

Nebraska Towns Score High in Basketball Tournament - Wakefield Captures Championship - Wayne Close to Top Honors in Class B - Stanton Editor Is Association President - Tempest at Wisner.

Fires of enthusiasm for basketball were kindled within us last week-end when Gregg McBride of the Omaha World-Herald's sports staff virtually predicted northeast Nebraska out of the running for the state tournament at Lincoln. Both Wayne and Wakefield, leaders in the state tournament at Lincoln, were thus slated for early defeat. But contrary to the gloomy forecast and undaunted by it, Wayne proved a winner in class B until the final round which was chaoticly played in York. In class C Wakefield not only overcame the supposedly invincible Deshler team but in the final round captured the championship by defeating Culbertson.

Both Wayne and Wakefield made creditable showings and achieved enviable results during the tournament despite the dark prospect portrayed by a professional observer. But the fact may have stimulated rather than depressed effort. It softens Wayne's defeat in the last game to know that its neighbor scored final triumph.

Heads Nebraska Press. Nathan B. Pont, one of the alert and worthy publishers of the Stanton Register, was elected president of the Nebraska Press association at Lincoln last Friday. He and his brother, E. E. Pont, are joint publishers of the Register, and the latter's local activities include managing the Stanton county fair. The Pents are versatile and wide-awake, and among side lines, the one will lead the county show to accustomed success, while the other will employ his usual sound judgment in conducting the state association through a year of service.

One address at Friday's session by Elmo Scott Watson, editor of The Publishers Auxiliary, Chicago, failed through unavoidable lack of prophetic sight to throw much light on the assigned subject, "Newspapers in the Postwar Period." The speaker confessed that he didn't know the answers, and he speculated with considerable caution. Improvements are certain, but what they will be cannot be accurately foretold. It is a growing belief that the community weekly, to serve a vital need, will continue to newspaper devoted largely to county events and the metropolitan daily or the broadcasting station, depended on for national and foreign news, there is no reason to fear competition. Their fields of service in no way come in conflict.

School Spirit. A "tempest in a teapot" may properly denote the little storm which followed criticism of the Wisner school which crept into the News-Chronicle of that town. Among other things in the criticism was one suggesting loss of "old-time school spirit," and after trying to modify what he accepted as an affront, Editor Humphreys wrote a column in support of school interest and its corollary, school spirit. He emphasized the frequent disposition to superficial study and dodge responsibility, too great eagerness to prolong hours of play and decrease hours of work.

Editor Humphreys explained how school facilities and comforts had been multiplied since his experience as student and later as superintendent, and he urged greater use of advantages in the course of becoming educated, and polished. He mentioned provisions for recreation, utterly foreign to the old days.

One cannot drink or eat or wear school spirit, but he can develop and radiate it by enriching his knowledge through the medium of a free educational system. School spirit is tantamount to school interest, and school interest is essential to avoid the status of an ignoramus or a social barmaid.

As pointed out by Editor Humphreys, it is up to teachers and children to do the best use of things generously bestowed. Children cannot afford to sidestep such permanent values, and they will not do it if they have clear understanding and conscientious and persuasive leadership.

The criticism which Mr. Humphreys marked as a regrettable child's prank may prove helpful in awakening school interest and promoting the very school spirit under consideration.

Will Invite Music Students to Wayne. Students interested in music have been invited from 29 high schools of this area to the college March 23 to hear the concert by the violinist, Frances Magness.

SIXTY SECOND YEAR

Ship Companion Tells of Tragedy

Texas Man Is One of Nine Surviving Attack Which Took Millard Bahé.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bahé received a letter bringing them information about the encounter which took the life of their elder son, Millard LeRoy Bahé, 18, third class petty officer in the U. S. navy, in the Mediterranean theater of war last August. The message is from D. M. Aikin, S. C. 4-7, who is now in Houston, Tex., and who is one of the nine survivors of the crew of 29 manning the ship.

"I got on the ship with Millard on May 10, last year, while we were in north Africa," writes Mr. Aikin. "Being a cook, I was with him most all the time and I know he was closer to him than anyone else aboard. We got along real well together and I liked him a lot."

"Millard died at his battle station doing his duty, on one of the guns and he didn't suffer a bit. It was sudden and terrible. We were hit by a 500-pound German bomb while tied up at the dock in Palermo, Sicily. There were only nine survivors of the crew of 29, and all of the officers were lost too. God alone knows why any of us lived through that ordeal. I am very thankful to be alive now, and I am only sorry that Millard and the rest of the crew couldn't have survived also."

"We had very little chance to go to church over there and our ship was too small for that. It was a small wooden ship, mostly for convoy duty."

"We were all in great danger most of the time as we had lots and lots of air raids. I believe Millard enjoyed his work a lot and I know he surely helped me. I was sick a lot and he always took over for me and was swell. He didn't get the packages you sent but I remember he told me he had asked you to send combs and other things and he was looking for them and knew you would send them. Yes, I guess he was homesick some times all of us were more or less."

"Of course Millard didn't have any idea he was going to die. He was ashore on liberty the evening before and had a real good time."

"Please forget about sending for his body as I'm sure he would just as soon be over there."

"We were all anxious to get home and that was about all we talked about. Millard used to tell me about all of you and a lot of his experiences at home."

"Yes, I was wounded and was in the hospital over in Sicily several weeks but am ok again now. I am 41 years old and have a wife and five children. They are here with me now. I guess I'll have permanent shore duty now."

"I hope this finds you all well. Please don't worry too much as God takes care of all our lives."

Millard Bahé enlisted in the navy in August, 1942, when he was 17. He trained at Great Lakes and went to north Africa last summer. Word that he had been killed in August came to his parents September 1.

Principal speakers will be Dr. Harold E. Conrad, professor of history and political science at Washburn Municipal university, Topeka, Kan., and Dr. Pitman B. Potter, professor of political science and chairman of the political science department at Oberlin college.

Others from Wayne who plan to attend are Rev. O. R. Swaback, Miss Frances Ahern, Miss Leah Jean Cauwue and Miss Verma Gleason.

NUMBER FORTY-TWO

MAJORITY IN ARMY WOULD FARM AFTER PEACE COMES BACK

REPORT of a recent survey indicates majority wishes among young men in the armed forces to settle down on American farms when the war is over and the incentive to individual endeavor has been reinforced. Nowhere is independent living so available and so entrenched as in agriculture and livestock growing. Nowhere is hard work more demanded or careful management more necessary. Farming and its auxiliaries mean a gamble with the elements and with the markets, but taking chances gives zest and abuzzes exercise of best judgment. The thrill of winning compensates for the disappointment that follows loss. The farmer does not depend on one source of income. He has ups and downs, and if he can score more ups than downs over a period of years, he is making substantial progress, and he is content as he looks up into the blue firmament, free from cramped city quarters and aloof from petty business rivalries. To the returning soldier bent on farming, begin on a small scale consistent with capital to invest; yield to indebtedness only so far as reasonable prospect of paying promptly suggests; guard credit as a precious source of strength; meeting obligations or explaining need for postponement before rather than after due dates. Step by step one may reach his goal of ownership, and then, what a feeling of satisfaction! Farming invites the soldier boy, but it imposes burdens of decision and responsibility. Its rewards are as great to the spirit as to the flesh.

Lt. Wm. B. Canning Missing Over Italy

Brilliant Flier Is Holder Of Air Medal, Clusters And Citations.

SOME moisture over Nebraska is an encouraging forecast of more to follow. More snow has fallen in the south part of the state than in north sections lately and a few light showers have been contributed to this area. Soaking rains will be needed between now and May 1 to put the ground in best shape for rich production. Farmers are now busy getting equipment in condition to start the season's plowing and planting as soon as the weather will permit. They will organize their work as well as possible under the handicap of short help, and they will produce large and satisfactory results if the growing season proves favorable. They do not falter at long hours and hard work if they can have the benefit of a proper mixture of moisture and sunshine. They must have these two essentials to win. Before knowing, they are getting ready to do their part.

First Lieutenant William Beverly Canning, 23, one of Wayne county's fliers with a brilliant record, holder of the air medal and three oak leaf clusters, has been missing in action over Italy since February 7, according to a telegram coming from the war department Monday to his wife. The message states that if further details or other information are received, Mrs. Canning will be promptly notified. The young flier's wife is confident that Lt. Canning is safe and that she will hear from him.

Byrd Writing for Forbes Magazine

Senator Harry F. Byrd, Virginia, one of the nation's prominent democrats of the old school, explained government control and dangerous inroads on private business under the new deal's economic policies since 1933. Senator Byrd emphasized the extraordinary spending powers granted the president, the attempt to remodel the supreme court and the effort to defeat disagreeing members of congress. He struck at the multiplicity of government bureaus and the millions on federal payrolls. The senator concluded with this warning:

"Congress and the people, together, can rid the government of its bureaucrats. The bureaucracy represented by three million federal employees must be dismantled.
"Qualified, competent employees who believe in our form of democracy, recruited under a competitive civil service system based on merit ratings, must be installed.
"The people and congress must insist that the government be gotten out of business, that the government corporations which compete with private enterprise be liquidated, that the 60 billion dollars in government property be returned to the people.
"The people must elect those who give more than lip service to economy by actively advocating the enactment of constructive legislation.
"They must insist that the 16-year-old deficit be checked, and a simple and equitable tax policy be introduced.
"They must insist, upon the elimination of duplicating agencies and personnel, upon the elimination of gross extravagance and waste in the executive branch of the government.
"The American people must realize that their one remaining hope is in congress, for it is the only body of the government whose membership is dependent upon the will of the people.
"Members of congress should be told when they are wrong, and they should be supported when they are right. They, elected by the people, are the last defenders of representative democracy, a democracy now swiftly retreating down the twilight road to totalitarianism.
"Our chosen way of life can be preserved only by a great upsurge of national indignation."

Bureaus in PULLING

Conflict against one another is the charge lodged against Washington bureaus, a late complaint being one by the Rome, Ga., News-Tribune which says inability to get a truck from 400 that the government had abandoned compelled the owner of a 1,500-acre farm to suspend operations. That newspaper commented in part:

"Now the irony of this amazing situation is emphasized by the fact that on the very same day (February 21) that the farm owner received notice of the rejection of his application for a truck with which to carry on, he also received a letter from the United States department of agriculture, through his county agent, urging him to put forth maximum efforts in the production of food!"
Touching the unfortunate experience, as told by the Georgia newspaper, the Norfolk Daily News makes this observation:
"The paper says it would seem that there should be enough common sense somewhere to prevent such astounding futility from being practiced by those who are shaping agricultural policies, but sometimes common sense seems stymied by the foolishness of federal agencies."

A likely Iowa contest for the United States senatorship between Governor Bourke B. Hickenlooper, republican, and Senator Gillette, democrat, prompts the Sioux City Journal to speculate on consequences. While Iowa is largely republican, Senator Gillette is a Jeffersonian democrat, usually opposing the new deal's economic policies. The senator is personally very popular. But he will suffer the disadvantage of bearing the party label to which Washington bureaucrats still insistently cling. If there are any new dealers still in Iowa, they will vote against convictions if they vote at all on the United States senatorship. As to "Hickenlooper" being hard to say and an unusual tax on vocal machinery, we are reminded of Shakespeare's remark that there was nothing in a name—mentioning the rose.

Former Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, and Wendell Willkie, 1940 republican presidential nominee, are the only ones whose names will appear on the Nebraska republican primary ballot as presidential candidates. The popular choice will no doubt receive support of the state's delegation on the first ballot. From then on delegates will likely use their own judgment. One of the most highly favored candidates in Nebraska is Gov. Thos. Dewey of New York, whose name will not be found on this state's republican ballot, but it is our guess that the delegation will be urged to swing to the New York governor.

Republican leaders in Washington are stirring themselves in the direction of post-war taxation in the hope of a plan that will raise sufficient revenue without crushing taxpayers. All partisans in the capital city are anxious to make the tax surgery as painless as possible, though they still appear to lack the courage to adopt the fairest kind of tax, the sales tax.

A Norfolk boy in the armed forces wrote his mother to tell his grandfather to buy some calves for him of the dairy variety, because he wants to start farming and raising dairy stock and pigs and chickens as soon as the war is over and he is out of the service. That is the spirit that will strengthen and steady the postwar economic order in America.

The way Walter Winchell, columnist and radio speaker, rants against Representatives Hoffman and Dies, the public is given ground to suspect some unpleasantness between them. Walter declaims vehemently against one or more fellow-travelers all the time, and he can be depended on to admit that he has never been mistaken in facts or judgment.

A Washington report suggests that the president is feeling around for a conservative candidate as his fourth-term running mate. It is believed Wallace would tip the ticket too far to the left, and the president's record has gone far enough in that direction to need a counter-balancing force.

It will be easier to undergo the hard task of readjustment when peace comes than to be nagged by fears of consequences to loved ones in the armed ranks. The world will be relieved to undertake the toughest kind of peace-time job in lieu of the perils and miseries of war.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is on the go again—this time on a tour of United States bases in the Caribbean area. She probably has more power with less popular approval than any woman in the world.

The need of every bone in the anatomy is doubly felt when one is broken or twisted out of alignment by an unexpected sit-down, aided by slickest ice.

The sheet of ice which covered all outdoor traveling spaces this week had a most brutal way of revising one's intentions.

Seeds for Victory—And After.

(Industrial Press Service)
Most essential spring planting in 1944 is the sowing of seeds for the greatest crop of jobs this nation will ever have enjoyed. Certainly no American can quarrel with this objective, or with its parallel—that we must continue to wage unrelenting war to the total defeat of our enemies.
A second postulate is also generally conceded: that high postwar employment can be brought about only as all groups recognize their joint responsibility and opportunity in the solution of problems confronting our nation.
It is even more encouraging that these two steps toward job planning have now been followed by a third—formation of the National Postwar Conference by representatives of management, labor and agriculture. It was agreed that the groups endeavor to find "economic solutions to economic problems" and to apply the solutions through "democratic and representative processes."

We may well draw a breath of courage and hope for the future, in the spring of this tortured year, when we see such frank acknowledgment that no differences which divide men are as great as the common cause which unites them.

High Debt Theory.

(Norfolk Daily News)
President Roosevelt, Vice President Wallace, Stuart Chase and others who insist that a high national debt will not bother if we keep industrial production high, are not very clear as to how they propose to avoid the lags and drags that we have always had.
It is certain that they can't point with very much assurance to the spending policies of the New Deal, as a sure, workable method. Look at any business index graph for the last dozen years, such as Babson's in this paper, for instance, and you will find that after four long years of this administration's "remedies" for depression, business took a nose dive into the minus 30's in 1937 and 1938 and zig-zagged uncertainly until defense, then war, production came along to drag it back to normal.
What reason is there to believe that production can be held high enough to take care of any debt the advocates of high spending care to put on us? It has never been done and no one knows that it can ever be done. It is better to be safe than sorry.

The Country Boy's Creed.

(Author Unknown)
I believe that the country God made is more beautiful than the city which man made; that life out-of-doors and in touch with the earth is the natural life of man. I believe that work is work wherever we find it, but that work with nature is more inspiring than work with the most intricate machinery. I believe that the dignity of labor depends not on what you do, but on how you do it; that opportunity comes to a boy on a farm as often as to a boy in the city; that life is larger and freer and happier on the farm than in the town; that my success depends not upon my location, but upon myself—not upon my dreams, but upon what I actually do; not upon luck, but upon pluck. I believe in working when I work and in playing when I play and in giving and demanding a square deal in every act of life.

OVER-CONFIDENCE.

In a recent Saturday Evening Post, Stanley High talks bluntly and frankly against over-confidence on the part of republicans. If republicans think "just any candidate can win," a fourth term may be unavoidable, suggests High. He emphasizes that cocksureness may defeat an otherwise good chance for victory. The Post commends Author High's reasoning and conclusions. It says it "does not subscribe to the doctrine that any one man, or any group of men, is indispensable to our national welfare, to the prosecution of the war or to the solution of world problems after the war." It expresses the belief that the "new deal has been too long in power; that it has grown arrogant, that its policies of unlimited spending and unlimited bureaucracy eventually would lead to the destruction of democratic government; that its constant encroachment on individual freedom and private enterprise is a growing threat to the American way of life." But the Post advises, in accordance with the Stanley High article, that to insure the defeat of the new deal there can be no compromise on a second-rater, no pussyfooting and no platform of doubtful meaning.

Congress

Washington, D. C. March 1, 1944
Who is responsible for food price administration? That question appears in many letters from farmers disturbed by current chaos in the livestock markets and the meat packing industry. A subcommittee of the committee on agriculture is responsible for developing an interesting insight in that point. The chief economic adviser of the OPA when queried about his background and experience, replied: "I have had no practical experience in business or farming. I am an economist. I received my training at Harvard university."

Reclassification of 1,700,000 selective service registrants now deferred as essential farm workers has started. Gen. Hershey, selective service director, says this is due to the requirements of the armed forces for new men so that by July 1 of this year the number may be raised to 11,300,000. County agricultural agents have new forms regarding the war unit requirements that farmers can procure. Local selective service boards have the up-to-date information.

The much discussed CANOL pipeline project in Canada is expected to cost taxpayers around $150 million. Title will pass to the Canadian government after the war. The proposed pipeline in Persia has taken its place among current controversies in Washington.

Dave Lynn, the architect of the capitol, reports that the two Nebraska memorial trees in Washington are healthy and growing. One is a white pine, planted on the capitol grounds between the house wing of the capitol and the library of congress. The other is an elm growing at the east end of the department of agriculture administration building.

About 100 tons of butter in the war food administration's stockpile have spoiled. No longer good for table use, it will be sold to civilian industrial buyers for use in cooking. The war food administration says that this degree of loss in a stockpile of 130 million pounds is not unreasonable. Some complain that the stockpile is too large and large losses are unnecessary. Their claim is that the enormous stockpile may mean a carry-over of more than 80 million pounds of butter into the 1944 production season.

AN ENGLISH VIEWPOINT.

"Pioneers! O Pioneers," written by the English author, Hillary St. Geo. Saunders, reflects impressions of American life following a visit to cities and rural areas of this country. He was amazed at bigness, abundance and candor. He was profoundly impressed by the constant stream of products pouring from war plants, headed for the battle fields of the allied nations. A knowledge of what this country is contributing to the war is convincing proof of allied victory. The growing flow of war implements in the hands of determined Americans, is evidence of supremacy. Speaking of the war, the author said he had seen enough of the armed forces of the allied nations to believe that "these fighting men are determined that the Atlantic Charter must be translated into something definite and concrete—a way of life, for example, which will enable the young men to marry, and to be sure that their children are going to be able to grow up in a peaceful world. They want to construct a world in which individual initiative will have full scope. They are looking forward, I think, to making their own career aided but not controlled by the state. That is certainly so in America."

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

• Fred A. Marsh, Merrick County farmer and livestock producer seeks the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

• Mr. Marsh is a native Nebraskan of pioneer parentage. His people, who came to Merrick County in 1858, were active in the early development of the state. His mother presided over the Parker tavern, far famed on the great overland trail, for its good food and warm hospitality. His father had the distinction of building the first Western Union telegraph line between Omaha and Cheyenne.

• In his early life Mr. Marsh was chosen county superintendent of schools, retiring voluntarily after eight years of service. In 1928 when he was elected a regent of our state university, his home county gave him 3434 votes out of less than 4000 ballots cast. March is anniversary month of many historic events. Some of the most common things we use in every day life were first put in use in March. The postage stamp (1847) and the telephone (1876) are the most notable. It is so commonplace now we would be at a great loss trying to plan our daily living without the written and spoken message. To us at Gamble's it is also a most auspicious month because it is our birthday month. Through the nineteen years we have strived to make your Gamble Store as essential to the way of every day life as the letter and telephone. Now more than ever, with the new departments that have been added, we have made Gamble's the "one stop" for many needs of the family, home, farm and car with savings on every purchase.

Wakefield Takes Title First Time

Quintet Starts Down Road To Victory by Defeat of Favored Deshler.

Northeast Nebraska took spotlight in the sports world Saturday night when Wakefield won the state class C high school basketball crown for the first time in the school's history. Coach J. K. Kert's Wakefielders defeated the Kyril's Wakefielders in the final at Lincoln 32-22 in finals at Lincoln.

Wakefield and Wayne are champions of the Husker League in northeast Nebraska, each having lost only one game to the other.

Wakefield earned its way to state championship game by defeating the highly favored Deshler team and Milford.

In the finals Saturday Wakefield and Culbertson both played cautiously and relied on long shots. Most of the scoring, Don Erickson's sharpshooting from backcourt, the foul ring provided the deciding factor for Wakefield.

Erickson moved Wakefield into 6-6 tie at start of the second quarter. The Wakefield quintet came from behind and Al Benson's pair of baskets gave him a half-time margin of 12-9. Wakefield broke 12-12 and 11-11 as locks before entering the final period with a 19-11 margin. Culbertson came back and brought score to 20-20 with a minute to a quarter left.

Erickson broke the tie with looper from back of the foul court and Substitute Warren Borg converted Junior Wacker's foul to what proved the deciding point. Just before the gong, Ralph McJerson hit a long one to bring Culbertson within one point.

Erickson had valuable assistance from Jim Anderson, Tower, Francis Wagner and Bob Ward, who were the Culbertson mainstay.

Japanese Relocation Center Shows Problems the United States Faces

Teaching in a Japanese relocation center at Poston, Ariz., has brought the realization of what great problems the United States is facing in regard to its Japanese citizens.

Miss Frances Huey and her daughter, Miss Frances. The women, the former of Mrs. C. Morris H. Morris of Carroll, went to Arizona last summer to take up their new duties. In a letter to the Carroll folks they tell of their trip and some of their early experiences in this new work.

New school buildings are made of adobe blocks. The floor is of cement and the roof a double set of paper. Four rooms are in each building, all on one floor with the windows on the north side and a wide porch on the south. The buildings are connected with a covered sidewalk as protection against the sun. Japanese women were so anxious to have the buildings completed that quite a number went out and helped.

Many White Teachers.

The white persons, most of them teachers, come from all sorts of activities and locations and for various reasons. Many are from California and have had contacts with Japanese there. Three women have recently returned from the mission field in Japan. Others have taught in Japan or Hawaii, another in China.

Mrs. Huey writes that most Japanese she has contacted are friendly and many are native born citizens. Some have histories and problems that would make fiction stories seem tame. One young woman was orphaned when quite young. Her father served in the United States army during the first World war. She has lived as a maid in a Caucasian doctor's home for several years and had never met many Japanese until she came to the camp. She does not feel at ease among them. Two women told Mrs. Huey of their sons being in the United States army. One told her husband claiming an interest in lot seven (7), Block two (2), Village of Sholes, Wayne county, Nebraska, real names unknown; to the heirs, devisees, legatees, personal representatives and all other persons interested in the estate of William Bartling, deceased, real names unknown, and all persons having or claiming an interest in lot seven (7), Block two (2), Village of Sholes, Wayne county, Nebraska, real names unknown; to the heirs, devisees, legatees, personal representatives and all other persons interested in the estate of Melvin C. Davis, deceased, real names unknown, and all persons having or claiming an interest in lots seven (7), eight (8), nine (9) and ten (10), Block five (5), Village of Sholes, Wayne county, Nebraska, real names unknown; to the heirs, devisees, legatees, personal representatives and all other persons interested in the estate of Cecelia Tietgen and Walter Tietgen, deceased, real names unknown, and all persons having or claiming an interest in part of southeast quarter (SE 1/4) of northeast quarter (NE 1/4) of section ten (10), Township twenty-seven (27), Range one, East, Wayne county, Nebraska, real names unknown.

Many of the people are Buddhists and have a strong church organization. Many of the loyal Japanese are Christians and a large proportion of Christians are being sent out for relocation.

The latter tells of a large irrigation project which is being built on the center. Japanese labor is used. Mrs. Huey continues by saying: "Rainfall here averages two inches per year. The soil is said to be 25 feet deep, silt which is washed out of Grand canyon of the Colorado river. It is rich but needs moisture. As an example of what it will do with irrigation, many people have planted sugar beets around the barracks for ornament. Many of these have a height of 12 to 15 feet, and I have seen them three or four inches in diameter."

In describing the camp Mrs. Huey says it is constructed on the same plan as army camps. Evacuee quarters are not as well equipped and evacuees are allowed only 31c a day for meals. The Hueys spend 31c each meal. Evacuees sleep on straw ticks while whites have inner spring mattresses. There are some gravelled roads through the camp and one good highway of blacktop. Dust is deep everywhere and at times miniature dust storms are experienced.

The travelers were warned several times of the heat of the Arizona desert. They were surprised to find themselves in a federal forest preserve extending 85 miles after they were but a little way into the desert.

The trip yielded a few surprises. Mrs. Huey tells of one when she writes, "I sat and gazed in open-mouthed wonder at the scenery about us while we went down, down a down steadily for 16 miles by the method of turms and jumping off. Places you can imagine. The road was good, plenty of room to pass, and we had the inside track most of the way. Even as we went down I took great comfort in remembering that the earlier part of the day we had been gradually going up most of the time, so I felt sure we would not have many mountains left. I was soon to learn my mistaken idea. As soon as we got down and took a little running start we went up. It took only 10 miles of it to get us up as high as it had taken 16 miles to come down. One little town, Jerome, had its main street so steep that the buildings suggested sparrows."

The last half day of driving before reaching their destination took the women through the so-called desert and cactus country of Arizona. For miles there was not a bit of grass. The giant cacti suggested telephone poles on a rural line and were about as close together.

Miss Frances Huey was promoted from an ordinary student for the month of summer school for teachers to a member of the summer school teaching staff the day after arriving at Poston. Because of this promotion the couple had to move from Camp 2, where they had become established the day they arrived, to Camp 1.

The Huey home is a barracks room 8 by 16 feet with walls covered with unpainted plaster board, no closet, an orange crate nailed up in one corner for a shelf, two good-looking comfortable beds, chairs, table and lamps, an electric cooler in the wall operates day and night. A Japanese maid cleans the room.

Housed in Barracks.

Each barracks has 10 sleeping rooms and two bath rooms. A public laundry is provided for each block. Two washing machines which have seen better days are a considerable help. Meals are eaten at a common mess hall. Only Caucasians eat at the one at which the Hueys eat. The food is served by young Japanese waiters. Food is good and well prepared. Many vegetables are grown on the project by the evacuees.

Frances' work during the summer consisted of teaching a kindergarten class of 26 children while a class of 25 evacuee girls just out of high school observe. In the afternoon she has the student teachers in conference. In September these girls took over the dozen or so kindergarten of the camp. Mrs. Huey was not assigned a certain grade to teach during the summer.

Two Sets Twins Are Named Alike

Post Office Box Used First Time to Bring Notice of Man's Induction.

Two sets of Iowa twins with identical first and last names and not related are serving in the armed forces. Richard and Robert, 18, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McKim of Nevada, are in the navy, and Richard and Robert, 19, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Milo McKimm of Mount Union, are in the army. The parents have become acquainted since they learned of the coincidence.

Edward Wittmeier, garage mechanic at Tacoma, Wash., bought a new mail box. Next day he saw the postman smile as he asked the box for the first time. Then Wittmeier rushed out to get his mail. It was a notice from his draft board to report for induction.

A cablegram from England ended Mrs. Charles Morrison's several-weeks search for a missing regiment book Her son, Master Sgt. Walter G. Morrison, rationed. "Found your number four ration book in pocket. Will return by mail."

Adolph Chesley, ration board chairman in New York, found this note in his mail: "Some shoes I've purchased recently didn't wear so well on me. They lasted several weeks and then, like the one-horse shay, they went—amen! That's why I've written this to you. I really don't know what to do. It's not the money that I lack—it's just my stamp—I want it back. Enclosed you'll find my shoe report; look at it and be a sport. Appearance counts with the man I adore, and in brand new shoes he'll love me more. Chesley said she would get a new shoe stamp."

A resident in Lancaster, Pa., reported her car stolen from in front of her home. Police found it buried where she had parked it—but buried under a snowdrift after a heavy snow.

Tenants at a New York apartment almost went without heat and possibly without a home. While shoveling coal into the furnace, John Ozborn noticed an odd-shaped piece of fuel. It was a stick of dynamite.

Walter Day and Agnes Knight Applied for a Marriage License in Seattle.

Auctioneer Geo. Albright of Humboldt, Neb., was on the spot when 47 men bid the ceiling price on a tractor. He asked each bidder to put a dollar. He placed the 47 names in a hat and picked one who got the tractor and his dollar back. The other 46 dollars went to the Red Cross.

Nancy Wat-Wac, Yakima Indian princess, enlisted in the WACS.

A girl wearing slacks entered a hotel ballroom in Kansas City with her escort. Carl Gebert, assistant manager, politely explained slacks weren't considered appropriate attire for dancing there. The girl smiled, tripped to the powder room and returned shortly with no slacks visible. Then she danced all evening, her trousers rolled up under her coat.

A New York newspaper carried this personal notice: "Julius, you're I-A. Come home. Mother."

It turned out to be a feast and a famine in two basketball games in Chicago. One game ended 110 to 18 and the other 2 to 11.

Honesty paid good dividends for Pvt. Sidney Bletzer of Milwaukee. The youth wired to his commanding officer in Utah as follows: "No death, no emergency, but request extension of furlough, having wonderful time." Maj. Geo. Lloyd wired back: "Reward for honesty, extension of five days on present furlough granted."

Thieves stole a car owned by James A. Watson of nearby Yonkers, N. Y., while he was visiting in New York. After reporting the loss to police, Watson started hitch-hiking home. The first car to come his way—and pass him—was his own.

Canteen Service In War Described

Comedy Is Presented for Wayne Women's Club at Friday Meeting.

"My experiences in World War One" was the subject of the talk given by Mrs. Paul Harrington for a large number attending Woman's club meeting Friday in the club rooms. Mrs. Harrington, who was introduced by Mrs. Willard Witse, organized and conducted surgical dressings classes in the library here before she volunteered in 1918 to go overseas as a Red Cross canteen worker. Mrs. Harrington, then Ella Morrison, and Elaine Chandler went to Dijon, France, where they helped establish canteens and then operated these.

Mrs. Harrington wore her dress uniform of 25 years ago. This is white with full skirt that reaches to within seven inches of the floor. Valuables were at that time hung around the waist beneath the full skirt. This contrasts sharply with the shoulder-slung bags of today. Nurses then wore no makeup whereas Red Cross workers today are allowed to use cosmetics. Mrs. L. A. Fenske assisted Mrs. Harrington by wearing the canteen uniform of 1918.

The speaker contrasted uniforms, regulations, methods of handling canteens and conveniences of appliances with modern provisions of today.

In 1918 the Red Cross had 150 canteens and a number of rolling canteens whereas now the organization operates 400 clubs and clubmobiles on many battle fronts. In Brisbane, Australia, alone, 125,000 meals are served each month by the canteens.

Mrs. Harrington complimented the young women of today who are doing a hard job well in the canteen service. Many of them master carpentry and such work that is often difficult.

To contrast the improvement made in canteen service since 1918, Mrs. Harrington told that then doughnuts were made by hand. Now these are turned out by machinery at the rate of a thousand an hour. Small kerosene machines made ice then and modern plants are now used. Fresh, cold water is one of the greatest needs for the men.

The presence of Red Cross canteen girls in war theatres is always a great morale builder, Mrs. Harrington stated. Field workers also do much for the men. Wayne has two Red Cross field workers abroad now. J. H. Morrison in England and Chas. Melchior in the south Pacific. Mrs. Harrington read excerpts from letters written by the two. She also showed pictures of present day Red Cross camps and also those of 1918.

Comedy Is Presented. A one-act comedy, "Girls Must Talk," by Paul T. Gantt, bringing conversation of window trimmers and also of models in a New York dress shop, on an early spring morning, was presented. Mrs. S. A. Lutgen introduced the cast, and she took the part of Miss Deedee, owner of the shop. Miss Marie, window trimmer, was portrayed by Mrs. Lewis Evans. Mrs. Chas. Melchior took the part of the model, Gerie. Miss Ruth Ross of Ruth, Mrs. D. S. Wightman of Betty and Miss Margaret Fenske of Annie. Miss Janice Teal had charge of stage and properties. Mrs. A. L. Swan loaned hawker. Mrs. H. E. Ley and Mrs. Melchior were directors, and Mrs. Ley had charge of makeup.

School Sextet Sings. Miss Genevieve Lundak presented the high school sextet in three groups of songs. In the first were "How Are You Going to Keep Them Down on the Farm," "Hinky Dinky Parlee Voo" and "Mary Lou." In the second were "Just a Baby's Prayer at Twilight" and "My Gal." The third included "The Marines' Hymn," "Anchors Aweigh," "Caisson Song" and "Air Corps Song." In the sextet were Lois Zepkin, Alice Slobiski, Bernice Peterson, Bonnell Milliken, Angeline Sieckman and Margaret McCullough.

To District Conference. Mrs. Paul Wagner of Norfolk, third district president, invited Wayne women to Norfolk for a one-day conference March 22. The theme is "Education for Living" and the slogan is "Love Your Neighbor as Yourself." Mrs. Ernest Raasch of Norfolk, was announced as new district publicity chairman, succeeding Mrs. Guy Thompson of West Point, who resigned. Mrs. D. S. Wightman, Mrs. E. E. Gailey and Mrs. S. A. Lutgen will attend the district meeting by virtue of their offices in the local club. Mrs. F. S. Morgan and Mrs. R. W. Casper were elected delegates with Mrs. Hobert Auker and Mrs. Willard Witse as alternates. The gift of a large coffee pot from Mrs. C. M. Claven was acknowledged by the local club.

The serving committee included Mrs. D. S. Wightman, Mrs. Jessie Miller, Mrs. W. A. Fiske, Mrs. E. W. Huse and Mrs. Erville W. Hughes.

Writes from Texas. Spring weather is grand in Texas, according to Mrs. Jessie Lound of McAllen. The former Wayne county resident says she has missed seeing Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schulte and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Andrews who usually go from Wayne to McAllen for the winter.

Many visitors in the southern state are having difficulty in getting gas for their return home. The matter has been appealed to the governor.

Library News

Libraries of the United States of America are playing a major part in the education of the people "to know, and therefore to value and therefore to preserve their own democratic culture." Even so, the average citizen has only "scratched the surface," so to speak, in taking advantage of the voluminous material available in the public libraries and the vast avenues of research which are open to them to acquire knowledge and a broader understanding of current important issues.

Come in and see the new maps sent out by Remington-Rand. They are most unusual and have footnotes by George Fielding Eliot.

V. Morris, and Last Love, by Helen Topping Miller. Non-fiction, Why Women Cry, by Elizabeth Hawes, You and Your Congress, by Volta Torrey, Lessons in Living, by Carlton Fredericks, and Nebraska Civil Government, by A. E. Sheldon.

He was graduated from the University of Nebraska and took his master's degree at the University of Chicago. He has always worked on newspapers from the Aurora Record to the Lincoln Journal and the last few years has been described as one of the most brilliant young journalists in Washington, D. C. ## Workers Are Needed In Packing Plants

Seven hundred laborers are needed at once in the Omaha meat packing plants as replacements for agricultural workers who left March 1 to return to the farm in accordance with arrangements made last fall according to Walter A. Steffen, local area director of the war manpower commission. "The labor shortage problem in the Omaha meat packing industry is more serious today than in November," Steffen said, "because we were able then to draw on our farm workers who were glad to help out during the winter months. We have no such source of labor available now."

The packers have given full authority to the 16 local offices of the United States employment service in Nebraska, to hire these workers. Steffen emphasized that the jobs require no previous experience, and added that packing company employees are working considerable overtime in order to handle the heavy volume of livestock reaching the Omaha market.

"We all know that Nebraska is a great meat-producing state, but our job does not end there," Steffen said. "Meat also must be processed, and it is at this point that a labor shortage has developed. Without food workers cannot make war weapons and without food, soldiers cannot fight. Food comes first, and that is why it is important that the 700 job openings be filled as soon as possible."

Steffen said the local employment service office at Norfolk is hiring workers now for these jobs, and that all hiring must conform to war manpower commission stabilization plans.

IN WARTIME IT'S "CAN DO"!

TRAVEL WISE says:

"Can do" is the action slogan of the resourceful Seabee doing a nearly impossible job in jig time. "Can do" could well be the railroad wartime slogan in carrying out a mammoth job moving wartime and civilian traffic.

In 1943 the railroads had 500,000 fewer freight cars than in 1918 and 10,000 fewer engines. Cars and engines in 1943 were larger and better but could not carry the wartime load except for maximum efficiency.

In true Seabee fashion, "Can do" was accomplished by the shippers of America—they solved the freight car problem. They ordered cars carefully, hurried the loading, speeded the unloading, and cleaned them out to be ready for the next shipper. The railroads moved the cars faster, and the result is one freight car is now doing the work of TWO.

Because of this co-operative spirit, the railroads have been able to meet the needs of the Army and Navy and the essential civilian requirements.
