Kiwanian Ideals Stressed for Club

Reports of Gathering in Fremont Thursday Are Told to Group.

The high ideals and important objectives of Kiwanis and the seriousness with which members over the territory are pursuing these impressed Wayne's delegation going to the division meeting at Fremont Thursday. Prof. O. R. Bowen, lieutenant-governor, had charge of this meeting, reports of which were given for the local club Monday.

Prof. Bowen spoke on Kiwanis goals. He also mentioned that an increase of 50 is urged in membership in the division. This would allow Wayne club five, just the number leaving the group for service.

A. V. Teed complimented Prof. Bowen on the Fremont meeting. Dr. J. T. Anderson told that he is impressed with the sincerity and seriousness of Kiwanians in their work.

R. K. Kirkman reported that he found great inspiration in the Fremont meeting.

New Basis Shown in Rate Increase

Freight Rates Reflected in Loan Prices Made on Corn this Year.

The relatively greater increase in loan rates for 1943 corn grown in the eastern part of the corn belt as compared to the western areas of the belt reflects a new basis of rate calculation, according to Ray Roberts of the AAA. Wayne county loan rate is 82.

The new loan rates are scaled according to differential freight rates for west to east movements. The 1943 loan rates, as compared with 1942 rates, jumped more for Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, etc., than for Iowa and Nebraska.

Although the amount of corn placed under loan has fallen off in recent months of heavy wartime demands for loans to provide the farmer with an easily available source of cash for his crop until the time when he wants to sell or feed it, explains Mr. Roberts. Only about 52 million bushels from the 1942 crop went under loan, the smallest volume in several years. CCC corn stocks October 1, 1943, were only one million bushels, compared with 41 million bushels a year previous.

Individual Effort Is Seen as Need

Chamber of Commerce Has Election at Annual Meeting Tuesday.

Post-war planning based on individual enterprise rather than on government paternalism was stressed by John Latenser, Omaha architect, in speaking at Chamber of Commerce annual meeting Tuesday evening at Hotel Stratton.

The Chamber of Commerce, with its national connections, can be instrumental in helping return to normal after the war, Mr. Latenser pointed out. Rather than relying on government funds for development, the speaker urged that the group promote sound individual enterprise.

The speaker sees the advantage of government promotion in post office buildings, improved navigation facilities, better national highways, etc., but he feels that local improvements should be in charge of local people. He favored using the Chamber of Commerce organization to plan for such development in the post-war time.

The program opened with "America" and the invocation by Dr. Victor West. Prof. Russell Anderson sang a solo. The college trio, Ethel Jean and Wanda Olson and Jacqueline Heileberg, accompanied by Shirley Knapp, sang, Duane Schulz played a cornet solo, Patricia Sloan accompanying him.

Since the army unit favored the city by opening the holiday affairs and by presenting one of the important fair features, the Chamber of Commerce had officers as guests at the dinner. Capt. M. F. Rose, Lt. N. B. Starr, Lt. A. Share, Lt. Wayne Ralston, Lt. J. M. Mason and J. A. Gilliam were present. The army men as well as the 17 new members were recognized by Mr. McNatt.

Noble KIWANIS clubs have high objectives for 1944, predicated on their fundamental objects. For the coming year it proposes these endeavors:

- "Speed Victory with a win-the-war project in every club.
- "Ehlist every Kiwanian as an active participant in some phase of the war program.
- "Exert our influence as Kiwanians to insure a just and lasting peace.
- "Emphasize the good will and understanding between Canada and the United States.
- "Provide community leadership to reduce juvenile delinquency and safeguard the moral health of youth and the home.
- "Rededicate ourselves to the support of churches in their spiritual aims, public affairs, youth, agriculture, and higher business and professional standards as a major citizenship responsibility.
- "Publicize freedom of opportunity and private enterprise as fundamental to the democratic way of life."
- These objects adopted and set forth by the Kiwanis organization, cannot fail to have a salutary and stimulating influence:
- "To give primacy to the human and spiritual rather than to the material values of life.
- "To encourage the daily living of the Golden Rule in all human relationships.
- "To promote the adoption and the application of higher social, business and professional standards.
- "To develop, by precept and example, a more intelligent, aggressive, and serviceable citizenship.
- "To provide through Kiwanis clubs a practical means to form enduring friendships, to render altruistic service and to build better communities.
- "To cooperate in creating and maintaining that sound public opinion and high idealism which make possible the increase of righteousness, justice, patriotism and good will."

Pearl Harbor TUESDAY was the anniversary of Japanese perfidy. The treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor caught the United States ill prepared for war. It was the culmination of events that pointed unmistakably to another world conflagration. Following black December 7, 1941, plans to overthrow aggressor nations moved in quick succession. The day marked a speed-up in training men and turning out implements of war. Millions have joined military ranks, and billions have been spent to meet the challenge of powerful foes.

In two years mounting war production has exceeded expectations, and the defensive has plainly shifted to enemy forces. Italy surrendered, and Mussolini, mad egoist, is somewhere, doubtless groaning "Of all sad words," etc. Nazi autocrats are headed in the same direction, and they know it. They must know Italy's fate is fast catching up with them.

The Jap general who said he would arrange peace terms in the White House, is luckily dead. His successors are probably less confident. The Nipponese idea of world supremacy has been shrinking rapidly. If the Japs who survive, are permitted to retain original insular possessions, they may consider themselves fortunate. Their evident plan to rule not only inhabitants of the southwest Pacific but all mankind everywhere has been given a sharp setback. Their ambitions are clearly on the way out.

While the vast resources of the United Nations are being poured into increased production, enemy supplies are dwindling. It is only a question of time—and we hope not a long time—when the Pearl Harbor outrage will be avenged and self-determination will be restored to all nations.

Growing Problems NEWSPRINT scarcity is a serious problem, especially in metropolitan newspaper plants. In order to meet rationing requirements the Miami, Florida, Herald says it is forced to eliminate all advertising temporarily.

In connection with the untoward fate that has overtaken many rural weeklies, spoken of as "war casualties," we were interested in a rather sentimental editorial which appeared recently in the Des Moines Register. It pointed out how the fellow who has left his home town for better or worse, always eagerly awaits arrival of the accustomed home weekly. It has become a vital link between his life and old-time memories. Suddenly it folds up, and a cherished tie is broken.

The political temperature is beginning to rise, and many are the speculations concerning party and candidate likelihoods. Columnist David Lawrence who leans far away from the new deal, thinks many disagreeing views within republican ranks are strengthening the president's chances for renomination and reelection. Frank R. Kent, another columnist, expresses the belief that the president's influence is waning and that his evident inability longer to control congress is a reflection of popular feeling. Gallup polls which may or may not be altogether dependable, indicate about an even break at this time between new dealers and anti-new dealers. It is plain that republicans must harmonize differences—usually trivial and often imaginary—and present a solid front to win.

The prospect that each state will be required to provide ways for soldiers to vote in next year's elections follows action aimed in that direction by the United States senate. A plan was launched to authorize the federal government to set up machinery for soldier voting, but the senate decided in favor of making it the duty of the states. Everybody wants the soldiers in camps in this country and abroad to exercise the electoral franchise, and the only question involved is how they may do so with fewest difficulties.

Capt. Rose of the Wayne aviation detachment informs the Herald that Christmas is the only legal holiday recognized by the army, but that holiday liberties were granted here on Thanksgiving day in the interest of public relations. The officer expresses an eagerness to knit together close social relationships between the aviation unit and communities of this area.

Extremely genial sunshine this week leads one to wonder how soon a severe variety will whip down from the north and bite into exposed cuticles. It is well to relish mild elements today, and not expect the unlikely to continue long.

So many contradictions come out of Washington that an often puzzled public must wonder if there is an understood policy to avoid consistency and common sense.

Satisfaction in Christmas giving is reflected in this preliminary shopping period. It is a task to pick out suitable gifts, but the experience is evidently relished.

After all other sources of taxation have been exhausted, congress may be expected to turn to the sales tax which, after all, is the fairest kind of tax.

Soldiers' Vote.
(Norfolk Daily News)

Of the 11,000,000 or 12,000,000 soldiers and sailors in uniform by next November, it is estimated that at least 9,000,000 will be eligible to vote. If, as was done during the Civil war, the age restrictions for men in the service are eliminated, there will be many more.

In 1940 Mr. Roosevelt's majority over Mr. Willkie was only 5,000,000 and in the one-sided election of 1932 the Roosevelt majority was only 7,000,000. So 9,000,000 soldier and sailor votes can have a mighty lot to say about who shall be the next president.

This is the reason congress is slow in deciding on the form of the bill now before it to provide the way of taking the vote. The Republicans are naturally suspicious of any plan which will put too much authority in the hands of an appointive board which might easily be partisan. They propose to guard against the undue use of political propaganda by government agencies.

There is nothing wrong, as some commentators seem to think, in setting up safeguards such as are commonly used in civilian elections against undue influence over the soldier voter or improper handling of his ballot after it is cast. The right to vote a free and secret ballot and to have it counted as he marked it, is as sacred to the man who is risking his life for freedom, as it is to the civilian back home. Whether he will vote in larger numbers for the commander-in-chief or against him is no part of congress' business. Its job is to give him a fair and honest chance to express himself.

What Is War Work?
(Omaha Journal-Stockman)

It is not necessary to be engaged directly in the production of war materials to be doing war work. The food producer is obviously doing war work of the first importance. But his wife is doing war work, too, when she fills her cellar with canned foods to release factory production for war needs. It is easy to see that such efforts fit into the war picture. But those doing work and performing services that at first glance seem entirely unrelated to the war, that contribute only to civilian life, may be and probably are doing war work, too. For civilian activities must be served to the fullest extent possible to provide for those preparing war materials. It all dovetails together. The work of civilians provides for the war workers, and the work of the war workers maintains the forces in the field. A break at any point would handicap the prosecution of the war. So just about everybody can think of himself as being engaged in war work as indeed he is. That is why it is so important that every man and woman do the work at hand with full energy and skill. America is a land of workers, and the progress of the war reflects that.

In a Nutshell.
(Nation's Business)

Webster's dictionary, by the way, has three definitions of enterprise. It lists as synonyms "undertaking," "venture," "essay," and "attempt"—especially one which involves activity, courage, energy or the like; a bold, arduous or hazardous attempt; an important undertaking—as a warlike enterprise."

The second definition is "willingness or eagerness to engage in what requires boldness, energy or the like."

Third and last of the definitions is the single word, "management." In Noah Webster's time, as today, management, which wasn't enterprising didn't manage long, and it had to have freedom—in addition to willingness and eagerness—in order to be bold.

NEWS SOURCES.

Publication ahead of release dates by some foreign news agencies has strengthened admiration for the unwavering loyalty of the American press, if it needed strengthening. It draws attention again to the fine, dependable service given by American editors and reporters. These reporters are scattered around the world, and they are found subjecting themselves to the severest hardships and perils of war to carry out their responsibility to their publications and to the public. But when they are asked to withhold news until a certain specified time in support of the war effort, they can be depended on to do it. They and the newspapers they represent are eminently deserving of the confidence they receive.

WASTEFUL EXCESS.

The Christian Science Monitor which is usually staid, was thrown out of accustomed balance one day last week when it received three identical communications from one Washington bureau—the civil aeronautics administration. That newspaper notes with evident indignation the waste of time, postage and paper involved. While the Monitor says it would not abolish overnight all bureaus set up in Washington the last 10 years, it would have a bulletin board and know what its left hand is doing. The newspaper doubts if even the erudite aviation editor could understand the contents of the communication—at least he could not use more than one copy. The Monitor suggests modification in the bulk and character of printed matter circulated to enlighten the public.

AS SEEN BY KARL STEFAN

Washington, D. C. December 1, 1943
William Phillips of Fremont, formerly an aviation cadet, was recently discharged from the naval medical center in Washington following a long illness. He is returning to his Fremont home and will finish his college education.

The Truman committee is looking into the 100 million dollar Canal oil project in Canada. The project will be paid for by American taxpayers and then revert to Canada. Money spent on it has been spent without authorization by congress. Some of the generals mentioned in this Canadian enterprise were also connected with the Pentagon war-palace upon which 78 millions were spent, 40 miles of paved streets were built and 27 bridges erected in "beautifying" the grounds about the gigantic building.

It was contemplated that after the war the Pentagon building would be used as storage space for great quantities of official records. It is more recently reported that the buildings may house a post-war international relief set-up.

The American embassy building in Berlin is reported to have been entirely destroyed in the Berlin bombings. The building once housed all of our agencies located in Berlin. Shortly before the war it was remodeled. The remodeling cost was around $50,000 due to the ability of Raymond Geist of Ohio, an able member of our foreign service staff then in Berlin, to purchase German marks at a low rate. The Germans wanted American dollars. By buying marks cheap, Geist was able to save the United States about $100,000. When the war is over, a new structure will be erected at an estimated cost of a million dollars.

Dr. Leopold Kour of Austria is one of the many interesting refugees in Washington. He likes to tell Americans that he came from the town from which came also the beautiful Christmas hymn "Silent Night." His home town is Oberdorf. He says the folks there like to talk about the parish priest, Josef Mohr, and Franz Gruber who composed the music and wrote the words of the Yuletide classic.

The sound-projection section of the library of congress is making many records for use in instructing our soldiers, sailors and marines in 40 different languages and dialects.

Senator Butler's senate report on his recent Central and South American trip will be printed as a senate document. The report has stirred diplomatic Washington. It will help members of the committee on appropriations to further reduce unnecessary spending in the lands south of us without impairing the war effort.

Representation allowances for our foreign service men allowances for entertainment. That part of the appropriation always brings heated debate. The house cut these entertainment funds last year by 20 thousand dollars. The senate put that amount back in the bill.

Shortage of parts and new machinery may cut snow removal work in Nebraska this winter as much as 50 per cent. Many other states will be affected. The Third district member is urging the war production board to help alleviate this possible danger. There is a great shortage of snow removal machinery the same as other varieties of machinery are short, but an improved distribution of available units is being sought.

The White house has seemed very quiet recently. When that happens, most Washingtonians know that the president is out of town and that something "big" is brewing.

Members of the house have held numerous meetings during the past week to consider farm machinery and protein feeds. New rulings on the distribution of proteins worry midwest members. They fear that much of the feed needed by midwest farmers may be moved elsewhere. They are asking that protein distribution be made on the basis of livestock units.

Present indications are that Charles Halleck of Indiana will be selected to succeed the late William Ditter as chairman of the national republican congressional committee.

Major Wellensick of Nebraska City was the guest of the Nebraska delegation at their regular breakfast conference last week. He was the law partner of the late Congressman George Heinke and he has just returned from the Italian war front.

You might not know it, but you owe $1,203.71. So does your wife and for that matter each one of your children. For that was the share of the public debt of every superiority in air-power, there will be more and greater successes.

Included in these reports of war-plane production is one as to the turning out in numbers, new and superior bombing planes with a range of 4,600 miles without refueling, and a carrying capacity much greater than that of planes now bombing Europe. War plans are not divulged in advance, but the radio broadcasts from Japan indicate that the Jap war lords have an inkling of what is coming, and coming soon. Our Pacific forces are doing a wonderful job with such equipment as they have, but the added power of such super-bombers will hasten their fine progress.

"God the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, December 12. The Golden Text is: "The Lord is faithful, who shall establish you, and keep you from evil" (I Thessalonians 3:3).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength. Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall, but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint" (Isaiah 40:28-31).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The divine Mind that made man maintains His own image and likeness. . . The relations of God and man, divine Principle and idea, are indestructible in Science, and Science knows no lapse from nor return to harmony, but holds the divine order or spiritual law, in which God and all that He creates are perfect and eternal, to have remained unchanged in its eternal history" (pp. 151, 471).

Thomas C. Williams, almost 82, resident of Carroll vicinity for more than half a century, died at his home a half mile north of town about 12:30 Sunday morning. Mr. Williams, who lived alone, had been in town about a week earlier. Martin Peters noticed he was having difficulty in walking and took him home. Since then Mr. Peters, M. I. Swihart, D. J. Davis and others had been taking turns caring for him and tending to stock on his place.

Funeral rites were conducted Tuesday at 3 at Carroll Methodist church with Rev. C. G. Stevens officiating. Gable & Neely had charge of committal at the cemetery here.

Mr. Williams owned and operated a farm southwest of Carroll in the early days. Later he traded this for the town property which is now the bank and H. L. Brede-meyer store. Still later he sold the town properties and bought an 80 north of town, living there since. It is thought deceased had some relatives in Wales and in New York state.

A few inquiries are being received by County Agent Walter R. Harder from farmers in regard to winter seeding of brome for pasture and hay. Winter seeding has not been generally recommended in Nebraska. However, a few farmers have winter seeded brome and secured good stands. Winter seeding of brome has one disadvantage, in particular, compared to the early fall or spring seeding of brome. That is that alfalfa cannot be seeded in the winter. Alfalfa is quite essential in brome seeding in order to get the greatest hay and seed yield. It also lengthens the life of the brome. However, a few farmers may have a small area along a creek or a pasture lot or possibly some field border that they have time to seed at this time that otherwise they might not find the necessary time to seed.

Winter seeding of brome should be done after the first of December and before the ground freezes too hard to till. A few farmers have drilled the seed shallow or broadcast the seed with a light disking afterwards, along with some harrowing or packing with a roller to hold the seed securely in the soil.

Farmers who are seeding larger fields probably will secure more favorable results with the recommended early fall seedings and the extra early spring seeding. Spring seeding of brome should be made before the seeding of small grains.

edore L. Kling Views
Farm Security Help
As Very Valuable.

Wayne county farmers' conditions now, compared with a few years ago, show great improvement. That is the opinion of Theodore L. Kling, member of Wayne county farm security committee, based on records of FSA repayments and progress by those farm families who were without operating funds or adequate credit a few years ago. Mr. Kling is a farmer living near Hoskins.

Many of these families have now regained solid financial footing and have repaid their FSA loans, and others are well on their way to greater stability with their loans at least on a current basis. They are doing an excellent job of food production and are planning on still greater production next year. Mr. Kling pointed out that most of them probably would have been forced out of farming in the bad years if they had not been able to obtain necessary financing, planning and tenure assistance through the Farm Security administration.

Since the war has put it square up to the farmers to produce more and more food to clinch a full victory, Mr. Kling said, farm security in this county has centered its efforts on making it possible for the smaller farm operators, and those needing better tenure arrangements or more funds than their sources can supply, to expand to their full capacity and utilize all available manpower on their farm setups. This is being done through loans and supervisory operation, and because of the farmers' patriotic desire to make every foot of ground and every acre of manpower productive. Many farmers now doing a good job of farming could not have done so without the equipment, feed, livestock, farm power and so on that was made available through FSA, according to Mr. Kling.

A big need for small-farmer financing through county farm security still exists, Mr. Kling says, because many farmers are unable to put all their available farm equipment, labor and land to work because of a lack of low-interest long-term financing they must have. He said funds are now available at the FSA office for loans of this kind. The local committee, he said, is in position to help County FSA Supervisor Schaf place these funds to best advantage.

Butchering Hogs Is Now Allowed

A new ruling of OPA allows farmers to slaughter on their own farms any hogs owned by them until February 17, 1944. Meat from such slaughter may be sold or otherwise transferred without securing a permit or license, but ration points must be collected in accordance with prevailing OPA regulations, according to Dale Cress, area supervisor, of Norfolk. This temporary suspension of regulations pertains to hogs only, and in no way affects slaughter restrictions on other classes of livestock. Mr. Cress adds: Farm slaughterers are asked to contact their local war price and rationing boards for information regarding wholesale and retail point values of pork.

Mrs. Heine reported on production, telling that the chapter has a call for 432 more kits. About 800 of these previously had been completed here. The Red Cross furnishes materials for the bags and invites organizations and individuals to supply money to fill them at a cost of $1 each. A shipment sent this week includes 200 pairs of scarves, 35 lap robes, 50 convalescent robes, two dozen hospital shirts, 15 dozen bedside bags and five dozen icebag covers. The August shipment consisted of 900 kits, 18 light convalescent robes, nine light pajamas, 36 hospital shirts, 48 convalescent lap robes, 19 ditty bags for the army, 25 ditty bags for the navy, 39 hospital tray cloths, 24 ice bag covers, 36 bed pan covers, 129 bedside bags, 36 crutch pillows and 92 crutch pillow covers.

The latest unit of knitting finished under the direction of Mrs. Noakes, consists of 55 army sweaters, 30 army helmets, 10 army mufflers and 10 pairs of wristlets. The chapter has 25 pounds of army yarn and 25 pounds of navy yarn to be used for garments.

Appreciates Sweater

Wm. W. Pranger of Fort Belvoir, Mo., in a letter to Wayne county Red Cross chapter November 26, expresses appreciation for a pullover sweater which was made here and which he received last spring when he was a private at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. "Every time I have worn it, and those times have been many, I have meant to write to you and assure you how much the army appreciates your fine work. Almost all soldiers have one of these sweaters and they are put to very good use. I hope these few lines convey my deep sense of gratitude for your splendid organization. As an officer I have had innumerable examples of your invaluable work."

Library News

The Christmas decorations and the tree in the basement room have been causing favorable comment among the children. It is hard for adults to put themselves in the mood this year but the children remind us that to them Christmas is still a very important day.

Two new novels were received at the library this week. They are Journey in the Dark, by Martin Flavin, and Taps for Private Tussie, by Jesse Stuart. These are both outstanding books. The first one, Journey in the Dark, is the Harpers prize novel for 1943-44. It is the same type of novel as Marquand's So Little Time. In a sensitive and full-dimensioned portrayal of American life, Martin Flavin has created a memorable character. By turns admirable, pitiable, tough, noble, weak, futile and brilliantly effective, a lonely man going nowhere in the dark. Sam Braden, the main character, mirrors thousands like him who have put their familiar stamp upon the American way of life. To explain this average man who had wanted success above everything, and who achieved success above everything, and yet who never escaped from the prison of his loneliness, Martin Flavin takes the reader back to the friendly, democratic world that existed along the Mississippi in the 80's, to the influences which shaped the boy and fixed the pattern of the man. The story of this man's life is, in a way, the story of America—a statement of its values.

Taps for Private Tussie, by Jesse Stuart, is a rousing, hilarious, pathetic and wonderful story. The action flows swift and sure out of Stuart's easy and flavorful prose. Soldier Kim Tussie's death brings his widow $10,000 in insurance money, which grandpa promptly takes over. We see what happens when a destitute and lazy clan comes into sudden wealth. The author tells it in a way that will make every reader a member of the high-spirited Tussie clan from the first page to the last.

kins and 28 in Carroll with Mrs. Ed. Meese and Mrs. Madge Bardsley in charge.

First aid and life saving classes have been conducted by the chapter but instructors in these branches are now serving the army unit here.

Home Service Work

Home service work of the chapter increases daily. Messages have been transmitted to prison camps and to territory under nazi control. Boys in camps and on battle fronts in all parts of the globe have been contacted for delivery of important messages. One boy was brought from the Aleutians and another from the south Pacific because of serious illness in their families. The Red Cross has loaned small amounts of money to soldiers needing help in emergencies. This department of the Red Cross keeps a file of the location of all service units and revises this at regular intervals. This enables the chapter to contact a service man in short order. Prof. Parke reported on this activity.

Junior Red Cross is functioning in schools, and materials made the past year have been shipped.

A report made by J. C. Carhart showed a balance of $2,121.60 in the Red Cross account and $1,593.75 invested in government bonds. Receipts the past year and balance on hand a year ago totaled $6,881.84. The main income was the $5,750.45 from the roll call. The sum of $188.95 came in for kits. Disbursements to the national organization, for home nursing, first aid, supplies, etc., totaled $5,748.94 for the year.

Look for Big Quota

Wm. Beckenhauer, roll call chairman, looks for a quota of $7,290 for next spring's drive. Prof. Bowen and Mr. Berridge were named to audit the chapter records.

Chicken Canning Business Starts From Gift Made

When Mrs. Alma Peters of near Norfolk, sent a can of fried chicken to her cousin, Lloyd Rohrke of Chicago, formerly of Hoskins, little did she dream that the gift would lead her into a canning business which extends from Michigan to California. This year Mrs. Peters has sold 1,500 cans of chicken. The Rohrkes 12 years ago served the chicken to Chicago friends who liked it so well that they asked Mrs. Peters to sell them some. Soon Mrs. Peters was asked to sell canned chicken to Michigan grocers. Some of the Chicago folks moved to California, and the demand from the west coast started.

Mrs. Peters buys chicks from a commercial hatchery and raises her own fowls. When they reach the fry stage, she starts canning them to be served either cold or hot. Her canning factory is in her basement where she has two stoves. She kills and dresses the chickens one day and cans them the next. She puts up 10 at a time and often cans 40 in one day. Pieces are fried in deep fat in a large pan in which she uses butter and lard of her own making. While one panful is frying, she packs the ones already cooked. Mrs. Peters is careful to see that drum sticks and wings fit perfectly and the gizzard is placed on top. Clear gravy from the pan is poured over the fried pieces and the cans are then sealed and cooked for an hour in a pressure cooker. Labels show that 2 1/2 pounds of fried chicken are in each can.

Mrs. Peters does not can the backs and necks. She strips the meat off these and makes chicken soup which she also cans and sells over the country. She fries livers and hearts separately and cans them for special customers.

Orders for Mrs. Peters' chicken products have reached a demand which she cannot fill.

In addition to her chickens, Mrs. Peters raised 150 ducks which she canned this season.

Mrs. Peters takes her children to and from school and helps Mr. Peters with milking, besides doing her usual home tasks.

Discovery Here Arouses Interest

Remains of Prehistoric Animals Are Found in Northeast Area.

From the Wayne Herald for December 15, 1927:

That a radium mine has probably been discovered on the Simon Lessman farm northeast of Wayne is attracting widespread interest. Samples have been sent to schools of mines and reports are awaited. A stationary flame of light rising from the ground on nights when atmospheric conditions were favorable led to the discovery. Neighbors noticed the light and notified Mr. Lessman who started to investigate. The spot from which the light rises is more or less wooded, but in the midst of the trees is a small area on which no vegetation grows. Samples were taken from the soil at this place. Experiments were started. Mr. Lessman placed some of the soil on the sore shoulder of a work horse and the sore soon healed. A poultice was applied on a bump on another horse and the animal was turned out to pasture. In a week the bump had disappeared. A man, employed on the Lessman farm placed some of the soil on a torn finger with the same healing results. Some of the soil was placed in a bag and water run through it and members of the family found the water stimulating for drinking.

Overseas Papers Bring Interesting Items from Abroad

A pony copy of Time magazine, British edition of The Yank and copies of London dailies which have shrunk to four-page sheets because of the paper shortage are interesting publications sent from England by Lt. Leonard W. Martens.

The pony edition of Time is a miniature of the regular Time magazine, about six by eight inches and printed for members of the U. S. armed forces overseas. Editorial content is unchanged from the regular edition. In bulk it is distributed without charge, in some cases by the publishers and in other cases by special services.

The Yank pictures an American corporal in Italy sharing his soup with two tiny hungry Italian children. Along with this is news of precision bombing in which the Schweinfurt ball-bearing plant and the Focke-Wulf factory at Mariburg, were destroyed.

"No matter what you think of Joe Goebbels, his propaganda agencies are one of your worst enemies," an article in The Yank warns. "The power of the Luftwaffe is being broken. The Panzers are being smashed back in White Russia and southern Europe. The U-boat is being smashed. But PK is almost as snarlingly powerful and effective as it was at the beginning of the war. It is holding the German fighting front and home front together. KP means Propaganda Korps or Propaganda Kompanien (companies). It is a regular part of the German army, its men are regular soldiers, and they are dangerous."

As well as the seriousness of war, the boys see the funny side too, as revealed by The Yank. One picture in Italy shows the statue of a goddess holding a wire for a field telephone. "Even a goddess can do her bit," the caption reads. A cartoon pictures men in the desert with the officer giving the command to "head for cover." Another shows a soldier with a broken arm telling his mom that "it" was neither Bizerte nor Attu but the upper bunk at Fort Brooksing, S. D.

American women who have thought that rationing might help them lose weight, might be interested in the note in the London Daily Mirror which tells that wartime rationing has not made English women lose. Results are records of tests made for more than 3,000 men and an equal number of women.

The British dailies that used to print hundreds of pages are now four-page sheets with news of the world condensed. These papers carry advertising on front pages as well as inside.

Building Bridges Specialty of Group

Pvt. Melvin Jenkins of Carroll, is one of 27 Nebraska soldiers in an armored engineers unit in England training on pre-invasion program of Europe. This unit can throw bridges across rivers and streams by the Braille system.

With the moon blacked out by clouds and with their faces darkened with mud, these men erect bridges that can support the heaviest tanks and vehicles of the armored forces. In a recent test the group began construction of a timber bridge at midnight. Steep grades on each side of the stream complicated the problem, and it was so dark that the man carrying one end of a log could not see the fellow at the other end. But by 4 a. m. the bridge was completed and 30-ton tanks were rumbling across the bridge.

Another specialty of this group is pontoon bridges. With small pumps they inflate rubber floats which are lashed together to form the foundation for bridges capable of holding the heaviest vehicles.

CHURCHES

At Christmas Time.

Mrs. Ernest Elder of Winside, sends the following message of comfort for the Christmas season: Those who have gone where many mansions are Will come again to houses of the earth, Will come again down dusk blue corridors In that still hour when Little Christ had birth. On that kind day when in His mother's arms He lay surrounded by sweet simple things, That day on which through all His growing years His mother told Him of star-guided kings, And while she laid the supper board for three And night was candle merry in that room, Though darkness dimmed the Galilean shore And on the waters lay a silent gloom, Yes, on that day, those who have gone to Him, Will come again to earth for He will know It is a home loved day in houses there. And He will understand their wish to go. Then let there be no grief in any heart Those who have loved us well, those we hold dear, They who have gone, they will return to us To share the well remembered Christmas cheer. Let us be glad with them as they are glad For each will come his old accustomed way. Eyes we thought closed, hands stilled and voices hushed Will share our joy in life on Christmas day.

A stomach pump fixed Frank up again, and Mrs. Boholl had something to add to the letter.

It's nice work if you can get it. An ad in a Boston newspaper reads: "Man wants job, 39 years, 3A. No hard work, and chance for advancement."

Who hunted what?—At Garden City, Kan., Ben Grimsley, looking for geese, tried George Anderson's farm. A low-flying goose bowled him over and broke his glasses.
