Farm Deferment Rules Explained

Wayne County Draft Board Gets Information About Calling Farmers.

General Guy N. Henninger, state selective service director, announced plans Wednesday for a new comprehensive farm deferment system affecting thousands of farm registrants in Nebraska.

The new system covers all agricultural pursuits and replaces the limited dairy-livestock-poultry plan which was recently inaugurated.

A "war unit" is a measure of production of essential farm products devised by the United States Department of Agriculture to serve as a guide for local boards in classifying "essential" farmers for deferment.

For example, General Henninger said, the United States department of agriculture's scale says two acres of potatoes or beets equal one war unit.

Local boards will ask farmers to submit under oath a summary of their agricultural production on special forms prepared for that purpose.

While soft lights shown on the scene, Miss Frisbie sang "Just a Baby's Prayer at Twilight" and "Leonard Paulson" directed high school students in dramatizing "The Band Played On." Nancy Mines and Patty Thompson, in old-fashioned costume, took the parts of the strawberry blonde and her escort and the school band played the number.
 Drama group of A. A. U. W. presented "Sidewalks of New York." Miss Margaret Whitman, Miss Greta Hackenberg and Miss Margaret Prost in charge. In this were children of junior high in all kinds of outfits, from silks to torn calico, enacting the song, Lois Russell provided a tap dance.
 "Tenting Tonight" was the song chosen by the Legion. Frank Heine was in charge. For this men in uniform were sitting about a campfire visiting and writing letters while they and the audience joined in the song.
 Mrs. H. E. Loy was leader for Wayne Players in presenting the song, "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning." A soldier slept on an army cot until the lugger called. Then the soldier arose, saluted and went back to sleep.
 The Legion Auxiliary, with Mrs. J. H. Brugger chairman, had dramatization of "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas." For this they presented a prettily decorated Christmas tree with snow on the branches and at the base. The scene was dimmed by a transparent screen.
 Prof. Anderson led Wayne Strollers in "Old Black Joe." This group of singers, in varied costumes, sang from behind the transparent screen which gave the effect of silhouettes.
 The Presbyterian choir had "Up on the House Top" in which Santa Claus appeared first on the roof of the miniature house. Then he was shown to come down the chimney to the fireplace. The church choir sang under leadership of Prof. Anderson.
 Santa remained on the stage while Prof. Anderson led the audience in "Jingle Bells," "Joy to the World" and "Silent Night," these being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

School to Adopt Victory Program

 Omaha Wednesday for examinations on his enlistment in the air corps. If these men and possibly others leave, it might be necessary to institute only a modified Victory corps program.
Work Is Elective.
 Membership in the Victory corps is elective, but members must organize their study program so as to fulfill the requirements of the departments.
 Mathematics, the sciences, (especially physics) phases of shop work, commercial courses, English and social studies are stressed, but the rest of the regular program is not to be slighted.
 Physical education becomes a compulsory part for every member of the Victory corps, both boys and girls.
 Participation in some direct phase of war or defense work, such as stamp and bond sales, Junior Red Cross, etc., are also compulsory.
 Most of the regular extra-curricular activities must be limited or dropped entirely for the duration so that there will be more time for war education activity.
 The program will involve a considerable amount of changing about in the schedule, and for this reason it is being organized to go into effect at the beginning of the second semester.
 Other changes will be made as they are found necessary.

Post-War SPEAKING of idealists and realists who will be in conflict in rearranging the post-war world, the Omaha World-Herald makes these concluding observations:

"Storms of doctrine will sweep a fabled post-war world. The pangs of hunger and destitution will torment it. The destructive emotions of hatred and vengeance will tear at its bleeding vitals. It is then the strength and resources, the institutions and wisdom of our own America will be as essential even as now.

"There are visionaries today. And there are farseeing statesmen. There is a distinction. The latter would preserve what we have—our social unity and cooperation, our prodigious free enterprise, our free institutions, our independent resourceful manhood and womanhood, for the tasks and dangers that lie ahead.

"Secretary Hull, we rejoice to believe, is one such statesman.

"There comes too, again from the cabinet, the warning voice of Secretary Wickard. War-time, he says, 'is not the time to carry out the pet theories of any group or class or to institute reforms for reform's sake.'

"That ought to be accepted as elementary truth. But in the fell clutch of strange circumstance it sounds like the utterance of an insurgent. An insurgency, it may be, that will grow and spread in Washington, as certainly it is throughout the republic.

"Americans are dreamers too. They have made many a glorious dream come true. And also, as the immediate occasion requires, they are hard-headed and practical realists who know how to address themselves to the job in hand. There is reason for believing that their insistence upon this, so recently and so emphatically voiced, may have a salutary influence."

Pearl Harbor ONE year ago on Monday there thundered from the Pacific skies a treacherous and dastardly attack on Pearl Harbor. It was made more fiendish by reason of the fact that negotiations were at the time in progress at Washington between Japanese envoys and the state department. The unexpected blast which destroyed American ships and many American lives, infuriated every American and precipitated the inevitable conflict. People who had hoped for peace, were ready to fight. The nation rose en masse to meet a bold and nefarious aggressor.

The United States was dumfounded by the infamy of the Pearl Harbor attack. War was declared, and the nation's mobilization of men and arms was hurried forward. People saw through the evil intentions of foreign foes, and met the threat to freedom with iron determination.

Japan which was prepared, scored early advantages. But as American plans gained pace and production mounted, the tide of battle has gradually turned. While the United States strengthens, Japan weakens, and it is certain that peace terms which the Nipponese boasted would be arranged in Washington, will be settled in Tokyo, if there is anything left of that town when contending forces get around to the finals. Unabashed, Japan observed the anniversary by launching the lie that the United States fired the first shot.

Cousin of Wayne People Describes Living Under Japs

"Did you slap a Jap?" was one of the first questions asked of Donald A. O'Kieffe, by his elder son, Donald, jr., after his arrival from Hong Kong, China, where he was interned by the Japs for more than a year. Mr. O'Kieffe, cousin of Mrs. Earl Merchant and others of the Auker family, has just received a published interview with this Hammond, Ind., banker who used to visit in Wayne when he was a youth.

Deterrent to New Economy

THE Saturday Evening Post notes the sobering influence of the late election on new deal zealots. It mentions in effect that the expressed voice of the people will discourage any attempt to make necessary wartime regulations the precedent for a new type of economy. The Post comments in part:

"If this new situation sobers the new dealers, it also justifies a relaxation of the fear that collectivism would be put over on the country disguised as an emergency program. Wartime restrictions and regulations may now be accepted for what they are. The mother-knows-best new dealers will need watching, but, with conservatives in a strong position in congress, the American people can get on with the war against the axis without giving so much time to alarm over what could happen to the American system if the makers-over of America had remained unchallenged.

"Other practical results from the election should be a more realistic attitude toward labor problems, less tolerance of strikes, obstructive 'rules' and rackets; critical analysis of the defects in the conduct of the war, with particular attention to the havoc wrought on farms and in factories by indiscriminate competition for man power; a new impetus toward economy in non-war spending and better-balanced taxation."

According to the Morriltown, Ark. Democrat, the government subsidy of $100,000,000 to finance new sawmill operations is unnecessary. The Democrat editor says mill operators have assured him that lack of money does not hold back increased production of lumber. Any delays are said to be due to labor shortage and inability to get machinery and trucks. The editor says banks are more than willing to furnish operating capital to reliable operators.

Writing from Washington to the Omaha World-Herald, Marr McGaffin reports a storm brewing in Washington between congress and the administration. A plan to stop expanding bureaus and cut out waste and make everything respond to the necessities of war, is developing. The next congress is reported set not only on centralizing activities on the war, but on getting rid of useless sources of employment and expense not germane to the war.

From long-distance observations we had put Secretary Claude R. Wickard and Secretary Hull in the top stratum of the cabinet, and so we have confidence that Wickard will use practical sense in matters of food production. To produce more with less help to meet increasing needs multiplies farm problems, and sound judgment would suggest a minimum of burdensome restraints.

The proposed ceiling over incomes of $25,000 is not directly important to the uniformly small earners of the middle west, but it is indirectly important to everybody because of the generally spread benefits from large employing institutions. Limiting incomes might be expected to discourage development of private enterprises.

We wonder and doubtless many wonder if Mrs. Roosevelt's incessant activity in proposing governmental policies and in attempting the role of leadership in shaping the destiny of men and nations is prompted by the president or is tolerated by him as unavoidable. Does he encourage her or does he helplessly surrender?

The pessimist sees the dark, and seems to relish it. The optimist minimizes the bad and magnifies the good. The pessimist hurries to blacken a rosy prospect, and then enjoys watching reactions to gloom. The optimist sees the silvery lining, and reasons in the direction of hope.

THE PRESS.

According to Stanley High, Washington bureaucrats do not relish the freedom of the press and evidently would knock its ears down if they could. High says newspapers have subordinated politics to the war and during the year have donated nearly $100,000,000 worth of advertising for government use, but that weaknesses in the program have been exposed and mistakes of judgment have been corrected. One example mentioned is that of Henry J. Kaiser, ship builder, who was given a cold shoulder in Washington until the press brought his proposition to light, and forced favorable official action. But new deal bureaucrats do not like to be pressed to do things contrary to their feelings, and therefore they entertain a good deal of ill-will for the country's newspapers. High says that while fighting for the world's "four freedoms," publishers will continue their fight for freedom of the press at home.

Small

could not make present liberal contributions to the allies. It is lucky for the cause of freedom that this country has not been prostrated and made comparatively helpless.

What would Editor Stone have us do that we are not doing? Certainly he would not have us impose unnecessary burdens that would make us less productive and efficient. Any sacrifice necessary to win the war is forthcoming. Any sacrifice that would needlessly burden the individual and impair his service would be clearly shortsighted in view of the one big objective.

COLLECTIVISM.

E. W. Rossiter, president of the Bank of Hartington, writes about the evils of what he calls "creeping collectivism" in an advertisement in each of the Hartington newspapers. "Creeping collectivism," he says, "is our farms, our businesses, our banks, and our homes, what creeping jenny is to Cedar county farms. If allowed to spread unopposed, creeping collectivism will destroy all those things that made our nation what it is, even as creeping jenny, unopposed, destroys our farms." He points out that creeping collectivism is disguised as a friend, whereas in reality it threatens individual enterprise and would supplant private business with government control. If collectivism were to succeed people would become wards of the government, and then they would devote spare time to kicking themselves. Government paternalism—something for nothing—would uproot American fundamentals. Mr. Rossiter sees the danger of collectivism, and issues warning in paid advertisements.

AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

Washington, D. C., December 2, 1942. The president has appointed Governor Lehman of New York to supervise the feeding of people in foreign lands. For the time being the people to be fed will include those of French North-Africa which has been occupied by our armed forces. The shipment of food supplies to Britain and Russia under the lend-lease program will continue. As congress has not provided funds for any other form of relief to the starving people in foreign countries, it is assumed that the supplies to be purchased by Governor Lehman will be purchased from the same funds.

The details of this "feed-the-world" program have not yet been published. Governor Lehman says that eventually, and as our armies (see foreign countries of axis control, such assistance will be expanded until possibly 500,000,000 of the world's population will be fed from our agricultural surpluses, such as our surpluses may be when the time comes. It is believed by some that Italy may give up the war when its hungry population learns of the charitable food supply which it is proposed to send to them.

Incidentally, the food problem continues to grow here in Washington and other eastern cities. After coffee rationing may come rationing of butter, other dairy products and meats. The whole milk supply is shortening up, and Washington people are wondering how soon its rationing may be commenced. The threat of general food rationing has caused thousands of households to buy as liberally as possible, stocking up for future shortage periods. Thanksgiving turkeys brought 45 cents per pound, and cranberries 21 cents. But there is less protest over prices than over the fact that so many foods are unobtainable. Feeding our own people is becoming one of our great war problems.

Governor Lehman will resign the governorship of New York soon, come to Washington, and organize a new force to handle the big job he will undertake. How many bureaus it will include, how the food supplies will be obtained, and how soon shipments will commence, all are matters of speculation at present. There are some who ask about the extent of rationing in our own land which will be needed to provide the foods for folks abroad. Another question to be immediately considered is how shipping can be obtained to send supplies to African people in addition to the shipping needed for supplying our armed forces on that continent. Furthermore, sugar and coffee rationing are in effect now because of a shortage of ships to bring in such commodities from countries much nearer to us than French Africa. There are so many angles to the program, so many questions to be asked, so many questions to be answered, and so many arrangements to be perfected, that Governor Lehman will find he has a big job on hand.

... but she is in the thick of war activity just the same

The telephone operator has a very important part in speeding up activities to win the war.

Many of the calls she handles help to make planes, tanks, bombs and bullets—to produce, process and transport food products—to send an ever-increasing amount of war supplies into distant lands where the war is fought.

Farms, factories, mines, mills, army camps, war plants of every kind—her fingers join one to another instantly, supplying the voice-to-voice contact which is quickening the nation's war effort.

Ironies of Fate Save Many Lives

Lonesome Dog Made Happy When Letters Arrive From Army Camp.

The birth of a baby, the flip of a coin and a wife's persistence were among the ironies which saved a number of persons from possible death in Boston's serious fire. Dr. Siba was just ready to leave for Coconut Grove when he was called. Miss Allison Smith and her escort flipped a coin to decide between Coconut Grove and a hotel and the latter won. And S. H. Rosenberg said that everyone in his party wanted to go to Coconut Grove but his wife insisted on another place and the wife won.

Ed Weidman's 4-year-old spitz dog ate little and became ill after his master left for the army. Then letters from Weidman began to arrive. The dog recognized the scent and yelped excitedly when each letter came. The dog's appetite returned and now the pet spends much time greeting the mail man.

Theodore L. Tollerison, Chicago fireman and locomotive engineer for the Illinois Central railroad since 1903, had but one wish when he was retired and that was to travel. His retirement came a few days ago and it is the wartime curtailment of railroads' passes.

Those husbands who get into trouble because they forget to mail letters to their mothers-in-law can always say they weren't as bad as Carl Buchman, Guilford, Ind., postmaster. Buchman, a veteran of World War I, decided he wanted to see his old uniform again. He dug it out and in a pocket in the blouse was a letter given to him in 1917 by Clayton Nocks of Aurora to mail to Mrs. Nocks. Mrs. Nocks, a brinkerhoff of Los Angeles, became so angry when she received what she was certain was a Japanese-detained letter from a prisoner camp, that she asked her brother in the navy to take a special trip to the Japs, enrolled her two sons, 13 and 12, in military school and she herself went to work at an aircraft plant.

The war hasn't disproved what they say about silk purses and soy's ears, but it has proved that you can make a fine mattress for tired doughboys out of crows' tails. Bossy's tail is both springy and moisture resistant and is ideal for camp mattresses.

When stations were busy with customers wanting to get their gasoline tanks filled before rationing, a young woman drove up. "Fill her up," she told the attendant; Her tank would hold only 2.11 of a gallon, 4 cents worth.

A Spokane man has finally found a potent mouse trap. His spring-snap variety caught three mice at once.

Safer Safer was brought in San Francisco municipal car on a charge of having unsafe brakes on his automobile.

Niagara Falls postal authorities are stampeded by the fact that more than 100 untramped, unaddressed envelopes containing coins have been deposited in a mail box. The postmaster, hazy about a guess someone might be donating to some federal agency. But all he can do is hold them and consign them to the dead letter office.

The Ho-Ho-Kus, N. J., council is taking a very practical view of gasoline rationing by installing hitching posts in front of the public library and in the shopping area. One councilman described these as "most effective" in averting runaways.

Area in Blackout Test Is Largest Ever Tried

Nine States Are to Plunge Into Darkness Monday In Initial Checkup

When the air raid warning sirens sound next Monday evening, December 14, at 10 o'clock, Nebraska and the eight other states in the Seventh Defense region will plunge into a complete blackout. Wayne and all other communities are putting the finishing touches on preparations for making this test a complete success. The area is the largest ever included in such a test.

The importance of this test cannot be overestimated, according to officials, for it is not only a test of the efficiency of the civilian defense forces but also a test of the spirit of citizens. It calls for the cooperation of everyone. Every light must be blacked out with exception of those industries and utilities in war production and railroads. These must observe dim-out regulations, and must demonstrate their ability to blackout completely should the need arise.

Farmers are asked to observe the blackout also.

The blackout signal in Wayne will be the blowing of the fire whistle 45 seconds, letting it die down for 15 seconds and then blowing it again 45 seconds. The all clear will be one single blast about 10:20.

Air raid warnings not Wednesday evening last week to get instructions. The need for having all lights out was stressed. It was also urged that parents keep children off the streets that evening because of dangers.

Several have volunteered their services in helping in the defense work.

Blackout Instructions

Those in charge ask residents to read the following regulations:

Stay in your house if possible. Keep your radio turned on low during the test period.

Do not, under any circumstances, get into the streets, but if unavoidably caught on the street, don't hurry, push or crowd. Be calm and cool.

At the warning signal of the sirens ALL traffic must cease. Park your car and extinguish ALL lights at once. Remain nearby. You may remain seated therein but do not SMOKE, light matches or flash lights or use any lights whatever. You may double park when so directed by the police.

No SMOKING, lighting of MATCHES or FLASHLIGHTS is permitted on sidewalks, in doorways, in alleys or any open places.

At the ALL CLEAR signal of the sirens you may resume your activities but please do not hurry. Traffic will be congested and the danger of accidents caused by too much hurry will be present.

All lights in homes, stores, public buildings, apartments, etc., MUST be blacked-out until ALL CLEAR signal of the sirens.

Emergency vehicles such as fire department trucks, ambulances, police cars, doctors' cars and special emergency cars if absolutely necessary will be authorized to travel but should be equipped with approved blackout devices. Special lighting, only for use during this TEST blackout, may be allowed by certain necessary industries which would NOT be allowed during a REAL blackout. (This is so as to not slow up necessary defense production.) In the event of a fire alarm, the fire department will proceed as usual and street lights may be turned on during their run to such fire. Emergency and official vehicles will proceed cautiously so as not to endanger persons or property.

Merchants should have a member of their organization at their places of business to extinguish all lights and to guard such establishments. All signs and window lights must be extinguished.

Sky lights must be effectively covered and ALL lights blacked-out.

Keep off the roofs. Certain building owners have granted the use of the roofs of their buildings to military and civilian defense officials for the purpose of viewing the results but this is NOT to be allowed to all. Damage to the roofs and the danger of accidents during total darkness makes it impossible for the building owners to allow it.

DO NOT use the telephone during the period of the blackout or for 30 minutes thereafter, except for vital necessities such as calling the fire or police departments, doctors, etc. (This is to relieve congestion in the local telephone exchange.)

Follow the instructions given by the air raid wardens, police, auxiliary police, firemen and auxiliary firemen and all civilian defense officials. They have been specially trained for YOUR protection.

LEARN what to do, what NOT to do and HOW to do under a real raid.

Failure on the part of EVEN ONE CIVILIAN to carry out the blackout may bring injury or death to many. Such failure can be treated only as a criminal offense.

Compete on Stories About Speed Used

A slightly exaggerated story about the speed with which aircraft carriers and invasion ships are built comes from Vancouver, Wash., sent by Harry Hamner. The newspaper clipping follows:

A couple of shipyard men, one working on aircraft carriers and the other on "invasion" ships, were shooting the breeze.

"Say," said the aircraft carrier worker, "we build ships so fast that planes, taking off from California at the same instant a keel is laid in the northwest, arrive here to find the carrier already launched, waiting for them."

"That's nothing," snorted the other fellow, "when we lay a keel for one of those invasion ships we have to duck to keep from being hit in the head with a champagne bottle."

Mrs. E. S. Blair arrived home Saturday from Sterling, Colo., where she had visited her daughter and husband, Dr. and Mrs. G. F. Hodgson.

From Dixon County. Early Days from the Ponca Journal for December 22, 1887: Today is the shortest day in the year, and one might add that it is the coldest and most disagreeable. Nipping weather is a continual reminder that Ponca coal company is constantly providing a genial remedy for cold, that is, coal. About 75 families in the country and 50 in town are now using the coal and more is in demand. Dan Mershon is coming back from California. Survives Sinking Of Transport Off Coast of Africa. Lowell L. Anderson, 21, in Randolph on furlough, is one sailor who "landed" on a lieutenant and got away with it. Anderson, machinist's mate, second class, is visiting his sister, Miss Jean Anderson. He expects to see his brothers, Beverly, who is in the precinct at Carson, Colo., and Merton, who is attending school in Denver. The four are children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Anderson, formerly of this vicinity. They are grandchildren of Mrs. H. C. Bartels of Carroll.

Lowell's experience with the lieutenant happened November 12 when the Tanker H. Ellis, American transport on which he was stationed, was torpedoed and sunk three miles off the coast of Africa near Casablanca. This was after American and British forces had successfully invaded the area.

Anderson was on deck of the ship when a submarine torpedo struck the transport. The impact knocked him about eight feet into the air and when he came down he landed on a lieutenant. All that the officer said was, "Take it easy, son."

The youth said the torpedo tore a hole in the center of the ship about the water line, large enough for a train to pass through. Four such transports were hit that evening. The Bliss caught fire and burned until morning.

Realizing that the transport was about to go under, Anderson said he decided to dive into the water about 40 feet below. Two of his pals were hesitating, probably because they couldn't swim. So Anderson pushed them off the boat and both were saved. Swimming in the black, oily water was a hard experience.

As soon as the transport was hit, a signal was sent up and a large number of amphibian boats started toward the ship to pick up the survivors. The rescue work was so effective that all but one were saved.

The survivors were bottled in a large church, the most beautiful the youth had ever seen. About 1,000 men were jammed into the edifice. For three days they ate beans. They walked about the town in the daytime but stayed inside at night because of shivers.

"The men lost their clothes so they borrowed from others. Anderson said he had some from a sergeant."

Natives are clever about money and cigars. The youth found they know the value of various kinds of money and tried to exchange with the Americans. They also asked the boys for cigars and they tucked them away in their blouses.

After a short stay, the crew members were taken to Casablanca and then returned to the United States.

Anderson enlisted in the navy last April 6. The youth was near the battle of Midway, and has been in action in the Atlantic against Nazi submarines, several of which were sunk by depth charges.

The youth's father was a veteran of the first World war. In service he contracted an illness that resulted in his death at Newport when Lowell was a child. Mrs. Anderson and children then moved to Wayne and after her death nine years ago they went to Denver to be with an aunt.

Lowell reports at Norfolk, Va., the first of the year. Besides him and Beverly, who is in service in Colorado, Merton, 17, a senior in Denver, will enlist in the navy next spring. Jean is principal at Shelton, Neb.

Dean Ehle, Jr., son of County Judge and Mrs. Dean Ehle of Ponca, who just completed several months' work on the new Alaska highway, has now enlisted in the army.

Office in Hospital. Dr. S. A. Lutgen has his office in the Wayne hospital. Phone 6L.

Library News

Wayne library has something to be proud of and we want to tell you about it. The New York Times Book Review section last week listed the 23 most popular novels and the 21 most popular books of non-fiction. These figures were based on sales records of the large cities all over the United States. Out of the 23 novels we have all but five and out of the list of non-fiction we have all but nine and most of those we do not now have are on order. This we believe is a fine record for a small library such as ours and we thought you would like to know about it. Perhaps you would also like to know which of these books are most popular. "See Here Priests of Non-Fiction," second is "Suez to Singapore," third is "Last Train from Berlin," and fourth, "Van Loon's Lives." We have them all. In the fiction list "The Robe," by Douglas is first, "Song of Bernadette," by Werfel is second, "Prodigal Women," by Hale is third, and "Valley of Decision," by Davenport is fourth. We also have all of these.

Here are some good magazine articles which you may also find at the library, if you do not have the magazines in your homes: "We'll Have to Feed the World Again," by Herbert Hoover, Colliers, November 28. "The Negro Lifts His Head," by Walter Davenport, Colliers, November 28. "Beyond the Atlantic Charter," by Wallace, New Republic, November 23. "Some Japanese in Hawaii," by Blake Clark, Asia, December.

We would like to call the attention of the wives whose husbands have gone or are going to war to a book called, "So Your Husband's Gone to War," by Ethel Gornham. We are sure you would enjoy it.

Dr. J. R. Johnson Is Speaker at Banquet

Wakefield Students Plan Caroling at Homes of Vicinity Soon.

Wakefield high school football squad entertained their fathers at dinner at the high school auditorium Monday evening. Dr. J. R. Johnson of Wayne, one time superintendent of Wakefield school, gave the address. Paul Gerdes, Coach G. B. Childs, also gave short talks. Kenneth Victor, recently elected president of the athletic W. club, acted as toastmaster. Kenneth Victor and Paul Gerdes were elected honorary captains of this year's football team. Mothers of the team served the meal.

Members of Treble Clef club and Pep club are making plans to go caroling and have tentatively set the date December 16. Mary Jane Anderson, president of Treble Clef club, and Lillian Wendel, president of the Pep club, are serving as co-chairmen of the affair.

All persons who wish the girls to sing in front of their homes are asked to have lighted wreaths in their windows. Requests from shut-ins will be given special attention.

Band Mothers' club met in the band room Wednesday evening. Musical selections were enjoyed.

Last Friday sophomore girls served a Christmas dinner to all members of the faculty. This was in connection with home economics work. The group went to the E. E. Hyspe home for games following the dinner.

Home economics department rooms have been decorated for Christmas with evergreen branches, Yuletide logs and candles.

Freshman girls are starting work on their school blueses. The advanced class is working on rayon dresses.

Junior class will present the play, "The Trouble Solvers," Friday evening, December 11, at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium. Those who are serving on production committees are: Edith Gerdes, student director, Bonnie Schroeder, stage manager, June Chinn, publicity, Bob Busby, ticket sales.

Agriculture I.
During the past week boys in the beginning class have been studying feeding balanced rations to the laying flock. The body temperature of the hen is 107 degrees and she quickly uses her feed for maintaining the functions of the body and for egg production. All poultry houses should be banked with straw or building paper. If the ceiling of the house is too high it should be lowered with a temporary straw ceiling. About four square feet per hen is required for each laying hen of the heavy breeds, and three square feet per hen for the lighter breeds.

In Shop Classes.
David Nelson has completed some more sanitary feeders for the poultry flock. One of the boys reported that his father wanted a sanitary feeder like the one a neighbor boy has made. LeRoy Giese and David Nelson have also made alfalfa feeders. Glenn Lundahl is making new equipment for the poultry house.

Boys in these sections are completing a hay rack, self feeder and mineral feeder to be put in use on the local farms. Myron Felt has completed his feed bunk and will exhibit it at the corn show December 18 and 19. Bobby Hanson plans to have his self feeder at the show. LeRoy Swanson and Gene Lund have made fuel boxes. Plans are under way for the corn show.

Agriculture II and III.
The boys gave some study to the farm orchards. These orchards have largely disappeared from the farm due to lack of proper care. It is strongly recommended that these old grounds be plowed up after all old stumps are removed. The soil should be re-established in fertility and the weeds kept from getting started. New trees of recommended varieties should be planted and then with proper care the home orchard can be a contributing factor in the better farm life.

In Grades 5 and 6.
Over 65 menu cards were made by the 5th and 6th grade art class as part of their work for Junior Red Cross. These cards will be sent to sailors and used for their Christmas dinners.

A Bethlehem scene is being constructed by 6th graders from cardboard, colored paper, and dolls which are dressed to represent Mary and Baby Jesus.

With Grades 2 and 3.
Dorothy Dee Nuernberger is a new pupil in the 2nd grade. The 2nd graders have decorated the room for Christmas.

Beth Carlson and Larry Johnson had perfect spelling scores last week.

Lower Grade Notes.
First graders have received new reading books and have finished their reading work-books. Those who received 100 in spelling were Jean Ann Salmon, Doanle Salmon, Sue Carol Peterson and Lora Kastrop.

Both grades have decorated the room for Christmas and are singing Christmas carols. Pupils have been reading Christmas stories and talking about this season of the year.
