Avoid Disturbing Sealed Patches

Farmers who have treated noxious weed patches with chemicals in the past few years should not drive over or disturb these patches, according to G. C. Buskirk of the county weed district.

When chemicals have been applied on weeds, the reaction which took place as the chemical came in contact with the ground seals it and this seal should not be broken for three or four years. Also, if the ground has not been disturbed one can see to treat the old plants or any seedlings that may appear.

Chlorite is hard to get, it costs money and labor is required to apply it. "Let's take good care of our patches and eradicate weeds completely as soon as possible," urges Mr. Buskirk.

Patches may be retreated any time when weeds appear, but September and October are the months the state recommends for first application.

Father: "I never kissed a girl until I met your mother. Will you be able to say the same to your son when you become a married man?"

Son: "Not with as straight a face as you can, father."

If you like your information straight, here is the best we can give you. As soon as possible this spring and summer, fill your coal bin with next winter's fuel supply. Only by so doing can the people of these United States assure themselves of enough coal for next winter. Get your order in now for coal to be delivered off the car at the convenience of your coal dealer.

"If I had my time over again," said the maiden lady, "I'd get married before I had sense enough not to."

Cutie: "Kiss me once more like that soldier, and I'm yours."

NEW AND DIFFERENT DISINFECTANT KILLS COCCIDIA on CONTACT

Combat coccidiosis now, before it takes chicks your country needs. Don't wait. It may strike anytime, anywhere... and wipe out your profits. Provide clean ground; chicks must pick up coccidia to contract the disease. Spray buildings, equipment and the litter, thoroughly and frequently with Dr. Salsbury's Par-O-San. Kills coccidia, on proper contact, won't harm the chicks. Then, while there's no "specific cure" for coccidiosis at present, practical experience shows that we can recommend these measures:

YOUR CHOICE OF TWO FINE MEDICINES PHENO-SAL PAR-O-SAN

PHENO-SAL in the drink. Does double duty. Because it is non-toxic, it is safe for the chick. It kills coccidia in the water, in the feed, in the litter, in the manure. It is a good preventive measure.

PAR-O-SAN in the feed. It kills coccidia in the feed, in the litter, in the manure. It is a good preventive measure.

In your battle against Coccidiosis, be sure to disinfect with Dr. Salsbury's Par-O-San. Then use whichever medicine you prefer, PHENO-SAL or PAR-O-SAN.

Change Is Effected In Army Program

The army air corps announced a revised training program, effective March 14, which added nine weeks to the individual training period for fighter pilots and five weeks to the schedule for bomber pilots. No change was made in the CTD program, such as the one at Wayne college, according to announcement by Capt. Wm. H. O'Donnell.

Each of the periods required to complete the curricula for pre-flight training and for primary, basic and advanced pilot training has been extended from nine to 10 weeks. In addition, a new five-week transition course, officially designated "fighter transition, single engine and fixed gunnery," has been stretched to 10 weeks. With the exception of the transition course for fighter pilots the revised schedule is a reversion to the 10-week per phase employed before Pearl Harbor.

The requirements of the combat air forces are being filled adequately and it is now possible to slow down the tempo of pilot training and provide more time for students to absorb complex instructions and reduce mental and physical pressure.

Former Wayne Boy Among Six Cadets

A-C Jack Wright was one of the six Wrights who caused so much confusion at Chico army air field. The Chico, Cal., daily paper carried the following story:

"The cadet instructors at the Chico army air field scarcely knew Wright from when they were teaching squadron three, of the upper class cadets."

"There were six Wrights in the same squadron—Jack of Wayne Harold of Dwight, Kan., William of St. Louis, Zane of Ashtown, Ark., Edward of Los Angeles, and Granville of Roscoe, Cal.—six, count 'em."

"They sat alphabetically in class in ground school courses; each day the instructors saw a whole row of Wrights."

"It almost came to the place where one Wright got credit for another Wright's work."

"The men are in different squadrons now, and life is simpler for everyone, the Wrights included."

A-C Wright is now stationed at an advanced flying base in Phoenix, Ariz. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wright and Bob went from Garden City, Kan., to visit him while he was at Chico.

The 1944 pastures-forage-livestock program does not call for any extensive reports although some recognition will be given farmers in various counties.

is advisable for early seeding to allow for any frost damage. It is suggested that many farmers can profit by seeding a few small fields to broom and alfalfa this spring for pasture and hay. The broom should be seeded as early as possible in order to avoid the danger of freezing the alfalfa. If broom is being seeded without alfalfa it should be seeded as soon as field conditions will permit.

In order to be sure of a high producing broom crop a farmer should secure seeds from fields 10 or more years old. Wayne county has broom fields as much as 45 years old.

Suggestions for operating the various types of gauges would be studied in the clinic.

Mr. DePew was a native of Allerton, Ia., and he was in a bakery in Wayne before moving to Long Beach 31 years ago to establish a bakery.

May Have Too Much Light

Extension Poultryman J. H. Claybaugh points out that too much light in a brooder house may not be desirable. A surplus of windows in a brooder house, he states, produces extremes in temperature and large bright spots on the floor that lead to toe and tail picking. Contrary to popular opinion, half as many square feet of glass in the brooder house as in the laying house would be preferred to twice as many. Mr. Claybaugh says the new 20 by 24 Nebraska type poultry house provides one square foot of glass to 20 square feet of floor space.

Mrs. E. C. Rhoades of Emerson, Mrs. Orville Rhoades and son of Wakefield, were here Friday.

Soil Conservation Hearing Is Called

Dixon County Farmers Are Invited to Allen for Meeting Wednesday.

Farmers of Dixon county are invited to Allen Legion hall Wednesday night, March 23, at 7:30 for a hearing on the proposal to organize a soil conservation district. The hearing is called by Dr. G. E. Condra, chairman of the soil conservation committee as a result of a petition signed and submitted by land owners from Dixon county.

Nebraska now has 46 soil districts with approximately 19,000,000 acres.

Director W. H. Brokaw of the state extension service, representative on the state soil conservation committee, plans to preside at the hearing. Dean Burr, dean of the college of agriculture, may also be present.

Farmers who reside in soil conservation districts receive the following services without levying a tax or without pocket costs: Laying of contour lines, terracing assistance, tree planting aid, guidance in grass seeding, and wind erosion control and seeding or farming grassed waterways. All of the soil conservation assistance is at the cost of federal funds.

Dixon county has never been in the shelter belt area, but since this is now carried on by the soil conservation program, Dixon county farmers may have shelterbelt service if the district is formed.

No farmer in a district is obligated to take up any of the many soil conservation practices on his farm, but the district provides this assistance.

NINETEENTH BIRTHDAY

March is noted for its stormy weather. As an old saying goes, "If March comes in like a lion it will go out like a lamb." But spring always starts on March 20th and the long spell of cold and snow starts to melt away for the violets and crocus to begin spreading their beauty and freshness on the awakening pasture. March is also our birthday month and we are giving a 19th anniversary party of values to all our friends and customers. We are prepared for lion or lamb weather, too, with complete stocks of winter and spring merchandise for the family, home, farm and car at substantial savings.

Prospects Bright For Spring Crops

Sunday Movies and Higher Band Levy Are Issues At Early Election.

Early Days from the Wayne Herald for March 22, 1928:

March in this territory means a month in which anything may be expected in the form of weather. But this year the month has been wonderfully well regarding weather and crop prospects are good. The ground is well soaked and the wind blowing will soon start to launch farming operations for the season. Weather conditions are favorable and farm prices are good so the outlook is bright.

Increased tax for the band and the question of permitting Sunday movies will come before voters this spring and interest in the election increases daily.

"Wayne county has petitioned the supreme court to enjoin officials of Thurston county from collecting taxes in the territory which is claimed as a part of both counties. There is a question whether the strip in question was ever legally attached to Wayne, but the defining boundaries of Thurston county makes that county lap on Dakota county, and for that reason the act is void."

Virgil Shiflet of Carroll, who had been in the Aleutians with Sgt. Sellon, returned to the states with him.

S. Sgt. Sellon will report to Ft. Bliss, Texas, after his furlough.

Promoted in India. Arnold H. Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. J. Hansen of Carroll, has been promoted to staff sergeant at an air transport base in India.

"We were treated very nicely when we arrived. We were served coffee and doughnuts. They tasted good after the food we had had on the ship.

"The trip over was OK, but for a day and a night which was very rough. A lot of the fellows got sick, but I was lucky enough not to."

Yes, Sonny--We have to tape it up this time. Can't replace it now because wire is one of the things we use that has gone to war.

Wire, telephones, switchboards—equipment of all kinds is being saved, repaired, "stretched"—to give everyone all the service we can during these days of material shortages.

After the last bit of service has been obtained from them, every piece of wire and scrap of metal are salvaged and sent to the nation's stockpile of war material—later to go into lighting equipment.

Careful! Materials Are Scarce!

You help safeguard your service when you keep your telephone in a firm and dry place, keep the cord straight (twisting injures the wire)—and you are careful not to bang the receiver.

Bonds for First In Berlin-Tokyo

Woman Is Given Extra Shoe Stamp for Wearing Out Pair in War Sales.

The Berlin, Conn., service star committee has a $25 war bond waiting for the first serviceman or woman from Berlin, Conn., who sends home a postcard or letter from Berlin, Germany. A second bond awaits the first one to send word from Tokio. Prisoners of war don't count.

Kansas City ration board was only too glad to grant Mrs. Evelyn Oney an extra shoe ration stamp when they learned the reason she was asking for the stamp. She wore her shoes out selling $12,000 worth of war bonds in a house-to-house campaign.

A Holyoke, Mass., resident accepted a bill of damages because, unable to unlock the car parked in front of his home, he smashed a rear window, carefully removed the glass, crawled inside and discovered it wasn't his.

Dwight Dean, recently elected president of a Falls Village, Conn., bank, thinks William Hubbell, elected cashier, has enough experience to take over the presidency if necessary. Hubbell has been with the bank 62 years and Dean with the bank 80 years. The latter is 92.

Mrs. Alice J. Osborn, 60, San Francisco, smiled indulgently when William Farrington, a former less boarder at her home, killed her property. She kept the will for 11 years after his death, though just for sentiment. She was recently notified that she was heir to $6,259.66.

Andrew Yourczek of Little Falls, Minn., went hunting and his dog caught what appeared to be a cottonrail rabbit. Closer inspection disclosed the animal had three-inch horns, growing out of the top of its head and curving backward like those of a sheep. The rabbit will be mounted and installed in the county museum.

The moon over Luke Field, Ariz., may be of value to love-sick soldiers, but the army doesn't like it. You see it is too bright for night flying training.

Capt. Richard B. Elliott, Twin Falls, Idaho, grows slightly nostalgic when he thinks about that little hamburger stand on Russell island in the southwest Pacific. It had the real thing. G. I. Joes shot wild cattle and made their own.

Weatherman Thomas E. Reed of Binghamton, N. C., was surprised when a young woman asked him for the July 14 forecast. The reason she asked - she is going to be married that day.

Men at the Denver airbase remember well where the Japanese acquired much of that scrap metal they now are shooting back at American soldiers. That's why they noted with glee that the silk used in a demonstration of parachute signal flares at Lowry field was stamped "Made in Japan."

Describe Wedding Held in Japanese Relocation Center

Miss Frances Huey who is teaching at a Japanese relocation center at Postville, Ariz., wrote to relatives at Carroll, Ia., telling about a Japanese Buddhist wedding she was fortunate enough to be invited to attend.

The wedding was held in the Nichirin (strict sect) temple. The temple was really a quarter of a barrack curtained off with a purple velvet curtain. A light blue short valance slightly in front was caught up by a big spray of glorified pink cherry blossoms. The altar was tiered and covered with white cloth. At the top was an elaborate, but small image of Buddha. Progressing down were two small fruit stands holding oranges, an incense burner, two white candles, two bouquets of white paper roses, and various and sundry other items. White muslin was rolled down over the altar rail and down the aisle for the bride to come in on. A candleabra on each side of the rail held five white candles.

The first priest who came in to light the candles wore a tan poplin robe with a heavy purple drape. The second appeared brightly, wearing a brilliant red robe with gold embroidered flowers and long purple sleeves. He waved a small beautiful silk thread mop back and forth before the altar tempting the candles to ignite it. There was also chanting and the bride entered on the arm of her brother-in-law and met the bridegroom at the altar. The bride wore a wool suit and a hat and an elaborate corsage of artificial orchids. All extra special guests were given paper corsages as they entered. All flowers were Poston made. After the ceremony the bride and bridegroom placed a dangling cord bracelet on the wrist of the other.

The reception was held in the mess hall, which was still decorated from Christmas. All were seated at the table, but everyone stood and clapped as the wedding party entered. Speeches followed in Japanese, and about half the people there were introduced. Finally a Japanese friend of the bridegroom took over as master of ceremonies and shortly passed into English. The wedding couple cut the cake and two of their friends sang songs. The food was brought and guests listened to swing music from a Victrola. Then the group sang such songs as the Marines' Hymn and current popular songs.

The dinner consisted of three rice cakes, one sprinkled with bright red, shredded, dried shrimp, one rolled in a very thin sheet of seaweed and sliced like a jelly roll showing a dainty center of cooked greens and dried shrimp and one similarly rolled in a thin sheet of onion. Four open-faced sandwiches, eggs, cheese, fish and sausage, dill pickles and ripe olives, a slab of breadpaste, which is a Japanese confection about the color and consistency of thick apple butter but tasting like beans and which is made by cooking and pounding a special kind of tiny red sweet beans; ice cream and cake; punch at the beginning and hot tea at the end.

"If a couple wish to get married the young man asks his folks, who ask their friends, who ask the bride's folks' friends, who ask her folks, who don't ask her," is the way Miss Huey explains a Japanese proposal. "The answer goes back the same way, and other wedding plans are made." If the girl doesn't get around to getting pickled, the process seems to operate in reverse whether she wants to be picked or not.

Miss Huey and her mother, Mrs. Cora Huey, write that Christmas was observed in camp. School children gave programs and gifts were exchanged. New Years was also observed and internees followed some of their old customs.

The women write that when the camp was first established there was a larger proportion of doctors, nurses and Christian ministers than the outside population had. Gradually these people relocated and found positions of responsibility in the outside world. For quite a while the only doctor in the camp of about 10,000 people was the Caucasian who was in charge of the hospital.

The first real freeze of the season came January 8. The next day children were out fishing ice from the irrigation canals and trying to save it.

County Agent Howard Gillaspie showed a picture, "A Heritage We Guard." Mrs. Stingley served. East Eckert entertains next in the West Eckert home.

At Chas. Chinn Home.

Plans for the year were discussed and discussion centered around tractor efficiency. Mr. Chinn, leader, led discussion of information from a state tractor test bulletin. Chlorate Arrives For Dixon County

A car load of sodium chlorate is being unloaded at Allen and is being stored at Newcastle, Ponca and at Allen.

As sodium chlorate has been a little difficult to obtain, County Agent Howard Gillaspie advises getting it right away as this car load is not expected to remain long in storage.

Much of the sodium chlorate is being used in the war and not a great deal is available for weed control. If the Dixon county weed district is to get another allocation of chlorate, this will have to be moved soon.

Control of bindweed should be controlled by block cultivation where there is an acre or more in one solid patch. Block cultivation is cheaper per acre than treating with chemical. But the weed patch must be worked every two or three weeks under this method.

Appear in Recital.

College piano quartet pleased an interested audience at the college auditorium last Thursday evening with selections arranged for a quartet of players at two pianos. The members of the quartet are Ronald Sauer of Madison, Martha Crellin of Ewing, Elinor Soderberg and Merle Ring, both of Wakefield. Several out-of-town guests came to hear the pianists.

The program featured the quartet in seven selections including "Light Cavalry Overture," by Von Suppe, and the brilliant "Second Rhapsody," by Liszt. Ronald Sauer played one of his own compositions, "Small Piano Rhapsody." An arrangement of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes" was played at two pianos by the duo team, Martha Crellin and Elinor Soderberg. Merle Ring and Ronald Sauer played "March Triumphant," by Bierman.

Prof. Albert G. Carlson of the college piano department, prepared and presented the pianists.

Library News

Most Americans admire the courage fight the Chinese have made against Japanese aggression, but very few Americans understand the full implications of that fight or even know the true story back of it. To most, China is a mysterious land of flood and famine, of teeming populations and great desert wastes on the bottom of the world at the end of the Burma road.

The present state of our knowledge will not necessarily produce enlightened cooperation now or after the war. Every library can share in arousing interest in China and in furnishing that knowledge necessary for understanding Chinese problems and evaluating Chinese needs.

China Book week begins March 25 and every book store and library in the United States will be stressing books about China. We will have a display in our library from March 25 to April 1. This display will include both books and magazines and will be selected from the shelves of the children's room and the adult reading room. This celebration of China book week is being observed at the request of the office of war information. As good Americans it behooves us all to take the time to read and learn something about our Chinese allies.

New books catalogued this week include: Persons and Places, by George Santayana, a fascinating autobiography. Toward a Better World, by Jan Smuts, who is regarded as a commanding prophet in the field of international affairs. The Siege of Leningrad, by Boris Sknoroovskiy, which is the inside story of how the people of that city lived and fought for 515 days. Also included is Strange Fruit, by Lillian Smith, which is a novel of the south and the negro problem and rated as a major novel by the New York Times. Another is Lend Lease - Weapon for Victory, by E. R. Stettinius, which is much more interesting reading than the title would indicate.

Story hour for the children Saturday will be in charge of Miss Marybelle Schmidt, kindergarten teacher at the high school.

Miss Ellen Brummett and Pfc. Boyd Cunningham of Randolph, were married March 7 at Fort Dix.

Old Cars Need Better Care!

The average car on the road today is seven years old. Because of this fact it is important to remember that proper servicing keeps car performance young. Oil should be inspected often and changed every 1,000 miles, or every 60 days, whichever comes first.
