

Helps Solve Farm Problem —Herman Frese's Place Presents an Example —Turkeys and Foxes —Suggested Use of United War Fund.

Contour farming was under consideration as Jason Webster, head of S. C. S., and Albert Watson, Rollie W. Ley and the writer journeyed to the Herman Frese farm west of Wayne Thursday to survey a successful example. Mr. Frese has several farms, but in the one inspected are 360 acres. In the 28 years he has been on his present place he has had his mind on conservation as well as production. He has recoiled from the idea of bequeathing to descendants worn-out acreage.

The virgin soil, protected by the native grasses, contained all the elements needed. Cultivation removed the grassy armor and rains brought erosion, the black dirt often washing away. Water ran off instead of sinking into the earth and filling the sub-surface. Restoring primal richness has been a problem, and Mr. Frese has turned to contouring as one way to solve it. When the nearby CC camp was established, he employed its members to elaborate plans he had already started. The safeguard involved considerable work and cost, but results have guaranteed ample repayment. During dry years especially contouring steps up production.

It was pointed out that Wayne county is rather slow in adopting innovations, but when they are convinced, they turn them to largest possible advantage. Saving the rich top soil and utilizing rainfall to the limit of possibilities look out both for the present and for the future. Worn-out and abandoned farms in New England testify to the wise foresight.

Mr. Frese is not only on the alert to keep his soil from being robbed and reduced in fertility, but he has all the well kept buildings required to accommodate large farming operations. One ingenious conversion of waste to practical use was a corner loft which he fortified to hold 20 tons. An elevator handles the crop. But while Mr. Frese shows an abundance of common sense, and would no doubt be glad to contribute from his store of experience, he modestly says he would like to buy a lot of common sense if he could. Obviously, there is none to buy in Washington.

Drouth increased the building of silos, and Mr. Frese is thus well equipped to handle large feeding operations. On account of a shrinking spread between market values and production costs, Mr. Frese has reduced the number of cattle in his feed lots from between 300 and 400 to about 100. He thinks he may boost the number before long.

Like many others, Mr. Frese is doing his best to preserve soil essentials, and to that end he engages in carefully planned diversification of farming and live stock growing. What he has done and what he is doing is an inspiration to an agricultural community. When he gets through he hopes to hand on to posterity something more than exhausted acreage and good intentions.

Which Are Side Lines? It may be a question whether Myron Colson's hatchery or his turkey and fox industry is a side line. Last week he marketed 2,200 turkeys weighing 44,000 pounds, and he still has 3,000 on hand to sell. Figure out the price of turkeys and you have the financial answer.

Turkeys are queer birds. They stick together without restraining barriers—whether they lack instinctive wanderlust or do not know enough to do otherwise is not revealed.

Also an ascending industry in the Colson experience is a colony of foxes of which 80 are adults and 200 are youngsters, the latter six months old. The youngsters are big enough to boss their parents, and will be ready to yield their pelts early in the winter. A fox is the mother of from one to six. Foxes are as shy as a 12-year-old maiden and as foxxy as a professional politician.

AWAG, Norfolk, broadcast this self-explanatory reference to Wayne last Thursday noon: "The Wayne Herald is trying to get a social center for the aviation students at Wayne college. The United War Fund is soliciting funds for the care of our boys in all parts of the world. Will you please explain why can't they get some of that money spent in northeast Nebraska?"

The idea of not looking to the United War Fund for support was to avoid delay. It looks as though the reverse were true, however, and that action, though slow through the UWF, is going to be slower through the proposed local setup.

Registration for New Ration Books Is Completed Here

Residents Who Were Unable To Visit Boards May Go To Wayne Office.

School staffs of Wayne county, with other local helpers, registered residents Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for war ration book No. 4 and it was expected that the total would be about the same as the 8,437 for book No. 3. Book No. 3 was sent through the mail from Chicago so no total is on record here for this one.

Persons who were unable to register for the new book the first of this week may do so at the local ration board office in Wayne post office. This should be done as soon as possible. All four ration books will be in use now. Book No. 1 will be good for sugar until October 31 when stamps expire. Thereafter this book will be only for shoes for those who have not already used the shoe stamp. Book No. 2 is valid only for processed foods. Stamps X, Y and Z in No. 2 are good for these foods until November 20, when the book will be out of use. Red stamps in No. 3 are now in force for meats and butter. The first airplane stamp in No. 2 becomes good for shoes November 1, and this stamp continues in force for at least six months. Book No. 4 will be put into use November 1 when A, B and C stamps become good for processed foods.

CAMPAIGN FOR OLD METAL FOR MILLS NOW IN PROGRESS

THE SCRAP metal drive now on is urged on the ground that supplies on hand are insufficient to meet demands. Lewis L. Middleton, vice president of the Sheffield Steel corporation, Kansas City, is quoted as saying that "scrap shipments have shown an alarming decrease in recent weeks." Middleton advises building up scrap piles in every county of the mid-west area. The effort is to keep steel mills running without interruption. Food Administrator Marvin Jones points out that next to industry, the greatest source of heavy scrap is the American farmer. Jones adds: "American farmers are doing the greatest food production in history. However, if we are to insure ample steel for wartime production, millions of tons of scrap iron must come from our farms in the next six weeks." Jones explains that steel mills were dependent on vast shipments of scrap to produce not only steel for ships, tanks, planes and guns, but for farm machinery as well. And after the war farmers will be relieved to know their places have become rid of useless metal and unsightly junk.

Scrap Is Needed In War Industry

Special Collection Planned In Areas of County to Build Up Reserve.

If the nation's steel mills have enough scrap this winter to produce weapons and planes vitally needed by the armed forces, every community will have to build gigantic Victory scrap banks this fall, according to P. L. March, Wayne county salvage chairman. The drive that is now on continues with intensity until November 15. Salvaging iron and steel is one of the most important ways all on the home front can serve.

Drive in Progress To Get Magazines

Individuals and Groups in Wayne and Vicinity Are Asked to Help.

The drive launched last week to provide subscriptions for the men of the 349th college training detachment is off to a good start, but more donations are needed to supply the many magazines desired for the aviation students. To date the following contributions have been made: Woman's Club, Life; Fortnightly club, Collins; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hahn, Saturday Evening Post; Mrs. J. Woodward Jones, American Magazine; Orpheo and Lyre clubs, Down Beat and School Musician; Pi Gamma Mu, Readers Digest; Neihardt hall, News Week, Look, Air News, Flynn's Detective Fiction. In addition to these four magazines Neihardt hall girls contributed sufficient funds to provide for one or two more magazines which have not yet been designated. Pile hall girls are also raising funds to help in the drive. Magazines which they contribute will be announced at a later date. Mr. and Mrs. David Thophius made a cash contribution to provide a fund for the magazines. Earlier in the year the religious organizations on the college campus gave the 349th college training detachment a subscription to the Omaha World-Herald.

As the drive continues into the second week libraries of the Wayne public and college libraries, sponsors of the campaign, private individuals, groups, organizations and clubs who have not yet participated to designate one or more magazines which they wish to donate. Any may consult the incharge list and leave donations at either the college or public library. Special low rates for the magazines are being obtained through Mrs. F. S. Morgan who is arranging for the subscriptions free of commission. Help in providing a large and varied selection of magazines for use by the students in the recreation room of their barracks would be much appreciated.

Need to Equalize Available Labor

Charles E. Olson Addresses Wayne Kiwanians Monday On Manpower Needs.

The urgent need for enlisting all possible manpower in essential industries and in war plants and the necessity of having movement of labor controlled so as to give ample supply to all important services were stressed by Charles E. Olson of Norfolk, member of the U. S. employment service, in speaking to Wayne Kiwanians Monday. Mr. Olson was introduced by Prof. O. R. Bowen.

Many important war services must be done and yet progress must go forward in local communities, asserted Mr. Olson in mentioning the need and the small supply of labor. Right now Hastings, Mead, Grand Island and Omaha war plants are asking for 5,000 men. This is in addition to the call for help in livestock, egg and poultry processing plants and on farms. Neither does this figure include the new aluminum plant to be constructed at Columbus.

Kiwanians and other civic clubs are invited by the employment service to help supply these services without interrupting important local industries. The government has asked farmers who can spare a few months' time in the winter to help fill the manpower demand, though it is important that they return to the farm to produce food in the spring.

Steps to Prevent Motor Accidents in Winter Months

GASOLINE rationing and slower driving have reduced automobile accidents, saving lives and preventing injuries, and altogether cutting down the cost of transportation. But it seems in 36 snow-belt states the mileage death rate from automobile accidents last winter was 24 per cent higher than during summer months. It is pointed out that in addition to hazardous highways due to snow and ice, lack of safety equipment, including chains, windshield wipers and defrosters, had contributed to the increase. Motorists are cautioned to look out for car equipment and put it in good shape as a protection. Prolonged use of old cars and scarcity of repairs make proper steps preparatory to winter driving more necessary than usual.

Extension of Air Service Appears Likely After War

Investigators Are to Make Recommendations Soon to Aeronautics Board.

Prospects for extension of air service to cities as small as Wayne look very favorable in the post-war period, according to R. W. Bartels who arrived home last week from Washington, D. C., where he appeared for the Century Aviation company of Wayne before investigators of the civil aeronautics board. The Wayne company has filed application to serve about 90 Nebraska and South Dakota towns with air mail and express pickup service.

Mr. Beitel and Mr. Madden served investigators for the civil aeronautics board. Many important personages appeared at the hearing when evidence was offered on extension of air service in behalf of small centers. The investigators will write their report and recommendations to present to the board which will make decisions later on the basis of material submitted.

It seems definite, Mr. Bartels reports, that air service will be greatly expanded after the war and it appears that small centers will be given favorable consideration. The routes and kind of service will depend on trunk line schedules and demands and on other circumstances at the time final decision is made.

Julia says - Give a HALLOWE'EN PARTY

OF COURSE we all know there's a war on—but in a way the war makes it even more important that we give the children a chance to observe Halloween in a fitting manner. It seems to me the youngsters definitely feel, even if they aren't aware of it, that the tension and excitement of war-time living. And it's a lot wiser to have them celebrate the Witches' Eve right in the home than to let them roam around the streets where there's always a possibility of their getting into trouble on Halloween.

Why not suggest the theme of a special party to them. For instance, a Pirates' Party! In the invitations be written in blood-red ink... decorate with skull and bones... warn of spooks... insist that every guest wear some part of a pirate costume...

costume details could include: fierce false mustaches... bandanas tied on the head... pipe-styled cardboard rings in ears... black patch on eye... house decorations may involve: paper skulls... skeletons... bones... red lights or candles...

entertainment can be as varied as imagination allows, for example, a darkened "cave of the winds," where a vacuum cleaner nozzle and each guest shakes hands with a chicken's claw blindfolded guests "kiss the binnacle" three times, twice kissing a tin pan but the third time dipping the face into a bowl of flour... walking the plank (the plank is held just free of the floor while the young guest, blindfolded, climbs onto it. The plank is rocked while the guest is told to walk forward on it. over deep water then the guest is made to jump and finds he was still only three inches over the floor!)

the "treasure," of course is exciting "Halloween refreshment!"

Wallace Changes AN article by Vice President Henry Wallace in the current Saturday Evening Post, demanding a fair show for private enterprise in the postwar world, makes one wonder what has come over him. He seems mostly too sensible to be a pillar in the new deal structure. He mentions that private enterprise is willing to accept risks, and that risks are essential in a free economy. He is quite right in that. He reveals with surprising clarity a belief that forces behind progress spring from private enterprise. While he still looks awry at big combinations of wealth, he takes small business into his arms and exclaims: "Small business shall not be the No. 1 economic casualty of this war." Small business, already hurt and limping, may feel reassured. Henry's strong socialistic meanderings in the past make his apparent change of heart agreeably startling. Has he experienced a reversal of conviction? Many will wonder if he wants something. Just what's the matter will be a source of speculation. Next in order he should deplore the wholesale killing of little pigs and proclaim against his former gospel of scarcity.

Passing of THE passing of Frank L. Williams, 76, editor in-chief of the Lincoln Journal, removes a stalwart figure from Nebraska journalism. Though ailing for a few weeks, he stuck to his task until two days before his death. He came to the state with his parents in 1868. He learned the printer's trade at Franklin, and he served as printer and editor at different places until 1898 when he joined the staff of the Journal, and he remained with it—a faithful, tireless worker—until the final summons. Mr. Williams was a man of sound convictions, abundant ability and high courage. He attended most republican national conventions, and was at the one held in Philadelphia three and one-half years ago. Will Owen Jones, also departed Journal editor, once told us that as long as Williams was on the job he felt perfectly at ease. Mr. Williams will be remembered by fellow-newspaper workers and many others with highest esteem.

Eating AFTER all, the average human being must have some edibles that he relishes in order to be satisfied. Eating is a necessary habit, and if one cannot find anything he likes, his appetite still yearns and his stomach complains. Raymond A. McConnell, Jr., managing editor of the Lincoln Journal, visiting England to interview war-torn conditions at close range, writes a good deal about things offered to wipe out hunger, with results far from satisfying. English tastes are so different that preparing meals is apparently in conflict with American customs. We judge the trouble is not so much lack of varieties as large variance from American culinary practice. A trip abroad

WAKEFIELD Young Folks Wed At Home Service

Miss Norma Jean Harrison Is Bride Here Saturday Of Paul Everingham.

At a beautiful candlelight ceremony performed at the Fred Harrison home near Wakefield Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, Miss Norma Jean Harrison, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harrison, became the bride of Paul Everingham, first class potty officer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Everingham of Newport, Neb. Rev. W. S. Lowe officiated at the impressive single-ring ceremony.

The service took place before an arched window in the home. Banked ferns and two tall baskets of chrysanthemums formed the improvised altar.

Miss Marilyn Harrison and Miss Estella Everingham lighted the tapers before the bridal party entered while Mrs. Marvin Busby, at the piano, played soft music.

Miss Marian Miller sang "I Love You" preceding the ceremony. She was accompanied by Mrs. Busby, who also played the wedding march from Lohengrin for the professional.

Miss Phyllis Kenney, a very close friend of the bride, since childhood, served as bridesmaid. Attending the bridegroom was his father, Albert Everingham.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length white wool dress, fashioned with fitted bodice, skirt gathered at the waistline, three-quarter sleeves and round neckline.

during war-time no doubt tends to modify overly fysical habits. The one who dotes much on tickling his palate three times a day with savory viands, is likely to be forced down to the level of merely eating to live.

New deal stalwarts are touchy over reports of the five senators who made a world-girdling trip. It is suggested they might hurt the war effort. On the contrary, they might help in strengthening weak spots and hastening coveted victory. A proposed fourth term is carefully coddled as a prospect that should not be disturbed. But those who opposed a third term, feel even more warranted in opposing a fourth term. The democracy, now on trial through force of arms, invites exercise of the electoral privilege, and administration satellites would be consistent to withhold their wrath and indicate willingness—even if they don't feel it—to abide by popular judgment.

The Lincoln Journal mentions a plenitude of government agencies to take care of everything. As reported, the juvenile delinquency problem has been referred to nine different agencies, and no doubt could draw on additional ones if necessary. The Journal suggests, however, that parents be persuaded to take practical interest in solving the problem.

Reports from Washington indicate that members of congress generally consider the sales tax the easiest and least painful way to raise public funds, but, due to opposition in union labor ranks, they have thus far shied from it as something too hot to handle.

Demand for men for different branches of war production reminds us again that a large source of supply may be found in numerous unnecessary Washington bureaus. Shoo enough thousands from non-war jobs to meet requirements.

A naturally smiling face has a lot of advantage. Most faces were built otherwise, and with huge tragedy abroad, they have a hard time trying to simulate the way they don't feel.

The enervating task of holding key positions in Washington is testified to by the resignation of Prentiss Brown from head of the office of price administration.

Congratulations to Uruguay's courage. A newspaper headline says: "Uruguay accepts U. S. gift of half million." Also best wishes to an indulgent uncle.

Even an imagined grievance is considered better than none to justify one in feeling disagreeable.

New Mother Hubbard

This doggerel is going the rounds: She went to the butcher's For spareribs and suet, But found that some other Had beaten her lute. She said she would settle For sausage or liver, The butcher insisted He had none to give. She pleaded for pork chops... For meatballs... for mutton, The butcher said: "Lady, I just ain't got nutton!"

There is just too much truth in it to be funny; already too much truth. What may be on the way, with respect to the meat supply for civilians, is not pleasant to contemplate. There are too many boys in Washington in positions of authority who seem to feel that meat production has no place in war-time economy. They don't know, of course; still they are in position to do serious harm to the livestock industry. If ever that doggerel fully depicts the situation the country over, there will be an awakening that will jar the theorists to the heels. But in the meantime the damage will have been done.

Her corsage was rosebuds. She carried a white Bible with rosebud streamers, and wore a locket which was worn by her grandmother on her wedding day. Her slippers were brown suede.

The bridesmaid's dress was a pastel blue wool, very similar in fashion to the bride's. She wore a corsage of white mums.

The bridegroom was in full navy dress attire. His father wore a dark suit.

The bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother wore shoulder corsages, gifts of the bridegroom.

Following congratulations, a reception was held for relatives and a few close friends. The selection, "Because," a special favorite of the bride, was sung by Miss Miller.

A three-tier wedding cake with bride and sailor ornament on top and covered with blue anchors made of icing decorated the refreshment table. Peach and blue tapers were used. Cousins of the bride were waitresses and served refreshments.

Mrs. Everingham was graduated from Wakefield high school and attended Wayne State Teachers college. She was a successful teacher for two years. Recently she had been employed at the ticket office of the Southern Pacific railroad at Oakland, Cal.

NEIGHBORLINESS. The Sioux City Journal writes of practical neighborliness in the mid-west's farm area. Neighbors gather in mass to help a farmer who is sick or who suffers some other misfortune. In the spring his corn is planted, or later cultivated, or perhaps still later husked. If he is unable to plow his fields, an army of tractors and plows with men to handle them, assemble to do the job. Also farm women are on hand to prepare meals for hungry workers. Thus, a farm family is relieved of worry. Not only is the work done but consciousness of a sympathetic and helpful neighborhood has a stimulating influence. Probably nowhere in the world is real friendship expressed in more generous deeds than in farm communities. Such practical fellowship reflects fine civilization and supports high hopes.

HATRED.

Reducing hatred and fashioning a more tolerant world will be a big postwar task for churches, schools and writers. Hatred hurts the fellow who projects it quite as much as the fellow who is its victim. Often one who is disliked, does not know it. If he does, he thinks he is a martyr—the object of an injustice. The one who cultivates hatred, merely afflicts himself. He feels mean, and he invites wrath similar to what he aims at others. War is not conducive to peace-loving reflections or reactions. Therefore, when a peaceful social order returns, efforts redoubled to promote kindly tolerance will be necessary. If one cannot go the full length in loving his neighbor as he loves himself, he may go far enough in that direction to make a greatly improved world. Relief from scourging conflict will encourage humility and mellowed natures as stimulants to more agreeable and helpful relationships.

AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

Washington, D. C. October 21, 1943. The population of Washington is now 897,000 including the retail trading area of suburban Maryland and Virginia. The total population of what is known as greater Washington is 1,318,000. Washington stores are advertising butter burns. They are made of wood and have glass or plastic plungers. Many women have purchased them because there is a shortage of butter. Where they are going to get their whole milk or cream is a mystery. Anyway they are buying the churns and the stores are doing a land office business. Wyoming has but one congressman and is represented in the house by Frank Barrett, who was born in Omaha. The Nebraska delegation has invited Mr. Barrett to attend its weekly conferences. The normal price of alcohol is 50 cents a gallon. The war price is 85 cents a gallon. Experts in the rubber director's office say they are making rubber from petroleum by-products cheaper than they can make it from any other source. Rubber made from grain alcohol is most expensive, but there is a new formula from which it is claimed we can make seven pounds of rubber from one bushel of corn. Through that process we would have a residue of 15 pounds of high-protein feed per bushel of corn used, that would sell at a good price and reduce the cost of rubber made from grain to a point where we could compete with natural rubber.

Each year some strange character or characters come to Washington. They are unique in dress and manner. The latest is spectacular, bewiskered, corn cob pipe smoking Frank Gimlett, an old prospector clad in slough hat, overalls and prospector's boots. He says he is here to bring some common sense to the government. He wants all the WAVES and WACS sent home to learn how to cook and how to raise babies.

There are some people in town with inventions that they believe will win the war. One of them has an adaptation of the perpetual motion machine. Thousands of new inventions are suggested to the government. All of them are referred to the national inventors council where the good are sifted from the worthless. Believe it or not, 900 people in Washington are still on direct relief. They are registered as unemployed. Counties and states close to the District of Columbia choose to send their indigents to the District of Columbia and thus save themselves considerable expense.

The ways and means committee is at work on the new tax bill. The treasury department has asked for a measure which would increase annual revenues more than $10 billion. The republican minority membership of the committee proposed to cut the demand of the treasury in half and then pledge themselves to vote to reduce expenditures by five billion dollars a year. The minority members are of the opinion that only by eliminating unnecessary expenditures of billions can we save billions for American taxpayers.

Visitors who come to Washington can't quite understand the statue on the dome of the capitol. The figure is that of a lady, yet unlike a lady. The statue weighs about seven tons and has been looking down on the comings and goings of congress since 1863 and is known as "Liberty Armed."

Members of the house have been in many important conferences during the past week. They heard General Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army and his experts tell the inside story, good and bad, about the war on all fronts. They conferred with Marvin Jones about the war food situation. Republican members had a meeting with Wendell Willkie who made it plain he is anxious to run for the presidency. Also, members saw the duke and duchess of Windsor, who have been in town several days.

The so-called foreign refugees who live in Washington are doing very well. Many of the employees and officials of refugee governments have purchased beautiful homes in Washington.

Jan Masaryk, secretary of state of the Czechoslovakian refugee government which has its headquarters in London, is again in the United States. He is here on a diplomatic mission.

There were 1,146 American civilians building airports and bases on Wake Island when the Japanese fought side by side with the American marines to protect the island. Thirty-one of them came from Nebraska. Among them are Edwin D. Vernon John Hanson and Floyd A. Snyder of Wakeo and Hafnor H. Olson of Columbus. The latest word is that they are interned near Shanghai, China, by the Japanese, who claim they are prisoners of war. The dependents of these American civilians are being taken care of by the United States employees compensation commission.

The five senators back from their world-girdling trip continue to make "confidential" reports to members of the house and the senate. Much of the confidential material, however, soon shows up in the newspapers. One complaint of the senators is that perhaps we didn't make a good bargain in building air bases in foreign countries. Investigations regarding these complaints are now in progress. The senator's reports have advanced two other important questions. One is the extent of lend-lease operations and expenditure. Congress has no control over either. The authorizations for appropriations total over $60 billion. But congress can investigate and inform the public as to what is going on. It can inquire into the charges of the senators. It should do so. Lend-lease expenditures authorized will continue until the close of the war. If some proponents prevail, they may continue almost indefinitely after the war. The volume of the exports from our country far exceeds that of all other participating nations. But for the program Russia would not have been able to carry on its campaign so successfully. With all that can be claimed for the value of lend-lease, there is no reason why congress and the people should not be informed as to its operations. The other point driven home in the speeches of the senators is in regard to the immense supplies of gas and oil in Iran and other parts of western Asia which seem to be under control of British, Russian and American oil interests. That refineries on the Persian gulf are running at only 40 per cent of capacity while our own people are daily becoming shorter on gas rations, does not sit very well with the average man. Nor does there seem to be good reason why oil should be shipped 12,000 miles from our shores to refuel the Russian carrying war goods and equipment to the Russians and to the armed forces in India when there is so much available in Persia. This charge of the senators has brought prompt action. President Roosevelt confirms it by declaring that Britain will open its oil reserves and facilities in Iran to supply Mediterranean shipping. Why such action waited for the senators to open up the question is not so plain.

Christian Science Services

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, October 31.

The Golden Text is: "Let Israel hope in the Lord: for with the Lord there is mercy, and with him is plentiful redemption" (Psalms 130:7).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "A voice was heard upon the high places, weeping and supplications of the children of Israel: for they have perverted their way, and they have forgotten the Lord their God. Return, ye backsliding children, and I will heal your backslidings. Behold, we come unto thee, for thou art the Lord our God" (Jeremiah 3:21,22).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Sorrow for wrong-doing is but one step toward reform and the very easiest step. The next and great step required by wisdom is the test of our sincerity,—namely, reformation. To this end we are placed under the stress of circumstances. Temptation bids us repeat the offence, and we come in return for what is done. So it will ever be, till we learn that there is no discount in the law of justice and that we must pay the uttermost farthing" (p. 5).

Gets Own Spare Tire After Year

Riderless Horse Gets Help For Wounded Owner from Group of Workers.

A year ago R. B. Smith, Erie, Kans., turned in his sixth tire and received $3.50 from the government in war stamps. Recently, he was given approval for a new spare and bought one from an Erie dealer. It was the same one he had turned in. Price: $3.50—and it had been repaired.

At Smethport, Pa., a saddled, riderless horse trotted up to a group of well diggers and stood patiently while the men talked, puzzled. Finally one of them mounted into the saddle. The horse turned and galloped about a mile to where Norman Hull lay with a fractured leg. Hull, hurt in a fall, said he sent the horse for resturers.

Philadelphia pedestrians on Sanson street could not believe their eyes. Where a mounted patrolman had been a second before, there was just a hole in the pavement. Patrolman Clark Hull and his horse, Pal, were removed from a cellar two hours later, with the help of an S.P.C.A. ambulance, two fire trucks and a 10-ton crane.

As their part in the third war loan drive, five Seattle junior high school boys held an auction. The items, they asserted gravely, included Churchill's bow tie, Eleanor Roosevelt's baby tooth, and rivets from a Russian ship. Only the rivets were authentic—but the boys' auction netted $1125 in war bonds.

Louis W. Shouse of Kansas City said he was riding on a trolley bus which smashed into a car that had suddenly stopped. The bus driver bounced out, hopping mad, but returned grinning. "That was my own car," he explained to passengers. "I don't know what I'm going to do with dad. Last week it was two headlights!"

A skunk climbed under the hood of Shirle Howell's car at Boise, Idaho. He drove to the state fish and game department. Employees there weren't interested. Next stop was the fire department. Firemen, after a fire extinguisher failed to dislodge the kiddy, found a solution. Ammonia did it.

George H. Garfield, in a Salt Lake City hospital for severe injuries received when his refriger-erator was destroyed by exploding gas, reported: The motor was hurled through the ceiling; Mrs. Garfield was knocked through the kitchen door; gas fumes forced seven Garfield children to neighbor homes and the family cat was found under a bed dead.

Back from a vacation in the Great Smoky mountains, Ferdinand Schaefer, Indianapolis, conductor emeritus of the Indianapolis symphony orchestra, confessed that he had tickled a sleeping rattle snake with a branch from a tree. When asked why, he replied that he wanted to see what pitch its rattles were.

An aircraft warning post in Pennsylvania is still manned, despite war department orders dismissing all personnel. Peanuts, a little white dog who has kept plane spotters company since the post was organized, simply refuses to leave.

Asked by an interviewer for a brief description of Spokane, novelist Sinclair Lewis declared gravely: "The women are tall and the buildings are beautiful."

A merchant marine seaman, in New Jersey on a month's leave, applied for a new "A" gasoline ration book to replace one he lost. The local war and price ration board said he would have to advertise the loss before another could be issued. He placed the following ad in an Easton, Pa., paper: "Lost—in Mediterranean sea 'A' gas ration book. Horace A. Smith, 574 Congress Street, Philadelphia." Smith explained his ship was sunk by a torpedo.

PLAN YOUR WINTER EGG PROFITS NOW!

It takes a lot of planning and looking ahead to assure maximum profits throughout the entire winter. This is the third in a series of Poultry Management Check List Ads intended to help YOU make the most out of your poultry operations. Watch for ads which will follow.

Check List No. 2

Get Laying House Pullets Ready for Action

CHECK THE FOLLOWING SUGGESTIONS AGAINST YOUR POULTRY RAISING METHODS

- Give a Worm Treatment
Worms are robbers which can tear down production even before it gets a good start and the chances of your birds NOT being wormy (especially if they have been on range) are so small you cannot afford to run the risk of not worming. We recommend Dr. Salsbury's ROTA-CAPS for the individual bird treatment or if you prefer a flock treatment, use Dr. Salsbury's AVITON — both do an excellent job.
- Vaccinate to Step Up Resistance
One of the big problems facing your laying flock this fall and winter is colds and roup. A stitch in time now may save a lot of trouble later. That's why we recommend that, while the birds are being handled for Rota-Capping, they also be vaccinated with Dr. Salsbury's MIXED BACTERIN (Avian) Chicken Formula to help step up resistance to a number of germs which are nearly always found associated in cold and roup outbreaks.
- Treat for Lice
At the time you worm look for lice. By brushing the feathers back you easily see these body parasites and be completely convinced of the need for using Dr. Salsbury's NIC SAL on the roosts... easy to use and effective, too. Or, if you prefer, use Dr. Salsbury's LOUSE POWDER for dusting the birds.

REMEMBER---

We carry the complete line of Dr. Salsbury's poultry medicines, bacterins, and vaccines. We are in a position to advise you on all matters pertaining to poultry health. Bring your problems to us. The emblem at the right signifies our cooperation in the National Poultry Conservation Program.

Need to Equalize Available Labor

for war industry are required to secure release first from the local draft board. Such clearance must be made before any change.

Nebraska has had quite an exodus of men who went to other states for war jobs. People of this state are urged by Mr. Olson to fill jobs in Nebraska first before going elsewhere. This state asked the government to bring such industries here and it is only proper that Nebraskans help furnish them with the manpower they need.

Food processing plants are also essential and Mr. Olson urged the need for keeping them functioning to capacity.

The flow of labor must be regulated through the employment service so as to avoid congestion in some places and lack of help in others.

Kiwanians can do much to equalize manpower so that all essential industries can be supplied.

Here from New York.

Apprentice Seaman Harold Fitch of Schenectady, N. Y., here on a few days' visit, was a guest at Kiwanis Monday and spoke briefly of his work. The young man, who last year took quality tests, finished his eight months' pre-training. "An appeal to cooperate in the united war fund drive was read by Dean Clarence McGinn.

Mr. Sman was asked to notify the club of the competitive examination for Wayne postmastership soon and the men were asked to encourage applications by best possible candidates.

Music was furnished by high school students under the direction of Miss Genevieve Lundak. Patty Thompson sang a solo, "Pale Moon." The girls' sextet, including Margie McCullough, Bernice Peterson, Patty Thompson, Norma Powers, Carla Wright and Nancy Mims, gave "Singin'" and "The Lilac Trees."

Library News

Books can help more than anything else to further mutual understanding. That is the reason for observing British Book week in the United States this week. The public is cordially invited to come into the library and look over a display of British books arranged in book boxes owned by our library. A book that tells the truth about a country can be a passport to mutual friendship if it goes across the sea from one person to another. Many such books are worthwhile to read.

Visitors at the children's library this week were Mrs. Ray Aglor, jr., teacher of district 47 and her eight pupils. They spent an hour or more browsing among the books and looking at pictures.

A beautiful new book on Modern Fine Glass has been added to the fine arts collection at the library. It has very lovely illustrations and lovers of glassware will find it most interesting.

Here Is Your War, by Ernie Pyle, is another new book which will be much in demand. The film rights for this book were just recently purchased. Education for Freedom, by Robert M. Hutchins, president of Chicago university, is thought-provoking reading, not only to educators but to laymen as well. They Also Ran, by Stone, is an amusing account of the men who ran for president and were defeated. Kaiser Walks the Doctors, by Paul DeKruif, describes Kaiser's health plan. The Saint Steps In, by Charteris, is a new mystery. The American, by James Truslow Adams, is not another history but it is about what America has done to her people. What has made this queer animal, this American, the New Man as he has been called? The answers to these questions are important to Americans and to others at a time when the world's future lies so largely in American hands.

Successful Mission Flown By Bomber

"We Skip-Bomb the Japs" is the title of an article in the September 4 issue of the Saturday Evening Post which tells about a mission from the New Guinea station at which S. Sgt. Robert A. Merchant is located. S. Sgt. Novak who took the pictures is a member of the "Humble Abode," the name the Wayne youth and his pals give to their cabin on the island.

The article tells about the experiences the crew of a B-24 had in flying from the base to a strategic bay location 1,100 miles northeast to bomb a Jap ship. The writer describes the distance by plane as five cigarettes.

The plane crew found a mountain range which they had not expected but this did not hinder them, though it would have been a real barrier to a land army. Finally the coastal lines conformed to their chart and they saw in the harbor a Jap ship which appeared to be of official importance. After a miss or two, Jap zeros appeared for a "game of tag." More bombs were dropped and finally the death blow hit the ship. "A large slick of oil streamed up into the bay."

After finishing the important mission, the ship returned south and southwest to the base on the Gulf of Papua.

S. Sgt. Merchant writes that he and his pals have remodeled the "Humble Abode." They cut the rafters for the roof too short and had a time making them fit. One of the boys said he had flown over enemy territory many times without a scratch but nearly got killed in the remodeling job. The group finished the building, cleaned the house and oiled the floor to keep out ants.

Given Contract To Load Shells

The Q. O. Ordnance corporation, operators of the Cornhusker ordnance plant, Grand Island, Neb., have signed a contract with the war department to load shells for the army. Production is expected to start within 30 days. The shell loading will be in addition to existing bomb loading contracts with the war department.

Fulfillment of the contract is going to necessitate a greatly increased personnel. Hiring will start immediately for the new personnel required for this operation. A training program for new employees will be put in operation before the production starts, and all new employees will be paid at regular rates during the training period.

Lt. Col. Landon E. Angle, commanding officer of the Cornhusker ordnance plant, declared, "The additional contract granted the Q. O. Ordnance corporation and the necessary increase in personnel will give the people of Nebraska an added opportunity to serve directly in the war effort. I am sure that the people of the state will lend their cooperation to filling the additional labor needs and do their part as they have in the past in maintaining the Nebraska record of wholehearted assistance to their country's armed forces."

Granting of the new shell loading contract was announced just four weeks before the first anniversary of the start of production at the Cornhusker ordnance plant. It is urged that workers in non-essential industries, and both men, women, and young people, 18 years of age and over, who are physically able, apply for the many positions that are now open. Go to your nearest U. S. employment service, war manpower commission, for full details, or apply at the employment office on the area, west of Grand Island, Neb., about one mile north of Alda, Neb.

Workers engaged in essential industry during the past 60 days must present a statement of availability or referral card from the United States employment service.
