Boys in the local air corps are typical American boys who come from average American homes like the homes in Wayne.

One sure way to comfort and cheer a boy is to feed him. Mrs. Conger has been doing that for the soldiers' boys belonging to the Wayne unit.

Expressing gratitude for dinners enjoyed at the Conger home, and on his leaving, for a box packed with popcorn balls and other edibles that appeal to a boy.

A sister wrote that Leon had just passed his flight physicals and is now qualified for pilot's training.

We think this example of hospitality represents the prevailing Wayne type, and we believe Leon's appreciation, emphasized by home folks, is typical of that felt generally by the sojourning aviation boys.

National Collaboration. Town Hall of the Air last week discussed the question of immediate steps by this country to collaborate with other nations in preserving world peace and security.

Henry J. Taylor, long experienced war correspondent, points out in his recently published book, "Men in Motion," the folly of trying to treat the world to a gigantic WPA project.

In dealing with other nations, dangerous extremes should be avoided, and these extremes may be prevented by trusting settlements and readjustments to sound and broadminded statesmen.

Restrictions on the consumption of newspaper have caused metropolitan newspapers which are large users to adopt policies that seem strange to rural weeklies that are on the alert to increase advertising and circulation in order to keep out of the red.

Miss Elna Meyer Is Bride of Harvey Splittgerber At Rites Nearby.

Miss Elna Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Meyer of northeast of Wayne, and Harvey Splittgerber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Splittgerber of near Altona, were married Sunday, August 15, at 3 o'clock at Immanuel Lutheran church northeast of Wayne.

The altar was decorated with flowers for the occasion. Prof. Robert Degner played Lehengrin's bridal march and Mendelssohn's recessional. High Award Given To L. W. Rodenberg Migel Medal for Service To Blind Is Presented By Helen Keller.

Louis W. Rodenberg of Jacksonville, Ill., brother of Mrs. Edw. Seymour of Wayne, was in June presented the Migel medal for 1943 by the American Foundation for the Blind for his outstanding service to the blind. Dr. Helen Keller, noted blind woman and member of the committee on awards, made the presentation in the Helen Keller room at the association's headquarters in New York. Mrs. Carroll Petersen of Chicago, niece of Mr. Rodenberg, accompanied the latter to New York.

The Migel medal, awarded each year to one who has contributed much to blind folks, was first given in 1937 by M. C. Migel, New York philanthropist and silk manufacturer, and H. R. Latimer, blind principal of Maryland School for the Blind.

In choosing Mr. Rodenberg for the honor, the committee wrote that it designated him for the award "as a slight token in recognition of your devoted labors, for the blind in many directions. The committee had in mind particularly your outstanding achievements in the development and unification of braille music notation, your splendid work as American editor of the Musical Review for the Blind, your devoted efforts to attain a uniform braille type for the English-speaking world and your many scholarly and interesting contributions to professional literature on the blind."

In her presentation, Dr. Keller told Mr. Rodenberg that he "brings home to us the truth that the ideal which music reflects is the exquisite song to which triumph over physical handicap is the prelude. You also show that our powers of adaptation are infinite, and that men can become a harp of capabilities and thoughts, keyed to the central symphony of life and achievement."

Mr. Rodenberg is printer in the school for the blind and he also edits a paper for the blind of Illinois. He is a talented musician.

Last October Mr. Rodenberg was honored on another occasion. The poem he wrote about the second city of Kaskaskia, former capital of Illinois, was embodied in bronze letters on stone tablets on a site overlooking the city.

Resolve to Keep Power in People

set aside politics in their determination to assure Americans that the people shall rule the government, and that no one man or any clique shall do so.

United in Efforts

These Washington statements, the speaker emphasized, are working unitedly for the good of their country. They are willing to sacrifice everything in order to keep this government one that is absolutely subject to the will of the people. Various groups and lobbyists have been working to undermine the American form of government, trying to prove that it is obsolete. But, stated Congressman Stefan, officials are resolved that they will give all they have to retain this democracy which, when conducted properly, is the best in the world. They are upholding the principles of democracy and Christianity.

Statements in both houses and in both parties are working hard, but many lobbyists are attempting to block their efforts. Rich labor leaders who are selfish, communists who start strikes and others attempt to sidetrack democracy. But men in congress are battling and sacrificing to prevent any overthrow. They want to keep the government representative of the people.

The nation's largest tax bill, calling for 314 billions, has been voted. The official acknowledged that this is huge but that it is necessary to carry on the war at its present stupendous rate. Various departments that have served their purpose, such as NYA, FSA and OWI, have been liquidated to cut expenses. These are trimmed in an effort to cut all possible non-essentials.

Keep Power with People. Congressmen are pledged to fight for what their constituents want regardless of their own future. Never has any man had the power or the control so much money as the president, but officials are determined that the final power shall remain with the people.

To Safeguard Future

Private industry must be protected; new developments, such as air service, must be promoted; evils that followed previous wars must be headed off; employment problems must be solved; farms must have electricity and other modern conveniences; boys returning from service must be fitted into the economic program. All of these and more will mean great planning and much organization for the post-war period. Congressman Stefan noted that Nebraska has been found one of the best areas for great aviation centers and these should help the state's future.

Aviation development is boundless, stated the speaker. The B-17 and B-24 ships are doing much to win the war. American aviators are the best in the world and their part in the war is saving millions of lives.

Women's branches of the armed forces have many conscientious young ladies who are doing a superlative job in their work, according to the speaker. They actually are replacing men, and in some capacities are even doing better work.

In closing Congressman Stefan asked all to lend their help in keeping the government subject to the people. The congressman was introduced by E. W. Huse. 1st Lt. Gerald Wright of Washington, D. C., was a guest of his father, B. W. Wright, Dr. W. G. Ingram was with Dean Clarence McGinn. Congressman Karl Stefan, Prof. John R. Keith, L. W. McNatt, A. L. Swan, Lt. R. J. Friery, T. S. Hook and D. J. Hamer were guests of E. W. Huse.

Pvt. Wm. Nelson who had been in officers' training in the signal corps at Camp Crowder, Mo., received his honorable discharge last week as the branch there was discontinued. Mr. Nelson had enlisted. He expects to be called in the draft within 60 days. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, who were here the last of the week with the latter's mother, Mrs. Mae Young, went to Omaha Saturday to make their home.

Mon Fight Fires.

Pvt. Merlin Meyer, stationed at Fort Francis E. Warren, Wyo., writes of how much he appreciates the Herald, and says it makes him feel closer to home. Pvt. Meyer also writes that another job has been added to the men's numerous duties, that of fighting a forest fire at Buffalo, Wyo.

Will Become Flier.

Pfc. Glenn Sundstrom, who has been stationed at Gila Bend gunnery base in Arizona for the past year, is expecting an appointment as aviation cadet and will take six months' training in one of the colleges in the United States. "Here's hoping my luck will be Wayne for college training."

The young man writes that Arizona is hot and dry always but that many buildings are air-cooled so they are comfortable.

Mr. Olsen and Miss Ruth Harms, the latter of Bloomfield and Wayne college graduate last year, teacher in Winnebago the past term, will be married Saturday in Chicago. Mr. Sederberg and Miss Marjorie Harrison, the latter of Wayne, will attend the wedding. Mr. Sederberg plans to visit in Receives Promotion.

Robert E. Bader, former resident here who visited Wayne a few weeks ago while on furlough, was pleasantly surprised on his return to Fort Bliss, Texas, to have word that he had been promoted to first lieutenant.

"I certainly enjoyed my visit in Chicago," writes the young man. "It was the first time I'd been back since I entered the army 11 months before. Naturally the war has changed things but it seemed the same old Wayne to me and I was glad to see it again. "Our organization has finished its training so we expect to be sent to a new location in a few weeks."

Here from Carolina.

L. E. Brown finished his officer candidate training in North Carolina and earned his commission of second lieutenant. He arrived in Omaha Saturday. Mrs. Brown, who has been at Holdrege, met him there. The two came to Wayne Saturday evening and were overnight guests at R. K. Kirkman's. They went to Holdrege Sunday. The Brown family goes from Holdrege by car to Los Angeles near which place Lt. Brown will be stationed, likely as an instructor.

Undergoes Operation.

He is now able to walk some but will be in the army hospital about a week longer. The Wayne youth writes that he was delighted Friday to receive his first copy of the Herald at mail call. When one of the nurses wondered why he was so quiet, he explained that he was reading the home news.

Writes from Alaska.

A letter from Sgt. Erwin Hatfield, somewhere in Alaska, to Dr. and Mrs. C. A. McMaster July 31 is in part as follows: "It must be wonderful to have a son like Wayne who is doing such a fine job in north Africa. I have been reading of his interesting adventures in the Wayne Herald. "I was very much interested in the awarding of the war bond to Wayne as a result of Sardi's interesting program. The Herald is rendering a fine service to all the boys of Wayne and it is very much appreciated. "This section of the warring world is weird and fascinating. It is unbelievably civilized and the people are very human. This section is not really so much different from the good old United States. "My work is very interesting. I am in the air corps and was transferred from the signal corps."

Hear Wayne Youth On Sardi's Program

Edwin Dawson, AMM 1-C with the coast guards, appeared on the breakfast at Sardi's in Hollywood Tuesday morning at the service men's table. Wayne Young Man Helps Successful Sicilian Landing

Though the ship on which Lt. (jg) Budd Bornhoff, Wayne, was helping transport the invasion army from Africa to Sicily encountered severe gunfire at times, the men in his unit accomplished their task without a single loss. In a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bornhoff, the officer, now in the western Mediterranean long way from the fighting, writes August 8 as follows: "Well, the censors have lifted the ban on our Sicilian invasion so I can tell you all about it. In the first place every newspaper report that you read was undoubtedly true. All of the ones I saw were very accurate so now I have a lot more faith in the news. I believe we get it pretty straight. "I missed my guess on the time of the invasion. You know that it didn't come off quite as soon as I expected. We had been stationed in Bizerte and that is where one group of the ships taking part gathered. We all met there on the night (morning) of the 5th of July. There were plenty of ships, too. You can understand that as it was the largest such undertaking ever attempted. About 3 in the morning 50 German planes came over and bombed the city, but they missed all of their targets. We got two of them that I know of. At 5 in the morning we left for Sousse to pick up more ships. Then we proceeded to Sicily by way of Malta to pick up more ships. By that time we really had more ships than I thought existed. We left Malta at night on the 9th. It is only a short distance from there to Sicily. On the 10th at 2:45 in the morning the

Commend Officer From Wayne County

Lt. Frank Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Johnson who live south of Randolph in Wayne county and brother of Kenneth Johnson, who is now in service and formerly practiced law in Wayne, has been commended on the excellent relations he has established with his pilots. The item published with a page of featured articles on the medical department at Kingsville field, Texas, reads: "Flight Surgeon Johnson has done much to establish the rapport between the flight surgeon and his pilots in his willingness to accompany them on any of their flights. In order to adjust with them Dr. Johnson listens in on their daily conversations and lives with them in their routine. "Dr. Johnson is constantly seeking development of better methods in selecting student aviators, and improving their comforts and protection against injury under normal operation conditions. "Assigned to active duty with the fleet marine force in San Diego in 1941, Dr. Johnson has seen service in Pensacola, Jamaica, Cuba and NATC. He remembers his first contact experience with flying over a convoy in a PBY during which he must demonstrate to his commanding officer that he is fully qualified to carry out the duties of his rate. The insignia is regarded as a mark of distinction throughout the navy. Hogan attended Wayne high, joined the navy in January last year and received initial training at Great Lakes, Ill. "Unusual, interesting experience, more responsibility, duties that are educational and exciting and good pay," he first bunch hit the beach. It didn't look as if they were having much trouble as we felt a little better. You can be sure that plenty of us didn't figure on coming back. We were supposed to hit the beach at 3:30 so we started in. As we neared the beach a big gun opened up on us right in front of us. We stopped, turned around, and came in again. By that time one of our destroyers had knocked out the big gun so we went right in without meeting any fire. Boy, those destroyers and cruisers did a real job. They just sat out there and knocked off all the big guns that fired at us. Just before we hit the beach, we lost our anchor so we figured we were lost ducks. The engineer fainted. But we got off all of our troops in record time and got off the beach without any trouble. We started away and then a machine gun opened up on us and hit the ship once. No damage. Then as we were gathering to go back to Bizerte, a German plane came over, but the destroyers and cruisers drove him off. We got back to Bizerte without losing a single man. Not an LCI was lost during the invasion so it was very successful. Since then I have made two trips to Sicily once on a feint and once to Palermo. In Palermo, I ran into one of the soldiers we had landed and not a one of them had been killed. Oh, yes, we invaded at a spot five miles east of Licata — right between Licata and Gela. Maybe you can find it on the map. The boys at Gela caught plenty of action. The night after we left Palermo, the harbor there was bombed by 50 planes so we got out just in time. I guess that is the whole story. I can probably think of more details when I get home. It wasn't at all bad, but nobody wants to go through it again. As soon as we got here, we found out that we could get fresh meat off one of the transports. So yes-

Industry and Government

Speaking of labor disputes that have hindered war production, and of the inconsistent request of one of the country's biggest labor unions that the government take over and run private industries after the war on the ground that such industries are "monopolistic" and "strategically" necessary to the national policy, the Omaha Journal-Stockman makes this comment:

"It is a strange thing for leaders in any branch of public or private life to advocate further government domination over the individual in a nation that is spending three or four hundred billion dollars to crush government control over individuals in other nations. They either do not know what they are asking, or they are deliberately advocating state socialism."

"It is also strange to see those leaders demanding socialization of industry on the plea of strategic necessity. This war is being won because private industry, the plane and tank factories, the shipyards, the coal and metal mines, the oil, electric power and other natural-resource industries turned to the task of building a war machine from scratch with a do-or-die determination. Success has been achieved to an undreamed-of degree—success that has been marred by but one serious incident over which management had no control: the coal strike. After industry has proved its ability to meet a war emergency efficiently and quickly, it is pure hypocrisy to demand that it be taken over by government in the interests of national safety."

"It is even stranger for leaders of organized labor to advocate government ownership of industry on the ground of monopoly. Any industry that is a monopoly can be regulated or otherwise controlled by law. On the other hand, unions have demonstrated their ability to wreck private industry, just as they have demonstrated their power to say when, where and how millions of private citizens may make a living. They exercise unregulated, monopolistic power over the most valuable asset the nation possesses—the skills of American workmen."

"If this kind of monopoly prevails, our days of individual liberty are numbered."

Appraisal of Willkie

IN the course of considering next year's republican candidates we have the following comment from the Christian Science Monitor regarding Wendell Willkie, defeated candidate in 1940. The Monitor's appraisal will lend some strength to present discussions. An understanding of different possibilities will aid in making the best choice when the time comes. Here is what the Monitor says:

"Mr. Willkie has accurately assessed the American political temper, and has, we believe, correctly delineated what the republicans must offer if they are to win the 1944 campaign. Between the lines of the statement made to his party friends in Rushville is a clear bid for another presidential nomination—but on his own terms."

"Those terms will scarcely erase the opposition he has encountered from the 'Old Guard,' for he insists upon a liberalism in domestic affairs that points toward many of the same general social objectives now being pursued, but specifying (and we applaud) that the policies be more competently and economically administered."

"Nor will his terms please those sections of the isolationist thought that have sought company in the republican party. With the possible exception of Lieutenant Commander Stassen, Mr. Willkie is presently the outstanding internationalist of the Grand Old Party, and his statement does not compromise his 'One World' position."

"This, we believe, is his greatest strength. It offsets much of the public feeling that it would be unwise to change leadership in the midst of war, or in the midst of the complicated peace negotiations that will follow the war. It is daily becoming more clear that the Roosevelt administration has lagged in its preparations for peace. Few things would probably embarrass America more than a German surrender in the next twenty-four hours."

"At this writing, Mr. Willkie seems to offer more in the way of positive leadership in the unfolding peace than the incumbent administration. That is an immense political asset, and a contribution to his party of incalculable value."

Gallup's Finding

WHILE the Gallup prognosticating machine missed the mark by considerable in its pre-election forecast a year ago, it is still functioning with apparent confidence. Its latest is a report touching fourth-term sentiment within the democratic party, and this revealed President Roosevelt as the popular choice in five large states, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and California.

The expression is from a small percentage, but is accepted as indicative of the party's preference in the states mentioned. Democrats in the south are reported largely in favor of a fourth-term nomination notwithstanding dissatisfaction often heard coming from that party stronghold. The survey reflects a fraction of the democratic party in five industrial states

This fraction is doubtless influenced more by the war than by local economic problems. The report mentions a general survey which showed an almost equal division of opinions considering the president and republican candidates. The middle west which is 100 per cent behind the war effort, is expected to be found in favor of a change by a large majority on economic grounds.

Present Policy

ON account of gasoline restrictions the Herald is unable to make the usual personal canvass for new and renewal subscriptions this year, and instead of doing it has been sending each month notices of expirations. Most recipients of these reminders have responded promptly. Mostly through oversight some have neglected to do so. We are eager to hold all subscribers, but do not wish to urge the newspaper on any one who has lost interest in it. Thus, those not heard from are regretfully removed from the list. It touched us rather deeply this week when one subscriber said he had been taking the Herald for fifty years, and had never until now received notice of a due subscription. The nearly three thousand subscribers are treated equally, and that is a necessary policy if the list is to be kept free from arrearages. We are certain subscribers will understand the course we are following is the only practical one under present conditions.

Powerful Mid-West

THIS week the weather demonstrated again its power to change from one extreme to another. The temperature dropped forty or more degrees in one night. At Burwell, Neb., thermometers registered nine above freezing. Perspiring inhabitants thus narrowly missed the experience of scraping off sheaths of ice. We respectfully submit that people toughened by the rigors of the mid-western climate can stand hardships and win wars. It is from these variable and often punishing natural elements that go the sinewy boys who have no superiors in the present fight to overthrow the country's enemies. If one has been weakened and run down in the pampering climate of the south or southwest, we invite him to come to the mid-west and put himself under the treatment of sundry weather twists, which assure him an abundance of ozone and plenty of corrective and stimulating kicks.

A committee of the Chamber of Commerce is moving actively to place Wayne in a position to receive due air service following the war. Members had a conference with Congressman Karl Stefan while he was here Monday, and an understanding was reached as to what may be done to accomplish desired results. The congressman pledged his full cooperation. The committee realizes that a town cannot lie down and expect to be awakened and carried on by unsolicited advantages. The Chamber committee is alert to the need and proposes to satisfy it.

In view of the fact that boys of 18 have been called to fight for their country, a constitutional amendment has been proposed to reduce the voting age to 18. It is reasonable to suppose that youths sufficiently mature to enter the army are old enough to share in shaping the course of what they are fighting for. Experience in government service speeds development in judgment, and with that experience, the average boy of 18 will be able to express himself quite as intelligently at the polls as the average citizen who is older.

Mentioning that President Roosevelt twice vetoed bonus bills for World War I's veterans, Time magazine calls attention to the president's recent promise of future generosity to soldier groups, commenting: "Where the fight will end, whether in sensible humanitarianism or in unabashed treasury raids, only the will of the soldiers and the consciences of politicians can say." One high up in political circles observes that "every American is determined to take care of these returning heroes."

On account of the presidential election next year, nominating primaries will be held in April. A new law provides for preliminary party conventions which will endorse candidates to be voted on in the primaries. These nominations do not prevent voluntary entrants without convention action. Thus, held ahead of primaries, conventions will adopt platforms and will be designed to fix a measure of party responsibility.

In lieu of taxes that impose too heavy burdens on industry and business, some legislators in Washington are said to look with favor on a general sales tax. A sales tax would be generally distributed and would be little felt. It would seem the only way left to ease up on other taxes.

The revived demand for pre-Pearl Harbor fathers in army service may or may not develop into reality, as past experience in changing draft rules would suggest.

Nothing safer than government bonds.

As Ordered by Ickes. (Lincoln Journal)

In effect Harold Ickes says: "Now that transportation is possible we will take away gasoline from the midwest and give it to the east, that there may be equality of sacrifice." But the west regards this restriction on its use of cars to carry on its war work as needless sacrifice, when the production of oil can be added to by increasing the price of crude oil to the point where stripper and marginal wells can be operated profitably.

Calling Jupiter Pluvius. (Sioux City Journal)

If there's anyone around who has any influence at all with Jupiter Pluvius it wouldn't do a bit of harm to wheedle him into letting it rain right away. The soil is dry, and late garden crops are in need of moisture.

URGES VOTE.

Edgar Howard, former congressman and editor of the Columbus Telegram, asks that the place of Nebraska's democratic party in the next national convention be settled by popular vote. Howard proposes that two sets of delegates be voted on in this state—one set pro-Roosevelt and the other anti-Roosevelt. The Columbus editor says the president's friends would welcome such a contest. The result would be for or against a fourth term as expressed by one political party. It would not reflect the majority attitude of the entire electorate. A contest between the two factions within the democratic party would draw lines sharply between new dealers and anti-new dealers, and it would be wonderfully revealing. The interested party would be the most interested spectators, and would be pleased to absorb party defections.

The Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal cut out 25 columns of advertising in two days. The Norfolk, Va., Ledger-Dispatch has fixed advertising limitations and "froze" its circulation. And another increase in the cost of newspaper becomes effective September 1.

Surgeon at Auburn Passes on Sunday

Service Are Conducted for Dr. C. A. Lutgen Tuesday At Church There.

Dr. Clifford A. Lutgen, 70, brother of Dr. S. A. Lutgen of Wayne, died Sunday in Auburn, Neb., following several weeks' illness. Funeral rites were conducted Tuesday at Auburn First Christian church with the Masonic lodge in charge. Burial was in Auburn.

Dr. C. A. Lutgen has been prominent as a physician and surgeon in this state for some years. He served as president of the Nebraska Hospital association. He was author of several articles on medical science and surgery, and had been a member of the national research council. Two years ago he was named a fellow in the American College of Surgeons.

A graduate of the former Cotner college medical school at Lincoln, Dr. Lutgen began practicing in Auburn in 1901 and founded the Auburn hospital in 1914. He had also attended Chicago and New York medical colleges.

Deceased had been president of the Nemaha county medical association and head of Auburn Kiwanis club. He had been an elder in the First Christian church 35 years and was active in boy scout leadership. The doctor was interested in hunting and had given several cinnamon bears to Antelope park in Auburn.

Surviving Dr. Lutgen are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Grace Irene Houzel of Auburn, nurse in her father's hospital, Arnold who maps roads for the state highway department, and Marshall who has just completed "boot" training at Farragut, Idaho, and is being transferred to the medical unit of the navy. There are three grandchildren. Dr. Lutgen also leaves two sisters, Mrs. P. S. Houston of Corn, Kan., and Mrs. A. J. Smith of Colby, Kan., and one brother, Dr. S. Lutgen of Wayne. All the near relatives were present for the rites.

Dr. and Mrs. S. A. Lutgen went in Auburn last week and were returning Tuesday evening.

WORK.

Plenty of work and pride in production really make life worth while. A fellow must be convinced he is contributing something of value to society to put zeal into activities and gain relish from what he is doing. No more ambition than just to get by, reaping the most personal gain from the least personal effort but poorly warrant existence. Henry Ford's idea of service in a big way may be profitably imitated by persons all along down the scale in capacities to produce. An objective may be comparatively small, but if it is worthy, it means a useful life and one that invites few regrets. Nothing like indolence and indifference to destroy peace of mind. The sooner kicking labor unioners develop more interest in production and less in short hours—more emphasis on responsibility and less on authority—the better would be their relationship with employers and the more they would put into life and the more they would get out of it. Blessed is the fellow both able and willing to work.

terday we sent over and got five turkeys, some chickens, 400 pounds of beef, 50 pounds of fresh butter, some ice cream mix, and some coca cola mix as well as plenty of cigars. So we are all set now. We had our first real meal this noon. Plenty of good turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes, and gravy. I really stuffed myself. It is the first time I have eaten any spuds for ages and is the first good meal we have had since we've left the states. We are going to have steaks tonight. I guess we are all set as long as we are in this town.

"Well, I guess that is all for this time. I'll write again in a few days. We still haven't received any mail at this place, but this is only our third day here."

Wakefield Youth With Air Service In China Location

Pvt. Marvin Fredrickson, son of the Axel Fredricksons, has arrived in China. He is with the ground crew of the air corps. The young man left New York early in May and was in Ceylon and India enroute to his new station. His cousin, Pfc. Harold Fredrickson, is on Ceylon.

"It has been a long time since you have heard from me but I haven't been able to write before," according to Pvt. Marvin Fredrickson in a letter July 11. This letter, coming from India, stated that he had been there about two days and that he expected to move soon. "I am feeling fine and have ever since I left the states."

"The weather here is extremely hot in the daytime but the nights are fairly cool. Our barracks here are made of bamboo with a dried grass roof and brick floor. Our cots are also made of bamboo and incidentally July 8 was the first night I had slept on a cot since leaving the states."

"I have seen more ox teams driven here than I ever knew existed. All of the farming is done with cattle or water buffalo. I have seen several elephants, monkeys, etc.

"This is the first camp at which we have stopped that has been American and we all appreciate it. The food is much better than any we have had on our way across. We got paid yesterday but there aren't very many places to spend money here, but it's nice to have some anyway. We got paid in rupees and annas. One rupee is equal to 30 cents and there are 16 annas in one rupee."

In writing July 18 from "somewhere in China," the youth says "well, at last I've reached my destination. I am all O. K. and hope all of you are too. I haven't received any mail yet but probably will when you get my new APO number. The mail sent to my other address will get here eventually but will probably take about two months. So if you write as soon as you get the new address, I should get the letter around September 1."

"The weather here is much better than in India. It is nice and cool both day and night. I'd say it is similar to October weather at home.

"There are no towns and no post exchange here so we hardly need money. I suppose you have heard a little about inflation here. For three of our dollars we get 260 Chinese dollars and it would take all of it to buy a good meal in a restaurant in one of the cities. Anything imported from the U. S., especially cigarettes, gum, cosmetics, etc., bring terrific prices. About the only thing we can buy is salted peanuts. I bought one bag last night for 20 yuan or dollars."

"The food here is O. K., not the best but don't think I'll mind it. The Chinese take care of all the food, cooking, serving, etc., so we don't have to do it. We get plenty of eggs and rice. Fortunately I like rice so I should get by."

"We will have new barracks to live in after a while. They aren't quite finished yet. There isn't much in the line of entertainment here. I guess they have a movie here once in a while. There is only one way of getting here. Even free mail goes by air until it gets to the states."

"Just met a fellow from Emerson who is stationed here. Heckens is his name. Ervin Brown and Mervin Peterson are his brothers-in-law. He knows about everyone around Wakefield so it seemed nice to talk to someone from home. He has been overseas 18 months."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel, and his redeemer the Lord of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God; Fear ye not, neither be afraid; have not I told thee from that time, any witnesses. Is there a God beside me? yea, there is no God; I know not any. (Isaiah 44:6,8). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mind, the only I, or Us; the only Spirit, Soul, divine Principle, substance, Life, Truth, Love; the one God; not that which is in man, but the divine Principle, or God, of whom man is the full and perfect expression; Deity, which outlines but is not outlined" (p. 591).

In spite of the fact that the Herald relied on news reports from Lincoln and on local sources, this newspaper, according to Attorney Harry N. Larson of Wakefield, misinformed the public relative to the Nels Carlson case in supreme court. The Herald always endeavors to check sufficient sources to give reliable news service. The letter from Attorney Larson follows:

"We respectfully call your attention to the following errors in your news item under headline 'Reverse Decision in High Tribunal,' appearing in your paper No. 13, (date August 12, 1943):

"$3,250 was not awarded to Mrs. Helen Kahler by the district court decision. It was awarded to her children, Doris Fay Carlson and Alma May Carlson.

"The decision was not given by Judge Paine. The supreme court gave the decision. Chief Justice Simmons wrote the majority opinion. Judge Paine wrote a dissenting opinion.

Library News

The government is conducting a nation-wide campaign during July and August against unnecessary civilian travel, and for these two months is urging that vacation travel be curtailed or reduced for the summer. It is pointed out that tripp movements by rail are now proceeding at the rate of over 2,000,000 men a month, requiring the constant services of over half of all Pullman sleeping cars and nearly one-third of all day coaches. Readers of the New York Times will have noticed the various advertisements which have been placed in support of this government campaign. There was a Macy ad, for example which said: "Millions of men are on the move. Is your trip necessary? Do your share to keep civilians at home and our troops on the move this summer. Remember they've got places to go and important business to do. You can have fun at home. Stay at home with a good book."

Capricornia by Xavier Herbert is a good book. H. G. Wells says: "The best written and finest spirited novel that has ever come out of Australia." This novel of life in northern Australia won the Commonwealth literary prize competition, on the occasion of Australia's 150th anniversary celebration. A Cedar county tax levy has been set at 1.685 mills this year. A year ago it was 2.23 mills.

best-seller in both Australia and England, it received high praise from critics of both countries. The book is introduced to American readers by a foreword by Carl Van Doren.

Not such interesting reading, probably, but necessary and worth while, is Your Income Tax Preview, by J. K. Lasser. It is a digest of the new law that tells you how your employer will deduct taxes from your income. It also tells you how to prepare your tax return due September 15, 1943, how much of your 1942 tax is forgiven, and it gives forms and tables that will help you compute your tax and the new tax time table.

The New Imperative Book is Walter Lippman's U. S. foreign policy. This is the book of the month selection for August. At present we do not have the book in our library but it is on order and we are expecting it any day.

Hold Harvest Picnic. Dixon's 53rd harvest picnic was held Monday, August 16. Speaking, motion pictures, dance and concessions were arranged. Charles Nelson, 90, of Concord, who has never missed this celebration, was among those present.

Value of Gasoline Coupons Is Cut

Value of gasoline coupons was slashed from four to three gallons in the midwest Sunday at midnight by ruling of the OPA. This step was taken so as to increase rations in the east where they have been less.

The A coupons in the east are now one and a half gallons and B and C two and a half. These will be raised soon.

He stopped to pick up the sinkers on his way to the park, but found the bake shop and three other buildings burned to the ground. New York City magistrate Chas. Solomon told Sam Levine he would suspend sentence on a charge of enticing patrons to a "guess-your-age" establishment at Coney Island, if Levine could guess his age within two years. Heinz Hammerschmidt, 34, of Indianapolis, who was brought out of Germany through the determined efforts of his relatives here, still has an upper hand over Hitler. While in a German concentration camp, gestapo officers left Hammerschmidt to die after they had broken his arches, smashed his knee, knocked out his teeth, shot him in the arm, stabbed him in the eye and neck with a bayonet. Despite the injuries he was inducted into the army here.

Arabian Dinner Is Enjoyed by Wayne Officer

The unusual foods and dining habits of Arabs were enjoyed recently by a Wayne officer, 1st Lt. Wayne McMaster, who was invited to a home in Fex, Morocco, north Africa. The letter tells of the dinner as follows:

"About the swanky, huge banquet I was invited to. At this location I have a number of French friends among whom is one who is a very rich old man. He invites me to his home quite often and almost every time I visit this city, I visit him. He has a large fine house. It is furnished very well even up to a large American radio and a Frigidaire, which is unusual over here. Before the war he owned four cars, two of which now belong to the French army. He, of course, has very little gasoline so he travels only occasionally.

"Through this man and his wife I was invited to one of his rich Arab friend's homes. We traveled to this city and entered the Arab's home as the latter's wife and children scurried for cover. We entered past the white-washed Arab walls through several archways of typical Arabian architecture having open, ornated doors with various designs cut in the plaster walls. The patio or courtyard had a pool in the center of it and surrounding the pool were various ferns and plants. In one corner of the yard grew small palms.

"We walked across this into a large chamber at the end of and facing this court. No furniture was in this room but, I'd say, 15 spacious, luxuriously covered couches (without legs) were conveniently placed about. All of them bulged with pillows.

"Our party sat down cross-legged on the low couches in a semi-circle facing the court and door we had just entered. All of the flooring was beautiful blue mosaic tile. We did not remove our shoes but our Arabian host did leave his slippers conveniently in the courtyard. First they brought a basin and pitcher of Arabian design and made of brass. Each of us took turns in washing our hands as the host's brother poured for us.

"They then brought on what looked to be a huge pie. It was about two and a half feet in diameter. The name of it escapes me but I do know its contents. It contained roast squab or pigeon along with cooked eggs (whole) and other meat and flavoring. It had a delicious crust on top sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon. Kind of a meat pie—delicious. We ate it with our right hand tearing it apart like a sandwich. I was afraid to eat more than six inches in my particular section as I had a hazy idea of what was coming.

"Next they brought in a large bowl of tenderly cooked lamb. It must have been young and specially prepared as it had no strong greasy taste that lamb often imparts. That was accompanied with large glasses of orangeade, Arabian style. It was rich with orange and I was told had a bit of water of roses in it. It smelled sweet and was very good.

"Then came the chicken—four, browned, tender chickens. That was superbly prepared even if I was getting full at this point. As a reminder, we ate with our right hand, used no utensils whatsoever. This is a good way to eat roast chicken in any language. At this point I was about ready for a long nap—but no.

"We next washed our hands of excess chicken, lamb and pigeon and settled back to see a large bowl of dates (pitted) and English walnut meats placed before us. We were eating off of a round table three feet and one half in diameter and about seven inches off the floor.

"Our host then placed a walnut meat in a date and handed it to me. He spoke no French but my rich old friend and his lawyer companion used Arabic fluently. They told me that our Arabic benefactor was very pleased to have an American officer dine with him. He was the only member of the household to dine with us. The rest of his people ate what we left and after we left.

"Next came some fruit unlike I have ever seen before. It looked like apricots but had a shiny surface, rather yellow though.

"We spent the next few minutes in conversation, pigeon French, pigeon English, Arabic and sign language. In order to talk to the Arab I had to talk to the Frenchman and vice versa.

"Our host led us upstairs to another large room with even more pillows and low couches. There he himself made and served us hot Arabian tea. You've never tasted good tea until you've had it Arabian style. With mint and steaming hot we drank it. Here was explored the myth of the three cups of tea which was a surprise to me. I had been told and had read that the third cup of tea was a sign for the guest to leave but they all laughed at that and said it was fondness. My friend drank four or five cups. I had three myself.

"After he had shown us some very nice Arab tapestries, scarfs, shawls, etc., we visited the rest of his house. He even took us up on
