

Plan to Meet in Wayne Next Sunday, June 27, to Talk Over Vital Questions—Family Tree Reveals Reasons for Longevity—Looking to Post-War Development—Adding to Burden Impossible.

A meeting of northeast Nebraska editors is scheduled to be held in Wayne next Sunday afternoon, June 27, when matters of interest to the profession will be discussed. It is hoped editors generally will be able to attend.

Editor E. E. Pont of Stanton is president and Editor Fred Zimmer of Hartington is secretary of the group, and they will have charge of the program. Editor A. C. Gardner of Ogata, president of the Nebraska Press association, will be present and lead discussions.

Despite war obligations, persons engaged in professional or business activities are urged to attend conventions and participate in an idea exchange. After the war and following freedom from unusual restraints, it is hoped Wayne will be privileged to entertain editorial and other groups in a properly elaborate manner.

Young at 89. In Wayne last week we met A. H. Michner who is engaged in the brokerage business in Omaha. It was not strange that we met him for it was amazingly strange to find that he is 89 years old and as well preserved as a fellow of 50.

Mr. Michner was born on an Ohio farm January 15, 1854. His father who was the youngest in a family of 13 children, lived to be 119. All of his father's brothers and sisters lived beyond 108.

Mr. Michner attended one national convention, the one that nominated Wm. McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt in 1900. While a brother represents a Michigan district in congress, our subject has kept aloof from office-seeking.

One naturally wonders at Mr. Michner's activity and keenness at 89. His habits have been temperate and orderly, and he keeps fit from worry—as free as this time as conditions will make it possible. He likes people, and he is rewarded by people liking him.

Post-War Planning. The Chamber of Commerce of Norfolk is stirring itself in the direction of post-war development. It proposes to be among towns on the alert to gather advantages and steam ahead under the force of a lot of released energy.

Certainty of increased travel by air insures advantages to communities that have adequate air fields, and Norfolk has to plan accordingly. Through the training of a considerable body of aviation cadets here, Wayne is putting itself in shape to meet post-war demands.

Only for Armed Forces. The Herald is sending newspapers free only to Wayne county boys in the armed forces. We have had requests for inclusion on the free list of some in women's organizations or others employed in war production plants.

Marionettes Here In Indian Legend. Tatterman Marionettes returned to Wayne college last night with a picturesque play of Indian folklore, "The Legend of the Lightning." Under the direction of their producer, William Ireland Duncan, the performance equaled in brilliance previous appearances here.

Youths Address Kiwanis Group

Student Kenneth Pierce and Captain Douglas Canning Tell of Experiences.

The thrills connected with a canoe trip through hazardous waterways were described for Kiwanians Monday by Aviation Student Kenneth Pierce of Wayne college detachment. The young man and three others spent from June to August last summer traveling from Winnipeg to Hudson bay, two in each canoe.

The four took a boat to Lake Winnipeg and then went to Norway house. They had two 30-foot canoes and a 2 1/2 h.p. outboard motor, though most of their trip was made by padding. They had to pack carefully to balance the light boats, so took considerable concentrated food.

Maps are also important on such a trip and the journey had to be planned carefully. The youths went north to God's lake—the most beautiful place one can imagine—and reported to the Canadian rangers. The rangers had to know the route and points of landing so they could locate the party if need be at any time.

The party first went down God's river to Hudson bay. They found fishing exceptionally good with blue and trout plentiful. The water was so clear that they could see the bottom when it was 35 feet deep. In God's river trout abound at a depth of 75 to 100 feet. One fish the men had on their line was so large it stopped the canoe and after 45 minutes the youths were able to land this 24-pound trout.

Toughest traveling was from the river to the bay where steep rapids are frequent. In that part of the journey the one in the front of the canoe had a real job in watching for the rocks in the seven-mile current. When the canoe would become hung on a rock, it required some time to paddle off against the current. They experienced 40 places where it was necessary to lift the canoes over rocks.

In Nelson river, 55 miles north of Norway house, the party found the stars and other night beauty especially entrancing. At Devil's Elbow they experienced the worst rapids. Once there one of the canoes was grounded, a rock that tore a hole in the boat. The young men took the canoe ashore and mended it with blue denim and pitch from trees. The job was a success. At another place one of the canoes tipped over and clothing, money, food and all went far down into the water.

Young Pierce advised all lovers of the fishing sport to go to that part of Canada after the war to enjoy that region.

LIVESTOCK MARKET ROLL-BACK CAUSES FARM RESENTMENT

PROBABLY the main topic for discussion in Saturday night's main street forum was the government's roll-back on livestock prices, and the protests that have gone to Washington. A farmer who has cattle or hogs ready to market can easily figure the extent to which his cash returns have been trimmed, and he feels deeply incensed.

Mr. Shannon was in the railroad yards supervising the loading of some horses at the time he was stricken. He went to a nearby office and asked that someone call for his car. The doctor who attended him at the hospital said he died of a coronary embolism.

Attending the get-together dinner-dance were the students of the graduating class, their guests, officers of the school, director of flying, resident supervisor and the guest speaker. BALLAD OF FLIGHT 'E'

(By Geo. R. Carpenter, Class "E")

This is a tale of a struggle for freedom. Fought in the day of the fast flying plane.

This is a story of man facing danger. This is the episode written in Wayne.

Our narrative started the day of Pearl Harbor. We felt, that as men, we must enter the fight.

We burned with a hatred for small yellow creatures. As the twilight of war darkened deep into night.

We raised up our hand in a pledge of allegiance. We swore for revenge, it is now "do or die."

We looked for a field that offered us action. We found such a field in the vast empty sky.

Already we've felt the pull of the air screw. Already we've flown, and raced with the breeze.

We've spun, turned and side-slipped, and took-off and landed. We've felt, watched the grace of the swift moving case.

So give us a plane filled with live ammunition. Give us the thunder, the scream and the roar.

We'll take our chance in azure blue heavens. Fighting and flying, we'll soon win the war.

Tells Experiences In South Pacific

Captain Douglas Canning Credits Cooperation As Key to Success.

Capt. Douglas Canning, graduate from Wayne State Teachers college in 1940, spoke at the college convocation Wednesday morning concerning his experiences in the Pacific war zone during the past 17 months.

Capt. Canning left the United States January 12, 1942, and was stationed at Fiji, a British island, for about eight months. Pilot Canning describes Fiji as a "typical south sea island, with friendly natives, thousands of orchids, sugar cane and pineapple fields."

On leaving Fiji September 15 he was sent to Guadalcanal, arriving there the first of October, 1942. Capt. Canning describes his main activities at Guadalcanal as consisting of strafing and dive-bombing the Japanese.

"Foxholes are about four feet deep and three feet wide—and a rather safe place in time of strafing," he said. Capt. Canning had experience in fox holes during Japanese naval bombardment and air raids. The night of October 12, a Jap battleship bombarded the island; the night of October 13, a cruiser bombarded the island; and October 14, a destroyer shelled the American positions.

After eight to 10 months of service flying P-38 aircraft, Capt. Canning's main work was to escort bombers. The speaker attributed a great part of the American successes in combat to the coordination and cooperation American youth learn in athletic contests, and to their mechanical aptitude and skill in improvisation.

The south sea islands, Pilot Canning believed to be less romantic than pictured in moving pictures. "These isles consist largely of mountains and jungles with comparatively little flat country. They have ample supplies of bananas, lemons and limes." The young man closed his talk with the statement, "The United States is a fine place to live... as you will find out if you ever leave it."

Prof. Yale K. Kessler, convocation chairman, introduced the speaker. These musical numbers were offered by Prof. Russell Anderson and some of his students: "I Passed By Your Window," girls' trio, Iris Kauffal, Dolores Sanders and Jacqueline Helleberg, accompanied by Shirley Knapp; and "Ev'rybody Ev'ry Payday," sung by Prof. Anderson with Dolores Sanders at the piano.

Convocation next week will be Wednesday morning at 11. Prof. K. N. Parke will speak on "What Everyone Should Know About First Aid."

SAFEWAY Homemakers' Guide

Let peanut butter be the home front standby

It's time we realized the importance of peanut butter as a nutritious food, and not as a delicious snack food. Its flavor is only one of the things in favor of peanut butter. It is a protein food and that means that it can take the place of meat on the menu. It is a food high in energy value, the kind of food that gives that power needed for heavy work. As for minerals and vitamins, peanut butter scores high. It is particularly high in some of those all-important B vitamins.

PEANUT BUTTER CUTLETS—Combine 1 cup hot medium thick white sauce and 1/2 cup peanut butter. Add 1 well-beaten egg and mix well. Add 2 cups soft bread crumbs and seasonings and mix well. Form into cutlets or patties, dip in beaten egg, then cracker crumbs and fry until well browned. Serve with cheese sauce.

PEANUT BUTTER IN SOUPS—Add 2 or 3 tbsps. peanut butter to cream soups for additional nourishment and tempting new flavor.

PEANUT BUTTER SAUCE—Blend in 1 to 2 tbsps. peanut butter into white sauce, tomato sauce and gravies. It adds extra richness and intrigues nutty goodness.

PEANUT BUTTER SALAD DRESSINGS—Mix peanut butter and salad dressings or mayonnaise in proportions to suit your taste. Serve on vegetable and fruit salads. It's simply luscious.

PEANUT BUTTER PUDDING—Mix 1/2 cup of cornstarch with a dash of salt and 1 tbsps. sugar, and 1/2 cup cold water. Combine 3 tbsps. honey or corn syrup with 4 tbsps. peanut butter. Mix with cornstarch mixture, and cook in double boiler for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Then cover and cook 15 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Cool, pour into sherbet dishes and chill.

Roll back WHEN told at a senate committee meeting that farmers are receiving less for their cattle by reason of the price roll back, OPA Administrator Prentiss Brown is quoted as remarking that "the farmer is getting a darned good price."

Midwestern cattlemen can assure Prentiss Brown that it is possible to make more money on 10-cent cattle than on 15-cent cattle.

But the realities of the situation are that corn, if it can be found at the legal ceilings, is a dollar a bushel and that it costs about 20 cent to put a pound of corn fat on an animal that will bring 15 cents on the hoof.

For the cattlemen the same situation would obtain if corn were two dollars a bushel and the going price for cattle were 30 cents.

"Nor do the cattlemen want such a price spiral. What they want is a wholesale beef price that reflects cost of production.

What the cattlemen want is an increase in beef prices that will reflect a profit for corned cattle. Until cattlemen can get such a profit no price is a 'darned good price'."

Future MILLIONS in the armed forces are the hope of future America. They have been trained mentally to discern, and they have been trained physically to achieve and endure.

WAR NEWS Applesauce, blueberries, figs, beets, carrots, pumpkins and squash will be available to civilians in cans because of the curtailment in government requirements.

The government has started a program to stabilize the price of vegetables and yet give the consumer a fair and equitable return.

Manufacturers of milking machines, farm separators and farm milk coolers have been authorized by the war food administration to distribute 100 per cent of their authorized production.

Thirty-five states are now operating under the WPB program to pool government-owned road machinery. Thus the requirement for critical materials is reduced and idle equipment is used where the need is most urgent.

Dealers must place stickers on ration-free shoes to protect the customer against black markets in shoes.

The purchaser of a used car may qualify for a gasoline ration to operate it, even though he is unable to get a ration inspection record from the previous owner, if he can satisfy the local board that no tire inspection record ever was issued for the vehicle, or that the buyer had been unable to get the record from the previous owner after diligent attempt.

Photographs of children under 1 year of age belonging to soldiers serving overseas or children born after the father has departed for overseas may be sent by V-mail under certain conditions according to the war department. The picture is limited to one-third the correspondence space. It must be on the upper left portion of the paper and may include the mother or some other person holding the child.

Only five simple questions are asked in making application for next year's basic oil ration. Forms will be mailed to each consumer who used oil last year and these should be returned to local ration boards as soon as possible.

American way, and to attempt to make and distribute and sell all the things that the people will want, there will be work not only for the people who are presently employed but also for the men who will be coming back."

After the War WAYNE may well plan now for post-war activities. The north-of-town park of sixty acres which reverted to a corn field, following declaration of war, will be improved to serve its intended purpose, and a suitable swimming pool should be included.

Another matter of importance in post-war development will be a landing field commensurate with the needs of air transportation. Wayne has made a good start. The time may not be too distant when mail and passengers will mainly go and come by air. Even express and freight may be shipped in that way.

The Chamber of Commerce cannot justify its existence by engineering an occasional week-end sale, or by having a farmers' day by wearing overalls. It should look to supplying the sinews for substantial enterprise and permanent growth.

In tearing their shirts to restrict and regulate the American economy to force price levels and prevent inflation we wonder if bureaucrats are not inviting the very conditions which they think they are going to head off.

Owen L. Scott, Washington columnist, writes sympathetically of the middle class which he says bears excessive burdens because it is unorganized.

OWI Chief Elmer Davis complains that news coverage in Washington is "inadequate," and the answer is that he is in the way of more complete coverage.

South America, she's coming! Mrs. Roosevelt proposes a trip to that continent, doubtless as a good will gesture, acting, as reported, on an urgent invitation.

The latest is a suspension of the coal miners' strike and a resumption of operations. They should stick to this essential production in support of early victory.

Friday of this week is the last day for the anti-strike bill to be vetoed, signed or allowed to become a law without executive approval.

Washington, D. C. June 16, 1943. Congress has now authorized and appropriated more than $250 billion for war purposes.

There is much talk here of changing the activities of the civil aeronautics administration. The proposed change might even affect the civil aeronautics board.

A bi-partisan joint committee of the senate and house, most of them members of the committees on agriculture, called on the president the other day, asking for a one-man administration of food production, food prices and food rationing.

attack this week. It already had been one of the most denounced of all government bureaus. The house committee for relief of small business, is holding hearings. From all parts of the country have come delegations to protest the OPA is destroying small business firms in great number and at the same time seriously interfering with the volume of food production.

There is no endeavor on the part of the critics to tolerate or promote runaway inflation, but it is charged that inflation is really being produced through making commodities scarcer and more difficult to obtain and through confusion created by OPA and its specialists.

When in Wayne Boche was active in college affairs. He served as Katz club treasurer in 1941, president of Terrace hall in 1941 and president of Alpha Psi Omega in 1942.

India Is Unusual And Picturesque Reports Officer

Capt. Byron Hooper, who was formerly connected with the Brown-McDonald store in Wayne, relates some interesting facts and experiences about his trip in India in a letter to his wife whose home is now in Norfolk. "The trip over was wonderful; we saw many odd things and were initiated into the 'short snorter' club." Those who cross the ocean by plane are eligible to this club.

"At one place where we had a forest lay over because of plane trouble. We got to go through a sultan's palace, and down to the beach where we had a swim in the delightful, warm ocean. The sultan here has quite a layout miles of palms have been planted, also gardens with onions, tomatoes, peppers, cane, etc. Though the land is rocky and barren, in the places where it is irrigated things grow in abundance. The sultan's houses and village are all made of stone and look very nice though there are many thatched houses also.

"We're surrounded by tea plantations. You see the tea leaf pickers going to work about 9 a. m. They walk single file—men, women and children.

"Lots of oxen are used here to haul freight and in some spots used as the motor power for irrigation. They have an open well and bring the water up in a bucket, using the oxen to pull it up. The bucket is emptied into a trough, and this is irrigating.

"In our wanderings about we had the opportunity of visiting the 'Taj Mahal'—a mausoleum in a beautiful garden. It certainly deserves to be one of the wonders of the world.

"The country here is very beautiful now. The roads are lined with bamboo groves, small lush farms—coconut palms, mango trees, banana trees and gorgeous flowering shrubs, some of which look like American Beauty roses, others have small purple flowers. This is all interspersed with tea plantations and thatched huts and occasionally a brick house with white outside plaster, sometimes yellow, decorated with flowering colored vine objects, which seem to be such a favorite of these people.

"The native bananas are much smaller than those we get at home, only enough for three or four bites, and are much more tasty and a bit sweeter. I bet that they would make a good banana pie.

"At the end of the barracks where we have been sleeping are some British soldiers who brew tea at 10:30 a. m., and 3 in the afternoon. We've gone down occasionally for tea and talk.

"Quite a bit of rain has fallen here lately; it falls steadily and rather lightly, as there is very little wind with it. The moonlight nights we've had here are gorgeous. Made it to town yesterday and poked around the market place—was going to buy a couple of cans of Heinz soup—all they wanted per can was $1.02 in our money."

Library News

Here is an interesting fact about books. In Russia, before the war, 2,000,000,000 books were sold annually. In the United States 50,000,000 books were sold in one year. In other words, the Russians bought five times as many books as Americans.

We Americans are a social people. We flock to theatres and concert halls because music and drama are social pleasures which we enjoy in public in the company of our friends but we are less inclined to withdraw ourselves into the apparent solitude which reading entails. Yet the fellowship of books, silent and unseen though it be, is more real than the mere gregariousness of a public assembly. Books link men and women together with bonds that are important and lasting. Through them mind speaks to mind and when people like the same book they have a friend in common. Reading is really, then, a social pleasure and it needs only something which will serve to reveal its social aspect to make it seem so.

The Wayne library received some new books this week. You may have been waiting for some of these: Hungry Hill, by Daphne du Maurier, Gideon Planish, by Sinclair Lewis, They Call it Pacific, by Clark Lee, Kate Fennigate, by Booth Tarkington, Prisoner of the Japs, by Gwen Dew, Mother Russia, by Maurice Hincus, as well as many light novels and mysteries.

Story hour for the older group of children will be held Friday afternoon at 3:30. On Tuesday afternoon, June 29, moving pictures will be shown for both groups of children.

Farm Corn Prices Are Misunderstood

The Sioux City office of price administration reports that apparently considerable misinformation has been released through unofficial sources and some misunderstanding prevails in this territory with reference to farm prices of corn under the OPA regulations. Maximum prices for corn are definitely fixed by the regulation in relation to the "on-track" prices of the interior points, that is, the place having shipping facilities for railroad lots, nearest the place where the corn is produced.

Maximum prices for corn sold by a farmer is 10¢, the farm, no matter where the corn is delivered, whether to another farmer, to an interior point in the same area, to a terminal price basing point like Sioux City, or to any other territory. The maximum price which a farmer can legally receive on sale to other farmers and feeders is the "on-track" price, and on sale to any other persons, the price is 2 cents lower.

Any effort on the part of either the buyer or seller of corn to avoid the maximum prices fixed by the regulations, directly or indirectly, constitutes a violation.

The real purpose and design of all price regulations is not only to control prices but to effect an equitable distribution of commodities on a share and share alike basis and ultimately to assist in the war effort by releasing surplus commodities to allies under lend-lease agreements and finally to effectuate the earliest possible successful end to the war.

Robert Morgan, "It's just a combination of teamwork, lady luck and a bunch of boys working together—and there are plenty of boys doing the same thing."

Should Take Care In Listing Names
Headquarters, Seventh service command, requested that all clubs, groups and organizations who are preparing and publishing lists of their members in the armed forces refrain from giving the names of the military units to which these members belong as well as the geographical location of the members. The publication of such information was indicated by Seventh service command headquarters as presenting a threat both to the security of classified information, which the enemy may be able to use, and to the safety of the men themselves.

Only the listing of the name of the individual and the designation of the service—such as army, navy, WAAC, etc.—is permissible; for example: Corporal John Jones, army.

It is requested that objectionable lists already printed be immediately and completely destroyed.

Develops Picture Of Prisoner Son

Sad Mission Is Turned to Gladness When Missing Youth Appears.

For a year Mrs. Catherine Manion, Los Angeles, worried about the fate of her son, Jerome, in the army. She could get no information. The other day a woman brought a picture of a group of Japanese prisoners into the Manion photo shop, asking for an enlarged print of her son. Mrs. Manion made the print, then called excitedly to her husband. "Look! Standing by this woman's son—that's Jerome."

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Swan of Salt Lake City, read with eager interest the news they were parents of twin daughters. They thought the news a bit unusual. The twins are now 21 years old. The mixup they learned, resulted from new birth certificates they'd obtained; they were dated 1943 instead of 1922.

At Midland, Tex., Navy Coxswain Tom Cain arrived on the saddest mission of his life—that of telling the parents of his old buddy, Bill Coltrill, that Bill was believed dead. He had watched Bill's ship go down in the Pacific. As he got off the bus, he ran into Bill.

There aren't many fish in a water-filled quarry on the far south side in Chicago, but police have landed some big catches. After three days of grappling, a squad of officers fished out three relatively new automobiles and a new motor truck. All of the machines had been stolen, the police said. The police are going to try their luck again.

Harold A. Berliner, federal collector of internal revenue at San Francisco, needed about 25 pounds of straight pins for his office. He solved the problem by asking all taxpayers to pin their checks to the statements.

P. J. Arrese, Albuquerque, N.

M., resting after lunch, idly watched his truck move away from the side of the porch where he was sitting. It was 10 minutes later, he told police, when he realized he wasn't in it, and his wife, the only person who should be driving it, was in the kitchen. Police recovered it from a youthful thief an hour later.

E. T. Cooper, Seattle, Wash., reported to police that someone is milking his cow nightly while he works at a shipyard.

A building supply company owner walked into the office of price administration at Pittsburgh, and issued a check for $20,000 to Enforcement Attorney Lorin L. Lewis. "I guess I owe that to the federal treasury under OPA regulations because one of my managers has been selling material above ceiling prices," he explained, and walked out. "We've never had a complaint about him," Lewis gasped as he recovered from surprise.

Down in Perry, Okla., Bill Beckham and Alvin Coefrum have been turning a filling station on a 24-hour basis for a long time but because of gasoline rationing they decided to shut down nights. There were so many units and so many compartments needing locks, they found they would need 70 padlocks to lock up. And where can you find 70 padlocks these days? They'll stay open nights.

At Bridgeport, Conn., Bobby Lombard, G. gulped, and it's a good thing he didn't swallow, when his teeth grated on a foreign object while he was eating his apple sauce. It was a $500 diamond which his mother had lost three days before from her ring.

A Richmond, Va., hotel manager thought he had seen all of the tricks of souvenir hunting until a woman, unable to secret a wicker bread basket in her hand, bag perched it on her head and walked out of the hotel dining room. "And she almost got away with it," sighed the manager. "Women's hats are so crazy."

The bi-monthly boxing shows of the American North Side Youth club at Kansas City were not drawing any spectators, although the bouts were free. Manager Charles Meyer had an inspiration. He gave every fan a pass. Now the fights draw packed houses.

Held up by a man who threatened him with a razor and a pistol, Robert J. Reed, 55, Los Angeles, handed over $10.99. "I've got a sick wife," Reed protested. "I really need this money for medicine." The robber returned one of Reed's bills and said: "Okay here's a buck. I'm no heel. And forget about paying me back pal."

At Mountain Home, Idaho, a telephone call reported that a plane had crashed. Two ambulances, a carry-all, a staff car, a truck and five jeeps raced 82 miles along a desert road to the scene. When they arrived, a rancher said, "Sorry, it was all a mistake."

The American Legion at Denver has accepted 14-year-old John Lawrence Mitchell as a member. He joined the navy last October, with parental permission, and served seven months—until the navy learned his age and discharged him. Denver officials believe him to be the youngest Legionnaire.

It crowds block Philadelphia's Chestnut street again very soon, three teen age boys had better not be found in the vicinity. Just by pointing at a parked sedan and whispering among themselves, police complained, they attracted enough curious passersby to halt traffic four times. "And I thought I knew crowds," sighed Patrolman Jim Polk. "Way people were even saying there were snakes in the backseat of that car."

Gus Rose used the only road and bridges he could find during the recent floods around Mt. Vernon, Ind., but in the end it brought him only grief! Witness at a court hearing said the 32-year-old farmer borrowed an automobile, drove it two and a half miles down the Illinois Central railroad tracks and across two trestles when the Wabash river inundated the regular highway. He was convicted of malicious trespass and fined $25.

Patrolman R. R. Richardson of Denver, accosted a young fellow who displayed the earmarks of liquor drinking. "I'm just celebrating," said the young fellow. Yesterday was the 13th of the month. That's my unlucky day. Always something happens to me on that day. But yesterday nothing happened so I'm celebrating." Then he caught a glimpse of Richardson's badge. It was No. 13. The police patrol car was also number 13. "I give up!" said the prisoner as Richardson carried him away on a charge of drunkenness.

Rev. Richard Diederle was ordained into the ministry at the Pierce Congregational church.

Take Life Easier After Adjustment To South America

"After our adjusting and adaptation period here we are learning slowly to take life easier, have patience, live from day to day, take more time for little nostalgic things of life, and just sit back and live," wrote Jim and Wenonah Carey from Callao, Peru, in a letter to Dr. J. R. Johnson of the history and government department of Wayne State Teachers college. Mr. and Mrs. Carey are teaching in the Callao high school in South America and report that they are happy and content to "perhaps too great a degree."

Mr. Carey states that "some of the political, economic, social and moral basic principles which we have always accepted up there do not have the same consideration down here and thus other scale of values causes some deep reflection at times."

Of Vice-President Wallace's recent visit to South America, Carey says, "Now that Wallace has left a good impression we can get back to normal life. He spoke a very understandable Spanish, naturally with quite an accent, but it surprised many a Peruvian. He seemed very sincere about his interest in 'us Peruvians' and in his post war views." In reference to good Peruvian material, he recommends the three articles in the National Geographic magazine; the June number of 1930, February, 1938, and August, 1942. These, he claims, will give a general picture of the physical, geographical and historical set up. "A book written by Carleton Beals and called 'Fire Over The Andes' is very true to the situation here at present. It is perhaps overly colored to make it interesting but it is excellent in description and accurate assumptions. For factual material of course John Gunther has a succinct section in his 'Inside Latin America' written for Peru."

In closing Jim Carey expresses his expectation for "a happier atmosphere to break out upon us after this war is over and then we can go ahead in binding North America and South America together."

Hawaii Prepares To Serve in Many Ways in Wartime

"Fighting Hawaii" is the name of a magazine received by Jacqueline Wightman from her Hawaiian pen-pal, Rose Gueso, and it tells the tale of Hawaii at war in civilian and industrial life. Miss Gueso works on the night-shift at one of the war plants, one of which, the Hawaiian air depot, had pledged $50,000 to purchase a war plane for the United States air force. This amount represented about 10 per cent of every employee's monthly salary.

Uncle Sam has low-cost housing projects for the Hawaiian war workers, at which some of the HIAD workers live. The Hawaiian air depot was one of the first individual organizations to form its own army and have one of the best trained and equipped of the civilian corps now on the islands.

As part of Hawaii's civilian defense organization, the B.M.T.C. businessmen's military training corps, was first organized February 1, 1942, a little less than two months following Japan's attack on Oahu. The corps is made up of Honolulu businessmen who wanted some way to defend their homes against the enemy. The average age of corps members is about 42 with ages ranging from 19 to 70. Hawaii also has the Honolulu police reserves and their Red Cross organization, both vital parts of the islands' defense system.

Hawaii has war dogs. A well-known Hawaiian dog authority has been placed in charge of the war dog training center on Oahu for the purpose of training dogs for the Hawaiian department, which includes the line islands, "down under." Dogs trained on Oahu have already proved themselves of military value in battles in the Solomon islands. They are being used as a forerunner for scouting parties and often succeed in locating snipers and uncovering Japanese positions long before human beings are able to learn of their presence.
