

Center in Downtown Wayne Ready to Open — Radio Spieler Advises — One-Time Speaker in Wayne — Hear Griswold Tonight — Small Town Business — Fixing Responsibility.

The downtown social center for sojourning aviation students is ready to blossom into reality. Chairman M. L. Ringer has led in directing plans, and he has found most satisfactory cooperation.

A free show, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce at the Gay theatre Friday afternoon will introduce opening of the center. On the following day, Saturday, the newly fitted quarters will be ready to welcome soldier boys and their friends.

This undertaking will not in the least interfere with the generously supported center. The Baptist church, it is believed both are important contributors to the morale of the aviation students.

As suggested by the Herald some weeks ago, permanent social headquarters, centrally located and adequately equipped, for the convenience of farmers and other visitors may well be included in postwar planning.

The radio speller who recently advised people to conserve by wearing old clothes, reminds us that clothing merchants must have demand for their goods to meet increased taxes and stand up under an enlarged cargo of other cost burdens.

It is doubtful if many persons in rural communities, like Wayne, are over-dressed or are disposed to flaunt latest fashion whims. They dress well enough to be comfortable and unnoticeable, avoiding either distasteful extreme.

The death of Ida M. Tarbell at 86 reminds us that she spoke at the Teachers college in Wayne a number of years ago. A book treating of the life of Abraham Lincoln was her first basis for literary distinction.

Besides serving the public and keeping in repair and able to keep afloat, the average small business has its nervous system frequently twisted and torn by surprise attacks from sources that could not be anticipated or controlled.

Walter Locke, columnist, wrote about a fellow who took himself to a secluded spot for self-examination before penning a New Year's letter, and following communion with himself, he switched to this: "The only thing that's really wrong with the world is me."

Christmas Day in Pacific Area Unusual One

"A few lines after a hard day's work and a brief pause for this holy evening," writes S. Sgt. Robert Merchant to the Earl Merchants Christmas eve from New Britain to which island he was recently transferred from New Guinea.

"This Christmas is much different, no snow, hotter than our July 4 days and an evening which seems as though it will never cool off. There are no pipeorgans, no orchestras or choirs singing Christmas hymns, but an accordion far off in the distance, which some soldier is playing, giving a few Christmas hymns and a live spirit."

S. Sgt. Merchant tells of the tremendous task of moving his outfit to the new location. "We worked straight through two days and a night packing, typing, loading and still operating up to the last minute. Can you imagine packing up hundreds of farmers packing their equipment and moving by plane. These are small comparisons. When we move, we move fast."

"Our Humble Abode we left behind and certainly hated to leave it. I am sure we will never have another so permanent. The new home is called Jungle Inn and is certainly adapted and fitted for the name. We have it fixed up as nice as possible, but with such a short time and being so busy, we just have a bunk in which to sleep."

"Our Christmas dinner will consist of corned beef, or beef stew, so I ask that you eat plenty of turkey for me. We are not complaining even if we are tired and miss our steaks and turkey as we know that each move is a step closer to home and that the Nips are well on the run."

"My friend, Lt. Smeltzer, and Lt. McKinnis, the pilots about whom I wrote you, are leaving for the states. Their whole crew baled out of a plane and were lost 25 days in the jungle. McKinnis is from Cherokee, Ia., and if possible might stop in and see you. The youth explains that this group was pictured recently in Life magazine. They used parachutes to make cross-bone signs which led to their rescue."

Harold D. Wilson Speaks in Wayne

Public Is Invited to Attend Union Meeting Sunday At Auditorium.

Harold D. Wilson, who won the colorful title of "Three Gun" while federal prohibition administrator. U. S. department of justice, is invited to speak at a union fact-finding, fact-faciling conference in Wayne city auditorium Sunday evening, January 16, at 8 o'clock.

This is a Wayne county meeting and is one of similar gatherings throughout the state. Wayne high school band will supply music.

Mr. Wilson is state executive director of the allied dry forces of Nebraska. "It is not the purpose of the allied dry organization," states Mr. Wilson, "to inject the national prohibition issue into these crucial war days, but we are unalterably opposed to the constantly increasing sales promotion activities of the liquor barons. We charge the traffickers in intoxicating beverages with unconscionable profit-motivated efforts to capitalize the increased spending licentiousness of war."

"Intoxicating beverages are at best non-essential luxuries. They do not belong in the category of food or essentials and certainly should be subject to all the rationing restrictions applied to other commodities."

Passes at Home East of Wayne

Rites Will Be Conducted for Mrs. Henry C. Nelson At Church Today.

Mrs. Henry C. Nelson, who had been in failing health since late summer, passed away at her home east of Wayne Monday morning, January 10, at 6 o'clock, aged 75 years, 6 months and 1 day. In spite of the best care in Omaha and Wayne, she was unable to regain her health. Mr. Nelson took her home from Wayne last Thursday.

Mrs. Lloyd Hugelman and Miss Priscilla Sandahl will sing "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Going Home." Interment will follow in Wakefield cemetery.

Mrs. Nelson's maiden name was Amanda Viola Larson. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Larson and was born northwest of Wakefield, July 9, 1868. She was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith. Her marriage to Henry C. Nelson took place at Wakefield, February 27, 1918, and just a year ago the Nelsons observed their silver anniversary. They had lived on the Nelson home farm east of Wayne since their marriage.

Mrs. Nelson leaves her husband, three sons, Robert, Willis and Harold, a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Nelson, and one grandson, Roger Nelson. She is survived by one brother, John E. Rains Cause Flood

"We had a rain last evening that compared with the Johnston, Pa., flood. We haven't been here long enough to get our tents built up and keep us well preserved from the rain. We just sat up in bed and watched the water rush through the tent like the Mississippi when it is on one of its rampages. I watched my shoes (gun boots) float out of the door. Now you know that there was lots of force and water to move those big G. I. shoes of mine."

"You would have laughed at the captain's wearing a pair of hip boots last night. The boots were nearly as big as he. One of the boys hurried and unpacked a camera and some bulbs and took a picture."

"This is about the hottest place we have been so far. Almost afraid to set a thermometer out as all of the mercury might run out over the top."

In the letter December 28 S. Sgt. Merchant says that "Christmas day was just another day with plenty of beef stew, or corned beef, but we didn't mind at all. We did have our hearts set on a good turkey dinner, but this sudden move sort of stopped everything."

The Wayne young man mentions that some Christmas packages and mail reached him in New Guinea but much mail has been delayed by the move.

FIGURING OUT TAX FORMS IS TOP JOB FOR COMING WEEKS

PEOPLE have been busy since January 1 with invoicing and getting affairs in shape for the new twelvemonth. Perhaps figuring out income, withholding and social security tax schedules will cause the biggest headache during coming weeks. Individuals may understand well the lines to which they are accustomed, but they are not often familiar with the involved tax problems handed out by Washington experts. They must act within a certain time, and they must have the right answers with the right amount of cash to avoid annoying come-backs. Another more or less disturbing nightmare at this season is lack of moisture in the ground and fear of consequences to the year's production. But hope springs eternal, and there is time for soaking rains before the need becomes acute. Thus, wrestling with tax returns and worrying about the elements will keep the mind harrowed for some weeks.

Exceptional Report Given for Church

Grace Lutheran congregation showed an exceptional report at its annual meeting Sunday. In spite of removals and transfers due to war and defense work, a gain of 32 members was noted, bringing the membership to about 400.

From a financial standpoint the year was also successful, $10,034.80 having been raised for home purposes and $1,050.93 for missions and benevolences. Debt on the new church has been reduced about 75 per cent in the past two years. Because of the healthy financial condition, the pastor was given a substantial raise in salary.

The congregation is giving special attention to its 23 young men and women in the armed forces. Besides periodic letters to each of these, the weekly church bulletin goes regularly to them.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Elder, George Berres, sr.; trustee, Charles Fenne; secretary, Carl F. Meyer; treasurer, Roy Langemeier; assistant treasurer, George Berres, jr.

"We are particularly concerned with the efficiency demands of our all-out war effort. Government records show millions of labor hours lost through dissipation. Drinking under such conditions is sabotage. We are also intensely interested in the safety of our service men defenders. Liquor and safety are as impossible as the gestapo and liberty. Some very definite firewalls are promised with respect to the U. S. office of war information report whitewashing beer as an alleged non-intoxicating beverage," Mr. Wilson adds.

This union meeting of all churches of Wayne county is open to everyone and is sponsored by Wayne Ministerial association. Questions from the floor will be permissible. It is the intent of the promoters fearlessly and impartially to bring out the true facts regarding the liquor traffic.

P. Pearson of Wayne. The bride's parents were married by Rev. Pearson 24 years ago.

An improvised altar was arranged in the Johnson parlor with pink, green and white crepe paper. A white wedding veil which was used by the bride's parents at their marriage hung above the altar.

Miss Vandelyn Johnson, sister of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly," before the bridal party entered and took places before the altar. Miss Mae Pearson accompanied her and also played Mendelssohn's march.

Miss Johnson wore beige sheer wool street-length dress with saddle tan accessories. Her corsage was of roses and her pearls were a gift of the bridegroom. Miss Vandelyn Johnson, who attended her sister, wore green Romaine crepe with brown accessories and carnation corsage. Mr. Backstrom and his cousin, Theodore Johnson, wore dark suits and white carnation boutonnieres.

Three-course wedding dinner was served from tables decorated in pink and green and centered with a wedding cake. Besides the bridal party, Rev. Pearson, Miss Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Backstrom and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson, others present were Ruth and Morris Backstrom, Mrs. Don Backstrom, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Magnuson and Melvin. Mrs. Don Backstrom served.

Mr. and Mrs. Backstrom went to Omaha Wednesday and returned Friday. They will move to the Emil Backstrom farm about three miles southwest of Wayne, and the Emil Backstroms will move to Wayne.

it is certain that the armed forces will leave nothing undone to speed victory with the least possible losses. They and their kin are eager for triumphant peace at the earliest possible moment.

The passing of Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the former president, emphasizes her unassuming and quietly helpful qualities. She was a source of courage and comfort to her family and an exemplar of noblest American womanhood.

The flu furnishes a handy subject for conversation. It stirs the imagination to speculate on how tough one felt without actually checking out. Powers of endurance are mentioned with considerable feeling of satisfaction.

We're All Guilty.
 (Norfolk Daily News)

Voters, says Dr. George W. Calver of Washington, who has been treating congressmen for fifteen years, should elect no one to the house or senate who will not promise to take exercise and eat balanced meals.

Six members of the lower house of this congress have died of disease since their election, the doctor points out, expanding upon the prevalence of high blood pressure and heart disease among lawmakers. A health program would no doubt increase the efficiency of congressmen and lengthen their lives.

That the doctor's advice is good, it cannot be denied. But why not make every voter promise the same thing?

Unbalanced diet, too much food and too little exercise! Who isn't guilty of making that deadly combination the practice of his life?

A Program.
 (Omaha Journal-Stockman)

The Agricultural Department of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce has made a study of the food situation, and offers these recommendations:

First, the assurance, when production plans are being made, that prevailing price levels at the time products are ready for market will be sufficient to compensate fully for the expenses of efficient production, including essential labor, and in addition provide the incentive for continued production, if such necessary.

Second, the protection of the farm labor supply from depletion through the operation of ill-considered administrative policies, and effective provision for emergency supplies of labor both from local sources and from nearby areas.

Third, the supply of necessary farm machinery to replace so far as possible the loss of manpower which has taken place and to permit needed expansion in production of food and feed crops. To this end government agencies should cooperate to insure the production of a timely and adequate supply of farm machinery.

Fourth, the centralization and clarification of administrative authority among government agencies in order to restore that confidence in the minds of farmers which is essential for maximum food production.

If that could be made effective in full, it would vastly improve the situation, wouldn't it?

Opening Campaign
 THE republican national committee, meeting in Chicago this week, made plans incident to the coming presidential campaign. Chairman Harrison E. Spangler is quoted as saying that an informal survey of American troops in England showed a trend to the republican party. It is presumed new deal leaders are equally solicitous about the soldier vote. However, members of congress of both parties are anxious to make voting convenient for all American members of the armed forces, and rival candidates and their spokesmen will try to persuade soldiers to see as they see.

The pre-convention contest will develop differences of opinion over presidential candidates, but no leader whose influence is worth considering, will allow defeat of his convention preference to weaken his support of the chosen ticket.

The conference which selected Chicago as the convention city and next June as the time, is evidently planning an aggressive campaign on domestic issues, and at this juncture, prospects for republican victory are encouraging.

Good Leads
 POLLYANNAS are no more disagreeable than lubgrubious birds who see no good in any one or anything, and who habitually aggravate the average task in these trying times, but the fellow who sees the silvery lining and breathes courage contributes much of the right quality. He eases human burdens. He is a profound relief in contrast with the lowering individual who prates of difficulties ahead and sees no solution of present or coming problems. There is so much good in most people—people of noble spirit and lofty aims—people who are trying to serve honestly and generously—that it is worse than waste of time to listen to chronic generators of gloom.

According to the record, farmers are not going to repeat the mistake of the first world war by engaging in wild land speculations and increasing debt burdens. The Omaha Journal-Stockman makes the encouraging observation that Nebraska farmers have reduced their mortgage indebtedness $68,000,000 since 1940, now totalling $590,000,000 as compared with $1,500,000,000 in 1923. Getting out of debt and keeping so will be a source of invaluable strength to postwar readjustment.

A Pravda writer made a rather savage attack on Wendell Willkie for recent references to relationships with Russia, though as a matter of fact what the former presidential candidate said was not apparently in the least irritating. We suspect the Russian writer was soured with an over-charge of vodka when he wrestled out his criticism.

It is inconceivable that any one anywhere would be willing to prolong the war in order to gain personal advantage, and Liberalized Curfew.

 (Norfolk Daily News)

The Columbus city council may be offering a model curfew ordinance to other communities which would put their faith in such a law as a curb to juvenile delinquency.

Most suggested laws would put 9:30 or 10 o'clock as the curfew hour, but Columbus has extended the time to 10:30 and has raised the age limit to 17 years. The ordinance also provides the fine of $1 to $100 shall be assessed against the parent unless the parent states that he has no control over the child.

Most curfew laws break down because too many parents are indifferent or actually hostile to their enforcement. This was partly due to the feeling that 9:30 was too early to herd the youngsters home, since it would hardly give them time to get home after the first movie show, and what is probably as much to the point, it would cut into the recreational habits of the parents themselves. Ten-thirty would probably meet with more general approval.

There is less faith, however, in the effectiveness of any curfew law than there was a few years ago. The problem usually resolves itself into a question of parental responsibility, and whether you can legislate that into people is doubtful.

But what the law does do is to put power into the hands of the police, who are held responsible for the actions of youngsters on the street, with little authority to do much without a curfew time limit, unless there is a serious breaking of the law justifying an arrest.

Modern youth isn't easily curbed and a fairly liberal law would probably get results where more severe restrictions would fail for want of popular support.

AN EMULATOR.
 The Saturday Evening Post tells of an ambitious emulator of Huey Long, Louisiana's dictator who was assassinated. Congressman Jimmy Morrison is the man, and he has been practicing showmanship in his home state and in Washington preparatory to essaying the role of the departed kingfish. The congressman manifests eagerness to help the common man—a familiar association with dictatorship plans which in time attempt to boss the common man and everybody else. He had been defeated in Louisiana several times before capturing a seat in congress. Now, he is said to be angling for the governorship, and if Louisiana voters are wise they will turn him down. People are at this time fighting dictatorships and they will not take kindly to seeing one set up in any state of the union.

Mid-West's Hardest Blizzard in 1888
 This week, January 12, was the anniversary of the mid-west's toughest one-day blizzard. It happened 56 years ago. Following a mild, sunny forenoon, the storm descended with heavy snowfall driven by a strong, fiercely cold wind. Many teachers and children were caught in school houses and remained until the storm abated. They kept warm by burning desks. Some teachers tied pupils together and battled the elements to nearest farm houses. A considerable number perished.

IN RELIGION.
 The middle course in religious teaching is gaining ground, and is doubtless working to the advantage of church organizations. Time was when ministers of the gospel preached literal hell. Many were terrorized by the thought, while many others, unable to conceive of such irrationalism in a spiritual existence, were repelled by it. We well remember when pictures of torture, that rivaled Dante's inferno, were exhibited in Sunday school to scare children into obedience. Now, the value of noble thinking and unselfish living keeps the average church's flock together and growing. The mean between old-time orthodoxy and ultra-liberalism would seem a winner. The middle position is accepted as convincing and highly advisable. People have been able to feel without fearing hell-fire as a final performance.

One of the greatest of postwar jobs will be to restore the agencies of government to proper number and size, for bureau has been added to bureau and agency to agency until we now have 19 federal agencies engaged in lending money; 12 federal agencies engaged in map making; 30 federal agencies engaged in recruiting federal workers. By different agencies which can and do buy land, some of them from one another, 38 government agencies charged with some phase of the labor problem, and 15 government agencies with a view to a hand in our public power resources. These are only a few of the examples which show that the federal government, with its more than 3,250,000 employees, is in the greatest muddle in our history. This constitutes a number one housecleaning job.

Contouring Saves Moisture and Soil

Conservation of water is the greatest benefit derived from contouring gable slopes, while the conservation of soil is generally the main objective for contouring. The above photo shows moisture saving on a Nebraska field nearly a whole day after a six-inch rain.

Farm implements such as grain drills, planters, cultivators, plows and listers leave depressions and ridges in the soil which, when on the contour, tend to hold back runoff water and permit it to soak into the ground.

A seven-year experiment recently concluded on a nine per cent slope with 25 inches of rainfall showed a soil loss of only 36 tons per acre by contouring compared with a loss of 195 tons by up-and-down hill tilling. Up-and-down hill farming lost nearly six times as much soil as contouring. Water loss was seven times as great and the average yield of corn was 10 bushels less per acre. A four-year experiment with 17 inches of rainfall showed a 25 per cent yield increase by contouring sorghum on a four per cent slope.

Since one inch of water on one acre weighs 112 tons, fields must be properly surveyed or broken-over may occur which may damage the field. Additional practices such as terracing or strip-cropping are generally necessary where contouring is to be continued.

Fifty-one Nebraska farmers estimated an average saving of 10 per cent in power or fuel by contouring in 1940. In addition to these advantages of contouring, there is also less washing away of seed and young plants.

From Fifth Grade.

Students are beginning to study fractions.

Magnets have been a center of interest in science. Stories about how magnets were discovered were read. Children discovered, by experimenting, which substances are attracted by magnets. They also discovered which poles of the magnets attract each other and which do not. By demonstration, the meaning of "the field of a magnet" was illustrated.

Trip of Interest Taken in Africa

Writing from north Africa December 17, Sgt. Richard Baier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Baier, mentions that he just returned from a little trip. "I have seen some of most beautiful places that are much cleaner. And the people are quite a lot better, especially the women. They are much more beautiful and can speak more English than those here. We stopped at a hotel on the way back and what a beautiful place it was. It had twin beds with springs and a couple of soft mattresses with nice clean, white sheets. The hotel was an old sultan's palace, a place where the sultan kept all his wives. Each room had a bathtub with warm water. It was just about like these in the States, having heat and all. This place had a wall all around. Down in the Arab district were some of the most beautiful things. But what a price! I got the biggest surprise of all when we drove into this place and an Arab greeted us by saying "Good evening, how are you?" We figured he couldn't speak any more than a few words and started using our broken French on him. He told us he spoke English pretty well and we found he could speak better than we could. We also learned that he had been in the States a year, was at the world's fairs in Chicago and New York and quite a few other places. Many more could speak English and were guides in peacetime. They took us to all the different places. They also served some good food. The last night we had chicken, French fried potatoes, tomato salad, fried fish, cauliflower and numerous other things. After the meal we danced. A good time was had by all. I bought a few things which I am going to send home."

Revise System In Draft Tests

Screening and Furloughs For Inductees Will Be Abolished Soon.

In a revision of the system of physical examination of draft eligibles, selective service last Friday abolished "screening" examinations by local boards and arranged for final physical tests to be given at least 21 days before actual induction. Under the new system, effective February 1, post-induction furloughs are abolished.

Men in class 1-A who are about due for call to service will be dispatched to induction stations. There they will be examined by army and navy doctors. All will be sent back home as civilians. Those who are found acceptable will have assurance that they will not be ordered to report for induction for at least three weeks.

The new plan aims to build up a pool of physically acceptable men so that later an even longer period may be afforded between examination and induction. But if a man is not inducted within 90 days after the examination, new pre-induction tests will be required.

The army and navy examiners will classify the acceptable men in three groups—army general service, army limited service and navy. The army accepts for limited service men who have physical defects barring them from general service. The navy demands a higher degree of physical fitness than the army.

Hereafter the quotas will call for a definite number of men for each of the three classifications. As far as possible the wishes of drafted men will be followed as to the branch of service entered. Any one may on request be inducted immediately after passing the tests.

Library News

The first story hour for the children was well attended last week. Mrs. Lous Evans will tell stories this Saturday. The hour will be 3:30 as usual.

Nothing provides more thorough relaxation than a good book. Some of the new books received are light reading and would qualify very well as books for relaxation. Among the titles of light fiction are Jenny DeVin, by Sophie Kerr; When Hearts Are Light Again, by Emilie Loring; The Wash Girls, by Elizabeth Janeway, and Dunnybrook, by Gladys Hasty Carroll.

The reference section has had a nice addition in the form of two volumes of history bearing the title The Life of Marshall. This includes a complete American history from 1755 to 1835.

A thought provoking book called The Forgotten Ally, by Pierre Van Paassen, has been purchased. This book has had many good reviews and Walter Winchell has been plugging it over the radio. It concerns the problem of the Jews and is well worth reading for a clear understanding of the question.

A number of new books have been purchased for the children, especially the younger boys who have been asking for cowboy and mystery stories.

Home Consumed By Night Blaze

Martin Olsons Are Wakened By Fire Originating in Kitchen Chimney.

Fire which is thought to have started about 11:30 in a defective kitchen chimney destroyed the residence on Mrs. Mayla Harker's farm seven miles south of Wayne Thursday night. The Martin Olsons have been living on the place and were preparing to move to a farm near Concord, and the Melvin Werts move to the Harker place this spring.

Insurance was carried on the house and some on the contents.

The blaze started in the south end of the 84-foot, one-story residence which was known as the longest house in Wayne county. Mr. and Mrs. Olson and sons, Gene and Neil, were sleeping in rooms to the north. Mrs. Olson was wakened by smoke and roused others of the family. About the same time a passer-by on the highway saw the blaze which was well started and which was creeping northward. As the property had no telephone, Neil Olson drove to E. P. Cauwee home a half mile east to call Wayne fire department and notify neighbors while others removed clothing and bedding from the burning structure.

Everything in the kitchen, dining room and one bedroom was burned. The Olsons also lost many things which they had packed ready to move and had stored in the kitchen. Bedding and clothing and a little furniture from the north part of the house was saved.

The blaze had gained such headway that Wayne firemen could only save other buildings on the place. A light wind was blowing and carried burning embers from the house, which was entirely consumed within a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. Olson and Gene spent the night at Cauwee's and Neil was at Freeman Lubberstedt's. The Olsons had rented Miss Lena Hammer's property on west first street for Mrs. Olson and Neil this spring so that the latter might finish his term of high school here. Now the family will occupy the residence in Wayne until they can go to the farm east of Concord. Gene Olson enlisted some time ago in the army air corps and was in Omaha last Thursday to see when he would be called. He was notified it would be about 10 weeks. Fortunately he had returned home a few hours before the fire broke out and was able to help much in the emergency.

A residence will be provided on the farm for the Werts family who move there as soon as possible.

Views Expressed in Honolulu Paper.
"Don't expect the war to be won by miracles," writes Norman Soong, Chinese war correspondent who has covered the Chinese-Japanese war since it began in July, 1937. In the Honolulu Advertiser, a paper sent by Cpl. Edward Grone, Soong predicts that allied victory over the Japs will be against a strong, determined enemy. "After Germany collapses we may expect a careful, clever propaganda campaign from Japan, one designed to induce America to permit a negotiated peace in the Pacific and Asia, thus allowing Japan a breathing spell to prepare for further aggression."

Editor of the Honolulu paper observes that "predictions that another year will end the nazis and two more years finish the Japs may be over optimistic, but victory is in sight."

In another editorial the paper asks teachers to implant trust rather than distrust in the minds of children. "When the teacher raises a doubt as to the soundness of our government and predicts that there is no near hope for its improvement, he plants an already sprouted seed in receptive and fertile soil." Views of columnists are taken as personal opinions while those of teachers are absorbed by children as facts.

"How long it will take the United Nations to win the war depends now, more than ever before, upon the backing they get on the home front," states the daily's editor. "War bonds and ceaseless labor are the prices Americans are asked to pay; low enough prices they are too. Work and buy to win is a slogan that has new and more imperative meaning today."

Cpl. Grone enjoys keeping in touch with home events through the Herald.

Unusual Record Of Service Made By Hoskins Lady

On every one of the nearly 800 days since the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, Mrs. Frank Phillips of Hoskins, has done something for the war effort. She intends to continue in this work until the war is successfully concluded.

Without the assistance of anyone, Mrs. Phillips furnished materials and made 82 wool blankets of regulation size and sent these to hospitals for convalescent soldiers. Mrs. Phillips also made 46 house robes, many pairs of bed slippers and other articles of clothing needed by convalescent soldiers.

Mrs. Phillips mailed 46 Christmas boxes to service men overseas and many others to those in the armed forces in this country.

Nine relatives of Mrs. Phillips are in service and one is a cousin in Santo Tomas Jap prison camp in Manila.

In 1944 Mrs. Phillips hopes to be able to do even more for the war effort.

Fijis Picturesque States Navy Officer

"The Fiji islands are among the most beautiful and picturesque in the south Pacific," writes Ensign David V. Garwood. "The landscape, mountains, natives and native villages, the tropical fruits and those deep sea fish, all combine to make it a place long to remember. Bananas and wild flowering shrubs and trees compete with each other. Poinsettias in particular are present in large numbers."

Due to recent relaxation of censorship regulations, Ensign Garwood is able to mention his location. He has been on the islands more than a year.

A copy of the Buia Bugle, four-page mimeograph paper published on the island, presents late war news and also contains holiday messages from officials. "All the things for which we fight are symbolized in this Christmas season," writes Secretary Frank Knox. "To all those at sea, on foreign shores and in continental states, I send sincere greetings. My pride in your victories and the courage you show in battle plus your devotion to duty is shared by the 130 million Americans whose thoughts are with you and whose work backs you in battle. The coming year is crucial. The best holiday wish for you and your families is the hope that Christmas day of 1943 will be the last you spend far from family and friends. May the New Year lead us to victory."

To all hands in the south Pacific sea sweeping, sky blazing and jungle smashing crew, Admiral Halsey sends best wishes. "You may take pride in the knowledge that your magnificent performance is hastening the brighter days that lie ahead for us all. Let us pay homage with due reverence to those stout hearts who have made the supreme sacrifice that our cause may march on victoriously."

To fighting men joined in battle against the enemy in the Pacific, Admiral Nimitz sends greetings. "Americans at home celebrate this holiday season without fear of bombs or shells because your valiant efforts in the past year have steadily pushed the enemy back. We look ahead with full confidence that the next Christmas will be a happier one at home."

Ensign Garwood sends a copy of the Christmas dinner menu which is printed along with a program for the day. The enlisted men's Christmas dinner included roasted young American turkey, giblet gravy, sage dressing, cranberry sauce, candied sweet potatoes, creamed asparagus, buttered peas, whipped potatoes, bread and butter, ice cream, chocolate cake, cream pie, candy, nuts and seed tea. The officers' mess was similar, writes Ensign Garwood, but had quite so many items. Both menus were well prepared and well received. The men had turkey for Thanksgiving also, and rumor stated they could expect turkey for New Year's.

Figured on navy time, Roman Catholic mass was set Christmas day for 0615, service of song and praise with the chaplain in charge at 0900, softball game between the electricians and drivers-operators at 1400, and a movie, "Hit the Ice," featuring Abbott and Costello at 1845.

Ensign Garwood says the Herald finds its way to the Fiji islands regularly.

One Appreciates This Nation More After Being Away

"One really appreciates the United States after he has been in other countries." This assurance is given by James A. Golfer, second assistant steward with the merchant marine, who spent last week here in the Ernest Frevert home. The young man, son of the G. M. Golders of Mankato, Minn., formerly of Wayne, has been in the service a year and has been on shipboard eight months. He has made two round trips on the Atlantic and expects to make one more. He thinks by that time the European situation will be sufficiently concluded so that he will transfer to the Pacific.

James had 30 days' leave and visited his parents in Mankato. He came here Monday last week and spent a day with his aunt, Mrs. Harriet Hossie, then went to Frevert's Tuesday. He returned Monday to Mankato and reports in New York January 20 to rejoin the merchant marine for another voyage.

The youth had four months' training in Brooklyn before going to sea. One of his trips took him to Great Britain and the other to Gibraltar and north Africa. James spent a month in England, a week at Gibraltar and five weeks in Africa. He thinks American movies and music much superior to the British. And when the British play American tunes, they seem to play the fast ones too slowly and the slow ones too fast. Anyway, they don't quite get the "style."

The former Wayne youth climbed Gibraltar. That rocky fortress guarding the approach to the Mediterranean is in fact three peaks of about 50 feet difference in height and a half mile apart. The highest is 1,463 feet. Winding roads have been cut through the rocks to the peak of each. Along the roads are many banks housing the men who guard this strategic location. James started climbing the peaks at 11 one day and was back by 5 in the afternoon. The climb was a tough one. Only men in uniform are allowed at Gibraltar.

Arabs in north Africa want American clothes and they'd like to buy the garments of an American's back. James found they will pay $5 and $6 for a shirt and high prices for almost any article of clothing. This is due to the great scarcity of such articles there.

Many rich French people left their home country and are in north Africa for the duration. They like American cigarets and pay well for them. The young man reports that he has seen a carton of cigarets sell for $6 in Spain. A package often brings 75c in Panama and 50c in England.

Merchant ships always travel in convoys with escorts. The scouting ship, equipped with a hearing device that spots submarines, radios to ships when a sub is in the area. Each ship then hoists a black flag and all crewmen are on the lookout through the danger area. James said he had not seen subs but very often his ship had the black flag hoisted.

A merchant ship carries supplies of any kind that are ready to go. Service men and mail are on special convoys. But the merchant ships do bring back service men who are coming home on furlough.

Crews of merchant ships are made up of about 35 per cent of "seasoned" ocean men, those who have been in the merchant marine for years. The others are new trainees. One in this service may pick the ship and the port he wishes. After his leave, James may choose to go to any shipping port in the country and report to the merchant service. When a ship is ready to leave the crew is made up of men chosen from the personnel registered at the port. The young man wants to make another voyage on the Atlantic and he likes the New York port so he will go there this time. He notifies his draft board of his plans and the board keeps in touch with his service.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Countryman of Randolph, observed their golden wedding anniversary January 11.

Pupils with perfect attendance for the month are: Junior Baier, Evan Bennett, Evert Baier, Dorothy Brudigan and Karen June Longe. Karen June Longe, 2nd grade, Evan Bennett and Eugene Baier, 3rd grade, held a contest to see who could get the most perfect seatwork papers. The 3rd and 4th grades completed booklets on a study of the poem, The Duel.

The 6th graders are studying the Revolutionary war. Girls of the 7th grade are studying living conditions of the early colonists, occupations of men and tasks left to women, boys and girls.

Students enjoyed decorating the room with Christmas wreaths, lanterns, red and green streamers. A paper frieze showing Santa-driving his reindeers across the snow, Christmas tree and large fireplace. Each pupil made for himself a paper stocking, and these were hung together in a row.

Last month students learned to sing three new songs: How Does Santa Keep His Whiskers

White, The Little Boy That Santa Claus Forgot, This Is Our War, and one combination song, drill and rhythm band number, In Santa's Little Toy Store. These songs were sung at the Christmas program the evening of December 22. "Man, you're on our team!"

"Your station deserves credit for a raft of our men clocking in on time. The way you keep their cars shipshape here is saving us man-hours—plenty—or we couldn't keep beating schedules. Our plant driver brings the office car here—to keep it readier than a fire engine. Even our laboratory scoffers rave about your giving their engines internal OIL-PLATING to hamstringing damage from engine acids! You're helping cars live. Great stuff!"

Such praise from the war plant's Big Boss caused the Conoco Mileage Merchant to throw out his chest. His Conoco Nth oil...oil that OIL-PLATES...is even more essential for less essential cars, used only now and then. The unavoidable acids of combustion—mostly heated away, before rationing, by prompt re-use of the car—now loiter inside and threaten to cause corrosion. But you know of anti-corrosive plating...like chromium plating. Just as closely, protective OIL-PLATING is surfaced to precious engine parts by the "magnet-like" attraction that Conoco Nth oil creates synthetically. Resist acid's appetite for your engine. Spaniel Puzzled By Daily Siren

Thousands of Rationing Stamps Are Lost When Fire Takes Store.

The sound of a siren at La Moille, Ill., given three times daily, does not mean an airplane ride and a bombing raid, and "Blitz," a 5-month-old cocker spaniel, is a bit puzzled. "Blitz" is a veteran of a dozen southwest Pacific bombing raids and the sounding of a siren on Guadalcanal airfield was the signal for him to "get going to a fox hole," said his master, T. Sgt. Harold M. Lant. Now at the sound of the village siren, given as a signal, Blitz gets excited, runs around the house, barking and anxious "to get going."

Firemen, fighting a Kansas City grocery store fire, noticed bits of paper floating around in water from their hoses. They were wading in 15 thousand food rationing stamps.

Nicholas de Christopher wishes he could see his dream walking—he'd soon catch him. The Los Angeles crane operator told police he dozed on a park bench and dreamed bandits were robbing him. When he awoke he found his wallet and $99 were gone.

Emil Adelman, an Indianapolis butcher, is convinced of that old saying: "It pays to advertise." Three steaks wrapped for a customer disappeared from his meat counter. He placed an advertisement in the Indianapolis News. No sooner had the newspaper been delivered in the neighborhood than a woman came into his store and said she had taken the steaks by mistake. "No," he commented, "she didn't bring back the steaks." "But," he added brightly, "she did pay for them."

The San Jose, Cal., fire station doors burst open. A gleaming engine roared out, its sirens screaming. Passers-by stopped to watch and motorists hastily pulled over to the curb. Then the fire truck sputtered to a halt. It was out of gas.

A former New Mexico resident, now living in Virginia, sent $5 to State Income Tax Director Earle Kerr at Santa Fe, N. M., although he owed nothing. "After living elsewhere," the man explained, "I think it is worth at least $5 to call New Mexico my home." Puzzled at first, Kerr quickly decided a dummy tax return could be fixed—so the state can keep the $5.

board that he had used the gasoline allowed for his tractor in his car instead. Asked why, he replied: "To go to see my girl friend." Cautious by the surprised board, the octogenarian quickly suggested a way to eliminate those pleasure trips. "How about extra gas for a housewife?" he asked. Reluctantly, the board said no.

Miss Alta Eastman, Chicago, really started something by wanting to be helpful. A soldier burdened with a full barracks bag and equipment stopped Miss Eastman in an "L" station to ask directions. Miss Eastman gave him the information, then kindly opened the station door for him. While she gaped in amazement, behind the soldier trooped an entire company, similarly weighted down. Each man paused to thank her as he passed through the door.

Emergency surgery was ordered for a convicted burglar who lay handcuffed to his Denver hospital bed. The key broke while attendants were trying to unlock the handcuffs so the man could be taken to the operating room. Undersheriff Tom Mainland's skilled hands opened the lock—with a borrowed bobby pin.

Mrs. Lillian Stoddard called a San Francisco market to report that resting comfortably in a head of lettuce she had just bought was a $50 bill, and whose was it please? Soon a sailor was at her door, saying he was Tim Morris and that he had lost the fifty while buying fruit. "You're luckier than I am," said Mrs. Stoddard as she handed him the money. "I lost my bag a few days ago but couldn't find a trace of it." "If it's a brown purse with the initial S on it," said Morris, "I found it while scrounging around for my $50." It was hers.

Denver's air raid sirens shrieked a warning and an unidentified air raid warden tossed restlessly in his sleep. A moment later he sat up with a start, leaped from bed and dashed out into the street. There he halted traffic and sent pedestrians scurrying for shelter. Not for several minutes did he realize the sirens merely were being tested. Then he found himself standing in the middle of the street, his air raid warden insignia pinned on his pajama tops. He was using a flashlight to flag down automobiles in broad daylight.

Rep. Talbot (rep., Conn.), whose home is in Naugatuck, tells this story of a new employe at the WPB office in Washington who took orders literally. The boss told her to send a letter to a regional WPB office and a carbon to a brass and copper company at Waterbury, Conn. That explains how an official of the company got a letter containing a single piece of carbon paper—and nothing else.
