

The War Paramount as New Year Is Ushered in— Sacrifices for Liberty— Lessons from World War— Preserving the In...

Winning the war and doing everything possible to speed victory have first consideration as the new year begins. People want peace, and they are willing to fight for it with everything they can command.

Answering Freedom's Cry. Through the centuries people have strived and fought for individual freedom, and countless lives have been sacrificed for it.

Post-War Order. Vital to the post-war order is management of one's life, so that there may be fewer headaches and the least possible impairment of human values.

In the Field of Nerves. In this connection we may suggest that the individual's nervous system should be safeguarded as far as possible against attacks from war's barbs.

Wholesome Moderation. While restraints imposed by the war often cause inconvenience, they prevent many harmful excesses. Restrictions on personal habits force moderation, and reasonable moderation is good for both body and soul.

Wise Suggestions. The too frequent tendency to do the wrong thing in the guise of helping the public welfare is set forth in these 10 points by Land O'Lakes News:

1. You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift. 2. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.

Bills Are Allowed By Board Monday. Wayne board of education, in regular session Monday, allowed bills totaling $275.87. These were the following: General control, J. W. Litherland, $6.45; Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., $5.51.

Mobilization Is Set For Tuesday

Food Production Program For New Year Explained At Meeting Here.

All farmers and town people are urged to attend the meeting at Wayne auditorium Tuesday, January 12, at 1 p. m., when the food production program for 1943 will be officially launched. Any who are unable to be present are asked to hear Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard speak over the national radio networks that day at 3 p. m.

Everyone is being asked to produce all possible to further the war effort. Among goals set for Nebraska is to increase corn production 10 per cent, dry beans 32 per cent, potatoes 13 per cent, beef 14 per cent, mutton nine per cent, pork 40 per cent, poultry eight per cent, eggs 19 per cent.

Food's importance as a war weapon, the responsibilities of farm families in this phase of war, and means of helping farmers meet production problems will get major attention.

In his letter to state organization heads requesting their services for the mobilization committee, War Board Chairman Abner K. Chestern pointed out the responsibility for wartime production of food was borne by the people of the farms. "Our state is primarily dependent upon agriculture," he wrote. "No matter what our jobs may be, we trace our welfare to the farm. More than that, our success in war during the past year will be measured to a great extent by Nebraska food production. In emergencies like these when we are feeding great armed forces, millions of home front workers and millions of our allies—every pig, every cow, every chicken and every acre counts heavily."

"In the mobilization of their resources for 1943 war production, our farm families need the understanding, encouragement and support of all the people of Nebraska. To show that support—to give farm families proof that their fellow Nebraskans in all walks of life are behind them—is the purpose of the state farm mobilization committee. We believe you and all the people you represent are willing and anxious to help in every possible manner in filling Nebraska's number one war contract, a contract that calls for more food than we've ever before produced," concluded Chairman Chestern.

and the obstructive actions of organized labor and over maintenance of bureaus not related to the war. The new congress will be on the alert to shut off extravagance and waste, and look out to restore traditional government when victory comes and the conflict ends.

Speaking before the Advertising club at Kansas City recently, Samuel R. McKelvie, former Nebraska governor, said there are no limits to farm production if farmers are able to secure adequate help and equipment. He thinks food shortage may be avoided by encouraging farmers to do their best on their own initiative.

Industrial Press Service urges Americans to enliven interest in congress, and follow closely operation of the emergency laws that have been enacted. "So that these measures may rule over our lives during this emergency only, and not remain to plague us after their usefulness has disappeared."

Production Victory Assured. (Industrial Press Service)

In his report to the nation on the progress of production during the first year of the war, War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson repeats his recent contention that "today we are making as many combat weapons, tanks, planes, guns, and ships as the entire Axis. Today the United Nations together are turning out twice as many weapons as the enemy."

Achievements to date, Mr. Nelson points out, however, by no means represent the completion of our goals. Production for war alone will have to equal the value of all goods and services produced by the nation in its years of greatest prosperity. But the record of 1942—in which three and one-half times as many planes were produced as in 1941—gives us assurance that in the next year of war industry will produce whatever is necessary for a complete victory.

Home May Be Like That. (Nation's Business)

Just when the Office of Economic Stabilization is ordering a general curtailment of special services and conveniences of retailers, which OES terms "frills and wastes," along comes Dr. Charles A. Thomas, research director of the Monsanto Chemical Company, with a forecast of a bright new world after the war. Among other things, he says:

"In metropolitan areas it is highly possible there will be no kitchens in the home; food will be sent to the house, via a pneumatic delivery tube, cooked and ready to serve. The modern housewife (this word, too, may become obsolete) will talk not to a grocer but to a local community kitchen by radio television and may inquire, in an irritated voice, why her order of hot lamb chops, peas and vitamin biscuits has not reached her. When her dinner does arrive, the food will be perfectly prepared, precisely the right temperature and skillfully seasoned with the most appetizing condiments."

That cheers us up. But an appalling thought strikes us. Imagine mother standing in the doorway and announcing ominously, not "Cook's quit!" but "Dinner's stuck in the tube!"

The Public Interest. (Lincoln Journal)

While Senator Norris is still rueful over the ending of his public career and still convinced that all is lost, he retains that old hostility toward business which made him a welcome partner with the administration in the gay days of the new deal. In a speech at a public dinner the other evening he warned the people that the National Association of Manufacturers was planning to dominate the government after the war and rob them of the social gains they have achieved in recent years.

The senator did not give any particulars of this plot, but probably based his charge on the well known characteristic of human nature to grab and keep. So far as the public welfare is concerned dominance of government by any group, whether it is big business, organized labor or any other association of selfish interests, constitutes a menace.

At the present time the most influential factor in popular government in this country is organized labor, and the senator is one of those who helped arm it with the power it wields to dominate employment. As a result the public faces a new menace, that with organized labor grown so great and powerful big business may make an alliance with it to exploit the rank and file of the people.

The right of labor to organize and to do collective bargaining is no longer an issue. Whatever industry may think about it, those are social gains that can and should be retained.

The fact remains, however, that in the interest of workers generally the government must some day apply to this new economic giant the same restrictions and the same controls that have properly been imposed upon industry generally.

Power always brings abuses, and where these affect the public interest they must be ended by government decree, regardless of from what origin they spring.

INFLUENZA. Reports from the Nebraska department of health discuss pneumonia and influenza. Pneumonia may be developed from influenza, and influenza may be caught by getting within range of the sneeze or cough of a person having the disease. It seems invisible germs are sneezed or coughed into the air, and they often stay in the air long enough to fasten into unsuspecting victims. The sweeping and fatal flu epidemic of 1918 is recalled, and the report states that hogs and cats suffered from the same disease, people blaming the animals, and no doubt the animals blaming the people. Families are advised to keep suspicious eyes on cats. Unlike grasshoppers, influenza germs can't stand dry weather. Touching that point, the report explains: "In the case of influenza virus, and probably some other viruses, drying causes the death of the infectious agent within a few minutes. It has been shown at the University of California that a solution of virus placed upon a hand and allowed to dry lost its disease producing ability in ten minutes. This explains why we do not carry influenza from one person to another. The well individual must inhale the moist droplets or otherwise get them into his respiratory tract before they dry."

AS SEEN BY EARL STEFAN

Washington, D. C., December 30, 1942. The dollar value of imports from foreign lands was reduced by about 50 per cent during 1942. But the value of exports reached a total of over seven billions of dollars, an increase of 56 per cent over the comparable figures of 1941. In normal times such fluctuations would occasion wide comment, but now they are to be expected. Most of our heavy imports are blocked by war. Our exports cover the long-range shipments, which account for nearly one-half their volume. Next year, the volume of exports will exceed even that of 1942, and there will be a further decline in imports.

Those who are giving their attention to planning for the period after the war are stressing the importance of foreign trade for the rehabilitation of the world. Present trade figures are of little account in such considerations. But there are a few commodities which formed a portion of world trade before the war which are likely to be of lesser volume in both exports and imports. The production of steel has been stepped up for war purposes not only in our own country, but in European countries as well. Turning war steel mills to peacetime production will mean an enormous surplus in all the principal countries.

Our government is financing iron mines and steel mills in South America which may turn Brazil into a large producer of all steel products. Natural rubber imports will be reduced because the East India plantations have been destroyed and substitutes soon will be as good and even more plentiful. Silk will also be a less valuable product because of the competition of new substitutes. Guessing what the world will want and what it will be doing after the war is over.

NEWSPRINT.

A Washington report states that the war production board has ordered what is estimated a 10 per cent cut in newspaper consumption. As we understand, the plan is to force reduction to the net paid circulation levels of 1941. Paid circulation is required under the mailing privilege, but early in the war concession was made by the government to free copies distributed under that privilege to boys in the armed forces. Accordingly, the Herald is now going without charge to 350 Wayne county boys in war camps and battle fields. Necessarily, consumption of newspaper has been increased, and doubtless will continue to increase for the duration. We think all will agree that this service is essential as a morale builder—as a means of keeping boys in touch with home communities and of fighting off painful nostalgia. We hope Washington authorities will see the wisdom of granting this extra paper consumption above the ordinary paid circulation. They must understand the value of the service to soldiers away from their homes. Aside from this meritorious free service, the requirement to maintain a strictly paid-in-advance subscription list is being heeded by this newspaper. The practical course we will follow in complying with the war board's ten per cent cut in newspaper consumption will be to reduce the number of pages issued at times of least demand for space; also by discontinuing subscriptions that are not paid in advance. The conservation plan will necessarily require more careful use of newspaper space without neglecting valuable public service.

is a sort of long-distance proposition, and the best of guessers may not make the right one.

One result of the retirement of Leon Henderson from the OPA may be abandonment of the policy to subsidize the distribution of farm commodities to consumers. Mr. Henderson may not have been the author of the plan, but he favored it. He believed it the best method of maintaining ceiling prices on food products, the idea being that farmers might benefit by the subsidies to the extent of their sales below actual cost of production. While stressing farm commodities in this connection, the big subsidies now in force and effect are those on fuel oil, gas and coal to eastern cities to equalize the additional freight charges for rail shipments over that previously paid for water transportation.

The Work Progress administration now is on its way out upon the order of the president and soon will be a thing of the past. It was one of the most extensive of the emergency agencies set up during the depression. In all, about 15 billions of dollars were spent on that form of work relief in the 10-year period. Nearly every community in the country had some form of WPA projects. Streets and highways were improved to the extent of 566,322 miles of rural roads, and 66,392 miles of streets in municipalities in all the states. There were 77,073 bridges built and 34,056 public buildings constructed by WPA workers, and as many more improved. Schools also were recipients of large grants for projects. There were educational and library buildings built to the number of 5,832, and 8,579 recreational buildings and 1,626 auditoriums and gymnasiums. Sports facilities were provided with millions for projects, including 2,272 stadiums and grandstands, 2,980 athletic fields, 9,971 tennis courts, 791 swimming pools and 1,098 skating rinks. The various cities and communities receiving allotments during the later years of the WPA were compelled to put up larger percentages for sites and materials, so that there was an additional cost to that of federal expenditures. The number of workers employed at various times during WPA administration relief was over ten millions, most of whom were from the ranks of the unemployed in industrial centers. The states of New York and Pennsylvania received nearly one-third the total expenditures.

A few short months have made a change in the food situation. Last summer, large hay and grain yields and lustrant pastures for dairy herds pushed production of dairy products to a record-breaking volume. There were 90 million pounds of butter in cold storage, and predictions of butter rationing were derided. Now about all the butter is out of storage and butter rationing probably will be ordered in a few days.

The surplus of lard also was one of the farm problems for years, and now lard may soon be rationed. Vegetable oils are growing scarcer and there will be a shortage of a billion pounds or more. There is a steadily increasing supply of munitions and all other war equipment with which to win the war, but the food supply is not keeping pace with industrial production. Food is as essential to the war as munitions. Neither price ceilings nor rationing will add to the production of farm products. As winter moves on toward spring, and food rationing is expanded to include so many commodities, the government agencies must settle upon some plan of action which will give the farms a chance. Otherwise next fall and winter may see a serious crisis.

FARM WAR NEWS From AAA Office

Responsibility of deducting the five per cent victory tax from his annual salary in excess of $624 rests with the individual farmer. The farmer himself pays victory tax on his own net, not gross, income.

Department of agriculture January 1 released all new farm machinery and equipment which was frozen last fall. In general the release applies to larger types of farm machines made before 1943; production quotas became effective.

Christian Science Services

"Sacrament" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, January 10. The Golden Text is: "I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all his people" (Psalms 116:13-14).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup... who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults." (1 Corinthians 11:28; Psalms 19:12).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Consistent prayer is the desire to do right. Prayer means that we desire to walk and will walk in the light so far as we receive it, even though with bleeding feetsteps, and that waiting patiently on the Lord, we will leave our real desires to be rewarded by Him. The world must grow to the spiritual understanding of prayer. If good enough to profit by Jesus' cup of earthly sorrows, God will sustain us under these sorrows. Until we are thus divinely qualified and are willing to drink his cup, millions of vain repetitions will never pour into prayer the unction of Spirit in demonstration of power and with signs following" (pp. 9,10). Services in Woman's club room Sunday at 11.

Long on GOVERNMENT builders of reports and questionnaires often conserve paper by using both sides of a sheet. But they could save far more by saying less. They could say everything essential by developing the technique of boiling out superfluous.

Bureaucrats who prepare questionnaires, apparently do not know how to go directly to a point. They appear to relish circumlocution. Perhaps they like to pile up words to make themselves impressive. Touching long-winded questionnaires sent to farmers who are often thereby nettled, the Omaha Journal-Stockman makes this observation:

"From the farmer point of view the worst feature of this whole regimenting and rationing business is the long lists of questions and answers, they have to submit to. They are not accustomed to verbose, complicated and highly technical questionnaires such as business executives have long had to submit to and they have no smart and capable clerks to handle such matters. These questionnaires may seem to be unimportant and impertinent to farmers but it must be remembered that if the bureaucrats were not in a position to arrange and send out these bulletins and instructions their jobs would be vacated and that would be terrible, from the bureaucratic point of view."

Senators In Session

THE state legislature opened Tuesday. Members were elected on a non-political ballot, but if party affiliations were counted, republicans would be in majority. Thus, most members may shy in the presence of anything that emanates from new deal sources. The governor has expressed eagerness for a short session, and probably farm members in particular will agree in view of the labor shortage and the demand for increased production. So, when new chickens, pigs and calves are about ready to be ushered into the world next spring, farm senators will become anxious to get back to their home domains. Thus, in order to be ready to adjourn early, they should rivet thought on subjects presented, steer clear of trifles and embrace needed action, the while praying for utmost wisdom.

Looking to THE Christian Science Monitor complains of the extravagance of Washington society dinners in the presence of self-denial over the nation. Consistency should inspire high official circles to practice what they preach, leading rather than following in the observance of war-time rules.

The country generally is accepting war conditions philosophically, and while people do not relish being restricted, they understand the inevitable and are yielding to it without balking. They want to make any necessary sacrifices to hasten victory and get over the hard war task as soon as possible. Washington should set the example, and be glad to do it.

Ugly Storms

FIRST settlers recall many tough winter storms, but none that had so hard or cost more lives or caused more suffering than the blizzard of January 12, 1888. That storm did not last long, but it made up in ferocity for what it lacked in duration. The early-day blizzard was not regular if it did not run three days. The 1888 storm, starting at noon, disappeared by the next morning. Many teachers and children were caught in school houses, some perished and all had severe and terrifying experiences. Fences, buildings and other improvements have greatly modified the wrath of mid-western blizzards. In fact, the 1888 exhibition seemed to pull the curtain down on the wild early-day variety.

J. Edgar Hoover and his FBI associates are not given to noise or burning red fire, but they are doing wonderfully effective work in nailing guilt on criminals and dangerous aliens. The Hoover institution is not only a war essential, but a permanent need.

The new congress is launched this week with an understanding of the demands of the people who have become impatient meat scraps and tankage as well as the soybeans formerly imported from Manchuria. At the same time, he said, the demand for soybean oil meal had increased many times because of better prices for hogs and livestock.

As a means of helping meet the protein shortage, the agricultural extension service has prepared a detailed list of suggestions for making available protein go farther or for making use of protein sources that perhaps have not been utilized up to the present on many farms. Copies are available without charge at the Dixon county extension office.

Circular Is Available.
Extension circular 468, which gives complete directions on how to put a new lining in a coat, is quest on a penny postcard to the

To Order Seedlings.
Orders for Clarke-McNary seedlings will be taken now, according to Walter R. Harder, county extension agent. Because some varieties are limited people are urged to order without delay.
The Clarke-McNary list includes 18 varieties of broadleaves and evergreens. These are: Russian mulberry, American elm, cottonwood, green ash, honey locust, black locust, Chinese elm, hackberry, box elder, soft maple, Russian olive, caragana, wild plum, chokecherry, yellow bull pine, Austrian pine, jack pine and red cedar.

***
Prevent Hog Losses.
Market hogs are beginning to show some mange at this time and precautions should be taken now to prevent heavy losses later on in the season. Hog houses should be thoroughly cleaned and sprayed and hogs should be treated with oil and other preparations before entering the building.
***
Should Move Scrap.
In response to the urgent appeal of Donald M. Nelson, WPB chief, and the army and navy officials, much effort is being put forth to move all dormant scrap piles to market. Some complaints have charged that dealers only take heavy scrap and leave light scrap scattered about. The paper of the pile must take heavy metal such as car bodies, etc., states the official.
***
Rev. M. Jung, Martinsburg, has

Give Suggestions On Meat Curing
Farm people still can use the so-called "sugar cures" for meat, even though OPA has announced that no sugar will be allocated to consumers for meat curing. Syrup and other materials can be used in place of sugar.
Prof. Wm. J. Loeffel, meat authority at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture, recommends 8 pounds of salt, 2 pounds of sugar, and 2 ounces of salspeter per 100 pounds of meat.
This may be applied dry or dissolved in 4 1/2 gallons of water.
Corn syrup, sorghum syrup, mollasses, honey, or maple syrup can be substituted for the sugar.
It is possible to cure meat with sugar, according to Loeffel, but the meat will be less palatable.
Salt and salspeter tend to harden meat, and sugar or syrup tends to neutralize this hardening action.
Experimental work has shown that corn sugar or corn syrup actually produces a better cured product than cane or beet sugar because of its greater moisture-holding power.
Soybean Meal Scarce.
Soybean processors in Des Moines recently gave their views on the soybean oil meal shortage, denying this product is being hoarded.
Walter C. Berger, president and general manager of the Des Moines Oat Products Co., said termination of huge imports because of the war has resulted in unprecedented demands upon the domestic soybean oil meal supplies.
Mr. Berger said the demand for soybean oil meal was reflected in declines in imports of fish meal,

Training School Gives Program

tory work during the past two weeks.

Fifth Grade News.
The class has learned to use fractions of the inch so that the children can draw a map of Wayne county using a scale of one-fourth inch to the mile.

Reading about the first Christmas celebration in Wayne county held at LaPorte in 1880 was enjoyed by all students.

Experiments with magnets have been interesting. The suspended bar magnet and the magnetized needle floating on a cork demonstrated the way a compass acts. An electromagnet was made.

From Fourth Grade.
Stories about equatorial Africa have been studied, read aloud and used in free reading periods.

Prof. Russell Anderson was a recent visitor.

Third Grade Items.
The children have been learning to tell time. They have been learning the different ways time has been measured through the years.

A trip was made to see the sundial on the campus. Names of the months and their abbreviations have been written. Holidays and other special days have been associated with the proper months. A few Roman numerals have been learned to help the reading of some old clock faces. The children's birthdays have been found on the calendar.

Stories and legends concerning the sun, moon and stars are being read and told.

Second Grade Items.
Jimmie Sutherland, Gretchen Jensen, Harold Surber and Bobbie Steele are back in school again.

Children found a blue morning glory in bloom Monday morning when they came to school.

Miss Mary Lynn Burge, student teacher, has been helping children to work out the rhythm band parts for the song, "An Airplane Ride."

Miss Hazel Jessen, student teacher, has been helping the children complete their work books on health habits.

First Grade News.
The 1st graders enjoyed Jack Kingston's birthday party last week.

Mrs. Paul Pawelski visited the room last week. Other visitors were Miss Doris Pilgrim, Miss Charlotte Skinner and other teachers.

Pupils are going to learn some of their own folk melodies on the marimba this month. These songs may serve as illustrations for art. They have also been looking for the beautiful colors that the sun and shadows make on the snow.

The students have been reading about Mr. Bear, Mr. Rabbit, Mr. Chipmunk and a safety story about a little squirrel being given first aid at school.

Kindergarten Items.
Interest in Boyd Grier's toy airplane, a story and pictures about an airplane brought in by Robert Ray Bryan and further general enthusiasm about the field of aviation aided to launch an airplane unit in the kindergarten. The group has cooperated in building first the body of an airplane with building blocks. Steve Pawelski, John Dawson and Michael Ebersole have made the frame for the airplane wings. Robert Ray Bryan and Marlan Carlson sawed out the tail of the airplane. Marlan Carlson and John Dawson painted the tail. Monday, Robert Ray Bryan, Boyd Grier and Dickie Steele started to cover one airplane wing. Linda Kessler has painted the U. S. insignias for the wings. Wyoming Griffith has colored an interesting airplane picture. The class has learned two airplane songs.

The group dramatized the "Three Billy Goats Gruff" story last Tuesday.

The children are learning the "Shoemaker's Dance."

A rhythm band is a new project of the students. For rhythmic expression the children all enjoy ice skating.

Phi Beta Kappa Is Not Essential for Success in Army

You don't have to be a Phi Beta Kappa to pack a gun for Uncle Sam. All you need is a ticker that doesn't skip too many beats when you get a Jap in the sights of your rifle.

You don't even need the equivalent of a fourth grade education or be able to read or write if there is nothing wrong with your mental equipment.

Because, according to a long, lean gentleman who has had plenty of education himself, the American high command learned long ago at Bunker Hill that a man in ragged buckskin who might have to use his fingers to count out his change could be "an awful mean cuss" when the shots began to fly.

The lean gentleman is Lt. H. D. Griffin, nationally accredited educator, who left a professional chair at Wayne Normal college to conduct psychological tests in the army.

Short-hand students are drilling on the ten, den, ten and dem bonds which are rather difficult.

In the unit, "The Bank and the Community," 8th graders studied banks long ago, how banks serve the community and how to open and care for checking accounts.

Improving sentences is the unit in English.

Better Physical Health Stressed

Program of Victory Corps Will Be Offered Local High School Students.

Superintendents, instructors and especially physical education directors from northeast Nebraska will be at the college in Wayne Saturday, January 16, for a physical education institute.

Physical education enrollment in Wayne city school for second semester, which opens January 18, is about double that of the first semester.

The Victory Corps makes only slight change in schedule plans except for the requirement of physical training. Other courses remain much as they have been though the stress will change to the practical and vocational standpoint.

Typing classes worked on artistic typing, making original designs and pictures. Beginners are now typing letters, and second year students are working on legal practice.

Short-hand students are drilling on the ten, den, ten and dem bonds which are rather difficult.

Weather Warmer Than Winter Type

Fossil Head of Prehistoric Mammal Is on Display At Dr. Jones Office.

Early Days from the Wayne Herald for January 6, 1927:

The weather this week is said to be the warmest on record for this time of year. Night and day the snow has been melting, and bare stretches appear where but a few days ago were deep white blankets. If this is designed as the customary January thaw, it has come earlier than usual. It reduces operating costs by saving coal. But it upsets the normalcy of ungraveled highways, and people have experienced considerable hardship in traveling. It is a powerful argument in favor of permanent hard-surfaced roads.

Dr. T. T. Jones has on exhibit at his office the fossil head of what is known as an orodon, an extinct animal which is said to have lived 300,000,000 years ago, perhaps a trifle more or less. The head was dug out of the rocky depths of the Black Hills and was brought here by Ted Prescott. The orodon was about the size of a goat with front legs longer than hind legs. These legs were probably arranged for going up and down the hills. The teeth are large and do not appear to have had the care of a dentist. They seem to have kept in perfect commission for millions of years.

Mrs. Winifred Main spoke to Kiwanians about China.
