

From Wayne County in War Areas — Brown-McDonald Official Visits Wayne — Open Pheasant Season — Potatoes Dumped.

Every day the Herald receives letters from Wayne county boys serving in remote war areas, and every week reports of their experiences are published as far as censorship will permit.

Among reports are those from Africa, New Zealand, Australia, Sicily, England and the far-north Aleutians. And these boys whose experiences are told, are Wayne county products, and only a short time ago were on the farms and in the towns of this neighborhood.

The boys seem to be welcomed by the dark-skinned inhabitants of distant islands, and they do not appear to have any trouble with wild beasts that live in the jungles, but we judge they must be constantly on the alert to avoid disease-bearing mosquitoes and other pernicious insects.

People on the home front are not fitted to endure what soldiers in foreign fighting ranks are called on to endure, but they are also denied the enlightening, first-hand knowledge which comes within the scope of military experience.

It is encouraging to note the unwavering resolution of these boys at the front. It is reassuring to know how they have steeled themselves to hardships, how they maintain high spirits and how they profit by the values which the experience brings to them.

Business and Politics. L. T. Johnson, secretary and treasurer of the Brown-McDonald stores, with headquarters in Hastings, was in Wayne Thursday to visit the company's local store which he found holding to an even keel and moving forward steadily and satisfactorily.

Mr. Johnson believes a store should acquaint the public with what it has to offer all the time, pushing new acquisitions to the front, concealing or holding back nothing of popular interest or of immediate demand.

Consistent with merchandising, Mr. Johnson's major study is political economy. Trends in popular thinking and possible solution of public problems. He does not hang back, nor look forward with a feeling of despair.

Mr. Johnson does not come to Wayne often, but when he does come, he refreshes the Herald with his stimulating philosophy.

An unusually long open season on pheasants is in prospect. It will start October 15 and end December 23—just in time to contribute to Christmas feasts.

Another disquieting note of bureaucratic mismanagement is sounded by the report that 37 car loads of spouting potatoes were recently shipped to the city and dumped in the Vineland. An investigation has been asked. A satisfactory report will be given.

PLANNING FUTURE DEVELOPMENT NOW IS PLAINLY VITAL

CITIZENS of a community do not always agree on the essentials of post-war development. They do not always agree on when to start or what to do. But they cannot afford to lie down and give up on account of lack of unanimity. They can afford to make reasonable concessions rather than do nothing which would invite paralysis.

Reverse Decision In High Tribunal

Supreme Court Turns Down Claim Allowed Here in Carlson Estate.

The Nebraska supreme court reversed and dismissed a Wayne county district court decision which about a year ago awarded $3,250 to Mrs. Helen Kahler on the grounds that Nels Carlson, deceased, was the father of her minor children, Doris Fay and Alma May. Mrs. Kahler sued for the late Mr. Carlson several years at his home northwest of Wayne.

The petition filed in district court in January, 1941, asked that the two girls be decreed daughters of the late Mr. Carlson and that the estate provide $5,000 for the support of each. Last summer the district court awarded $3,250 for the twirl girls. The matter was carried to the supreme court for review. R. W. Bartels, attorney for the Carlson estate, opposed the district court judgment. Harry N. Larson, Wakefield, is attorney for relatives of Carlson in this country. A. C. R. Swenson, Omaha attorney, represented the Swedish consul, G. Oldenburg of Chicago, through whom Anders Karlsson, Emma Nilsson, Alma Karlsson and Gerda Karlsson, relatives in Sweden, sought shares of the estate. F. S. Veterans of War Arrive from Far Japs Described by Men as Desperate Fighters and Camouflage Experts.

Half a hundred tight-lipped men who three months ago were battling Japs face to face all over the vast Pacific battle area, began training last week at Nebraska State teachers college to become fliers in the United States army air forces.

These war-scarred veterans, most of whom have watched the widespread battle of the Pacific since it began, have traded blows with those Japs fighting men all the way from Hawaii to the Solomons, and from the Fiji islands to the Aleutians.

Almost every man has seen front-line action either on land or in the air. The new aviation students describe the Japanese as "desperate fighters—the best camouflage experts in the world." And they think routing them out of their island entrenchments will be a lung, tough job.

But war correspondents have done well in presenting the Japs as they are—determined clever fighters—according to A/S Arthur G. Forbes who is student leader of the group.

Before they became aviation students, the men ranged in rank from master sergeants to privates. They come from almost every branch of army service.

One of the present student officers, a former Hawaiian home guard, entered the United States for the first time five weeks ago. Since Pearl Harbor he had been beating back the enemy from his native islands.

Another member of the group was awarded the army silver star for courage in evacuating wounded marines from a Pacific battle post as an infantryman.

A former technical sergeant was radio operator-gunner on a B-25 bomber. Army provisions for eating and sleeping are almost perfect according to men of the new flight who a few months ago were eating dehydrated food and catching fragments of sleep in makeshift beds and fox-holes. Here they eat in the cool college cafeteria and sleep in a modern dormitory.

"The only thing we'd like more than the good food and clean sheets is a furlough," according to one veteran who like most of his buddies hasn't seen home for at least two years.

Other student officers of the group are Flight Sergeant A. L. McCue, and Corporals H. Ah Yo, B. M. Hayes, M. C. Leon and S. W. Rohrer.

SCHOOLING WITHIN NEARBY DISTRICTS HOLDS ADVANTAGE

WITHIN the next few weeks the rural schools of the county will resume, and then shortly town schools and college will follow. The summer has been a busy one for children old enough to work, and they will return to their studies leaving a highly useful vacation to their credit. Securing a sufficient teaching force has been a problem, but few vacancies now remain, and it is expected all places will be filled when the opening date arrives.

Outside the field of professional or highly specialized training, one may secure in Wayne county all the education he will ever need. Starting in a rural school, he may steadily master a succession of courses until he is rewarded with an A. B. degree at the Wayne college. In this time of population congestion and travel difficulties, advantage accrues to the one who is satisfied to gain his elementary and college education near home. In doing so, he will learn just as much with greater economy and convenience.

Alaska Is Vital In World Peace

Aviation Student Back from Aleutians Is Speaker At Kiwanis Club.

"Who owns Alaska rules the world." This statement made by Aviation Student Walter J. Rzozca, St. Clair, Mich., before Kiwanians Monday, aroused a new line of thought for many. In clarifying this, the young man, who has seen service in the Aleutians and who just last week came to Wayne college detachment, stated that "holding Alaska is like having an outlook over the world in all directions." Rzozca went on to say that weather is so important a factor in modern times and that weather changes originate so quickly in the Aleutian region, that, therefore, that locality is strategic.

Attu and Kiska, islands that in themselves are not very valuable, are important for their strategic locations, the speaker explained. They serve as an "outlook" for the region.

Must Battle Elements

Student Rzozca, who entered army training long before Pearl Harbor, at the time when preparations were seen as vital, told something of the Aleutians. Weather there is never good. Man must constantly battle with winds, hail, sleet, snow. The wind often blows 105 miles an hour, and the boys

Japanese Report Is Not Confirmed

Pvt. Bob Stull Is Believed Safe in North Carolina Camp at Present.

Pvt. Bob Stull, of the U. S. marine corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stull of Wayne, is believed to be entirely safe and in Camp Leavenworth, New River, N. C., according to a Japanese war broadcast message from Tokyo, July 31. The broadcast was received on the west coast by W. E. Kissinger, of Los Angeles, who immediately sent a card to the "family of Robert Stull, Sioux City, Ia." The card from Kissinger stated that an American officer in the prisoner camp who was sending a message to his relatives in Indiana, mentioned a friend's name who was in the camp with him, who wished his relatives notified and regards sent to them. The name mentioned was Robert Stull, Sioux City, Ia. However, letters from Stull dated August 3 and 6, show that he was still at Camp Leavenworth and he was hoping for a furlough before being sent anywhere overseas. Further word has not yet been received but there seems to be little probability that Stull is the man mentioned in the radio broadcast.

Bob Stull entered the marine corps in March, received his basic training at the marine base in San Diego, Cal., was sent to Chicago to Wright junior college for 30 days' radio training and then was sent to New River. Pvt. Stull had two days in Wayne on a furlough at the end of May, before being sent to Chicago.

Miss Lois Curtis Dies at Norfolk

Young Woman Had Attended College and Taught in This Vicinity

Miss Lois Curtis, 21, of Royal, former Wayne college student and teacher in district 19 east of Wayne four years ago, died Monday morning in a Norfolk hospital from pneumonia and complications which developed following an appendix operation she underwent early in June.

Miss Curtis had come here for summer session at the college and was taken ill a week later. Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Hale, with whom she stayed when here, took her to Norfolk where she submitted to an operation. She had returned here a week ago to visit friends and check-out at school. She was not well then and went from here to Norfolk for medical care.

Miss Curtis had been graduated from Royal high school with honor in June, 1938, and completed the two-year course in August, 1942. After teaching here, Miss Curtis taught two years north of Royal and last year in Obert. She was to teach in Orchard this year.

Miss Curtis was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Curtis of Royal and was born February 7, 1927. She leaves her parents and one older sister.

must wear weather-proof clothing. Fliers must really be skillful to serve in that region because fog, ice and such hazards are always present. The B-24 is the plane best suited to such conditions, the young man explained. The weather makes it impracticable to use some of the types. The youth explained that because of these conditions the possibility of crashing in snow-covered mountain peaks is a constant danger.

Improvements have been constant also to aid in coping with weather, the student explained. The old radar, used for detecting planes, was not very useful as it picked up the sound only seven miles distant. The new radar now in use detects these at 130 miles. These new devices were a great help in the landing on Attu.

GI lights too have proved most valuable. These lights have eight million candlepower and shine for five miles in the murky atmosphere.

No Flying Weather. The Aleutians have no flying weather, the speaker told, but modern devices have made it possible for skillful pilots to surmount the situation.

Rzozca served at a warning station in the far north.

Boys in the Aleutians have small huts 15 by 32 for housing, as tents could not possibly stand the pull of the winds. Coal and oil are used for heating. Each soldier has a sack of coal which he portions out carefully to last 10 days. This is often a problem and requires using makeshift materials for fuel.

Summer, when the sun shines 20 hours a day, is warm but never hot in the Aleutians. And winter finds just the opposite. 20 hours of night and cold. The young man told that once he swam in that region. He found top waters warm in summer but icy a few feet below the surface.

Attack Wakens Nation. Rzozca left Seattle, Wash., for Dutch Harbor shortly after the latter place was bombed. He feels that the attack was really valuable to Americans for the damage was not great and it awakened everyone to the great need for fortifying that location. Civilians were removed and Saebes and other builders brought there.

The trip to Alaska is beautiful by the inner route, the young man told. He also thinks that the highway to Alaska will be hard to travel for a time as it is still rough.

Alaska is an untouched wonderland, the speaker stated, especially rich in gold and salmon. Moose and bear furnish good hunting. People there need not want for food. The youth explained that the army is well provided for in the matter of food.

Cooperation between officers and other men is really unusual in Alaska. Rzozca told that this is the one essential in that region where the weather is a trying matter. All must work together to maintain morale.

Natives of the Aleutians are small and dark, mongolian type. Most of them have been moved to safe locations. Eskimos are found more near the Bering straits.

Guests at Kiwanis Monday wore R. T. McGinn of Mellwood, Ark., with his brother, Dean Clarence McGinn, and R. K. Kirkman who is home from Dayton, O.

Brome Grass Seed Will Be Available

The field inspected seed list of the Nebraska Seed Improvement association indicates that around 87,000 pounds of certified brome grass seed will be available in Nebraska this fall, according to a report received by Paul Evans, district conservationist for northeastern Nebraska.

"Many different strains of brome grass have been tested at the Nebraska experiment stations and only one has been approved for certification," Mr. Evans stated. "This strain, called 'Lincoln Brome grass' is outstanding in earliness and in the yield of forage and seed."

An important factor in brome grass seed is freedom from weed seed. Two serious weeds that are often present in brome seed are Downy Brome and Hairy Chess. These weed seeds look very much like brome seed and are almost impossible to separate after harvesting. In buying certified seed, you are less likely to get these weeds and are more sure of a high yielding strain of brome grass," Evans further stated.

Wayne Group Is Well.

Cpl. Alvin D. Meyer, in north Africa, writes the Wm. Meyer family June 29 that "the Arabs dress just like the pictures that you have seen in Bible stories. They draw water from the same kind of wells. They cut their small grain with a little curved scythe or knife about 15 inches long and thresh it with their feet or with mules. They then pick out the straw and pile it. As a whole they are very poor. They wear sandals on their feet or go barefooted. The moslem women always keep their faces covered.

"While in Africa I have visited two main towns, Oran and Tlemcen. Cherries cost about 80c a quart. We can buy eggs from the Arabs from 10c to 14c apiece. People over here are rationed on food and clothing more heavily than those in the U. S. It might be of interest that a woman's good purse will cost as much as $55."

"The Wayne young man writes again July 17 from the Red Cross headquarters in a town where he spent a day on leave. The Red Cross served him sandwiches and coffee.

Cpl. Meyer says most of the Wayne boys who went together when he left are still in the same unit. All are well. They enjoy home news through the Herald and send greetings to their friends.

Young and Hungry Prisoners of War Like The Americans

"All is well here with me," writes 1st Sgt. W. A. Lerner from "somewhere" to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Antone Lerner. "Today the weather was cooler and we had a slight breeze blowing all day," states the Wayne young man who was and perhaps still is in Africa. "We had jello for dinner and this was a treat indeed. We had inspection of the area for Col. Olglazer and he was well pleased with our area. . . . We are eating very well and have had sweet corn and watermelons.

"Today I had to go to the prison stockade and get 26 Italians. They are all good workers. We had them working on a new camp area. These prisoners are poorly dressed and are so hungry. We treat them well. Tomorrow I have to return to the prisoner stockade and get 50 German prisoners. I will have some fun talking to them. Although my German is not of the best, I can always make them understand just what I mean. My company commander speaks a little German and we go together when we get the prisoners.

"By the time you hear from me again we will have moved to a new location. I can't say where. Don't worry about me. I do hope to see Italy and Germany before we ship back to the states. I told one of the German wounded soldiers that someday soon I would be in Berlin and he seemed glad that I said this. We men over here all hope to be home by next year."

In a letter July 24 from somewhere overseas, 1st Sgt. Lerner writes the Herald as follows: "The May 13 issue of the Wayne Herald arrived today and needless to say it was most welcome. News from the 'home front' is always eagerly awaited. Visualize a well-comouflaged tent on a sandy beach within which is seated a scantily clad individual attempting to 'hunt and peck' a letter by the aid of flickering candle light and you will know it is the old Top Kick keeping his promise to send you 'filler' for the Herald.

"The past week the company worked some 300 Italian prisoners on various details. These men on the average are about 10 years older per man than the German prisoners. One Italian prisoner is 53 and has 13 children back in Italy. A German captive of Polish birth told me that he was captured by the Germans in the Polish campaign, recaptured by the Russians, then captured by the Germans and finally taken prisoner by the English.

"Recently four men of this company were recommended for the soldiers' medal. They displayed heroism in checking the spread of fire in an ammunition dump.

"When in our former location I used to trade salt tablets, cigarettes and thread to an Arab friend named Ahmed Ben L'Hash Mohamed for eggs and cantaloupe. I wish that Prof. Bowen could have accompanied me recently—first hand ancient history revealed in all of its former splendor. . . . Now I know what Caesar meant by Veni, Vidi, Vici. . . . We are on the move again but of course censorship prevents stating just where we are now located.

"Malaria is under control in this outfit. . . . thanks to Atabrin tablets and the other sulfa drugs. Medical attention is of the best.

"A rare treat was enjoyed by the company last Sunday—ice cream. Lts. DeWitt and Bailey of the field chemical laboratory assisted by the mess sergeant, froze some cream in the refrigerator. To enjoy this delicacy with Old Sol bearing down at 120 degrees was indeed a life saver.

"Due to the illness of several company officers the duty of mail censor has been added to my daily routine. I could write a book on the love phrases sent back in the mail. . . . even Old Sarg, the bachelor, re-read some of these lines.

"Swimming in the Mediterranean sea which is a bi-weekly practice. Recently several dozen nurses added real 'local' color to the outfit.

"War has always been a young man's game. I have several 18-year-old boys in my outfit, who in normal times would be engaging in high school athletics. Many headless boys are among the daily batches of prisoners brought in. The paratroopers over here are all quite young and full of pep. I note in each issue of Herald the growing list of young Wayne boys who are in the service. We men on the various fronts know that every loyal American regardless of age is doing his or her part to help stamp out dictatorship.

"Yesterday afternoon I gave salt tablets to the prisoners and two of the prisoners nearly came to blows on account of one little tablet. Such is war. The Italian and German prisoners do not hesitate to express their dislike for Benito and Adolf. It is difficult to believe that Italian soldiers are sent to the front with only 50 days' training.

"The candle has almost depleted itself."

Gets Commendation From High Official

Lt. Beverly Canning, in north Africa, received a personal letter of commendation from the RAF group commander equal in rank to the general in American forces, for making a successful landing after the propeller on his plane broke July 19.

The Wayne young man is probably the only flier alive who has flown a Spitfire 9 without a propeller. The Spitfire is an English made ship.

In the July flight, the fighter pilot, alone in the plane, when the propeller broke, was unable to get the canopy open to jump, so he was forced to make a crash landing. He was obliged to pick a swamp. Lt. Canning came through with only a stiff knee and few scratches, according to a letter to his wife here. The ship was damaged.

After the War
ENEMY propagandists try to reassure their people by saying evacuations and retreats are taking place according to plans. Will leaders try to persuade subjects to accept final collapse and defeat on the same ground?

Evidence of mounting distrust of boastful leadership in axis countries is a powerful aid to the allied cause. Victims of dictatorialships are beginning to sense the depth of empty pledges and the infinite folly of ruin and slaughter to satisfy the blood lust of war lords, filled with guile and hot air. Enemy peoples are beginning to see the end, and they may in time realize that their lot will be easier and better in defeat than in the victory which was promised by tin-horn pretenders.

It is profoundly hoped the present world conflagration, finally gathered into dark memories, will teach peoples everywhere not to follow designing radicals, but settle down to constructive pursuits in a peacetime world. Let the rant and tyranny of would-be dictators be remembered as a deterrent to future submission and enslavement. It is hoped order, insuring freedom without trespass of one on another, will be evolved.

Respected Worms
THE Omaha Journal-Stockman quotes Charles E. Sanborn, professor emeritus of the Oklahoma A. & M. college as giving lowly angulworms their rightful place in the world. The professor says:

"This fabulous tribe, known to earth-dwellers as angulworms, earthworms, night crawlers, garden hoppers, rainworms, or just plain red worms, live 5,000,000 to the acre in Oklahoma's topsoil and work incessantly to make that soil better," he says.

"Not considered much by government agencies, they nevertheless have done more to make soil useful to man than all the government bureaus ever created in the millions of years that the worms have lived.

"Angulworms come out at night to feed and migrate. Their digestive apparatus or system

Monday being the birthday of Mrs. W. S. Lowe, the Christian church enjoyed a birthday picnic supper in his honor. A short program of singing was enjoyed and can convert poor soil to good by changing the mineral properties. Clean in habits, the angulworm comes to the surface to excrete. He keeps his tunnels clean and in 30 years a crew of worms can almost make poor soil good through a process mixing the top 18 inches and through the changes which occur chemically."

The Journal-Stockman invites due respect for beneficent worms that inhabit the soil of other rich states as well as that of Oklahoma.

Food Administrator Marvin Jones appeals to the often proved initiative and resourcefulness of Americans in proposing to cut out acreage allotments and crop controls directed from Washington. He gets back to fundamentals which have never failed, by saying: "This country is too broad, too far flung, too varied in production to have the work done by directives from Washington. We can only assist; we must rely largely upon state, county and community organizations of real people who have builded America and are in a position to save America and her institutions, all of which are at stake in the conflict with which we are now faced."

A move is reported on foot in Washington to make Vice President Henry Wallace head of a proposed new food production, price control and rationing agency. As secretary of agriculture he had experience in restricting production which may be deemed favorable background for now boosting production and regulating consumption. Whereas Henry once talked scarcity, he now preaches abundance. He will doubtless admit that his experience has made him sufficiently versatile to fit into any official groove—how successful, opinions are often in sharp conflict with those of his encircling satellites.

We notice the World-Herald's description of proposed post-war air lines, touching many Nebraska points and running into the metropolis, leaves Wayne sitting coldly on the outside. It would seem Wayne should and could be figured into one of the routes mentioned. An early move to capture this important service would seem in order.

So many changes and improvements are proposed for the postwar world that everybody will have to step along in satisfying demands or step out of the procession, watching it go by from the side lines. The Christian Science Monitor observes in concluding a speculative editorial: "It is folly to think of the postwar world in prewar terms."

The weather director has been in a pickle this week. Those who have been threshing small grain, have wanted rain to hold off until they have finished, whereas those with thought centered on corn have been growing anxious for more moisture without delay. It is a good thing action is not dependent on an election.

a gift of a purse of money was presented by Mrs. W. C. Ring.

THE REVOLUTION.

The Saturday Evening Post points out that the causes and results of the American Revolution which scored American independence, are approved in Great Britain as an achievement in human liberty. It was a "milestone on the road to expanding human freedom." John Fiske is quoted as saying in his Critical Period of American History that "the system which George III had sought to fasten upon America in order that he might fasten it on England, was shaken off and shattered by the good people of both countries at almost the same moment of time." Noting that this understanding is a source of encouragement, the Post says in conclusion: "It has taken a global war to mirror clearly to some of us, historic events whose true significance has been concealed by spread-eagle speeches on this side of the ocean and haughty indifference on the other. This may prove one of the inadvertent services performed by the dictators for those who have enjoyed liberty so long that they have forgotten how they won it."

Explanation for such huge waste is eagerly awaited. Lack of due refrigeration in shipping has been suggested. Whatever the cause, it is apparent that proper foresight would have prevented the loss at a time of food scarcity.

 "Soul" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, August 15.
 The Golden Text is: "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul" (Psalms 23:1-3).
 Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect" (Matthew 5:48).
 The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Science of being reveals man as perfect, even as the Father is perfect, because the Soul, or Mind, of the spiritual man is God, the living Principle of all being, and because this real man is governed by Soul instead of sense, by the law of Spirit, not by the so-called laws of matter" (p. 302).

Ancient and Modern Mixed In Sharp Contrasts in South

Traveling in the airplane as well as in the mule-drawn cart; seeing civilization that is thousands of years old as well as the modern; covering 8,000 miles of mountains and valleys in Bolivia and Peru. These experiences furnished contrasts that were enjoyed by James and Wenonah Carey, former Wayne college students, who spent five and a half weeks on their first vacation in South America in five years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Carey teach in Callao, Peru.

The Careys left Callao December 23, according to the letter which just arrived, and Christmas day found a party of six crowded into a car on a hot day. The scenery between Huancayo and Ayacucho reminded the Careys of Ogden, Utah. White lilies, many cacti, stone walls for fences and fields all made a picture resembling a patch quilt. "Lunch at Anco was good but I found a bug in my soup. We bought some delicious oranges along the road. We had to stop in each pueblo (town) of any importance to get permission from the central station to continue our trip. We had to show our passport at many places. The road was not bad and we had a good driver. We noticed interesting farming on the steep hills. Many llamas were feeding near the road. The red tile roofs and bright rich skirts of the women were very pretty. We arrived in Huanta about 2 in the afternoon but could not continue until 3 because traffic was permitted only in one way at a time. In Huanta we saw some military officials holding a group of young men in a jail. We learned they were keeping them to induct them into the army. Some of their mothers and sisters brought them food and were standing there crying. It was not a happy sight."

Slides Block Roads.

"We drove for three hours and covered almost 10 miles. Here everything is measured in kilometers and not miles. At one time we stopped because a rock slide blocked the road. All of us helped push rocks and pry boulders off the mountainside. Some of the rocks had to be split in two or three pieces as they were half as big as the car. Finally we went ahead. One person was always ready to run ahead and clean out tree branches and large rocks from the road. That evening at 7 we reached Andahuaylas. We were supposed to have left December 28 but that is always chauffeur's holiday so the mail car did not run.

"We started in a different car December 29 for Abancay. That morning we found a little llama so the chauffeur put it in the bus. We already had rabbits and other rare things unimagined. The scenery was beautiful and part of the time we were traveling above the clouds. We could see Abancay 35 miles away in the valley and three hours later we reached it. The town is a nice little departmental capital and people are generally hospitable." Mr. Carey was mistaken for a German visitor and was well received as such for the Germans are good tourists. The couple stayed three days in the town to get passage to Cuzco.

Visit in Old Capital.

The Careys arrived in Cuzco, the old Inca capital, on New Year's. This fascinating city with red tiled rooms kept the visitors interested for 11 days. "The great old capital with its mummy mysteries made us feel ourselves part of the past. In addition to the churches, museums, historical and colonial places, we also took little daily trips out of Cuzco. The first was to an old fort which has some marvelous stone cutting and fitting. It is impossible to imagine how people put these large stones back over four centuries ago. Another trip took us to more ruins where Indians in all kinds of costumes went through some strange dances. We spent two days at the ruins of Machupichu. The trip is difficult and women must take mules or horses and even then it is quite a climb. Old residences, parks, streets, guard houses can be found there in that desolate part of the mountains surrounded by lovely scenery.

Travel Across Lake.

"January 12 we left the old Inca capital and started for Puno on Lake Titicaca. We arrived after one day's travel and got on the boat that night. We journeyed all night on the blue waters of Lake Titicaca. Next morning from the boat we could see 50 miles of snow-capped mountains on one side. The highest point was the beautiful, Illimoni, and we knew that it was the highest of the Andes. At noon January 13 our train rolled in to LaPaz, the city which lies in a hollow almost as in the bottom of a cup. The words 'LaPaz' mean 'the peace' in Spanish. The city is 12,500 feet above sea level. Frank Beck, a doctor in the Chaco war, manages the hotel. We enjoyed the scenery but it is not as beautiful as we had seen in Peru. However, LaPaz is a nice modern city. Many European refugees, especially Jews, are in Bolivia. Theaters were not as nice as in Lima, but the restaurants, particularly those with European foods, were very good. We thought the Bolivian people very hospitable as is the Spanish Latin custom. The men seemed shorter than in Peru, and the women wore brighter colors in their clothing."

The Careys left LaPaz January 27 and again crossed Lake Titicaca, traveling about 100 miles. Waves were quite high and the sunset on the lake was gorgeous. The train ride from Puno to Arequipa was not particularly interesting as there was not much to see other than vicuna and alpaca, the two animals producing some of the best wool in the world.

The former Wayne folks spent January 28 in Arequipa, the second city in Peru. This is a clean, hospitable place which they liked very much. El Misti, the old volcano, was almost half covered with snow and was extremely beautiful.

Final Thrill by Plane.

On the last day of January the Careys had a comfortable ride in a 21-passenger plane from Arequipa to Lima. The plane trip was a real thrill and covered 500 miles in less than four hours.

Loading Pockets Is General Trait

Shoes and Glasses Remain Intact on Spin Through Unit of Binder.

At Chicago a soldier left his coat in a downtown theatre the other night, and the manager, going through the pockets for recreation, found these things: An empty money belt, six loose cigarettes, four sticks of gum, two handkerchiefs, a pair of socks, a bladeless safety razor, three point pens, a well-used deck of cards, a leaking fountain pen, 10 marbles, a piece of chocolate, a spool of thread, and 31 cents. Then they talk about women's pocket-books.

Rancher Walter Wynhoff's overalls caught in the revolving connecting rod of his tractor-binder unit. He was spun around the rod and thrown clear, badly shaken. Left on him were his shoes and his glasses.

At Topeka, Kan., Prof. H. J. Colburn walked into a college classroom to teach his first bunch of navy men. He found them standing at attention. He told them good morning, poked around his desk a bit and finally flushed and said: "All right gentlemen. How do I get you to sit down?"

"Chop Suey is an American dish, as Oriental as ham 'n' eggs—so Portland, Ore., Chinese have flourished with cabbageburgers. Capt. Frederick J. Siegler, Jr., 22-year-old Portland flier, learned about the cabbageburger. "Some army cook invented this culinary monstrosity. Its main ingredient is string camel hump. It's the worst food in the world."

Studying an ancient curfew law as a possible method of combating juvenile delinquency, Mayor John Gage of Kansas City discovered: The law's 9 p. m. curfew shall not apply when children play or loiter unnecessarily in public places—so long as they're alone or accompanied by a parent, guardian or any reliable person."

Harvey Fowler of Kansas City awoke at 2 a. m. and went to his regular bus driver's job. Three hours later another driver boarded the street bus and said: "I'm relieving you here. Go home and go to bed." Then Fowler remembered—it was the first day of his vacation.

At Chicago a truck driver pulled to a stop and asked a pedestrian, "Say, bud, which is the way to Laporte, Ind?" He received the directions, and as the vehicle wheeled away the pedestrian noted the name of the truck firm: Motor company, Laporte to Chicago, daily."

At Portland, Ore., a wee mouse, you do have a priority. So when thieves broke in they took—36 cartons of indigestion pills.

"I've got 64 pounds of coffee, and since rationing of coffee has ended I want to trade it for something else," a Great Falls, Mont., woman brightly told her grocer.

SHOLES

by Mrs. Martin Madsen

pattering down a crowded sidewalk at the end of a leash, tangled pedestrian traffic. Amid female screams, the sailor holding the leash explained: "Caught him running up my trouser leg, so I tied him up to punish him."

"This is Whitey," said a voice on the telephone at Los Angeles. "Put $50 to win and $50 to place on Profile in the seventh at Arlington." District Attorney's Investigator Chet Sharp, who took the call while raiding the bookie joint, says Whitey can collect $25—if he'll come to the D.-A.'s office. Profile paid $7.60 to win and $4.20 to place.

Fire Capt. Peter J. Kelember of Omaha, put the bite on the county board for $50. He said during a flood in June "a swift current overtook me and I went under, losing my false teeth. The mishap occurred outside the city limits, so I am hereby making claim against the county for $50," he explained.

A private at the army training center at Kearns Field, invariably bought two bottles of Utah's 3.2 beer. He poured them together before he drank—and explained to a bystander: "I'm used to 6 per cent beer."

A cow wandered onto the Union Pacific tracks at Point of Rocks, Wyo. A westbound freight of 56 cars hits the cow, which rolled under the locomotive, derailling it and 27 cars. The derailed cars fell into the path of a 64-car eastbound freight. The second train couldn't stop its locomotive, and 23 cars toppled from the rails. All on account of a cow!

Mrs. Walter C. Williams, Jr., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., found a quick and easy way of shelling those Victory garden peas. She put two bushels of them through a clothes wringer after chilling them in a tub of ice, and reported they popped out of their shells as nice as you please—and not smashed either.

Blame a two-day shut-down of Clarence Peter's threshing machine at Paris, Mo., on a horse. Its tail caught between a belt and pulley. All the belts were thrown off—and two pulleys and shafts were broken. The tail will do no further damage.

At Bishop, Cal., Mrs. Patrick Kane's carrot crop was quite a success, she acknowledges with a modest smile. While digging it up, her shovel struck a tin can. It held a mildewed money belt, containing $450.

At Chicago there was a lot of valuable merchandise in the Briggs Transfer company's place—grease guns, electrical generators and the like that are hard to get, even if

Library News

This week new linoleum was laid in the hall, down the steps and in the down stairs hall at the library. It is a very attractive, soft shade of green and helps very much in brightening up the front entrance.

A large crowd of children attended the story hour Tuesday. Moving pictures of Robinson Crusoe were shown, following which prizes for the best reading done during the summer were awarded. Silver wings were presented to Debra Reikofski, Angelina Stockman, Rex Sala and Marilyn Birdsall. Each of these children read 30 or more books which were selected by the librarian. They were given silver wings as prizes because they called their reading club the Flyers club. Reading 10 selected books entitled the members to become co-pilots, 10 more and they were pilots and for reading 30 they won their wings. The books read consisted, for the most part, of stories of children from other lands. Those who qualified as pilots were Ola Kathryn McGinn and Billie Roberts. The afternoon climaxed with refreshments of ice cream bars. The library staff and the board are indebted to Dr. George Secek, of the college faculty who gave his time to run the films for the movies twice each month during the summer. Also, we wish to thank Herman Lundberg, who loaned his machine for two of the showings when the college machine was not available.

New books for adults this week are: "Centennial Summer," by Albert E. Idell, a historical novel of the year 1876, and "Capricornia," by Xavier Herbert, a novel of Australia.

Early County History.

The August 11, 1927, edition of the Herald was devoted to historical sketches of Wayne county with bits of information from these as follows: Fertile prairie, sparsely settled along waterways, was surveyed by the government and admitted to the union of states in 1867. The name of Nebraska was chosen for the new state. In about the same year Willard Graves of Paw Paw, Ill., traveled through the new state and was favorably impressed with the country and climate. In 1869, again traveling through the northeast part of the state to seek relief from rheumatism, he was so invigorated by the air and sunshine and so impressed by the richness of the soil, that determined to bring a colony from Illinois. The first group of settlers came from Lee county, Ill., in the summer of 1869. In the group were C. E. Hunter, two Allen families, two Miner families, Mr. Hawley, Dr. R. B. Crawford, Abner Fletcher and Captain Whitten. Having no homes, they spent the winter on the Missouri river bottoms. W. E. Durin, John McGuire, Wesley Mahollam, and the Barto, Fenton and Hines families had come the same year and located in Wayne and Dixon counties. Another colony came from Illinois in the spring of 1870. This included Mathew B. Richardson, Isaac O. Richardson, O. F. Crane, Albert Miner, Geo. Scott, Alexander Scott, Enoch Hunter, Geo. Hunter, Wm. Agler and Benjamin Harmon.

Frame shacks and dugouts were built by these early settlers on the prairie which was then one great expanse of hills grown deep with grass. They broke small plots of sod and planted grain to provide their food. They had small numbers of live stock and chickens which they had brought with them from the east. Prairie fires, grasshoppers and blizzards were among the hazards with which they had to contend.

Hard work and dauntless courage enabled these pioneers to overcome hardships and they established the foundation for today's well-developed farms and towns.

Dixon County Events.

From the Northern Nebraska Journal, Ponca, for July 27, 1882: The question of building a court house and jail may be submitted to voters at the election. . . Ponca has more beautiful shade trees than most towns in northeast Nebraska. In 10 years the number of trees has increased from a few to thousands. . . Many good men with their families, flocks and herds continue to come to this county to locate. They find a beautiful country, plenty of fresh water, healthful climate, good neighbors and best of schools and churches. . . The race course and fair buildings are being put up at the fair grounds. . . The mill dam at Martinsburg is nearly rebuilt. Wright & Hurley expect to open the mill soon. . . The county board will buy two iron cells for a jail at a cost of $750. . . T. R. Orr will build a new store near the Stough & Miksel firm. . . Mr. Lowder, lately of Houts & Lowder banking firm at Wakefield, moved to Sioux City. . . T. J. Brooke who moved to Burt county, lost everything in floods and returned to Dixon county.

The French cabinet accepted the invitation to exercise a protectorate over the Suez canal jointly with Great Britain. . . Heavy and almost incessant rains threaten grain and potato crops of Ireland. . . A severe earthquake was felt in Mexico. . . Order was restored in Egypt by the American marines.

When the sun comes out after the rains, it really burns. The Wayne youth says he gets the Herald regularly and enjoys keeping in touch with his friends and home happenings.

Pvt. Paul Harrington of New Haven, Conn., who visited Radio City in New York recently on a short leave, registered in the Nebraska book for service men visiting the place and found that the book was headed by the name of Lt. Sicily Is Quaint Country, According To Wayne Officer

From "somewhere in Sicily," Wayne McMaster, just recently promoted to first lieutenant, writes July 24 and 25 to his parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. McMaster, as follows:

"Excuse the delay between this and my last letter. The reason should be obvious. We were one of the first across to this new land.

"To get back to routine: I am quite well and healthy, busy, unable to write often and unable to say much. There is no need to worry as things are pretty well under control now.

"The only thing I am suffering from is the lack of a bath. However, I'll get out the ever-useful steel helmet and remedy that.

"A day or so ago Virginia's (Virginia McNulty, Wayne's cousin) package of bars arrived okeh. I also received a letter from both of you. Betty Jane Chittick of Midwest, Wyo., (formerly of Wayne) also wrote and enclosed a snapshot of herself. Also received late May and early June issues of the Herald and were they appreciated?

"I have several captured or recovered Italian postcards and letters that I will send on to you if it is permissible. I also have a captured German newspaper dated early in April of this year and published in Munchen, Germany. Its title is Volkischer Beobachter. I should like to send it to Editor Huse but I don't know the postal regulations on mailing captured documents.

"This is a quaint country. People here are diminutive and shy. That is they have been but now the kids are getting to be just like the Arabs. They expect every G.I. to be a walking post exchange. They get bolder as their elders come out of the hills where they scurried during the invasion.

"Bright and early Sunday morning, July 25, I have just finished breakfast and now am back in my pup tent watching the rays of light fill the corners. It's a nice day. I wonder what you'll do back in Nebraska. Every step now is a step homeward, we keep telling ourselves.

"We have exchanged our Moroccan, Algerian and Tunisian francs for good seal U. S. money which the natives are now willing to take over here. The medium of exchange here is the lira which is equal to one cent.

"This is a rich and fertile land as far as agriculture goes. The cities are old and grey and smelly with cobblestone streets. It isn't really a cobblestone. It is more limestone blocks two feet square on thereabouts. They have been worn slick and the Sicilian horses slijb and slide as they pull the picturesque two-wheel carts along the road. These carts are highly colored and decorated as are the horses which wear spangles and trimmings. Invariably the horses have a kind of saddle on them with a stick pointing up about a foot in the air. On this stick is a red cloth streamer, little bells, etc. Most horses pull carts and are not ridden. The carts are usually blue or red with yellow or gold designs. Many of the scenes depicted are of the billing and cooing variety, or pictures of movie star types. The people seem to be deeply religious and all Catholic. The biggest and best buildings (in the cities are churches. In every store and shop are Biblical pictures, madonna scenes, etc. In the large towns and along main highways every other house or barn or stone wall has phrases signed by Mussolini and frequently large stone barns near the highway have nothing but Duce, Duce, Duce written over them. He must be the vainest man in the world. Of course all the Sicilians say they hate Hitler for many reasons."

Please Take Good Care of Your Natural Gas Appliances

The factories that formerly produced gas appliances are now devoted to war production. It is important that you take good care of your gas refrigerator. By so doing you will make a distinct contribution to the war effort. All gas appliances are built for many years of service and a minimum of upkeep and repair. By being careful not to abuse them you can add to their useful life . . . and avoid unnecessary repairs, service and replacement. Uncle Sam wants you to take good care of your gas appliances during the war emergency.

I am hoping, Dad, that this will reach you on your sixteenth birthday — and here's my present for you. Tell Dad that you are to have my car for your own use providing you promise faithfully you'll take it down to the Conoco station — every week for a complete check-up — and put nothing but Conoco N-6 in the crankcase. That's to keep the engine oil plated.
How that, Big Boy? Things out here are pretty hot right now — but don't worry. I'll be looking for you to meet me at the station one of these days and I expect to hear a loud shout from you... but no noise from that car of ours.
