacquer, linoleum and oil of cloth are limited.

If Mrs. America is looking for a career which will be of value to herself and to her country, she could not find a better one than nursing. Training periods will probably be reduced to meet the emergency. The three years will likely be cut to 30 months.

Persons who are larger than usual size should not worry, as the ordinary percentage of oversized garments will be manufactured.

WPB is controlling distribution of canned fruits, vegetables and vegetable juices to make supplies equitable over the country.

"Victory food special" calls attention to foods that are plentiful. Homekeepers are asked to use such foods instead of scarce commodities.

OPA "froze" rubber footwear so that an equal distribution might be effected. To get a ration certificate for boots or overshoes, one applies with the ration board. This may be done in person or by writing, telling of the essential work which requires such footwear. One must establish that he has no wearable footwear suitable for use on the job and must agree to turn in for salvage the rubber footwear he owns. Acting on the information, the board will pass on the application. OPA also set maximum price controls on rubber footwear.

An order of WPB reduces the number of milk can types from 125 to 17 and thus will save 18,000 tons of steel in the coming year.

OPA has acted to check rising cost of live cattle by placing ceiling prices.

To save rubber and tires, OPA ordered all rubber-tired vehicles limited to a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour.

Members of selective service system have been allowed gasoline necessary to drive their cars between their homes and places where their work is carried on.

Train schedules have been frozen.

THE AVERAGE TIME SPENT IS 2 HOURS HOWEVER. A RECORD-BREAKING CREW OF MECHANICS AT KELLY AIRFIELD, TEXAS, ACCOMPLISHED THE FEAT IN 46 MINUTES.

num for used passenger tire tube, other than special purpose tube, is $1.50.

OPA has set a ceiling on nylon hose. The top varies from $1.65 to $2.50.

Mrs. America will be able to stay within her voluntary meat ration of 2 1/2 pounds a week even when she dines away from home.

Most restaurants plan to cooperate by showing the weight of restricted meats offered. Restricted meats include beef, veal, lamb, mutton and pork except spiced cuts as liver, heart, kidney, sweetbreads, tongue and meats made of heads and feet of animals. If it is asked that children under 16 be provided 3-4 pounds of meat a week, those between 16 and 32 be given 1 1/2 pounds and adults 2 1/2 pounds.

OPA reports a good supply of chickens and eggs, foods that are high in protein content and which will well take the place of meat. Dry beans and peas will be plentiful, but fish may be somewhat more scarce.

Since women spend 85 per cent of the family dollar, the home-keeper is asked to provide funds for purchase of war bonds and stamps.

Among new jobs opening to women are several types of work in coal mines. As yet women have not been given underground jobs in this country, though the practice is not uncommon abroad.

Men in the merchant marine in time of war are entitled to recognition just as members of the army and navy. Their families may display the service flag.

Mrs. America is asked to remind the children to be careful of their rubbers and overshoes. These articles will become more scarce and will soon be made of scrap rubber.

Sportsmen have been asked to help the war program by saving all discharged shotgun shells and rifle cartridges, the down feathers of birds and by retrieving all crippled birds and animals.

Farm truck operators will be required to have certificates of war necessity orders after November 15.

WPB has ordered that the entire production of the nation's distilled spirits must be diverted for war purposes. The liquor produced now is industrial alcohol which is so important in war production. It is used in production of smokeless powder and as a source of butadiene for synthetic rubber.

After December 1 only 15 pounds of steel will be allowed for a full-sized bed. In normal times the amount is 60 to 100 pounds.

mission service to grant temporary workers when the need for them is certified by the U. S. employment service.

WPB will soon allow the use of 10 million pounds of manila forage which was frozen in the hands of dealers.

Twenty per cent of the salmon pack between March 1 and October 31 has been released for civilian consumption. The entire 1942 pack was "frozen" in canners' hands to assure fulfillment of government requirements.

Good news for Mrs. America comes in the form of a continued temporary ceiling set on lamb prices. This will last until a definite dollars-and-cents regulation can be formulated.

Non-metal insulation equipment which may be bought for most types of building without special authorization, will do a great deal to help keep homes warm this winter.

About 30,000,000 pounds of restricted carpet wools have been released to the floor covering manufacturers. The wool was first restricted because it was believed it could be used in the manufacture of clothing, but only a small part could be used.

Production of scales for retail trade and household use has been prohibited. Manufacture of repair parts for household scales has also been stopped. Repair parts for other types of scales may be manufactured up to 150 per cent of the 1941 production rate.

Supplies for the manufacture of most brands of cigars are sufficient for some time. Most of the changes the war has brought about in the tobacco industry have concerned cigaret and smoking tobacco. These changes have come about because of the restrictions on tin-foil, glycerine, sugar, tin and black-plate.

American shipyards reached their promised goal of three ships a day by delivering into service 93 new cargo vessels of all types during September. This figure closely approaches the production for the entire 12 months of 1941.

An opportunity to take a definite place in the national war effort will be afforded to every high school student in the United States, according to the war manpower commission. A high school victory corps in each public and private secondary school throughout the country will be created. The aims of this corps are: immediate, accelerated and special training of youth for that war service they will be expected to perform after leaving school; active participation of youth while still in school in the community's war effort.

Married in Wayne. Charles W. Counterman of Fredona, Kan., and Mrs. Ellen Jones of Wayne, were married by Rev. W. F. Dieking November 2. They will live in Fredona where Mr. Counterman is a decorator.

Cylinder Corn Sheller

A FEW OF THESE ARE NOW AVAILABLE. NOTE THESE FEATURES:

- 1-Even Feeding-The shellers feed evenly by having a double chain elevator to deliver the corn directly into hopper above the cylinder.
2-Cleaner Shelling-The ears of corn are automatically fed between cylinder lugs which spin the ears against the all steel bars of the cylinder cage and rub the ears against each other, thus rolling the kernels off the cob as you would by hand.
3-Better Separation-After the shelled corn drops through the cylinder cage, the complete separation of corn from the cobs and trash is accomplished.
4-Thorough Cleaning-The large sieve and cleaning shoe and the powerful cleaning fan remove all the dirt, chaff, etc., from the kernels of corn. This trash is drawn out of the sheller by the suction fan. The proper volume of air from this cleaning fan can be easily adjusted by means of the V-belt drive or shatters.

Wayne High Wins Over Bloomfield

Nine Wayne High Seniors Play Last Football for Their Alma Mater.

Two brilliant backs and a line that refused to be bothered by a reputation led Wayne high to a smashing 21-0 football victory over Bloomfield high at the college field last Friday night.

Bob Stull and Ray Murray, seniors, playing their last game of the season, were the backs who made Wayne high's offense click. But it was the line play that repeatedly repelled the thrusts of the heavy Bloomfield backs.

Wayne high took charge at the beginning of the game, and except for a brief span in the fourth quarter, when Bloomfield marched to the Wayne 25-yard line, had the upper hand.

Wayne's first touchdown came after about two minutes in the second quarter. Stull scored around right end from the 17-yard line. Murray plugging for the extra point. Later in the period Stull took a Bloomfield punt at mid-field, ran it back to the Bloomfield 30-yard line. Then alternating with Murray, Stull carried the ball off tackle and, running around end, he scored, making the tally Wayne 14, Bloomfield 0, as the half ended.

At the start of the third quarter Wayne took up where it had left off, and Stull went 45 yards to score the final touchdown of the game. Stull converted, and the score was Wayne high 21, Bloomfield 0. The remainder of the game was played in mid-field with neither side threatening.

This game ended the high school football career of nine seniors, Stull, Murray, Lessman, Heale, Helgen, Bierman, Love, Johnson and Lass.

The close of the high school career of Bob Stull ended probably a record of the most brilliant back Wayne high ever had. In the three of his four years of competition, he played in only one game which was lost, and was leading conference score all three years.

Coach Henry Mankie took a comparatively green team, with few replacements, and finished with a team that was at the top in northeastern Nebraska circles.

Towers in Laurel Enroute to Chili

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Tower and sons, Julius and Frederic, who left November 1 for Santiago, Chili, recently visited in the home of Mr. Tower's uncle, Verne Tower, south of Laurel. Mr. Tower will represent the U. S. government as consul to that country. Mr. Tower was U. S. consul to Japan from September 1936 until he was interned June 3, 1942, then sent to Yokohama with four other officials to await their return to America as exchange officials of war aboard the Grisholm which arrived at New York August 25. Mr. Tower was met here by his wife and sons who arrived from Honolulu, Hawaii, where they had spent the past year after being sent from Japan for safety during the attack on Pearl Harbor, but did not witness the attack since they were on the farther side of the city.

Mr. Tower was stationed in Tokio until October, 1937, when he and the consulate were moved to Nagasaki. In August 1941, they were transferred again to Kobe, a Japanese seaport. At Yokohama the family was retained in the New Grand concrete five-story tourist hotel and show place, for two weeks before being put on board the Japanese ship, Asama Maru. Accommodations on shipboard became congested as they stopped at Hong Kong, Saigon, Singapore and other ports and took on hundreds more foreign officials, newsmen, missionaries and civilians. In Japan food became scarce and poor for some time before the official deportation. No coffee except a substitute made of roasted soybeans was to be had. Tea was used. Milk was obtainable only for infants and by doctors' orders.

The Towers left Yokohama June 17, taking two months to make the trip home. Among missionaries returned to America are Rev. Paul J. Kalkin, English mission head at Bangkok, and husband of the former Gertrude Shearer, a native Laurel girl. Mr. Tower, who is a relative of the F. E. Marriage Ration Is Cause of Run

Boiler Room Forum Proves Popular in Getting Men To Attend Church.
When six clerks were kept unusually busy issuing marriage licenses in a Pennsylvania court house, they wondered what the occasion. Then they heard that a rumor had started to the effect that the government would ration marriage licenses.

Fullly clothed, Bob Coffield lay down for a nap in his Denver room. When he awoke his trousers were neatly folded across a chair. But his wallet containing $99 was gone.

An eastern minister has a "boiler room forum" which is proving successful in getting attendance of men. Sunday nights he invites men to puff away on cigars, cigarettes and pipes in the church basement while they discuss the war.

A crusty-voiced man called Kansas City police and asked to serve as volunteer patrolman on election day. When questioned as to why he wanted to do this, he replied, "I'm tired of doing housework all the time."

A Kansas Aid society decided to quit quilting quilts so as to earn some money by husking corn. The women made $20 and had a good farm dinner.

A Colorado sheriff has a scheme of saving tires and gas. He takes his horse in a pick-up back of his car. When he reaches a pass, he parks the car and sets out on horseback. He saves 530 miles and 17 hours for the horse makes the short-cut in six hours.

education. What became of them is still unknown. But these educators exemplified the undying democracy in the Norwegian people.

For all Norwegians the education and treatment of children is a matter of first importance. It was often meant much sacrifice to give the young folks the good home, school and church conditions that these people know is so essential.

"It was a great sacrifice for good people to support such good schools, but it was a sacrifice that had been willingly made for many generations."

"Our schools were made for children, to develop them, help them, protect them, educate them, but always with the purpose to give each child good conditions for developing his individual gifts in order to become useful and well adjusted to society and a happy well-balanced individual."

"In sharp contrast, Nazi education," according to Dr. Skard, "forces children to suppress their individuality, to obey, to adopt a certain philosophy, to give up their own personality. Nazis teach their children to fight and die, to conquer the world for one nation, to suppress and be suppressed. Their purpose is not to work for the best for the children, but to make the children serve a purpose fixed by the dominating group."

"For us Norwegians, the sufferings inflicted on our teachers will always be an internal wound. The sacrifice of these teachers gives a promise for the future. The sufferings and resistance of our teachers are a measure of the strength of the ideals in our democratic school. Our children have seen that honesty, justice, protection of the weaker, defense of one's conviction, freedom of conscience, are truly worth dying for, and must be worth living for also. Sick, maltreated, tortured, dying, the Norwegian teachers are still upholding the ideals of democratic education for the world."

Laurel school will remain closed until November 9 to permit the students to assist with corn picking.

Tribute Written To Peter Henkel By Former Pupil

"A Friend" is the title of an article written about Peter Henkel by DuForest Roggenbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Roggenbach and now a senior in architectural engineering at the University of Nebraska. After serving 42 years as custodian at Wayne city school, Mr. Henkel has decided to enjoy a well-earned vacation. He is now about 80 years old. Excerpts from the letter follow:

"High school days always bring to mind many happy incidents and memories. Acquaintances made there are often the best found anywhere in life. One of these acquaintances that I remember particularly well was that of Peter Henkel, familiarly called 'Old Pete' for he is rather a tradition himself."

"Pete has seen students come and go. His association with them, his complete understanding of them and the incidents they perpetrated built up a store of memories and stories that will stop the best story teller."

"One of the first people I met on my first day in high school was Pete. I distinctly remember walking in the big front door and finding myself lost in the chattering, hurrying throng of strangers, on their way to and from classes. I began to wander around hopelessly, looking for some familiar face or a name on a door to guide me - but no luck. Suddenly I was aware of footsteps behind me. Heavy footsteps they were and sounded as though they walked on familiar ground. I turned and saw Pete for the first time. He was a big man and all home and muscle. His eyes were piercing and honest, topped with heavy gray eyebrows. The thing I noticed first was the mustache he wore. It was a mustache such as one would expect to find as an integral part of the old school of Prussian army officers. Pete is German and, while he holds no sympathy for some of that country's actions, he still carries a portion of the culture and bearing of the people of his homeland. His voice frightened me at first because it was gruff and deep. He asked me what I wanted and whom I wished to see."

"With Pete's help, I survived the first day of school very well and from that day our friendship grew. I speak a smattering of German, and I used to go to Pete's workshop and have him talk to me in German. My mastery of the language was practically non-existent, as I picked it up only from hearing others, and Pete delighted in speaking to me in very exact German and watching my confusion in trying to understand.

"Pete's job was the safe-keeping

Can Enlarge Farms Under New Setup. Farmers owning places too small to be complete units now have an opportunity to borrow money with which to purchase enough additional land to enlarge their present farms to complete units, according to Ray Verzal, FSA supervisor.

Regulations require that the farm must be a family-type unit, of size to utilize the family labor to best advantage and still not so large that outside labor is needed. The price limitation in this country is $11,150.

Farmers having small places and interested in securing funds with which to purchase additional land should see Mr. Verzal.
